Relation of the Press to the Pulpit.

Address by Rev. E. S. Beardsley before the Connecticut Editorial Association.

"I find myself in a unique position this evening, that is, unique for me, in that I am speaking to an assemblage of editors of newspapers. To say that I am glad to be here and meet so many of the men who by their pen are wielding a large influence on the life of the community in which they live, aye, on the state and nation, may we not say, is but a poor expression of my feeling. To say that I feel like the traditional cat in the strange garret is perhaps inadequate also. But the editor and the clergyman ought not, I am aware, to remain strangers to one another, for they both have a great mission to perform and they can to a large extent help each other in performing it. The clergyman may be inspired and encouraged by the editor, and the editor may be helped and cheered by the clergyman. I am free to admit that many a time have I read an editorial which has set me to thinking about a line different from the one in which I had been thinking. Now your Secretary in asking me to make a brief opening address at this meeting, did not specify any subject upon which I was expected to speak, and therefore, I concluded that I could take any subject I chose. The mutual relation between the editor and clergyman suggests the subject of 'The Relation of the Press to the Pulpit.' This is not a new theme. I have nothing new to say upon it. But it is a live theme, and by no means so trite as to be unworthy of our consideration.

"We very often hear it said in these days that the press has supplanted the pulpit, and the growth of the power of the press is given as a reason for the apparent decline of the pulpit. Now, as one who has a profound respect for the press, and sees in it tremendous possibilities for the development of society through its educational influence, I do not believe that the press has taken from the pulpit its prerogative, that it has taken or is likely to take the place of the pulpit. And why? Because the pulpit has a mission to perform, which the press could not perform, even if it wanted to. I care not how able or convincing you may make your leaders. I care not how scholarly, or interesting, or exhausting you may make your longer articles on religious topics, you cannot do what the preacher does who stands before his congregation and speaks his humble, but powerful, powerful because humble, message with an enthusiasm which is contagious. The voice, the personality, the faith of the man are elements which cannot be reproduced in cold type. The relation of the press to the pulpit is not, then, that of the supplanter. It can never supplant it, and it can never take away from its power so long as the pulpit remains true to its mission, so long as it keeps within its own province. The mission of the pulpit is to preach the simple word of God, to preach it simply, convincingly, clearly. And when a man uses his pulpit to make charges against the character of men when he has no proofs, to set forth the numerous fads and fancies of the day, to deliver so-called topical sermons which are evidently prepared and delivered with the one end in view, namely, to amuse, when a man does that, I say, then it seems to me that the press can and ought to call him to order. It can stand in the relation to the pulpit of the friendly critic. Now I do not mean by that that the sins of the few are to be visited upon all. It is manifestly unfair to judge the pulpit by some two-penny preacher who plays the mountebank to the delectation of the crowd, or creates a furor by making charges which he can't sustain. I think the press can wield an influence on the pulpit in this matter. I think it can do very much to help it up to its high standard.

"There are great moral questions—but I am only speaking now of the moral influence the press can exert—upon which you should take their stand and maintain it in such a way that there will not be the slightest doubt in the minds of your readers as to the sincerity of your position. Oppression, injustice, dishonesty, vice, political intrigue and infamy should find an opponent in you. The minister should feel that in all his work for the suppression of wrong he has a co-worker in the editor. Let the pulpit and the press then work together for the moral development of society and the results will be gratifying beyond expectation. Solomon has told us that 'Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people.' Just so far then as the press aids in maintaining truth and justice, religion and morality, which may be summed up in the one word righteousness, just so far is it proving its loyalty to the nation, and exhibiting a patriotism which is far more real than the brag and bluster which too often pass for patriotism. Now do not think that I regard the moral influence of the press as something yet to be developed. Far from it. It is wielding that influence now, and all that I am pleading for is that that influence may not only continue to be one of the great moral forces in the community, but that it and the pulpit may more and more work together for the common weal of mankind." —Ex.

Indiana Crop Report.

INDIANAPOLIS JOURNAL.

The following is the weekly crop bulletin issued July 14th for the central station, Indianapolis:

"Warm, fair weather prevailed, with few scattered local rains; excellent weather for growing crops and harvest work. Corn is in fine condition everywhere. It is in milk and tassel. Potatoes promise a fine crop, while in some localities they are maturing; in a few planting is not done yet. Tobacco is growing finely and looks well. All vegetables are in good condition: beans are up and growing nicely. Tomatoes are in the best of condition and melons are ripening. Wheat and rye threshing is nearly done. The oats harvest has commenced, promising an excellent crop. Haying continues in many meadows; the crop is better than expected. Timothy cutting continues; plenty of fruit, except apples; peaches are ripening early and there is a great crop of blackberries. Pasturage and stock are in good condition. Chinch bugs are in some corn fields and smut in some oats. Rain is needed in localities of the central portion.

Pass the good word along the line. Piles can be quickly cured without an operation by simply applying DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. CULVER CITY DRUG STORE.

The Land of Milk and Honey.
From Argos Reflector.

MAYVILLE, N. DAK., July 12, 1896.
Editor Reflector—Dear Sir: In this my first attempt to write to a paper, I will try to give a brief description of this little city, its people, and the country around it. It has a city government—mayor, council and all—with very nice business and resident buildings, a fine, large school house, five very fine churches—Methodist, Congregational, Episcopal, and two Norwegian—a large city hall and an effective fire department, two large flouring mills, seven very large elevators. One very large one burned down last week, burning 30,000 bushels of wheat. The elevator had a storage capacity of 150,000 bushels—one of the largest in Traill county. The majority of the inhabitants are Norwegians. Some of them are very shrewd business men. The city has a fine park, nicely located, of about 40 acres, with a large artesian well flowing a solid four inch stream into an artificial lake extending all the way around the park, with an island covered with forest trees, and a drive fifty feet wide just outside the lake, on which are twenty nice boats and canoes. The country around is a very level, fertile valley, entirely covered with wheat, oats, barley and flax, just as far as one can see. Two weeks ago they had the best prospect for crops this country ever had, but now it does not look so well. It is very dry and the hottest weather I ever saw. Yesterday it was 118 degrees in the shade, mercury varying 48 degrees in 24 hours. If we don't get rain very soon the crops will be ruined. Grain is higher here than at home. Harvest will not begin here for at least six weeks yet. Business is very dull on account of the crop prospect. Last year one firm in this town sold 383 McCormick binders and there were three other each selling other makes. They estimate that over 500 binders went out of this town last season. This is one of the richest and best agricultural regions on the globe. Hoping this won't worry you or your readers, I remain,

Yours Truly,
Langdon Littleton.

The Excursion.

On last Sunday Company F. and Elbels 3rd Regiment Band of South Bend run an excursion to this place. The train was comprised of six coaches and several hundred people took advantage of it to spend a day on the placid waters of Lake Maxinkuckee. One from Logansport also arrived about 8.30 consisting of four coaches and a jolly crowd of pleasure seekers. The weather, however, was not conducive to much pleasure as early in the morning a heavy rain set in and continued throughout the day which rendered it very disagreeable and greatly marred the prospects an excursion in the fullest sense that the word implies. However not daunted by the rains that fell or the winds that blew, they made the most of the situation and each one sought the mode of enjoyment which suited his or her particular taste. Some contented themselves by taking in the sights around the depot and on the north side of the lake in the Culver Park; others boarded the "Aubbeenaubbee" and "Peerless" and had a whirl on the most beautiful lake in Indiana and saw some of the views around its shores, while a few adjourned to Kreuzberger's Park and listened to soul stirring music made by the famous Elbel's 3rd Regiment Band of South Bend. This Band is one of the finest in the state and certainly deserve much credit for the high state of excellence it has attained. They started on the return trip at 6.30 and we hope the next time they come the weather clerk will favor them with better weather.

It is said that Logansport has a man who is so decidedly in favor of free silver that he pulls up all the golden rods and marigolds which he finds growing; denounces the gold cure; kicks his wife because she has golden hair; and don't want to enter the golden gates and play on a golden harp.

Rev. Albert Zechiel, now Pastor of the Reformed church at Belvue, O., visited his relatives at this place over Sunday, and on Sunday evening he filled the pulpit at Grace Reformed church. In spite of the inclement weather a good sized congregation assembled to hear him. He is a young man, though a very fluent and impressive pulpit orator and holds his auditors spell-bound by the eloquent manner in which he presents the truths of the Gospel. The people of Belvue are to be congratulated on securing him for their pastor.

WOMEN DISCOURAGED.

GOOD AND SUFFICIENT REASONS FOR THE BLUES.

Doctors Fail to Understand Symptoms That Are Danger Signals.

A marked trait in woman's character is to place implicit confidence in her physician.

A man must work entirely from theory in the treatment of female diseases, for unfortunately facts based upon actual knowledge, belong to the female sex alone.

Many women who periodically suffer with attacks of faintness, dizziness, extreme lassitude, "don't care" or want-to-be-left-alone feeling, do not at first realize that these are the infallible symptoms of womb trouble and the forerunners of great suffering.

Soon they grow to feel that the doctor does not understand their case. Then they remember that "a woman best understands a woman's ills," and turn to Mrs. Pinkham.

The following letter is but one positive illustration of this fact:—

"Four years ago I began to suffer with great weakness of the generative organs. My womb was prolapsed; I suffered with continual backache and all the other pains that accompany that weakness. I tried doctor after doctor, had operations. The final operation after which I became a total wreck, was scraping of the womb.

A friend, one day, recommended to my husband your Compound. He bought me a bottle. The relief I experienced after taking it, was wonderful. I continued its use, and I am glad to say my recovery is a perfect surprise to everybody that knows me."

The good pill has a good coat. The pill coat serves two purposes; it protects the pill, enabling it to retain all its remedial value, and it disguises the taste for the palate.

Some pill coats are too heavy; they will not dissolve in the stomach, and the pills they cover pass through the system as harmless as a bread pellet.

Other coats are too light, and permit the speedy deterioration of the pill. After 30 years exposure, Ayer's Sugar Coated Pills have been found as effective as if just fresh from the laboratory.

How's this for a cabbage?

HOW'S THIS FOR A CABBAGE?

Everything in California seems to be big. Every school geography tells of the big trees which grow there—trees larger than are found in any other spot on the globe.

This story has to do with an enormous cabbage. It has grown so tall that it is really a tree. It is 12 feet high and the stalk is as large as a man's waist. For nine months this remarkable plant has been growing, and it has not stopped yet. It is not the common cabbage, but belongs to the kohlwort or kale family.

It resembles cabbage in many respects, but the leaves do not form the solid head which is characteristic of the ordinary cabbage.

In many Southern States kale is highly esteemed as "greens." The small shoots are tender and edible, tasting much like cabbage, which it resembles while growing, as well as after being cooked.

The Isle of Jersey is the home of the kale plant. It is used there as a food for the diminutive buff cattle, which have made the name of the island known all over the world.

The giant California kale tree was grown on the grounds of the State Agricultural College at Berkeley. The college authorities say that the leaves are much relished by chickens, and as it produces green leaves the year around in the mild climate of California, it is highly regarded. The particular plant which has attained such an enormous growth does not differ from scores of others on the farm, except in the matter of size. The stalk has been stripped of leaves to a point 10 feet from the ground. It tapers gracefully and resembles a young hickory tree. The top is surrounded by a bunch of yellow, feathery flowers.

Some years ago a cabbage plant was exhibited at the Ohio State Fair, which was 7 feet high. It took a prize, and was supposed to be the largest cabbage ever grown, but it was small compared with the Berkeley monstrosity. Think of the quantity of corned beef it would take to make the proper proportion if all the leaves on this large plant should be cooked at one time! A whole steer would scarcely be sufficient, and two or three such plants would make enough sauerkraut to last a Milwaukee family all winter.—New York World.

FROM WIRE TO TYPE.

A New Improvement Proposed in Typesetting.
The general public has but a faint idea of the strides that are making toward perfection in matters electric, telegraphic and mechanic. When typesetting machines were invented it was thought that there could be no further improvement in that direction. It remained, however, for a clever young man of Brooklyn, N. Y., to demonstrate the practicability of using the typesetting machine in connection with telegraphy.

About three years ago it occurred to Mr. Frank J. Kihm, special telegraph operator of the Brooklyn Eagle, that it would be possible to set in type the telegraphic news sent over the Associated Press wire. Hundreds of operators are copying telegrams with the aid of typewriters, and Mr. Kihm decided that with extra care and expertness a typesetting machine could also be used with fair success. The editor of the Eagle at once placed a typesetting machine at the operator's disposal, and, after some weeks of practice, the telegraph wire of the Associated Press was extended to the composing room, and Mr. Kihm proceeded to demonstrate the practicability of his idea. As the operator in the New York office of the news association clicks off the dots and dashes they are simultaneously reproduced by the giant telegraph sounnder at Mr. Kihm's typesetting machine. As the different letters come over the wire Mr. Kihm touches the same letter on the keyboard of the machine, and instantly there is formed a metal letter corresponding with the letter transmitted over the wire. When a whole word has been formed, Mr. Kihm touches the blank space button and a space block of metal drops down into place. Then another line is set in type, and so it goes on.

So expert has Mr. Kihm become that he runs the machine with surprising speed, and with very few typographical errors. He is the only telegraph operator in the world who receives the news by ear and runs a typesetting machine with his fingers at one and the same time.—Jersey City Journal.

Obituary.

Anna Lawrence was born in Dearborn county, Ind., May 22, 1823; died July 11, 1896, aged 73 yrs. 1 mo. and 19 da.

She was united in marriage with A. E. Babcock, Nov. 7, 1839, and to this union eleven children were born, nine of whom are still living, all being excellent and honored men and women, who with the father, one brother and one sister, a number of grand children and many friends are left to mourn.

In 1815 brother Babcock and wife moved to Fulton county Ind., and there lived for half a century, being identified with every helpful interest of the county, but most prominently with the religious interest. Bro. Babcock was very successful in organizing and holding together a number of the best Baptist churches of the Logansport association. In early life mother Babcock united with the United Brethren church, but after her marriage she attached herself to the Baptist church that she might walk hand in hand with her husband and during all the years of his ministry when the country was new and they were ill prepared to support their large and growing family, she was a constant help to him, and showing in this as well as in other matters, an unbounded confidence in the Lord that he would provide for his own. During her last illness with all her intense suffering, she was patient thus emphasizing her christian character in the deepest affliction. She remarked to her friends that she was only waiting for a summons from the master to enter into the full enjoyment of life eternal. As the end drew near she looked into the face of one of her daughters and a pleasant smile overspread her face as she realized she would soon be at rest and receive her reward in heaven.

Funeral services were held in the Jordan Baptist Church by Rev. O. A. Cook, of Rochester, assisted by Rev. W. F. Smith of Argos; and interment in the Jordan Cemetery.

We miss thee, mother, from our home,
We miss thee from thy place;
A shadow from our life is cast,
We miss the sunshine of thy face,
Thy fond and earnest care,
Our home is dark without thee,
We miss thee everywhere.

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
God in his wisdom has recalled
The boon his love has given.
And though the body moulders here,
The soul is safe in heaven.

LOCAL PARAGRAPHS CURTAILED

And Put in Good Form for the Benefit of the Herald's Numerous Readers.

H. H. Culver arrived at the lake from St. Louis, Monday.

The Maxinkuckee fair will draw immense crowds of people, this year.

John Walley and Dave Green went to Plymouth and Argos on their wheels, yesterday.

Rev. Albert Zechiel returned to Belyeu, Ohio, yesterday, after a visit with his relatives at this place.

A private car containing officials of the road was on the siding at this place, Saturday and Sunday.

William Kaley, Joseph Medbourn, and Clint Hollum are among those who gladdened the heart of the editor this week.

The free silver forces are now in convention at St. Louis, and latest reports confirm the statement that they will indorse W. J. Bryan, the democratic nominee, for President.

A young man living in Plymouth by the name of Wilkinson, was drowned in Pretty Lake, last week while in bathing with two companions. Expert divers arrived from Chicago, but at last reports they had not succeeded in recovering the body.

On Wednesday evening a very pleasant impromptu dance was held at the Colonade. The young people to the number of about thirty came over from Long Point, and the gay crowd "tripped the light fantastic" to the strains of charming music until a late hour.

One of Plymouth's noted butchers was shot at by a saloon-keeper last Wednesday and owing to the fact that said butcher was a lively "sprinter," is the sole reason that he is alive and well to-day. It is said that the Plymouthite was a little too intimate with the saloon-keeper's wife.

For every quarter in a man's pocket there are a dozen uses; and to use each one in such a way as to derive the greatest benefit is a question every one must solve for himself. We believe, however, that no better use could be made of one of these quarters than to exchange it for a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, a medicine that every family should be provided with. For sale at Culver City Drug Store.

The following persons arrived at the lake during the last week and are guests at the Colonade: W. G. Rottman, F. W. Buckner, Fred Harnell and wife, F. Fisher, W. A. Ryan and E. C. Black, Terre Haute; E. W. Handley, Laporte; T. Cole and wife E. B. Coleman, and W. H. Morse, Chicago; Russel Pettibone, Cincinnati; John E. Geiger, Logan; E. E. Tower, Kokomo; J. E. Vleit and wife and J. M. Lee, Indianapolis; John Ryan, New York; A. A. Ladd and Dr. N. C. Davis, Frankfort; and H. F. Durham, Pittsburg.

On last Friday evening, one of the most enjoyable gatherings of the season occurred at Hilarity Hill, the occasion being the formal opening of the cottage to Messrs. Kiefer and Whitcomb's friends. The cottage was beautifully decorated with numerous colored and Japanese lanterns, and with the help of several of their lady friends the interior was made attractive with the many of the little decorations not supposed to be known to our batchelors. Late in the evening the entire company were initiated into the mysteries of preparing a welsh rare bit. The dining room was bright with ferns and wild flowers, and the memory of the sumptuous spread, which was served so informally, will remain long in the minds of those who were so fortunate as to have received invitations. The fun ran fast and furious until the wee sma' hours, when each little group dispersed to their cottage homes, gliding out over moonlit waters of old Maxenkuckee, wishing that the music of each mandolin and guitar could last forever.

Notice.

I understand that it has been reported that my wife and I have parted. Now, I wish to inform the meddling and unscrupulous parties that such is not the case, and furthermore I wish to state if such party, or parties do not mind their own affairs, they will receive a reward that may not be acceptable to them.

W. F. EULITT.

People will confer a great favor on "ye editor" if they will hand in all the personals and items of interest they may know. We are anxious to get the news, and unless our readers take an interest in it in this way, there are many things that will escape us. Hand in the news and we do the rest.

The little folks congregated at their residence and after enjoying a continual round of pleasures incident to juveniles, a light repast was served, and they marched to the lake in a body, and took a ride on the steamer, "McShea." They are loud in the praise of their hostess as an entertainer.
