PLYMOUTH, - INDIANA.

Another Old Pioneer Gone.

When we stop to consider that there is about seventy-six millions of people in the United States, we, in the hurry and rush of busness, hardly realize the emphatic fact that each individual has to meet death alone, that each individual has to answer to the call, whether prepared or not. Some live a great many years in this world of suffering and sorrow, and the fact that they lived will be reverently remembered because of their sunny disposition, spotless character and worth toward elevating humanity. When individuals die, nearly all have friends to mourn their loss, and the subject of this sketch not only leaves a large circle of friends, but she leaves sons and daughters, who as the years roll by, will cherish more and more the memory of that mother who guided their footsteps in childhood, and counseled them in manhood and womanhood, and who, at the eve of her death advised them to make all preparation to meet her in that better world, where sorrows cease, and all is joy and peace forever more.

Funeral services were held at the M. E. church, Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m., Rev. Howard officiating. The church was filled with a large concourse of citizens to pay the last respects to this aged neighbor. The remains were laid to rest in Culver cemetery by undertaker Easterday.

The following relatives from abroad were present: Francis Gandy, Assumption, Ill.; James V. Roher, grandson, Milwaukee, Wiis. Lafette Rober and wife, Argos, Ind.; Joseph Miller and wife, Warsaw, Ind.; Ed. Weaver and wife, South Bend, Ind., Barney Gandy and wife, Plymouth.

MILLIONS FOR DEFENSE.

Congress Makes Appropriation of $50,000,000 for Emergency.

UNITED STATES IS READY.

Spirit of Patriotism Is Universal Among American People.

The Administration and All Officials at the National Capital Realize that the Country Is Facing a Crisis-Conditions Deemed Such that Hostilities Seem Inevitable - Spaniards Have Sought to Cause a Clash and Must Take the Bitter Consequences-No Honorable Recourse Save the Arbitrament of Arms Appears Open.

Washington correspondence:

HERE is a general feeling at the capital that we are face to face with a crisis. The bill to appropriate $50,000,000 for the national defense is evidence that the administration has recognized this in its preparations for an emergency. Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, Monday introduced the bill appropriating $50,000,000 for national defense. This bill is as follows:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled: That there is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the national defense and for each and to actual war, they argue, and this dispriation is to be drawn against in just such an emergency."

The bill is not simply a private bill, it is an administration bill and an emergency measure. The situation regarding Cuba has become so delicate that it is recognized that war is inevitable unless Spain is made to understand that this Government is ready for war and will not stop at halfway measures. The President proposes to be ready for any emergency, and if Spain wants war she shall have it, but she will be driven from the western hemisphere.

She has done enough bluffing. Although few persons will openly admit it, the feeling in the inner circles of the administration at the time this is written is that the country is on the verge of war. Conditions are such that an outbreak seems unlikely to be long postponed. There is good authority for the statement that Congress will declare war against Spain soon after the report of the board of inquiry into the Maine disaster has been made public.

During the last month a lesson in coolness and self-possession has been well learned. If Spain were only able to realize it, the very calmness of the American Government and the American people speaks louder than any noisy vociferation. In the presence of a real danger of warfor no one denies that a real danger now exists-party lines seem obliterated and every branch of the Government and every man who has anything to do with it stands squarely out for the preservation of American honor.

Though the war cloud darkens, it is not believed by some that the storm is likely to break very soon, although it may come at any time. It is a long ways from a strained situation or a misunderstanding individual capacity, but it was after a most important conference at the White House attended by Secretary Long, Senators Allison and Hale, and Representatives Cannon, Dingley, Boutelle and Grosvenor. The conference continued for an hour and was regarded as most significant, in view of the developments of the day and the reports that the President had given an emphatic refusal to the request for the recall of Consul General Lee, and another to the request that relief supplies should be sent to Cuba in merchant rather than in war vessels.

While Senators and Representatives were speculating as to the meaning of such a conference, the answer came from Mr. Cannon when he introduced his bill appropriating $50,000,000 for the national defense. There was much excitement in the House, but Mr. Cannon said he had no intention of adding to the excitement throughout the country. "The bill speaks for itself," said he. "It is an appropriation for national defense and it gives the President discretion in the use of the money. I am not certain that we should not always have such an emergency fund. But just now, with the strained relations between this Government and Spain and the talk of war, it is important that the President should leave nothing undone that would strengthen the national defense. He is doing everything, but there are some things which cannot be done legally, such as the purchase of ammunition for our navy, projectiles for our big coast defense guns, coal for our flect, and other | Treasurer Bartley returned a verdict for every purpose connected therewith, to be | tance may never be bridged. In fact, there are plenty of acute observers of the situation who say Spain's apparent policy of aggressiveness is a mere bluff, designed for home consumption, and that the best Mr. Cannon introduced this bill in his | possible treatment of it was to refuse the recall of Gen. Lee and to refuse to change the plan of sending relief supplies to Cuba by war vessels. If it were Spain's purpose to test the firmness of the United States, to ascertain whether or not this country was really willing to take its place, gun in hand, ready to fight a duel, Spain has her answer.

Meanwhile, too, the most energetic practical preparations for war continue in this country. Ships are being fitted out as rapidly as possible, crews are being enlisted, ammunition is hurried forward, the coast defenses are manned, transports for troops are being prepared, the State militia are ready to jump aboard the cars.

One thing now most noticeable among the public men of Washington is that as the danger of war becomes more serious they grow more conservative. The events of the last few days, pointing more and more to the possibility of war through change of policy at Madrid or the accident of friction between people who are growing to hate one another, have served to level up and level down opinion at the American capital. Those who were ultra conservative have become patriotic advocates of war, if necessary to preserve our honor and dignity. Those who first fiercely shouted for blood, with or without reason, are now facing the actualities of the situation calmly. In truth, so far as the country is represented at Washington by Senators and Representatives of all political parties, of all sections and all shades of opinion, the nation stands together as one man looking calmly and without fear into the eye of a possible foe.

Bold Robbery Near Muncie.

One of the boldest and most brutal robberies that has ever occurred in Delaware County took place at the home of John Reese, a wealthy farmer, three miles south of Muncie. Shortly after the aged couple had retired there was a knock at the door, and as it was opened three men inquired if Mr. Reese resided there, and handed him a package with the statement that it was from Chicago. Nearly immediately the trio drew revolvers and ordered the old man to hold up his hands. He resisted and was knocked down and beaten into submission. In the scuffle a long beard the old man wore was torn out by the roots. His wife came to his rescue, but was quieted by threats, and both were. taken upstairs and locked in a room while the house was looted. Less than $50 was

GAS WASTE DECISION.

Supreme Judges Uphold the State in Fight with the Oil Companies.

Backed by a sweeping decision from the Supreme Court, the State of Indiana has stepped forward to stop the waste of natural gas. Within three hours after the highest court had decided that the waste of gas by the oil companies and individuals constituted a nuisance which the State had authority to stop by injunction proceedings, Merrill Moore, deputy Attorney General, and C. C. Shirley of Kokomo, special counsel for the State in the litigation, were in the gas territory applying to the county courts for injunctions against the offending oil companies.

The decision in the case is entitled the State of Indiana against the Ohio Oil Company. Instead of proceeding "on replevin" of some one, as is usually done, chines. Fifty-two men were discharged | the State in this instance, represented by the Attorney General and others, proceeded directly against the defendant. Suit was first brought in the Madison Circuit Court, asking that the oil company be enjoined from wasting natural gas. The court decided against the State and an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court, This court has now decided that the law providing penalties ($200) for the waste of gas is constitutional and may be enforced. It finds further that this penalty is insufficient, and that, therefore, an injunction to restrain the companies from the waste may lie.

The decision was a great surprise to the investors in oil, who had maintained all along that for the State to stop the waste of gas in oil wells meant the destruction of the oil industry in the State, in which about $20,000,000 is invested by the Standard company alone. The Standard has not indicated the course it intends to pursue, but the State infers that it will carry the controversy to the Supreme Court of the United States, where it will contend that the State may not apply for an injunction without becoming responsible for damages that may result to the person or concern injured by reason of the injunction.

For eighteen months the oil companies have been slowly encroaching on the natural gas territory. The first oil wells sunk were on the edge of the gas belt, and oil was produced without the accompanying found that oil was to be had in the heart haste to lease lands and sink wells. The of the Ohio Oil Company in sinking a large number of wells in Alexandria, which produced both oil and gas. Notwithstanding many millions of feet of gas was wasted daily the company refused to take any steps toward stopping the waste. The local court failed to find any law under which it could act, and so the State

The court points out that since the oil monopoly began to encroach on the nat ural gas field the gas pressure has fallen from 350 pounds to 150 pounds. Last year more than 5,000,000 barrels of oil were produced, and according to the information laid before the court gas was wasted from more than half of the oilproducing wells. The State's action, it is maintained by the court, is not an unwarranted interference with private property, as the title to natural gas does not vest in a private owner until it has been reduced to actual possession. State Geologist Batchly says he believes that with a rigid enforcement of the law as interpreted by the Supreme Court the supply of gas will last for many years.

The writs of injunction which the Attorney General is securing direct the oil companies forthwith to securely confine the gas either by anchoring the wells or by confining the gas in tanks or pipes. Should the companies fail to obey the order the county sheriffs will be called upon to confine the gas by closing the oil wells.

The Klondikers.

Two Hoosier Boys Start Out To Seek Their Fortune.

After resting a few moments Jack started out to see the town, while the writer of this remained to get some pointers on newspaper correspondence. On the strength of our promise to furnish for publication a complete write-up of our trip from start to finish we were supplied with a liberal quantity of scratch paper, pencils, envelopes, stamps, etc, for that purpose which we stored away in our little grip.

About 4 o'clock Jack came in and to see the town?" informed us that he had been doing some business. He then reported $4.75 on the credit side of our ledger, the proceeds of soap receipt sales at various prices from 50 cents to $1.00 each. He may have had some experiences that would be interesting to note down but he only reported one case. That was somewhere in the south west part of town. The lady came to the door and Jack attempted to introduce his buisness.

"I don't want any of your stuff," said the woman.

"It is an excellent --- "

NATIONS IN TUMULT.

USUAL DISTURBANCES ON IN CENTRAL AMERICA.

War Clouds Still Hovering Over Costa kica and Nicaragua, While Honduras and Guatemala Stand Ready to Engage-Uncle Sam to Buy Ships.

Turmoil in Central America.

Advices received from correspondents at various points in Central America state that war clouds are still hovering over those countries. The correspondent in La Libertad, Salvador, says the situation between Costa Rica and Nicaragua is serious and that it is reported that troops have already gone to the field. It is thought that Honduras will aid Nicaragua in a war against Costa Rica and it is reported that Honduras has already sent 5,000 armed men to Nicaragua to combine with the latter country's forces. Salvador, meanwhile, is exerting all efforts to avert war, but the Government is resolved not to take any part where Nicaragua is concerned. A well-known diplomat in Salvador says that in case of the intervention of Honduras Salvador will neutralize her action. The only interpretation of this is that should Honduras help Nicaragua Salvador will support Costa Rica in the struggle. Guatemala's envoy has left Managua for Costa Rica, carrying important documents which will decide whether the Central American countries will plunge into war or not. It is the belief that there will be war, in which three or more Central American countries will be involved.

TO BUY SHIPS. TRYING

United States Is Negotiating for The Two Brazilian Cruisers.

Negotiations are proceeding for the purchase of the Brazilian cruiser Amazonas and her sister ship, the Barabozo, by the United States. But so far as the Navy Department is advised the negotiations have not yet been closed. The negotiations for the purchase of the two Japanese cruisers now building in this country, at Philadelphia and San Francisco, are off, and the present indications are that no further steps will be taken toward acquiring these ships. The Japanese Government appears to be even more desirous of securing these ships than the United States, and owing to the delicate character of the aspect of affairs between Russia and Japan it is felt that the needs of Japan are quite as urgent as those of this country.

BULLETIN ON LIVE STOCK.

Decrease in Number of Horses, Cows, Cattle and Swine.

The Agricultural Department at Washington has issued the following bulletin on live stock: The returns of the number of live stock on farms in the United States Jan. 1 show 13,960,911 horses, 2,257,665 mules, 15,840,886 milch cows, 29,264,197 oxen and other cattle, 37,656,960 sheep and 39,759,993 swine. These figures show a decrease of 403,756 in the number of horses, 100,841 in milch cows, 1,244,211 in oxen and other cattle and 840,283 in swine. There is an increase of 838,317 in the number of sheep and 42,011 in mules. While there has been an increase in the number of milch cows in each of the New England States, and a considerable in crease in the Northwestern States, there has been a decrease throughout almost the entire South, and this fact, together with a slight decrease in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois, reduces the total for the country at large to six-tenths of 1 per cent below that of last year. Of the seventeen States reporting a total of over 1,000,000 hogs, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Georgia, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska show an increase, and Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and eight Southern States a decrease. There is a marked increase in the value of live stock on farms reported from almost every section of the country, the total value of farm horses having increased during the year by $25,713,011; that of mules, $6,-728,972; milch cows, $65,573,933; oxen and other cattle, $104,367,218; sheep, $25,700,191, and swine, $8,078,639-a total increase in value of $236,162,859, or 14.27 per cent.

WHEAT HOLDS FIRM.

Price of the Cereal Seems to Be Little

Influenced by War News. With the stock market shattered by war rumors wheat holds its price in spite of determined raids by the professional bears. Cash wheat commands $1.06 in Chicago, and when the war scare is over or hostilities are declared the best judges predict the highest price in years. Every bushel of wheat coming into the market is eagerly picked up by either Armour or Leiter. Reports continue to pour in of vast decreases in European stocks of wheat. Interior Russia shows 16,000,-000, against 38,000,000 a year ago. Though Spain is in urgent need of revenue she has just reduced the tariff on wheat nearly 30 cents a bushel. This means an export demand of not less than 6,000,000 bushels from the United States. The week shows a decrease in the visible supply of 1,076,000, making the total visible 33,000,000, as against 44,000,000 a year ago.

A Heinous Crime.

Adrian Braun, a convict in Sing Sing prison. New York, murdered his wife, who was paying him a visit. Braun was convicted of having beaten his wife, but notwithstanding this Mrs. Braun forgave him and expressed sorrow because of his imprisonment. When the two met they kissed each other and were very friendly. few feet from the desk of Detective Jackson, who was present. Finally the officer informed Braun that his time was up, but Braun pleaded for a little time longer. saying: "Can't we have a few minutes more?" Because of the trouble Mrs. Braun had taken to pay her husband a visit the plea was granted. Suddenly Braun raised his arm, and the detective saw the glitter of a long, thin knife. The convict brought the blade down with fearful force against the left side of his wife's neck. One cut severed the great blood vessels and almost instantly the woman was dead. Detective Jackson sprang upon Braun, but the convict had time to gash the woman's head several times more. Two other convicts who were in the corridor came to the detective's assistance and the murderer was subdued. Warden Sage had him removed to the deathhouse. Another knife, similar to the one with which he had stabbed his wife, was found concealed in his pocket.

Moving Over the Passes. The steamship North Pacific, from Skaguay, Juneau and Wrangel, called at Departure Bay, her supply of coal having run out. Her officers describe the situation at Skaguay most favorably. They say that deaths from spinal meningitis were often the result of exposure on the trails, the men being brought into Skaguay dying. The number of deaths, Captain Carter says, has been greatly exaggerated. Fine weather prevailed when the North Pacific left Skaguay. White and Chilkoot passes were fit for travel, and many had already begun the journey inland.

CONCERT FOR THE FAMILIES OF DEAD MAINE SAILORS.

Benevolent Charity Event Was a Most Affecting and Patriotic Occasion-Sang "Star-Spangled Banner"-Valne of Precious Stones in United States.

Concert for Bereaved Cnes.

The audience which crowded the National Theater in Washington, D. C., at the woman's concert for the benefit of the families of the men who lost their lives in the Maine disaster, was in every way the most notable body ever assembled in a Washington theater. The President and Mrs. McKinley occupied seats in the box of Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Long, while in the immense audience were Secretary of State and Mrs. Sherman, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Gary, the family of the Secretary of War, Mrs. Gage, the Attorney General and Mrs. Griggs, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, Senator Hale and Representative Boutelle, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee of the House, with almost the entire body of Washington society and thousands of sympathetic residents of the capital, including sixty sailors from the navy yard, who filled one entire row of reserved seats in the gallery. The long program closed with "The Star-Spangled Banner," the audience rising and joining in the chorus. Twenty officers of the army, navy and marine corps, each in full uniform, acted as ushers, while prominent young women of the navy and army families sold programs and small flags, which were waved vigorously by the eager purchasers during the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner." A large crowd collected in front of the theater just before the close of the performance. The President's appearance at the doorway with Mrs. McKinley on his arm was the signal for an outburst of cheering, waving of flags and handclapping. Both the President and Mrs. Mc-Kinley seemed pleased at the demonstration and smiled as they acknowledged it with a slight inclination of the head.

GEMS FROM NATIVE MINES.

Value of All Precious Stones Found in This Country in 1897.

The value of the precious stones produced in the United States during 1897, as shown by a preliminary report submitted to the division of mineral resources of the United States geological survey at Washington by Special Agent George F. Kunz, was $130,675, as compared with $97,850 in 1896. The principal items of this total are turquoise, $55,000; sapphire, $25,000; quartz crystal, $12,000; tourmaline, $9,025, and gold quartz, $5,000. The principal features of interest to the trade during the year were the investments of English capital in and the increased output of the Fergus County, Montana, sapphire deposits; the further development of the turquoise deposits in Santa Fe and Grant counties, New Mexico; the development of tourmaline deposits at Mount Mica, Paris, Me., and Haddam Neck, Conn., and the finding and sale of pale almandine garnets from Cowee Valley, North Carolina. The finding of large quantities of gigantic quartz crystals (rock crystal) at Mokelumne Hill, Calaveras County, California, was also of considerable importance.

BALANCE IS PRESERVED.

Falling Off in Wheat Exports Made Up in Corn Shipments.

present time. The aggressive strength of prices, record-breaking bank clearings and continued large exports, particularly of the lower-priced cereals, a very heavy volume of business in iron and steel and kindred lines, and generally satisfactory reports as to the volume of spring trade at leading distributive centers are among the visible features of this trade development. Few decreases in prices are noted, sugar being the most important, while the list of staples steady and unchanged numbers pork, coffee, lead and print cloths. Trade is larger than usual at the central west, particularly in dry goods, groceries, boots and shoes, hardware, lumber and agricultural implements, the demand for the latter being a notable feature at nearly all markets. Spring trade has opened up well in the northwest and the jobbing trade is quite active. A further shrinkage in wheat exports, but a corresponding enlargement of the shipments of corn and the lower-priced cereals, is indicated this week. The total exports of wheat, flour included, from the United States and Canada aggregate 3,252,000 bushels, against 3,722,000 bushels last week. Corn exports amount to 5,054,694 bushels, as against 3,692,000 bushels last week."

The captain has protested against the seizure of his vessel. The Esther is of 1,131 tons gross register.

Audience in a Frenzy.

Fire started on the stage in Germania Hall, at Hartford, Conn., as the Hartford Maennerchor was preparing to give an entertainment. Tableaux were about to be presented and fifteen men and women were in the dressing-room, when one noticed a small flame near the base of the curtain. Curtain and scenery were ablaze in a moment. The hall is on the second floor and 200 persons rushed for the stairway. Boys and women were trampled down by those who had lost their senses. Women ran back and forth in front of the theater and shrieks could be heard from inside. The police were unable to hold back the eager ones who wanted to save lives. Adolph Graff Jr. broke a window, and firemen, who had spread nets, shouted to him to jump. He did not hear them, and when he leaped fell heavily on the pavement. His injuries are serious.

In the House on Monday the Hawley bill providing for two additional regiments of artillery was passed under suspension of the rules by almost unanimous vote. Mr. Bailey, the Democratic leader, wanted more time for debate than the forty minutes allowed, and because he did not get it he inaugurated a filibuster against District of Columbia legislation that continued all day. In the Senate the session was devoted to consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill. At the hour of adjournment the bill had not been disposed of.

The District of Columbia appropriation bill, containing a provision for the reduction of about one-half of the present rates of telephone charges in the district, was passed by the Senate on Tuesday. A bill to authorize the relocation and rebuilding of a pontoon bridge across the Mississippi River at Prairie du Chien, Wis., was passed. The bill for the relief of the Methodist Episcopal Church South of Tennessee, appropriating $288,000, was passed. In the House the bill appropriating $50,000,000 for defense passed unanimously.

In the House on Wednesday the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill went through its last stages in the adoption of the financial conference report. The remainder of the day was consumed in consideration of the Senate amendments to the Indian appropriation bill. The substitute for the Senate provision regarding the opening of the Uncompangre reservation was knocked out on a point of order, and the amendment gces back to conference. The desire of the conferees to non-concur in the Senate free homestead clause encountered bitter opposition, and an arrangement was made whereby four hours are to be devoted to debate a proposition to concur submitted by Mr. Eddy of Minnesota. Mr. Sherman, chairman of the Indian Committee, declared that the free homestead provision would cost the Government $56,000,-000. He desires to eliminate it from the bill, and has the support of the Secretary of the Interior. In the Senate the $50,-000,000 defense bill was passed by a unanimous vote. Hawaiian annexation was considered in executive session.

In the House all day Thursday was spent on the Indian appropriation bill. The Senate amendments were non-concurred in and the bill sent to conference. In the Senate no business of real importance was transacted in open session. The session lasted only an hour, the time being largely consumed in disposing of routine morning business. A few bills of minor importance were a few were passed.

In the House on Friday the bill to pay the Bowman act claims, aggregating $1,-200,000, for stores and supplies furnished the Union army during the war was considered until 5 o'clock, but beyond completing the general debate little progress was made. Of the 800 odd claims in the bill all but a few come from the South, and dilatory tactics were resorted to to prevent progress. During the filibustering the House was in an uproar. At 5 o'clock, after completing two pages of the bill, the House recessed until 9 o'clock for an evening session to be devoted to pension legislation. After the evening session the House adjourned until Monday. The Senate was not in session.

JACK'S RE-GENERATION.

T'S a shame for such a nice girl as Mary Hallett to go with a worthless, shiftless fellow like Bert Hill!" Mrs. Raymond was very "I'd say something are such fools, it might be worse than to keep still. She looks all tired out now, with her work and worry at home; how will she look when she's married to a drunkard?"

"It's an awful pity," said her neighbor, and as Jack Raymond passed through the room she glanced curiously from mother to son. She thought, "I guess Bert Hill ain't much worse than your boy." What she said was, "That's real pretty cloth you're working on."

Jack went up the hill behind the house till he came to a spot where the April sun shone warmly under pine trees. He dropped upon the needlecovered ground, pulled his hat over his eyes, and calmly finished the nap which his mother's indignant protest had disturbed.

The wind blew softly among the pine branches, flies and wasps crept into the sunlight, bluebirds sang, and far overhead a hawk sailing on steady wings cried cruelly. At length Jack stirred, removed the hat from his eyes, and sat up. He hitched along on the ground till he got his back against a tree trunk. He gazed out upon the spring landscape meditatively. Then his lips began to move. He was talking to himself, inaudibly.

"It's a shame for such a nice girl as Mary Hallett to go with a worthless, shiftless fellow like Bert Hill. Yes, that's so. It ought to be stopped. Talking won't do any good. Something's got to be done. I suppose I might undertake the job." He grinned slightly at the thought. "It would be a good idea to go into missionary work, and I'm sure that is a good cause—to rescue Mary Hallett from Bert. She's a nice little girl, and it would be a pity for her to marry him. Bert doesn't even treat his mother well-what would he do to Mary?" He straightened up almost energetically. "I vow I'll do it," he said. Then he meditated again.

"Wonder if I can?" he mused, doubtfully. He felt in a pocket and took out a small, round mirror. He gazed at it earnestly. He took off his hat and brushed his blonde hair back from his forehead; then he gave a smile of affectation which showed his white teeth; then he put the mirror back in his pocket. There was a look of confidence in his blue eyes. "Guess you'll do," he said. "Rather against you, being light, though; but where there's a will there's a way."

He got up and started down the hill. Half way he paused. "Suppose she should fall in love with me, and then I'd have to go back on her and break her all up? It isn't likely, to be sure, but what if it should happen?" There was a rueful pause-then he said, "The end justifies the means," and went on down the hill.

Although Jack's friends maintained that he would be all right if he only kept out of bad company, the general opinion was that he and Bert were about evenly matched for worthlessness and shiftlessness. And when Jack began to go to Hallett's, people said, "O, dear! Two of them!" They continued to be shiftless; but it was remarked that, unlike Bert, Jack had given up drinking.

"You'll have to stop that," Jack told himself. "This is going to be a sharp game, and you can't afford to muddle what brains you've got." Some young men would have begun the campaign by going of an evening to call on Mary, but Jack's methods were different.

"Now, if you've got any troublesome young brothers or sisters you'd like to get rid of, temporarily, why, just send 'em along. I'll take charge of them and deliver them safely over to you at noon."

"O, if you would," said Mary. "They are so fretful this morning and in my way all the time."

it was with a sigh of relief that a few minutes later she saw Jack and the two boys and one girl passing down the road. She got her work along bravely, and just as dinner was ready and her father had come in, Jack, true to his promise, left the three children at the door and went home without stopping to speak.

The children gave glowing accounts of their walk. "And Jack's going to make us a kite and fly it the next windy day," they ended.

Nearly every day after that Jack took the children off to the woods and fields, giving Mary a vacation from their noise. When he went to get them, or when he brought them back, he always found some little thing to do to help her.

Then one Sunday he dressed with unmuch in earnest, usual care, looking remarkably fresh and clean, too, and went to church and to her, only girls Sunday school. Afterward he walked home with Mary, holding her sunshade over her carefully all the way.

> Mr. Hallett stayed at home with the children Sundays, and it was rather tiresome for him. So when he saw Jack coming he brightened up and asked him to stay for dinner. Jack consented, much to Mr. Hallett's satisfaction, and the children's boisterous delight. Mary's father dearly loved to talk, and Jack appeared to enjoy listening equally well.

After dinner Mr. Hallett went into the sitting room and fell asleep in his chair, while Jack insisted on wiping the dishes for Mary. The children swarmed about him and got in his way, till he declared that they were as bad as cats, and he'd have to sprinkle them, and see if they would clear out then. When the dishes were done and Mary had taken off her apron Jack began to notice signs of uneasiness in her man-

"About time for Bert," he said to himself; then aloud: "I should think you'd go crazy with these noisy youngsters around all the time. I'm going to take them away and you can rest, instead of working as you usually do.'

Down the road they went, and were hardly out of sight in one direction before Bert Hill appeared from the other. He, too, was dressed with particular care, but though there was no denying that he was handsomer than Jack, there was a certain set to his jaw and a kind of fierceness in his dark eyes which were not prepossessing. These softened when he greeted Mary, and he became very agreeable.

But Mary for some reason felt uneasy and hoped he would not ask her where the children were. She also dreaded their return. What would Bert say when he saw Jack?

But when the children came it was quite late, and Jack did not appear. Mary got them bread and butter, for which they clamored vociferously, and then at Bert's request, walked up and down the road with him for half an hour, while he smoked a strong cigar.

After he had gone she sighed wearily. She felt dissatisfied with herself; and the children, as she put them to bed irritated her by their constant repeti tion of Jack's name. Later she sat in her own room and cried, because she was tired, she told herself.

She had not reached that state o mind, which came only a few weeks later, when she cried from perplexity and indecision as to the course she should take. She had honestly supposed herself in love with Bert, and it took her some time to find out her mis-

When Bert learned what was going on between the Halletts and Jack he was in a towering rage. He met Jack one night and stopped short before him, blocking the way.

"What do you mean fooling around Mary Hallett, then?" Bert raised his than you are now." That night Jack held earnest consultation with himself up in the darkness of the pines. He applied many uncomplimentary epithets to himself, "How could I be so base as to start this thing? To go to work deliberately to get a girl away from another fellow, with the

It was a Monday morning, just as firm intention of giving her up when Mary was carrying a basket of clothes I'd done it! It was vile. And how has it come out? It has come to this--that if she refuses to marry me I shall be the most miserable man alive, and will richly deserve it, too, for being so contemptibly mean."

For a long time he sat meditating, then he stood up, and there was a look of determination on his face as he raised it to the troubled sky, such as had never been there before.

"You've got to try and be half good enough for her now," he said. "And you'll have to work harder to do it than you ever dreamed of working before." From that night it was noticed that a change had come over Jack Raymond. As time went on he could no longer be called shiftless. He was working hard, and people began to speak of him as "John." He continued to call at Halletts', but Bert's visits had suddenly ceased.

It was in September that Jack asked Mary an important question as they were walking home from church.

Mary answered with a "Yes," and then Jack, with some hesitation and confusion, confessed his original plot. "Do you suppose you can ever forgive me?" he asked at the end.

Mary spoke so low that he had to bend his head to hear.

"I should have been grateful to you -after awhile-for saving me from him, even if you had not come to care anything for me yourself."-Ex.

UNLUCKY NUMBER.

How Thirteen Pursued Comedian Boniface All Through a Journey.

George C. Boniface, Jr., is one of the few comedians who are not superstitions. He does not like the number 13, however. Boniface lives at Pleasure Bay, and since the trolley cars run between that point and Asbury Park he spends a great deal of time on them. A few days ago, while standing on the platform of the car, he noticed the number 13 painted on it. "Good Lord, number 13." exclaimed the comedian, and hastily reaching into his vest pocket, he pulled out a rabbit's foot and rubbed it vigorously on the lapel of his coat. The conductor smiled and said:

"You're a trifle supersititious, aren't

"Oh, not very," replied Boniface. "I thought you'd like to know," continued the conductor, carelessly, "that you're the thirteenth fare I've had this Boniface looked uneasy and made another dive for the rabbit's foot. On reaching Asbury Park the car encountered a funeral. Half a dozen carriages had passed when the motorman rang his gong and started ahead. The driver of the seventh carriage pulled up his horses. Boniface jumped about excitedly.

"Stop the car!" he yelled.

"What for?" asked the conductor. "What for?" shrieked the comedian. "Why, we'll go right through the funeral, and that is the most unlucky thing you can do."

But the car went on, and Boniface, swearing loudly, jumped off before the last of the funeral had crossed.

"Pretty big funeral," said the conductor to another passenger. "Not very," was the reply. "I only counted thirteen carriages."

Tropical Intoxicants.

Genuine palm wine is made from the Palmyra palm, and is far superior to any potable product of the cocoanut. Captain Burton, of Burton & Speke, says that the juice of the oil palm makes a drink that is unapproached by the liquids of civilization. It is of delicious color and flavor, and its effects are exhilaration unmixed with the dread of a headache next day. Livingstone makes mention of an intoxicant, brewed by the Majenga tribe of the Zambesi. It is made from . the grain of the country, sun-dried and gently boiled. The fermented liquor eventuates into a palatable beer. It will produce a superior brand of drunk, which leaves no ill effect. Indeed, it is an antifebrile of remarkable power, and it was when stricken with jungle fever that the good doctor was made acquainted with it. Despite his protests, the kindly natives poured it down him until he saw visions and dreamed dreams and awoke a well man. The introduction of the drink to this country would cause a wonderful increase in the number of fever cases.-Chicago Times-Herald.

No Highways in China.

Cyclists in China lead an untrammeled existence. There is no system of road regulations outside the towns whatever, for the simple reason that the roads are undefined, being neither bounded by fence nor hedge. While the farmer has the right to plough up any road passing through his land, drivers of vehicles have an equal right, and they exercise it, too, of traversing any portion of the country at large.

Politeness of the Swedes.

In Sweden, if you address the poorest person in the street, you must lift your hat. The same courtesy is insisted up on if you pass a lady on the stairway, To enter a reading room or a bank with one's hat on is regarded as impolite.

When people throw an elocutionary note into their voices, it will not do to bank on their sincerity.

In some quarters there has been a belief that the enmities of sectional strife and the bitterness of our political contests had divided the people beyond the possibility of reunion. Serious native riots in opposition to the sanitary measures taken to check the spread of the bubonic plague have occurred in Bombay. A plague inspector and three English soldiers have been stoned to death by the mob, and other Europeans injured. Many rioters have been killed and wounded.

At Wilkesbarre, Pa., the jury in the case of Sheriff Martin and his deputies, charged with shooting striking miners at Lattimer Sept. 10, has returned a verdict. Long before the time for court to convene there was a big crowd waiting to gain admittance to the court room, and when the doors were thrown open there was a wild rush, but only a limited number were admitted. Judge Woodward did not take his seat on the bench until five minutes after 10 o'clock a. m., the jury coming in a few minutes later. When the jury was polled each juror answered not guilty as his name was called. There was an attempt at applause, but it was quickly suppressed by the judge.

The Senator asked for an immediate vote and, as is the custom in the Senate, called for the yeas and nays. There was no objection and the familiar nasal sound of the voice of the Senate clerk rang out announcing a roll call. Not a dissent was raised.

The venerable Senators sat about with grave faces. The most distinguished audience that has assembled in the Senate gallery this session looked down upon the impressive act of legislation, so unusual in the Senate. It is safe to assert that never before had that body appropriated money at the rate of $2,000,000 a minute with such unanimity. The result was announced-76 votes in the affirmative. No dissenting vote. No Senators present and not voting. The remaining Senators that compose the body were accounted for by the traditional respect for pairs which characterizes the Senate. No applause greeted the announcement. The House on Tuesday applauded, roared, hissed or laughed by turns. Not a sign of approval or disapproval was raised in the Senate, for the rule forbids it. At 3:40 o'clock Wednesday afternoon the emergency appropriation bill was signed by President McKinley and became a law.

When it comes to facilitating business and making no noise about it, the Senate stands without a peer in the estimation of parliamentarians. Culver City Columbian Band Defeated at Knox.

Two Points Given by the Judges in Knox's Favor. One of the Judges Lives in Knox and one at North Judson. Draw Your Conclusions.

Last Friday was a cloudy, rainy day; just the kind of a day to cause dissatisfaction and disappointments. Friday evening was the time set for the great band contest between the Knox K. of P. Baud and the Culver City Columbian Band, the latter being the "Cracker-jack band of Marshall county and the former of Starke count. At half-past eleven a.m., upon that fatal Friday, Culver's band boarded Swigart's carry-all, and was conveyed to Burr Oak, a little surburban village two and onehalf miles north of Culver, where it took the Nickel Plate train for Knox. Arriving in Burr Oak several minutes before the train was due, the band favored the denizens of said place with a few selections of choice music, which was so appreciated by one firm, situated first door south of and although it gave others an op- Culver City Columbian Band will did not have musical souls, hence did not respond by the way of cigars or anything else.
