B. F. Ditmire moved his household effects and family to Monterey Wednesday. About a year or more ago, he and his partner, Geo. Adamson, erected the grist mill at this place, and proved themselves to be hustlers. But owing to finances, were compelled to dispose of their interests in the mill and retire; a proceeding greatly regretted by the community in general, as under their management the mill did a flourishing business. This family will be greatly missed in Culver, but what is Culver's loss is Monterey's gain.

FACTS OF INTEREST.

The first camp meeting in the United States was held on the banks of the Red River, Kentucky, in 1799.

Twenty-five years ago the United States produced 70 per cent. of the cotton of the world; to-day she produces 85 per cent. of the world's cotton.

The famous Bowery in New York was originally the road through the bouwerie, or farm of Gov. Stuyvesant, of the Dutch colony of Amsterdam. It was the post route to Boston.

In the "Lost and Found" column of an English paper appears an advertisement offering a reward for the return of a large Angora cat "with a very busy tail." The careless compositor again, but then not such a ridiculous error, after all.

The States in which the death penalty is forbidden by law are Colorado, Rhode Island, Maine, Michigan, and Wisconsin. In Rhode Island the only alternative is imprisonment for life. In Kansas the signature of the Governor is necessary to an execution.

The seven principal Bibles in the world are the Koran of the Mohammedans, the Eddas of the Scandinavians, the Tripitakes of the Buddhists, the Five Kings of the Chinese, the three Vedas of the Hindoos, the Zendavesta, and the scriptures of the Christians.

A Palace Erected Through Spite.

It seems that the New Palace in Berlin is to be made sanitary by the draining of the swampy land upon which it is built. To do this it will be necessary to deepen the whole bed of the Havel, great difficulties will have to be surmounted and the expense will be enormous; but this seems to be the only way in which the palace can be made habitable.

It is said that this palace owes its origin to pique. Frederick the Great was riding by the site one day when his adjutant told him the report was current that he had no money left since his wars were ended. King Frederick was nettled, and replied, pointing to the swamps around them: "I will show them I am not so poor as they think. I will build a palace here." He was as good as his word, and, at a tremendous outlay, built the palace, but he neglected to prepare the grounds by proper draining, and so the palace has always been damp and unhealthy, in spite of the beauty of the surroundings.

Have Drawn a Pension for 386 Years

When the Earl of Surrey won the battle of Flodden Field, King Henry VIII. was so grateful that he granted to the early "for himself and his heirs forever" the magnificent sum of £40 ($200) a year. The Duke of Norfolk, as the heir of the Earl of Surrey, has just commuted the pension for $4,000 cash in hand. The battle of Flodden Field, too, was fought in 1513, and therefore the Howards of Norfolk have drawn from the English government in the last 386 years the sum of $77,200—considering that the victory of the Earl of Surrey saved England from becoming tributary to Scotland, not so great a sum after all.

There will shortly arrive in England from Assam a trial shipment of a new fiber for textile purposes. The rough outer covering of the pineapple is the raw material from which the new fiber is made.

Three places at least are known where green snow is found. One of these is near Mount Hecla, Iceland, another fourteen miles east of the mouth of the Obi and the third near Quito, South America.

Cranberries are not injured by freezing. They are often sent as far as Manitoba in open box cars. When they arrive they are frozen into solid blocks of ice. The sides of the cases are knocked off and the berries are exposed in a solid mass, like cakes of ice.

There are over 200 brands of wine produced in France, but not more than a dozen or fifteen are known to the people in America. More wine is drunk in England than in France, and London is the greatest wine market in the world.

The ocean contains several fish which clothe and adorn themselves. The most conspicuous of them is the anemurine, a small fish frequenting the Sargasso Sea, which literally clothes itself with seaweed, fastening the pieces together with sticky, gelatinous strings, and then, as it were, holding the garment on with its fore fins.

The whole Moslem race despise and abhor the sound of bells, which they say cause the evil spirits to assemble together. They do not use them on their mosques or churches, but have instead men called muzza stationed in the minarets, who call out five times each day for the people to assemble for prayer. The cry is: "There is no god but God, and Mohammed is His prophet."

In Berlin the firemen wear water-jackets, with a double skin, which they are able to fill with water from the hose. If the space between the two layers becomes overfilled the water escapes through a valve at the top of the helmet and flows down over the fireman, like a cascade, protecting him doubly. The smoke helmets, largely used in Germany, Austria, Holland and Italy, enable the wearer to breathe and see at his ease in a smoke-laden atmosphere. In some instances the apparatus includes a means of telephonic communication with the street below.

The parliament of the United Kingdom is the largest representative body in the world. In the House of Lords there are 553 persons entitled to vote, and in the House of Commons there are 670 members. France in its corps legislatif has 300 senators, and 584 deputies. Italy has a varying number of senators and 508 deputies. Japan has 300 peers and 300 representatives. Germany, in its bundesrath, or senate, has fifty-eight members, but its reichstag has 397 members. Spain's cortes has 431 members. Canada has a senate of eighty members and a house of commons of 215 members.

Sand Mines in Pennsylvania.

There are all kinds of mines in Pennsylvania. The greatest are, of course, the iron and coal mines, but few people would guess that the next extensive mining industry are the sand mines in Western Pennsylvania. These mines are rarely underground, however, and many of them are viewed with wonder by passengers on the Pennsylvania approaching Pittsburg. Whole mountains are being dug away, and the granular rocks forming them are being reduced to sand for the manufacture of glass in and about Pittsburg.

Remarkable Cure of Rheumatism.

KEENA, Jackson Co., W. Va.
 About three years ago my wife had an attack of rheumatism which confined her to her bed for over a month and rendered her unable to walk a step without assistance, her limbs being swollen to double their normal size. Mr. S. Maddox insisted on my using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I purchased a fifty cent bottle and used it according to the directions and the next morning she walked to breakfast without assistance, in any manner, and she has not had a similar attack since. A. B. Parsons. For sale by T. E. Slattery, Druggist, 4014

The Best in the World.

We believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best in the world. A few weeks ago we suffered with a severe cold and a troublesome cough, and having read their advertisement in our own and other papers we purchased a bottle to see if it would effect us. It cured us before the bottle was more than half used. It is the best medicine out for colds and coughs.—The Herald, Andersonville, Ind. For Sale by T. E. Slattery, Druggist, 4014

SLOWEST PEOPLE ON EARTH.

A Strange North-Africa Tribe that Live in Holes in the Ground.

If you want to be introduced to the slowest people in the world you must visit North Africa and make your way across the scorching desert that separates from the rest of the inhabitants of Africa the race known to the ancients as the Troglodytes, from the Greek "troglodytes," a hole. They were given this name on account of the habit of living in holes in the ground, a habit that probably owes its origin to the fact that Old Sol in that quarter is a very merciless old tyrant, and life above ground is scarcely bearable except when the sun has retired for the night.

The Troglodytes are in the line of caravan travel, and are visited by these freight trains of the African desert. No outside influence has been able, however, to wean them from their ancient habits, their antique garb and their peculiar manner of living. So far as is known, the manners and customs of the Troglodytes have not changed since Bible times.

A Troglodyte city is the most curious dwelling place in the world. From the exterior it presents the aspect of a Roman circus. The habitations are built in layers, one above the other, and form a circular wall with a single entrance from the outside. All the doors of the houses open on the interior of the circular city.

Besides affording protection from their enemy, the sun, the circular habitations with the dead walls outside form a strong fortress to guard the inhabitants from the attacks of neighboring tribes. In these more peaceful days, however, they have no such fear before them, and so they use the walled city mostly for the storing of crops, while they live in holes dug in the ground within the walls and frequently change their position in search of pasture for the animals.

The people are peaceably disposed, intelligent and hard working, tending their flocks and farming their land with patient energy. Now that archaeologists are turning their attention to the ancient people, something more is being learned of them than was known heretofore.

Blaine's Grave.

Although against the expressed wishes of James G. Blaine, his last resting-place in Oak Hill cemetery, Washington, has been marked by a simple marble shaft. In 1890, when Walker Blaine, died, the magnetic statesman from Maine went to this cemetery with a friend to select a site for the burial, and in the center of the lot chosen the Plumed Knight noticed a gnarled and twisted hickory tree, which was blasted and dead. As Blaine looked at the tree he remarked to his friend that it aptly represented his blasted and disappointed life, and requested that nothing should mark his grave but the dead tree. His wishes in this matter were respected, and for several years it was the only mark by which the last resting-place of the great statesman could be distinguished. A few months ago the tree was blown down during a cyclone, and Mrs. Blaine decided to have the grave suitably marked, and selected a monument exactly like the one over Walker Blaine's tomb. It is a marble shaft about eight feet high, without any inscription except the name of Mr. Blaine and the date of his birth and death.

An Interesting Bank Note.

One of the most interesting notes in possession of the Bank of England is one for £1,000, which was given by Alexander Cochrane, afterward Lord Dundonald, in payment of a fine inflicted upon him some time before the battle of Waterloo. Cochrane, after destroying the French fleet in the Aix roads, was accused and convicted of a stock-jobbing fraud, and part of his sentence was the payment of a fine of £1,000. Cochrane, whose sentence was years afterward annulled, bitterly resented his punishment, and when, in July, 1815, he tendered the note in payment of the fine he made the following pathetic indorsement upon it: "My health having suffered from long and close confinement, and my oppressors having resolved to deprive me of my property or life, I submit to robbery to protect myself from murder, in the hope that I shall live to bring the delinquents to justice."

Barnum Knew How to Advertise.

A story of the late George Augustus Sala and Barnum is told by Tid-Bits. A reception was given the American on the occasion of the last visit of the famous showman in England. Mr. Sala presided. In the reception room, where all were waiting to welcome the guest of the evening, Mr. Barnum came in beaming, and, shaking hands with the chairman, said with a strongly marked Yankee accent: "This is, indeed, a surprise to me." "Did you hear that?" Mr. Sala whispered. "Why, he arranged for the dinner himself!"

Pretty Hard to Beat It.

What is the most ungrammatical sentence ever spoken? The following would be hard to beat: "It was enunciated by a little girl who was driving along a country road with her father in London. Seeing a flock of sheep in a neighboring meadow, she asked: 'Is them sheeps yourn?'" Four words and all wrong.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters has cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great suffering for years. Terrible sores would break out on head and face, and the best doctors could do no help; but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved,—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. A gravel walk from the west barracks to the "Roost" is under construction.

The academy pier has been placed in position, and will be lighted by electricity as soon as possible.

Target practice at 200 yards commenced Tuesday. Maclean made the best score, 20 out of a possible 25.

It is rumored that the corps of cadets will attend the G. A. R. encampment at Terre Haute next month.

Ex-Governor, Will Cumback delivered his very interesting lecture on "The Lecture Platform" to the cadets Friday evening.

Cadet Collins was called to his home in Mishawaka, Indiana, this week and we understand that he will not return. Cadet Beyer takes his place in the band.

Indications point to the fact that the commencement exercises this year in line of interest will surpass any previous year in the history of this excellent institution.

April's Vedette will contain an article on "Puerto Rico" by Capt. Greiner which we understand will contain a detailed account of his experience during the late campaign in said island.

Cadet Sauerman has returned to his home in Crown Point, Ind., where he will remain on account of poor health. He was a fine fellow, and a model cadet, having had no demerits since the commencement of the term, and will be greatly missed by all. We hope to have him with us next year.

The cadets were instructed in the art of bridge building and construction of a flying telegraph, Monday. The lagoon was bridged by means of interlocked poles held together with ropes, over which planking was laid. The barracks was connected with the Palmer House by means of the flying telegraph and several messages sent, Wilson M. and Taylor being the operators.

The lectures and addresses at the Culver Military Academy during the winter and spring have been of unusual interest. The list of lectures includes ten of the professors of the University of Chicago, Dr. Bernard Bigsby, of Detroit; Judge D. P. Baldwin, of Logansport; W. H. Smith, of Indianapolis, author of the "The History of Indiana"; Capt. B. H. Greiner and C. P. DeBlumenthal, of the academy, and Dr. P. S. Henson, of Chicago. Last week Dr. J. W. Younge, of Fort Wayne, delivered an address on the battle of Gettysburg. Friday night ex Governor Will Cumback addressed the cadets on "The Lecture Platform."—Ex.

Cadets Rauh, Stoner, Koontz S., and Hubbard, who have been enjoying vacations at home, have returned to the academy.

The base ball season will be opened here Saturday, when we play Purdue University. The boys are learning new yells, the diamond is being repaired, and the team is practicing at every opportunity in preparation for the event. Wabash College is scheduled for a game Thursday the 20th.

The entertainment given by the cadets Saturday evening was the last of the series. No more will take place until commencement week. The first number on the program was a "coon" song by Cunningham, which was well received. The Mandolin Club next treated the boys to some very good music. Barton's dramatic sketch, "The Kitchen Mystery" or "Who Stole the Wooden Biscuits" was then produced by Cunningham, Jackson, Barton and Enos. It was well written and ably played, and made a great hit. A quartet composed of Capt. Wickham, cadets Fledderjohn, Davis and Young, followed with a descriptive song written by White O. The fact that it was highly appreciated was shown by the hearty and prolonged applause, which compelled them to appear several times. The band closed the program by playing several choice selections.

Monopolies and Education.

We learn from the daily press that Prof. John R. Commons of Syracuse, N. Y., University, has resigned the chair of Finance in that institution owing to the protest made against him by a prominent official of the Standard Oil Trust and other members of the Board of Trustees who are also members of various capitalistic combinations, because of his denunciation of the nefarious schemes practiced by these concerns to the detriment of the common people, he used rather impressive language to his pupils. This reminds us that a few years ago, Prof. Commons was dropped from our State University for advocating municipalization of gas and water works. In such treatment Prof. Commons has not been the only prominent teacher of these subjects who has thus fallen a prey to the insatiable greed of the monopolistic power. Because of his belief in the propriety of free coinage, Dr. E. B. Andrews was requested to desist in the promulgation of his belief to his students and he at once resigned rather than submit to what was threatening the very life of one of the most cherished national institutions, "The freedom of speech." And when president W. R. Harper, of the Chicago University, had tendered him the co-presidency of that institution through the influence of the men who have endowed that great university. Dr. Harper was compelled to withdraw the honor he had tendered Dr. Andrews. From the same institution but a year or more has elapsed since Prof. E. W. Bemis was forced to resign because he had the courage to proclaim his belief that the lighting, water supply, and street railways would contribute much more to the welfare of the people where they are controlled by the city, than they were contributing under the control of the street railway magnate, Charles T. Yerkes.

The next desired change was effected when Prof. E. A. Ross, of Leland-Stanford University was transferred from the chair of Finance to the chair of Sociology, a change much against the wishes of Prof. Ross, but nevertheless consummated because in the latter subject his teaching was considered more orthodox to the cause of fastening industrial tyranny upon the people. Because Dr. Ely, of Wisconsin University taught the salvation and amelioration of the labor forces, lay in their association for mutual protection as was being practiced by the more powerful capitalists and undertakers, was compelled to resign. Yet this is not all, for the press stated the other day that Dr. Herrou, who occupies the chair of Applied Christianity at Iowa College had so aroused the antipathy of the monopoly power that they were seeking to have him removed and that in all probabilities he would soon be a martyr to their dominating powers. To these men of great wealth our higher institutions owe an inestimable debt for their liberality in providing the necessary means for intensive study and research, and yet no school can afford to sacrifice the very foundation of their usefulness and power—the unrestricted freedom of expression of honest mental, and spiritual opinion and judgement. Better by far that all the wealth thus gratuitously endowed were returned to the donors than one iota of that vital freedom be sacrificed and universities be made the mouthpieces of a power designed to enslave and feed upon its weaker competitors in the struggle for existence.

We should as a liberty-loving people awaken to the impending evil and lend our efforts to bar its further progress.

F. C. BAKER, Pres. W. H. MATTHEWS, Sec.

Mr. Editor:—Culver has men who are noted horse swappers. They never let an opportunity pass when they can "do" a man whether he be friend or foe. They will stand right before a prospective buyer and swear by all the "gods in Israel" that the "hoss" is sound as a bullet when they know in their degenerated hearts that the animal for all practical purposes is not worth five cents. They will sell or trade, and when the poor deluded man finds out how bad he has been "let down," there is no redress, simply because like all other "dead-beats," these vampires have nothing in their own name. A CITIZEN.
