End of Volume Five.

This issue closes volume five of the CULVER CITY HERALD, and next week Vol. 6, No. 1 will commence. It seems almost incredible to us that we have been a resident of Culver for five years, and what changes have been wrought. Between 40 and 50 new dwelling houses, two fine brick, and several frame store buildings, a grist mill, and other business places have been erected, and now greet the eyes of strangers. Aside from this a chain of sidewalks have been laid all over the city. But with all these improvements there is still room for more. The town needs lighted streets and above all, substantial fire

So far as the HERALD is concerned, it cordially thanks its friends for their patronage and good will during these years, while it informs its enemies that it holds no personal animosity, although we are positive that there are those that would gloat were we compelled to cease publishing the HERALD. The past year has been a very distressing one financially to us, owing to sickness and the tardiness of people paying subscriptions and other bills. We feel that we are capable of making the HERALD a journal which is a credit to the community, but when business men write their letters on blank paper, and do their advertising on fences, there is but little encouragement for an editor to attempt to chronicle in glowing words that his town is the "only," when one-half the business interests of the place stand back and hope the editor will succeed.

Those that are in arrears upon this paper will settle for the same before the 30th, or their names will be erased from our list, and the accounts placed in the hands of a collector, and all those who pay up arrears and a year in advance, will receive the HERALD and a handsome 250 page, nicely bound receipt book, containing a medical department, culinary department etc., a valuable work well worth the price of the subscription. Again thanking you for past favors, we remain, yours truly,

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Potatoes are scarce.

Renew your subscription.

Call at this office for your fine job work.

A large amount of corn has been frost bitten.

The Supreme Court has declared the fish law "O. K."

Cottagers are beginning to arrive regular now.

School commencement at Leiters Ford on the evening of July 1.

We want potatoes upon subscription. Who will bring us some?

We have been promised wood. Now is the time we need it.

Mrs. Baldwin, of Elwood, Ind., is visiting her uncle, Mr. S. D. Laden, this week.

Mrs. D. A. Bradley is in love with her new range. Just call at the Bradley restaurant and partake of one of her par-excellent meals.

Henry Haag of Kewanna who does the tin repair work for the Vandalia R. R. Co., has just completed tin-roofing the Capt. Morris boat house.

Elaborate commencement exercises will be held at Leiters Ford Saturday July 1st. The meeting will be held at the M. E. Church.

If you are looking for a nice home-like place to spend a few days which is in close proximity to the lake, just stop at the Lakeside Hotel. You will find prices very reasonable and the menu first class.

Con Bonaker is now sole agent for the Rochester Steam Laundry and especially invites you to call and examine his work, which he guarantees to excel any laundry work furnished in the town. Work talks.

Rev. J. P. Stahl, of Canal Winchester, Ohio, preached at the Reformed church last Sunday evening to a crowded house. His text was from Matthew 13:1-23. It was an excellent discourse and was greatly appreciated. He also favored the audience with a baritone solo which was very fine. His little daughter played the accompaniment. The Rev. gentleman and family are here visiting relatives and friends.

J. K. Mawhorter, Culver's famous tinner has taken the contract to put a complete troughing around the roof of the Peru House, and will also do the tin work on the Brownell cottage, Shirk cottage, and the Dr. Benepe cottage. The people from abroad are beginning to learn that they can procure just as good workmen at Culver as elsewhere and at just as reasonable prices. J. K. Mawhorter is a good workman and should receive a fair patronage.

The strawberry season is about closed.

Chicken thieves have been getting in their work.

Several fishing parties have been located at Long Point.

The new barracks at Culver Park is being rapidly pushed.

Mrs. H. H. Culver and party are traveling in Japan.

There will be a total eclipse of the moon this (Friday) evening.

Ray Carr of South Bend is visiting friends in Culver this week.

Frank R. New and wife are occupying their new cottage near the Palmer House.

Mrs. J. R. Barr of Rochester with 14 young people, spent last week at Long Point.

Hon. John E. Lamb, an ex-congressman and Judge McNutt of Terre Haute, are guests at the Arlington.

J. F. Haynes and a large party from Logansport and Keokuck, Iowa, were guests at the Arlington last week.

B. F. Medbourn and wife spent Sunday in Culver with friends. He is painting roofs at Mentone, and from there will go to Claypool.

Mrs. W. E. Hand attended the funeral of her deceased sister, Mrs. Tillie Shultz at Valparaiso, last week.

The harness shop is now open to do all kinds of repair work. Prices right. Hayden Rea's old stand.

Call on the new harness shop before going elsewhere as they are here to stay. Hayden Rea's old stand.

Dow Rector of Maxenkuckee has as fine a draying outfit as there is in the country. He says he will deliver and transfer goods with neatness and dispatch.

Get prices on harness before going elsewhere. Hayden Rea's old stand.

Bargains in whips, horse nets, buggy dusters and harness trimmings at Hayden Rea's old stand.

Married at the residence of the bride's parents, Tuesday evening, John Wickizer and Miss Lizzie Scheureman. Thus Culver loses one of its ablest teachers.

Allen Norris and wife who have been visiting his parents at Maple Grove Place the past week, returned to Syracuse Monday where they will permanently reside.

J. F. Kuhn, a medical steward in the navy for six years, and who is attending the Georgetown medical college, has been in Culver the past week. He is a son of John Kuhn.

We neglected to mention in last week's HERALD that the children's Day exercises held at the Reformed church under the auspices of the M. E. church on the Sunday evening previous was a grand success. Those deserving special mention were master Carl Castleman, who declaimed a selection in a praiseworthy manner plainly showing natural ability which should be cultivated. Also the solo sung by little Pauline Speyer was very touching and exceedingly well executed.

Considerable improvements are being made upon Long Point. Geo. Voreis has taken the contract to paint several cottages and has already done several artistic jobs. S. Chadwick is building an addition to Duenweg's cottage and also constructing a hammock booth.

ONE FARE ROUND TRIP

Here is our Walter.

Lake Maxenkuckee ice is in great demand at present.

Otto Stechhan of Indianapolis is transacting business at the lake this week.

Jovial Charlie Kiefer of Indianapolis was seen upon our streets Wednesday.

It will soon be harvest time, and the wheat crop will be mighty light in this section.

The Junior Epworth League picnic held at Keen's grove Tuesday was a success in every particular.

Peter Taylor, of St. Louis, is here spending a few days with his brother, Mr. G. B. Taylor, of the academy.

S. Sheerin's family of Indianapolis arrived in Culver Tuesday, where they will spend the summer at their cottage near the Palmer.

For first class blacksmith work and repairs in wood work, call upon Wm. Wilson. You can always find him at his place of business ready to do business in a business like way.

The Thomas Medbourn boarding house is fast becoming very popular. Nothing is left undone at this excellent establishment to make you feel right at home. Everything in the menu line is first class and always in abundance.

JUST LISTEN.—W. E. Hand, proprietor of the Clover Leaf Dairy, has as fine a herd of cows as can be found in the state. He is now furnishing milk to a large number of customers who are highly satisfied with the excellent milk they receive. He delivers it right at the door. If you desire pure sweet milk right off the ice, give him a trial, and he will please you.

A Deplorable Loss by Fire.

Last Friday afternoon the residence and barn belonging to Frank Chapman who lives west of town, was totally destroyed by fire. No one was at home at the time but small children, hence nothing of the contents of the buildings could be saved. The loss is very severe upon Mr. Chapman as we understand there was no insurance. Here is an opportunity for our citizens to exhibit a spirit which was admired by the meek and lowly Master, who said, "Give and ye shall receive."

Married.

Tuesday evening at 5 p. m., Miss Lizzie Scheurman and Mr. John Wickizer, both of this county, were united in marriage at the home of the brides parents, Rev. L. Newman officiating. The near friends of the bride and groom were present. After the nuptial knot was tied and congratulations were extended an excellent supper was served to the satisfaction of all present, after which a number of fine presents were presented to the happy couple. The newly married couple will go to house keeping at once and will be at home to their many friends, just east of the lake. May happiness be theirs through life.

A FOLLOWER OF MEASLES.—In many instances a persistent cough follows an attack of measles. In speaking of this Mr. Walter B. Beel, editor of the Elkin (N. C.) Times, says: "Three weeks ago I had an attack of measles which left me with a bad cough. I took several doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the cough has entirely disappeared. I considered Chamberlain's medicine the best on the market." For sale by T. E. Slattery, 464

Notice!
Miss Maud Hand, of Culver, Ind., having prepared herself to give instructions on both Piano and Organ, respectfully solicits your patronage. Best of reference is given. 43tf

Disposed of His Business.

We are sorry to chronicle that H. J. Meredith, who has successfully conducted a grocery and queensware store in Culver for the past three years, has sold out and will retire from the business. We do not know what he intends to do, but whatever his lot may be cast, the HERALD wishes him success. His successors will be J. H. Castleman and Fred Hollister. Both are capable men and will not neglect to keep the reputation of the store up to its present state of excellence, so far as pure goods and first class services are concerned. Everybody knows James Castleman and will vouch for his integrity. Mr. Hollister is a young man of sterling worth, and is thoroughly conversant with the details of commercial life. We understand that the new firm will take possession next week.

CLOVER LEAF DAIRY.

The undersigned having established a milk route around the lake, very kindly solicit your patronage. We deliver bottled milk right off the ice and will guarantee satisfaction in every respect.

Love's Dearest Moment.

Love's dearest moment is not when the hands
 Are clasped in marriage, and the world looks on;
 Nor yet when all the importunate world has gone,
 And flaming passion like the archangel stands
 Between two souls, and welds with fire the bands
 Of impotent human law; nor when alone
 Upon the morrow they and love are one,
 Triune and chrismed, pure, as God's commands;
 It is not in the many morrows' track
 While love by loving grows more rich and wise
 Till age counts up love's wondrous, wondrous sum.
 Love's dearest moment is far back, far back—
 When first they looked within each other's eyes,
 And in the silence knew that love was come.

JUANITO.

A Tiny, Brown Hero, and His Reward.

By Edith Wagner.

The sun would soon set. Already there was a cool feeling in the air. It had been market-day in Puebla, and now the little family was going home to one of the Indian villages near Cholula. Hundreds of such groups were scattered along the road. Maria was running in a little dog-trot, carrying in her reboso, on her back, Jesus. Jose, the father, was solemnly seated on a pile of garden-stuff on the back of the little burro. Lagging a little behind the mother came Juanito. They all had heavy burdens. On the mother's back, beside the baby, was a load of corn, and her arms were full of oddly shaped and painted earthen jars and baskets. There was no outward and visible evidence of the father's load, but to do him justice it was so great he was unable to walk with it. Maria wore for a skirt a length of dark-blue cloth that came to her ankles, wrapped tightly about her back and hips, with a few folds in front. Twisted around her waist was the usual red cotton sash. On her head she had the tall straw hat that the Indian women wear; about her throat was a coral necklace. All the Indian women are clothed the same, the difference being in quality of material and degree of cleanliness.

In Mexico have no children's modes. The little people look like grown-up people seen through the wrong end of an opera-glass. Juanito, with round, fat, brown face, white teeth, big mouth, and eyes which shone star-like from out a mop of black hair, was dressed exactly like his father in shirt and long trousers of unbleached cotton, with a red sash to hold his clothes up. A leather band went round his forehead and supported the pack he carried—a large enough burden for so wee a boy. In one little hand he carried his conical hat of coarse straw; with the other, as he trotted along, he tried to shift his load a bit, and so relieve himself. He did it slyly, for he did not want his father to think he was not a big man. Indeed he was—he would be five in a few days—and he was going to have a present on his saint's day, which was also his birthday. He could do as he wished with it. A centavo—a whole cent to spend on himself.

What would he buy with his cent? He had turned it over and over many times in his rudimentary brain. He hesitated between an earthen goose, with a whistle in the neck and a dulce—like our rock-candy. The goose would be an ephemeral thing at best, although the whistle—but that whistle could be heard a kilometer. A turn of the hand, however, and it was gone. There are kites which sing when they get up in the air, but what riches are necessary. Four centavos for the kite and one for the string! He had thought carefully. He could buy the string at once and get the kite in four more saint's days, for surely he would go on having them, and it was likely Dona Ynes would always remember them. No! No! After all, the dulce was best.

His face grew brooding as he built his castle—founded on a cent. His mother should have a suck—two sucks, in fact. The baby could lick it, and Nito, the burro, but his father, no! For only yesterday had he beaten him for getting too much water on the clay to make the ollas. He closed his eyes in ecstasy; properly managed, the candy, which was of the durability of old red sandstone or the quartz it greatly resembled, should last, by licking delicately and sucking with moderation, until another birthday.

The sun was throwing long, golden lances across the plain of Cholula, with its scores of church towers. The family had finished the supper of frijoles and tortillas, risen from the spring, by the wayside, and resumed its journey. As before, the father led, jogging along on the burro; the mother running beside, bending forward from her load. Juanito, as his short legs grew more weary, fell farther behind. The mother looked over her shoulder several times, but she felt no uneasiness, for it had happened before that, being too tired to go on, Tio Pedrito had taken him to his jacal on his burro and brought him home in the morning.

The road made a sudden dip. On one hand was a deep barranca (steep ravine), the sides covered with shrubs and close growth. Juanito, boy-like, was seeing how near he could trot along the verge without losing his balance. He was as sure-footed as a mule, but a long serpentine root, the same ash-color as the soil, caught his foot in a loop, and in a moment he was twisted off his feet and rolling down the barranca. It so happened no one saw him, and little Indian stoic that he was, he made no sound.

When he reached the bottom, bruised and out of breath, a savage hand caught his throat and savage eyes met his. A few muttered words and the butt-end of a heavy revolver came down on the shaggy little head, and then to one side was brutally tossed the senseless heap. There were three of them crouched under an overhanging ledge—three sinister-looking bandits, wearing heavy felt hats, and with red blankets drawn across their mouths. They sat still until about the time all travel had ceased on the highway above. They were planning, in low voices, the division of the spoils when Juanito's hard little Indian head began to throb consciously. The first thing he heard to understand was that Miguel was to turn the coach over exactly at that spot, and that Don Hypolite had the money for the year's pulque from his San Martin hacienda, and that Dona Ynes had been to a party in Puebla, and had on her mother's diamonds.

"If the fall does not kill," growled one, "a tap of the good friend here"—and Juanito heard him slap his pistol. Juanito heard and, though sick and dazed, comprehended. He could not see how he could prevent it. He knew that when the coachman tipped the carriage down the barranca Dona Ynes would be hurt, and if she were not hurt enough they would kill her. Ah! he would not get his centavo if Dona Ynes was killed. The thought moved him—poor, little, dying baby!

He tried to raise himself, but the effort increased the deadly nausea. A night wind was blowing and rustled the leaves; under cover of that noise he could move freely; if he could keep from crying. And keep from crying he would, for even his short life had given him self-control and courage. He was not an American child, who screams when it is explained, kindly, that he cannot have the moon. He began to move, pulling himself up by inches, forced often to rest from sheer anguish, but never a moan was wrung from his lips by the torture.

Several hours must have passed before he reached the highway. When there, he could not tell which way to go. He had lost his sense of direction, always extraordinary in Indians. He thought he heard a shout from below, as though the men had missed him; so, without further cogitation, he dragged himself along the road. He was cold with an awful chill that struck out from the bones. The blood steadily ran down his face from the crack in his skull. He was afraid he was going in the wrong direction; before this he should have heard the clip, clip of the high-stepping black mares. His tongue was getting too big for his mouth, and his heart roared like a wild thing within him.

Suddenly he heard the rumbling of the carriage, and he fancied he could see the shining flanks of Don Hypolite's beautiful thorough-breds. He gave a cry, another, and another. They were driving rapidly—and driving by!

As they swept past, for the first time he burst out crying, and sank in the dust. Dona Ynes, inside the carriage, was jerking violently at the cord.

"Why does he not stop? Oh, papa, call Miguel to stop. Some one called me; some one is hurt by the road."

Don Hypolite put his head out and ordered Miguel to drive slowly back. The guilty scamp did so reluctantly. The carriage halted by the side of the little sobbing Juan, and Dona Ynes jumped out. She had dropped her fur coat, for the night was warm, and her bare arms shone milky-white through the meshes of a lace mantilla. The mantilla was fastened by a gold-and-turquoise comb to the high knot of dusky hair, and the curved edges flapped coquettishly about her roguish face.

Regardless of her satin ball-gown, she knelt in the dust by Juanito. After he had told her and Don Hypolite of the plan to rob and murder them, she carried him herself in her round arms to the carriage, while Don Hypolite, portly and courtly, in evening-dress, with a half-dozen decorations glittering on his breast, went back calmly, and pulled Miguel by the coat-collar off his seat. Relieving the rascal of his pistol and kicking him soundly, Don Hypolite took the reins and drove back to Puebla, leaving Miguel rubbing his aches and wondering how it happened.

The motion of the carriage so jarred the little pain-racked frame that Dona Ynes, thinking that it must be a matter of but a few moments, asked her father to stop. Juanito whispered to her that he could not breathe, that he wished to be outdoors, where he could see the stars; so Dona Ynes, tenderly holding the child, sat in the grass by the road.

Alas; he could breathe no better under the quiet stars. There was the croaking of frogs and the song of night-birds, and the soft wind rustling through the low shrubs. He lifted a wistful face, and with long, laboring breaths he managed to say:

"I want my centavo."
 Dona Ynes, keeping back her sobs with difficulty, for she did not wish to distress the patient child, slipped a cent into his little hand. A smile of great sweetness and content stole over his wide mouth, and the tiny, brown fingers closed upon the cherished cent, never to open again.—San Francisco Argonaut.

A GOOD START.

Impressive Opening For the Club Woman's Essay.

The young woman had donned a loose flowing gown and let her hair down when her father came in and found her seated at the desk in his study pensively nibbling the end of her mother-of-pearl penholder.

"Writing a letter?" he asked.
 "A letter?" she repeated scornfully. "Do you think I would bring out my gold pen and silver inkstand to write a letter? I'd just scribble that off with a lead pencil."

"Something important, eh?"
 "Yes, indeed. I've got to be very careful what I say. A single word may make a difference and influence opinion the wrong way."

"Essay?"
 "Yes. I've got to read it before a large audience, and I don't want anybody to have any excuse for blaming me if they go away with a wrong impression."

"Oh, I see. How are you getting on?"

"I've gotten over the hardest part. I have selected a subject. I thought of several. I was going to write on 'The Human Race; Its Origin and Destiny.'"

"That sounds like a pretty good one."

"Yes. But so many people have taken up that topic. Everybody knows all about it by this time. I thought of getting up a paper on 'How Far Precedent Ought to Sway Modern Jurisprudence,' but that's too simple. Then I thought about 'Governments—Their Powers and Pitfalls,' but it didn't seem the right kind of an essay for a girl to read. I think anything about governments fits a boy's essay better than it does a girl's. Then there was another that I jotted down a few notes about. 'Is Fame a Test of True Greatness?' But that isn't timely enough."

"Did you find anything to suit you?" asked her father, humbly.

"Yes. I'm writing about 'The Dawn of Peace.' I'm discussing the probable results of the conference over in Europe, you know."

"Have you written anything yet?" he queried in awe-struck tones.

"Only the first sentence. You see I must go slowly and be very careful indeed."

"What have you said?"

She held the paper before her at a distance, and in clear, distinct tones read:

"There is only one thing which might interfere with the prospect of universal peace, and that is that some of the powers concerned might do something calculated to provoke war."

He Wouldn't Be Scared.

He looked as if he had not seen a cake of soap for several days and the soft blue of his eyes looked like a bit of sky gleaming from sullen clouds. He was a little fellow of perhaps eleven years, but he was walking down Woodward avenue as if he had the world at his feet, whistling "My Girl's a Highborn Lady" with all his might. When he came to the bed of pansies at the Grand Circus Park he did not stop, but deliberately walked along to the end of the bed and onto the grass. Then he stooped down and reached over, picking one of the pansies.

"Here, what are you doing?" shouted a passer by who wanted to scare the little fellow.

"Picking pansies," was the reply, and he picked several more blossoms.

"Don't you know that that is against the law? The policeman will arrest you if you don't look out."

"Ah, go on. You can't scare me. This ain't no April fool day and they ain't no copper around. These is for my girl." This last was said with a sarcastic grin. Then he gathered up his handful of pansies and started on down the avenue whistling "My Girl's a Highborn Lady."—Detroit Free Press.

The Name Was Unfamiliar.

He had put on the best clothes and had gone to call on a girl of his acquaintance. She lived at the home of friends, who knew her by her first name, naturally enough.

The young man encountered at the door the daughter of the house, a maiden of about five, and to her he addressed the question:

"Is Miss Brownlee in?"

The little girl looked puzzled for a moment, then turned and ran upstairs. Quickly returning, she said, sweetly: "They ain't no one 'at lives upstairs here at all but Nellie."—Detroit Free Press

GENERAL LUNA KILLED.

Assassinated by Guard at Aguinaldo's Headquarters.

General Antonio Luna, one of the bitterest foes of the Americans in the Philippines, has been assassinated by orders of General Aguinaldo, the Filipino leader. Luna has recently found himself in opposition to his chief's views, and has not only disobeyed his orders, but at one time stopped Aguinaldo's peace commissioners while on their way to treat with the Americans. Aguinaldo ordered his death and his orders were carried out by some of his fanatical followers.

The assassination of Gen. Luna occurred on June 8, at Kabanatuan, to which place he had gone to confer with Aguinaldo. He had just previously been promoted to the rank of major general by the Filipino leader. By a preconcerted plan he was kept waiting at the door of Aguinaldo's headquarters until his patience became exhausted. After demanding an admission several times he attempted to force his way in. He drew his revolver, but before he could use it he was seized by Aguinaldo's guards and one of them named Ney stabbed him several times, it is said. Gen. Luna's aid, who was near him, rushed to the general's rescue, but was seized and disarmed. Luna died a few minutes after being stabbed.

It is said that Luna had become so important in his demands on Aguinaldo for power and increased authority that the Filipino leader decided that Luna's death was necessary for his personal safety and the Filipino cause.

HOW THE WAR FUND WAS SPENT

Little of the $50,000,000 Appropriated by Congress Now Remains.

Little of the $50,000,000 appropriated by Congress before the war with Spain, and made available until July 1, remains in the treasury. Allotments made by the President exceed that sum by $58,216.90, but as the War Department has a little more than $3,000,000 of its allotment on hand no deficiency will be created. Other appropriations were made by Congress for the army and navy during the war, but it was found necessary to also utilize the $50,000,000.

As the war with Spain was primarily a naval struggle, most of the money appropriated in preparation was spent by the navy. Allotments made by the President for the Navy Department amounted to $31,088,589.20, and those for the War Department to $18,969,627.68, a total of $50,058,216.90. The Treasury Department has given out this statement of the allotments made:

NAVY DEPARTMENT.
Expended for ships, etc.	$17,733,384.26
Ordnance, powder and shells	7,912,084.29
Equipment of vessels, purchase of coal, etc.	1,290,883.47
Establishment of coaling stations and repairs at naval stations	1,038,480.00
Repairing and converting vessels into men-of-war	2,230,630.00
Repairs to machinery of vessels	430,613.50
Bureau of supplies and accounts	178,984.15
Bureau of navigation	161,000.00
Marine corps	106,529.64
WAR DEPARTMENT.
Office of Secretary of War	$225,000.00
Ordnance material, powder and shell	9,081,494.86
Repairs and extension of fortifications	5,585,000.00
Clothing, transportation, ships, etc.	1,989,230.82
Medical supplies, etc.	1,520,000.00
Paymaster's department	255,000.00
Chief signal officer	238,500.00
Lighthouse board	75,000.00

OTIS TO HAVE 35,000

President Decides to Give Him More Men than He Asked.

Under a plan that has been arranged between President McKinley and the officials of the War Department, the American fighting force in the Philippines will be increased to 35,000 men, all regulars, by the beginning of the dry season. This number is 5,000 greater than estimated by Gen. Otis as necessary to quell the insurrection. The administration, however, has come to the conclusion that it is better to have a few more troops than just enough required for all purposes in the Philippine campaign.

After a great deal of consideration of the subject the determination was reached by President McKinley and his advisers that in order to provide Gen. Otis with 30,000 troops it would be necessary to give him a surplus number, so the sick, wounded and those whose terms of enlistment had expired would not reduce the force below the estimate of the commanding general. All these additional troops will be taken from the regular service.

Plans which the officials consider satisfactory have been prepared, and will be carried into effect when the proper time arrives. Officers on duty at the War Department said that these plans had been carefully arranged and would be successfully executed without detriment to the service. The plan likely to be adopted is to send two-thirds of nearly every infantry regiment and of some of the cavalry regiments to the Philippines, retaining the remaining third of each regiment for home service and keeping every organization recruited to its full strength.

A Few Timely Pointers.

The up-to-date farmer has learned the wisdom of doing his own thinking, and in selecting a binder or mower to weigh carefully the actual points of superiority and to avoid mere "talking" or "selling" points. The "life" of a machine depends largely on its main frame, which should be solid enough to outwear the working parts and yet not heavy enough to tear itself to pieces through its own inertia. The Deering Ideal Binder has a high-carbon steel frame, hot-ripped at the joints. This machine has stood the most severe tests ever put on a binder. It has a cutting apparatus that will cut any crop that grows; elevators that will elevate anything it cuts; a simple reel with greater range of adjustment than any other, operated with a single lever; the famous Deering Knotter and Binder which never misses; the only bundle carrier worthy of the name; and finally Deering Roller and Ball Bearings, making it the lightest draft binder that ever cut a swath.

Economy.

Patient—What are your charges, doctor?

Doctor—My terms are $3 a visit, madam.

Patient—Is that for both the rheumatism and malaria?

Doctor—Yes.

Patient—Well, times are hard now, and money does not fetch the interest it used to. Suppose you let the rheumatism stand, and cure only the malaria.

How Old She Looks

Poor clothes cannot make you look old. Even pale cheeks won't do it.

Your household cares may be heavy and disappointments may be deep, but they cannot make you look old.

One thing does it and never fails.

It is impossible to look young with the color of seventy years in your hair.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

permanently postpones the tell-tale signs of age. Used according to directions it gradually brings back the color of youth. At fifty your hair may look as it did at fifteen. It thickens the hair also; stops it from falling out; and cleanses the scalp from dandruff. Shall we send you our book on the Hair and its Diseases?

The Best Advice Free.
If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

A Voluntary Target.

James Collis was a gunner of the Sixty-sixth Regiment in the Afghan war of 1880. During the retreat from Mairwand the troops toiled on through the black night, the Afghans continually charging upon them. The gunners were frequently obliged to unlimber the guns and stand to them to check these furious assaults, which they did as coolly as if at drill on Woolwich Common. Many of the guns had been turned into temporary ambulances, and were loaded with wounded and dying men.

Collis had all day been carrying water to the wounded through the sharpest of the deadly firing, and came up to his gun just as a hot fire opened upon it from two sides. With one glance he saw that unless this fire could be diverted, there was no possibility of saving the lives of the wounded men.

Collis was unwounded, and borrowing a rifle, he deliberately opened fire on the enemy, making himself the target for their guns. There he stood, until he had fired thirty-two rounds, the bullets falling thick and fast around him, but not a hair of his head was harmed. The tired horses made an extra effort, the gun thundered out of range, the ranks closed up and the weary march went on.—Youth's Companion.

Exhibits at Paris.

There will be a large exhibit from this country at the Paris exposition in 1900, which will prove very interesting to all, but no more so than the news that the famous American remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, will cure dyspepsia, indigestion and constipation. To all sufferers a trial is recommended.

He Was an Orphan.

A very amusing story is told in connection with Leopold de Rothschild's father. The son was in the habit of taking the same cab every morning from Piccadilly to St. Swithin's lane, and always gave the Jehu half a crown. One morning when the son was away the sire hailed the conveyance, and at the end of the journey gave the driver a florin. Cabby looked at the coin wistfully. "What's wrong?" asked the old man. "Nothing, sir," was the reply, "but Mr. Leopold always gives me half a crown." "I don't wonder at it. Mr. Leopold is a spendthrift, but he can afford it—he has a rich father. I am an orphan, and can't."

The Summer Bath.

Nothing is more refreshing and invigorating in summer than a daily bath. But to have it beneficial soft water and good soap must be used. Ivory Soap is the best for the purpose; it is pure, dissolves quickly, sweetens and purifies the cuticle, gives a healthful glow to the skin, and leaves it white and soft. Early in the morning or just before retiring at night will be found the most suitable times for bathing.

Birds that Dance.

There is no longer any doubt that birds are addicted to the dance. The bower bird and the prairie fowl are adepts in the art, while the American grouse is a veritable master of ceremonies. It is the custom of these birds to prepare their ballroom by beating down the grass with their wings, and then to dance something suspiciously like theancers. By twos and fours they advance, bowing their heads and drooping their wings; then they recede and then advance again, and turn on their toes, swelling their feathers and clucking gently.—Philadelphia Press.

DEATH CLAIMS BLAND.

Missouri Congressman Expires After Lingering Illness.

Congressman Richard P. Bland, better known as "Silver Dick," died Thursday morning on his farm, about three miles from Lebanon. Mr. Bland had been attacked by the grip some time ago and it soon developed into illness of a serious nature. The direct cause of his demise was nervous prostration.

Richard Parks Bland was born Aug. 19, 1835, near Hartford, Ky. He went to Missouri when about 20 years old, and five years later went to California and thence to Utah. He practiced law there among the miners, and had ample opportunity to study the mineral interests and the relative output of gold and silver. There he absorbed the doctrine of bimetalism. He returned to Missouri in 1865, locating at Rolla, in Phelps County, and in 1869 removed to Lebanon, his late home. His most noted measure was a bill for the free and unlimited coinage of silver, restoring 412½ grains of standard silver as the dollar and the unit of value. After passing the House it was amended in the Senate by Senator Allison, and was known as the Bland-Allison law. It was vetoed by President Hayes and passed by both houses over his veto.

In 1894 Mr. Leland, the Republican candidate, defeated him for Congress by a narrow majority, but the silver champion was re-elected two years later and again in 1898. Before the Chicago convention no man was named oftener as a presidential possibility than Bland.

Bland never accepted a railroad pass nor any other present for his political work, although he was recognized as the leader of the silver wing branch of the House. Early in 1865 while Bland, in the capacity of a schoolmaster on a vacation, was visiting the Young Ladies' Seminary at Caledonia, Mo., he met Miss Virginia Mitchell, daughter of Gen. E. Y. Mitchell, whom he later married. By his simple directness and plain, kindly manners, Mr. Bland won a warm place in the hearts of his constituents and colleagues.

KIDNAPERS ARE ARRAIGNED.

Suspects in the Marion Clark Case Before a Justice.

George Barrow, Addie Barrow and Bella Anderson, alias Carrie Jones, were arraigned in New York before Justice Fursman in the criminal branch of the Supreme Court, charged with kidnaping Baby Marion Clark. Bella Anderson was called, and by the advice of her counsel, Abraham Levy, she withdrew her plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty to the charge of kidnaping. She was remanded to the Tombs. The work of selecting a jury to try Barrow was then begun.

HITS THE GLUCOSE TRUST.

Prof. Mas, Expert Chemist, Testifies for Industrial Commission.

Testimony before the industrial commission at Washington alleges that at the time of its formation the glucose trust doubled the price of its product. The evidence to this effect was given by Prof. Ernest Mas, an expert chemist, who says he was discharged by the trust because he would not sign certificates saying the imitation food products of glucose were not injurious. Prof. Mas said the by-products of corn flour are used for cheapening wheat flour, the starch is of the kind ordinarily sold on the market as corn starch, the corn oil is used for making cod liver oil, mixing it with olive oil, and as a substitute for cotton seed oil.

In further examination the professor stated that the similarity of linseed oil and corn oil is so close that a chemist cannot distinguish between them. There is a difference of 40 cents a gallon between the two in favor of linseed oil. The wholesale dealers, to a large extent, mix the two oils, selling the combination as pure linseed oil.

WAR'S END IS FAR AWAY.

Brigadier General Hall Predicts Long Conflict with the Natives.

"The end of the war is a long way off," writes Brig. Gen. Hall, now on duty in the Philippines, in a letter to a friend in Washington. The letter is dated early in May, about the time Aguinaldo was making his overtures for peace, and shows that the American army officers had little faith in the sincerity of the request for peace negotiations.

Gen. Otis has been instructed to censor all news, and, to be consistent, the War Department, since the departure of Secretary Alger, has declined to make public many messages received from the Philippines.

GEN. HALL.

LETTERS TO MRS. PINKHAM FROM WOMEN RELIEVED OF SUFFERING:

Mrs. George Osmun, of Belvidere, Warren Co., N. J., writes:

"Suffering as I had from weakness, irregularities and backache for several years, a release from this suffering was a blessing. Oh! how I wish more suffering women would accept your kind offer and be relieved. There is no need for women to suffer. Mrs. Pinkham's advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will relieve them."

Mrs. Ida Peters, Milan, Tenn., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—When I wrote to you the first time asking your advice I was a great sufferer. Menstruations were irregular, sometimes a week too soon and then a week or two late, and when they appeared were very profuse, great pain and tenderness in the bowels, pain in back and limbs, leucorrhœa all the time. I was weak and nervous and had no appetite. Burning and choking sensation in my throat. I received your reply and followed all your instructions and now I am cured. I owe my recovery all to Mrs. Pinkham's advice and her wonderful remedies."

Mrs. Maggie P. Stine, New Berlin, Pa., writes:

"I have suffered with terrible backache in the small of my back for about seven years, and could never get anything to help me. I tried several physicians, but found no help. I have now taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and feel like a different woman."

Mrs. H. A., 124 Cedar Street, Owosso, Mich., writes:

"Nearly three years ago I wrote to you asking advice in regard to my health. I was so miserable; suffered from painful menstruation and backache, was nervous, dizzy and faint. I received such a kind letter from you, telling me just what to do. I followed your advice and I now am recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I thank God for this pain destroyer."

Mrs. Pinkham Saves Mrs. McDaniels' Life.

"Nearly all the time for seven years I was confined to my room. I consulted the best doctors in my town, and tried almost everything I could think of, but received no lasting benefit. My whole body was diseased, and the pains I suffered no tongue can tell. I believe there is not a pain that any woman ever suffered but what I have had. I was troubled with backache, nervousness, a burning and constant distress in the stomach, painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, and at times very bad headaches. At last seeing your remedies so highly recommended I decided to try them, and to write to you concerning my troubles.

"After receiving your letter of advice, I followed your directions and have now taken four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one of Blood Purifier, one-half box of Liver Pills, and one and one-half packages of Sanative Wash, and can say that I feel like a new person. I think I should not have been on this earth now, had it not been for your medicine. I cannot thank you enough for your advice to me and your wonderful medicine."—Mrs. Georgia McDaniels, Viewfields, South Dakota.

According to General Scott's letters to Secretary of War Marcy, his small army at Puebla in midsummer, 51 years ago, was "suffering for clothing and supplies." The men "had not received a dollar since landing at Vera Cruz four months before."

At Puebla, in July, 1847, General Scott's commissary, Grayson, was $200,000 in debt and purchasing supplies on credit at great disadvantages. He and the chief quartermaster, Irwin, were selling drafts and borrowing largely of the pay department to keep the army from starving to death.

Before Scott was well on his way to the City of Mexico he wrote to Marcy: "Our poverty, or the neglect of the disbursing department at home, have been made known to our shame in the papers of the Mexican capital."

Before Scott reached Vera Cruz, and when off Lobos in February, 1847, he asked General Brooke to direct the quartermaster at New Orleans to send him large supplies of clothing. General Brooke replied "The quartermaster has neither clothing or shoes. I am fearful that if they have not been sent out direct to you that you will be greatly disappointed."

With 1,017 sick in the hospital at Puebla, Scott had only 5,820 effective men. Pillow came and raised the effectives to 8,061, but there were 2,215 then in hospital. Scott said he hoped to advance with 9,590 men to meet 33,000 Mexican soldiers at their capital.

In December, 1847, Scott reported his force at the City of Mexico and Chepaltec at 6,000 with 2,041 sick. He had not a sixth or perhaps an eighth part of the clothing needed by the army. His troops had received no clothing since reaching Vera Cruz in March.

A small supply of clothing was sent to the depot at Vera Cruz for Scott's army. It lay there until September, when new troops "having left home insufficiently clad," used it. Late in December Scott informed the war department of that fact and stated: "The regiments that came with me must, therefore, remain naked or be supplied with very inferior garments made by ourselves of every color and at high prices."

Quartermaster General Jessup wrote to the secretary of war that he had left enough clothing at Vera Cruz for Scott's old corps, but made no provision for the volunteers. "They are well aware," said he, "that I had not a cent for that purpose."

Ed. Goodloe is here for the summer again.

There will be three excursions here Sunday.

The iron framework for the new C. M. A. barracks arrived Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Culver, Jr., Mrs. N. W. Taylor, and a relative are here for the summer.

Mrs. Shewmaker and son Jay who have been living in Chicago the past six months are occupying their residence again.

I. C. Brooke, Elza Thornburg, and Trustee Cromley were witnesses at the Burns-Louden trial the other day.

John Houser, of Payne, Ohio, a son-in-law of Rev. J. W. Barber, and editor of the Press-Review of that place, made this office a pleasant call Wednesday.

The marriage of Miss Minnie Cox and Milo Hale of Bourbon is announced for June 27. Miss Cox was a former teacher of the primary department of our public schools.

At Barne's store, Maxinkuckee, you can purchase cheap for cash anything in the dry goods, boots and shoes, and grocery line.

An attempt was made a few days ago to blow up the Kinneman Laundry at Logansport. This is the laundry Mr. Herd represents.

Such is the demand for more room at the C. M. A. that the ground floor of the main barracks will be utilized for chapel and dining room only. Where the offices will be located can scarcely be determined.

Col. Fleet's cottage at the academy is to be moved to the banks of the lake to make room for parade grounds.

D. A. Walter now conducts the only meat market in town. One market is enough, and we bespeak for Dan a liberal patronage as he will do the right thing.

A. E. Barnes, of Maxinkuckee, wishes to inform the people in general that he has just received a complete stock of choice groceries. The lake trade should take notice.

George Garn is now chief clerk at Kuhn & Son's clothing store in this city. The firm now occupies the entire store and propose to keep a splendid stock of clothing etc.

Rev. R. W. Burton formerly pastor of the M. E. Church at this place, now at Burnett's Creek, Ind., writes that he and a friend will arrive in Culver Saturday, where they will spend a few days.

Call at Barne's store at Maxinkuckee for special bargains. All goods delivered to the lake trade free of charge from A. E. Barnes store, Maxinkuckee.

Robert Rea, who is attending the Chicago University, is home to spend a week's vacation with his parents and friends, then he will return and resume his school work. We will wager that when Robert graduates, that the boy from Culver will stand way up in the front ranks of his class as he has heretofore.

When finished, Milton Shirk of Peru, Ind., will have one of the handsomest and most modern cottages upon the east side of the lake. It will contain 12 large airy rooms, exquisitely finished in hard wood. The fire place which is built with the very finest brick obtainable, is the best on the shores of the lake and was constructed by D. H. Smith & Co. Several other fine cottages are being rapidly finished.

WEDDING BELLS.

On Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock, the solemn words were pronounced that made Walter M. Hand and E. Blanche Barber, both of this city, man and wife. The impressive ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Barber. A number of relatives and intimate friends were present and those from Ohio were Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Houser, Mrs. Orphie Miller and C. A. Barber.

The bride was attired in cream silk and the groom in the regulation black. The house was beautifully decorated with choice flowers. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Morris Sampson of Ft. Wayne. The presents were numerous and valuable. Mr. Hand is one of Culver's most progressive young men, and is the trusted quarter-master at the Culver Military Academy. He is a young man of exemplary character and has a bright future. The bride is a charming young lady, whose pure traits of character, have endeared her to the entire community, who as an entire union, wish her and her talented husband a long and joyous life.

After congratulations and a short time spent in social enjoyment, the wedding guests were served with an excellent repast. On Thursday an affair was held at the residence of W. E. Hand, at his beautiful home upon the east side of the lake, which was attended by a large number of friends and relatives. After July 1, the happy couple will be at home to their friends in the Culver cottage on the north side of the lake. In the meantime the HERALD extends congratulations.

Patronize the Broadway Laundry. It is the best.

Sarber & Son moved their dry goods store to Kewanna Monday.

The Gates family of Indianapolis are now occupying their handsome cottage on the east side.

The large addition to the residence of W. S. Easterday is being rapidly pushed toward completion.

Daniel Easterday is making extensive improvements upon his property in this city. He is now erecting a fine horse barn.

Elza Cromley has gone out of the butcher business and D. A. Bradley is now preparing the room for an ice cream and lunch counter.

If you desire the HERALD for another year, pay up your arrears and a year in advance, and receive a handsome receipt book as a premium.

While you are considering about the best place to trade this summer, remember that A. E. Barnes of the Maxinkuckee store has given you satisfaction in the past and will in the future. All goods delivered free of charge.

EAT THEIR COMRADE.

ALASKA MINERS FORCED TO BECOME CANNIBALS.

Driven to the Awful Act by Hunger—All Three Finally Perish in the Cold—New Officers Are Chosen for the National A. O. U. W.

A story of possible cannibalism and death on the Yukon trail has just reached Circle City. Three men who left Dahl river Dec. 5 for Jintown were supposed to have been lost. Nothing was heard of them till the steamer Rideout brought a terrible tale of suffering and horror. The men were Michael Daly, Victor Edlar and M. Provost. Their bodies were discovered seventeen miles from the mouth of Old Man's creek, they having lost the trail and become bewildered. Having left Dahl river with only three weeks' food, but which was amply sufficient for the 150 miles to Jintown, the poor fellows were soon reduced to starvation. Daly's body was found partly eaten, just as it was left when death overtook the others. Some scraps of moose hide and moccasins were found, of which they had endeavored to make a stew. Daly's body was identified by the clothes. The other two men were found dead five miles away from the tent. The fact of the tent flaps being shut down when found would seem to preclude the possibility of Daly's body having been eaten by animals.

WEALTHY FARMER IS SLAIN.

Nebraska Recluse Murdered and His House Searched for Treasure.

The body of St. Julian Bahand, a wealthy farmer residing at Julian, Neb., was found in his residence in a mutilated and partly decomposed condition. Julian lived alone and was believed to have had large sums of money concealed about his place. The coroner held an inquest and the testimony showed that both parietal bones had been crushed by some instrument. To all appearances both hands and feet had been burned, probably by the murderer to compel his victim to reveal where his money was hidden. In opening a tin box in which were kept deeds and valuable papers the robber murderer evidently cut his hand, as there was blood on the papers and all about the room.

AMERICAN EXHIBITS AT PARIS.

Three Attractions Now Being Prepared for the Exposition of 1900.

At a recent meeting of Commissioner Peck and members of the staff of the New York office of the United States commissioners to the Paris exposition it was announced that this country would have three star attractions at the exposition. These features will be: A nugget of virgin gold weighing one and two-thirds tons, valued at $1,000,000, molded in an exact miniature of Pike's Peak; an American trolley line six miles long from the American landing to the national building down the Seine; a pier landing, where Americans will take steamers carrying the American flag for the Vincennes Woods. E. W. Runyon, the California State commissioner, said that California had appropriated $130,000 for the exhibition already, the largest amount given by any State, and would put up $100,000 more if assurances were given that adequate returns would be got for the money. Commissioner Peck suggested that if California would contribute a certain amount to the general funds it would be given a special room in the national building. He said that this offer would be good to every State in the Union. No State buildings will be permitted.

FREIGHT HANDLERS STRIKE.

Six Hundred Men Quit Work and Demand Higher Wages.

About six hundred package-freight handlers went out on strike for higher wages at the Fairport Warehouse and Elevator Company, Painesville, Ohio. The strikers held a meeting to formulate plans. The meeting was a turbulent affair, and resolutions were adopted demanding 25 cents per hour for car loading, when no boat is in, and 25 cents per hour for loading a car or unloading any boat when a boat is in; no boys under 18 years to be employed; no boat arriving after 6 p. m. or on Sunday to be unloaded, and no men not belonging to the union to be employed. The strikers also have other grievances to be adjusted, claiming that they are docked while loaded cars are shifted for unloaded cars, and they demand pay for straight ten hours' work.

MAKE LAWS FOR PORTO RICO.

Code Being Prepared for the Administration of the Island's Affairs.

The insular commission at Washington, composed of Judge Curtis, Gen. Kennedy and Maj. Watkins, have been occupying the time since the submission of their report upon the affairs of Porto Rico in drafting a code of laws for the island. These laws will cover the administration of the island and are being prepared with the expectation that they will be made applicable to the island by the War Department until Congress can enact others. If not they can be used for the guidance of Congress in enacting laws. The criminal and civil laws of the United States are incorporated in this code where practicable.

EIGHT INJURED IN A WRECK.

Collision of an Express Train and a Freight at Gosport, Ind.

The Vincennes express on the Indianapolis and Vincennes division of the Pennsylvania road was in a head-end collision with a freight train at Gosport, Ind. The trains met on a curve within 200 feet of a high bridge. The engineer and fireman of the passenger train jumped down a high embankment and were uninjured. Charles A. Wood, the engineer on the freight, with the fireman, stuck to his post and was painfully injured about the head. The fireman escaped unhurt, although the locomotive was telescoped. Seven others were injured.

SLAYS HUSBAND WITH A CLUB.

Ohio Woman Resents Her Husband's Attempt at Reconciliation.

Fred Schatz was killed by his wife at Rocky Ridge, Ohio. The two were married two years ago, but had lived apart since last December. Schatz went to call on his wife to effect a reconciliation. He entered the house and went upstairs where his wife was. As he entered the room she struck him with a club and he fell to the floor. Mrs. Schatz then dragged her husband downstairs. He died in fifteen minutes. The woman was placed in jail.

Disembodied Body Identified.

Positive identification of a disembodied body, portions of which were found floating off Bay Ridge, N. Y., was made by Thomas Clark, a life saver at Coney Island. He declared that the body was that of one of a party of three sailors whom he had seen at the beach. They seemed to be blue jackets from a warship.

Will Release Prisoners.

A unique condition of affairs exists at Xenia, Ohio. Owing to the refusal of the City Council to provide money for meeting the expenses of the workhouse, the board of directors of the workhouse passed a resolution ordering that all prisoners confined there be released from custody.

LONG TERM IN PRISON.

BARROW GETS A FOURTEEN-YEAR SENTENCE.

Principal in the Marian Clark Kidnaping Case Found Guilty—His Accomplice Sentenced—Projected Reorganization of the Standard Oil Trust.

George Beauregard Barrow, the principal in the kidnaping of Marion Clark, the infant daughter of Arthur Clark of New York, has been sentenced to fourteen years and ten months' imprisonment. The trial, which was begun on Wednesday, when Bella Anderson, or Carrie Jones, the tool of Barrow and his wife, gave her evidence for the State, was concluded with testimony intended to establish the previous good character of the defendant. The summing up by counsel was very brief, and the case was given to the jury with a few words of instruction from the bench. The jury, after being out about five minutes, rendered a verdict of guilty, and sentence was passed as above stated. Carrie Jones, who pleaded guilty, was sentenced to four years' imprisonment. The trial of Mrs. Barrow, as her husband's accomplice, will follow.

BRINGS SUIT FOR ACCOUNTING.

Stockholder in Drummond Tobacco Company Brings Action.

Suit has been filed at St. Louis by Herman A. Krehmar, a stockholder in the now defunct Drummond Tobacco Company, against Harrison I. Drummond, president of the same concern, for an accounting of the proceeds of the sale of the Drummond Tobacco plant to the American Tobacco Company last fall. The amount involved is $457,000. This sum, the plaintiff alleges, should have been divided among the stockholders of the Drummond Tobacco Company in addition to the $3,000,000 which was represented to be the price at which the plant was sold.

Insurance Company Wins.

At Frankfort, Ky., the Court of Appeals reversed the decision of the Franklin Circuit and State Fiscal Court in the case of the Aetna and eighty-six other insurance companies. The court holds that a combination to fix insurance rates is not an indictable offense under the laws of Kentucky.

Serious Riot in Jamaica.

Advices from St. Mary, Jamaica, report serious agrarian rioting on the plantations in the banana district near Richmond, on the north coast of the island. The disturbances are said to have originated in ejection proceedings brought against tenants.

Awful Mine Explosion.

A special dispatch from Glace Bay, C. B., one mile from the Caledonia mine of the Dominion Coal Company, says an explosion, accompanied by terrible loss of life, occurred there. More than forty men were in the pit when the explosion occurred and nearly all of them perished.

Gov. Scofield's Appeal.

Gov. Scofield of Wisconsin has sent out telegrams to the Mayors of thirty or forty cities asking them to renew their efforts to raise money for the storm-stricken people of New Richmond and vicinity. The Governor estimates it will take $500,000 to meet the requirements of the situation.

WILLS FORTUNE TO SOLDIERS.

Wealthy Nurse Leaves Property to Men Who Cared for Her.

Samuel Scull of May's Landing, N. J., and H. S. Smith, whose home is in Utah, were both members of the Twelfth regiment, U. S. A., and took part in the battle at Santiago. Typhoid malaria attacked them after the fight and they were subsequently sent to the hospital at Fort McPherson, Ga. Miss Annie E. Thompson, a Red Cross nurse, who had volunteered for hospital duty in Boston, nursed both of the young soldiers through their illness. Then she broke down and they in turn did everything in their power for her. Eventually Miss Thompson went to Kansas, where she owned some property. She then suffered a relapse and died. It has now been discovered that she was a wealthy woman, and by her will she has left to Scull and Smith, share and share alike, a large hotel in St. Louis, valued at $40,000.

JAPAN WILL HELP CHINA.

Captured Men-of-War to Be Returned to the Celestials.

A well-authenticated story comes from Japan to the effect that all of the men-of-war captured from the Chinese in the late war between the two countries are to be returned to the Chinese Government. This is part of the policy decided on by Japan to protect her neighbor from the inroads of the powers. It is said that the only requirement to be made is that China invest millions in new war vessels to be built under Japanese direction. The Japanese Government navy yards will no longer do repair work on foreign or native merchantmen, except in cases of emergency. It is pointed out that private docks have been constructed sufficient to do the work. Most discouraging reports are reaching Japan from the plague-stricken districts of Formosa. The island is being depopulated to a great extent by the terrible disease.

New Law Killed by Mistake.

The discovery has been made that an act relating to the district schools of Indiana and defining the duties of the township trustees practically nullifies the celebrated township reform act of the last Legislature. The law referred to was passed March 6 and repealed all former laws in conflict therewith, and as the reform act was passed Feb. 27 it is held that it invalidates all that portion of the reform law relating to the schools, which constitutes the kernel of the statute.

Chicagoan Aids a College.

Eighteen months ago D. K. Pearsons of Chicago made a subscription of $25,000 for a permanent endowment of Marietta, Ohio, College, conditioned upon the college raising $75,000 and the debts being all paid by June 15. W. W. Mills, for the trustees, announces that the $75,000 has been pledged.

Big Steamers in Collision.

The Old Dominion liner Hamilton and the steamer Macedonia, chartered from the Ward line, collided off Long Branch, N. J. The Macedonia was badly damaged, being struck amidships with terrific force and having her side stove in from the engine room to the mainmast. No lives were lost.

Hermit Is Slain by Robbers.

Holman Shotfield, a hermit, aged 60, living in Jerusalem township, Ohio, was found dead by neighbors. He had been shot in the head, a hole in the window showing that the bullet came from the outside. The motive is presumed to have been robbery.

ARMY IN BIG BATTLE.

FIERCEST ENGAGEMENT OF THE FILIPINO WAR.

Las Pinas, Near Manila, the Scene of Hard Fighting—Natives Offer a Stubborn Resistance—Heavy Losses Inflicted on Both Sides.

A terrific battle with the Filipinos was fought at Las Pinas Tuesday morning. Lawton's entire force of 3,000 men being engaged with a large number of strongly entrenched rebels. The fight continued all day, and toward evening the rebels had taken up a position but 500 yards to the rear of the point where the engagement opened. The insurgents fought doggedly, and on several occasions attempted to assume the offensive. At one time they tried to turn the Americans' left flank, but failed.

The first real artillery engagement since the war in the Philippines began occurred during the morning through the insurgents opening fire from a masked battery below Las Pinas. The Filipinos had a smooth bore and a number of one-pounders. They were answered by six guns from the First artillery, and within a few minutes the gunboat Helena and the monitor Monadnock joined in with all their guns. The second shell fired by the Filipinos dropped and burst in the camp of the Fourteenth Infantry. Only one man, a private, was struck by fragments of the shell. He was seriously wounded.

General Lawton quickly led a reconnaissance with two companies of the Twenty-first infantry. The Filipino artillery was some distance back from the beach, and Lawton led his men between it and the water front, being hidden by the brush. When the detachment had proceeded about a mile and a half it encountered an overwhelming force of Filipino regulars and a hot engagement at close range, directly between the masked battery and the bay, followed. So heavily were General Lawton's men outnumbered that they were forced to retire. They rallied, however, and by a sharp dash succeeded in carrying the enemy's first position. This left an open space to the left, and a heavy flank fire was poured in on the Americans, compelling them to retreat to cover again.

The range was so close and the accuracy of the Filipinos so good that two officers and nineteen men of the detachment were wounded. The American troops dropped back out of range of the Filipino fire and summoned a battalion of the Ninth Infantry to re-enforce them. At the same time battalions of the Twelfth and Fourteenth Infantry were sent forward along the road.

Americans Fall Into a Trap.

The companies of the Twenty-first regiment, skirmishing along the beach, with amigo guides, found apparently a handful of the enemy, who retreated. The men of the Twenty-first followed and suddenly the enemy opened a terrific fire on the troops from the sides and the rear. The soldiers withdrew to the water's edge, finding what shelter they could, and were picked off rapidly.

After their ammunition was nearly exhausted the companies of the Twenty-first retreated, but Gen. Lawton dashed down and rallied the men. A little group made a desperate stand, Gen. Lawton, Maj. Starr and Lieuts. Donovan and Sennely taking rifles from the wounded men and firing at the enemy, bringing down some of the rebel sharpshooters from a tree. Finally their cartridges were all gone and they were forced to break through the enemy's flank, carrying the wounded to the main body of the troops.

After firing in volleys for a short time the Americans were ordered to fire when and where they could see the enemy. It was every man for himself and the best the men could do was to aim at the faint mists arising from the enemy's smokeless powder. It was impossible to estimate the number of Filipino dead. There were many dead bodies in the fields the Americans traversed.

This battle, incidentally, was formerly the scene of several of the greatest struggles between the Spaniards and the Filipinos. The Zapote was considered impregnable and hundreds of Spaniards and Filipinos have been killed while fighting over the same bridge in former contests for its possession. In June, 1897, Gens. Pio del Pilar and Trias turned the scale of war on the side of the Filipinos by deserting the Spanish army there on the eve of a decisive battle, carrying native militia with them and thereby breaking the chain of defense around Manila.

In the afternoon the whole American force under General Lawton was in action, and heavy fighting took place all along the line. The battle was apparently the most severe one that the American soldiers in the Philippines have been engaged in.

Gen. Otis seems to have been over sanguine when he reported that Gen. Lawton's gallant capture of Las Pinas and Paranaqua on Saturday had broken the resistance of the insurgents in the province of Cavite. Tuesday's engagement between the Filipinos and Lawton's forces in spite of the aid given by warships seems to have resulted in the heaviest American loss suffered since the beginning of the outbreak. Gen. Otis' official dispatch places the loss in killed and wounded at thirty, but an Associated Press dispatch sent later says the American loss is conservatively estimated at sixty.

THE FUTURE OF CUBA

SHOULD PROSPER UNDER AMERICAN INFLUENCES.

The Fertile but Devastated Island Has Inexhaustible Resources that Need but Proper Management to Make Them Very Highly Profitable.

Havana correspondence:

The problem of Cuba's future is one that is now creating wide-spread interest, and it is a relief to turn from a picture of trials and sorrow to a consideration of the manifest prosperity that seems signally sure to visit the island under auspices that will bring to the front its inexhaustible resources. These need but proper management to make them highly profitable. Practically the veil is now dropped over the panorama of human woes in a past rendered inglorious by the inordinate greed of a greedy race, and it now requires only the peace purchased with the blood of the men who fell at El with less care than is shown to fine cattle, ruling them with whip and spur, making no provision or allowing no time for their mental or moral improvement, it is small wonder that for two centuries the sugar planter's crying need has been sufficient and efficient labor. The better grade that new conditions will maintain clears the problem, and its workings must, in the minds of practical thinkers, enter an era of prosperity for Cuba for all classes, that will astonish and attract the world.

"Americanization" must take a hand in the rehabilitation of this country so long laid desolate, and, with stable government, the same is bound to develop itself. In fact, even now the initial suggestions of transformation are manifest. Americans propose to build great docks in Havana harbor, Americans are anxious to construct railroads and telegraph lines, trolley roads and electric light plants. One has only to visit the Jurugua mines, near Santiago, to understand what American development means. Here, upon mountains which are literally of tions of idleness and ease that must be replaced with wakeful, healthy ambition. It is believed that the hum of industry will arouse these people and evoke co-operation. It will take much of the leaven of true energetic American enterprise to accomplish it, however. Gradually, as American goods come more and more into use, there is a perceptible appreciation of the utilities. Among the younger Cubans, too, a certain emulation, a comprehension that "things are on the turn" and a new era is due—these elements urge occupation and ambition. Cuba to-day has far more in visible national resources to encourage prospector and investor than did any of the Western States manifest fifty years ago. The development of these is bound in time to make the island rich. The new importance given to Cuba by the commercial attention bestowed by this country is likely to develop it into an ocean depot, a maritime clearing house, a point for the transaction and transference of business, the value of which cannot clearly be estimated in these, the nucleus, the chrysalis days of a people newly freed from the bonds of moral and social slavery, and just on the threshold of a bright, glorious future of ambition, and hence, industry. To "Industrial Cuba" alone the economist and the promoter alike look for the grander results yet in store for this "isle of the sea."

Folk Lore.

The research into popular beliefs is an absorbing and not a profitless study. Scarcely a day passes that we do not run across some piece of superstition that dates, in one form or another, from a far antiquity. Salt is spilled at table, and with jest with our neighbor over the prospect of a quarrel, half believing in the sign, though we may not know that the Romans did the same. A dog howls at night, and we recall the widespread belief that the howling of a dog foretells death, but forget that our early Aryan ancestors assigned to the dog the office of messenger from the world of spirits.

The every day custom is as old as humanity; the nursery jingle may be traced back to an origin in the world's babyhood; the familiar fairy tale

ANVIL FOR A MONUMENT.

Queer Tombstone at the Grave of a Felleville, Ill., Blacksmith.

Volrath Moehle sleeps under his old anvil at Walnut Hill cemetery in Belleville, Ill. Moehle was a village blacksmith. For over thirty years he had toiled at the same anvil, which had been given to him by the old blacksmith to whom he was "bound out," at Pilot Knob, Mo. He became attached to the old anvil and many times expressed a wish that he should not be separated from it in death, but that it should be his monument.

The blacksmith was never sick until his blood was poisoned by the use of an unclean instrument by a chiroprapist. The only hope for his life was in an operation, but his condition would not admit of an anesthetic being used. His leg was taken off while he was fully conscious. He stood the shock well, but died a few days later. Dying, he repeated his request that his anvil should be his tombstone. In accordance with his wish the old anvil was coated with enamel, topped with a large horseshoe and set in a base of solid granite. A few Sundays after his death the monument was raised with ceremony and J. Nick Perrin delivered an eulogy. The odd monument is one of the sights of the cemetery, and to every stranger who pauses before it the story of the village blacksmith is told.

HERE'S A FLYER.

"Torpedo" Bicycle Which, It is Claimed, Will Go Over a Mile a Minute.

Camille Jenatzky, a Belgian, has invented a "torpedo" bicycle which, it is said, will do better than a mile a minute. The machine is pointed fore and aft like a cigar, with polished sides and apertures at the top through which the heads of the crew poke up as if rising out of a coffin. The steel cone is for the purpose of protecting the men who guide the machine from the rush of air, which at the pace the machine is capable of is not only terrifying, but dangerous. The pointed front pierces the atmosphere as a projectile impelled by a thirteen-inch bore cannon, the gradual broadening of its width considerably lessening the enormous wind resistance as well.

The motors are entirely concealed inside of the cigar, only the lower part projecting on the under side. The riders have pedals with which to start the machine in motion. The motors are electric, but what contrivance is employed to secure the necessary power for the fearful speed at which the bicycle travels is not made public. It has gone at a gait of over sixty-five miles an hour. The test was made on a straightaway, level highway from St. Germain to Constans.

Few Die in Tasmania.

If the statement of Harry Benjafield, a health officer in Tasmania, is exact, that country must be conducive to long life and its cities healthy to live in. He says that the population of Hobart and its suburbs is 40,000, and that in 1898 the total number of deaths was 561, or about 14 in every 1,000. He says, further, that of the 561 persons who died 355 were more than 65 years old, representing 9 1/2 per 1,000 of the deaths of children and all others under 65 years old. He believes he is justified in challenging any other city in the world to produce equally favorable figures, particularly the small figures for deaths under 65 years of age. Tasmania has been under British control for about one century, and a large proportion of its population is native-born of British parentage.—New York Press.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Seek to Recover $5,589—Young Woman Not Held for Murder—Caught Fire from a Stove—Safe-Blowing by Burglars—Murderer Is Captured.

The Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association of Grant County held a meeting in Marion and passed resolutions condemning the County Commissioners for appropriating illegal fees, and took steps to recover the money. The commissioners were accused of misappropriating county funds, and they demanded an investigation by a non-partisan board. The judge of the Circuit Court appointed the board as requested. Their finding was that Commissioner Frank M. Chase had received $1,925; Joseph Lugar, $1,872; Isaac Carter, $1,792. After the committee had made their report to the Circuit Court the commissioners refused to refund the money to the county treasury. Legal action will now be taken to recover it.

Attempt to Kill Justified.

Cora Woods, aged 18, who shot at Harry Hawkins, her fiancee, and attempted to kill him, was released from arrest and the charges against her dismissed in preliminary trial at Anderson. It was shown that she was justified. She claimed that the man had been besmirching her character. She delayed until she got the information first hand, then provided herself with a pistol and waited for him. He was passing in his buggy when she saw him. She seized the revolver, ran out on the porch and fired five bullets at him.

Aged Woman Burned to Death.

At Terre Haute, Mrs. Neukom, aged 76, was burned to death after she had made a desperate effort to smother the flames in which she had become enveloped by her dress catching fire from a spark from the kitchen stove. No one was present except a small grandchild. The aged woman got into bed in the hope of smothering the flames, but the covers ignited and she had to flee again.

SCENE IN THE INTERIOR BEFORE THE WAR.

Caney, Santiago and on the hills of San Juan, together with the generous, free-spirited enterprise characteristic of the American people to make Cuba as garden-like as in the primeval days.

Immediately after the peace protocol, President McKinley sent a special commissioner to Cuba to investigate social conditions there. This has led to a study and a grouping of the real eco-solid iron, an American company has created a small city, building its own railroad and ocean docks, and housing its employes in the neatest buildings of their kind upon the island. The supply of iron is practically inexhaustible. It can be mined, transported to sea-board, carried by ocean to Philadelphia and thence conveyed to Pittsburg, at a lower price than Michigan ore can be bought at the latter city. This is a problem in labor and transportation which is worth considerable study.

Up to date the Cuban railroad is a fearful and a wonderful thing, which American genius must shortly revolutionize. It is narrow gauge, with cars that would not make respectable fire-wood, and engines of a past age. The tracks are loosely laid. There is a vast amount of business to be done in railway improvement and extension, and new immigration rules, put in force recently, favor the sturdy class of laborers. These prevent the ingress of any more Chinese, whose unsanitary conditions have been a menace in the past. The health bureau has already burned down infected quarters occupied by this class. Another undesirable element is that which have overrun the eastern part of the island—shiftless negroes from Jamaica, Hayti and San Domingo. New accessions of this class are now quietly shipped back home, nomic situations, and the island's business salvation must come out of the workings, philanthropic and commercial, of those who are interested in redeeming a people and their latent abilities. There are existing wrongs to redress, the destruction of war to repair—most practical and important, the elevation of the people in all walks of life. It is Industrial Cuba that will now come into prominent view, and a comprehensive insight as to the future shows that the next decade is destined to see a nation ascend the stepping stones of industry, thrift and enlightenment. Political questions and military policy are now being considered only as temporary transition elements; it is the industrial movement that will conduce to settle all disturbing questions and improve conditions everywhere.

First of all, the country needs more laborers to work in the fields, and it further needs a feasible, definite plan of employing on a satisfactory basis the semi-slave laboring population now in Cuba. The conditions that have long prevailed on the plantations, and which are still to be met with, are not such as would induce European immigration. It is quite uncommon to find a laboring man who can read or write. Marriage is loosely regarded, and the Cuban and the Spaniard alike are inveterate gamblers. Field labor wages average about $17 per month, an overseer gets $85, his assistant $35. The hours of labor are long—from 4 in the morning till 8 in the night. Labor seeking employment in Cuba at present must face these conditions. Meager food and poor accommodations have so far warned away outside laborers, even the negro.

With advanced and advancing conditions, however, it is believed that unwittingly the American negro will be the pioneer of a new labor era in Cuba. It follows that what has ennobled labor in the United States will have its elevating influence among the laboring people of Cuba. Herding laborers in barracanas like so many cattle, sleeping them, feeding them, bathing them unless they can show the possession of $40 in ready money. Cuba does not want any more public charges—it needs the vim and muscle that built up the great West and developed the mines of Pennsylvania and Alabama.

Progressive work in Cuba for women will be somewhat circumscribed for a time to come. There are few avenues open on the island now in which the gentler sex can earn a livelihood. None are seen in the shops, none behind the counters, none in offices. The "new woman" is not in Cuba. Still, the training for hospital service and the organization of a public school system would give employment to many made destitute by the war. The value of the American trained nurse cannot be over-estimated in influence and practical results. One end immediately desired is that these educate Cuban women for hospital service training—the better class of women—the refined and intelli-

COMMENCEMENT ORATIONS.

How Strong is a Man?

The strength of man! What is man? What can he do? For what reason is he placed on this earth? Emerson says, "No man is born into this world whose work is not born with him." Man's starting point on entering this world is ignorance. But he has a progressive intellect, which, by cultivation, becomes stronger, and rises higher and higher in civilization each succeeding age. In his primitive life man was very ignorant, but tracing him through the lapse of ages he is continually rising to a higher stage both morally and intellectually. This century has wrought changes almost incredible. Never before has such progress been made. Man is as strong as the mighty engine which he has made. Man is as strong as the steam-ship he makes plough the angry deep, or the mighty rocks which he blasts from the mountains. In fact he is as strong as all his inventions for they are all his willing servants.

The magnetic telegraph invented in 1844 by Samuel F. B. Morse obeys the mighty will of man. It has rendered incalculable service to mankind. Today telegraph lines connect almost every town of the United States. News may be transmitted across the continent in an instant. Before this invention it was weeks and often months before events happening in one part of the country could be known in another. Since the use of the cable, we have instantaneous communication beneath the ocean with the old world. Every important event happening in Europe is known here as soon as it is there. News read in the morning papers of London is also read the same day throughout the length and breadth of the United States. Man by this invention has annihilated time and space.

The steam engine, the product of man's power and skill, has had a great influence upon the welfare of the people. It has had a most wonderful influence on all the different trades and occupations of man. Transportation is carried on very extensively. Every civilized country is threaded with railroads connecting all its parts. A locomotive with a ton of coal can in one day transmit as great a weight as a man could carry in one hundred years. Besides effecting commerce and man's vocations, it forms a closer union between the people. Traveling is so cheap that almost all classes of people are able to travel, and by thus doing all feelings of isolation are removed. By arousing similar thoughts and feelings, makes the whole more firm and more compact. Previous to this invention, ships in traversing the great oceans had to depend upon the elements. They were often detained for weeks and sometimes months, but now they can go at any time, and are not dependent on nature. Today a thriving commerce is being carried on with nearly all parts of the world.

By his infinite power, man can gain victories over the fearful tempests of the deep. He has formed great and powerful nations. He has formed our country into a strong republic, and given the people their liberty. Under such a rule the people have a safeguard stronger and better than any that time has yet produced.

Franklin chained and held in bondage the lightning, and as a result, today we light our cities, propel our street cars, ring our fire alarms, send messages across the continent and under the ocean, and employ it to drive various kinds of machinery. Thus one man has the strength of the combined forces of many men.

The invention of the phonograph by Thomas Edison has made it possible to record sound in such a manner that it can be exactly reproduced any length of time afterward. This machine enables the user to rapidly print the words instead of writing them. Man, by his genius and ingenuity, stores up the tones of the human voice for the future.

The astronomer, by the most careful study and observation, has taken the mighty strides of a giant, and brought himself within the boundaries of the heavenly bodies. Men cannot leave the earth and visit the starry heavens, yet they are able to calculate the distance of the sun, moon, and planets from the earth, and find their diameters, circumferences, volumes, and weights. By means of the spectroscope, they even investigate the material of which these bodies are composed, and have already discovered many of the elements which they contain. The astronomer scarcely lives on this earth, but travels away in space for billions and billions of miles, and makes his way among worlds of which we never dream.

Beside men being intellectually strong, and producing wonderful inventions and making marvelous discoveries, men are morally strong, and sway the minds and hearts of millions by their teachings.

Man is strong to promote truth and justice. Emile Zola moves the world to respect these principles, the most elevated and sublime of all. He is at the height of his fame and popularity. He entered the Dreyfus case, imperiled his fortune, popularity, personal liberty, and even his life. He risks and dares everything for his lofty principles. He says that concealment fosters vice, hypocrisy, and crime, and that everything should be revealed that it may be cured or remedied. Zola knows what poverty is, and is ever willing to help in case of need. Rather than swerve from his principles, and his friends rather than see him yield himself to the French law, have concealed him. He is now living in exile in England, his whereabouts known only to his wife and a few friends. Any one who has real true grit in them, and with such doctrines and principles as Zola's, has a glorious promise in his career. Zola stands as a mighty monument for truth and justice, and will not crumble and decay, but endure the weather of time for ages and ages to come.

Man is mighty as a religious reformer. John Huss, the great reformer of religion, and one of the bravest of the martyrs who have died in the cause of honesty and freedom, has lifted the minds of the people from the bonds of slavery, and exalted them to a loftier and nobler position than they have ever had or ever will attain. Huss, by coming under the influence of the theological teachings of Wycliffe, became a firm believer in the new teachings. At first he did not oppose the doctrines of Catholicism, but later condemned them, for the Bible truths had produced such a change in his mind that he earnestly began preaching the new faith. The Catholics fearing the growing power of Huss held a council, and requested his presence. The imperial "safe conduct" given him was violated, and he was seized and thrown into prison. He was brought before the council several times, and asked to recant, but he steadfastly refused to deviate from the path that conscience had once made clear. He was led to the place of execution, tied to the stake, the fire kindled, and his body was quickly reduced to ashes. His blazing body not only lighted the vicinity in which it was burned, but was a beacon to the whole world. The rays of that burning body still shine, and will ever light the way from priestly despotism and superstition to Christian truth and righteousness.

Man is strong for freedom and a noble character. Abraham Lincoln, the "Moses of America," by one stroke of the pen freed a race, which is the greatest event in the annals of history. Lincoln, by perseverance and the doing of such wonderful deeds, raised himself to the highest point of admiration and fame, a fame that will grow brighter as time moves on. He discharged his duties of the presidency with such ability and faithfulness that he won a higher measure of love and admiration than was ever given to any prince or ruler of a nation. Throughout his life he manifested such a degree of patience, patriotism, practical wisdom, and integrity, that he seemed like one commissioned by the Most High. The name of Lincoln will never sink into oblivion, but stand as a radiant and glorious guiding star for all who come after him.

Man is a wonderful combination of mind and matter, soul and body. His body is a marvelous structure, fearfully and wonderfully made. But, marvelous as is his body, his soul is even more wonderful. It is possessed of powers capable of grasping and understanding the sublimest truths of nature. Its vision compasses the earth and penetrates the heavens. Rising above the questions of time, it dares to grapple with those of eternity. "On adventurous wings it is ever soaring upward, pressing its way toward the infinite, and is unsatisfied until it clasps with its arms of faith the eternal throne.

Man although mighty is subject to his creator. We should live for something higher and nobler than this world, for Him who overshadows all. On earthly life depends something too great to be realized. And as we go forth from school this year, let us go with a strong determination to do, remembering, "They must upward still, and onward, Who would keep abreast of truth." NELLIE I. GARN.
