CHICAGO'S MURDER TRIAL DRAGS ALONG.

Case of Sausagemaker Luetgert Is Far from Being Ended Shotgun Quarantine in Texas Irrigation Congress Meets-Government Report on Crops.

End Is Not Near.

The beginning of the sixth week of the Luetgert trial in Chicago brought to the court room a large and more heterogeneous crowd than usual. Long before the court room doors were open, men, women and children surged about the main entrance of the criminal court building and made violent efforts to get in. Policemen and court bailiffs on duty at the doors had much difficulty in handling the crowds and admitting those with tickets. The State's Attorney's office was overrun by people who importuned Assistant State's Attorney McEwen for passes. State's Attorney Deneen and Assistant State's Attorney McEwen avoided the solicitations only by locking themselves in the State's Attorney's private office, where they consulted for half an hour with Police Inspector Schaack and Police Captain Schuettler.

Juror William Harler was called upon to act as interpreter. Mrs. Koch said she had known Mrs. Luetgert for eleven years and had lived near her most of this time. She saw and talked with Mrs. Luetgert the last week in April. Mrs. Luetgert was depressed and talked about going away. She told the witness, according to the statement of the latter, that Luetgert had been swindled by a man who had promised to pay a big sum for an interest in the sausage factory. Luetgert had let the man have a large amount of money and the man had run away. This evidence was in support of the statement of ex-Judge Vincent at the opening of the trial to the effect that a promoter had swindled Luetgert out of $25,000 and that this was the beginning of the troubles of the sausage maker. Other witnesses testified along this line.

William Charles, Luetgert's partner, testified that the caustic soda taken to the basement of the sausage factory in March was brought there for the purpose of cleaning the establishment. Several barrels of tallow and a barrel of chipped bones were emptied into the middle vat to make soft soap, according to the wit-

SUFFERINGS OF GOLD SEEKERS.

There is terrible suffering on the Skaguay and Dyea trails in consequence of winter's setting in. The rainstorm that prevailed there last week was extremely severe upon the gold seekers, who were scattered along the way. The storms have destroyed their provisions and many are left with scarcely enough dry food for another meal and without money to return home. Passengers who arrived in Tacoma on the City of Seattle Sunday morning estimate that there are from 600 to 1,000 men on the two trails who have not the means to purchase tickets back to Puget sound. Their statements are corroborated by letters received by the same steamer. A small number of these men may find work at Skaguay, but for the great majority there will be nothing to do for months. Many of them are poorly equipped to stand the weather even now prevailing, which ranges from constant rain on the coast to ice and snow on the summit.

Skaguay river is a raging stream no longer fordable, and wherever there is any soil, the mud is now knee deep. Men who returned to Skaguay just before the storm found many of their fellows who broke down and wept as they related the story of their misfortunes. An old man named Henshaw and his son had a large outfit two-thirds of the way over Lake Bennett, when their five horses were poisoned by wild parsnips on the meadows beyond the summit of Skaguay trail and died. Henshaw had but a few dollars left, and could neither buy more horses nor pack his outfit to the lake. Early last week the two were in despair, and the storm which followed spoiled their provisions, besides leaving them blockaded. The difficult situation of those at Dyea and Skaguay is emphasized by the fact that those who had enough money to buy passage home on the City of Seattle consider themselves very lucky, even though they have lost $200 to $500 each and forty to sixty days'

An immense quantity of provisions has been destroyed by the storms. The men who arrived home say that flour, bacon, beans, apples and dried fruits may be seen scattered along both trails between the coast and the summit. Two men from California worked hard packing their outfits over, but at the end of six weeks they gave up on the summit. The rain had already destroyed part of their provisions.

Of two dozen men who engaged in the packing business on the Skaguay trail only George L. Rice made any money. He was there when the rush began and is now running two saloons and gambling places at the summit and at Skaguay. Two men have succeeded in running cables across the Skaguay river where the bridge was washed out. They are making $45 a day ferrying people across.

Hold Up a Northern Pacific Passenger Crew in Minnesota.

The Northern Pacific passenger from the east was held up and robbed at 2 o'clock Sunday morning about three miles east of Moorhead, Minn. The engine and mail car came in alone and the engineer reported that he had been compelled to leave the rest of the train.

The robbery was the coolest piece of criminal work in the history of the valley. Engineer Hooker, just after pulling out of Glyndon, noticed a masked man on the front platform of the mail car. A few moments later the man climbed over the tender of the engine under cover of two revolvers. He compelled the engineer to stop the train, threatening to shoot if he refused.

Several minutes afterward three other masked men came to the front end of the train with Conductor Corcoran and a brakeman. All were compelled to mount the engine and Engineer Hooker was ordered to open the throttle.

The men with revolvers sat on the end of the tender and with the weapons levdentials. Gov. Hol- eled urged the engineer to increase the | Contentment He Thought to Be Better | speed. Not until the train reached Moorhead was it known to the crew that the engine and mail car had been cut off from the other section of the train. The holdup was not profitable to the robbers. They had evidently intended to take the express car, but did not cut deep enough in the train. When a stop was made to secure the plunder the leader of the gang discovered the mistake, and finding that they had left the express car behind, the robbers ordered the mail men out of the car and went through the mail.

to Be Killed. Col. Berriz, for whom Evangelina Cossio is in jail, ordered several prisoners to be macheted near Bejucal. Among them is the son of Gen. Diego. Baldomero Acosta, the Cuban leader, is in the field and has not been captured, as was claimed. The story was that Acosta was taken Friday, just as the American steamer Concho was leaving Havana harbor. The police inspector of vessels, under orders from the chief of police of Havana, boarded the boat, and, it was claimed, placed the insurgent captain under arrest. Acosta, it was said, entered Havana in disguise last week, suffering from a serious illness. The Cuban captain and his wife were evidently trying to reach the Mexican shore. The story is denied.

Forty insurgents entered Luyano, two miles from Havana, captured a number of cattle and sacked several stores. Juano Delgado has attacked San Antonio Banos, in Havana province, and captured arms, oxen, etc. No resistance was made by the Spaniards, Misses Adaola and Dolores la Peyre, daughters of a respectable family, have been placed under arrest. It is claimed their father is a member of the insurgent government.

than Riches. Joe was an old fisherman, who lived on an island off the southern coast, where he served as a guide and manof-all-work to summer visitors. A year or two ago several young men, sons of rich New York merchants, who had been fishing and shooting under Joe's guidance, brought him to the city. Kindness and the desire to surprise the old man prompted the boys' act.

Joe, however, wa'ked quietly about in his clean homespun suit, manifesting little surprise and less admiration.

"Now, Joe," said one of the boys, nettled by his calmness, "tell me candidly what you think of New York. Isn't it grand?"

"It 'pears too shut in for to call it that," the old fisherman said, reluctantly, unwilling to be ungrateful or uncivil. "My cabin has all outdoors behind it, an' the sea in front. Thet's what I call grand."

"Oh, certainly. But wouldn't you like to give up your drudgery and live as New-Yorkers do?"

"No," said Joe, thoughtfully. "'Tain't as easy livin' here. Your uncle sets in his bank all day, an' your father in court, an' I set in my boat. They fish for men, an' I fish for mackerel. They hev to study an' fret to catch their fish. I don't."

"Well," said the boy, discomfited, "wouldn't you like your wife to live in a house like this?" glancing around the stately rooms filled with costly draperies and bric-a-brac.

"No!" said Joe, laughing, "Jane scrubs our two rooms an' cleans them up, an' then she sets an' rests, or has some fun. She never'd finish keepin' this house tidy."

"That's a good sermon you've preached to me," the lad said, laughing.

"I wasn't aweer I was preachin'," Joe said, anxiously.

Air Limits Bicycle Speed.

Were it not for the resistance of the air, the cyclist would be able to attain almost incredible speed, so greatly has the modern maker reduced the resistance due merely to the friction of the machine. A man who can drive his machine under present conditions through the air at, say, thirty miles an hour would, if road and machine resistance only had to be met, be able to drive at three hundred and thirty miles an hour, or if he can actually go twenty miles an hour, he would be able to drive his machine one hundred miles an hour. This shows the very essential part that pace-making plays in the cycle race. A long machine, with half a dozen riders "Oh, my mother has plenty of ser- upon it, or an autocar just in front of the racer, makes such a draught as ma-"Yes. appeared upon the bench. Mary Siemering, the servant girl, whose cross-examination was in progress Saturday when court adjourned, was called. Around this witness, according to the theory of the prosecution, the motive for the alleged murder of Mrs. Louise Luetgert centers. Luetgert's infatuation for his pretty servant girl is claimed by the prosecution to have been the instilling motive to this celebrated crime. When she went on the witness stand to again endure, as she supposed, the cross-examination of State's Attorney Deneen, Mary Siemering appeared composed and defiant. Her cheeks were flushed, which indicated apparently some mental excitement, but the young woman, it was evident, had made up her mind to control her feelings, and not permit the State's Attorney to confuse her. His cross-examination was not severe. "Did you not say before the grand jury that Mrs. Luetgert was a good and kind mother?" asked Mr. McEwen.

"I did," confessed the witness. "Now you say she beat her children and was cross with them?"

"When I went to the grand jury room to testify Inspector Schaack was there. He told me if I did not say what I did he would punish me," said the witness.

The photographs which were identified by witnesses from Kenosha withe handed to the witness and she identified them. The picture which included Mrs. Luetgert and her two children was taken two years ago, the witness said. Several questions of an impeaching character were asked and Mary Siemering was excused. She left the witness stand with a smile and took a seat within the inclosure and remained to listen to other witnesses.

Jacob Melber of Wheaton, Ill., testified | Past Week Has Been Too Dry for Fal lowing and Seeding.

The weekly crop bulletin of the Agricultural Department says:

Except on the Atlantic coast, where rains have fallen, the week has been exceptionally dry, and upon the whole very favorable for maturing and gathering crops. Like the preceding weeks, however, it has been very unfavorable for the Charles Boehnke, who had worked for germination of sown grain, as well as for

The Blues.

This is a synonym for that gloomy, harassed condition of the mind which has its origin in dyspepsia. All the ugly spirits that, under the name of the "blues," "blue devils," "megrims" and "mulligrubs" torment the dyspeptic almost ceaselessly, vanish when attacked with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, that, moreover, annihilates biliousness, constipation, chills and fever, kidney complaints and nervousness.

Quick and Witty.

Lord Young is said to be one of the ablest Scotchmen on the bench or at the bar. At least, he has a ready tongue. One day in September he was driving into town from his place in the country when he met an acquaintance.

"Hallo!" said the latter, "what are you doing here? I thought all respectable people were out of town."

"Well," said the other, "have you seen anything to make you alter your opinion? I haven't."

At the time of the general election of 1892, he was visiting at Dalmeny House, and the report came that Lord Wolmer, now the Earl of Selborne, had been returned for the Western Division by a majority of three, over Mr. T. R. Buchanan. Soon after some one came in and said that Lord - and Lord - had voted for Wolmer.

"Ah," said Young, "that accounts for the two ciphers."

Jim and John.

Jim and John were townsmen and chums, and went out to see base-ball. It was a red-hot afternoon, and the bleachers were like frying pans at breakfast time. Jim had a bald head and John had a crick in the back. They sat for an underdone roast and laughed at everything. Jim's bald spot was a shining mark, like a brass door-plate. A stray ball, fierce and sharp, from a false bat, struck the spot and ploughed a furrow. It dazed him. Jim's eyes and face looked like a sick owl's, and forehead. John laughed. He laughed an hour straight along. The game ran late into his coat, and a cool, damp draft got in Its work on his back. The time came te leave, but John couldn't. He couldn't bend or get up. Lumbage had set in in its worst form. He laughs best whe laughs last, and Jim had revenge. But they got down town to Jim's room, when he said: "Here's something all those athletes use for hurts and allments, and it's the best known cure for lame back." He rubbed it on John's back and some on his own head. They were both feeling cured and comfortable from the use of St. Jacobs Oil, which Jim always kept in a handy place. He was a sport himself and knew what was best. They went to bed. John laughed in his sleep. Both rose in the morning fresh as daisles. Then Jim laughed at John.

NEGLECT IS SUICIDE.

Plain Words From Mrs. Pinkham, Corroborated by Mrs. Charles Dunmore, That Ought to Bring Suffering Women to Their Senses.

If you were drowning and friendly hands shoved a plank to you, and you refused it, you would be committing suicide! Yet that is precisely what women are doing if they go about their homes almost dead with misery, yet refuse to grasp the kindly hand held out to them! It is suicidal to go day after day with that dull, constant pain in the region of the womb and that bloating heat and tenderness of the abdomen, which make the weight of your clothes an almost intolerable burden to you. It is not natural to suffer so in merely emptying the bladder. Does not that special form of suffering tell you that there is inflammation somewhere?

Shall I tell you what it is? It is inflammation of the womb!

If it goes on, polypus, or tumor, or cancer will set in. Commence the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands of women in this condition have been cured by it. Keep your bowels open with Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and if you want further advice, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., stating freely all your symptoms-she stands ready and willing to give you the very best advice. MRS. CHARLES DUNMORE, 102 Fremont St., Winter Hill, Somerville, Mass., says: "I was in pain day and night; my doctor did not seem to help me. I could not seem to find any relief until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had inflammation of the womb, a bearing-down pain, and the whites very badly. The pain was so intense that I could not sleep at night. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for eight (months. and am now all right. Before that I took morphine pills for my pain; that was a great mistake, for the relief was only momentary and the effect vile. Terrible Tragedy Is Enacted in an Iowa Farmer's Home.

John Becker, aged 44 years, attended services at the church in Breda, Carroll County, Iowa, Sunday afternoon with his wife and eldest daughter, spent the evening brooding over some financial affairs, although he was a wealthy farmer, as farm wealth goes, and some time in the night shot and killed his wife, his six little children and himself.

Becker was to help a neighbor thrash Monday morning, and on not putting in an appearance about 9 o'clock his brother Henry, who lives with the old folks about twenty rods away, went to learn the reason. The doors were locked and there were no signs of life about. He tried to get in the house, but met no response and finally he kicked in the door and found the dead bodies.

Becker with his wife and baby slept in a back room, and the three corpses lay on one bed. The wife had been shot in the neck with a shotgun, which stood in the corner. The baby had been shot and its head crushed with the butt of a revolver. The man was still breathing and had a bullet hole high up on the forehead and by his side was a revolver, two chambers

Upstairs Henry, aged 8, and Lizzie, aged 6, lay on a bed with bullet holes in their foreheads, the latter dead, the boy still breathing, and in the opposite corner of the same room Caroline, aged 14; Christine, aged 9, and John, 3, were dead, each with a bullet hole in the forehead.

The indications are that Becker first dispatched his wife with the shot gun, shooting her in the neck, then used the revolver on the baby, first shooting, then knocking out its brains with the butt. He then went upstairs, where the five children were sleeping, and killed them. He must have used a light, for his aim was effective, each victim being shot in the

All but two of the children met with instant death, for the blood clots were under twilight. Meanwhile, John had shed their heads and two lay as calmly reposed as if in sleep. All except Henry, who is not yet dead, were attired in night robes. The murderer had reloaded the weapon while upstairs and evidently sent the second bullet into the oldest girl's brain just before leaving the room. Going downstairs he stretched himself beside the corpse of his wife and shot himself.

Becker for over twenty years lived in the same neighborhood, in fact, on the same farm. He was married eleven years ago, and after living a year with his parents moved to the scene of the tragedy, which is almost within hailing distance of the old home.

Becker had been regarded as a prosperous farmer, and only recently bought a 200-acre farm a few miles from the old homestead. Sunday he attended church at Breda with his wife and some of the children. Later in the day he was visited by a neighbor, who says that when he left the Becker home later in the evening they were seemingly a happy family, and there was not an indication of the awful tragedy enacted a few hours later.

A retired sea captain, sixty years of age, well known to the reputable citizens of New Haven, suffered from an overworked and worn-out digestive apparatus. He had no faith in patent medicines as a cure for dyspepsia, but was induced by a friend to try Ripans Tabules. This he did with but little hope of benefit. After trying them for some time he said to the friend who had directed his attention to them: "Those Ripans Tabules were so effective from the start that I was amazed at the result. They are wizards. All the dyspeptic misery endured by me since becoming a landlubber has disappeared. I take one every night now, and feel so much rejuvenated by their use that I sometimes think I could climb a ship's rigging as well as I did thirty years ago."

POKER WORK.

How Many Women Are Making Beautiful Arricles.

"Poker work" is an interesting occupation, and many beautiful articles will be the result of one's labors, says the Detroit Free Press. The woods which are the best for cabinet work treated in this way are the bass wood, maple and olive wood. The first is most in use. The burning apparatus consists of a large spirit lamp, holding benzine, to which is attached a tube which terminates in a rubber bulb. Another tube is fastened to the lamp. It has a platinum point, which is the instrument corresponding to a poker. By compressing the bulb the lighted benzine is forced through the tube and the point is kept red hot. In pokering leather a lighter pressure is given to the bulb, so that the point is not so hot. The design to be executed ig first drawn with pencil on the wood or leather and afterward burned out. A beautiful study table has its entire top burned. In each corner is the head of some man of letters. The middle contains a view of Westminster Abbey. The whole has a wrought background of thimble pattern. The brown tinting on the light wood makes many attractive elfects on cabinets, picture frames or medallions. Portfolios, book-covers and card-cases are among the articles which may be made of policred leather. MAN S BIG STORY.

Idea of His Wife Giving Him $5 Won

Him a Prize. There were five or six of them sitting about the stove in the drug store, and they had been telling some pretty tall stories, says the Detroit Free Press. The druggist was a man of some humor and invention, and he concocted a mixture of great potency and fine flavor, composed of sp. frumenti, saccharum alba, cortex limonis, carophyllus aromaticus and aqua pura q. s. This mixture he proposed to administer to whomsoever should tell the biggest story, and the party at once began to stretch their inventive powers to the fullest extent. A toilet-soan drummer was appointed judge, and the prize mixture, steaming hot, sat in an eight-conce graduated measure upon edge of the stove.

The colonel told a war story of the Munchausen variety, the squire related a hunting adventure that evinced a decided genius for evading the truth and the postmaster made a strong bid for the prize with a snake story big enough to make a sea serpent jealous. The others followed in turn, and the last man, the major, entered the competition. The major had in his mind a remarkable narrative about a dog that he owned that did some wonderful things, and he began his story in this way:

"Last Wednesday morning I got up a little later than usual and went down to breakfast. Most of you have seen great regulators. Culver city Drug Store, wife, who was waiting for me, said:

'John, when I went in to wake you up this morning I found this $5 bill on the floor. You must have dropped it from your pcc et when you undressed last night.' Then she handed me the bill. Now, that dog of mine was-"

"Wait a minute," said the toilet-soap drummer, "you needn't go any further with your story. The prize is yours. A Bit of Pretty Practical Gardening for I'm a married man myself, and that lie you've just told is one that you'll never improve on. I hereby render a decision in your favor."

As there were no single men in the crowd not a voice was raised in protest against the judge's verdict.

CHICAGO A ROARING RIVER.

Scientists Predict That State of Affair

For 4837. Prof. Spencer's address before the members of the American Association for the advancement of science at Detroit last week attracted great comment at that assembly. He made a prediction, based on figures which he Chairman-But I hear she never pays presented, that the course of the lakes was being changed, and that in time Detroit would be good fishing where the city hall now stands, and shortly after the waters of the lakes would be pouring over Chicago toward the Mislake region was being tilted in that di- Magazine. rection. He said this would seem of trifling importance, but it was really a serious matter for Chicago, because that city stands on a low plain. The work of cutting the Chicago drainage canal, he said, was a mere anticipation of nature, for the tilting of the lake him: basin would have produced the same result in less than a thousand years. Prof. Spencer demonstrated by figures that at one time the Erie basin emptied, not by the Niagara river, but by a buried valley, directly into the head of Lake Ontario, and that Niagara river and falls were modern features. He also showed that the gorge near the falls was eating its way backward at a rate of over a foot a year, and that in the course of a few lifetimes it would wipe itself out. He and Prof. Gilbert agree that the calamity which

GENERAL BLISS AS A HUNTER Believes in Snake Poison Antidote and

Its General Diffusion.

Col. Zenas Bliss, who has just been made a brigadier-general in the regular army, was for several years commander at Fort Hayes, Kansas, where he is well remembered for his many exceptional qualities. He was an enormously fat man, weighing more than 300 pounds, and had a proverbial good lature that lurks in avoidupois. He was a great sportsman, and a fine shot with both shotgun and rifle. He loved to hunt prairie chickens, and always went into the fields seated in a low barouche, with a soldier for a driver. When his dogs came to a "point" he would have the driver put his horses ahead of the dogs and flush the game at which he would shoot without dismounting from the carriage. It was a great privilege among the private soldiers to be permitted to go with the colonel as a driver. He invariably had a comfortable supply of snake antidote under one of the seats, and was always careful to antidote the driver every time he antidoted himself. At short distance off-hand shooting Col. Bliss was undoubtedly the champion of the army. The writer once saw him win every dollar in the pockcts of the officers of his regiment at a picnic, where shooting was made part of the program. He put a silver half dollar up in a forked stick at a distance of seventy-five yards and offered to wager that he could hit it with an ordinary army rifle. The young lieutenants fell over each other in covering that bet, and when the gun cracked they lost. It tickled the colonel so immensely that he spent all he had won and twice that sum over in getting these officers and certain friends from Hays City a Mumm's extra dry supper. There never was a regular army officer who possessed so much of the love of his subordinates as Col. Bliss.

MAKE A PANSY-BED.

Our Girls.

There is much pleasure in store for those that have never owned and studied a pansy-bed, and even more for those that know just how much joy is in such a possession. If you have a hotbed, sow pansy seed there in August. Transplant until they are five or six inches apart. Protect with mats on outside and paper on inside during cold weather, or, instead of paper, give a light covering of leaves, which should not be packed closely. Give air and light on warm, sunny days. Very early in spring the protection may be removed, and if carefully watered and sheltered from the noontide sun, the pansies will soon be blooming. As soon as the frost is out of the ground they may be transplanted to the garden. Make the bed rich with old, fine, stable manure. THE NEW GOLD FIELD.

Facts About the Climate and Mosquitoes of Alaska.

Ordinary woolen clothing for the body and leather boots for the feet are of course utterly unsuitable and can be worn only at serious risk when traveling, says the Forum. Indian snowshoes are essential; the Norwegian variety proved worthless. As the season advances the snow settles and at night a firm crust forms. The most favorable months for traveling are March and April. The midwinter days are short, with sunlight in some latitudes from 10 in the morning until 3 in the afternoon. When necessary one can travel fairly well by starlight and moonlight over the snowy tundra, but not in the woods. In May the snow is wet and heavy and travel difficult. Pools of water and the first mosquitoes then begin to appear. By May 29 the river bursts its bonds of ice and floods the lowlands; ice, debris and broken timber pouring, with a grinding noise, headlong toward the sea. For at least a week navigation is impossible. Sum-mer, swift footed, trips upon the heels of winter. The sun pours down with a violence not scon forgotten, though in the shade it is always cool. The cry of the brant, northward bound, is continually heard, and myriads of smaller waterfowl appear on every hand. All the minor forms of life, native to the region or migrants from the south, with startling suddenness people the copses and pervade the air. Vegetation springs into leaf and flower at a bound and with hardly a hint of spring summer is upon us. Mosquitoes, the pest of the north, appear in clouds. Except in midstream, or where a brisk breeze is blowing, life without a net and leather gloves is misery. The indians smear their faces with a mixture of grease and charcoal and paddle with a smudge on a square of turf in the bows of their birch cances. The caribou, moose and bear, driven from the thickets, plunge into the river for temporary respite. Curiously enough, during three summers, black flies and midges, so plentiful to the eastward, were only encountered on the Yukon. The records show that the lower Yukon valley has a summer temperature much in excess of that normal to the latitude. As the days are long, the traveler will prudently sleep at noon and utilize for his work the cooler hours when the sun sweeps low along the northern horizon and the mosquitoes are less active. Frosts appear in mid-September Early in October the Yukon begins to be covered with 'c?, though it is not fully icebound until late in November.

So the round is completed.

It imen's Enlarged Sphere of Labor. for-is evident that women are pressing ard more and more into profess and positions formerly held exlvely by men. This, in our opinion, i excellent sign, although in some iches of labor there is reason to et it. What women more particurequire is a training from an earge which will enable them to take rown part in the battle f life whea ugh the death of those on whom were dependent, or through misune, it becomes incumbent upon a to provide for themselves. This y training is a matter which does appear to receive the attention and ideration that it ought, for how y women are there who can, for nple, compute interest intelligently accurately? How many are there are even capable of managing r own affairs, or their own properif they have any, with anything business capacity? The education voman is not complete unless she as a part of her equipment a wledge of at least the rudiments of ness. Women who are blessed 1 a fair share of worldly goods need knowledge hardly less than those have to make their own way in world, and who have not the proion and guardianship of husband father, for such women can never sure that they may not at any moit be called upon to earn their own lihood.

Extraordinary Longevity.

n interesting statement has lately eared in the daily press to the efthat there has just died in the que provinces a man aged one hun-1 and forty-eight years six months nine days. FLAMES WORK HAVOC.

WILLOW SPRINGS, ILL., ALMOST WIPED CUT BY FIRE.

Over Fifty Families Left Homeless-Many Persons Narrowly Escape Death-Loss $50,000-St. Louis Bride Hanged Herself-Europe Imperiled.

Twenty-six Buildings Burned.

The town of Willow Springs, Ill., was almost destroyed by fire. Twenty-six buildings were burned, and at least fifty families are left homeless. The property loss is about $50,000. Thoroughly dried by the scorching sun, the frame buildings burned like tinder, and the flames swept through the town with wonderful rapidity. The volunteer fire department was helpless, and Mayor Koller telegraphed Chicago for aid. A special train was at once sent out over the Alton with engine company 17 on board, but before it arrived the fire had consumed everything in its path and had burned out of its own accord. During the early stages of the fire narrow escapes from burning buildings were numerous, and in one instance a whole family had to be carried from the second floor to the street in their night clothes.

MAPS OUT HIS MESSAGE.

McKinley Has His First Annual Address to Congress Well in Mind. The President has completed a mental outline of his first annual message to Congress. He intends to set it down in black and white without delay and fill in some of it every day. The message, a Washington correspondent says, will be comparatively brief. It will contain a welldefined review of the work done since the administration's birth and a warm congratulation to the country on prosperity's return, and to Congress for helping him to bring it about. The President will point out the benefits to come from the annexation of Hawaii, and urge the speedy ratification of the treaty. He expects now to report in his message the progress Mr. Woodford will then have made in his negotiations with Spain looking toward bringing the Cuban war to a close. If negotiations are then pending, he will suggest that Congress keep its hands off a little longer. Should Woodford's mission have failed, McKinley will so state and ask Congress to tackle the question. He will strongly urge the enactment of currency reform and express the hope that before the Fifty-fifth Congress adjourns sine die, the theory of general arbitration between nations will be made a fact by the putting into operation of a treaty stripped of some of the objections which caused the defeat of the first one negotiated between this country and Great Britain.

IMPERILED THE CONCERT.

Germany Threatened to Withdraw Unless Greece Accepted Terms.

The contents of the white book presented to the Athens chamber are now generally known. It confirms the statement that Germany threatened to withdraw from the concert of the powers in the event of Greece not accepting the peace conditions. and it also confirms the statements made regarding the warning to Greece which the French minister for foreign affairs, M. Hanotaux, issued May 30, relative to the internal situation of the country, declaring that any attack upon the dynasty would threaten the very existence of Greece.

Woodmen at War.

The Modern Woodmen war between Fulton and Rock Island ended in a sen sational manner. The records of the head office were moved to the former place after Judge Gest had dissolved the latest injunction. Lieut. Gov. Northcott and Adjutant General Reece, who were actively engaged in the removal, were mobbed by a crowd of Fulton people and locked up in a depot, and five companies of State militia were ordered out to rescue them, but they were released before any of the troops arrived on the scene.

Reports Are Exaggerated.

The reports of war in Guatemala have been greatly exaggerated. Consul Carillo at San Francisco says: "The revolution in our country is confined entirely to San Marcos, Quezaltenango and the port of Ocos. Port Ocos is a shipping place for the coffee crops and has a population of about two hundred people. The other places may have six thousand inhabitants, but that is doubtful."

PLOT TO KILL THE CZAR.

Socialists Tunneled Under a Street in Warsaw.

It has leaked out from official circles in Warsaw, Poland, in such a manner as leaves no room for doubt that there was a deliberate and determined plot against Emperor Nicholas at the time of his recent visit to that city. Its success was only frustrated by accident. Before the arrival of the imperial party a number of persons supposed to belong to the German socialist party undermined Norvy Sviat, the principal street in Warsaw, between the governor general's palace and the royal castle. The work had approached completion when the conspirators became appreheasive of a collapse of the roadway, and called in several Polish masons to build supports. The masons, whose suspicions were aroused, notified the police, and 130 arrests followed.

The crime took place in front of Christian's cottage in the grounds of the Sullivan County Club, near Wurtsboro, and before the eyes of his wife. The murderer escaped to the woods and has not been arrested.

Peary's New Plans.

Lieut. Peary, the arctic explorer, while in Philadelphia said: "In addition to securing the big meteorite I laid the plans for next year's expedition, and when I leave again, which will be about the end of next July, it will be to remain up there until I reach the pole or lose my life in the attempt if it takes five years to accomplish this object. Next summer I shall take my vessel up to Sherard Osborne fjord and make that place my base of supplies. On the last trip I made arrangements with the Arctic highlanders, a tribe of Eskimos, consisting of 230 men, women and children, known as the most northerly tribe of human beings on the earth, to put in this coming winter obtaining bear, seal and deer skins for our clothing, and in securing all the walrus meat they can for dog food. I have singled out eight young men of the tribe, with their wives, canoes, dogs, sledges and tents, to accompany me to Sherard Osborne fjord, which is about 300 miles farther north than their present abode. My party will consist of a surgeon, possibly another white man and myself, the rest will be Eskimos. The latter know how to drive dogs; they can go hungry and know how to get food. The conditions under which I shall make the coming expedition are of the most satisfactory character. The American Geographical Society has assured $150,000 to meet all expenses and I have been given five years' leave of absence. I shall probably buy a new ship for next year, though we may use the Hope again. Mrs. Peary will not accompany me. I am quite sure I shall succeed in reaching the pole."

Verdict on the Deaths.

The coroner's jury which investigated the death of the striking miners at Lattimer, Pa., after an hour's deliberation rendered the following verdict: "That from the circumstances of the case and the evidence offered, the said Clement Platock and others came to their death by gunshot wounds on Sept. 10, 1897, at the hands of Sheriff James Martin and his deputies, and in this way we the jury do all agree; and we, Phil J. Boyle, Thomas T. Thomas, Barton Freas and Peter Mc-Kiernan, of this jury, do further say that the said Clement Platock, with others, was marching peaceably and unarmed on the public highway; that they were intercepted by said Sheriff Martin and his deputies and mercilessly shot to death; and we do further find that the killing was unnecessary and could have been avoided without serious injury to either person or property, and we find finally that the killing was wanton and unjustifiable; but in this we, George Maue and | females. F. J. MacNeal of this jury, do not concur; and we the jury do further say that there was such strong suspicion of unlawful violence at the hands of person or persons unknown to this jury as to make this inquest necessary." Fatal Fire in Toronto.

While fire was destroying the Musee Theater at Toronto, Ont., a team of horses attached to a large fire engine took fright and ran away with the engine, with fatal results. The engine was getting up steam and was thickly surrounded by people. The horses plunged madly into the crowd, killing one boy and injuring ten persons, some of them possibly fatally. The flames made rapid headway, and before the fire was got under control the Musee, or Bijou, Theater, where the actors were preparing to give an entertainment, was completely destroyed. Rogers' furniture warerooms and factory adjoining were damaged. The loss will be about $50,000.

The Birmingham (England) Post says the Government of Canada, early in 1898, will make large purchases of heavy field batteries and a number of defense guns, the latter being for a new scheme for the defense of Montreal and the river below that city. Special instructions to this effect, the Post adds, were issued immediately after the return to Canada of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier.

YELLOW FEVER FLAGS NUMER-OUS IN NEW ORLEANS.

Camp of Detention Planned for Sugar Plantation Laborers, Who Are in Great Demand-Republican Nominations-Children Burned to Death.

Several Deaths Reported.

The number of red and yellow flags, indicating yellow fever about New Orleans, is increasing, but the disease is not growing any more malignant than it was ten days ago. A new case was reported Wednesday morning at an early hour on Jackson avenue. It is the fourth on that thoroughfare. Reports were also received at the Board of Health of two deaths, but the names and locations were not given out. A tent 1,500 feet away from the main building has been established at the camp of detention for the care of developed cases of the fever until they can be removed to the isolation hospital. It is announced that the reported sickness on the steamer Tartar Prince is not yellow fever, but malaria. The cases were examined by Dr. Carter of the marine hospital service. Dr. John Guiteras was invited to accompany President Oliphant and Dr. Carter on their trip as far as Shreveport, to confer with health officials in the interest of more rational quarantine regulations. Arrangements are being made for the establishment of a camp of detention, to which laborers may go before leaving for the country to do work on the sugar plantations. There is a large demand in the sugar districts for labor. The Board of Health issues a notice to physicians to promptly report all cases of patients discharged.

SPANISH CABINET OUT.

Resignation of Azcarraga Ministry

Offered and Accepted. The Spanish cabinet has resigned, and the belief in London is that the Liberals will assume power in a few days. No one expects to see any other man that Sagasta called to the premiership, but some surprises yet remain in the situation. It is possible that Gen. Azearraga, whose radical attitude toward Cuba is known of all men, may have sufficient influence to prevent Sagasta, the putative friend of Cuban autonomy, securing the premiership. The tottering condition of the Azcarraga government has been known for some time, and it is evident the plans for its resignation were all laid before the queen regent left San Sebastian. This is proved by the fact that the queen regent accepted the resignation as soon as tendered, with the usual request that Gen. Azcarraga continue in office until a solution of the crisis is found.

The bronze monument that is to be erected in Portsmouth Square, San Francisco, to the memory of Robert Louis Stevenson, the novelist, has been successfully cast. The monument is expected to be ready for dedication Oct. 16.

It was John L. Sullivan who did the talking. The big ex-champion was found at Willimantic, in New York, where his show was billed for the evening. "What was the trouble between you and Quincy?" was asked. "He threw me down," replied Sullivan, "at Fanyul Hall, the night of the Ten Eyck reception. I sticks out my hand, but Quincy don't see it. He thought it would be a good chance to make a little reputation off me. I heard Quincy make a speech that night, and say, on the level, I was sorry for the sucker."

Central American Politics.

The Central American republics, according to Pan-American diplomats in Washington, are undoubtedly on the eve of a general political upheaval. The success of the revolutionists in Guatemala, entailing the downfall of Dictator Barrios and the elevation of Prospero Morales to the presidency, is believed to be inevitable and is likely of itself to bring about a revolution in several of the sister republics. The imprisonment of the Costa Rican consul general, Don Eduardo tional courtesy. The seeds of sedition are easily sown in Honduras and the uneasiness in that country seems likely to develop into open revolt against President Bonilla as an indirect result of the success of the revolution in Guatemala. Salvador alone, of the Spanish-American states, at present appears quiet and likely to remain so. A successful revolution to either of the three republics composing the Greater Republic of Central America would mean the dissolution of the feeble diplomatic bonds which now unite them, and from present indications another coalition of this nature might be difficult to bring about.

OFFICIALS ARE NOT SURPRISED.

Fall of Spain's Cabinet Apparently Expected in Washington.

It cannot be said that the fall of the Spanish cabinet caused surprise among the officials of the State Department or among the members of the diplomatic corps in Washington. A careful inspection of the cable news for the past few weeks had left the general impression that the cabinet erected in haste after the assassination of Premier Canovas could not be expected to survive long. There were several reasons for this expectation, but perhaps the principal one was the belief that the dissensions among the supporters of the Government caused by the personal encounter between the Duke of Tetuan, the minister for foreign affairs, and one of the leaders of the dissident conservatives, Senator Comas, had not been healed, but had been only bridged over temporarily. The dissident conservatives at the time insisted upon the resignation of the duke as a condition of their further support of the Government. As the Government depended not upon a homogeneous party, but rather upon a union of various elements generally opposed to liberal ideas for its existence, this was a threatening condition, and a crisis was averted only through strenuous efforts of conservative leaders.

Secretary Sherman does not believe that it will materially affect the relations of Spain either to the United States or to Cuba, which seems to indicate an expectation on his part that the new cabinet will be found to be still of a conservative tendency. On the other hand, high officials in the administration expect that a liberal cabinet will be erected. If this should be the case the future is held to be full of promise for Cuba, for it is recalled that the liberals have not hesitated to express their opposition to the great expenditure of human life and vast treasure in the effort to carry out the repressive conservative program for the conduct of the war. Beeche, by the Nicaraguan authorities is It is not believed that the liberals are regarded as a serious breach of laterna- prepared to go to the length of promising freedom to Cuba, but from the expressions of the leaders of the party is it hoped that they are willing to grant so liberal a measure of home rule and autonomy to the island that of Spanish sovereignty nothing would remain save a shred in the way of a few preferential duties, and perhaps the power of appointing some officials corresponding to the governor general of Canada, named by the British crown.

BIG FIRE AT WASHINGTON.

Million Dollar Conflagration Visits the National Capital.

In Washington, fire broke out in the central power station of the Capital Traction Company a few minutes before 11 o'clock Wednesday night and in thirty minutes the magnificent six-story structure was doomed. The building occupies the entire block from Pennsylvania avenue to C street, and from Thirteen and One-half street to Fourteenth street. The blaze started on the southwest corner and despite the efforts of the entire fire department swept like wind through the enormous building. The heat was so intense that the men were driven from the adjoining streets. When it became evident that no efforts could save the power station, the department turned its attentions to the adjoining property, but the flames leaped across Fourteenth street on the west to a big livery stable and then across Thirteenth and One-half street on the east and attacked a row of threestory brick houses.

So fearful was the heat that the firemen could not get within reach of the burning buildings. They were driven back foot by foot until the streams from the hose pipes could not reach the fire. The entire fire department was on the scene, but so fierce was the conflagration that their efforts were futile. The power house was built four years ago. It was six stories in height, and besides containing the power plant of the Pennsylvania avenue lines of the Capital Traction Company was occupied by dozens of offices. The walls began to fall by 12 o'clock, and with the decreasing heat the firemen were enabled to get to work on adjoining property. Two hours after the first alarm was given the huge building was reduced to a few crumbling walls, and damage to the extent of nearly a million dollars had been done. The loss on adjoining buildings will not be large, as those burned are old and small. At one time the offices of the Southern Railway were threatened, but prompt work by the firemen checked the flames. FEW LEADERS PRESENT.

Very Slim Attendance at the Chicago Labor Convention.

The much-advertised national labor convention in Chicago was not as well attended a gathering as had been expected, as the original call for the convention had been rescinded and many big labor organizations that had been expected to be represented were not in evidence. Among the labor men present were Frank Egger, national secretary and organizer of the Hotel and Restaurant National Alliance and Bartenders' National League; J. A. Ferguson, D. M. MacDonald and E. Boice of Butte, Mont.; M. P. Carrick and W. A. Klinger, Pittsburg; B. R. Creeden, Wallace, Ida., and many representatives of local reform organizations.

Many of those present said that President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor was to blame for the interference of the arrangements of the original call for a monster convention. They said the statement issued by Gompers advising all labor organizations to keep away from the convention was the result of jealousy, Gompers feeling aggrieved because his name was not signed to the call.

"ONLY PAULINE."

BY ETTA J. WEBB.

The day was a cheerless one even for November. Perhaps it was for that very reason that the shabby little sitting-room looked so cosy. There was a bright wood fire in the grate diffusing a genial warmth and light. Katherine loved warmth and light, she loved roses, too; not the sweet, wan, fragile kind that overran the old garden in summer, but heavy, richscented crimson roses, such as Jack Donelson sent in great handfuls daily. There was a bowl of them now on the piano, making a blot of vivid color against the sombre background.

But it was not Katherine who stood on the hearth rug with fingers interlaced staring moodily into the fire. It was "only" Pauline. The warm glow lent a faint color to her olive cheeks and brought out a certain lustre in her hair that was not there excepting in a strong light. Too, it revealed a lurking bitterness about her mouth and in her eyes. Pauline's thoughts were not pleasant ones. She was feeling at odds with herself and all the world—that disagreeably antagonistic feeling that sets one's moral teeth so sharply on edge.

"Only Pauline!" Long ago-so long ago that it seemed to her sometimes as if it could never have been otherwise—she had become reconciled to the fact that Katherine and Katherine's wishes must always receive first consideration. But then Katherine was so beautiful that the best of everything seemed hers by right. It was not hard to yield to her as to a plainer person or one less charming. Beside, Pauline was not beautiful. Indeed, no one had ever gone so far as to call her good looking. Viewed in the light of Katherine's exceeding loveliness, she was plain even to insignificance. Pretty, vain Mrs. Ward had never been quite able to understand why her two daughters were so unlike.

"Katherine is all Morton," she was wont to say, "but Pauline-"

The sigh and deprecating little shrug were more effective than any mere words could have been in the completion of her meaning.

Pauline had heard the above remark times without number, and had young sister, half startled. Pauline dolence. Her relief was so genuine given little heed. But when, one day, her mother made it in the presence of had not been treated fairly by her mother and Katherine.

It was the thought of this, and not the sunless, chill November day that gave to her face its touch of gloom. So absorbed in reflection was she that sae did not hear when the door behind her opened softly and some one came into the room.

"Pauline!"

She turned to confront the slight, boyish-looking young fellow who had just pronounced her name.

"Oh, it's you, Jack!" she said, smiling a little. "I did not hear you come "Your mother said I should find you here. What a nice fire!" He came and stood before her on the hearth "Katherine-is she not at home?" he asked, unhesitatingly.

'No, she has gone to make some calls with Mrs. Westford."

He drew a deep, quivering breath, at which the girl looked sharply up at him.

"I'm afraid you think I'm not very hospitable, Jack. Won't you have a chair?"

"No, thank you. I can't stay long enough for that. Katherine promised to go driving with me this afternoon, but I suppose she forgot," he added, bitterly.

"I suppose so," Pauline answered, slowly.

Her eyes fell beneath his questioning gaze.

"Pauline, tell me!" he cried out suddenly. "Does that man still come here?"

"Do you mean Mr. Eliot? Yes, he still comes here."

A quiver swept his face. "Will she-do you think-oh, Pauline, is she likely to marry him?" folds of her gown, was clinched until the knuckles stood out whitely. "How can I tell?" she answered wearily. "You ought to know Katherine well enough by this time to understand that she will do exactly as she pleases."

"But if she pleases to marry him! I could not bear it-oh, I could not bear it!"

The anguish in the young voice stirred Pauline strangely. She turned and laid her hands upon his shoul-

"Oh, yes, you could," she said. "It would be hard, but you could."

"Do you think to comfort me by telling me that?" he said, bitterly. "iou are very good, Pauline, but you don't understand these things.

He drew her hands from his shoulders and clasped them tightly together.

"No, I suppose I don't-as you understand them," she said, with a touch | Pauline, to merit your disapproval?" of sarcasm.

He looked at her in surprise.

"Why, I believe you are out of spirits, too, Pauline! Can it be the weather, do you think?"

"Ch, it must be. The weather is al-

"Thank you, Jack," she answered, gently. "But I'm afraid I'm too dull to make an agreeable companion. I think I'll practise for an hour or so, and see if I can't get into a more comfortable state of mind." "Well, I won't urge you, Pauline. How dark it has grown within the last hour! There isn't an inch of blue sky to be seen anywhere," he added, glancing from the window as he turned to Pauline accompanied him as far as the door, then came back and seated herself at the piano. She was still there, running over scales with feverish velocity when Katherine came in, flushed and a little tired from walk-

"For goodness' sake, Pauline, do stop that dreadful banging! It is enough to drive one wild! I wonder mamma has patience to endure it," she exclaimed, fretfully. She went over to the fire, and sink ing into a low chair began impatiently who brought the news to the Wards. to remove her long gloves. Pauline left the piano at once, and came and this afternoon?" "Jack has."

"Oh, Jack!" Katherine said a little contemptuously. "Any one else?" "No one."

"Hasn't Mr. Eliot-"

"Why can't you understand, Katherine," Pauline interrupted, sharply, "that 'no one' includes Mr. Eliot the you ever hear of anything so dreadsame as every one else?"

A slow angry flush rose in Katherine's beautiful face. "Dear me, Pauline," she cried, scornfully, "you are really quite dramatic! Would you mind saying that I did not fully understand it."

It was Pauline's turn to blush.

"Be as scornful as you please, Katherine," she said, "but it's true, and you know perfectly well that if it wasn't for Wilton Eliot's money you would never give him a second thought. Why, even Jack would be preferable in that case."

Five that moment two hands were laid upminutes later found her walking rapidly in the direction of the river. It voice, vibrating with happiness was a dark, swollen flood that crept along between the shelving banks on either side. By-and-by, when the ice had formed on its surface, it would be the scene of many a gay skating frolic. But now, as Pauline stood beside it, watching absently a few fluttering snowflakes fall one by one into the sluggish current, the river seemed to typify her own dark mood. A step sounded behind her, and she turned to meet the grave, questioning gaze with which Wilton Eliot was regarding her.

"Miss Ward," he began. "Only Pauline," she corrected, smiling a little bitterly. "I beg your pardon for having startled you, but I was taking the short cut to the station, and seeing you in The girl's hand, hanging among the the distance, I thought I would stop erine." and say good-by."

"Are you going away then?" Pauline asked in surprise.

"Yes. I find my affairs have been getting into some confusion through my absence or my neglect, and demand my immediate attention. It may be many months before I am in Sterling again."

He scanned her face eagerly.

"I am sure—we all shall miss you," she said, trying to make the words contain the proper amount of polite regret and feeling that she had failed miserably.

"All!" he said. "You?"

"I, of course, Mr. Eliot." Pauline was getting more and more uncomfortable every instant under that keen gaze. She wished he would go away, and yet--

"But you avoid me on every possible occasion. I never see you when I call. What can I have done, Miss

"You have done nothing, and i ndeed, Mr. Eliot, I do not avoid you," Pauline said, very earnestly.

"Then it must have been my fancy. Since you have nothing against me, Miss Pauline, you will surely shake ways to blame for everything, isn't hands with me and wish me good luck at the end of my journey?"

"You'll have to hurry," she exclaimed.

"How anxious you are to be rid of me. Well, I shall come again, remember, little Pauline." He looked down into her face with a curious smile. "And now, good-by."

He lifted her hand to his lips, then dropped it and hurried away.

Katherine wondered not a little at her sister's subdued and preoccupied manner that evening. She wondered, too, that Wilton Eliot should have gone away without so much as bidding her good-by, for Pauline had given a matter-of-fact account of her chance meeting with him by the river. But she had no mind to make herself unhappy over it, especally as she had just received a letter from the aunt whose namesake she was which enclosed a generous check and the request to use it in the replenishing of her wardrobe. Katherine's elasticity of temperament was one of the most delightful facts about her. A week later Sterling, the social portion of it, at least, was startled by the news that Wilton Eliot had lost all his fortune through an unwise speculation. It was Mrs. Westford Pauline, who had been for a walk, came in to find her mother and Katherine still in the first bewilderment of

"Oh, Pauline, what do you think "No-yes! Has any one been in has happened to Mr. Eliot?" was the exclamation that greeted her as she entered the parlor. Pauline turned perfectly white, but managed to control herself sufficiently to ask-

"What has happened to him, mamma?" "He has lost all his money. Did ful?" and Mrs. Ward drew a little Katherine looked up at her tall, fluttering sigh of sympathy and conthat Pauline felt she must either cry "I think, Katherine," Pauline went or laugh outright. She chose the lat-befall a man like Wilton Eliot." "I can-several," said Pauline, who had grown suddenly grave.

"What?" demanded Katherine.

But her sister slipped out of the room without replying.

For several days thereafter Wilton Eliot's misfortune was the theme of conversation in the Ward householdagain a little more slowly? I'm afraid with Katherine and her mother, that is, for Pauline made no mention of the affair and did not care to hear it discussed.

Then the nine days' wonder ceased to be a wonder, and Wilton Eliot dropped out of the minds of everybody apparently. So a few months glided by. One morning Pauline had been sitting at With that she went swiftly out of the piano a long time, playing meon the music before her. Suddenly The atmosphere of the house her hands fell from the keys into her on her shoulders, and Jack Donelson's sounded in her ear.

Pauline laughed nervously.

"I don't know but I shall-for joy. Let me go, Jack; I want to find Kath-

And she rushed out of the room in search of her sister.

Katherine was in the parlor, gazing abstractedly out of the window at the snow-filled street. She turned about as Pauline entered. "Oh, Katherine, Jack has just told me! He is so happy. Are you?" Pauline threw her arms about her sister, and looked affectionately into her face. "Of course I am, silly pate! Jack is a dear boy, and with money enough to make one very comfortable. After all, that is the chief consideration."

Pauline's arms fell heavily to her sides.

"O Katherine!" she said.

"There, you needn't look so woebegone. Of course I'm fond of Jack, and I do not doubt we shall make a most devoted couple." And Katherine bent with a softened look in her beautiful eyes to kiss the grave young face.

So it had all come about as Pauline once thought it never could. Jack's happiness-I will not say Katherine's -revealed to her the sad longing of her own heart. Whether Wilton Eliot loved her or not she loved him with all the strength of her nature. As the winter wore into spring she wondered vaguely if his promise to come again would ever be fulfilled, or if in the great crisis through which he had Far down the river a trailing line of passed he had lost all thought of itarations for Katherine's wedding in June took so much of her time, and worked feverishly until even Katherine was compelled to bid her take a rest lest she fall ill. And then came the first sweet month of spring-March, not cold and stormy as was its wont, but warm and bright.

Daily Pauline stole away to walk by the river, where the brown sedge grasses were changing to palest green, and there one sunny morning Wilton Eliot found her.

"You see I have not forgotten my promise," he said, as he took both her hands in his, and looked anxiously down into her suddenly pale face. "What! Not a word of welcome for me? Only tears? Why, Pauline-Pauline!"

Nevertheless he understood her silence better than words. Presently, when he had soothed her into something like composure, he asked—

"Shall you mind marrying a poor man, dear? I am rich no longer except as being rich in your love. Tell me, Pauline!" "Shall I mind?" she said, "I who have been used to being poor all my life?" Then she laughed her bright, sweet laugh. "It is you who ought to mind marrying so insignificant a person as myself, Mr. Eliot, for to the end of the chapter I shall be "only Pauline."-Waverley Magazine.

Best Time to Sleep.

In view of the many changes which have been rung on the early-to-bed early-to-rise idea, the following opinion from an eminent medical authority ought to be of interest: He takes up the old statement that an hour before midnight is worth two hours after, and gives his opinion as follows: "I had an opportunity to make a study of this subject in my naval service during the late war. On shipboard, as is undoubtedly known to most of you, the ship's company-officers and men alike -stand four-hour watches day and night, and to get the required amount of rest are obliged to get their sleep irregularly; to so arrange it that the same man shall not be obliged to take early or late watches continually, the 'dog-watch' of two hours is interpolated, thus adding to the irregularity. In watching the results for over two years, I could never discover that the watch ,officers and men, were not as fully refreshed by their sleep as were the medical and pay officers, who stand no watch, and have hours as regular as those of any householder." It seems to make little difference to those who have given careful attention to this subject whether people sleep at one time or another, so that they get a sufficient amount of sleep.—New York Ledger.

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Muncie Saloon Men Jubilant-Killed Himself While Angry with His Father-Mad Deed of a Flatrock Man-Prisoner Moved to Escape a Mob.

Liquor Men Victorious.

For the first time since the crusade was begun on Muncie saloon men by the committee of one hundred prosecuting them for operating saloons in the residence parts of the city, the defendants are victorious. In the former trials a dozen or more were found guilty, and some driven out of business. In the trials of John P. Weisse, William Webster and John Shea the Mayor found for the defendants. With these findings, over two-thirds of the score or more cases will not stand, and saloon men are jubilant.

Killed His Wife and Himself.

Wesley Nading of Flatrock shot and instantly killed his young wife and then made an unsuccessful attempt on his own life. For years he operated a general store in Flatrock and was well-to-do. Several years ago his mind became unbalanced and he was given treatment in a private sanitarium, returning home about eighteen months ago apparently fully recovered. On Tuesday he ate breakfast at the usual time and in his usual spirits went down to his office. He returned home about 8 o'clock and found his wife scrubbing the back porch. Without a word he drew a revolver and fired a bullet into her back. She sprang up screaming and started to run, when he fired again. The second bullet entered her head just back of the right ear and she fell off the porch dead. Nading then placed the muzzle of the revolver against his left breast and fired. The bullet passed entirely through his body just above the heart.

Suicided in a Rage.

Clarence Parker of New Castle, aged 20 years, committed suicide at his home in the eastern part of Henry County. The boy's father had mounted a horse belonging to his son and rode to a neighbor's. When the son came in a short time afterward he became angry because his father had taken his horse and took down his double barreled shotgun. He then went to the orchard, cursing his father as he went, and a few minutes later he emptied one load of shot into his left breast, dying

The Reformatory Crowded.

The sessions of the courts over the State are causing an influx of convicts to the reformatory at Jeffersonville, and Superintendent Hert is wondering how he is going to accommodate all the new men. The cell houses are inadequate to furnish proper sleeping apartments if the rush continues. The number will shortly reach one thousand.

Fyfe Henderson Sentenced.

Fyfe Henderson, who raised a check on J. S. Stewart & Co., St. Louis, from $12.35 to $212.35 and left for Canada, where he was captured, was found guilty by a jury at Vincennes and sentenced to the reformatory at Jeffersonville.

All Over the State.

The last crop bulletin of the season announces that the Indiana corn crop will fall below that of last year.

William McMath, Thomas Dill, John Cavitt, Jr., and George King, all of Rushville, expect to start for the Klondike in the spring.

Thieves have carried away almost all the foundation of the McBride school house at Jeffersonville, and it is in such a condition as to be unsafe.

Henry Louden, a farmer living near Melbern, committed suicide by taking poison. His body was found in the barn by his 7-year-old son. No cause is given. Nearly 400 members of the Porter-Lake

County Veterans' Association attended the fourteenth annual reunion at Valparaiso of the association, which numbers about 700 members. Edwin F. Carter of Evansville, a young theological student, has been missing for a week. He left for Alexandria, Va., and reached Cincinnati. A telegram was received from him saying he would immediately start for Alexandria. After this all trace of him has been lost. Mrs. Charles Carter of Chesterfield and "Del" Crane, a traveling man for a Michigan lumber firm, have eloped on a bicycle built for two. Years ago, before she became Mrs. Carter, they were lovers. When last seen they were pedaling over a hill ten miles north of Anderson. Prof. Harrison Staley of Sandborn made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide by swallowing morphine. Three weeks ago Prof. Staley was arrested and committed for assault with intent to kill Mrs. W. M. Wilcox. After lying in jail at Vincennes for ten days he gave bond and was released, and he returned home to arrange for the trial.

One of Two Ways.

The bladder was created for one purpose, namely, a receptacle for the urine, and as such it is not liable to any form of disease except by one of two ways. The first way is from imperfect action of the kidneys. The second way is from eareless local treatmens of other diseases.

CHIEF CAUSE.

Unhealthy urine from unhealthy kidneys is the chief cause of bladder troubles. So the womb, like the bladder, was created for one purpose, and if not doctored too much is not liable to weakness or disease, except in rare cases. It is situated back of and very close to the bladder, therefore any pain. disease or inconvenience maifested in the kidneys, back, bladder or urinary passage is often, by mistake, attributed to female weakness or womb trouble of some. The error is easily made and may be as easily avoided. To find out correctly, set your urine aside for twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates kidney or bladder trouble. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney, and bladder remedy is soon realized. If you need a medicine you should h. ve the bost.
