A distinguished Culver Military Academy instructor and longtime counselor of the Academy's Company "A" died of a heart attack enroute by air to Indianapolis from Switzerland Wednesday, May 7.

Col. Elzie Kemp Moore, USAR (Ret.), died in an incident which the Indiana University Alumni Association has requested a full investigation.

He was 71.

Death occurred after the Pan-American jet aircraft which Moore was traveling dropped 25,000 feet in less than three minutes.

Frank Jones, secretary of the alumni association, told United Press International the report was requested after passengers told of extreme fright and confusion over what was happening as the plane flew over the Atlantic Ocean en route to Bangor, Maine and on to Indianapolis, where the flight ended.

Col. Moore

The alumni officer, who said

Moore died "either during or shortly after the descent" received a call from the director of the 11-day European tour who chartered the plane as soon as it landed in Bangor. Jones went immediately to Indianapolis and was there when the plane arrived early Thursday to end the tour.

According to Jones, the following is a report by passengers as to what happened:

Action was taken by the stewardesses which indicated the plane was in trouble. Passengers were told they were traveling at 35,000 and were in the neighborhood of 10,000 feet when they leveled off.

The pilot came on the public address system and told them a valve had iced up and cut off the compression facility of the plane, decompressing the passenger chamber.

"What happened, causing concern among many of the passengers, was that the stewardesses put on portable oxygen masks, yet did not drop down oxygen for passengers," explained Jones.

He said there may have been no need for oxygen, but "nobody explained to our people, and they got all excited."

He talked with Pan-Am representative and requested a full investigation surrounding the incident, including a report by the airline on the mechanical problems which occurred during flight.

Col. Moore served the Academy from September 1930 until June of 1969. During his 39 years of service he was an English and Latin instructor, a guidance counselor and an intramural coach in football and basketball.

He attained the academic rank of master instructor in 1956 and resided with his wife, Helen, on State Road 10 near the Academy.

A longtime friend and fellow instructor of Moore's, Col. Edward Payson, retired bandmaster of CMA, described Col. Moore as a "traditionalist in the best sense of the word."

"He believed in America, apple pie, law and order and the high values of civilized society and in the old fashioned America."

"He had the tremendous ability to handle young people and demanded respect, which he always received," said Col. Payson.

"He could take a very difficult boy and straighten him out...and

Fencing investigation results in four arrests

Two Culver men have been arrested and await arraignment resulting from investigation into an alleged gun fence operation in Culver.

Two other men have appeared before Marshall County Superior Court in regards to the operation.

Dave Burns, 419 So. Main St. awaits a May 19 arraignment date on a charge of theft of stolen property. Burns requested the Monday date during a brief hearing before the court May 12.

Frank Branham, Box 63, Mill St. asked and received a continuance on his case Monday for a new date of May 16. He is charged with theft of stolen property. Apparently his attorney could not be present for the May 12 hearing.

Both men have been indicted by the Marshall County grand jury in connection with an alleged gun fencing operation which had been under investigation by local, county and state police since early April.

Russell Salyer, State Road 17, appeared before the county Superior Court May 12 and plead guilty to receiving stolen property. He was fined $100 and court costs and was sentenced to one year at the Indiana Department of Correction. The sentence was suspended and Salyer was placed on probation for one year.

Another man, Lindville Salyer, RR 3, State Road 14, Winamac, plead guilty in a Monday court appearance to illegal transfer of a handgun. He was fined $25 and court costs and received a suspended five day jail sentence.

According to reliable sources he was not actually involved in the gun fencing operation, however his offense came to light as a result of the investigation. Reports indicate he did not fully comply with Indiana statutes regarding the proper requirements for sale and transfer of a handgun, thus his arrest and conviction.

The fencing operation reportedly involves as many as 20 guns stolen from the area and an original report stated that as many as 150 firearms stolen from homes throughout northern Indiana may be turned up by the investigation.

The investigation began when Morgan Allen Jr. of San Pierre was arrested on burglary and theft charges in Pulaski County. Allen, who has been indicted in both Jasper and Pulaski Counties, has turned evidence over to the state which indicated he had sold stolen firearms to several area people.

Culver Town Marshal Richard Woodward said three other accomplices believed to have taken part in the break-ins are being held by authorities on charges of burglary and theft, according to a story in the Plymouth Pilot.

Local investigators have been working with the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms division to identify the owners of some of the guns recovered thus far in the investigation.

Tina Hopple, Melissa Miller and Chad Hopple are shown painting Culver fire hydrants red, white and blue for Clean-Up Week. The women are members of the Maxinkuckee Junior Women's Club and are helping in the clean-up effort by adding the new look to local fire plugs. This week has been proclaimed Clean-Up Week and all residents of the community are urged to help in the beautification of Culver, according to Clean-Up Week chairmen Alyce Robeson and Esther Wampler.

Alumni return to CMA

Several hundred Culver Military Academy alumni are expected to merge on the Culver campus this weekend to participate in a variety of alumni-related events.

This year the honored alumni are from the classes of 1925 and later ending in 5 and 0.

A busy schedule is planned, beginning with registration of Friday and finishing with a student theater production Sunday.

Weekend highlights include a special assembly for noted author and flier Ernest Gann. Gann is a 1930 Culver graduate and will be honored by the Academy as Man of the Year (see related story, this issue).

In addition to the special assembly, a regatta will be conducted Saturday morning and a parade, Reunion Dance and Alumni Association meeting is planned.

Baseball cards to Kissinger

A father bird taxiing home to his brood is greeted by open beaks, ruffled feathers and a burst of chirps. It's not so different for a father man returning home in the evening. He, too, comes to expect and accept unrest in the nest. Only quiet alarms him. His daily questions as he approaches his castle: What caused the fray today? Is mother's id intact?

Sometimes the answers come clearly, quickly. One sister is shouting at the other "It's your turn to set the table." Or both are berating a brother: "You promised we'd get to bat in the ballgame, not just stand in the dumb outfield." And their glassy-eyed mother is stirring a fine kettle of stew over an unlit stove, counting to ten.

Other times, the basis for the crisis is less obvious...as when I opened the front door recently and observed a scene such as might have been triggered by discovery of a CIA agent at Havana Airport.

I raised my hand, an authoritative command for silence. The I tried stomping my feet and whistling. I might as well have been selling Reagan buttons in Grand Rapids.

"What's going on?" I demanded as Mark dashed past. I thought him to say, "The baby's got beriberi." I ran to the kitchen, where I found Lynne with her head in the clothes drier. "What are you doing?" I shrieked. Her voice came from inside the drier with echo effect, like an old Patti Page recording. "What do you think I'm doing? I'm looking for a button." "I think my mother had a better system," I added. "She always kept her buttons in a big glass jar." I knew even as I spoke that the time was not right for flippancy. Lynne removed her head from the drier and gave a gaze that would have sobered a Mardi Gras crowd. Remembering Mark's remark, I inquired about the cause of the furor in the foyer. She gave it to me straight: "The baby's got Yogi Berra."

"That sounds worse than beriberi. What does it mean? He's stuck in a squat? His vocabulary's regressing? What?" "It means," Lynne said, "that he got into the kids' baseball cards." "At last count, they had more than 3,000 of those things. What difference can one Yogi Berra more or less make?"

Lynne didn't answer. She just put her headback in the drier. I clutched my dogtags and headed for the front.

The situation there proved even worse than intelligence reports had indicated. Christopher was clutching not only Yogi Berra, but also Hank Aaron, Brooks Robinson and a wrinkled Leo Durocher. Joy finally was restored to Mudville when I persuaded him to surrender the copped cards in return for several shiny pennies. A few years from now, he would eschew such an exchange.

More than a quarter-billion baseball cards will be sold in 1975. Do you know how many cards that is? If you placed them end to end, you'd have a line Charlie O. Finley could not top.

Kids buy baseball cards. They trade them—a tense, intense exercise in negotiating acumen. And they read the statistics and trivia printed on the backs of the cards. That gives them expertise few adults can match.

Recently, I mentioned during dinner that there used to be a team called the St. Louis Browns, which once employed a midget as a pinch-hitter.

"His name was Eddie Gaedel," Mark reported. "He batted for Frank Saucier."

"He got a walk," Tammy added, "and Jim Delsing ran for him."

"His number," Tara contributed, "was 1/8."

On other occasions, I have been informed that Nolan Ryan's fastball was clocked at 100.8 miles an hour in 1974, that Heinie Groh swung a bottle bat, that the 1941 Brooklyn Dodgers were the first team to use batting helmets, that Bullet Joe Bush invented the forkball, and that John Pezzulo's nickname was Pretzels. That store of information all came from baseball cards.

But collecting the cards isn't a bad hobby for youngsters. Preferable, certainly, to hub-caps. There are tangible benefits. The collections help bridge the generation gap. When one of the kids brings home a Wayne Terwillinger card or a Sam Esposito card and you can tell him you actually remember Terwillinger and Esposito, your standing's enhanced. Because of the cards, kids can watch baseball players on TV and identify with them. Better they identify with Catfish Hunter than a John-Boy Walton. Who wants them keeping diaries and someday blabbing family secrets to the world?

And in a real sense, the cards provide children with valuable experience for the future.

The kid who today can get a Johnny Bench or a Frank Robinson for a Burt Hooten may be tomorrow's Branch Rickey.

Heck, he may be tomorrow's Henry Kissinger.

Wear a poppy proudly!

Although the fighting in Vietnam, as well as Korea, Germany, France and Japan has ended, the horror of war continues.

It echoes in our hospitals filled with battle-maimed servicemen and women in thousands of families left fatherless from war, and it echoes in the memories of all who took part in the battles.

American Legion and American Legion Auxillary groups throughout the United States offer the traditional red crepe paper poppies immediately prior to Memorial Day in exchange for donations to help soften the echoing.

May 16 and 17 the local groups will be on street corner in the Culver area asking all of us to buy and wear a poppy.

Funds from Poppy Day sales go directly into rehabilitation and child welfare programs sponsored by American Legion men and women. Through the sale of poppies, made by disabled veterans who are paid for their services, more than $300,000 is given annually to needy and disabled veterans, and to families of disabled or killed servicemen.

The purpose and significance of Poppy Day has been to honor the war dead by assisting the living, so when you are asked to buy a poppy this weekend remember the veteran in hospital or workshop who made the memorial flower.

And please—wear your poppy proudly!

Col. Moore dies

the boy had the highest respect and admiration for Col. Moore in return" added Payson. Another longtime friend of Col. Moore who wishes to go unnamed considers him one of the finest men at CMA. "A perfect gentleman with a beautiful sense of humor. He took kidding wonderful and could talk at length on many subjects."

"Often students could be heard growling about him behind his back, but just as soon as they were overheard by another student, they would immediately defend him to the hilt!"

According to other reports, he could create respect with everyone and was able to instill spirit and enthusiasm in students and Academy personnel as well.

Payson described him as a man who was always willing to help. He would often call on recently widowed women of armed service veterans and explain to them benefits they were entitled to by the federal government. He thought people deserved what was coming to them, both good and bad.

Major to Col. Moore's many interestst was probably his hobby of studying military history, specifically Civil War.

Recently he made a trip throughout the eastern United States visiting Civil War battlefields.

His interest in the military showed in his active role in the American Legion.

He was past commander of the W.A. Fleet Post 103 of the American Legion and was actively involved in the Legion as service officer at the time of his death. He was past Chef de Guerre for the Marshall County chapter of the Forty and Eight Society.

In regards to military obligations, he was drillmaster of the CMA Rifle Honor Guard while at the Academy and participated in many military-related activities at the campus.

A member of the Army Reserve for over 28 years, Col.

Moore served in Asia and Europe during WW II. A highly decorated officer, he wore the Bronze Star with Combat V, the Purple Heart, Okinawa Stars and the D-Day (France 1944) Arrowhead. He was with the first assault at Utah Beach on D-Day, June 6, 1955 in Normandy and was cited for his outstanding leadership of troops during that historical landing.

He is mentioned in the book and movie "The Longest Day" in context with that important military happening.

A member of Phi Beta Kappa, Col. Moore received his bachelor's degree, with distinction from Indiana University in 1926 and his master's degree from Indiana State University in 1963. He was born April 28, 1904 in Brazil, Ind. to George and Nannie (Kemp) Moore and attended Wiley High School at Terre Haute.

Following college graduation he was affiliated with the First National Bank in Terre Haute and taught at Fontanet, Ind. High School before joining the CMA staff.

He was past master of the Henry Harrison Culver Masonic Lodge and was also a member of the Scottish Rite and York Rite.

Besides the wife, Helen, he is survived by his step mother, Mrs. Edith Moore of Terre Haute.

Funeral services for the late Col. Moore were conducted Monday, May 12 at 2 p.m. at the Culver Military Academy Chapel with Chaplain William Martin officiating.

Burial was in the Culver Masonic Cemetery and military rites were conducted at the grave.

Memorial services were conducted by the Henry H. Lodge 617 F&AM Sunday, May 11 at 7:30 p.m.

Memorials in honor of Col. Moore may be made to the CMA Scholarship Fund.

Bonine Funeral Home handled the arrangements.

N.O.W. speaker scheduled at Grace Church Saturday

Due to some scheduling difficulties Mary Stroull, the announced guest speaker for the women's movement meeting May 10 was unable to attend.

She has been contacted and will visit Culver May 17 at 1:30 in the basement of the Grace Church. At that time she will present information concerning the history of the women's movement and will offer information regarding personal membership in the National Organization for Women.

Last week several local people attended a morning meeting regarding women's roles in today's society and a number of interesting comments were brought out at that time. Included in the group were two girls from Culver Girls Academy, members of the Culver Academies' staff, a teacher, housewives and a member of the local clergy.

Discussion was heard in relation to what women can do to regain a better status in what was considered a "man's world." The discussion will be continued this Saturday after Stroull's talk at the North Plymouth St. church.

Elementary play on Friday

"All Aboard for Culver" a lighthearted musical written by elementary music instructor Wanda Couch will be presented Friday, May 16 at the Culver Junior High School gymnasium.

Kindergarten, first, second and third graders will sing, dance and demonstrate their acting abilities in the play, beginning at 1:30 p.m. at the school. Over 290 students will participate in the musical.

According to Mrs. Couch the play takes place in Songland U.S.A. at a train station. An attempt is made to recruit enough songs to fill a train on its way to Culver.

During the performance various classes and a cast of 13 members present a variety of song and dance numbers in an attempt to gain a place on the train to Culver.

Near the end of the play four of the necessary five train cars are filled—yet one more is needed.

That missing link is added just in the "nick" of time and the train pulls out of Songland to Culver.

Prior to the play the junior high vocal group, the Inspirations, will present several vocal selections.

"All Aboard for Culver" is a happy-ending performance sure to delight young and old alike.

The community is invited to attend and no admission will be charged.

Second in a series

Dr. Joe Hafert discusses the JP

(Editor's note: This is the second in a series of articles involving the Justice of the Peace office, its duties and responsibilities. Dr. Joe A. Hafert, Union Township's only JP offered a resume to the CITIZEN, which is being serialized bi-weekly. Today we continue with the limitations of the JP.)

5. The Justice of the Peace courts are empowered to handle both civil and criminal actions and a separate docket book is kept for each. Civil cases are limited to those involving $500 or less. Criminal cases are limited to misdemeanors only, felonies go to a higher court. The court may impose fines of up to $25 and tax the costs set by law, currently $27. The Justice must issue official numbered receipts for all monies received, and use official numbered checks for that court only when disbursing money—said money to be kept in a special JP account in a designated bank. The Justice must be bonded, usually for from $6000-25,000 and is subject to have his financial records audited at any time by the State Board of Auditors.

6. In brief, JP's may issue warrants for arrest, issue summons, issue search warrants, pronounce contempt of court, commit a person to jail for non-payment of fines and costs, impanel a jury, make change of venue, take depositions, perform marriages among other duties. On official papers he must impose his official seal.

7. Jurisdiction in Justice of the Peace Courts:

Jurisdiction is the power to hear and determine a cause; and it is either exclusive or concurrent. Civil causes arising in a township amounting to $500 or less belong exclusively to that township's JP. Among those causes could be tenant and landlord (damage made by trespassing animals, claims for money owed).

The jurisdiction of a JP of criminal cases shall be coextensive with their respective counties, and they shall have exclusive original jurisdiction in all cases where

Two accidents reported to police

Two accidents were reported to police during the past week in Culver.

On May 10 Verna F. Moore, RR 3 Plymouth reportedly hit a street sign while traveling on North Ohio St. near West Washington St.

She had left the scene, according to the police report, and was located near the Culver city limits. An estimated $250 in damages was done to her auto. $30 was the cost reportedly done to the street sign which she collided with. The accident occurred about 9:30 p.m.

On May 11 Kevin Johnson, 425 South Ohio St. apparently drove his auto into a parked car belonging to Edward Kowatch, 110 West Washington St. The accident happened in front of the Kowatch residence.

According to the report approximately $400 in damages was done to both autos involved in the accident.

Police indicate Johnson was distracted by a passenger in his auto causing him to collide with the Kowatch auto.

the fine assessed cannot exceed three dollars and concurrent jurisdiction with the circuit court to try and determine all cases of misdemeanors where punishment is by fine only, and in trials before Justices, fines to the extent of $25 with costs assessed. They shall have no power to adjudge imprisonment as part of a sentence, except in the manner provided specially (non-payment of fine and costs). There is no jurisdictional limit in criminal cases as in civil cases as it is co-extensive with the county. Evidence must show offense to have been committed within the county or dependent must be acquitted.

The Justice of the Peace has no jurisdiction when a.) defendant is under 16, however traffic violations and boating violations can be tried at 16 or over, b.) all cases where fine must be over $25 and c.) a felony has been committed.

8. The most common misdemeanors tried in JP courts are traffic violations including speeding, property damage, reckless driving, improper passing, drag racing, etc.; fish and game violations; assault and battery; illegal possession of alcoholic beverages; other violations of the motor vehicle code—improper registration, expired operator's license or no operator's license; contributing to the delinquency of a minor or boating law violations.

How the Court Functions Civil Cases

The wordings and terms used in connection with hearings and trials are too technical to go into here, so I will use an example of how a civil case is handled.

Suppose a local merchant, John Doe, has a customer who has owed him money for a considerable time for merchandise purchased on credit and not paid for, and this person, James Doe, has ignored repeated requests for payment when bills were sent to him. All other means having failed, John Doe goes to JP court by legal claim. He takes his bills against James Doe, show what merchandise was obtained, the dates and the amounts of money involved. This is known as Exhibit A. He may wish to have an attorney use this to draw up a formal claim in legal form or take it directly to a JP court. Either way the Justice then enters the Exhibit A in the Civil Docket Book with John Doe as the plaintiff and James Doe as the defendant. However it is necessary at that time for plaintiff to pay the court the costs of the case which usually is for $8—$2 docket fee, $4 JP fee and $2 for constable (appointed) to serve the papers. A receipt is given plaintiff and a summons is issued on James Doe, defendant, ordering him to appear in court at a specified time. This is served to defendant in person or on the door of his residence and a copy mailed to his address. If defendant fails to appear, he is then said to be in default and the plaintiff wins the case and can then proceed to have writs of attachment made out by the court and have sufficient property of the defendant seized and sold by the sheriff to satisfy the indebtedness.

If the defendant does appear in answer to the summons, he is informed of the claim against him and is required to answer it. If he admits to the validity of the claim he may sign a confession of guilt and pay the court then and there and is given a receipt for the amount of the claim plus the court costs. The total is then paid to plaintiff by a court check. If the defendant cannot pay all at that time he can make payments, but only to the court.

Junior High home ec girls schedule style show Tues.

Over forty seventh and eighth grade home economics students from Culver Junior High School will model clothing they have sewn during the past year at a Style Show scheduled for Tuesday, May 20.

The show will begin at 7 p.m. in the study hall, located on the top floor of the school.

It will feature students from Kathy Zentz's home economics classes who will model a variety of clothing items including dresses, skirts, long skirts, t-shirts and shorts. All items were made in Mrs. Zentz's classes during the past year.

An added feature of the program will be a slide presentation depicting students working on projects they model

The Inspirations, a vocal group from the school will perform for additional entertainment throughout the show.

Mrs. Zentz explained families are invited to the Style Show. "It is not just a girl-type thing," said Mrs. Zentz.

"We encourage fathers and brothers to attend too, to see what their daughters and sisters have made during home economics sewing classes," she added.

School Board passes 20 cent tax levy

Culver School Superintendent A.F. Allen opens one of the several bids received at the May 6 meeting for bleacher seating at the high school football field. No bids were accepted by the Board at the meeting and all are currently under advisement and study by Board members. Board president Ralph Stayton looks on.

More football expenditures made

Highlighting last Tuesday night's Culver Community Schools Corporation Board meeting was the unanimous passage of a motion to continue the 20 cent on the $100 property tax levy. The tax money, it was announced, is to be used for building maintenance.

The move received severe criticism by one audience member who supplied the Board with various data relating to Culver's high taxing rate as well as the high per pupil cost in the local schools.

The Board discussed the visitor's remarks but when it came to voting, all members voted in favor of the motion's passage.

According to school superintendent A.F. Allen, the tax is not a new one but rather a continuation of one in effect for the past five years. Renewal of the 20 cent tax levy is subject to approval by state taxing authorities.

Approximately $43,000 could be realized annually from the levy and all monies from the tax will be put in the cumulative building fund for school building upkeep.

Notice of the tax levy appeared in several issues of the CITIZEN in the "legals" section and the May 6 meeting of the Board was the public hearing on the matter.

Supt. Allen opened a number of sealed bids for bleacher seating at the high school football field.

All bids were taken under advisement so all Board members could study them.

King School Equipment offered a base bid of $9,276.65 for a 120 foot long unit with wooden seats and capacity for 730 people. King School offered a second option that would cost $10,152 as well as options for press boxes and concrete piers.

Imperial Enterprises Corp. submitted bids for six bleacher options. The first was $17,363 for a permanent, 10 row, 750 seating capacity structure. The other basic bleacher bid was for $18,476. They also offered option on various press boxes and a $11,770 portable bleacher set.

Standard Steel bid $10,615 for a 120 foot long aluminum seat unit with a 746 seating capacity. They bid a lower cost $8,963 bleacher option and two different press box options.

Miracle Recreation Co. offered two bids. The first was for a 806 capacity bleacher system with metal seats for $14,912 and the second a bid for a bleacher with colored hard plastic seats for $15,972.

William Mills, junior high elementary principal introduced Ruth Ann Myers, elementary-junior high counselor. During a short summary Mrs. Myers explained her duties and obligations as a counselor at the local school and enlightend the Board with a number of figures showing her work during the past school year.

She has visited over 65 student homes to discuss a variety of school-related problems and has worked with over 200 students on more than one occasion since last fall.

The board encouraged Mrs. Myers in her efforts.

A bid of $4000 was accepted for preparation of the practice football field. The Board let the bid, presented by George Franz of Culver, for placement of topsoil on the field and for excavation of a grade on the field for adequate water drainage. Another from McMahon-O'Connor of Rochester was received for $4,835 for the same job.

According to Allen, work on the field will begin immediately.

Board members moved unanimously for Allen to offer the corporation's services for help in establishing headquarters for the area vocational education facility here at Culver. Allen explained to the Board there is office space available at the superintendent's building on North Ohio Street, and if Culver could headquarter the area's vo-tech program, there might be advantages in regards to vocational facilities at the high school.

A bid presented by Bud Lewis, Culver of $1,000 for repair of the exterior of Aubbee School was accepted. The work will entail repairing of cracks at the southeast corner of the school.

A proposal sent to the Board by the Student Council at CCHS was read. It concerned a possible solution to the problem of automobile tracks on school property. According to the Council, the construction of a curbing could alleviate persons driving across school property. The Board will consider the proposal the next meeting.

It was announced bids for fuel, tires and other school bus items as well as bread and milk will be advertised by the Board

Allen told the Board Delph Electric is nearly completed with the lighting operation of the football field and the Board moved to pay $1,752.14 on the Delph account.

The remaining money owed Delph, about $5,000, will not be paid until all lighting work is completed, announced Board members.

Discussion ensued regarding what type facilities would be needed to adjust and maintain lights on the football field. Delph suggested the installation of steps on the 90-foot poles, of which they would split with the corporation the $462 cost. The Board tabled the discussion until the next meeting.

The Board concluded the regular business meeting and adjourned into executive session to discuss personnel matters.

Care of Your Flag— All outdoor flags will fray at the fly end in time. To prolong the flying time they should be repaired at the first sign of a tear, by cutting off and re-hemming. It is proper to wash the U.S. Flag, using cool water and non-detergent soap.

The flag should be flown from dawn to dusk, and only in clement weather. If the flag is flying, and the weather becomes inclement, do not take the flag down until the proper time, then see that it is dried before flying again. The flag may be flown on a 24-hour-a-day basis only if it is lighted at all times.

Flag etiquette booklets are included with all flags sold. We order our flags from a flag company in Ft. Dodge, Ia., which is owned by World War Veterans and the flags are all manufactured in the United States of America.
