A SCIENTIST SAVED.

President Barnaby, of Hartsville College, Survives a Serious Illness Through the Aid of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

From the Republican, Columbus, Ind. The Hartsville College, situated at Hartsville, Ind., was founded years ago in the interest of the United Brethren Church, when the State was mostly a wilderness, and colleges were scarce.

A reporter recently called at this famous seat of learning and was shown into the room of the president, Prof. Alvin P. Barnaby. When last seen by the reporter Prof. Barnaby was in delicate health. To-day he was apparently in the best of health.

"Oh, yes, I am much better than for some time. I am now in perfect health; but my recovery was brought about in rather a peculiar way."

"Tell me about it," said the reporter. "Well, to begin at the beginning," said the Professor, "I studied too hard when at school, endeavoring to educate myself for the professions. After completing the common course I came here, and graduated from the theological course. I entered the ministry, and accepted the charge of a United Brethren Church at a small place in Kent County, Michigan. Being of an ambitious nature, I applied myself diligently to my work and studies. In time I noticed that my health was failing. My trouble was indigestion, and

"My physician prescribed for me for some time, and advised me to take a change of climate. I did as he requested and was some improved. Soon after, I came here as professor in physics and chemistry, and later was financial agent of this college. The change agreed with me, and for awhile my health was better, but my duties were heavy, and again I found my trouble returning. This time it was more severe, and in the winter I became completely prostrated. I tried various medicines and different physicians. Finally, I was able to return to my duties. Last spring I was elected president of the college. Again I had considerable work, and the trouble, which had not been entirely cured, began to affect me, and last fall I collapsed. I had different doctors, but none did me any good. Prof. Bowman, who is professor of natural science, told me of his experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and urged me to give them a trial, because they had benefited him in a similar case, and I concluded to try them.

"The first box helped me, and the second gave great relief, such as I had never experienced from the treatment of any physician. After using six boxes of the medicine I was entirely cured. To-day I am perfectly well. I feel better and stronger than for years. I certainly recommend this medicine."

To allay all doubt Prof. Barnaby cheerfully made an affidavit before LYMAN J. SCUDDER, Notary Public. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk, or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

It is told of Hannah More that she had a good way of managing tale-bearers. It is said that whenever she was told anything derogatory to another her invariably reply was, "Come, we will go and ask if this be true." The effect was something ludicrously painful. The tale-bearer was taken aback, stammered out a qualification, or begged that no notice might be taken of the statement. But the good lady was inexorable. Off she took the scandal monger to the scandalized to make inquiry and compare accounts. It is not likely that anybody ever a second time ventured to repeat a gossip story to Hannah More. One would think her method of treatment would be a sure cure for scandal.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS RAISING FUNDS.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR young people are very much on their mettle these days. They are turning their faces longingly toward the sunset—every hopeful mother's son and daughter of them all. In every town and hamlet, city and countryside of the nation Endeavorers abide. The young Endeavorers want to come together in a grand convention, and earnestly, even if incidentally, they long to visit California, the El Dorado of their dreams. Pity 'tis that with such brotherly love and friendly longing should be mixed the sordid necessity of counting the cost. Money, prosaic, unchristian dollars, and a goodly number of them, must buy the right to expenses, and this arrangement makes it possible to do so in a delicate and inoffensive manner.

Endeavorers of Iowa and other States of the great West have apparently tried to outdo each other in bright ideas for raising funds. The societies of the town of Decatur have found an original and enterprising way—perhaps the cleverest yet reported. The Endeavorers gave a sort of modified church fair, which served the double purpose of creating an interest in the convention and providing funds for the use of delegates. The entertainment was called "A Trip to California," and the population turned out en masse to see it. Booths represented the various points of interest along the route. They were most artistically gotten up, and curios and souvenirs were offered for sale. Peanut vendors, candy men and the objectionable "news agents" offered their wares, doubtless with their accustomed measure of insistence. As for refreshments, they were offered on the exquisite dining-car basis, or might be partaken of at station lunch counters, with the customary difficulties thrown in.

Good aunts and uncles from the country, bashful brides in gray gowns, conductors and all the characters supposed to present themselves in the course of a railway journey were impersonated. Red men of the plains threatened, but did not scalp, and after running the gauntlet of events and dangers, the experimental travelers were landed in a delightfully improvised San

The Christian Endeavor Society of Masoorie, in far India, has been perhaps most farsighted of all in preparation for San Francisco's convention. Dr. F. E. Clark, president of the society, has been visiting Oriental countries and organizing branches made up of young Christians of many one-time heathen nations. The Masoorie people were busy with their plan, however, before Dr. Clark went to visit them. They wrote him in Boston of a marvelous block and gavel which were being wrought for the convention. They are of native woods inlaid with silver, and of rare workmanship. Dr. Clark will be duly presented with the graceful fering, and will bring it with him when he goes to San Francisco and so completes his journey around the world.

Badges for Doctors.

Russian doctors are hereafter to wear, as a sign that they are legally qualified to practice, a little zrak, or badge, a silver oval plate an inch and a half long by an inch wide, on which is a design of two intertwined serpents. The object is to increase the safety of the wearer in the less civilized parts of the country.

It is no credit to the men that they are not afraid of mice; one of the undergarments they wear is tied down tight at the ankle.

War Seems Ended.

Well, the war seems to be over. The Greek Government has formally adhered to the preliminaries of peace agreed upon between the powers, and the heads of the different legations have received positive assurances investing them with authority to treat with Turkey. The negotiations at Athens are regarded as concluded.

The collective note of the powers is to the following effect: Upon a formal declaration by Greece that she will recall her troops and agree to such an autonomous regime for Crete as the powers in their wisdom shall deem best, and accept unreservedly the counsels of the powers, they will intervene in the interests of peace.

In the House of Commons in London the first lord of the treasury and Government leader, A. J. Balfour, announced that instructions had been received from all the representatives of the powers at Athens saying that mediation between Turkey and Greece had been offered to the latter country and had been accepted by the Greek Government. Active measures, it is further stated, have been taken at Constantinople to stop further advance of the Turkish troops under the command of Edhem Pasha.

The recall of the forces from Crete has been received with resignation by the public. The Dellyanni's organs attack the Government for appealing to Europe, but most of the papers accept this as inevitable, and violently attack the Ethniké Hetairia, asking it to render an account of its action.

In Vienna it is reported that Turkey's terms of peace with Greece include the payment of an indemnity of $15,000,000, a rearrangement of the Greek frontier, the annulling of the treaties favoring the Greeks, the cession of the Greek fleet to Turkey and the settlement of the Cretan question.

ACTOR IN THE PULPIT.

James A. Herne, Hero of "Shore Acres," Preaches to an Audience.

James A. Herne, who is playing a wonderfully successful engagement in his beautiful play, "Shore Acres," at McVicker's Chicago theater, filled the pulpit of Rev. Dr. Canfield at St. Paul's Church Sunday night. Mr. Herne is known the country over for his kind face, his great air and his noble character (on the stage) as the hero of "Hearts of Oak" and "Shore Acres." And his stage appearance and character do not belie the man himself, for in private life he is a philanthropist, with a heart of oak and a generously open hand. Mr. Herne is now nearly 60 years of age, and has been a player for almost two generations. His first engagement was at Troy, N. Y., and paid him $6 a week. He is wedded to the character he evolves, and the parts he takes are the flowers and fruits of his own feeling. He is very fond of outdoor sports and is particularly fond of the bicycle. "Shore Acres" has proven a veritable gold mine to Mr. Herne and it has gained him an independent fortune. The fifth anniversary of this play was celebrated at McVicker's Theater on Monday evening.

FARM CONDITIONS DECLINE.

Returns for May for the Department of Agriculture.

The May returns of the Department of Agriculture show a decline from the April condition of 1.2 points; 80.2, against 81.4 last month, and 82.7 March 1, 1896. The averages of the principal winter-wheat States are: Ohio, 82; Michigan, 81; Indiana, 61; Illinois, 37; Missouri, 54; Kansas, 78; California, 97; Pennsylvania, 96. The averages of the Southern States are high, ranging from 85 in Mississippi to 98 in Texas, and in the minor States, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia, from 98 in New Jersey to 102 in Maryland.

As reported in April, the worst injuries from freezing and deficient snow are in Illinois, though the bordering States, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa and Missouri, report severe winter injury, and States bordering these, Ohio, Michigan, Nebraska and Kansas, show reduced condition figures. Over the country elsewhere the condition is unusually good, being practically normal east of the Alleghenies and quite high also on the Pacific slope. The percentage of spring plowing, finished May 1, is 61.9, the usual percentage being 78. Only the extreme northern and southern States show the customary proportion. Everywhere else delay resulted from the late season and heavy rains.

DEFEAT OF HUMPHREY BILLS.

Culmination of a Bitter Battle in the Illinois Legislature.

The defeat of the "Humphrey bills" in the Illinois Legislature was the culmination of the bitterest and most sensational legislative fight in the history of the State. For months every paper in Chicago, and almost all the leading papers of the State have been waging war on these measures, which aimed to vest the power of granting street railway franchises in Chicago to a State commission and to extend the franchises of the present companies fifty years. It was openly charged that the street railway companies of Chicago had raised a corruption fund of nearly $1,000,000 and were offering fabulous bribes to legislators. Mass meetings have been held in Chicago almost every night for the past month, denouncing the bills, at which Mayor Harrison, Alderman Harlan and prominent men in all parties have taken a leading part.

Great excitement on the stock exchange greeted the announcement of the defeat of the measures. The initial quotation for West Chicago was 102, and it sold as low as 94, showing a decline of 8 points from the opening to the lowest quotation. The close was only 1/2 point above the lowest quotation of the day.

The West Chicago street railway has a capital stock of $13,180,000. When the Humphrey bills passed the Senate the stock sold as high as 107. When the bills were defeated in the House it sold 13 points under this quotation.

The Chicago City Railway has a capital stock of $12,000,000, divided into 120,000 shares. From the last preceding quotations there was a decline of more than 10 points in City Railway in the bid prices to-day.

Putting together only the three principal companies gives the following as the loss in value:

North Chicago.....	$1,320,000
West Chicago.....	1,318,900
City Railway.....	1,200,000
Total.....	$3,838,900

Y. P. S. C. E. CONVENTION.

Program for the Annual Gathering at San Francisco.

The local committee having in charge the preliminaries for the sixteenth international Christian Endeavor convention, which will be held in San Francisco July 7 to 12, is leaving no stone unturned to insure its success. Applications for hotel accommodations are pouring in daily, and arrangements will soon be perfected. The program for the convention promises to be one of the best ever provided. Its chief features are as follows:

The convention will open Wednesday night, July 7, with meetings in eight of the largest churches in the city and one meeting each in Oakland and Alameda. Thursday morning simultaneous welcome meetings will be held in Mechanic's and Woodward's pavilions. In the afternoon twenty or more churches will be used for denominational rallies. Friday morning practical addresses and open parliaments upon the fundamental principles of Christian Endeavor will be provided. The afternoon will be given up to a "school of methods" in the various churches. "Christian Endeavor Fellowship" will be the general subject for Friday evening. Saturday morning the State secretaries are to be heard from in a symposium on the topic "How May We Make the Committee Work in Local Societies More Effective?" There will be an open-air demonstration on Vanness avenue, after which the delegates are to be given an outing by the local committee. Sunday there will be three meetings of great importance, one for men only, another for women only and one for ministers and church officers. Monday will be devoted to the evangelistic and missionary influences of Christian Endeavor. The junior rally, one of the most important features of the program, will be held in the afternoon, and the closing sessions of the convention will be held in the evening.

TO KILL GRASSHOPPERS.

Professor Bruner Will Go to Argentine for the Purpose.

Prof. Lawrence Bruner of the University of Nebraska is soon to go to the Argentine Republic in South America for the purpose of putting an end to the scourge of grasshoppers in that forward country.

For the past nine years Argentine has been eaten up by the insects and the Argentine farmers appealed to the Government. A commission of leading business men in Buenos Ayres was appointed to look into the matter. It was decided that the first necessary step was to learn as much as possible about the insects' mode of life and thus discover the best means of wiping them out.

It was agreed that to do this a grasshopper expert was a sine qua non and the American minister, Mr. Buchanan, was consulted. He referred the matter to Washington and the committee on agriculture unanimously decided that Prof. Bruner was the man.

Prof. Bruner is an old student of the saltatory insect that ravages the territory west of the Mississippi and he will go to the fields of Argentine ably equipped to fight it. A year will be spent in looking over the ground, and then the battle will begin. Ample funds will be at the disposal of the commission under which Prof. Bruner will work, and if money and scientific skill are of any avail the grasshopper will be banished from the pampas of Argentine.

ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT OF INDIANA DEPARTMENT.

Soaking Rainstorm Mars the Pleasure of the First Day—Gov. Mount and Staff of Forty Participate—J. S. Dodge of Elkhart Chosen Commander

Veterans in Rention.

Richmond was crowded with the Grand Army boys in attendance upon the eighteenth annual encampment. They took the town, and nothing was too good for the visitors. The headquarters train arrived Tuesday afternoon from Indianapolis, and was met at the depot by the members of Sol Meredith Post.

The plentiful decoration of bunting received a soaking, and much of it looked badly "frazzled." Everything was thoroughly soaked, and the whole was a great disappointment to the people of the city, who had set their hearts on outdoing any city in the State that had ever entertained the encampment. The rain also caused trouble at the depot, where the people who came in were compelled to stand and wait until they could be cared for. This resulted in a jam, but the reception and transportation committees did their work well, and the depot was emptied soon after the trains had pulled out.

The official program began Tuesday evening with a meeting of the council of administration. At the Pythian Temple the Ladies of the G. A. R. had some degree work. This was previous to a public reception given at the Westcott by the local members of the W. R. C. and the Ladies of the G. A. R. There was no program carried out at this event, but it was simply for the renewing of old acquaintances and the making of new ones. At the Phillips Opera House, George H. Thomas Post of Indianapolis conferred degrees on a Richmond candidate. This was witnessed by a large number of members of the organization, visitors from various parts of the State being especially anxious to see it on account of the reputation the post has for excellent work.

The department officers of the W. R. C. and the Ladies of the G. A. R. arrived Tuesday and were received in good style. The Ladies of the Grand Army were conspicuous in the best room in the Westcott. They are small in numbers, but they are always to the front.

Major Clarkson, commander-in-chief, arrived from Cincinnati and attended the reception. The reception was a great success. The hotel was thronged with people for two hours. Short speeches were to have been made by Gen. Wallace and Commander-in-Chief Clarkson, but there was no opportunity. The attendance was unusually large, thanks to Col. Ford of the Pennsylvania for the one-cent-a-mile rate.

The business session of the encampment began Wednesday morning. Fully 10,000 people were in attendance. In connection with this meeting was held also the fourteenth annual convention of the Woman's Relief Corps, the fourth convention of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the annual meeting of the Loyal Legion. At the business session of the Grand Army an address of welcome was made by Mayor J. S. Ostrander and a response by Gen. Lew Wallace, Commander H. M. Caylor presented his annual address, and reports submitted by the assistant adjutant general show the active membership to be 19,500. There were 300 deaths during the year and six more posts disbanded than were formed. Major T. S. Clarkson of Omaha, commander-in-chief, was present and made a brief address. Columbus secured the encampment for 1898.

The parade occurred in the afternoon, and was one of the finest in the history of the department. Gov. Mount and his staff of forty members participated. In the evening four camp fires were held, at which the chief speakers were Gen. Wallace and Gov. Mount.

The encampment came to an end Thursday. The most important matter was the election of officers, which resulted:

Grand Army—Commander, J. S. Dodge, Elkhart; senior vice, John W. Tingle, Richmond; junior vice, J. D. White, Lafayette; chaplain, Rev. A. Murphy, Greensburg; medical director, F. W. Warford, Cicero; delegate-at-large, Gen. Lew Wallace.

Woman's Relief Corps—President, Mrs. Mary Travis, Crawfordsville; senior vice, Mrs. Mary Swain, Richmond; junior vice, Mary Edwards, Shelbyville; chaplain, Mrs. Rachel Kenyon, Westfield; treasurer, Jennie Hutchinson, Crawfordsville; secretary, Blanche Gould, Crawfordsville; counselor, Mrs. Mary Sims, Frankfort; instituting and installing officer, Alice Waugh, Tipton; delegate-at-large, Kate Stormont, Princeton.

Ladies of the G. A. R.—President, Mrs. Con Graves, Lafayette; senior vice, Lucy Coleman, Elkhart; junior vice, Mary Newman, Richmond; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Henry, Warsaw; counselor, Mrs. Etta Toby, Logansport.

Loyal Legion—Commander, Gen. Lew Wallace, Crawfordsville; senior vice, Will Cumback, Greensburg; junior vice, C. E. Briant, Huntington; recorder, Col. Z. A. Smith, Indianapolis; treasurer, Horace McKay, Indianapolis; chaplain, Rt. Rev. William Corbe, Notre Dame; chancellor, Elder Cooper, Evansville; registrar, John E. Clelland, Indianapolis.

In the Grand Army a report was made condemning Montgomery's school history on account of alleged inaccuracies regarding the civil war and demanding that the State Board of Education reject it. The Ladies of the G. A. R. voted against consolidation with the W. R. C.

The State encampment is the event of the year in the life of hundreds of old soldiers. For weeks they talk of it and take the earliest train to the city where the meeting is held. This year was no exception, or, if an exception, it is that the interest was greater. The streets were early thronged with hundreds of old men wearing some military emblem, but always the badge or button of the G. A. R.

HOUSING OF THE POOR.

The Wage Earner Has a Deep Interest In This Subject.

What are the wage earner's special interests in improved housing? In the first place, this class is vitally interested in the conservation of health. Good health means earning power, and as workmen lead more or less of a hand to mouth existence any loss of earning power is a serious matter.

Wage earners are vitally interested in the passage and enforcement of wise sanitary laws. Bad sanitation entails proportionally worse economic consequences to them than to the more highly favored.

Important as are the physical and economic aspects of this question, they are not the sole, perhaps they are not even the chief, considerations. Ethical issues have greater ultimate significance.

DEAD MEN'S SHOES.

Some of the Superstitions That Are Held About Them.

"Dead men's shoes" is an expression that is familiar to every one accustomed to the use of the English language. But there are few in this country who are acquainted either with its origin or with the importance which is accorded in many parts of the old world to the boots of the dead.

If the dead person happens to be a tramp and to have been found dead in a barefooted condition, there will be always some charitable soul to furnish a pair of good boots for interment along with the corpse, and the writer of this article has even known an inspector of police in Scotland to purchase of his own accord a new pair of boots and to place them in the grave, reopened for the purpose, of a murdered stranger who had been inadvertently interred barefooted the day before.

This practice, which likewise prevails among the Tsiganes, as well as in many parts of Asia, is attributable to the belief that unless the dead are well shod when buried their ghosts come back to haunt the locality where they breathed their last in search of a pair of boots. These are popularly supposed to be needed to pass in comfort and safety the broad plains which the departed soul finds that it has to traverse before it can reach paradise.

Sir Walter Scott, in his interesting notes to "Minstrelsy on the Scottish Border," quotes the following extract from a valuable manuscript in the Cotton Library dating from the reign of Queen Elizabeth. It runs as follows:

"When any dieth certaine women sing a song to the dead bodie, reciting the journey that the party deceased must goe; and they are of belief that once in their lives it is good to give a pair of new shoes to a poor man; forasmuch as before this life they are to pass bare-foote through a great lande, full of thornes and furzen—excepte by the myerte of the almes aforesaid, they have redeemed—for at the edge of the launde an oldie man shall meet them with the same shoes that were given by the partie when he was lyving, and, after he had shodde them, dismiseth them to go through thick and thin without scratch or scalle."

This must be a very agreeable reflection to all gentlemen who have bestowed their old boots on their valets, or ladies who have in like fashion gifted their maids. To be sure the legend specifies new shoes, but surely a pair of '88 boots only half worn counts for as much as a new pair of $2.50 chausures. However, if one is to go "through thick and thin without scratch or scalle," it may be just as well to be on the safe side and give away a good, new, extra stout pair.—New York Tribune.

A Coffee Pill.

Take a pill from your pocket, drop it in a cup of hot water and in the twinkling of an eye have coffee as black as your hat and as strong as a team of Percherons.

That sounds like an apocryphal tale, but it is true. This new preparation of caffeine, which is to do away with all the boiling and clarifying and fuss which make the coffee barely worth while, has just been discovered by two German chemists. If their expectations are realized, the making of coffee will be simply the matter of a compound pellet containing the coffee ingredients, along with the milk and sugar.

This is only one of the almost incredible triumphs of German chemistry, which has already produced a quinine which cannot be distinguished, so far as therapeutic quality goes, from the original article.—New York Journal.

BUZZARD AND WOODCHUCK.

Pennsylvania Farmers Welcome the One and Dread the Other.

The slow sailing turkey buzzard and the burrowing woodchuck are creatures that haunt every Chester county farm. The visitations of the former are encouraged, those of the later made subject for imprecation, and meanwhile both increase and multiply. Up in Bucks county, not more than 30 miles distant from Chester, the buzzard and the woodchuck are comparatively unknown, and the farmer goes about his business from one year's end to the other without a glimpse of either, so hard and fast are the lines which restrict their habitats.

About two years ago a woodchuck did stray into Bucks from somewhere and was caught by a farmer named Detweiler, living a few miles north of Doylestown. Its captor could not name it. Neither could his neighbors. Getting an idea that the little animal was of some rare species, Detweiler took it to the express office to send it to the zoo. He was saved the trouble by a man familiar with woodchucks, who happened to see it in the box ready for shipment.

Buzzards are seen somewhat more frequently, especially in the lower end of the county. They never, however, appear in any numbers. The carrion they crave is seldom left unburied, and there is nothing to attract them. The ground as a rule is level, not affording the deserted, rocky spots in which they build their nests. It is a rare thing to see one of the big birds in its smooth, graceful flight and still rarer to find one that has alighted.

Not many miles to the south is the border line beyond which buzzards are so common that they attract no attention. That they do not drift over is remarkable, considering that they can and often do fly a couple of hundred miles in a day. The Chester county farmer and his neighbor in Delaware county accept their presence as a matter of course and even look upon them as a necessity for doing scavenger duty. The horse, cow or pig that dies on the farm is hauled out into a field, where in a few days only a skeleton is left to show that the buzzards have performed their office. Flocks of several hundred join in the feast on a single animal and when stuffed to repletion stay lazily around in the vicinity for the best part of a week until the effects of their gluttony wear off. However repulsive they may appear, they are not distasteful, for their services are really valuable, and people see to it that the law which protects them is rigidly enforced.

The scent, eyesight or instinct, whatever it may be, that draws them to the place where carrion is exposed is wonderfully developed. Within an hour or two from the time when a body is put out, though there may not be a buzzard in sight, they appear from all directions, circling round and round and gradually drawing nearer. They never hurry, but settle slowly down on the spot. To those first arrived others are constantly added until the carcass is no more.

The other habitue of Chester county, the woodchuck, seems out of place there. His family is seldom encountered so far south except in mountainous districts, but the big hills in Chester give him a refuge. As the soil is cultivated he gains a firmer hold and revels in the clover fields. Attempts to drive him out are fruitless, for he glides into his burrow at the mere suspicion of danger. In the country between Chester and Northampton counties he is little known, but northward from the upper Delaware hills his domain extends into and throughout New England.—Philadelphia Record.

Just a Slight Mistake.

Pretty Mrs. Brown was wedded to her second husband and had a peculiar way of talking about her first and her second in the same breath, which was confusing to her listeners as well as to herself. One day she planned a birthday party as a surprise to Tom (her second).

About an hour before the guests were to assemble to celebrate Tom's birthday she could contain herself no longer and confided the secret to him. A troubled look stole over his face, and he seemed greatly distressed to dampen her enthusiasm, but upon her questioning him as to his seeming distress he answered: "Why, my dear, this is Dick's birthday, not mine."

In nearly every town in these United States, where a newspaper is published, the business men take pride in helping to maintain the only method they have to place before the people in the best light possible, that the town they live in is in existence. Since the advent of the HERALD in this place, it has put forth its best efforts to convince the public at large that this is the most desirable spot on the earth to spend a summer, that it has environments far superior to any other place in the world which are both pleasing and fascinating to every stranger that visits our city, and that it only takes energy and "snap" on the part of our business men to make this one of the most flourishing and enterprising towns in the state. What can bring about this desired result? Advertising, or in other words the free use of printers ink. But to the contrary we find that a great majority of our business men write their business letters upon blank paper when in reality, every letter sent from this place should be an advertisement, and every envelope should have upon its surface a card extolling the beauties of this place. What encouragement has a publisher of a newspaper to uphold a town and work for its advancement in a commercial sense, when the very men who should stand by their home paper sit idly by and let the golden opportunity pass which would not only benefit them but the community. Get up and "dust" should be the motto. "A board of progression" should be organized, and committees appointed to look after the advertising end of the concern, and instead of sitting around crying hard times and writing letter on blank paper, place before the world the fact that Culver is "the one and only place on earth" to enjoy a vacation of recreation and pleasure. Your home paper realizes the necessity of this, and knows if the business men unite as one man and work for it, and stand for it with "bull-dog" tenacity, the Nickel Plate will yet coalesce with this place. "I can't" never accomplished anything, and it never will.

In nearly every town in these United States, where a newspaper is published, the business men take pride in helping to maintain the only method they have to place before the people in the best light possible, that the town they live in is in existence. Since the advent of the HERALD in this place, it has put forth its best efforts to convince the public at large that this is the most desirable spot on the earth to spend a summer, that it has environments far superior to any other place in the world which are both pleasing and fascinating to every stranger that visits our city, and that it only takes energy and "snap" on the part of our business men to make this one of the most flourishing and enterprising towns in the state. What can bring about this desired result? Advertising, or in other words the free use of printers ink. But to the contrary we find that a great majority of our business men write their business letters upon blank paper when in reality, every letter sent from this place should be an advertisement, and every envelope should have upon its surface a card extolling the beauties of this place. What encouragement has a publisher of a newspaper to uphold a town and work for its advancement in a commercial sense, when the very men who should stand by their home paper sit idly by and let the golden opportunity pass which would not only benefit them but the community. Get up and "dust" should be the motto. "A board of progression" should be organized, and committees appointed to look after the advertising end of the concern, and instead of sitting around crying hard times and writing letter on blank paper, place before the world the fact that Culver is "the one and only place on earth" to enjoy a vacation of recreation and pleasure. Your home paper realizes the necessity of this, and knows if the business men unite as one man and work for it, and stand for it with "bull-dog" tenacity, the Nickel Plate will yet coalesce with this place. "I can't" never accomplished anything, and it never will.

hence, owing to the discontinuation of the ranks of the Grand Army by death, it will be difficult to maintain the organization of many Indiana posts.

The department commander and the assistant adjutant-general visited during the past year, more than 100 post meetings, and they urge a continuance of this custom on the part of the incoming officials. The problem of reclaiming members who have dropped from the ranks is only to be solved by urgent, personal appeal.

There has been issued during the year ten general orders and fifty-five dispensations; $4,084 has been spent for relief, and eight posts have been organized. There has been a loss of 17 posts, and there were 19,439 members in good standing Dec. 31, 1896, while on the same date in 1895, there were 20,952. The total losses by death in 1896 were 394; by transfer, 685; by suspension, 2,177; and by honorable discharge, 75.

Wild Camp at Culver.

It is stated that when the State Military authorities announced that there could be no encampment of the Indiana militia this year the most of the companies were disappointed. A few have asked permission to go into individual camp, among them, company H. of Indianapolis. H. H. Culver, of St. Louis, Mo., founder of the Culver Military academy at Lake Maxenkuckee has offered Capt. Tarlton the use of the camp grounds, a 600 yard range, the academy gymnasium and other conveniences and the company will go into camp about the middle of June. —Goshen News.

Tenant Officers.

The State board of education was in session at Indianapolis last Friday to consider the new compulsory education law and provide for the appointment of 450 tenant officers which are provided for in the bill.

More than 1,000 persons have applied for positions as tenant officers, and the board will appoint a committee of its members to go over the list and make selection for the various counties and cities.

Figures submitted to the board by the superintendent of public instruction show that there are 789,917 school children in the state, and of this number 529,345 were enrolled in the schools last year, while the daily attendance was only 329,015. It was thus shown that 250,000 children of school age did not enter the schools at all, and of those enrolled 147,000 were absent every day.

MAKING A BIG TUNNEL

THE MANY PERILS AND DIFFICULTIES ENCOUNTERED.

Great Eight-Foot Water Carrier Now Being Built Under the City of Chicago—How Life Is Sustained and Rocks Drilled by Compressed Air.

Beneath a Big City.

The construction of one of those great water tunnels under a city, such as Chicago, is a work replete with difficulties and dangers almost beyond the comprehension of those who have not inspected one of these immense water carriers. Such a task as delving 100 feet under the streets of the metropolis, cutting an immense eight-foot bore four miles across to the lake, blasting away tons and tons of rock and sticky clay, is one that calls for the exercise of patience, courage and endurance of no ordinary character. Under the cables, under the big sky-scrappers, half a hundred men are now at work, day and night, dependent for air on a ten-inch pipe running to the surface far overhead, and, should the engine break or the shaft cave in, the result may be imagined.

Descent is made into the tunnel proper on an elevator at the shafthouse at the land end of the tunnel. A gong clangs and a wet, slimy car shoots up from the black depths of the shaft. The bell clangs twice and the man at the engine throws a lever. Down, down, down goes the little car into the round shaft. For twenty feet the light from above shows it to be lined with the shore before the last blast, which has loosened the rock scattered around. As soon as the trimmers cart away the stone and debris, the bricklayers extend the wall. In this way progress, slow but steady, is made every day.

At 7 o'clock every morning the miners descend the long shaft and start to work. Half a dozen holes are drilled in the rock and one-quarter-pound sticks of dynamite inserted. When everything is clear and the workmen have retreated to a safe distance the charge is fired by electricity and the masses of rock come tumbling down from the "face," sometimes blocking the entire bore, while a great cloud of smoke drifts lazily through the tunnel toward the shaft where it can escape to the upper air. As soon as the explosion is over the miners and other workmen climb over the rough rock and begin filling the little cars which are hauled by solemn burros on the tiny track to the elevator. Another set of holes is drilled and another shot is fired.

The drills work by compressed air power, the same plan as that in effect on the drainage canal being employed. Up above in the shafthouse where all the machinery of the plant is located an engine pumps the air into a big compressor from which it is sent in stout pipes to the drills.

The men who work these drills are experts, and do their work quickly and systematically. Others, with little or no clothing on, toil desperately with sharp adzes, swinging them against the clay, loosening it bit by bit, and as each man strikes at the tough, unyielding mass before him he grunts deeply as men do who are chopping down trees. Just as steadily as the adzes fall against the wall of clay comes the deep, rhythmical grunts from the toilers. Just behind them three more men work filling the cars with the chunks of clay which fall away before the adzes. The work is so hard and the clay so tenacious that the men can work at chopping it but fifteen minutes at a stretch, when they fall back and give way to the other gang.

And this is after the clay has been blasted, for dynamite is used on both clay and rock in this tunnel. Four sticks of dynamite at a shot are used on the clay and three or four shots a day or made. After the explosion the men attack the loosened wall with the adzes and thus slowly and laboriously tunnel their way ahead about twenty-four feet a day. At night the bricklayers come and brick up as much more

CRISP FORMS OF THOUGHT.

SOLOMON AND TUPPER TWISTED TO SUIT A MODERN TRADE.

The Wisdom of the Sages and the Wit of the Masses, Even the Work of the Missionaries, Are Grist in the Mill—They Are Poached Upon by Authors and Advertisers.

Whether Solomon invented all his proverbs, or gathered them from many sources with a nicer sense of permanent worth than Mr. Tupper exercised in his later compendium, is and ever will be an open question. Solomon's copyright ran out long before Tupper's time, and both are now poached upon with impunity by all classes, from authors to advertisers. But, taken by themselves, proverbs well repay careful study. Students of ethnology find in the proverbs of the different races the clearest proofs of their real characteristics, for they are the shrewdest and yet most intimate expressions of their daily life.

Judged by the comparison of these homely sayings, it will be found that all nations are of one kindred, possessing common needs, common aspirations, and seeking similar reliefs from toil and labor. On the dustiest shelves of our libraries may be found collections of all the proverbs of the different nations, quite a large proportion of the work having resulted from the interest which missionaries have taken in their earnest studies of the uncivilized peoples whom they seek to instruct. That the shrewd sayings of the Scotch or the bright wits of the Irish should be carefully collected gives little cause for surprise; but a collection of Abyssinian proverbs, of those of the Tamil language, of Icelandic lore, of the Sanscrit, South Sea Islands, Chinese, and Hottentot Solomons does excite curiosity. The missionaries have found it a pleasant as well as a profitable task. It delves deep into the idioms of the language, tells with unerring accuracy the mental tendency of the people, and by introducing the foreigner into the inner thought of both home and trade shows him the real life of those who adopt them as every-day expressions.

It is impossible to read the well-collected proverbs of the Chinese without realizing that a home life exists in that flowery kingdom which rivals that of many more civilized countries. No Solomon, no descendant of Abraham, could eclipse the trade proverbs of the Chinese. They touch on trade with a keenness and thoroughness which proves them to be masters in that school. The baser life of the Hottentot, the loose morals of the fellah, the independent spirit of the Briton, are all crystallized in their national proverbs.

In England and many other countries it was formerly very usual for a tradesman to select some proverb as his motto, and thus post his principles plainly over his shop door. It remained, however, for an American house to appropriate the proverbs of the world en masse and use them for their own advancement. New Yorkers who ride on the elevated roads, or people who in less favored localities still jog along in the slow street cars, are familiar with the blue and white proverbs which proclaim the merits of Sapolio to the world. Every omnibus in London and almost every "tram car" in England is similarly adorned.

They made their first appearance on the Broadway omnibuses, were gathered out of over 4,000 pages of the world's collections, and twisted to suit the case. Many of them are beyond easy recognition in their new dress, many are entirely original, but these are also printed between inverted commas, which lends a glamour of antiquity to them. To-day we are told that over 20,000 of these blue cards are displayed in public conveyances carrying over 6,000,000 passengers daily.

Condensed thought generally requires padding to make it intelligible to the masses, just as the stomach of the horse must be distended with hay to make the oats digest readily; but with proverbs it is quite otherwise. Their popularity is only reached because they have passed muster as being clear to every mind. They tell their story with a directness and brevity which pleases the public, as the dictionary did the old Scotch woman—"They air braw stories," she said, "but unc' short." Turned to tell the practical story of Sapolio, they often acquire new interest. Who reads the advice, "Be patient and you will have patient children," without an innate respect for the advice which follows, not to fret over house cleaning, but do it easily with Sapolio? And who can repress a smile when the Sapolionic artist pictures the patient father and the impatient twins defying the proverb? But the mother will be back sooner if she follow the advice. Our familiar "The pot calls the kettle black" takes a new interest in its Italian form. The pot says to the pan, "Keep off or you'll smutch me." The universal toil of the world finds expression in the Catalan phrase, "Where wilt thou go, Ox, that thou wilt not plough?" Almost all nations possess a proverb which declares that "if you forbid a fool a thing, that he will do," and with confidence in the good will of the public the advertiser of Sapolio puts it in this form:

"Forbid a fool a thing and that he will do." So we say for variety: "Don't use Sapolio—but then you're not a fool."

"A touch of nature which makes all the world akin" springs out of the quaint thought that "A needle, though naked itself, clothes others." Who can hear it once and ever see a needle without recalling it? Who fails to recognize the picture it suggests of the aid given to the poor by the poor, and of the help which is everywhere gained from the humblest of assistants?

What can be more practical than the statement that "a handsaw is a good thing, but not to shave with," which naturally suggests the proper use of Sapolio. Slang never can be confounded with proverbial phrases. It seems universal, but it is merely a local form used to express a transient but popular idea. Years ago, when a general rush at hotel keeping resulted in many failures, the slang ran: "He's a very good man, but he can't keep a hotel." All such phrases are local and temporary. They do not survive—indeed, rarely possess merit enough to reach a second year without evident decline in popularity. We have noticed that none of the advertisements of Sapolio make use of slang, and probably for this reason.

Naturally many of the best proverbs used in this connection relate to household cleanliness, and all the original ones are framed to that end. "Dirt in the house builds the highway to beggary," deserves recognition, despite its origin. Household sayings, in the sense of four-walled buildings full of furniture, are quite lacking in many Eastern tongues. We believe that no reference to clean housekeeping can be found in the Koran or even in the Bible, except that of the woman who swept the house to find her lost coin. Shakespeare rather slights the subject, but whether because it was not deemed important in that intellectual but dirty age or because he soared to grander things, we will not discuss, but the England of today well says of home, "The cleaner 'tis the easier 'tis," and our American advertiser improves the opportunity to add that humble homes made bright with Sapolio are better than tawdry palaces. Alas, for the thoughtlessness of the man who forgot to ask whether his bride used Sapolio. The Scotch proverb records his case: "Ye hae tied a knot wi' your tongue ye winna loose wi' your teeth."

Portrait on His Hand.

In 1891 or 1892, if my memory is not at fault, the eighth wonder of the world was born at Roseberg, S. C. The freak in question was a baby, born into the family of Clark Osborn, a well known merchant of the town above, and the oddity was a natural portrait in the hand of the little one. Those who made a critical examination of the baby's hand as soon as the curiosity was discovered say that the portrait on the tiny palm was that of a child apparently about 3 years old. The features were clear cut and distinct and appeared to be those of a child lying sound asleep. The delicately tinted lips were partly open, showing four pearly teeth; the eyes were tightly closed and the cheeks were full, red and natural.

When the mother first discovered the miraculous imprint on her new-born darling's hand she fainted, owing partly, it is said, to the fact that the portrait was an excellent likeness of the face of her little 3-year-old daughter, who died about two months before.

No Suiting Them.

"Yes, my eldest daughter married for money," said the mother, with a sigh. "She is happy, of course?" "Far from it. While she has everything one could wish for, she is far from being happy. She loved another." "Your second daughter also married, did she not?" "Yes, she married a man for his good looks." "I suppose she is happy." "Indeed, she is not. While her husband is a good provider, he can't afford to give her what her eldest sister receives, and consequently, she is unhappy." "And your youngest daughter, the one I always thought so much of, is she married?" "Yes, she married a man for love." "Ah, sensible little girl!" "But her husband is very poor!" "Still, with all her poverty, she loves the man of her choice, and is, of course, happy?" "No, indeed. She is the unhappiest of the three."

Mr. J. Clayton, in a communication to Nature, refers to careful measurements he has made with sycamore, elm, oak, ash and beech trees, from which he has discovered that they all contract in girth during a frost.

RECORD OF THE WEEK

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Historic Apple Tree Still Hale and Hearty—Sues for Divorce on Her Golden-Wedding Day—Robbers Despoil a Railroad Ticket Office.

Apple Tree with a History.

Mrs. Sarah Kincaid, living near Neff's Corner, is the owner of the oldest fruit tree in Rush County; in fact, the oldest tree of any kind in the county planted by human hand of which there is a record. The apple is a greening, and is a seedling. It was planted in 1817 by some of the ancestors of Mrs. Kincaid. They were passing through this section from Kentucky and camped on this spot. The tree is now eighty years old. It is now almost ten feet in circumference at the base and is over fifty feet high. It shades sufficient ground in summertime for a colored camp meeting. The tree has never once failed to bear a crop of apples since it first bore fruit. In the days of slavery agitation several political meetings were held in this apple grove and under this patriarchal apple tree. It is said that meetings of the Knights of the Golden Circle were also held there during the war. Thomas Bright, a farm laborer, committed suicide by hanging himself to the branches of this old tree. The family intends to let the tree stand as long as nature wills it should.

Masked Men Rob a Railway Station.

Night Operator James McDonough, at Grangers, was held up by three masked men Sunday morning about 1 o'clock. One of the robbers held the operator and two waiting passengers, at the point of a revolver, while the other two drilled the safe and blew it open, securing $75, but overlooked $64, which they scattered on the floor with other papers. They then marched the operator and passengers to a box car and locked them in. The robbers had stolen a hand car from Mishawaka on which they returned about half way back to Mishawaka at a road crossing, where a team was waiting, thus making their escape. This is similar to a hold-up at Mishawaka about three weeks ago, when they secured about $10 from the operator and locked him in a car.

Strange Marital Anniversary.

Mrs. Katherine Cronan, of Crawfordsville, celebrated her golden wedding anniversary by filing suit for divorce against her husband, Cornelius Cronan, to whom she was married fifty years ago in England. The complaint was drawn up by her lawyer in March, but was by her orders withheld until the fiftieth anniversary of the wedding. She alleges that her husband imprisoned her for two days in a dark closet without food in an endeavor to force her to deed him an interest in her fine farm. Cronan had deeded the farm to his wife several years ago, when he feared certain judgments, and when he was clear of them his wife refused to let go the property.

All Over the State.

The trial of John Pinkerton, of St. Joseph County, has been taken to La Porte on a change of venue. The plea of self-defense will be advanced.

James Phillips, the original of Jeems Phillips in Edward Eggleston's "Hoosier Schoolmaster," has been stricken with paralysis at his home in Vevay. As he is 76 years of age, it is not expected that he will recover. It has been said that his was the only character in the book drawn from life.

One year ago the body of an unknown man who had been murdered was found in the river bottoms west of Shelbyville. Every effort possible was made to discover who the man was, without avail. The affair was finally forgotten, however, but was renewed Sunday, when Benjamin and Estle Platte, fishermen, came to the city with several hundred dollars' worth of fish. The fish was found near the scene of the murder. The find has created much excitement and the officers claim they will be able to solve the mystery.

The past few months August Busch, aged 77 years, and Anna Gathman, aged 79 years, have been paying considerable attention to each other, at Shelbyville, and a few days ago August proposed marriage and the old woman consented, but her children did not. The old folks were not to be outdone, however, and, when the pension voucher of Busch arrived, he quietly accompanied a friend to the clerk's office, procured a marriage license, sent for Mrs. Gathman and they were married. They will go to housekeeping on the large pension recently granted to Busch for total disability.

Dawson E. Barnes, one of the leading physicians of Indianapolis, went violently mad Wednesday. Last October he had an attack of melancholia, and his brother, Dr. Carl Barnes, was called from Chicago. Dr. Dawson Barnes was placed in a sanitarium, where he apparently recovered his health. He was brought home in December and has been living with his family since. Wednesday he became insane, and it required six men to overcome him. His legs were fastened with a strap, but the madman was so powerful that he snapped this easily. Finally he was handcuffed and taken to the police station.

The trustees of De Pauw University find that no more revenue can be secured from the De Pauw estate until its final settlement, which may not be for several years. Heretofore the institution has drawn $15,000 annually. Its expenses are $45,000, and unless the deposit can be met the college will be crippled financially. The trustees have, therefore, decided to look to the presiding elders of Indiana to raise this amount and a circular will be issued to each one apprising him of the amount he is expected to personally solicit. In point of attendance the institution was never more prosperous.

At La Grange the 7-year-old daughter of Frank Leard was fatally burned while playing near a bonfire.

THE SHAFTHOUSE AT HOYNE AVENUE AND WEST MADISON STREET

brick, and then darkness—thick, black darkness—supervenes. Little drops of water fall constantly upon the car and its passengers, but before a question can be asked the elevator is at the bottom, and there is the tunnel stretching away in both directions from the shaft. The big bore is eight feet in diameter, but this size is lessened by a floor which leaves about six feet of head of the bore as has been made by the miners during the day.

A constant current of fresh air is fed from a big fan in the shafthouse above. The compressed air for the drills is fed through a smaller pipe and other pipes bring water to the men and carry away the water which accumulates at the bottom of the shaft. The work on the stone has now progressed quite far, and while the residents overhead are peacefully sleeping the miners drill and blast far below them, slowly pushing their way forward. Everything is directed from the shafthouse, as is the case in a mine, and it is desirable to have the shafthouse as near as possible to the scene of the work. Therefore, it is moved from time to time and as soon as the west end of the present tunnel has progressed far enough another shaft will be sunk. All these shafts will be closed at the bottom before the water is turned into the tunnel and will be covered with a cap like a sewer cover. If at any time it is necessary to enter the tunnel the water can be turned off by gates at the branch, the tunnel pumped dry and men can enter by the shafts.

Another Barrier Broken.

Vienna University has accepted the inevitable and granted the degree of Doctor of Medicine for the first time to a woman, the Baroness Possaur von Ehrenthal, who recently was admitted to practice in Austria after passing the requisite state examination. She had received the degree from Zurich many years before.

HAULING DIRT IN THE TUNNEL.

Good Looks.

There are more wrinkles in the face of a baby monkey than there are in that of an old baboon. And speaking of wrinkles, more of them can be wrought out in a fair, young face by neuralgia than will be found in that of an aged person. Constant pain will shrivel, and neuralgia neglected will plow its furrows deep. It not only wrinkles, but takes the bloom away and gives the skin a dull and yellow look. St. Jacobs Oil is a prompt and sure cure for neuralgia, and it should be used, as while it soothes and cures, it smooths out the tracks of pain and leaves the skin healthy and fair again; besides it rids the sufferer of much torment and restores a happier disposition. Good looks come only with good health, and health is found in the absence of pain.

The Singer and the Critic.

"Horrible! abominable!" exclaimed the musical critic of the Daily Bread. "A singer who doesn't know any better than to render a love song as if it were the howl of a lost spirit deserves death!" And he got out of bed, raised the window, peered forth into the darkness, and threw a heavy paperweight with all his might at a miserable cat that was pouring out its soul in song on the backyard fence.

The Nervous Americans.

Americans are a fearfully nervous people. It takes less provocation to send the average American into a nervous spasm than any other person on earth. If there is a nation which should let stimulants alone we are the nation. Yet—to say nothing of liquor, as to which we are no worse than others—we are insatiable coffee drinkers. Yes, and the practice helps fill our hospitals and penitentiaries. Why not drop coffee and drink Grain-O instead? The latter does not act on the nerves, while it does nourish, warm, soothe, cheer and build up the body. It gives you what you need and does no harm. Prepared from pure grain. Try it and you won't go back to coffee. The whole family can drink Grain-O, at night, too, if you like—then sleep soundly. Ask your grocer for a package; 15c. or 25c. each.

Footgear in Japan.

One of the most striking sights that takes the attention of the traveler in Japan is that of the wooden sandals worn by the 35,000,000 people. These sandals have a separate compartment for the great toe and make a clanking noise on the street. Straw slippers are also worn, and a traveler starting out on a journey will strap a supply of them on his back, that he may put on a new pair when the old is worn out. They cost but a cent and a half a pair. They are rights and lefts and leave the foot free to the air. We never see those deformities of the foot in Japan which are so frequent in this country. They are never worn in the house, but left outside the door. Passing down the street you may see long rows of them at the doors, old and new, large and small.

Drunk for Twenty Years.

A correspondent writes: "I was drunk on and off for over twenty years, drunk when I had money, sober when I had none. Many dear friends I lost, and numbers gave me good advice to no purpose; but, thank God, an angel hand came at last in the form of my poor wife, who administered your marvelous remedy, 'Anti-Jag,' to me without my knowledge or consent. I am now saved and completely transformed from a worthless fellow to a sober and respected citizen."

If "Anti-Jag" cannot be had at your druggist, it will be mailed in plain wrapper with full directions how to give secretly, on receipt of One Dollar, by the Renova Chemical Co., 66 Broadway, New York, or they will gladly mail full particulars free.

How to Avoid Dry Room Headache.

To prevent the air in a furnace heated room from becoming unpleasantly dry place a bowl of water on the floor near the register, if possible just in front of it. As the water evaporates from the bowl, you watch the bowl, you perceive how much dry heat is coming up through the closed apparatus. This water bowl keeps the atmosphere much pleasanter than it would otherwise be in a room unventilated by an open fireplace, and by its use perhaps one can avoid the "dry throat" experienced by those who sit shut up in rooms heated by stove or furnace heat.

SENATE AND HOUSE.

WORK OF OUR NATIONAL LAW-MAKERS.

A Week's Proceedings in the Halls of Congress—Important Measures Discussed and Acted Upon—An Impartial Resume of the Business.

The National Solons.

On Monday Senator Pettigrew of South Dakota, at the head of the Senate conferees on the Indian appropriation bill, announced his intention to present the report of the conferees about 3 o'clock; but Mr. Morgan's Cuban debate held the floor until after 3 and then the Senate went into executive session and adjourned. The amendment to the Indian appropriation bill as proposed by Mr. Allen (Pop.) from Nebraska and adopted by the Senate was as follows: "That the Secretary of the Interior shall, within sixty days after the passage of this act, establish and thereafter maintain at the city of Omaha, in the State of Nebraska, a warehouse for Indian supplies, from which distribution shall be made to such Indian tribes of the West and Northwest as the Secretary of the Interior may direct." The House nonconcurrent in this proposition and appointed Sherman of New York, Curtis of Kansas, and Allen of Mississippi conferees. They, after conferring with Mr. Pettigrew and his Senate associates, agreed upon an amendment to the amendment which extended from sixty days to one year the time within which the Secretary of the Interior was to transfer the Indian distributing warehouse from Chicago to Omaha, and adding a proviso that the city of Omaha should furnish a suitable building for the purpose, free of cost, to the United States.

The Morgan resolution favoring recognition of Cuba was up in the Senate Tuesday. Senators Morrill and Caffery spoke in opposition. Senators Lodge and Foraker advocated deferring the question until further information could be secured from the State Department, and Senators Mills and Allen urged the immediate passage of the resolutions. The debate went over. During the day Senator Kyle, rising to a question of privilege, disclaimed having sought committee places from Republican Senators. A partial conference report on the Indian appropriation bill was agreed to. The consideration of the Senate amendments to the sundry civil appropriation bill was finished by the House and the bill sent to a conference. President Cleveland's forest reservation order was the subject of much debate, and the House voted not to concur in the Senate amendment to annul the order with the understanding that the conferees should arrange an amendment which would have the same effect.

In the Senate Wednesday the sugar investigation of 1894 was recalled by the introduction of a resolution by Mr. Allen of Nebraska reciting the circumstances of the investigation, the refusal of Elverton R. Chapman to testify, his conviction in the courts as a contumacious witness and the present efforts toward his pardon. The resolution proposes that Chapman be brought to the bar of the Senate to purge himself of contumacy as a prerequisite to pardon. Mr. Allen sought to secure immediate action on the resolution, but it went over on objections from Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire and Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts. Mr. Morgan of Alabama made a statement relative to his resolution on Cuba. He said the Committee on Foreign Relations had considered the question of referring the resolution to the committee and had not reached an agreement. The committee desired, however, that the resolution go over, with a view to having a statement of facts laid before the Senate; the resolution went over. A resolution by Mr. Butler of North Carolina requesting the President for information relative to the sale of the Union Pacific Railroad was presented and went over. The Senate bills for a public building at Deadwood, S. D., to cost $200,000 and one at Indianapolis, Ind., to cost $1,500,000 were passed. The immigration and the kinetoscope bills were reached, but went over on objection. The House did nothing.

The Indian appropriation bill was disposed of by the House Thursday, with the exception of the provision for opening the Utah gilsonite lands. The conference report, which establishes an Indian warehouse at Omaha, ratifies the lease of Seneca oil lands and adds one judicious Indian territory courts. A vote of 54 to 47, calm the Senate discussion.

TENNESSEE CENTENNIAL.

The Lowest Rates Ever Made to an Exposition in This Country.

The Exposition in commemoration of the hundredth anniversary of the admission of Tennessee into the Union is not a local affair by any means. It far surpasses in extent of buildings, beauty of grounds, interesting exhibits and number of both foreign and home attractions any exhibition ever held in this country, with the possible exception of the Columbian of 1893. Located as it is on the main line of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad it is in the direct line of travel between the North and South, and can be visited en route with loss of but little time. The extremely low rates that have been established make it cheaper to go a little out of your way, even to take in this great show, while its own attractions will well repay a special visit. Write Mr. C. P. Atmore, Gen'l Pass. Agent, Louisville, Ky., for matter concerning it.

Cheapest and Best.

Very few shooters load shot gun shells now that factory loaded shells can be bought so cheap. It is cheaper and easier to buy than to load shot shells, and there is no question that the machine loaded are better than the hand loaded. The shells loaded by the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., New Haven, Ct., are the standard of the world for reliability, uniformity and strong shooting qualities. They are used by all the best shots in preference to any others. Winchester loaded shells can be bought of all dealers in all gauges and loads. Results show them to be the best on the market. WHY SO MANY REGULAR PHYSICIANS FAIL

To Cure Female Ills—Some True Reasons Why Mrs. Pinkham is More Successful Than the Family Doctors

A woman is sick; some disease peculiar to her sex is fast developing in her system. She goes to her family physician and tells him a story, but not the whole story.

She holds something back, loses her head, becomes agitated, forgets what she wants to say, and finally conceals what she ought to have told, and thus completely mystifies the doctor.

Is it any wonder, therefore, that the doctor fails to cure the disease? Still, we cannot blame the woman, for it is very embarrassing to detail some of the symptoms of her suffering, even to her family physician.

It was for this reason that years ago Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., determined to step in and help her sex. Having had considerable experience in treating female ill with her Vegetable Compound, she encouraged the women of America to write to her for advice in regard to their complaints, and, being a woman, it was easy for her ailing sisters to pour into her ears every detail of their suffering.

In this way she was able to do for them what the physicians were unable to do, simply because she had the proper information to work upon, and from the little group of women who sought her advice years ago a great army of her fellow-beings are to-day constantly applying for advice and relief, and the fact that more than one hundred thousand of them have been successfully treated by Mrs. Pinkham during the last year is indicative of the grand results which are produced by her unequalled experience and training.

No physician in the world has had such a training, or has such an amount of information at hand to assist in the treatment of all kinds of female ill, from the simplest local irritation to the most complicated diseases of the womb.

This, therefore, is the reason why Mrs. Pinkham, in her laboratory at Lynn, Mass., is able to do more for the ailing women of America than the family physician. Any woman, therefore, is responsible for her own suffering who will not take the trouble to write to Mrs. Pinkham for advice.

The testimonials which we are constantly publishing from grateful women establish beyond a doubt the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound to conquer female diseases.
