LOCAL BREVITIES.

Mrs. David Swigart is quite ill.
Dan Walters is putting up his own ice.
Henry Overman and S. E. Medbourn butchered Tuesday.
Clyde Walters taught his sister's school the other day.
J. H. Castleman was in Plymouth Thursday on business.
About twenty men drew their pay at the Pay Car Thursday.
Miss Ada Hayes has returned from her visit at South Bend.
Hayes & Son have just received a fine three-seated Park wagon, and its daisy.
Miss Belle Roberts, of South Bend, will spend her Christmas at Culver.
The high school have a debate this afternoon, the subject being "Woman Suffrage."
E. H. Mow was in Rochester Wednesday at a trial and attending to other business.
A team driven by Albert Stahl ran away Tuesday. They ran from Watson Romig's to the front of Porter's store.

H. M. Garn is one of the best students in the college he is attending. Out of a class of 35 he and one other student led with an average percentage of 99.
Did you see that magnificent display of Holiday goods at Kloepfer's Culver Store?
We desire someone to bring us wood upon subscription. You that have promised us wood will please take notice.

The family of J. H. Koontz, moved yesterday to the house owned by J. F. Koontz and just vacated by Peter Keller.
The Christmas vacation at the Culver Military Academy begins Saturday morning. The term examinations are now in progress.

The Herald comes out just half its former size this week, and truly represents the way some people pay their subscription. You pay the editor and he will "trot" you out a paper the regulation size. But, however, if you do get a half sheet now and then, and do not like it call and pay up and stop the paper.
Mr. S. D. Lادن is now a full fledged Justice of the Peace, having received his commission from the Governor last week; hence he is now prepared to transact legal business upon short notice.

Are you aware that Porter & Co., have as fine a display of queensware in the basement of their store as can be found in Marshall county. Aside from this they have a magnificent line of novelties as can be found anywhere. If you want to select Christmas presents give them a call.

The Ice Co., has scraped a large field of ice and are rapidly preparing to commence cutting and storing in the houses. The ice at this writing is 7 1/2 inches thick and if the cold weather continues the elevators will begin early Monday morning.

To Whom it May Concern.
Notice is hereby given that Marmont Lodge, No. 231, E. of P., of Culver, Ind., will on their regular meeting night, December 27th, 1898, elect one trustee for the ensuing term.
D. B. Young,
E. of R. & S.

Oliyer Morris has applied for Notary Public papers and will soon be ready to transact legal business with neatness and dispatch. He will also establish a collecting agency.

The Exchange Bank of Culver hangs up a neat sign to the effect that they are protected by a policy in the Banker's Mutual Casualty Company. This refers to an insurance policy issued by the Company to the bank, indemnifying it from loss that may be caused by a burglary or robbery of the bank, and secures the bank and its patrons from the danger of loss from that score. The Company issuing the policy pays the loss occasioned, and in addition to this money protection the Company has an efficient detective service which is at once put on the track of a criminal who interferes with any bank holding a policy in the company, and bringing the burglar or robber to bay and trial regardless of the time or effort required.

Married.

A quiet home wedding took place at the home of Mr. Thomas Smith's east of the lake Wednesday, at which time Mr. Thomas Smith and Miss Bell Lowery were united in marriage by Rev. Fraley. These young people start on a life journey together with the best wishes of all who had the honor of their acquaintance.

He Took Her Place.

On Wednesday, Dec. 14th, Miss Elsie Walter, who is instructor at the Mt. Pleasant school, was reported upon the sick list and unable to attend to duties. She has a big brother who is a cadet at the academy, whose great love and sympathy for his sister led him to volunteer his services, or in other words he proposed to act as teacher in her place. He arrived at the school-house precisely at 8:30, and in his flashy uniform and superb military bearing fairly paralyzed the young Hoosiers.

At nine o'clock school was called and a "little bird," reports the following: "Clyde stepped behind the teacher's desk and in a sonorous voice ejaculated, Attention! Attention! Attention! Right-about face."

"I am here to instruct you plebs in the mysterious sciences of war and the base villain that dares to evade duty will be bucked and gagged and fed on bread and water for a month. First class will right about face and step to the front."

"You with the blue-jeans on, what do you know about this great and glorious country? What do you know about Dewey, Sampson and all the rest of the brave heroes that fought, bled and died to preserve the union?" The boy then said, "I know some poetry about 'em" and sprung the following:
"Dewey had a little fleet which once was white as snow, and everywhere that Dewey went that fleet was sure to go. It went with him to the Philippines, against the Spanish rule; it made the poor Dons gnash their teeth to see him keep so cool. And so they tried to turn him out, but still he lingered near, and wiped Spain's fleet clear off the sea—and then the whole school cheered." This kind of program was carried out to a letter all day and now Miss Walter says it will take a month to bring the school back to its usual equilibrium.

Attention.

It may not be generally known that I, the undersigned am located in the boot and shoe repair business, ready to repair boots and shoes upon short notice, and prices perfectly on par with the times. Be it further understood that I always guarantee my work, as I only use the best grade of leather, and as I have had years of experience at the business, I claim to be perfectly conversant with the same from start to finish. You will also please bear in mind that I am prepared to make boots and shoes to order. Rooms over Young & Keen's Novelty works. Call and see me, WILLIAM FOSS.

Two Pointed Questions Answered.

What is the use of making a better article than your competitor if you can not get a better price for it?

Ans.—As there is no difference in the price the public will buy only the better, so that while our profits may be smaller on a single sale they will be much greater in the aggregate.

How can you get the public to know your make is the best?

If both articles are brought prominently before the public both are very likely to be tried and the public will very quickly pass judgment on them and use only the better one.

This explains the large sale on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The people have been using it for years and have found that it can always be depended upon. They may occasionally take up with some fashionable novelty put forth with exaggerated claims, but are certain to return to the one remedy that they know to be reliable, and for coughs, colds and croup there is nothing equal to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. For sale by Culver City, Drug Store. 1m

THE ACADEMY FLAG AT HALF MAST.

DEATH IN THE CORPS OF CADETS.

Cadet George Edgar Drabelle, only son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Drabelle, of Louisville, Ky., died of heart disease at the Superintendent's residence, Culver Military Academy, Saturday morning the tenth instant, at one-twenty o'clock.

Although it was known that the illness was of a serious nature, his death came as a great shock, his comrades scarcely able to realize that this strong, manly fellow, had gone from their midst, and would march no more beside them or ever again join them in work or play.

Owing to the dangerous uncertainty of the disease his relatives had been summoned from the family home in Louisville, and he passed away surrounded by loved ones, his last hours in life cheered by the presence of those who were near and dear to him. The evening before the anxious watchers at his bedside had been much encouraged by an apparently decided improvement in his condition, however after 11 o'clock he grew rapidly worse, Dr. Rea, the physician attending was summoned but it was God's will that the medical skill should be of no avail, and the youthful sufferer passed from this earth whose sorrows he was too young to have known, to a better world where no sorrows are.

A steady, dutiful soldier, a good comrade, decorous and gentle in manner and speech, enthusiastic in athletics and in his school in general, he will be sadly missed in the Corps of Cadets.

To the bereaved parents, the officers and Cadets of the Academy extend their deepest and most tender sympathy.

The body was conveyed to Louisville on the noon train on Saturday. The battalion of cadets escorted the remains to the depot. The firing party preceding and the Cadet pall bearers marching beside the hearse, while the superintendent and officers of the Academy followed just in rear.

At the station the battalion was formed in line and a salute of three volleys was fired over the casket, and while the battalion stood at parade rest the trumpeter sounded the taps; the sad notes of this call of the night, of this signal for lights out and all quiet, sounding peculiarly mournful in the bright sunlight of noon, a taps all the sadder because announcing the end of life's battle for so youthful a soldier.

Captain Campbell and Cadets Voris, Canfield, Shotwell, MacKenzie, Charltan and Fleet, accompanied the casket to Louisville, where on Monday afternoon the remains were interred in Cavehill cemetery.

A Sad Death.

Last Saturday Ferdinand Rhinehold, who resides about two and one-half miles southwest of Monterey, dropped dead at the elevator. He had come to town with a load of wheat, and upon arriving at the elevator was requested by Mr. Castleman to come in and warm, which he declined, saying that he was not in the cold. He had emptied one sack of wheat conversing with Mr. Castleman in the meantime, and Castleman was just replying when he heard a noise of falling outside. Rushing out he found Mr. Rhinehold lying with his head hanging over the side of the wagon box breathing heavily and unconscious. Placing him in a comfortable position, Castleman called the lumber man across the road and ran as fast as he could for Dr. B. W. S. Wiseman. When the doctor arrived Rhinehold was dead; he was unconscious from the fall until death. farmer Keller telegraphed his relatives who came as soon as possible, and conveyed his body home. Ferdinand was a well-to-do, amiable farmer, who for many years has been known as "Forty-nine Rhinehold." He was an enterprising citizen and will be greatly missed in his community. He was fifty five years of age and in the best of health. He was buried at Monterey Tuesday morning. His family has the sympathy of a large number of friends.

Notice to Subscribers.

We are very much in need of funds at present to continue our business, and those who owe us are requested to call as soon as possible and give us a lift. The business will not permit of our carrying you many months and in order for us to pay our bills, you will have to be more prompt in paying your subscription. The amount probably looks small to you, but just stop and think that when we have about 400 owing us from 25 cents up to $1.25 that it makes quite a sum. Please attend to the matter at once, and oblige.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four Doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God, I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at Slattery's Drug Store. Regular size 50c and $1.00. Guaranteed or price refunded. 1m

HOG CHOLERA.

Said to be Occasioned by a Parasite.

Dr. Elrod, of Colorado, is the Man That Makes the Assertion.

In a long article on typhoid fever and germ diseases Wm. Elrod of Colorado, has this to say of hog cholera:

"Hog cholera ought to be investigated by high priced men, but they need not put in more than ten days each and there need not be more than three of them and they need not examine over five hogs. They would know just as much after they had examined five hogs as they would after examining fifty. Anywhere from fifteen hundred to three thousand dollars would give hog cholera all the investigation it needs.

How would a commission proceed to investigate? They would have to contract with about five farmers to furnish one hog each out of a herd or litter of pigs in which hog cholera had broken out in a very malignant form. The hog to be examined should not weigh over seventy-five pounds and be in perfect health, although some of its mates had cholera in a very malignant form. To examine this hog kill and dress in the usual manner and lay the lungs on a sheet, and then slice them up. Cut all the muscular part up ready for the frying pan and the parasites will crawl out and try to make their way off of the sheet. Their locomotion appears like awkward attempts to leap. They vary a great deal in size, but average about one sixteenth of an inch in length and are about as thick as a hair out of a horse's mane. No need of any microscope to see them. A person can see them and stand twenty feet away. Let a farmer once see a hog sliced up and the larvae crawl out and scamper off and he is fully convinced about the nature of hog cholera."

Pains in the chest when a person has a cold indicate a tendency toward pneumonia. A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound on to the chest over the seat of pain will promptly relieve the pain and prevent the threatened attack of pneumonia. This same treatment will cure a lame back in a few hours. Sold by Culver City Drug Co.

Danish Wedding Rings.

"In Denmark a girl never knows the pure, unadulterated joy of receiving a diamond engagement ring," remarked a returned traveler. "She gets a plain gold band known as a wedding ring in that country, and it is worn on her left third finger. On the day of her marriage the bridegroom changes it to her right third finger, which is the marriage finger in that country of queer customs. When the husband dies his widow changes her ring again to her left third finger, and everybody knows that she is a widow. Being engaged can't mean a great deal of happiness in Denmark any way you take it, for a girl is never under any circumstances permitted to see her betrothed one minute alone."

A Great Barber in India.

The barber of India is a man of much importance. He has no shop and does not solicit customers by signs or symbols. If the tourist in India observes closely the streams of life in the streets, he will now and then notice a man of quiet demeanor strolling along near the bazars, carrying a small bag or rolled-up bundle under his arm, apparently not very solicitous of the attention of the passers-by.

This is the Hindu barber, who visits certain families early every morning. The barber is also village surgeon. He performs bleeding, cupping, and undertakes surgical operations. It is he who bores the girls' ears and noses for putting in rings. No religious rite can be performed without the presence of the family barber. At the birth of the child the barber carries the good news to the relatives of the family.

He plays an important part at a wedding, it being his duty to dress the groom. On the occasion of a funeral the barber shaves the heads of the living and of the dead.

Lima's Handsome Women.

It is said the young women of Lima, the capital of Peru, approach nearest to perfection in beauty. They are straight and willowy, have soft, round, beautiful faces, with luxuriant black hair combed up from their foreheads. Their eyes are extraordinarily brilliant. They all dress in black when they appear on the street and are very demure, though in their homes they are vivacious and dress in gay colors.

Profitable This Time.

"Never was glad for this in-hu-pediment in my speech but once," said the man from Dearborn who was in to see the big parade.

"When was that?"

"Fe-fe-fel-low asked me h-h-how much I would take for a-a horse, and while I-I-I was t-trying to tell him s-s-sixty d-dollars he offered me a hundred."

WHAT ONE MAN ACCOMPLISHED.

He Was a Christian, and Did Not Believe in the "Good Lord Good Devil Theory."

Last week the HERALD contained an extract from a sermon entitled "What Would Jesus Do."

In said sermon, it spoke of members of a certain church pledging themselves to do nothing for one year that would meet with the disapproval of Christ, or in other words, would do nothing but what Christ would do himself were He in their places. It will be remembered that the following out the principles of the pledge, caused an upheaval in society, and practically changed the whole social atmosphere of a large city and many were led to lead better and more consecrated lives. The fact that so many accomplished so much, leads us to briefly chronicle what was accomplished by one young man, who followed the principle to the letter of doing nothing but what Jesus would do.

In 1870, the writer lived in a city in Northern Michigan, containing about 4000 souls. It was in the great lumber districts, and had within its corporate limits 23 saw mills and a score or more shingle mills which employed a vast army of laborers of every nationality. Aside from these industries there were scores of mills scattered all along the lake shore, which took a large army of rivermen to drive the pine logs down the river to the great booming grounds along the Lake Shore to supply these mills with logs. At that time, the city which we will call "W." enjoyed the reputation of having 30 saloons, and 26 houses of ill-fame, and owing to the fact that from 60 to 70 vessels loaded lumber at the docks every day, another great army of the toughest element, was upon the streets. Law and order were unknown quantities. The police courts were kept busy fining re-factors who were constantly engaged in drunken-brawls, and every now and then in front of some disreputable house the body of some unfortunate would be found cold and silent in death, leaving no clue, whereby the guilty ones could be brought to justice. Base women and brutal men would ride up and down the streets and bid defiance to law, while the upright citizen would look on in holy horror and wonder how long such proceedings would continue. At that time in the city of "W." for dancing houses ran wide open, while the saloons dished out beer and fire-water by the barrel; hence the city of "W." was considered the toughest town of its size in the state.

This condition of affairs continued until about the year of 1873, when a young telegraph operator by the name of Geo. Neville, arrived in the city and took charge of the telegraph office of the Chicago and West Michigan R. R., in said city. He was about 26 years of age, and the first thing he saw upon his arrival in the city was a beastly and bloody fight between some long shore men and mill employees right at the depot.

The young man, although a total stranger, took an active part in separating the bruisers, and as he afterward expressed was greatly shocked at the spectacle of seeing men madly trying to gouge each others eyes out.

Mr. Neville, before he had been in "W." a month had proven that he was a consecrated follower of Christ, and being such, had a mission to perform.

He at once discovered that out of a city of 4,000 inhabitants, that only two young men were christians, one a book-keeper at the bank and the other the cashier. These young men organized themselves into a committee of three, and the first thing they did was to hold cottage prayer meetings, and from the cottages they went to the saloons, from the saloons to the houses of ill-fame, and in the year of 1874, organized a Young Men's Christian Association with 50 membership, and the Wesleyan Methodist church took within its folds over 300 women and men who heretofore were recognized as the worst element in the community. Aside from this hundreds of young men, who were rapidly going down grade, were taken into other churches; several of them are ministers of the gospel today.

This Geo. Neville, who was the cause of this great upheaval in this city, had the satisfaction of seeing all the saloons closed but two, and every house of ill-fame wiped out of existence, most of their inmates being soundly converted—pointed to that better life by him who did nothing but what Jesus would do.

Nor did the good work end here, through his efforts a public reading room was established, which was endowed by several wealthy men with a substantial library.

This great change was brought about by one young man, who was a consecrated follower of Christ and who only had the deepest and unwavering love for all humanity, no matter what their condition in life. He did not serve the Good Lord today and the devil tomorrow, but his life was a living monument that Christ's Spirit was part of his spirit, and that the teachings of the master, well observed with faith believing, would transform the world, and no one would doubt this statement could they have been with the writer and seen scores upon scores of the "lowest of the low" flocking to the altar at the invitation of this young "Paul of Tarsus" whose faith never faltered and whose hope of meeting Him, the master, ever made his life full of sunshine, not only to himself but to others.

Lake Milling Co's, flour is now on sale at the People's Meat Market. Also Corn Meal and Buckwheat Flour. S. D. LADEN, Prop.

A Hanna church going man went out one night recently and gathered his eggs, placing the hen product in his overcoat pockets. A meeting was held in the church that evening which the gentleman attended and through his absent mindedness forgot to remove the eggs from his pockets. The air was chilly and it chanced that the church was not heated to a proper temperature, and this church-goer realized that it would be more comfortable not to remove his overcoat, so he sat down upon the hen fruit. Now the mere suggestion of "scrambled eggs" makes him exceedingly wroth.

THREE DOCTORS IN CONSULTATION—
From Benjamin Franklin.

"When you are sick, what you like best is to be chosen for a medicine in the first place; what experience tells you is best, to be chosen in the second place; what reason (i. e., Theory) says is best is to be chosen in the last place. But if you can get Dr. Inclination, Dr. Experience and Dr. Reason to hold a consultation together, they will give you the best remedy that can be taken.

Soothing, healing, cleansing. De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve is the replaceable enemy of sores, burns and wounds. It never fails to cure piles. You may rely upon it. For sale at Culver City drug store.

Captured Another Prize

came to be an old story after the first week of the "Yanko-Spanko war." When we say we have captured another prize by capturing the great line of SELZ SHOES to "make your feet glad," we know the prize is a valuable one because more people wear SELZ SHOES than any other make. That could only be true if the shoes were better than any other make, so we captured this prize for the special benefit of our customers. Come and see the prize.

President's Message.

In his message to congress the president gives a brief account of the war. He ascribes the cause of war to the continuance of intolerable conditions in Cuba, and the emptiness of Spanish promises of reform, but mentions the Maine disaster.

The failure of the Spanish autonomy scheme is reported, and the diplomatic negotiations with Spain rehearsed. The president mentions, also, the efforts of the foreign powers to intercede and the steps undertaken by congress to prepare for armed intervention.

He mentions Dewey's achievement as having given the "prestige of invincibility" to American arms, recounts Hobson's exploit and describes the defeat of Cervera as the "decisive naval battle."

The total losses in the war are given at 1,577 in the army and 91 in the navy.

The president says the fall of Manila constitutes a conquest of the Philippines.

He pays earnest tributes to the army and navy, to the Red Cross society and to the volunteers who did not get a chance to go into action.

The preliminary peace negotiations are recited in detail.

The president does not discuss the kind of government he approves for Puerto Rico and the Philippines, but announces that those islands will be kept under military government pending the action of congress.

Cuba, he announces, is to be kept under military government until competent system of self-government can be established.

The president recites the annexation of Hawaii, and calls upon congress to take action relating to the future form of Hawaiian government.

Except for the war with Spain, he declares the United States has amicable relations with other powers, and an era of prosperity has begun.

The president asks for legislation as he advised a year ago on the currency question.

The president recommends the increase of the navy and the revival of the ranks of admiral and rear admiral.

He urges the acquisition of the new territory as a reason for adopting a maritime policy.

An increase of the army to a peace footing of 100,000 men is recommended.

The advisability of making an adequate display at the Paris exposition is noted and congress urged to further the work with an appropriation of $1,000,000.

Immediate action looking to the construction on the Nicaragua canal is urged.

The desirability of protecting American commercial interests in China is noted and measures to that end are recommended.

Negotiations to protect American food products from discriminating action on the part of European governments have been undertaken.

The president comments upon the friendliness shown by Great Britain. He commends the czar's project for universal peace.
