A Winamac Basement Shop Aids Christian Education

FROM A MODEST, sawdusty basement shop in Winamac, not far from Culver, emerge thousands of small, ingenious aids to Christian education.

AL SPIERS

The tiny shop — one comfortably cluttered room crammed with sundry boxes, piles of wood, machines, tools, and a bench or two — is the home of Creative Crafts, the hobby-enterprise of M. E. Reed, genial, soft-voiced teacher, and preacher.

MR. REED has two large loves — children and busy work. Days, he's a teacher, principal, and coach in a grade school at Boardtown. Sundays he preaches where needed in nearby churches. Most evenings and many Saturdays he toils in his crafts shop.

Last year, with only occasional part-time help, Mr. Reed made 15,000 handcraft kits "with Christian emphasis" for use in vacation Bible schools. This year he'll top 30,000.

DISTRIBUTED through The Evangel Press, a Napanee church supply house, the kits sell all over America and net Mr. Reed a modest profit, most of which he currently plows back into the enterprise.

"I'm building toward retirement in a few years," he smiled. "I like to work. By then, the shop should keep me plenty busy."

CREATIVE CRAFTS was born of a need Mr. Reed perceived while serving in the ministry.

A native rural Hoosier, born and raised near Veederburg, Mr. Reed farmed awhile, then turned to teaching after studies at Purdue and Indiana Central.

For nine years, he served rural schools in Vermillion and Tippecanoe Counties, preaching on the side at nearby United Brethren churches until ordained.

Thereafter he pastored churches in Lafayette, Brook, Gary, Waterloo, Bremen, Fulton, and Bippa and became active in vacation Bible school work.

ONE DAY HE BEGAN to nurse an idea.

"It occurred to me," he recalled, "that if children took home from Bible school something permanent and attractive, of their own making, it might serve as a lasting reminder of what they'd learned."

Some kind of hand craft was the obvious answer — but few appropriate materials or kits were readily available.

Episcopal Church Names Local Man To Its Vestry

Col. C. A. Whitney, popular and long-time member of the Culver Military Academy staff, has been greatly honored by his parish, St. Thomas' Episcopal Church in Plymouth, which currently is celebrating its 100th anniversary.

The wardens and vestry of St. Thomas' have unanimously elected Colonel Whitney to the vestry (the body of parish lay officials) to fill the unexpired term of the late Kenneth A. Hallman, Mr. Hallman, the vestryman-choir-master, was recently killed in a tragic train-truck accident.

The pastor of St. Thomas' is the Rev. William C. R. Sheridan.

Praised By Father Sheridan

Father Sheridan made this comment concerning the election: "The wardens and vestry wished to give this honor to Colonel Whitney in recognition of his faithful devotion to the life and discipline of the Church and for his loyalty to St. Thomas' Parish for more than 30 years. This is a richly earned recognition and I am delighted!"

Several Members In Culver

Population Of Marshall County Hits 32,286

Peter D. Trone Wrapping Up Job

From his South Bend office, Peter D. Trone of Culver, Census District Supervisor, has favored The Citizen with an advance report which shows a substantial increase in Marshall County's population over the 1950 count:

"I take pleasure in making a preliminary announcement of the population of Marshall County, Indiana.

"The census count to date is: Marshall County total — 32,286.

"These figures are believed to be substantially correct but are subject to revision after the returns for nonresidents are credited to their proper locality and other routine checks have been made.

"Although a significant revision is unlikely, minor revisions may possibly occur after careful examination of the returns.

"The official announcement of population will be made at a later date by the Director of the Bureau of the Census."

Starke County's G.O.P. Chairman State's Youngest

Edward L. Hasnerl Capable Leader

The youngest man ever to hold the position of Republican county chairman in the State of Indiana was elected Saturday, May 7, in Knox.

He is 25-year-old Edward L. Hasnerl, who was elected to the position over opposition from Starke County's sheriff, Harold Wyland, in a 27 to 10 vote by the precinct committeemen. The vote was viewed as an upset by most political observers who had predicted an easy win for Wyland.

"Ed" Hasnerl, of Knox, is editor of The Starke County News, and had been chairman of the county's Young Republican organization for four years prior to his election Saturday.

Culver's Lovely and Talented Miss Tommye Glaze Enters "Miss Plymouth" Contest

Here's some mighty exciting local news: MISS TOMMYE GLAZE of Culver, probably the most talented student on the Indiana University campus, has decided to enter the "Miss Plymouth" county-wide contest on June 14 and 15.

Miss Glaze, a soloist of Broadway and Hollywood caliber, won the "Miss Plymouth" contest two years ago and went on to capture the coveted Talent Award in the "Miss Indiana" pageant at Michigan City.

Last year Tommye elected to accompany the I. U. Belles of Indiana musical organization on a European tour rather than compete in the colorful Marshall County event.

Her proud sponsor, who believes she has a good chance to go all the way to the "Miss America" contest at Atlantic City in September, is the Culver-based monthly magazine, Indiana Business and Industry.

"Oklahoma" Will Be Repeated Free Saturday, May 21

Last Saturday night's performance of the hit musical, "Oklahoma," was, by a country mile, the best entertainment yet presented at the new Eppley Auditorium at Culver Military Academy.

This appraisal takes in a lot of territory because some of the biggest name acts in the U.S. have appeared on its spacious stage during the first Concert and Theatre Series recently concluded.

"Oklahoma" was a tremendous triumph for the participating cadets, CMA faculty daughters, and "nowgirls" from the Culver High School.

Beautifully Staged and Directed

The Rodgers and Hammerstein production was putty in the hands of Director William J. Martin, Musical Director Edward T. Payson, and Vocal Director Claude E. Zetty. The choreography by Virginia Bays was magnificent.

Don't, under any circumstances, miss the free repeat performance Saturday, May 21, at 8 p.m. There will be no reserved seats. The public is urged to come early because more than 200 were turned away from the huge 1,560-seat theatre at the first performance.

A Most Talented Cast

The following young people were exceptionally good in the principal roles:

Aunt Eller, Tina Hughes; Curly, Jim Rogers; Laurey, Mary Curry; Ike, Philip Causey; Fred, Bob Glaze; Slim, John Wheat; Will Parker, Eric Fairchild; Jud Fry, Jerry Soest; Ado Annie, Gerry Graham; Ali Hakim, George Rabasa; Andrew Carnes, Sandy Reece; and Cord Elam, Robert Tanner.

House Movers Rough On Highways

This old house, in the process of being moved several miles these past several weeks from an Academy location to a new site on West Shore Drive (old Road 17) near The House of Treasures, is doing a pretty thorough job of beating up the highways en route. Citizens are rightly asking: Who will be responsible for making the necessary repairs?

Recently, some 300 members of the USO National Council met in Washington, D.C. to discuss "civilian responsibilities to the military in the cold war." Here, President Eisenhower, USO national honorary chairman, receives the USO Annual Award for his "distinguished service to the welfare of the nation" from USO Chairman Harvey S. Firestone, Jr. During the two-day meeting, aimed at planning improvements in USO morale services to the armed forces, the Council heard Selective Service Chief Lewis B. Hershey say, "By your presence here, you people give assurance to our young people serving in uniform overseas that somebody back home does care about them."

JESUS CHRIST was born in a stable; He was obliged to flee into Egypt; thirty years of His life were spent in a workshop; he suffered hunger, thirst and weariness; He was poor, despised; and miserable; He taught the doctrines of heaven, and no one would listen. The great and the wise persecuted and took Him, subjected Him to frightful torments, treated Him as a slave, and put Him to death between two malefactors, having preferred to give liberty to a robber, rather than to suffer Him to escape. Such was the life which our Lord chose; while we are horrified at any kind of humiliation, and cannot bear the slightest appearance of contempt. — Fenelon

Culver Clean-Up Week
May 16-May 21

The Chamber of Commerce and the Town Board have named next week (that's the 16th to 21st inclusive) as Culver Kleen-Up Week.

We urgently request every home in Town to help and cooperate with us in this annual enterprise. Very shortly now we will be deluged weekly with our summer visitors and it behooves us all to get our collective house in order and have it clean. This, not only as a superficial matter of appearance, but for city sanitation as well.

We solicit your help in this matter. Let us (each and everyone of us) do that little extra next week, which makes the difference between mediocrity and excellence, between front yard and a thing of beauty.

The city truck will make the entire town at intervals, throughout the week, removing all rubbish set out for them free of charge.

If they have missed your spot by Friday call Mike and it will be picked up.

Thanks to the city firemen who have promised to wash our Main Street next week. We solicit any suggestion from any citizen to promote and assure the success of this project. The Chambers committee consists of Clyde L. Shively, Andy Venum, and Jim McAllister.

Any citizen who needs assistance in this matter should feel free to call any member of the Town Board or any member of this committee.

A. R. McKESSON
President of Town Board

Being A Minister Is No Picnic Says Kiplinger

Your Pastor Has A Tough Job

The greatest problem facing the good minister today is the strain of trying to be too many men at once, according to the editors of Changing Times, the Kiplinger magazine.

An article in the current issue of the magazine states that hand-in-hand with America's postwar religious reawakening has come the realization that the minister, who used to be thought of as a man apart, is being called upon to wrestle rough-and-tumble fashion with the great and small problems that beset every man.

He is, the editors say, the administrator of a rather large enterprise; the organizer of a group and director of its efforts; a preacher who gives contemporary meaning to old truths, a teacher and a teacher of teachers; a pastor caring for the needs of the people he serves; a counselor equipped to help people find worthwhile goals and values; a screening agent through whom personal problems are routed; a crusader for just and good causes; even, unhappily, a fund raiser, a public relations man, and all too often head janitor.

Real Shortage Of Men

Every major religious group, the article reports, is moving to meet these problems, made more acute by the current shortage of men to fill pulpits — the 1958 census showed 309,449 pastoral charges and 235,272 clergymen filling them.

Theological schools are filled to overflowing, and a few new schools are being built; some groups are using less thoroughly trained ministers, some are allowing retired pastors to take charges without forfeiting pensions, some are using tutorial systems and night schools to train men who must work at other jobs.

All of the churches are concentrating on highly selective recruitment programs, including psychological testing, to seek out young men who are suited to the religious vocation and will stay in it.

The theological world is currently in a ferment of indecision about its course in preparing young men for the ministry, the article reports. Despite charges of inadequacy of practical training, no one wants to give up academic courses lest the intellectual level be sacrificed.

Clinical Training

Thus, many Protestant schools and some Jewish ones urge students to spend a summer, usually the one after their first year, in what is called clinical training. There, under carefully trained supervisors, the young men have their first taste of pastoral counseling.

The article also lists field work — ideally a sort of internship for students — as another form of practicing for the ministry. Some Protestant seminaries are requiring students to serve real internships under trained supervising ministers, and a few are considering adding a school year for the purpose.

The value of clinical training and field work, the editors state, is illustrated by the shattering — and illuminating — effect it has on a bewildered student. For the first time he sees himself as a pastor.

Once the student has fulfilled all the requirements, and is ordained, the editors say his attitude toward his life's work can be found in these sample quotations:

A Joyous Life

"The ministry is a joyous life offering an extraordinary number of rewards. A minister has the chance to serve his fellow man in his utmost need, the need to have his hunger for religion filled. He can close the circle of happiness for others and he actually gets paid for doing it. What more can he ask? Such a way of life can never pall."

"The Catholic priest has little money for his personal needs, and he is almost invariably the softest touch in the parish. Still, it is hard to find a priest who has signed up for social security."

"At the end of a day, the rabbi may be a tired and spent man. He is not, however, bereft of faith and resolve. He is, to borrow a prophetic phrase, the 'person of hope.'"

Bowling Is More Popular Than Ever Says Survey

Are more people bowling today? Undoubtedly, but what's happened to the bowling profit picture?

The Ernst & Ernst Operating Ratio Report covering the 1959 business year for bowling establishments has just been released by the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

A quick glance at the report will immediately show that, while league pay lane, gross business, and total investments in bowling are all on the upswing, the average profit percentage today's bowling establishment owner receives has dropped from 7.8% in 1956 to 4.4% in 1959! Bear in mind that these figures are before deduction of federal income taxes.

Investment Up 50%

A brief comparison of the new report with the same report for 1956 shows that the average total investment per individual proprietor is up nearly 50%, and that total pinsetting costs (including a automatic pinsetting equipment rental, and purchases) have risen 15%.

The combination of the higher operating costs, fewer customers per establishment due to the building "boom", and the fact that bowling prices have increased only slightly has brought about the profit decline. The average proprietor has had a profit drop of 44% from 1956.

More Summer Activity

The majority of proprietors have remained open during the normally slack summer months (85% operated during summer months of 1959, while only 43% did so during the corresponding period of 1956. This has resulted in increases in total league per lane and a small rise in the percentage of open play, but profits have continued to drop because of the diluted stream of customers.

Increased promotional efforts by bowling establishments have brought about a rise in junior bowling activity, but the fact that junior play is usually sold at or near cost means that the increased league from this source will have no effect on profit figures.

These facts, and many others contained in the Ernst & Ernst Report point up emphatically that today's bowling "boom" is not in the bowling business itself, but rather in the construction activity brought about by the increasing popularity of the game in many areas.

Time Trials For "500" Start Saturday

One of the busiest opening-day time trial sessions in Speedway history is expected when the battle for the pole position in this year's Indianapolis 500 Mile Race opens at 11 o'clock on Saturday morning, May 14.

Many of the outstanding veterans and several of the most promising 1960 rookies already have worked their way up to racing speed on their daily practice laps and are anxious to clinch one of the 33 starting positions for the annual May 30 classic at the earliest opportunity.

Heading this year's big field of 66 are three former winners — Rodger Ward, Jimmy Bryan and Troy Ruttman. Other favorites for the pole position include Johnny Thomson, Jim and Dick Rathmann, Tony Bettenhausen and Eddie Sachs.

Thomson won the No. 1 starting position with a four-lap average of 143.908 miles an hour last year, including a new single-lap mark of 146.532; and Dick Rathmann holds the four-lap qualifying record of 145.974, set in 1958.

Sachs and Jim Rathmann were Thomson's companions in the front last year, although Daywalt was the second fastest qualifier with an average of 144.683. His car wasn't ready on the first time trial day, when the pole position was decided. According to Speedway procedure, each day's qualifiers line up behind the qualifiers on earlier days.

Special prize money, totalling $15,000, an increase of $3,500 over last year, has been posted for the Gates to the grounds will be opened at 7 o'clock on Saturday in an effort to avoid any traffic congestion and race cars will be permitted on the track for practice laps beginning at 9 o'clock. Special ceremonies planned by Tony Hulman, Speedway president, will start at 10:30.

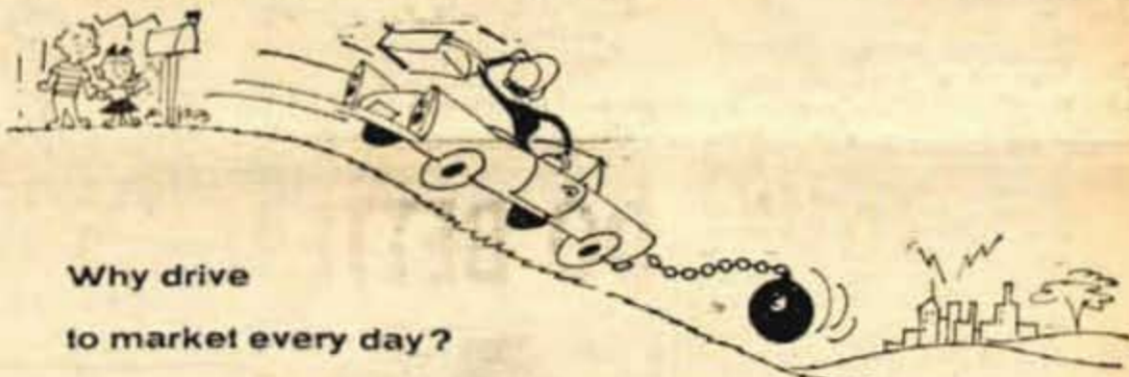

On Sunday, the gates will be opened at 9 o'clock; and track action on both days will continue until 6 p.m. Admission will be $1.50 with free parking space for 25,000 cars in the Speedway infield.

What Makes An Academy Senior Really Tick?

Eisenhower Most Admired Person

His favorite food is steak, 7 to 11. He has a summer job to earn college tuition. "Maverick" is his favorite television program and Kim Novak is his favorite movie star. And the living international figures he most admires are President Eisenhower and Sir Winston Churchill.

Who is he? He's the average senior attending Culver Military Academy, as computed from a survey taken of the 181 members of the class.

In an effort to gain insight into late teen-age thinking and actions the Alumnus magazine of the school took a comprehensive survey of the group.

The Average CMA Senior

The average Culver senior is 5' 11" and weighs 158 pounds. He wears a size 10½ shoe, and he's 17 years and 6 months old. His hair is brown, his eyes are blue, and he has a 120 T. Q.

Almost half (44 per cent) wear glasses, but only 18 per cent do so full-time.

The members of the class come from 28 states, 2 possessions, and 7 foreign countries, but he's probably either from Illinois (18 per cent), Indiana (17), Ohio (10), or Michigan (also 10).

The boy is most apt to be the eldest child in the family, with one brother and one sister.

What's his most difficult subject? "English," answered 28%. Another 21% listed mathematics.

ROTC Field Exercise At CMA Saturday Morning

Culver Military Academy's corps of cadets will participate in "Operation Hopeful" Saturday from 8 a.m. until noon.

It is the annual field exercise, conducted by the Army ROTC detachment at the Academy as an adjunct to the cadets' training in Military Science and Tactics. Every Culver cadet is enrolled in the Army's ROTC program.

The 800 cadets will use howitzers, rifles and machine guns loaded with blank ammunition, and simulate fire with mortars and anti-tank weapons. Two helicopters from Fort Sheridan, Ill. will give aerial support.

An objective has been designated, and cadets will be divided into an enemy force and an attacking force.

The operation is used to provide additional leadership training for the upper classmen, as well as giving a background of small unit tactics for underclassmen. Culver is a northern Indiana college preparatory school for 800 boys in grades 8 through 12. It uses the military system to give students opportunities to both lead and follow boys their age.

THE HANDICAP

How To Slow Progress

West Germany has an odd problem, from the American point of view.

Too much economic growth. There are more jobs than there are people to fill them, even though the Germans have been importing labor from Italy and putting East German refugees to work before they've had time to unpack.

There is too much investment, too, the German government feels. More new factories will contribute to the already acute labor shortage.

So the West Germans — who had successfully promoted growth by cutting taxes to free money for job-making investment and to make investment profitable — have decided to raise taxes. They know this will effectively slow down economic growth.

Our own situation is sadly different. We still have about 5 per cent unemployment, and everyone is worried because America's economy isn't growing fast enough.

The obvious remedy is to reform the income tax system to free money for new investment, and to provide incentive to investors. A bill to do this, the Herlong-Baker measure, has been pending for some time in the House Ways and Means Committee.

Now that the Government is in the black again, The Culver Citizen believes the time has come to act on tax reform!

This Week With Governor Handley

Home Rule Versus Washington Bureaucrats

INDIANAPOLIS, May 9 — "Indiana will continue to have better schools and colleges," Governor Harold W. Handley observed here today.

"We will continue to have a mental health program second to none, library facilities for rural families as well as city residents, and public recreation facilities in every part of the state.

"The big question is: Who is going to operate these programs? Will we have home rule or Washington bureaucrats? Will these facilities be Hoosier or federal?"

"It is notorious that federal administration always costs more than local administration. In numerous cases, the price tag might at first seem less, because only the federal share of matching funds is stressed.

Taxpayer Hit Twice

"But the matching funds gimmick always means double or nothing. The taxpayer is hit twice — with more federal taxes, and with more local taxes.

"In addition to the unnecessary cost of such a setup — in addition to the waste of money which could be better spent at home, it should be obvious that nobody in the District of Columbia can possibly know as much about local needs, local opinions, local resources and local plans for the future as the people of a community themselves.

"The people of Indiana have done a magnificent job in providing adequate education for their young people. This is true of our colleges as well as our elementary and high schools.

Plenty Of Books Available

"And anybody who says there are not books available in school libraries as well as public libraries throughout our state is simply inaccurate. All the laws in the world can't compel people to read. There will always be some people who do not want to read, even though the statisticians pretend otherwise.

"Indiana is doing a fine job in caring for the mental health needs of all its citizens, and also regarding help for the mentally retarded.

"Anybody who wants to be rational about it knows that only the Legislature can appropriate money for any state government expenditure. No Governor or any other administrative official can go beyond the appropriations of the Legislature. Nor can specific appropriations be shifted to a program other than that for which the Legislature voted them.

Progress In Mental Health

"In recent months here is what Indiana has done regarding those formerly judged to be mentally retarded: Placed 80 mentally retarded children in the Northern Indiana Children's Hospital, and 12 in the Soldiers' and Sailors' Children's Home at Knights-town; admitted 117 mentally retarded children to other state hospitals, and admitted 145 to state schools for the mentally retarded; temporarily admitted mentally retarded where emergency family situations arise.

"And we now have under construction, in the actual planning stage, or ready for detailed blueprinting enough projects to care for every mentally retarded child in Indiana in the near future, unless the Legislature should curtail the program.

"A 200-bed dormitory at the Fort Wayne State School will be ready this autumn. Another 200-bed dormitory will be ready in 1961.

"If the 1961 Legislature appropriates the money, a 200-bed nursery will be built at Fort Wayne.

"We will transfer to two 40-bed units at Madison State Hospital enough patients from the State School at Muscatatuck to make room for 80 new admissions there. A new 20-bed addition is being built at Muscatatuck, and modernization of another building there will make room for 60 additional children.

"We also are expanding the special staffs at these various in-

Get Ready Now For Culver's Annual Clean-Up Week!

Young Jay North, who plays "Dennis the Menace" in the popular CBS-TV series, takes time out from his usual antics to join in the Spring Clean-Up fire prevention campaign of the nation's nearly four-million Junior Fire Marshals. Jay and elementary-school youngsters in thousands of communities are attaching reminder tags listing Spring Clean-Up fire safety tips to doorknobs of homes across the country. The door-tagging project is part of the year-round Junior Fire Marshal program sponsored as a public service by the Hartford Fire Insurance Company. Here Dennis checks fire precautions with his arch-friend and neighbor, Mr. Wilson (Joseph Kearns).

"The Indiana Division of Mental Health has been working with two citizen committees on the problems of mental retardation and emotionally disturbed children. They will propose to the 1961 Legislature a new 300-bed residential school in Indianapolis, and three new 60-bed residential institutions elsewhere.

"We should not forget that the Legislature must consider all the needs of our state. For many years the Legislature has been aware that there was a waiting list for mentally retarded children.

"I presented to the 1959 Legislature a proposed 10-year program which called for 939 additional beds for the mentally retarded, and an appropriation of $5,828,000 for immediate construction in 1959-1961. The Legislature appropriated $760,000.

"Every Governor can operate only within the financial limits set by each Legislature. If it were otherwise the office of Governor would assume Napoleonic proportions."

Governor Handley explained these facts at the annual meeting of the Indiana Mental Health Association, which he has addressed every year since he became Lieutenant Governor in 1955.

He also spoke before the International convention of the Torch Clubs in Indianapolis on Thursday, addressed the 70th annual convention of the Indiana Women's Club Federation on Wednesday, presided over a meeting of the State Finance Board on Friday, and addressed the annual convention of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce in Washington on Tuesday.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Tune-in on the Pastime?

The electronic age continues to amaze me. Just read in a farm journal that cows can now be wired for sound . . . so that you can tell if they've been overeating!

Seems that before you turn a cow out to pasture, you can feed her a small transmitter powered by a flashlight battery.

Then all you do is sit comfortably at home and wait for a signal to show up on a recorder. Soon as you get a "bleep," you go out and fetch "Bessie"—that signal means she's had enough.

From where I sit, I'd need a lot of "proving" before I would buy an idea like this one. But I'll listen! A closed mind on any subject—even to whether a cup of tea or a glass of beer is the best "refresher"—is not a tolerant mind. The American way is to never "short-circuit" what the other fellow has to say.

Midwest Boy Wins "Juvenile Decency" Award

Bruce Irish, 17, of Franklin, Indiana, a Hoosier space-ager who plans to study rocket fuel systems in college, has been named "Junior Citizen" for the midwest region of the Boys' Clubs of America, it was announced by A. L. Cole, president of the national youth guidance organization. Young Mr. Irish, a member of the Franklin Boys' Club, was chosen from candidates in a 12-state area.

Bruce was selected on the basis of the quality and quantity of his service to home, church, school, community and his Boys' Club. He is one of six regional winners in the 600,000 member youth organization, which consists of more than 550 Boys' Clubs across the nation. He will receive a $200 scholarship from a fund established by the Reader's Digest Foundation to combat juvenile delinquency by encouraging higher education among less privileged youngsters. The national title of "Boy of the Year" was won by Nick Beck of Hollywood, Calif. Boys' Club, who received a $500 scholarship award.

Bruce Irish has been an "A" student in high school. He was yearbook editor and president of the Journalism and dramatic clubs and was awarded a silver medal in the Indiana State Spanish contest.

Bruce has assumed the role of the man of the house since his father was killed in an auto acci-

County Commissioner Writes
Tynor, Ind.

Now that the primary election is over, and I was nominated for Commissioner of the First District, I wish to express my gratitude to all who aided me in any way in securing this nomination.

I especially want to thank you and your staff for your kind words in your paper prior to the primary.

I feel you were very instrumental in helping me carry every precinct in Marshall County.

WELCOME NORRIS
Whiteman Says Republicans Can Beat Senator Kizer
Lakeville, Ind.

I would like to thank you for the fine article in your paper of April 27 about my candidacy for Joint State Senator.

I feel that it was a large part of my winning Marshall County in the May 3 primary election.

Sorry I did not come closer in St. Joseph County and win the nomination.

I am sure that the Republicans can win the Senate seat IF THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE WILL WORK. If my opposition in the primary is pushed hard enough to work, the seat can be won.

I am sorry I am not the G.O.P. candidate as I know I would have worked and won the election in November. I feel now that I will try again in the future for the State Legislature.

CANCELLATION OF DONKEY BASKETBALL GAME
The current issue of the Culver Lions Club fortnightly bulletin has this to say:
"Ways and means to assist the Little League in the purchase of uniforms are being worked on—the cost being about $600. This certainly would be a big boost to the large number of youngsters who are participating in this fine program under the direction of Lion Norm Baker, who deserves a great deal of credit for his work."
"The Donkey Basketball Game was to assist in this but was called off in view of the wide disagreement between the publicity claims in the advertising furnished and terms of the contract agreed to; and the sorry appearance of the animals and reported failure to live up to contracted conditions on the part of the operator."
"Although the disappointment was felt by the kids, it would have been unfair to have short-changed them on what was promised. The Lions Club would not be party to such a thing."

DOWN ON THE FARM - Over one-fourth of all trucks registered in Indiana are farm trucks. These approximately 100,000 vehicles are extremely vital to the complex marketing system which brings food from the farm to the table. All farm products move at least part of the way from field to consumer by truck. For instance, almost 100 per cent of all livestock shipped to Indiana's four major livestock markets moves by motor carrier.

25th Anniversary For Rural Electrification

This week, rural people everywhere are celebrating the 25th anniversary of the Rural Electrification Program, a social and economic "miracle" that has brought electric light and power to more than 16 million Americans who were, almost literally, living in the dark—only a quarter century ago.

It was May 11, 1935, that President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the executive order that created the Rural Electrification Administration. It seems laughable now, with $3 1/2 billion having been invested to bring electricity to rural people, that Roosevelt's original appropriation was for only $75,000.

A Depression Measure
But the nation's farms needed power, and the nation's workers desperately needed work. So rural electrification began as an arm of the Works Progress Administration in that depression year—Known As REA.
In 1934, Congress passed the Rural Electrification Act, setting up a long-term program under the Rural Electrification Administration—widely known as REA—which made it possible for groups of rural people to work together to serve themselves with electricity.

Almost from the beginning, use of electricity had been confined to town and city areas because the experts thought it would cost too much to bring it to the country.

Rural Folks Concerned
Power companies said it was impractical, if not unprofitable, to extend electric lines to most people living outside of the city limits. They thought rural folks couldn't afford, or wouldn't pay the cost involved in getting electricity to them.

Few Farms Had Electricity
Consequently, only 3% of American farms were electrified by 1925; 10% by 1931, and barely 11% had central station electricity when REA came to life in 1935.

The picture has changed rapidly since the first REA loan was approved in July, 1935. Gone are the days of drab drudgery and back-breaking toll of pitching hay with a fork, carrying water by the pail, and firewood by the armful.

Lest We Forget
Kerosene lamps, lanterns, pump handles, and sodirons have lost their meaning to youngsters still in high school. The day long-gone when farm folks used to age overnight, and you people were forced to leave farm for the city's bright life, better jobs, and easier living.

The Rural Electrification Act of 1935 authorizes REA to loan funds to "persons, corporations, cities, districts, states, and operatives" for the construction of rural electric systems. The act specifically prohibits use of funds to extend service into more profitable areas of town and villages of over 1,500 population, or to anyone already being served.

Culver Youths Are Honored On I. U. Founders' Day

University Making Great Progress

BLOOMINGTON — Indiana University's research and scholarship programs received the record support of $10.3 million during the past year, President Herman B. Wells told the faculty and honor students and their parents at the traditional Founders' Day convocation on May 4 marking the University's 140th birthday.

Million In 1960 Gifts
This total of gifts and grants from all sources, ranging from individual contributions to grants from major national foundations and private endowments, compared with a grand total last year of $6.5 million, Dr. Wells said.

"These figures give eloquent testimony to the extensive research activities and interests and to the widely recognized ability of our faculty," the I.U. president commented.

"Many of the University's important and essential activities can be undertaken only because of the generous gifts and grants of private citizens and corporations. To this extent, therefore, we are in exactly the same position as a private institution," Wells said.

A total of 2,255 students and their parents were specially invited to the University's annual birthday party in the Auditorium. These students had won listing on the Deans' Lists for high scholastic standing or membership in honorary scholastic societies.

Five Culver Students Cited
Culver can be extremely proud that five of its fine young people were saluted on this great occasion: Tommie Lou Glaze, Charles H. Faulkner, Sandra G. Furnas, Jeanette E. Berger, and Lawrence

A. Strait. Hats off to them!
The pageantry of the traditional day, commemorating the establishment of I.U. by an act of the General Assembly in 1820, included a concert outside the Auditorium by the Air Force ROTC band, a musical program on the stage by the University Singers, and a concert in front of the Well House by the combined symphony and concert bands of the School of Music.

Another Hoosier "First"
In his remarks on gifts and grants, Dr. Wells pointed out that not only had grants made through the University's research division shown the impressive one-year increase to $7,134,159 from $3,841,443, but that during the past year alumni of the University had given more money to their alma mater than the alumni of any other state institution in the country.

The I.U. Foundation, which administers gifts, grants and bequests, received $520,000 over the past year from 7,650 alumni, Dr. Wells said, a gain of nearly $100,000 over the previous year.

Grade School Music Program Friday, May 13

Final preparations are being made for the elementary music program of the Culver School to be presented on Friday afternoon, May 13, at 2:15 o'clock in the Culver Community Building.

All students in grades one through six will participate in the varied program "Holidays Around The World."

The public is invited to attend the admission-free program.

WILLIAM ALEXANDER
FLEET POST 103
LEGION AUXILIARY
BIRTHDAY PARTY
By Mary Mawhorter

Members of the American Legion Auxiliary held their annual birthday party Wednesday evening at the Legion Home with their husbands as guests. About 30 were present.

A delicious swiss steak supper with covered side dishes was served at tables decorated with spring flowers.

Mrs. Thomas K. Walker and son Tom, both in white tie and tails, served as masters of ceremony. They did the Charleston dance together as one feature of the program. Another hilarious feature was the gay Nineties fashion parade. Marvelous modeling was done by Mrs. C. B. McKinney, Mrs. Edward Kowatch, and Mrs. Dan Bieker, with Mrs. Arthur Alexander in a gray-beard and male attire acting as a talent scout from "Skunk Hollow", Hollywood.

Mrs. Russell Flora gave a humorous reading, a "take-off" on the auxiliary ladies.

Mrs. Alexander and Mrs. Walker did a pantomime to music, and Mrs. Alexander read a funny poem. A number of "most embarrassing moments" were related about and by auxiliary members and their husbands.

A silent auction closed the evening's fun.

Mrs. Ora Reed, Mrs. Thomas Walker, and Mrs. Arthur Alexander were food, entertainment, and decoration chairmen.

Yes, You Can Now Give $3,000 Away Every Year!

Save 15% On Your Death Taxes!

By ROGER W. BABSON
No. 1 U.S. Economist

BABSON PARK, Mass. — The wise investor is eager to hedge against three main handicaps: (1) inflation, (2) labor leaders, and (3) taxes.

Let us consider, this week, hedging against taxes. These will surely be more serious each year.

Turnpike Bonds O.K.
All non-taxable bonds are cheaper than they have been for years.

The "full faith" Municipals are rated best; but I think that most of the turnpike are fairly good at their current prices.

If you buy them now and later do not like them, you can probably sell them at a profit. You need not keep them until maturity.

When lending money out on mortgages it is wise to make a fairly low rate of interest, plus your approximate income tax. Then your mortgage interest will be net.

Certainly, in the case of rents you should insist that the tenant pay the taxes as part of the rent. This has many advantages and is fair to all parties.

Of course, there is no way to hedge against "death taxes" except by giving your money away before you die. I will discuss this later.

How To Save Money!
Certain cities, such as Buffalo, offer opportunities to buy foreign goods that are selling at very low prices in Germany, Japan, and other countries.

You must stay 48 hours outside the U.S.A. and are limited to $200 in purchases at any one time; but you can make purchases as often as you wish. This is the only honest way to avoid import taxes.

Various other means can be found to save taxes on merchandise.

These include "sales taxes," which can be avoided most easily by persons living near the borders of certain states.

Deduct Your Doctor Bills
There also are allowances which your tax return permits you to make on doctors' bills, medical costs, hospital charges, benevolent gifts to churches, etc.; also exemptions for certain children, and other deductions. You can secure a list of these from your local bank.

"Training For The Top" Is Specialty Of Chicago's Noted Coyne Electrical School

COYNE ELECTRICAL SCHOOL, established in Chicago in 1899 and chartered as an educational institution not for profit, is nationally famous for its practical technical training in electricity, radio, television, refrigeration, and electronics. It is now located in its impressive new home at 1501 West Congress Parkway.

A new breed of magicians is cropping out today in every neighborhood, in every factory.

Like the wave of a magic wand, these men use modern tools to make sound jump across the miles, bring pictures to remote places, and make the engines of industry hum.

Magicians At Home!

These men are also magicians at home, in more ways than one. Though they don't work any harder than the man next door, they bring home more money. And whenever there's a hitch in the electrical equipment around the house, these men, with magician-like skill, always seem to know what to do about it, without calling in expensive outside help.

This new breed of magicians are united by a common foresight. Sometime ago — perhaps years ago, perhaps just a few months ago — each of them saw religious, educational, and scientific bodies.

Such gifts I make regularly; this is really a joy.

"Richest Man In Cemetery"

The large investor, however, who misses this "joy of giving" and is trying to be the "richest man in the cemetery" has another means of cutting death taxes.

Certain U.S. Government Bonds can now be bought at a discount of about 15 per cent or more which will be accepted at par in payment of death taxes. Hence, by investing in such bonds to an estimated amount of your death taxes, you can save 15 per cent or more by purchasing them now and holding them against your future death taxes. Everyone can hedge against taxes to a certain extent; but it requires care, thought, pre-planning, and the help of a tax expert.

the need for more technical training for today's "young man on the way up."

Encouraged By Employers

And in many cases, their employers, sensing the need at the same time, encouraged these men to study more. In a short time, it paid off for both the man on the job and for his employer.

President Cooke's Statement

So says Bennett W. Cooke Jr., whose Coyne Electrical School has seen some 250,000 of these "modern magicians" pass through the doors of the Chicago school in its 60 years.

"We're sort of partners with all American industry," says Mr. Cooke, "because our training helps each student increase his value to himself and to his employer. Each man who leaves here to go back on the job becomes sort of an evangelist of the new technical age, showing his employer and his fellow workers new and better ways to perform each new technical operation."

A large electrical company in Ontario, a battery manufacturer in Pennsylvania, a candy company in Chicago, a dairy, and a mining concern are among those who now have men studying at Coyne. Each of them had a common problem — a lack of trained men to maintain and repair their highly technical electrical and electronic equipment, the kind of equipment that is becoming more and more commonplace in industry today.

And each of them solved its problem by sending qualified employees to Coyne.

Oldest School of Kind

Coyne, which is the nation's oldest, largest, and best equipped school of its kind, works its magic with considerably more than the wave of a magic wand.

To its formidable arsenal of working equipment and shops, it adds the latest in practical visual aids.

First a student learns technique and theory — which he'll apply to jobs he'll have to perform in Shop-Labs. Sound films and slides, blackboard illustrations, diagrams, and step-by-step instruction make it easy to understand the complex principles behind electricity, electronics, radio, and television.

Next, he's shown how and why typical pieces of equipment work — in simple language. All important techniques are demonstrated on the equipment itself.

By now, a student knows how to make notes and diagrams; he can perform some of the basic shop jobs — an important step.

Student Uses Actual Equipment

In the most important phase of his training, the student performs actual jobs on actual equipment. These are assignments he'll do professionally — testing and wiring transistor radios, repairing generators, checking high voltage equipment, repairing television sets, trouble-shooting a switchboard, understanding every tube, switch and component in the latest of electronic systems.

Many graduates of such training centers find themselves moving fast to the top in industry. Others open their own service shops, or work in the myriad electronic jobs to be found everywhere.

Because of these new "magicians," we look forward to increasingly comfortable living, and enlarging industrial horizons, in this electronic age.

A ONE-MINUTE QUIZ

FOR MEN IN INDUSTRY

Have you ever wondered if you could benefit yourself and your employer by some technical schooling? Take a minute to answer these YES and NO questions:

A. I am not satisfied with my present salary and my future prospects . . .

B. I like mechanical subjects and working on technical equipment . . .

C. I have often wished that I could repair my own house wiring or my own radio . . .

D. I would like to have a business of my own . . .

E. I would be willing to spend six months in school in order to get technical training . . .

F. I feel that if I had more technical training, I could qualify for a better job where I work . . .

If your answer is "YES" to four or more of these questions, you should begin a program of upgrading your own talent for yourself, and for your job.

KIDS LIKE EGGS

A collection of bird eggs on display in the Hagerstown library seems to fascinate youngsters more than anything else says Mrs. Aubrey Hardwick, children's librarian. The collection, most of them eggs of Rousier birds, was made by the late Merton O. Grills, a nature lover. In addition to the eggs of birds native to Indiana is a three-pound ostrich egg. Mrs. Harwick takes pains to explain to the children that Grills didn't rob birds' nests but waited until the eggs were deserted before taking them.

$16,000 Language Laboratory Now In Use At CMA

633 Cadets Learn Four Tongues

Students at Culver Military Academy are using for the first time this year a new $16,000 language laboratory designed to develop skills in mastering the oral aspects of four foreign languages taught there — French, Spanish, German, and Russian. Latin is also taught, with no language laboratory work offered as yet.

Trends in language education are toward oral as well as written training, helping the pupil improve his pronunciation and sentence structure and ability to speak the language.

30 Soundproof Booths

The equipment includes 30 soundproof booths, each with two turntables, an amplifier, microphone, and set of earphones. With this equipment, the students can either listen or record. Controls enable the student in each booth to work alone or with others in his class.

The control console is equipped with three tape recorders and two turntables, and is arranged so that up to four different programs can be sent to portions of the room at the same time. The console also is equipped with a monitor, at which the instructor is able to check on the progress of each of his pupils through two-way communication with each booth individually.

There is also additional tape recording and amplifying equipment available for making master tapes.

Electronic equipment such as this can provide up to ten times the opportunity to improve oral skills as is provided students with no language laboratory available.

Even Russian Is Taught

Each of the 633 French, Spanish, German, and Russian language students at Culver is scheduled for at least one 45-minute period a week in the laboratory. Students may also use the laboratory during the recreation and evening study periods.

The individual soundproof booths give each cadet the opportunity to listen to a record, magnetic disk or tape recording played at the central console, record his response on a magnetic disk in his own booth and then criticize his version with the standard.

The student can also do individual work in his own booth, playing a magnetic disk for comparison on one of his turntables. Thus, individuals can learn at their own rate. Quick learners can work ahead, slow learners can rework difficult lessons without hampering class progress.

Student Records Own Work

Each student records his own work on a magnetic disk, which can be erased and re-used. There is up to four and a half minutes of recording time on each disk, enough time to allow students to record a complete lesson.

The laboratory gives each student much more time at oral work than classroom recitation would.

The foreign languages department is comprised of 15 instructors under the chairmanship of Donald M. Marshal.

NIGHT CALL - A Bedford truck driver, Louis E. Callahan, performed one of these Good Samaritan deeds on the highway that won him a Driver of the Month award in the entire national fleet of the Aero Mayflower Transit Co., headquartered in Indianapolis. Callahan's deed, at 2 a.m. near Eden Valley, Wyo., had two elements of surprise. When he stopped his truck to aid a stalled motorist, Callahan found the cause was carburetor trouble and that he happened to have with him a perfect replacement part. And the troubled motorist turned out to be Teno Roncallo, chairman of the Wyoming Democratic State Committee.

McKesson Abstract & Title Co.

DALE MCKESSON, Abstractor

Court House

Phone WE 6-2555

The McKesson Abstract and Title Co. operated by Dale McKesson of Plymouth has built up an excellent business because of the fine service they have rendered in the matter of abstracts and title insurance. Fully qualified both by experience and training Mr. McKesson can quickly trace the history of any piece of property in Marshall County from government patent to the present date.

In any real estate transaction the services of an abstractor are most important and no one possessed of ordinary business acumen would think of buying real estate or granting a loan on a piece of property without an abstract that has been brought up to date. An abstract is a history and by checking it a qualified person can quickly determine as to the validity and marketability of the title. A current abstract will show any liens or encumbrances and is your assurance that the person from whom you buy has a right to sell.

A cloudy title can be the cause of a lot of worry and expense and by the employment of a competent abstract firm such as the McKesson Abstract and Title Co. you can eliminate the possibility of you, your heirs or assigns having to go to court at some future date to prove ownership. Many factors can cloud a title to real estate and with our complicated tax structure together with other matters incident to our personal and business affairs a current abstract is daily becoming more important. Without readily available services of such firms as the one operated by Mr. McKesson, the courts would be filled with quiet title suits and the transfer of real estate would hopelessly bog down. No one would be able to obtain a loan on property and all types of business would suffer accordingly.

It goes without saying that during the time the McKesson Abstract and Title Co. has been doing business in Marshall county its services have been most important and in this edition devoted to the leading business and professional firms of this area it gives us pleasure to recommend the abstract and title service they have made available. —Adv.

Annual Mail Box Improvement Week May 16 to 21

The Post Office Department has designated the week of May 16 to 21 as Mail Box Improvement Week. Postmaster E. Wayne Mattox urges all patrons of Culver's rural service to take a good look at their mail box. If it is not in good condition now is the time to make the necessary repairs or replacements.

The principal requirements that the Department emphasizes is that the boxes be erected and maintained for easy and safe accessibility, presenting a neat appearance and affording protection for the mail. Also important is that the owner's name be inscribed on the side of the box so it is plainly visible to the approaching carrier.

Postmaster Mattox states that he and the local rural carriers have been well pleased by the cooperative response in the past to their plea for mail box improvement and he hopes that the box owners will take advantage of the spring cleaning sentiment and spruce up their important link between themselves and the U. S. Mail.

as possible," Governor Harold W. Handley said recently, "we are continuing to grow much more rapidly than neighboring states — in population, in economic capacity, and in job opportunities."

"And one of the big reasons that we are able to offer this great benefit to our citizens is that our state government expenses, in comparison to many other states, are low and therefore our state taxes are lower.

Hoosiers Can Be Proud!
"Latest figures compiled by the U. S. Census Bureau show that in the last fiscal year Indiana was 47th among the 50 states in government expenditures. The average was $118.44 per individual.

"Moreover, we were 36th among the 50 states in per capita taxation, with an average of $81.89.

"This low-cost government — plus the fact that our state government does not owe a cent — stabilizes our future economy. In most other states not only are the taxes higher, but each year they dig themselves deeper and deeper into debt by increasing their borrowings."

Flood Control Studied
Governor Handley reiterated Indiana's position regarding co-operation with the federal government in flood control when he discussed the need for new water conservation projects at a news conference last Thursday.

"Mother Nature recognizes no man-made boundaries," he said. "The winds of Heaven and the routes of rainstorms cannot be controlled by law.

"Therefore abnormal waterfalls is an interstate problem, and we rightly expect the federal government to help in minimizing flood damage and in providing emergency help when the waters get out of control.

"But Indiana is the only state which pays half of the cost of planning for this control. We feel that since various proposed flood control projects will be built inside our state that we should help pay the engineers' costs.

"Also, Indiana now handles local water control situations with state and local money. The headwaters of small streams are logical areas for local consideration, even though the cumulative effect of abnormal runoff from a number of streams can create floods extending all the way to the Gulf.

"I am proud that the 1959 Legislature agreed with me in establishing a state loan fund to help local Hoosier communities and counties finance the studies which are necessary before flood prevention construction can begin.

"This fund also enabled counties to borrow state money to clear ditches and tributaries of our rivers, thus attacking the problem at its source."

Mental Health Problems
Governor Handley said he would recommend to the 1961 Legislature — as he did to the 1959 Legislature — but without much success — that adequate appropriations be made to care for the increasing number of mentally retarded Hoosier children.

Governor Handley noted that he and Mrs. Handley, as private citizens in addition to his official capacity, have long been active in working for an adequate mental health program in Indiana.

Advertising, as we see it, is the cheapest salesman that any business can employ.

MUST BE SOMEWHERE - A Lebanon woman about to apply for a license for her foreign made car she had been driving three years, sought the assistance of Policeman Jim Stout. Police verification of the engine number was necessary because she had just moved to Indiana from another state. Stout, unfamiliar with the car, asked where the engine was. "Oh, that's one thing I know," said the woman. "It's right up in front." Stout raised the hood and found nothing but a jack, a spare tire and some tools. "Well, it must be in back," said the woman. It was.

WHY DADDY? - A Greenwood electronics expert, Bill John, has a unique aid for baby sitters hired to watch over his two children. John and his wife have tape recorded some bedtime stories which the sitters can play back for the Johns' two youngsters after the parents have left for the evening. John says the device seems to work but he wonders what will happen when one of the little darlings interrupts the reading of Little Red Ridinghood to ask "Daddy, why did the big bad wolf do dat?" He says he only hopes the baby sitter will have an answer.

Purdue Develops "Culver" Variety Of Alfalfa

Initial Testing South Of Town

LAFAYETTE, IND. — Purdue University's agricultural experiment station announces a new alfalfa variety — first for Midwestern farmers that is resistant to meadow spittlebug.

Culver, name of the new variety, was developed by Purdue's departments of agronomy, entomology and botany, and plant pathology in cooperation with the Alfalfa Improvement Conference. Seed will be available to farmers until the spring of 1961.

Culver is a winter hardy dormant type with dark green foliage. It is resistant to wilt and partly resistant to leaf spot diseases and heaving. In addition to being resistant to meadow spittlebugs, Culver has a lesser resistance to the potato leafhopper and spotted alfalfa aphid.

Spittlebug Resistant

Although Culver may be infested with spittlebugs, Purdue field studies consistently showed 50 per cent less infestation than other varieties. Sixty-seven per cent of the stems in these trials showed no damage in contrast to only 15 per cent with other varieties.

Under normal infestation by the spittlebug, Culver alfalfa can be expected to perform well without the use of insecticides. However, with epidemic infestations, such as have occurred in Southeastern Indiana, application of an insecticide is considered worthwhile.

Initial multiplication of Culver took place last year in the State of Washington. About 350 acres were seeded in California last February for certified seed production. The first seed will be harvested this fall.

Culver was chosen as the name for the new variety since much of the initial testing was done at Purdue's Sand Field Farm near Culver, Ind., on the Monterey road.

TOO BUSY BEAVERS - The Town Board of Beverly Shores in Porter County met the day it imported some beavers to build dams in the community. The beavers were brought in with the idea that their dams would help keep up the water level in creeks around the town. But it seems the beavers didn't get the word. Their latest project was a dam across a cement tube installed in a drainage ditch along Beverly Drive and it caused flooding of a highway. The dam was once cleaned out but the beavers immediately rebuilt it.

5-Cent Letter Mail Advocated In Washington

(This is a publicity release from Washington, D. C. The Culver Citizen does not agree with many of the Postmaster General's conclusions and is opposed to nearly all of the proposed increases in postage rates.)

Postmaster E. Wayne Malloy said today he has been informed by Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield that proposed new letter rate increases would cost the average family in Culver only 15 cents more a month.

This finding is based on extensive new studies of proposed postal rate legislation. Because about three-fourths of the mail covered in the recommended new rates would be mailed by large commercial users, they would pay most of the additional $554 million in postage increases, our local postmaster emphasized.

In a press conference in Washington a few days ago the Postmaster General said he is now optimistic that Congress will approve the recommended rate increases before adjournment this summer.

The Postmaster General warned "the failure to adjust postal rates to postal expenses is not only piling up huge postal deficits which weaken our economic strength, but is also costing the taxpayers of the country in excess of $200 million annually in interest charges alone.

"We want," the Postmaster

—Adv.

General declared, "to relieve Americans of the needless financial burden of huge postal deficits. We propose in simplest terms to remove this unjust tax from the backs of our citizens. We propose to do so by having the people who actually use the mails pay the costs of doing so."

Suggested Rate Increases
The proposed increases would raise ordinary letter costs from 4 to 5 cents an ounce; air mail from 7 to 8 cents; postal cards from 3 to 4 cents; and air mail postal cards from 5 to 6 cents.

The revenues from second class mail — mostly magazines and newspapers — would be increased about 40%, and third class mail — mostly advertising circulars — would be raised about 25%. Second class mail is producing a revenue deficiency of about $280 million annually, and third class mail about $190 million annually.

Other highlights of the Postmaster General's statement were:

1. The 1960 deficit for the fiscal year ending this June 30 will be over $600 million, despite economies which enable the Postal Service to deliver 20% more mail than in 1957 with less than an 8% increase in manpower.

2. The 1961 deficit for the year starting July 1 is an estimated $554 million.

3. The 1958 postage rate increases did not solve the deficit problem because it was largely offset by postal salary increases, rail rate increases and fringe benefits.

Says Postal Costs Increase
4. Even with the 1958 increase of one cent — 3 to 4 cents — for ordinary letters, the rate for letters has not kept pace with the times. Since 1932, first class letter rates have been increased only one third (by the 1958 law), but postal costs have increased more than 100%.

5. Also, the Post Office Department's principal source of income — postage on the ordinary letter — is producing far less than its traditional revenue yield, which was 140% of costs for many years. Today it is producing only 111% of costs.

6. This is not fully in accord with Congressional policy, which recognizes that first class postage rates should take into account the preferential nature of first class mail and requires users to pay for value received; that is, cost plus an additional amount for preferential service.

Second Class Mail Loss

7. Second class mail overall is losing nearly 4 cents for every piece handled, and postal revenues for this class of mail cover only about a fourth of the cost.

8. Postage rates for many second class mailings are outmoded. About 20% of second class mail pieces in 1958 — consisting of "within county" publications — were serviced at rates dating back approximately 80 years.

9. Even after including some postage rate steps which have not yet become effective under the 1958 legislation — including a July 1 step increase — there is still a revenue deficiency of about $190 million annually in third class mail.

10. Though third class mail advertising is the second largest advertising medium in the nation, below cost postage rates benefit these advertisers at the average rate of 1-cent for each piece.

Phone WE 6-4663

One of the leading electrical contractors and appliance dealers in this section, the Marks Electric operated by Douglas Marks of Plymouth has an ever increasing list of patrons. This firm has provided electrical service for the farm, home and factory that is second to none. They handle Norge refrigerators, home freezers, water heaters, ranges, washers, and a host of other appliances too numerous to mention in this short article. Because of space limitations in their store they sell from the catalog and deliver direct from the warehouse in South Bend. They can save you money on your home appliances and can deliver in from six to twelve hours after you place your order.

In the contracting end of their business the Marks Electric has built up a fine reputation because of the excellent work they have done in this line. They have had charge of some of the largest jobs in this area and have completed them to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. They are glad to go over your plans with you and estimates are free for the asking.

One thing that should not be forgotten by the reader is that back of every installation stands this firm's reputation for honesty and square dealing. The people who work at the Marks Electric long ago learned that if their work passed Mr. Marks inspection, the customer would be satisfied and they strive toward that end. In every business customer satisfaction is necessary for expansion and progress. In the electrical business this is most important as the average user of electricity or electrical appliances knows little or nothing about either and must rely completely upon his dealer. Their rapidly expanding business is good evidence that the Marks Electric has given satisfaction.

It is a pleasure that we can point to this firm as among our leading business houses and we are glad to again recommend the Marks Electric to our readers.

Lake Manitou Receives Clean Bill Of Health

Bad Septic Tank Drainage Checked

(The author, Grover W. Cook, is a stream biologist with the Division of Sanitary Engineering, Indiana State Board of Health.)

How long does it take to clean up a lake?

Lake Manitou at Rochester is an example of a lake that became clean in a short two years, but it wasn't easy.

It took some long, hard work by the lake residents and the cooperation of the county health officer with technical assistance provided by the Indiana State Board of Health.

Early in 1957, a group headed by Fred Lautzenhiser, T. J. Cronin, Paul Spotts Emrick, and Hugh Barnhart, conferred with State Board of Health representatives to find a way to rid Lake Manitou of septic tank drainage.

A sanitary survey was made. The results of the survey not only verified the belief that a hazard existed but also revealed which parts of the lake were in the worst condition from bacterial contamination.

How did this beautiful lake become degraded in a relatively short time?

The answer, strangely enough, is improved sanitation.

Thirty years ago almost every cottage was strictly a summer cottage with a hand pump and an outdoor privy. Electricity came and along with it electric water pumps. This provided enough water for modern toilets, bath, and laundry facilities. In most cases a septic tank was installed, but unfortunately, the septic tank salesman 30 years ago were good salesmen, but apparently untaught or overzealous in their work.

Many claimed that the effluent from a septic tank was pure enough to drink, and even today some individuals hold to that belief.

The fact is, of course, that the septic tank only settles out the solids, and if all septic tank salesmen drank the effluent to attempt to prove their point, there would be very few septic tank salesmen alive or well enough to sell their product.

In any event, the lake residents innocently ran pipes from their septic tanks to the lake and the trouble started. Add to this the fact that today 1/2 to 2/3 of the lake residents now live there the year around, and you get a better picture of how it all came about.

Associated with the discharge of organic matter is the growth of microscopic plant life called algae which, when present in millions per cupful, cause the water to be murky-green and the lake is said to be in "bloom".

This is a natural occurrence in all lakes, particularly during periods of low precipitation, but is intensified by organic enrichment. From the health viewpoint this condition is undesirable because certain of these algae may cause irritation of the skin, eyes, and ears of swimmers, and if sufficient quantities of the water are swallowed, intestinal distress, and diarrhea may result. Lake Manitou exhibited such a "bloom" in 1957.

The clean-up task was begun in 1957 but not without adverse publicity for the lake.

However, the poor publicity was soon followed by good because a sanitary survey in 1958 showed a definite improvement over conditions in 1957.

Obviously, many of the lake residents had altered their sewage disposal facilities so septic tank drains no longer discharged inadequately treated sewage to the lake. In most cases absorption fields were laid out, but in some, where the lots were too small, seepage pits or dry wells were installed.

In April, 1958, the Lake Manitou Association and Dean K. Stinson, M.D., Fulton County Health Officer, sent letters and questionnaires to each property owner.

The letter pointed out the law regarding disposal of sewage and urged each violator to correct his own problem. A list of 4 Lake Manitou Association men was attached. These men had been letsorption field installations by a State Board of Health engineer.

The questionnaire was to determine the number of faulty sewage disposal installations and their location so that Association workers might assist in corrections.

There were 576 properties at Lake Manitou, of which 441 were considered to have inadequate facilities. It was estimated that half this number were violators. Records of the Lake Manitou Association show that 181 made voluntary corrections. There was undoubtedly others who made, but did not report, their corrections. Cooperation was not total, but it was encouraged. In any event, the efforts of the Association and Dr. Stinson stimulated most of the lake residents to install satisfactory systems.

By the summer of 1959 the lake generally had improved to the extent that bacteria counts were well within the safe limits for swimming and the algae, "bloom" usually experienced did not develop.

However, a few septic tanks and drains carrying kitchen or laundry wastes still discharged to the lake and until they are corrected the areas in close proximity cannot be considered safe.

The picture is considerably brighter, however, since Fulton County has adopted a health ordinance and organized a full-time health department. A new sanitarian will be given additional training in lake and stream sanitation, and it is only a matter of time before he will be knocking on the doors of those few who have not taken care of their sanitation problem.

To further the cause, the Lake Manitou Association and the Fulton County Realty Association have worked out a plan whereby a lake property will be inspected for acceptable sewage disposal before being sold. If the property passes the test a neat certificate is displayed to show prospective buyers. The long range effect of this unique plan will be to assure continued lake improvement.

The people of the Rochester area should be particularly grateful to the unceasing efforts of Mr. Lautzenhiser, president of the Lake Manitou Association, Professor Emrick, and Mr. Cronin, all of whom worked long and hard; and to Dr. Stinson, Hugh A. Barnhart, Jack Overmyer, and many others who cooperatively made this safer, cleaner lake a reality.

It's a good bet that in the future, fewer children will experience ear infections and "summer complaints" after swimming in Lake Manitou.

RECORD BREAKER - The arrival of little Miss Jennifer Joy Wenz, at the Kenneth Wenz home in Monticello set a record. She was the first girl born in her father's family in 56 years. Jennifer had been preceded by three brothers. The maternal grandmother said Jennifer's mother is the third of her children to have three sons before giving birth to a daughter.

HONEST HOOSIERS - An Iowa truck driver, Edward Kurdon of Sioux City, must hold Hoosiers in high esteem. Kurdon, driving across Indiana, stopped at a gas near Hayden in Jennings County. He later drove on, as he neared Vincennes he discovered he had lost his wallet containing $120. He telephoned Jennings County Deputy Sheriff Bob Creech to see that a search be made for the wallet. Creech drove to the grill and while he was making inquiry, Oscar Burton, Columbus, came in with the missing billfold which he found outside. "It had been run over and looked mighty beat up but sure enough there was the $120," said Creech. It was mailed to Kurdon.

Rural Electrification...good for All Americans!

Business is better today—paychecks fatter, jobs more secure in every American city and town. And—there's a good reason why.

of ten American families, outside the city limits, had or could get electric power. That's when rural Americans, by working together, began to serve themselves with this necessity of modern living.

This year 16 million Americans, now served by non-profit rural electric systems, will buy over a billion dollars worth of electric appliances—made, sold and serviced in these cities and towns.

So—we cordially invite all Americans to share our joy as we celebrate the 25th Birthday of rural electrification. We are proud to have played a small but important part in bringing this "miracle" about. We are happy that rural electrification has proved to be "good for ALL Americans."

That was impossible 25 years ago. Then only one
