MISS PEARL HUGHSTON,
One door west of Keitzers grocery,
16w2 Monterey, Ind.

Measels are somewhat abating in Culver.

Abe Miller is improving in health. Send your laundry with C. M. Bonaker.

Grand mother Gandy who has been quite ill the past two or three weeks is convalescing.

C. M. Bonaker, our enterprising barber has taken the agency for the Plymouth Steam Laundry. Give him a trial.

Dr. Loring, of Burr Oak, was seen on our streets Wednesday.

Ira Paddock and wife, of Chicago, made a pleasant call at Prof. Seyferth's Art Studio, Wednesday.

Don't forget to call on Wm. Foss if you desire your boots and shoes repaired. He is located in the Nussbaum building first room up stairs. He is doing first class work at live and let live prices.

Last Saturday the Plymouth football team played the small boys who attend the Culver Military Academy and was literally "skinned" to a finish.

We wondered what made Chas. Hand so confounded high-toned of late and only found out Sunday that a daughter came to cheer his home about five weeks ago. Chas. now has a pair, a boy and a girl. Edgar Wilson is also several thousand dollars richer, as a bouncing boy came to his home about two weeks ago and demanded board and washing.

Farmers and citizens of Culver attention!—In the basement of the Osborn block Mr. Bonaker is conducting a barber shop. He is a first class workman and should receive the support of every citizen who is in need of work in his line.

Last Tuesday morning, Frank Cromley, who is the trusted and competent manager of the J. Heinz pickle salting works in this section of the state, moved to Kewanna, where he will be in closer touch with his work. Frank is a "rattling" good fellow, and the HERALD wishes him all manner of success, and knows that Culver's loss will be Kewanna's gain.

Master Earl Brown returned from Hammond last week. He has been visiting his father there the past ten days. While there he was the recipient of a new overcoat, rubber boots, under clothing etc, and he is "awful happy." We hope there are hundreds more motherless boys that are feeling just as happy.

If you have ever seen a little child in a paroxysm of whooping cough, or if you have been annoyed by a constant tickling in the throat, you can appreciate the value of One Minute Cough Cure, which gives quick relief. Culver City Drug Store.

"Here's a good one from an exchange: "Did you observe," said a merchant to a customer, "the handsome advertisement I have had printed on the railing of the bridge?" "No," replied the customer, "but if you will send the railing around to my house I will try to read the announcement. I read the papers and I haven't time to go around from place to place to read bill boards." And the merchant scratched his head and walked away."

Hunters Excursion Rates. Parties of three or more may secure one fare rates to designated local points on the line of the Nickel Plate Road, in Western Ohio and Indiana, also single tickets will be sold to points in the North West and South West.

Last Saturday evening, the Culver City Columbian Band gave their high-classed concert at Kewanna, at the Toner Opera House. The audience, though small, consisted of the highly cultured citizens of the village, to which the Band extends sincere thanks. It is probable that "There'll come a time," when the Band will appear in said village again under more favorable circumstances.

Passed Over the River.

John Geiselman, who has been very ill with consumption for the past three or four months, died at the home of his brother in the Osborn neighborhood, Sunday Oct. 24, aged about 37 years. He was well and favorably known in this section, as a young man of exemplary character, and leaves a large circle of friends. Also a mother, brothers, and sisters to mourn their loss. Funeral services were held at the residence on the 25th inst., conducted by undertaker Easterday, and funeral sermon was preached by Rev. G. W. Smith. The remains were laid at rest in North Union cemetery.

Died, Saturday evening after a prolonged illness, Mr. John Hacker, who lived near Ober, aged about 60 years. He leaves three sons and one daughter to mourn their loss. Funeral services Sunday at the residence. The body of the deceased was shipped to Indianapolis Monday for burial.

A Happy Gathering.

Last Sunday, a number of North Bend township Starke county, citizens, met at the residence of Ben Fetters' and paid their respects to Mrs. Becka Steere, of Rhode Island, who is visiting friends in said township. A joyful time is reported and a bountiful dinner was served. Mrs. Steere is a very small lady, and has traveled extensively through the United States with P. T. Barnum, and other shows. She is exceedingly bright, and a thorough business woman. Her husband weighs at present 50 lbs., and has traveled all over the country with his wife. They are now conducting a poultry farm in Rhode Island. Mrs. Steere, nee Myers, was formerly a resident of this section of the county and is a niece of Mr. Wm. Osborn, who, with his wife were present at the party.

New Shoe Store.

John Osborn, the banker; traded his farm upon the east side of the lake, this week, for a large stock of shoes and general foot-wear, to a Mr. Holton, who lives at Reynolds White county, Ind. MAGNIFICENT.

ELABORATE AND USEFUL STRUCTURES

To be Erected at Culver Park by Mrs. H. H. Culver and Sons, Which

Will be a Cavalry Riding Hall, Stables, Barracks and Chapel. All to be Absolutely Fire Proof.

Greatly to be praised in Culver City, is the name of H. H. Culver. But no less is the spirit of public benefaction, the ruling spirit of Mrs. Culver and sons, as now being manifested in them by the construction of the largest building of the kind in the United States, viz., a cavalry riding hall, 210x104 feet with dome 76 feet, the material to be brick and steel, making the building absolutely fire proof. In the mammoth building, there will be a balcony which will seat 1000 people, with separate balcony for the orchestra. They are to put up a large and handsome chapel, also new barracks and separate stables for the horses. All these buildings are to be of the latest design and modern improvements for beauty, strength, safety and utility. Beautiful for situation, the pride of the whole community, and useful to man will be these contributions at the hands of these enterprising people. As we have heard, so we have seen the city of Culver grow since the day our late father grew since our day our late departed benefactor opened his purse and applied its contents, and his brain and energy in his great plan of improvements. His precepts and example, his goodness and kindness, his benevolence and enterprise for individual and public advancement, in spirit, is being followed by his wife and sons, and added to the already extensive improvements will be these herein mentioned. So well might the citizens of Culver hail the day and honor the name that has and continues to shed luster to the glory of Culver City.

Maxenkuckee and Surrounding.

Out in the country south and east of here, the crops that were sown this fall, are looking far better than could be expected after such a long dry spell.

The road grader is at work east of the Alliance Store and is doing a fine job.

The meetings that have been held here for several weeks, closed last Sunday evening. During the time two young men were baptized.

The merchants are doing a fair business, considering the times.

It is talked that Dr. Babcock will move on his farm in a short time. Then Mr. Barnes, the store keeper will move into the house now occupied by the doctor.

Chester Bigley is now owner of a canopy top buggy and Guy Stevens a bicycle.

Some of the people are preparing for winter by the way the wood is thrown into their yards.

A. C. Edinger is having the measels the second time.

Mrs. Miles has been having another of her spells, but is now able to go out riding with her husband. Notning looks better than to see man and wife as good in old age as in their sparkling days.

A. B. Personett, of Mishawaka, who used to be the barber here, returned home last Friday after attending to his father's last days on earth and the funeral.

Some of the Culver City people attended the meetings here.

There seems to be considerable sickness by the way the doctor's rigs go out into the country.

C. Louden and J. Wilson have made their buggies look like new by a fresh coat of paint.

The school is well attended and is progressing through the mangement of Miss Bertha Hisong, teacher.

Mrs. Wise made a visit here looking after business matters.

The blacksmith is building up a fair business. He came here a stranger.

WIDE AWAKE.

It Saves the Croupy Children.

SEAVIEW, Va.—We have a splendid sale on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and our customers coming from far and near, speak of it in the highest terms. Many have said that their children would have died of croup if Chamberlain's Cough Remedy had not been given.—KELLAM & OUBREX.

FIVE LEFT OF 2,500.

ILLUSTRATION OF WEYLER'S STARVATION TACTICS.

Hunger and Fever Depopulate Chas-capaba-Havana but Little Better-Rebels Raid Towns, Loot Provisions, and Blow Up Spaniards.

Weyler's Mode of Warfare.

A Havana newspaper publishes and vouches for the following: "At Chas-capaba, in the district of San Julian, belonging to the municipality of Melena del Sur, there were concentrated 2,500 persons. These reconcentrados were the only inhabitants of the place. Now there are only five survivors; the rest died of hunger and fever. In Havana City it is no unusual sight to see ten or a dozen dead on one plaza early in the morning. The authorities, employ regular roundsmen to remove bodies from the parks. There is no abatement in the activity of the rebels in the western provinces. The Spanish regiment from Veraga, on its way to the Rubi hills in Pinar del Rio, stumbled across a dynamite bomb and lost ten men killed and forty-one wounded. Further on they came across another, but it failed to explode. The soldiers became terrified and refused to proceed. In Havana province 100 rebels of Raoul Arango's command entered and raided a town. They carried away a quantity of clothing and provisions without a shot being fired by the garrison. Near Artemisa, Havana province, a band of insurgents under Aca attacked and mached the Spanish guerrilla force stationed on the Neptuno estate.

OPPOSE ANNEXTION.

Hawaiians Will Send a Delegation to Washington.

A dispatch from Honolulu states that it has been definitely decided among the Hawaiians opposing annexation that a commission of five men should be sent to Washington to make a determined fight against the ratification of the annexation treaty. At least three Hawaiian societies will give their support to the movement. It is generally understood that J. O. Carter, a white man, will head the commission. A prominent citizen who has recently returned from Germany says that the Hawaiian annexation question is receiving some consideration among the German people. A number of prominent Germans expressed themselves in favor of the amalgamation of the two republics. In that event they think Germany should be allowed to take Samoa without interference on the part of the United States. Germany, they claim, has as much right to absorb Samoa as Uncle Sam has to take in Hawaii.

To Sell Two Men at Auction.

Two men in Lebanon, Ky., are to be sold at auction as slaves before the war. They were convicted of vagrancy at the last term of the Circuit Court, and it was ordered that they be required to work. In accordance with the laws Sheriff Young has posted bills on the court house announcing that he will, on Nov. 1, at the court house door, sell the services of one for nine months and the labor of the other for three months to the highest bidder.

Talked Without a Tongue.

Gen. Fredrico Puga, former secretary of state of Venezuela, and late consul general for that country at Philadelphia, died in New York. Gen. Puga has been tongueless for nearly seven years. It will be a source of surprise to many with whom he has mingled in daily conversation to learn that his tongue was amputated soon after he came to New York in 1892. He has been filling the consular position since 1895.

Wiping Out Four Tribes.

News received at Cairo from Somaliland shows that the Abyssinians are devastating that country. They have already dispersed or wiped out four great Somali tribes, have stolen all their live stock and have committed terrible atrocities. All the prisoners taken by the Abyssinians, it is added, were mutilated.

Work at Pribyloff Nearly Done.

Gen. Duffield of the coast and geodetic survey at Washington has received word from the Pribyloff islands which indicates that the party now engaged in the survey of the seal islands, under the direction of his son, will complete their labors this season.

Lets the Chinese In.

Judge Hanford, at Seattle, Wash., has ruled that the wives and children of Chinese merchants in America need no certificates from their Government to enable them to enter the United States. If this view is upheld, officials believe it will practically annul the exclusion law.

Rapid Transit Assured for Gotham.

The underground rapid transit system will be built in New York. A contract is said to have been practically signed with Gen. William Sooy-Smith.

Tuberculosis in Cattle.

Tuberculosis in an advanced stage has been found to exist in a herd of cattle owned by the Kansas State Agricultural College.

Justin Winsor Is Dead.

Justin Winsor, LL. D., librarian of Harvard and president of the American Library Association, is dead at Cambridge, Mass.

Prominent Politician Is Insane.

Former Congressman Charles M. Woodman of Chicago has been taken to a hospital, suffering from paresis.

CONVICTS PUT OUT "QUEER."

Aided from Outside - Perfect Specimens of the Coiner's Art.

Warden E. S. Wright of the Riverside penitentiary at Pittsburg has discovered that a number of the convicts confined in the institution have been manufacturing counterfeit 50-cent pieces. He has unearthed the metal from which the "queer" money was made, the molds in which it was cast and the names of several convicts who were connected with the matter, but as yet he has been unable to find the man who originated and carried out the scheme. The counterfeiters are magnificent specimens of the coiner's art. The die from which they were made is almost perfect, and the milling of the coins, which is the Government's chief protection of metal money from those who would imitate it, is as near perfect as it is possible for human ingenuity to make it. The counterfeiters had already secured a connection with outside parties and some of the bad money is now in circulation. Warden Wright has a list of nearly a score of convicts and other persons supposed to be connected with the counterfeiting, and when the full story of the crime comes out it is said there will be some sensational developments.

GOVERNMENT INVESTIGATION.

Means of Preventing Mississippi Floods Wanted.

United States Senator Nelson of Minnesota and J. H. Berry of Arkansas have been in St. Paul as part of the senatorial committee appointed at the last session to investigate the sources of the Mississippi river in conjunction with the United States army engineers for the purpose of devising means to prevent the annual floods and for the general improvement of the up-river country. The entire party has gone to the upper Mississippi river country to commence their investigations and explorations. The investigations will develop the advisability of constructing canals to divert the overflow, extending the reservoirs and using the surplus for general irrigation purposes as well as for improving the navigation of the river. The new river steamer built last summer for the Government took the party through the chains of reservoirs.

Very Ancient Americans.

One of the most fruitful of recent archaeological expeditions undertaken in this country has just returned to Washington with a tale of adventure and discovery, the result of a search in the barren waste of the far southwest for the ashes and crumbled ruins of lost races and forgotten civilizations. Early in the summer Dr. J. Walter Fawkes, explorer for the bureau of ethnology, with Dr. Walter Hough of the ethnological department of the National Museum, left Washington for portions of Arizona and New Mexico. The two explorers proceeded directly to the eastern boundary of Arizona, not far from Fort Defiance. According to the traditions in which they had gotten scent of the buried treasures to be excavated there once lived in those parts ancient people, said to be relatives of the Zunii, which tribe, long before the discovery of Columbus, occupied the site of the famous Seven Cities of Cibola, found three centuries ago by Francisco Vasquez de Coronado, in the valleys of the Rio Zuni. An Indian trader, who had squatted there several years ago, was the sole occupant of the site of this strange city when the explorers found it. This squatter had torn down all save a small corner of the circular walls, of whose stones he had built for himself a substantial habitation. Previous to his arrival the ruin had been well preserved, standing to a considerable height. The small cells or houses built in the walls had been repeated upward about four tiers of stories. The ancient spring which once had bubbled in the midst of the central courtyard was cleared by the ingenious squatter after it had been sealed by the dust for centuries.

Activity in All Lines.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Foreign trade in September, the heavy increase in iron production and consumption and the largest payments through clearings ever known in October are indications which outweigh hesitation in some markets. The increase in employment of labor has continued with further accounts daily of works opening, increasing force of hands or raising of wages, and at every point where actual production can be tested it appears greater than ever before. Sales of wool for two weeks have been 24,331,600 pounds at the three chief markets. Wheat has been fairly steady, but moving more largely than last year from the farms and from the country. Failures for the week have been 223 in the United States, against 328 last year."

Million Dollars for Sight.

Dr. Guelph Norman, a physician from India, has traveled more than half way around the earth to try to restore sight to the blind eyes of Millionaire Charles Broadway Rous of New York. Dr. Norman says he will restore sight in the eyes of the multi-millionaire within four weeks. The fact that Charles Broadway Rous offers $1,000,000 or more to be able to see reached Dr. Norman in his home in India.

Weds a Japanese.

Sir Edwin Arnold, poet and journalist, author of "The Light of Asia," and colleague of J. M. Lesage in the editorship of the London Daily Telegraph, has married a Japanese lady in London.

Tolstoi Suffering from Illness.

The Lokai Anzeiger of Berlin says that Count Lyof Tolstoi, the Russian author and social reformer, is suffering from an illness which will necessitate the performance of a serious operation.

Ran the Quarantine Blockade.

Douglass Bolte, a negro leader, was lynched at a small settlement on Bayou Barataria, about fifteen miles from New Orleans. His offense was running the quarantine blockade.

Luetgert Jury Disagreed.

After sixty-six hours of fruitless deliberation, the Luetgert jury walked into court in Chicago and reported a hopeless disagreement and was then discharged by Judge Tuthill.

TO FIGURE CLOSER.

PLAN TO SECURE BETTER CROP REPORTS.

Secretary Wilson to Reorganize the Division of Statistics - Dawes and Creeks Did Not Agree Upon a Treaty - Canada Will Give Thanks.

Wants Accurate Reports.

Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture has returned to Washington from a ten days' visit to Ohio, where he traveled among the farmers. He said: "As soon as the present crop season is over it is my purpose thoroughly to reorganize the division of statistics, and as far as possible consolidate the system with the weather bureau, as the character of the work is very similar. The plan which I propose to put into operation is to have an agent in each State. Where his salary is large enough to bring him under the civil service law a most rigid and practical examination will be exacted before he is appointed. With such an agent and an intelligent correspondent in each township the data collected by the division of statistics will be as reliable as it is possible to make it. The entire force will be reorganized and overhauled. I am determined that there shall be no guess work in the reports of the department and aim to have all the reports as complete and reliable as those of the weather bureau at present. With weekly reports on the condition of the crops, the kind of weather that has prevailed in every section of the United States and its effects upon the different soils and crops, it will be possible to make our monthly reports so accurate that experts who desire to figure out the yield and probable amount of various crops can do so for themselves. At the end of the crop season a review of the conditions that have prevailed, as shown in the weekly and monthly reports, will enable us to make an annual report in which a close estimate can be made of the amount produced of certain crops."

HAWAII DECLINES.

Japanese Immigration Treaty Is Not Satisfactory.

The tension between Japan and the Hawaiian Government has been increased. Settlement of the immigration dispute is blocked and no one now ventures an opinion touching the outcome. The Dole government has put its foot down against accepting a treaty formulated by Count Okuma for arbitrating the affair. This convention is all on Japan's side and practically commits the Government of Hawaii to the position that it has erred in preventing the landing of Japanese coolies. Minister of Foreign Affairs Cooper had a rather exciting interview with the Japanese representative, Mr. Shimamura, touching the demands of the mikado. The Japanese minister was informed that there must be material modification of the treaty before it would be acceptable to President Dole and to his cabinet. In fact, Japanese newspapers predicted that the treaty as drawn up at Yeddo would be laughed to scorn in Honolulu. Minister Hatch has sailed, carrying important information to President McKinley.

Gored by a Cow.

In an imitation bull fight on A. M. Small's farm, five miles north of Pine Camp, Neb., the 11-year-old son of Orrin F. Watt received fatal injuries. On the date set for the contest a crowd of boys and girls took seats on the fence surrounding a pasture into which the youthful torreadors had driven a vicious cow belonging to Mr. Small. From the first the struggle was an exciting one. After several boys had been tossed by the maddened animal Watt approached with a pitchfork to administer the coup de grace. His foot slipped as the cow rushed toward him and, before he could recover himself, he was frightfully gored.

Reveals a New Star.

The great telescope in the Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., has already given promise of the important astronomical discoveries which are confidently predicted with it as a medium. Prof. Barnard has announced that he has already discovered a third companion star to Vega. He found it solely because the Yerkes telescope is more searching than any other in the world.

Archibald M. Allerton Dead.

Archibald M. Allerton, a pioneer in the live stock trade, is dead at Moore's Fork, N. Y., aged 75 years. He built the first stock yards in New York City, also yards at West Albany, at Suspension Bridge, the National stock yards in East St. Louis and the stock yards in Toledo. His family holds a large interest in the Chicago stock yards.

Postmaster Stoned to Death.

Chas. and Henry Wilson broke the front plate glass out of the postoffice building at Pollock, Mo., went in and broke all the mail boxes and threw all the mail matter into the street. When M. C. Ellison, the postmaster, appeared they attacked him with stones, striking him near the left ear, crushing his skull.

Indian Treaty Rejected.

The treaty between the Dawes and Creek commissions, which was concluded at Muskogee last month, was rejected by the Creek council at Okmulgee, I. T. The house of warriors, the lower house of the Creek council, was unanimously against it, and only eight members of the house of kings voted for it.

Sheriff Foils a Mob.

A mob of 100 masked men attempted to enter the county jail at Liberty, Mo., for the supposed purpose of lynching William Foley and Frank Wade, two murderers held for trial. The sheriff assembled a few deputies and with a show of arms compelled the mob to disperse.

Guatemalan Revolution Ended.

The legation of Guatemala in Washington received the following official dispatch: "Revolution subdued; order restored all over the country."

COMING CABINET CHANGES.

President McKinley Will Await the New York and Ohio Elections.

As to President McKinley's intentions regarding the appointment of a new Attorney General in case Mr. McKenna is promoted to the supreme bench, the general opinion in Washington is that Judge Day, the first assistant Secretary of State, will either be made Attorney General and a new assistant secretary selected or that Sherman will retire, Day be appointed to succeed him and other changes and promotions made to fit the circumstances. So far as can be learned by Washington correspondents, however, the President has no intention of asking Mr. Sherman to resign, and the Secretary has said that he had never given the idea a moment's thought, and that he would remain to the end. The result in both Ohio and New York will have a direct influence on the President's action in reconstructing his cabinet.

STOLE FROM UNCLE SAM.

Government Employee Arrested for Theft of Coin.

Silver dollars are missing from the strong box of the treasury in Washington, and though it is believed that the loss is small, it may reach into the thousands. While the silver was being counted by weight a trusted employe was discovered in the act of opening one of the bags which contained 1,000 silver dollars each. It was discovered that lead had been substituted to make up the weight and Secretary Gage ordered a force of fifty men to count the silver by hand. This will take six months and will cost in the neighborhood of $25,000.

Await England's Action.

Unless the British foreign office of its own motion presses the negotiations in connection with the arbitration treaty, State Department officials in Washington say the matter will not again be taken up by this Government. In the past three months nothing has been done to expedite matters. When Secretary Sherman suggested to Sir Julian Pauncefote last June that the President would be gratified to see the negotiation of a treaty of general arbitration during his administration the latter expressed pleasure at the information and entered upon a discussion of the subject, which, however, was limited to generalities. Sir Julian then went to London to consult with Lord Salisbury on matters of importance and, acting under the instructions of the State Department, Ambassador Hay consulted with the British foreign office on the subject. Apparently the representations he made were not as enthusiastically received as were those of his predecessor. As a result the matter has languished, and now, department officials declare, Great Britain must be the one to revive the subject and push it to a successful conclusion.

Bill Nye's Widow Is Poor.

Disasters have fallen thick and fast upon Mrs. Clara F. Nye, widow of the late E. W. (Bill) Nye. She had $7,000 on deposit in the Asheville bank, which failed July 31 last. This and the loss of $30,000 in New York property left her almost penniless. "Buck Shoals," the homestead at Asheville, N. C., is for sale.

Potatoes Are Scarce.

Never since 1892 has the potato crop of the United States proved so nearly a failure, says the American Agriculturist, as the final reports of the yield of 1897. Compared with the liberal crop of last year, there is an apparent falling off of nearly 30 per cent in tonnage.

GLORIFIED THE SHIP.

CENTENNIAL OF THE FRIGATE CONSTITUTION CELEBRATED.

Boston Hoored the Old Hulk - Oration by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge - The Great Yerkes Telescope Presented to the University of Chicago.

A Famous Boat.

The centennial of the launching of the United States frigate Constitution was celebrated in Boston. First there was a naval parade participated in by the sailors and marines from the United States ships Massachusetts, Texas, Iowa, New York and Brooklyn, the naval brigade and the naval organizations. Exercises were held in Old South Church. Gov. Wolcott presided, and addresses were given by the chairman, Secretary of the Navy Long and Mayor Quincy. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was the orator of the day. The exercises were varied by the singing of patriotic songs by several hundred school children. In the evening the vessels of the North Atlantic squadron and other vessels in the harbor were illuminated. The celebration closed with a display of fireworks in the North End Park.

REVOLUTION INCUBATING.

Plot to Free San Domingo Is on Foot in New York.

The New York Journal and Advertiser says: "Efforts to crystallize the opposition to President Hereaux of San Domingo, the Spanish-speaking republic that shares with the French-speaking republic of Hayti, the West Indian island of Hayti, into a revolution, are said to be nearing completion in this city. The leader of the movement in New York is Gen. Moscoso, who arrived here last July and is said to have been constantly busy ever since with secret meetings with this purpose in view. Moscoso is barely 35 years of age. He was educated in this country and speaks several languages with fluency. His personal bravery is extolled as highly as his mental accomplishments, and his following at home is declared to be large and enthusiastic."

Snakes at Large in Ohio.

A museum was exhibited at Holgate, O., in a large car, which had on exhibition a glass and wire cage containing 400 snakes. The crowd was so great the cage was crushed, allowing the reptiles to run at large. Among the collection were a number of black diamond rattlesnakes, measuring from five to eleven feet long. They were stepped upon by the crowd and several persons were bitten. All the doctors in town were summoned to give medical aid.

Big Glass Dedicated.

Charles T. Yerkes' splendid gift is now in the possession of the University of Chicago. Mr. Yerkes has formally presented to President William R. Harper the keys of the observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., which contains the Yerkes telescope. The ceremonies covered two hours, and the greatest refracting telescope in the world, having a forty-inch lens, is dedicated and ready to be used by astronomers from every part of the globe.

Corsets Save Her.

Miss Daisy T. Coulters, a Brown university student, was mysteriously shot while seated at the front window of her father's home in Auburn, a suburb of Providence, R. I. The would-be murderer stood close to the window and fired a shotgun, which was loaded with slugs and bird shot. The charge entered Miss Coulters' right breast and but for the deflection caused by her corset stays would have caused instant death.

New Arkansas Railway.

The shareholders of the Springfield, Little Rock and Gulf Railroad Company have authorized President Hinsey to issue first-mortgage bonds to construct and equip 700 miles of road under the provisions of the Smith land grant bill passed by the last Arkansas Legislature. President Hinsey says the road will certainly be built and work will begin between now and Dec. 26.

Mrs. Todd Found Guilty.

The case of the State against Mrs. Virginia Todd, charged with the murder of her daughter, Hattie Bethel, has been in process in the criminal court of Ralls County, in New London, Mo. The jury reported finding the defendant guilty of murder in the second degree and fixing her punishment at twenty-five years in the State penitentiary.

A Fatal Quarrel.

Thomas Y. Reynolds, aged 50, for many years court reporter for one of the St. Louis papers, shot and killed Joseph Kirby, aged 29, a clerk in a railway office and a talented singer. The shooting was said to have been the result of a quarrel. It occurred in St. Louis. Reynolds gave himself up.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE

FAMOUS LUETGERT MURDER CASE ENDS IN A MISTRIAL.

Jury Was Out Sixty-six Hours and Stood on Last Ballot Nine to Three for Conviction—New Trial Will Be Necessary.

End of the Long Siege.

The great Luetgert trial in Chicago, the most absorbing criminal prosecution of the century, ended in a disagreement of the jury. For sixty-six hours the jury tried in vain to reach a verdict. For thirty-eight hours the vote was 9 to 3 for conviction and at 10:40 o'clock Thursday forenoon the twelve men announced an irreconcilable disagreement, and Judge Tuthill, being convinced that it was useless and inhuman to attempt to force a verdict, reluctantly ordered its discharge. The twenty-second and last ballot stood nine for conviction and three for acquittal. This was irrespective of any question of the penalty which had to wait on the jury's decision as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner. The big sausage maker, the center of a series of the most dramatic episodes in the annals of criminal procedure, will have to go through this experience a second time, for he will be put on trial again for the murder of his wife.

The closing events of the famous trial made up a scene of not more than eleven minutes' duration. But a tense, feverish emotion was packed into every one of these minutes and even Luetgert, with his iron nerve, felt the strain. His face was bloodless as he entered the court room and a tangle of deep furrows extended across his brow. A keen, swift look shot from beneath his shaggy gray eyebrows and his glance seemed to take in at a flash that the supreme moment in his fate had arrived. As he came in from the jail a battery of eyes threw at him looks whose significance expressed all degrees of curiosity. In his walk, his manner, his mien, constraint was there and the anxiety that sent the blood from his cheek and put a purple tinge on his lips was visibly shared in by his counsel.

Court was opened and the jurors notified to appear. Nearly three days of wrangling, loss of sleep, and the close confinement had worked a wonderful transformation on them. They entered the room with lagging steps and sank into their chairs a woe-begone looking crowd.

ADOLPH LUETGERT.

In response to command from Judge Tuthill, Foreman Heichhold arose in his place and announced as his positive belief that no verdict could be reached. The judge interrogated the jurymen individually and each positively declared that no influence or argument could change his opinion. The attorneys for both sides agreed that the jury be discharged, and it was done.

Thus ended the first trial of what must be regarded as one of the most remarkable criminal cases of the century. The trial was in progress nearly nine weeks and cost the State of Illinois over $15,000. Of the disagreement it can frankly be said that the division in the jury fairly represents the division of opinion in the great world outside the jury box, where every fact and incident of the trial has been followed with engrossing scrutiny. It is probable that a poll of all those who have given intelligent consideration to the testimony and the law as laid down by the court would present a division of three to one in favor of a conviction. The proportion of those who believe in the prisoner's guilt is probably much greater. But belief in guilt and convicting a prisoner on circumstantial evidence such as that produced for the State in this case are two very different things.

Ready for a New Trial.

State's Attorney Deneen said he would press for another trial, but when he did not know. He said it would be on the same theory as the one finished was prosecuted. The vat theory, the boiling of the body of his wife in crude potash, and again the convincing part of the evidence of the heinous murder would be the rings. It was the rings that fortified the majority in the jury in its demand for the conviction of Luetgert. Attorneys Vincent and Phalen said they were ready for the new trial whenever it might be held. They said they would present a far stronger defense than before. Luetgert said he was anxious for another trial and confident it would be ended in his acquittal. He charged the failure of securing a verdict that would exonerate him from the fearful charge to the fact that Juror Shaw was accepted. The next time, he asserts, he will take the stand in his own defense, with or without the consent of his counsel. Judge Tuthill said that he believed it would be impossible to select a competent jury in Cook County on account of the publicity given to the proceedings of the trial just ended. It is therefore possible that Luetgert may never be tried again.

Luetgert said he was not surprised that the jury disagreed and that he was confident no verdict would be made twenty-four hours before. He was not taken by surprise when he heard Foreman Heichhold announce that no verdict had been made and none was likely to follow. Neither was it a surprise to him when every man in the jury box said the same thing in response to the questions of Judge Tuthill as he polled the jury. No objection was made to the discharge of the jury. Judge Tuthill asked Attorneys Vincent and Phalen what they were disposed to do and they said it seemed as if the discharge of the jury was the only thing justified by the situation. Luetgert was then asked the same question by Judge Tuthill and he agreed with his attorneys. State's Attorney Deneen said he thought it was apparent that the jury could not agree. Not once, however, did the jurors ask to be discharged. They were a determined set of fighters and they looked for no interference on the part of the judge, in whose discretion they might have been released at any time.

In the interviews given by members of the jury they said they paid little attention to the bones. Although the battle of the osteologists was the great feature of the trial, the sesamoid, femur and other bones which were introduced in evidence as portions of Mrs. Luetgert, and over which the battle was fought, were not considered by the jurors. They were cast aside as having no weight in proving guilt. To the way of thinking employed by several of the jurors, the work of impeaching the Schimpke girls and Nick Faber was fruitless. There were those in the jury who gave credence to their testimony that they saw Mrs. Luetgert with her husband going toward the engine room of the factory that night.

Greater, however, than all of the evidence was that of the rings. The absence from the smaller ring of any milling was the point that did most to keep the three jurors strong in their assertion that Luetgert was innocent. Nearly all of the witnesses said the small ring had a milled edge when they saw it with Mrs. Luetgert, while the one in evidence had a smooth outer surface. And when it was all ended an encomium of Inspector Schaack's methods issued from the jury room. With the exception of Foreman Heichhold, who wrote this peculiar document in which Schaack's manner of securing evidence was commended, most of the jurors denied any knowledge of signing such a document. They admitted having signed resolutions of thanks to Judge Tuthill and the court officers, but exhibited no knowledge of the last paragraph which sounded approval of the north side police inspector.

Were it not for Juror Harley, it is asserted by many of the other jurors, a verdict of guilty would have been rendered. Harley was convinced of Luetgert's innocence and he voted for acquittal on every ballot. His positiveness was a prop and support to Holabird and Barber, who voted with him on every ballot. When he left the court building he was cheered by the crowds in the street, who distinguished him as the one who was immovable in his belief of the prisoner's innocence.

After nearly two months of legal contention the case goes upon the records to be cited as another of the historic murder trials of the century. The celebrity of this sensational case has been partly due to the extraordinary character of the alleged crime as described by the State and partly to the unusual developments of the trial itself. The State had before it the difficult task of evoking the image of Mrs. Luetgert from a few bones and two gold rings. To connect the dead woman with the accused it then had to present to the jurors a story which naturally would seem hard to believe, and in proof of which it had only circumstantial evidence to offer. Experts were called in to identify bones and debris, and then these gentlemen were promptly met by experts for the defense who were able to deny the possibility of such an identification. This feature of the case, more even than the length of time consumed and the endless technical discussions, will call attention again to the marked inferiority of American criminal procedure as compared with that abroad. There was a waste of time and money and there was an unconscionable waste of words. There were times during the testimony of the experts when the recondite investigations into science became almost farcical and made this grave case a subject of jocular mention throughout the country.

As a result of all this the jury when it retired for a consideration of the law and the evidence found it impossible to unite on any verdict satisfactory to all of the twelve men. After spending sixty-six hours in heated discussion a majority numbering nine men gave up the attempt to persuade the other three that Luetgert should be convicted and Judge Tuthill let them all go home.

While the majority of the public may believe that Luetgert was guilty of the terrible crime laid to his charge, there has always been room for a lingering doubt in many minds that would operate powerfully on a juror's mind to prevent conviction. But for this lurking fear of doing an irreparable injustice to an innocent man the circumstances of this case would have placed Luetgert beyond the pale of human sympathy. The trial with its disagreement has blasted his life forever—a wrong beyond repair if he is innocent, a righteous retribution if the circumstantial testimony of the deserted factory and its hideous evidences of crime told the truth.

M'KINLEY'S IMAGE IN BRONZE

Medals Now Being Struck Off by the Philadelphia Mint. Bronze medals bearing the likeness of President McKinley are being rapidly struck off by the mint, and soon the whole issue will have been finished. This work is being done in accordance with an ancient custom that has prevailed ever since the time of Washington. The medals are very valuable, inasmuch as the supply is

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Shoots His Inamorata and Then Himself—Hammond Man Dies of Lockjaw—Found Dead in a Well—He Declines a Consulship.

Murder and Suicide.

A double tragedy occurred in Logansport, at the home of ex-Councilman Schaefer. Miss Laura Bopp, a domestic, was shot by Charles Ward, a young machinist, who then fired two bullets into his own body. One of the shots penetrated his heart and his death was instantaneous. The couple were engaged to be married.

Shot by a Boy.

At Maulridge Church, four miles west of Bedford, a fight occurred, resulting in the death of William Pierce and the serious wounding of his brother Walter. The Pierces were shot by Alonzo Roach, who went to Bedford and asked to be locked up. The tragedy is the result of a feud of long standing between the Pierce and Roach families, who live in the same neighborhood.

Declines the Consulship.

James S. Dodge of Indianapolis has announced that he prefers the position of department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic in Indiana to the consulship at Nagasaki, Japan, and he sent to the State Department a letter declining the appointment. He is the third to decline the appointment.

Lockjaw Kills Henry Huehn.

PULLMAN IS NO MORE.

PALACE CAR MAGNATE DIES OF HEART FAILURE.

End Comes Suddenly in the Early Morning—Started a Poor Lad at $40 a Year and at Death Was Reputed Worth $40,000,000.

Career Is Closed.

George M. Pullman, president of the Pullman Palace Car Company, died at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, at his home in Chicago. Death was sudden, and is attributed to heart failure. Monday night Mr. Pullman retired at 11 o'clock, after entertaining a party of friends at his home. At that time he made no particular complaint regarding his health.

During the past month Mr. Pullman had been ailing, but the trouble was not sufficient to interfere with his business, and Monday he was at his office as usual. Early Tuesday morning a friend, who was stopping with Mr. Pullman, heard a slight noise from his host's bedchamber and entered to see Mr. Pullman make his way to a safe, where he fell gasping for breath. Physicians were summoned, but the sick man had expired before a doctor could reach his side. His very sudden death came as a shock to his relatives and friends, and as it became known throughout the city formed the chief topic of conversation in business circles. Mrs. Pullman was in New York at the time of her husband's demise.

Founder of a City.

George Mortimer Pullman, one of Chicago's most distinguished citizens and founder of the city which bears his name, was born in Chautauqua County, N. Y., March 3, 1831. At the age of 14 he was a clerk in a country store at $40 a year and his board. Three years later he went to Albion, N. Y., where he was employed as a cabinetmaker. During the following ten years he was engaged in contract work of various kinds. In 1859 he went to Chicago. Between 1859 and 1862 he remodeled several passenger coaches into sleeping cars. These cars were first run over the Chicago and Alton and Galena and Chicago railroads. In 1865 the first complete sleeping car, "The Pioneer," was finished at a cost of $18,000. He then organized the Pullman Palace Car Company and established the plant at the town of Pullman, which was a plan of his own creation, and has grown to splendid proportions and is known the world over as a model city. At the time of his death Mr. Pullman is reputed to have been worth $40,000,000.

The Pullman Palace Car Company is the largest railroad manufacturing interest in the world. It employs a capital of $40,000,000 and has assets exceeding $45,000,000. About the time of the World's Columbian exposition it had in its service 2,239 cars and employed 13,885 persons, whose annual wages aggregated $3,331,527, being an average of $610 per capita. At present, however, both the number of employes and their wages are lower than then.

But, although Mr. Pullman was the moving spirit of this vast enterprise, his capacity for business was not fully satisfied in any single venture. Among the important interests with which he was identified were the Eagleton iron works of New York, and the New York Loan and Improvement Company, which he organized and which built the Metropolitan Elevated Railway on Second and Sixth avenues. He had also been interested in the Nicaragua canal plan since its inception.

At the time it was constructed, in 1884, the Pullman office building, where the business headquarters of the car company are maintained, was probably the finest business and apartment block in Chicago, and it does not stand behind many to this day. His home, a mansion of brown stone on Prairie avenue and Eighteenth street, is one of the finest appointed residences in Chicago.

In business Mr. Pullman was prompt but never hasty. Socially, he was courteous in manner, but his formality was not such as to make him unapproachable. In 1867 he married Miss Hattie A. Sanger, daughter of James T. Sanger of Chicago. Their four children are Florence, Harriet, George M. and Walter, the last two being twins.

Enterprise-

Mr. Editor:—A "Newspaper" like the "Town pump" is a public blessing—one stimulates the brain, the other the stomach.

The far reaching influence of a newspaper in worth, is beyond the estimate of the ordinary thinker. We are too liable to under estimate what we have and over-value what we have not. We are prone to follow after strange gods, and in this we are giving "meat" at times to the enemy, only to find ourselves hungry. No individual can afford to do more for another than he ought to do for himself, nor can any town afford to contribute its patronage against the rest of its home enterprises. We should be interested in the growth of Culver City. The idea of a community of push is the central idea that guards the growth of a town or city, and here in Culver City, we ought to more incline to and strive for business growth. The size of a town is the liberality and enterprise of its citizens. Small men, financially narrow contracted, dog in the manger, pea-nut hull capacity, etc., make a town after their own image and likeness, while a broad, liberal, public spirited, judicious citizen or business man builds after his own kind. These truths may be homely, but they are truths, all the same. There is no town more capable for city opportunities, to say the least, than is Culver City, and every enterprise that tends to make a link in the chain of business activity and expansion, should be encouraged and will be by every liberal minded citizen, and to this end, the medium can express more influence and form a more powerful newspaper. As the town pump is the thirst quencher for every man, woman and child, so is the town newspaper the public's mouth piece. We are not directing our mind, nor driving the pencil on this occasion, partially, but impartially in behalf of the practical worth of a newspaper and the value of public spirited men. Selfishness in man is the hog nature of the individual, and swine are known for their hogishness and this is one cause for their impure blood.—See?

Every business in Culver City is in the hands of competent men and with such business competency, we ought to grow, spread out and make Culver City most prominent because of local enterprises. So, up with the grist mill, secure that school, build water works, but in all be prudent.
 V. P. KIRK.

It is wonderful to watch an "expert" put together the many fine pieces of a mutilated banknote, pasting each piece carefully on thin paper in its proper place, using a fine pointed flat knife and a glass plate the size of a bank note. This plate is marked off in sections, in order to determine the value to be placed on the part redeemed at that time, as some one might bring the other portion later, and so get more than the value of the note. Every precaution is taken to prevent fraud, and under the sharp eyes of the lady counters an error very rarely occurs.

On one occasion money was carefully hidden in a pair of heavy working boots, to be remembered almost too late, for even Uncle Sam's experts to save the remnants of the once crisp notes. A hundred dollar bill is so small an obstacle in a boot, compared with the good it might do in circulating some other way. In one instance I saw a box of tiny bits no larger than a little fingernail, with an affidavit all correctly filled out and signed, but as the lady expert picked up the pieces she said: "This paper does not feel like the right kind of fiber," and sure enough, when put together, it was found to be the trick of a counterfeiter. He had hoped to get from the Treasury two hundred dollars in good new bills for that box full of worthless paper.

Thousands of dollars are saved every year for careless or often over-careful people by the expert laws of the Treasury Department.

MYSTERY OF A MINE.

People Who Enter It Fall Asleep and Their Bodies Become Rigid.

From the Butte (Mont.) Miner: "In this line of work we come across some curious accidents and narrow escapes," said Deputy Mine Inspector Frank Hunter the other night. "One thing struck me long ago, and that is how much it takes to kill a man sometimes and how easily the thread of life is often snapped."

"Down in Colorado I knew a fellow who plunged down 800 feet in a single compartment shaft. He went to the bottom, but did not break a bone. Of course, he was pretty badly jarred up and a good deal frightened, but he was all right again in a day or two. When he fell he went down feet first, and a big oil-skin that he wore opened out at the bottom and acted as a parachute. He said the last part of his descent was so much slower than the first that he hardly thought he was dropping at all and half expected to remain suspended in the shaft like Mohammed's coffin. Nearly always when a man falls any distance he turns over, if he starts feet downward, and finishes his plunge head first. I have seen a number of cases where the man fell with his boots on and was found barefooted when he was picked up. I suppose this is because the blood goes to the head, making the feet smaller, and besides the pressure of the air upon the heel and counter acts as a bootjack. I had to go over to Sand Coulee to investigate an accident in which one man was killed and another had three ribs broken. Speaking of Sand Coulee, it occurred to me while I was there that if I wanted to commit suicide I would go there to do so. I don't mean that life becomes such a burden in the coal country that the ties that bind are more easily severed than elsewhere, but that it affords unsurpassed facilities for a cheap and happy dispatch. It's a wonder to me that some of the many people who annually launch themselves into eternity from Butte do not take the Sand Coulee route. Down in the coal mines there is one passage that is three miles long, and in some of the chambers air does not seem to circulate. Upon the walls there is a gathering of moisture, and if you puff a cigar in one of these chambers the smoke will seek the walls, where it clings with an undulating movement like a spray of weeds under running water. That dew on the walls is white damp, and the dead air of the chamber where it is found is poisonous. In a few minutes a feeling of drowsiness steals over a man who breathes it, and before long he is asleep and dreaming deliciously, so those say who have been resuscitated. But the sleep is akin to that of the lost traveler over whose numbed limbs the Arctic snow eddies and drifts, for unless help comes soon there is no awakening. If, however, the venturesome explorer of those underground deathtraps realizes his danger in time and manages to stagger out into the fresh air, he has an experience to undergo which may cause him to regret that he did not remain inside. Every bone and muscle aches with the intolerable poignancy that is known to convalescents from yellow fever. The treatment is simple, but effective. Being nearly dead, the sufferer is nearly buried. A hole is dug in the soft earth and the victim is made to stand up in it while the dirt is thrown in around him until only his head is seen above ground. This draws out the soreness, and in a short time the patient has recovered."

Very interesting are the queen's almshouses, a long row of cottages, connected into a rambling building covered with ivy, picturesque and pretty. Here live the widows of the Osborne estate and several old couples whose days of toil are ended. One particularly bright couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jackman—he having driven a plow before the estate was purchased by the queen and having passed into her service along with the property.

Words in the English Language.

It is quite unnecessary for any writer to interlard his work with foreign words or phrases. There are now over 250,000 words in the English language acknowledged by the best authorities, or about 70,000 more than in the German, French, Spanish and Italian languages combined. One can easily understand foreigners borrowing from English, but it seems inexcusable for English writers to burden their works with words taken from languages with a much smaller number of words than are to be found in our dictionaries.

Niles Michigan vs. Culver Military Academy.

Last Monday afternoon, the Niles, Michigan, "Cracker-Jack" foot-ball team arrived in Culver ostensibly for the purpose of having a little bout with the Military Academy Club. The visitors were all fine athletic looking young men, and one could see at a glance that so far as weight is concerned, they far out-classed the Academy team. When all the preliminaries were attended to, the team took their respective places upon the field and the game had not progressed far before it was evident that what the Academy team lacked in weight, it made up in superior activity, and a more thorough knowledge of the fine tactics used in playing the game, hence when the end came the score stood 28 to 0 in favor of the academy team. Among those who were in such position to render their team valuable assistance, and did distinguish themselves in the game, were Cadet Curry, Capt. Dean, Lightfoot and Bigwood. The balance of the team were so arranged that they were unable to distinguish themselves upon open field, although their work was well and systematically done. Their opponents did good work, but like every club so for this season that have met our Military Club, they were not near enough up to date in the game to stand a "ghost of a show" for winning. The Culver Military Academy team is thoroughly trained to work together, and by so doing seemingly make few mistakes and are constantly upon the alert to secure vantage ground and maintain it. We say hurrah for the "C. M. A."

Autumn Melody.

When the summer's torch is laid away
In the Sun's palace-hall again,
And lamps of mellow light are held
By him above the earth and main,
How best to wander through the world
Bathed in a broad, calm sea of gold,
Or through the forest-aisles that stand
Like pictured cloisters on the land,
While quiet laps the soul-like rhymes
Of love breathed by the masters of the olden times.

The torrent takes a softer tone,
The southwinds even milder breathe,
The clouds on morning's gate of gold
In tenderer lines of beauty wreath:
All seem as if, together, they
Had made consent to weave a lay
Of perfect peace that seraph ears
Might lean to listen from the spheres
Where War his standard ne'er unfurled,
And rainbows evermore by bloodless hands are curled.

O time of mild magnificence
O season of angelic birth!
Spread, softly spread your lustrous wings
Like benedictions o'er the earth!
And we, the heirs of storm and wo,
Will in your large, delicious glow
Divine a prophecy that yet
All men, in brother counsels met,
Shall light no war-torch on the sod,
But walk alone beneath the mellow lamps of God.

—WILLIAM ROSS WALLACE, in New York Ledger.

A Gilded Hero.

BY E. L. SABIN.

The steamer had been buffeted by the stiff gale for twenty-six hours, and when the second day dawned the wind had increased to a hurricane. The sky was a leaden mass, gloomy, inert, and brooding, offering no hope of a change and no glimpse of the sun. Clouds which have a distinct outline look as if they might eventually be driven away; but a sullen sheet of gray is hopelessly dispiriting.

The waves had attained tremendous momentum, and were being piled higher and higher by the storm. Gray like the sky, they tumbled in savage glee aboard the vessel, rushing triumphantly from the forward quarter aft. It seemed as if legions of sea demons were hastening from all directions, riding upon the snow white crests of the angry billows, to assail the struggling ship.

But ocean steamers, such as the Kaiser Wilhelm, are not easily daunted, and the stout craft was steadily plunging ahead, the captain with difficulty maintaining his position on the bridge, the stokers in the depths shoveling coal into the greedy furnaces, and the cabin passengers trying to keep right side up in their state rooms or in the saloon. The steerage passengers were praying. Cabin passengers pray only in extremities.

Three days out of Bremen—three days of mal de mer and general unpleasantness; for who, even the most seasoned mariner, could survive the weather, and smile? One storm had followed in the path of another. This morning, the saloon was sparsely occupied. Ladies, save one, were either ill in their berths, or with closed eyes were languidly lolling in deeply cushioned chairs. Gentlemen, save one, were either in their state rooms or in the smoking apartment.

The two exceptions to the rule were Edith Pettit and Roger Melton Thomson. Talking in low tones they sat in chairs snugly established on the leeward side, so that the feet of the sitters could be braced in case of an unusually severe roll.

Edith Pettit was what men and women alike call "an awfully nice girl." There was nothing dainty or ethereal about her. She was a healthy, well-groomed American damsel, able to play golf or tennis half the day, and dance rather more than half the night. The rays from the electric globes fell on her abundant hair, light but not golden, and her smooth cheeks, and glistened on her even, white teeth when she spoke or laughed. Perhaps her chief charm lay in her gray eyes, full and clear, and as honest as could be—a standing challenge to mankind to win an approving glance from them.

Thomson was little different from a hundred other men you meet at the club; regular features, brown mustache and eyes, hair of the same color and brushed straight down from the part in the middle; a wholesome-looking boy, but not noticeably brilliant. He and Miss Pettit were engaged.

"I don't know," he was saying, twisting a tassel on her chair, "that I care to have more of this weather. The mater has not been out of her room since we started, and I fancy you cannot stand my society much longer at a stretch. Otherwise I should say, 'Blow, ye breezes, blow.'"

"Oh, any port in a storm can be construed to read any man in a storm, if I wanted to say something mean. Speaking in earnest, Roger, I do not see what I should have done without you, as poor mamma has been so miserable. You have been so good and obliging, actually denying yourself to the smoking room."

"Well, you have had an opportunity to find out how angelic I really am. When we are married you will be on the watch for wings to grow from my shoulders." His voice had a slightly bitter tinge as he concluded.

"After our ups and downs of the present, we can find anything smooth sailing, I think, don't you?" she responded, smiling into his eyes as he looked at her solemnly. "Shan't you be glad to see America again, and dear old New York?"

"Edith, do you know I rather dread it—getting back? Here I have you all to myself. There—well, I might as well tell you, I am desperately selfish. Angels are, sometimes. Expect Jack Dorr will be in town, won't he? He was to have returned last month."

"Yes, very probably, but—"
"I wonder if you will take offense if I tell you something," he went on, interrupting her, with a consciousness of what she was about to ask. "I have not been blind. I am sure that if you were not engaged to me you would marry Jack. He is better than I, I admit; only I am in luck, as always, and he has been pursuing hard lines. I would not blame you. All the girls like him. I am not complaining. Edith, only I want to let you see that I am taking you with my eyes open, and you need have no secrets from me. I trust you, dear."

"Roger, please don't. Jack and I have been friends for many years, quite too many to mention, for I am terribly old. Now I am your affianced wife, and no one else, except my mother, has any claim on me. I cannot say I love you, dear, as some women love men. We have talked this matter over before. But I do admire and respect you, very, very much. Let's discuss something new."

Thomson moved uneasily, and settled down as if with a fixed purpose. His hand stole along the arm of her chair and covered her fingers.

"No," he replied, "I want to say a little more, and please listen to me. I fear I am in a disagreeable mood, but this is about the last chance I shall have to set matters right, and it is not too late. If you think you will ever regret having married me, Edith, you ought to say so now. I—I will release you—that is, you know what I mean. You're not bound—"

"Roger, don't—"
"Yes, I must go on, dearest. I wish I was not rich or useless. I am a man, as well as Jack Dorr, but I have had my way paved for me, and never was urged to do anything to make people look up to me. Of course I am not a sot or a roue. But what am I? There's Jack, who is making his way alone and unaided, and getting no end of praise for the work he is turning out. He is bound to be a great sculptor, everybody says. He is a mighty fine fellow, and any girl should be proud of him. Until I met you I never had an incentive to make my mark. You see our family have always had everything they wanted, and I was brought up to it."

"Dear boy, you must not talk so. I know, and I wish everyone knew, what a generous, noble man you are—one of the very best in the world. I used to like Jack; all the girls do, as you say. I might have married him, if circumstances had permitted it, but at the time he was too poor to support us both. Now, I understand, his future is assured. He was my playmate and companion, oh, so long. But, dear, I owe you a debt of gratitude that I can only partly pay by making you, as I wish, the happiest man alive. If others knew what you have done for us—mamma and me—when we were in trouble, they would not be forever bringing up Jack's name. They would see why I admire you, and why I am glad to give myself to you, if you really want me. So let's drop the subject. I am going to be your wife just as soon as I can, and you cannot get out of it, and I expect to be happy, too."

"I don't know," laughed Thomson. "I could run away from my dreadful fate, and leave you to my worthy Jack. But I suppose I ought to be satisfied to have you for my own, even if you do not love me as I hoped you would. Oh, Edith," he continued wistfully, "if I could only win your entire heart! I feel now that I have bought, not earned you."

"What is the use of talking that way, Roger? You deserve me, if ever a man did woman. I cannot go through life with a lie on my lips, by telling you I love you. It would be unjust to you, and you would be miserable when you came to see it. I have laid bare to you my sanctum sanctorum, and now, dear, won't you take me as I am?"

"Who am I to refuse such a gift? But if I was out of the road, you would marry Jack, wouldn't you?—and I am keeping you from it."

The girl arose, her eyes filled with tears. "You are unkind," she replied. "I am trying to please you and be to you all that you want, and I fail to satisfy you. Now I am going to mamma."

"Forgive me, Edith," said the man, stepping to her side. "I had no business to do that. You are too good for me. Let me know if I can do anything for the mater. I am going to stick my head out on deck, and will get in better temper."

When Roger Thomson peered on deck he saw the same scene that had greeted his eyes for the past two days, whenever he had attempted to emerge from cover—water beneath and above, flying spray and huge waves showing between attacks. Dripping, he speedily withdrew from the battlefield, encountering the purser as he did so.

"What do we intend to do?" asked Thomson. "Stay afloat, or sink?"
"We're trying to get back to port just at present. This is about the only direction we can move. We haven't gone very far, and ought to find anchorage by to-morrow, the Lord be praised. This does beat any storm I ever saw."

"Same here, purser. Much obliged for the information," and Roger hastened to impart the news to Edith and her mother, by shouting it through the closed door of their state room.

Morning came again. The storm had abated considerably, and the seas were rapidly falling. But the ship had been so battered by the elements that the captain thought best to continue on the course toward the nearest port, where needed repairs could be made to the bent propeller. A rocky coast line was already dimly descried in the distance.

Eight bells had struck. Wan passengers had appeared on deck. Suddenly there was a crash that made the steamer shiver, and a sound of splintered wood and of iron plates torn asunder. Then the startled cries of men came faintly from the engine room. The steady whirling of the screws ceased. The vessel listed to port. The steerage was full of groans and shrieks and appeals for divine aid. Officers rushed below.

Roger Thomson was among the few cabin passengers on deck. In the confusion consequent upon an accident at sea, he ascertained that the steamer had a broken shaft, and that the hull had been badly damaged by the mighty piece of mechanism when it snapped. Then the voice of the first officer was heard.

"The captain requests that all gather together their valuables and prepare to leave the steamer. There is no immediate danger, but the boats will be launched and the passengers taken to the shore, which is only a few miles distant. Please carry only necessary clothes, and remember, there is no immediate danger."

This message was repeated in other parts of the vessel. Thomson turned to Edith and her mother.

"Don't be frightened," he said. "The captain is only taking a proper precaution. Better get your things, and I will wait for you, unless I can help you down there. No? All right. Make haste!"

Boats were quickly lowered into the water, and the rafts were flung over the sides. Passengers were scurrying in every direction, ending by tumbling into the crafts as best they could. Edith and her mother appeared.

"Here you are," cried Thomson. Mrs. Pettit, shut your eyes and trust to the Lord. There you go. Now, Edith."

But she had vanished. "Hurry up!" came the hoarse cry from the only waiting boat. Roger saw that he was alone on the deck. Even the captain had embarked. Disregarding the summons, he ran in mad haste to the Pettits' state room. Edith was there, searching frantically underneath the lower berth.

"Oh, Roger," she exclaimed, "that little satchel containing the deed! Did mamma have it?"

"Yes, I saw it. For God's sake, hurry on deck, Edith! We shall be left. Where's your life preserver?"

"I couldn't find another. Everybody seemed to grab them, and a man jerked the one I had out of my hands."

By this time they were at the rail again. The boat had drifted away slightly, but was not moving. It was jammed with human beings, and the crew were afraid to be so near the disabled vessel.

"Edith, take this," said Thomson, strapping about her waist the life-preserver he had been wearing. "Close your eyes and lips. You can't sink. They will pick you up."

"And you, Roger?" she asked, clinging to him.

"I'll be all right. I'll follow you. I can swim. Oh, my darling," he whispered, as he lifted her and held her tightly for a moment, "it is for the best that you have not loved me. You and Jack think of me, sometimes." With a sudden motion he threw her over.

Gasping, strangled, it was a number of minutes after she was hauled into the boat before she was able to look around.

"Where's Roger?" were the first words she uttered.

"Pull away, pull away strong, my lads!" shouted the boat's officer sternly.

Edith, in spite of her mother's restraining arms, stood up. How low in the water the Kaiser Wilhelm was! And there, there on the deck, a lone silhouette against the sky, was Roger. She knew him at once.

"Oh, Roger, Roger," she called, as though her voice could reach him.

"No use, miss," said the officer. "He told me yesterday that he couldn't swim, and, any way, the suction will draw him under, poor fellow."

But afar, as if Edith's tones had sounded on his ear, the mute figure waved his hand. Then, in an instant, the steamer was blotted out, and only sea remained.—The Puritan.

DEATH OF MR. DANA.

PASSES AWAY IN HIS LONG ISLAND HOME.

The New York Journalist, After a Long Battle for Life, Succumbs to Exhaustion—Nova Scotia Town in Ruins—The Triton Disaster.

Sun Editor No More.

Charles A. Dana, editor of the New York Sun, died at his home in Glencove, Long Island, at 1:20 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Death had been expected for several hours, and his family and physicians were at his bedside when the end came. His condition had been such for several months that the members of his family had kept themselves in constant readiness to go to his bedside at any moment. Saturday morning he had a relapse, and it was apparent that recovery was impossible. Several times, however, he rallied, but toward night began to sink. During the night there were feeble rallies, but they did not last long. In the morning it was seen that the end was but a few hours off, and his attendants remained almost constantly at his bedside. The cause of Mr. Dana's death was cirrhosis of the liver. June 9 he was at his office apparently strong and healthy. The next day he was taken ill, and he never afterward visited New York. He was 78 years old.

It is generally stated in newspaper circles that Mr. Dana had nothing to do with the editorship of the Sun for the last six months and had not had any financial interest in the paper for some time. Theodore E. Hitchcock, a Wall street banker, is reported to be the controlling owner and the publisher of the paper. Mr. Lahn is supposed to be the next in ownership. It is thus not believed that Mr. Dana's death will have any marked change on the policy of the paper for a time at least, pants were drowned in the whirling waters. The next was struck by an enormous wave and turned over, drowning twenty, but the frail craft was righted again, and eight who had been thrown out regained. Some were good swimmers and kept themselves afloat for hours, others floated about for twenty-four hours on planks. Four soldiers on planks whom the strong currents carried east of Havana, opposite Morro castle, were saved by a pilot boat going toward Cardenas. Many became food for sharks.

Those who were rescued tell heartrending stories of the scenes during the terrible quarter of an hour before the Triton sank. Just as the Triton was sinking Captain Ricardo, her commander, committed suicide by shooting himself with his revolver. It is impossible to give the exact number of those who were lost, but it is estimated that they were no fewer than 150.

HOMES NOW IN RUINS.

Five Thousand People of Windsor, N. S., Lose Their All.

Historic Windsor, one of the most beautiful towns in the province of Nova Scotia, was devastated by fire Sunday morning. For six hours, beginning shortly before 3 a. m., the fire, fanned by a violent north-west gale, raged so fiercely that the local fire department was absolutely helpless to cope with it and within half an hour after its discovery the Mayor began to call for outside assistance.

Long before noon the town had been eaten up almost completely, the area covered by the flames being nearly a mile square and of the 400 or more buildings occupying the section barely half a dozen escaped. During the past few years many handsome brick structures have been erected, but these were generally contiguous to old wooden buildings and all went together before the furious flames.

The origin of the fire is somewhat mysterious. A severe lightning storm passed over the town before the flames burst forth and some think the barn in which

FIVE THOUSAND DIE OF HUNGER

Terrible Mortality at Las Palacios, Pinar del Rio Province.

Five thousand concentrated people have died of hunger at Las Palacios, a town in Pinar del Rio province, Cuba, in seven months. Insurgent Brigadier Castillo has sacked the town of San Jose, in Havana province. The garrison made no resistance, but a strong Spanish force came to aid the town and a fierce combat in the outskirts ensued. The insurgents defeated the Spaniards, inflicting heavy losses.

Col. Jose Loreto Cepero, who was captured and kept in Cabanas prison for some time and is now fighting for Cuban liberty, attacked the Burgos battalion near Santa Clara, defeating the Spanish, who lost forty-eight killed and ninety-seven wounded. Col. Sanchez and four other officers were killed. Cepero afterward attacked a Spanish factory at Cienfuegos, taking all the merchandise needed.

It is said at Havana that some volunteers have agreed to assassinate Sagasta, and that three men have sailed to Spain for that purpose, the cause being the recall of Gen. Weyler.

GO DOWN TO DEATH.

Fate of the Passengers on the Ill-Starred Triton.

The gunboat Maria Christina, which left Havana for the scene of the wreck of the coasting steamer Triton, bound from Havana to Bahia Honda, Pinar del Rio, which sank between Dominica and Mariel, returned, accompanied by the tugboat Susie, which went with her. The gunboat had on board nineteen and the tugboat twenty-three of the members of the lost ship's company.

The Triton struck the rock during a heavy rainstorm. Her cargo shifted, and fifteen minutes later she sank in 120 fathoms of water. A scene of terrible confusion and panic ensued as soon as the passengers realized the meaning of the crash. In a wild struggle they rushed for the boats. The first boat that was lowered capsized immediately, and all of its occu-the fire started may have been struck by lightning, but many strongly suspect that the conflagration originated through the carelessness of some drunken man.

When morning broke the site of Windsor was a scene of desolation, with hundreds of frantic, thinly clad and destitute men and women and children rushing back and forth through the smoky streets. Fortunately no lives were lost, although the streets were perilous with flying bricks and slabs which the fierce hurricane drove like thunderbolts from the roofs. No Nova Scotia town has ever been visited by a conflagration of such dimensions. Of the 3,500 people that inhabited the place few have homes of their own now.

GREAT MASSACRE IN CHINA.

Rebels Sack the City of Kuang Yang and Kill and Wound 1,000.

The city of Kuang Yang, in Hunan province, has been captured and its inhabitants massacred by a band of rebels forming part of a rebel army which is devastating Hunan and Kuang provinces, in southern China. Aug. 27 the bandits scaled the walls of Kuang Yang with the intention of capturing the provincial prison and releasing three of their members there imprisoned. One band tore down the prison, setting free several hundred murderers, thieves and imprisoned debtors. Another gang attacked the central part of the city, first murdering the magistrate who had sent the three bandits to prison. His entire family, numbering thirty-two, including servants, was killed. The entire night was spent in slaying and plundering. All mandarins and every civil and military officer in the city were slain. The number killed and injured exceeded 1,000. The insurgents numbered 15,000 men, half of them armed. Their avowed object is to destroy existing government in southern China. The government is greatly alarmed, but has no adequate means of suppressing the insurrection.

The return board of judges in New Jersey has made returns of the constitutional amendment election. The official figures show a majority of 102 for the anti-gambling amendments and 380 for the regulation of appointments and 905 against woman suffrage.

TRAINING FOR THE KLONDIKE.

The Famous Chilkoot Pass Will Have No Terrors for This Man.

Chilkoot pass is not going to daunt a barber of Ellsworth, Maine, when he strikes it next spring. He has gone into training for it and if he survives the training he will probably be able to haul his pack into the Klondike.

TESTING HIS ENDURANCE.

His course of training is somewhat novel. He takes a castron cog-wheel weighing ninety pounds and tries to carry it to Mount Desert bridge, nine miles distant. When he is able to carry the wheel to the bridge and back before breakfast he will consider himself in condition for the Klondike. So far he and his wheel have been carried home from various points along the road by an early milkman going in that direction.

A CHILD'S RECOVERY

FROM PARALYSIS AND SIX YEARS OF CONVULSIONS.

Little Fannie Adams of Umatilla Cured of a Dreadful Malady—A Cure of Unusual Interest—A Reporter Investigates.

From the Lake Region, Easton, Fla.
For some time past the Lake Region has been receiving reports from Umatilla, Fla., of an almost miraculous cure that had been effected in the case of Fannie Adams, a daughter of A. J. Adams, of that place, and last Saturday a representative of this paper made a trip to Umatilla for the purpose of determining the authenticity of the same.

The family live a short distance from the village, where it was found that the people were cognizant of the cure which had been effected, and were rejoicing with the family in their new-found happiness. The father, A. J. Adams, is a hard-working honest farmer from East Tennessee, and the family came to Florida four years ago in the hope that a change of climate would be of benefit to their afflicted child. Much of their earnings have gone for doctors' bills, whose services proved unavailing. The representative was greeted by Mrs. Adams, from whom he gained the story of her great trial.

Fannie, the youngest child, was born in East Tennessee, and was seven years old on the third day of February, 1897. When ten months old she was stricken with paralysis, which affected the entire left side. This stroke of paralysis was followed by convulsions, and from the time little Fannie was ten months old until February, 1897, there was not a single day or a night that she did not have spasms of the most distressing nature. Not a single convulsion, but always three or four, and sometimes as high as ten in one day.

The family was all broken down with care, and Mrs. Adams states that for one year she did not go into her kitchen to superintend her household work. All the fingers of the right hand of the little girl are enlarged and misshapen, caused by her biting them during the fearful suffering. The case baffled the skill of the best physicians, and they were frank to say that they could not determine the cause, or prescribe a remedy to aid the afflicted child.

But what a change now in that household; for little Fannie has recently been released from her six years of agony, which brings the light of happiness to the faces of the parents.

In January, this year, Mrs. Adams, who had purchased some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People for her fourteen-year-old daughter, determined to try their effect upon little Fannie. After three or four doses she noted an improvement and then told the father what she had done. He at once went to the village and bought another box, and up to this time six boxes have been used. The first pills, Mrs. Adams states, were given in January, the latter part, and certainly not earlier than the fifteenth or twentieth, and the child had her last convulsion on February 1st, nearly three months ago. Her general condition has improved in every way, and it was not a month after the first pills were taken when she began to walk without assistance.

The pills were bought at the drug store of Dr. Shelton, in Umatilla. In answer to the question, did he, to his personal knowledge, know that the remedy had benefited Fannie Adams, as was stated by her parents, the doctor said that he was a regular practicing physician, and as such was loth to recommend any proprietary medicine, but still he was ready to do justice to all men, and he did know that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People had benefited Fannie Adams, and also volunteered the information that he knew of other children in the village who had been benefited by their use.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excess of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

TRYING ORDEALS FOR WOMEN.

Mrs. Pinkham Tells How Women May Avoid Painful Examinations.

To a modest, sensitive, high-strung young woman, especially an unmarried woman, there is no more trying or painful ordeal than the "examinations," which are now so common in hospitals and private practice.

An examination by speculum, or otherwise, is sometimes a positive necessity in certain stages of many diseases peculiar to women, so at least it is declared by the profession. This would not be the case if patients heeded their symptoms in time.

If a young girl's blood is watery, her skin pale and waxy looking, her lips colorless, bowels torpid, digestion poor, her ears and temples throb and she is subject to headache, begin at once to build up her system with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Do not allow her to undergo a physical examination.

Here is a letter from a young lady who requests that her name should not be used, but gives her initials and street number so that any inquiry addressed to her will be received. She says:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—It affords me great pleasure to be able to say a few words in regard to the merits of your Vegetable Compound. I was tempted to try it after seeing the effects of it upon my mother, and now I feel like a new person. I am a stenographer and was troubled with falling of the womb and female weakness in general. I continued to work until I was so weak I could no longer walk, and the last day I was forced to stop and rest. "I was then so ill that I was compelled to stay in bed, and so nervous that I could not hold anything in my hands. The least noise or surprise would cause my heart to beat so loudly, and I would become so weak that I could hardly stand. I suffered for almost a year. It is different now. I can go about my work with pleasure, while before, work was a drudge. "Trusting that my words of praise may help some other afflicted person, and be of benefit to womankind in general, I remain, Yours in gratitude, L. H., 444 S. East St., Indianapolis, Ind."

A Startling Imagination.
"I don't go out much after dark on my wheel," said the rather timid citizen.
"Why not?"
"I'm afraid of these scorchers."
"But there are police especially employed to look after them."
"I know it. They are the chief causes of my uneasiness. Supposing a scorchers starts up the street, pedaling for dear life and turning sharp corners with a frenzy of his kind. And supposing a policeman starts after him, striking the same pace as nearly as possible. Then another policeman mistakes him for a scorchers and does his best to keep up, and so on until you have the entire force out. It's bad enough to think of dodging a single scorchers, although it might be managed, but when it comes to a whole procession of them I feel like staying quietly at home."—Washington Star.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS PLEASE SAY you saw the advertisement in this paper.

M. I. & St. L. Electric Ry.

A meeting of the Stockholders of this company is to be held at Rochester, Ind., on Wednesday Nov. 3rd to definitely fix on the line of the road from Goshen to Danville, Ill., the transaction of other very important business, in regard to beginning work on the road, at an early date.

In looking over the proposed route, one is impressed with the fine territory to be traversed by the line. In the direction it is to run, it surely will tap a most notable farming country as well as a fine coal and timber region. It can but be a most reliable line for the company as well as great convenience for the public at large and especially so, to the communities along the immediate line of the road.

From Danville north-east, a large number of very important points are to be touched, as Williamsport, Oxford, Attica, Fowler, Lafayette, Delphi, Montecello, Logansport, Winamac, Rochester, or Argos, Culver City to Bourbon, besides a score or more of towns on the way not yet decided on. All this will be determined at the Stockholders meeting at Rochester on Nov. 3rd. A full representation from points interested should meet and confer with the officials of the road on that occasion. Possibly it may be then determined to pass by some of the cities mentioned above and make other towns not now considered, as points on the line, if found more practicable for all concerned, for something may be developed at the meeting that may cause a change of the route a little, one side or the other, not now contemplated by the parties in interest.

There should be a full attendance of our representative citizens, all along the proposed route, to aid in the best location for the line being adopted.

Thoroughly up to Date.

Nearly a year ago, D. R. Avery moved to this city from South Bend, and took possession of what was known at that time as Bradley's restaurant and grocery. He immediately convinced the citizens of this community that he was thoroughly conversant with every detail of the business, and being a man of integrity, and the happy possessor of pleasing manners, soon built up a splendid trade and is to-day recognized as one of the enterprising, liberal-minded business men of Culver. At his place you can find a full assortment of first class groceries, and if you desire a night's lodging and a square meal, he will accommodate you in Delmonico style at reasonable rates.

Moments are useless if trifled away; and they are dangerously wasted if consumed by delay in cases where One Minute Cough Cure would bring immediate relief. Culver City Drug Store.

One of Two Ways.

The bladder was created for one purpose, namely, a receptacle for the urine, and as such it is not liable to any form of disease except by one of two ways. The first way is from imperfect action of the kidneys. The second way is from careless local treatments of other diseases.

CHIEF CAUSE.

Unhealthy urine from unhealthy kidneys is the chief cause of bladder troubles. So the womb, like the bladder, was created for one purpose, and if not doctored too much is not liable to weakness or disease, except in rare cases. It is situated back of and very close to the bladder, therefore any pain, disease or inconvenience manifested in the kidneys, back, bladder or urinary passage is often, by mistake, attributed to female weakness or womb trouble of some. The error is easily made and may be as easily avoided. To find out correctly, set your urine aside for twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates kidney or bladder trouble. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy is soon realized. If you need a medicine you should have the best. All druggists fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail. Mention the CULVER CITY HERALD and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.

"Where there's a will, there's a way."

IT IS SO EASY
To be mistaken as to the true value of an overcoat. On account of the fine finish manufacturers have learned to put on very inferior cloth, it requires an expert almost to distinguish the real from the imitation—while both are new. Anyone can tell the difference after both have been worn. An unprincipled merchant finds it easy to deceive the average person and pawn off cheap trashy goods for the real article. I keep three colors of Beaver Overcoats—black, blue and brown—at $5.00 that look as nice as you would expect a $10.00 coat to look.—It won't wear like my $10.00 coat. Some persons would claim them worth $10.00—not I. Keep 'em just to show my customers the difference between the real and the unreal.

If you are not an expert in this line—not many of us are?—you are safe only when dealing with a merchant that has a reputation for reliability. Who has proven himself honest and will rectify any mistake made. If you want an Overcoat or Ulster and want what you pay for and not pay too much for it either, come here, you will find an assortment so far superior to anything you have seen, you'll wonder how I managed to gather them all.

Notwithstanding the heavy advance in the price I have not raised even one cent and won't while these last. If you intend buying an Overcoat this winter, buy early, they'll cost more later.
