That is to say, it has not yet been connected all the way through to Vladivostok. An unfortunate thing about the building of this read is that very light rails have been used, and the ties are too wide apart. When its construction was begun nobody realized the immensity of the undertaking. The traffic has been greatly in excess of all expectations, and I fear that the road will not stand the wear and tear. ENTIRE TOWN ORDERED SOLD.

Cass Lake Intrnders Aimed Atin Final Government Action.

Secretary Hitchcock has finally disposed of the Cass Lake, Minn., controversy. He announced that the Government would sell in parcels the north half of section 15, which comprises nearly the whole town of Cass Lake. The 500 or more intruders are located chiefly on this half section and on the northeastern part of section 16. They will have to move from section 16 as soon as possible. The decision of Secretary Hitchcock closes the controversy over the proposed ejectment of the intruders from the Cass Lake Indian reservation lands. Senator Nelson, who subsequently left for Norway for the first time since he left the land of his birth, was present when the announcement was made, and expressed his satisfaction. This places the 320 acres of lands open to all for purchase. The half section will be advertised for sixty days, and probably fifteen days more will be allowed before the sale, when the intruders must take their chances in the purchase of the lands or remove from them.

TRIES SUICIDE IN DENVER JAIL.

Chicagoan from the Klondike Cuts

His Threat While Insane. With the sharp edge of a tin can T. J. Swansborough, formerly of Chicago, tried to cut his throat. He was at the time confined in the city jail at Denver, Colo., where he had been placed because of actions indicating insanity. He made several bad gashes in his throat, but was seen, overpowered and taken to a hospital. Swansborough arrived in Denver from Seattle, Wash. He gave the clerk at a hotel several hundred dollars and a watch, but got them back and insisted on giving them to a policeman in the street. The officer locked him up. Durtinually about a murder he thought he had committed in Chicago. He recently returned from Alaska. The hardship of mining in the Klondike and the effects of the altitude of Colorado are believed to have unbalanced his mind. He was on his way to visit relatives.

AMERICAN FARMER FOR TURKEY

D. A. Kent of Iowa Will Be the Sultan's Advising Agriculturist.

Prof. D. A. Kent, late of the Iowa State Agricultural College, has been selected as an instructor in farming to the Turkish Empire. The Sultan of Turkey needed a man who could make the soil of the Ottoman empire blossom with wheat and corn and fruits as well as with roses, and he had his representative at Washington look out for the proper person. All American farmers looked alike to members of the Turkish embassy, and they appealed to Secretary Wilson, who recommended Prof. Kent. And the Iowa city man has signified his willingness to accept the mission.

Year's Total Is $10,000,000. Information from the Klondike has reached the State Department at Washington from United States Consul Me-Cook at Dawson. The consul says that $10,000,000, instead of $20,000,000, in gold will cover the product for the last twelve months. He adds that reports from Alaska indicate that more gold will be found there than ever will come out of the Klondike.

Quarrel Ends in Killing.

Matt Stanford shot and instantly killed Preston Carson near Washington College, Tenn. He then went to Carson's home and fired five shots into his house. The shots hit two of Carson's children. Stanford fled, but was caught and lodged in jail. The men had quarreled over a cornfield which Carson was working on shares for Stanford.

ISLAND IS ALMOST DESTITUTE OF TIMBER.

Not a Sufficient Quantity There for Use as Fuel - Duty of the United States in the Matter-Will Marry Funston's Men.

The Agricultural Department at Washington will soon issue in bulletin form some notes recently made on the forests of Porte Rico by Robert T. Hill of the geographical survey. Hill says that comparatively little of the original forest of the island remains. He estimates the remnant at not to exceed ten square miles. The principal part thus left is on the summit of the practically insurmountable mountain peak of El Yunque, the highest point in the Sierra Luquillo mountains. The evidences of original forests are plentiful, and Mr. Hill suggests that one of the principal problems for the United States is to reforest the island. This, he thinks, will be comparatively easy. The soil and climate are well adapted to tree growth, and maturity will be speedily attained. For the present, however, there is not sufficient timber to supply the needs of the island even for

TWENTY PERSONS ARE HURT.

Pennsylvania Railroad Train Badly

Wrecked Near Allegheny. Twenty people were injured in wreck on the West Pennsylvania Railroad at Herr's Station, a few miles above Alleghany City, Pa. None of the injured is likely to die, but a number are quite badly hurt. The accident happened at formation concerning its interstate busione of the roundhouse switches at Herr's Station. As the Apollo accommodation train going east came into the yard a switch split, throwing the passenger train with terrific force against two side-tracked engines. The smoker and middle coach of the accommodation, which were crowded to the limit, were literally smashed to splinters. How the passengers escaped death is a miracle.

FUNSTON'S MEN OR NONE.

Marital Agreement by Clubs of Girls in Southern Kansas.

The girls clubs of several southern Kansas towns have resolved never to marry a young man unless he served with the famous Twentieth Kansas. They say they are determined to keep their agreement and that sooner than marry a man who staid at home they will remain single all their lives. They intend to give the boys of the regiment a big reception when they return.

Want to Be Annexed.

The natives of the island of Kusale, in the Carolines, want to be annexed to the United States. The king, high chiefs and prominent men on the island to the number of seventy-two have forwarded a petition to that effect to the President. Germany having bought the islands, the petition is too late.

Ashtabula Strike Ended.

CLEARS UP MURDER MYSTERY.

Charles A. Brant Was Killed at St. Louis by Robbers.

The mystery surrounding the murder of Charles A. Brant, who was shot and killed in St. Louis July 25, 1898, has been cleared up. John Connors, who was arrested in Cincinnati by a St. Louis detective, made a confession to the effect that he and two pals, Harry Morris and Edward Hellman, held up Brant for the purpose of robbery and shot him upon his making a desperate resistance. Morris and Hellman are now serving long terms in the Jefferson City penitentiary for burglary. These two men, it now turns out, had admitted their complicity in the crime to the St. Louis police officials and had implicated Connors. The capture of the latter and the confessions of the trio clears up a murder mystery that has baffled the police for a year. Contrary to the idea held by many at the time, the murder was prompted solely by a desire for booty and not by private hatred or a desire for revenge.

EXPRESS COMPANY WINS CASE,

Cannot Be Forced to Tell Its Business to State Warehouse Commission.

Judge Otis of the District Court at St. Paul filed a decision in the case of the State railroad and warehouse commission against the United States Express Company. The object of the suit was to compel the express company to report the volume of its business to the commission in order to make the company pay a gross earnings tax and comply with the other laws of the State regulating common carriers, and particularly their rates. The court finds that the express company is not a corporation, but a partnership, of which any one owning shares becomes a member. The court holds that the company cannot be compelled to furnish inness, over which the State commission has no surveillance or control.

PEACE MEET IS OVER.

WHAT WAS DONE AT THE HAGUE CONFERENCE.

The Foundation of an Arbitration Plan the Unly Important Achievement-No Specific Proposition Looking to Disarmament Adopted.

The Czar's international peace conference at The Hague has concluded its work. A fair estimate of what has been accomplished cannot be made until the propositions agreed to have been published in full. But no proposition looking to the disarmament of nations was adopted. The signatory powers agreed to use all their efforts to insure a peaceful solution in international differences, but it was provided that the good offices or mediation of a third power shall exclusively have the bearing of good counsel without compulsory force. Offers of mediation in any given case shall not cause the suspension of war preparations or the interruption of war. Special forms of mediation are recommended, but only recommended. Differences which may be made the object of local injury, and which do not involve the henor or vital interests of the powers concerned, are to be submitted to international commiftees of inquiry, but the reports of these committees are not to have the character of an arbitration award, but are to leave the powers concerned at liberty to act as they feel best.

Arbitration is acknowledged to be the most efficient and most equitable mode of settling differences, and the signatory powers agree to organize a permanent court of arbitration accessible at all times. It is optional with any power whether it shall take any particular case before the arbitration court or not. Article 27 declares; "The signatory powers consider it their duty, whenever an acute conflict threatening to peace occurs between any of them, to recall to the latter that the arbitration court is open to them." The American delegates took exception to this article, and insisted that the language be so modified that the United States may in no case be obliged to interfere in European affairs, or Europe in American disputes. Declarations were adopted prohibiting the use of asphyxiating projectiles or expanding bullets, which Great Britain and the United States declined to accept.

Nothing has been accomplished as to disarmament, and little more than a declaration favorable to the principle of arbitration has been accepted by all the powers. The questions that relate to a nation's honor have not been legislated | Political plots are already shaping themupon, and nearly all questions that precipitate war do relate to a nation's honor. Even if a court of arbitration is established on the plan marked out, no nation is bound to accept the plan. Certainly in the United States the scheme will have to be approved by the Senate. The proposal to declare the inviolability of private property during war on land and sea, and the proposal regulating the question of the bombardment of ports, towns and villages by naval forces, were referred to future conferences.

The United States has especial cause for gratification and pride at the outcome of the proceedings at The Hague. Arbitration is a policy that this nation more than any other has been instrumental in inducing the world to adopt. In its principles and main provisions, though not in details, the plan agreed upon at The Hague is in accord with the propositions submitted by the Americans, which called for a permanent tribunal, with voluntary arbitration, the award to be morally binding upon both parties after they have joined in an application for arbitration. In the dominating force of its ideas the United States has won recognition as a world power in the best sense of that term.

FRENCH ARMY IS DISCIPLINED. Gen. de Negrier's Removal Meant as a Warning to the Militasy.

The removal of Gen. de Negrier from the French council of war is the most important move yet taken by the new Government in the cause of discipline. It may be regarded as the supreme test of the Government's strength. The nationalist papers are wild with rage over the latest "affront" to the army, which they say has been beheaded. Many persons even who are supporting the new ministry think that this was a step of doubtful wisdom, as likely to goad the military to desperation.

Gen. de Negrier was at no time mixed up in the Dreyfus affair. He has distinguished himself for bravery and skill as a soldier and general, and was on the road to succeed to the position of generalissimo of the forces. His disgrace is meant as a warning to the military not to organize conspiracies against the republic. This was, in a way, De Negrier's offense.

The Government learned of his methods through an address made by Col. Bertrand to his officers at Auxonne shortly after the departure of Gen. de Negrier from a visit of inspection to the garrison there Col. Bertrand said: "Gentlemen, owing to the attacks upon the army, the generals of the council of war have determined upon the day after the conclusion of the Dreyfus trial to wait upon the Government and demand that these attacks cease. If they do not, the generals will act."

Col. Bertrand was summoned by the war office to explain these words, and he said that he made the address in accordance with De Negrier's order. The war council subsequently told the Government they did not share the sentiment expressed.

During a heavy thunderstorm Earl D. Simpson met death in a tragic manner. He, in company with Edward Jones, was diving from the Chester River Steamboat Company's wharf at Chestertown. The swimmer had mounted a pile twelve feet high for the purpose of making a dive, and as he stood poised for the plunge the fatal flash came from a comparatively clear sky and the young man fell to the wharf dead. His companion and a teamster and four horses that stood scarcely twenty feet away, were shocked, but in no degree stunned by the current.

Two Singers.

Two singers there were and one was like

To a queen in her royal gown-With a stately step, and pride agleam In the deep of her eyes of brown; And one's was a face with a gentler grace,

And eyes that a heart shone through-

Eyes that borrowed the schoolday tint Of a little sunbonnet of blue.

One was a singer of great renown. Now stirring the blood with a note, Now charming the ear with the cultured tones

That came from her shapely throat; And one was a singer of songs of love, And she knew not the ways of art; But she sang right on past the ear and poured Rich melodies 'round the heart.

Two tributes of song-and one was lost

In the deafening volley of cheers; And one throbbed on when the singer was gone.

And the answer was silence and tears.

Ah, may the day that has passed since then,

And the singers that sang are not; But memory holds to a little song, And the other-forgot! forgot!

HIS FIRST NIGHT IN MANILA.

A VOLUNTEER'S ADVENTURE.

An injury, received at Cavite, a few days after our troops entered Manila, incapacitated me for further service. I was furloughed and might have come home on the transport to San Francisco, but I wanted to see a little more of life in the Philippines.

Two American friends of mine, with an eye to future business, had bought a number of houses of departing Spanish residents on a street leading off the Escolta, and at their request, I bired a native servant and went to live in one of these houses, to look after the property and "hold down the claim" for them, as they say in Nebraska, till they could take possession themselves. The casa, or house, where I became thus domiciled was a typical Spanish structure of Manila, built around an enclosed open patio, or inmer courtyard, with strong walls and grated windows. The roof over the wider front portion of it was of corrugated iron, as is common here on account of earthquakes; but the lower portions at the wings and rear were provided with roofs of red earthen tiles.

Having the whole house to choose from, I selected two rooms on the second floor, fronting the street. The Spanish family who had lived here had left much of the old furniture, curtains, bamboo chairs, bedsteads, colchons and other articles not worth moving away. Even the braziers for cooking still stood on the gallery out side the door. I had but to fetch in my personal belongings and begin my bachelor housekeeping.

You get a mozo, or native male servant, for four dollars a month here, and this "boy" does everything for you, even to laying out your clothes and fetching in your meals. For an indolent life at moderate cost, Manila is the ideal city, in time of peace. The mozo does all the small buying, and it is often necessary to trust him with several of the big silver dollars which constitute the medium of exchange here. Although I found the old casa shut mp, it was far from being wholly unoccupied and empty. A Chinese "chow" dog, with a black tongue, curly hair, and a tail that was still trying hard to keep in its peculiar curl, was in the patio when I unlocked the outer door and entered. The forlorn creature seemed uncertain whether to bark at me for an intruder or whine for food, and she watched my face with sad, longing eyes, perhaps pleading for her three little puppies.

Tires cost from were five more of these long lizards about the court and late that aftermoon they began to "sing." I thought that half a dozen locksmiths had entered and were filing keys below, till my new mozo told me the noises were made by the lizards.

The first night after taking possession I spent down at Cavite with some friends; but the mozo remained and availed himself of my absence to smuggle into the patio two tough-looking game cocks of his own; for all these native "boys" are incorrigible cock fighters.

He also kept a yeeping turkey there, for what purpose I never knew, and raised "hongos"-mushrooms-in a dark back room of the ground floor. Still, he was a very good mozo, as Manila mozos go, and was usually on hand when he was wanted.

I had a Krag-Jorgensen carbine; but Florencio brought in two old rusted lances which he had found below, such as had sometimes been used by Spanish cavalry. He stood up one of these doughty weapons beside my bed, with an odd smile, intimating that he should keep the other near his own colchon in the back room which he occupied on the ground floor. I laughed at him; yet in the disturbed condition of the city at that time precautions were not entirely out of

After he had said buenas noches, and I had listened to his shuffling feet descending the stairs, I read again for a while, and then went to a window to look down into the street, which was very quiet and dimly lighted. Presently I heard the tramp of a patrol squad, and a sergeant with five soldiers passed. From the window I could see three natives peeping after them from the entrance of an alley. "Such is Manila in 1899," I thought, and went to bed.

The night was not uncomfortably hot. I blew out the feeble lamp and fell asleep at once.

A scraping sound soon waked me; a rat was dragging one of my shoes across the tiled floor. When I struck a match, the big gray fellow dropped the shoe and scurried into a corner, where I could see his small eyes reflecting the light.

I put my shoes and sceks on my bed, and again fell asleep; but not for and in order to insure comfort, safety long. It was not until the next day that I came fairly to understand that I had foolishly killed two harmless boas which had filled the necessary office of rat-catchers in the old house for years, and whose place would have to be filled by others of their species if we expected to live there.

I then learned that most old houses and bungalows at Manila have their majas, or house serpents,-a species of boa, from eight to twelve feet long, -which live in the lofts and attics above the ceilings, rarely or never giving the people any trouble. These snakes, in fact, are sold by native peddlers on the street.

Not many days later, itinerant venders, acting from some hint of Florencio's probably, came to the house door, each bearing a bamboo pole over his shoulder, with a boa coiled around it. The reptile's neck was tied fast to the pole aloft, to prevent them from escaping. It cost me two of the cart wheel dollars of the country to make good the witless slaughter which my inexperience had occasioned.—Youth's Companion.

When a block away from the mine the miners pulled their revolvers and opened fire on the crowd. No one was hurt. Several hundred people gathered and the police dispersed the crowd and escorted the miners home. Nearly 1,000 striking mixers, their families and sympathizers were at the John Ingle mine when the colored miners quit work. Both the strikers and non-union men were armed. Mayor Akin issued a proclamation forbidding the miners to parade.

is due not only to the originality and simplicity of the combination, but also to the care and skill with which it is manufactured by scientific processes known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and we wish to impress upon all the importance of purchasing the true and original remedy. As the genuine Syrup of Figs is manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist one in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parlies. The high standing of the CALI-FORNIA FIG SYRUP Co. with the medical profession, and the satisfaction which the genuine Syrup of Figs has given to millions of families, makes the name of the Company a guaranty of the excellence of its remedy. It is far in advance of all other laxatives, as it acts on the kidneys, liver and bowels without irritating or weakenng them, and it does not gripe nor nauseate. Civil service reformers, who are disturbed by President McKinley's recent order, first gained national recognition in 1871. In that year Congress passed a bill authorizing President Grant to appoint a civil service commission. The members of this first commission were George William Curtis, Alexander G. Cattell, Joseph Medill,

Davidson A. Walker, E. B. Ellicott, Joseph G. W. CURTIS. H. Blackfan and David C. Cox. In 1850 competitive examinations of applicants for certain positions were begun in a limited way, but it took twenty years of agitation to induce Congress to act. In England free, open competition throughout the public service was established in 1870. The civil service commission of 1871 adopted rules governing the examination of candidates, which were in force until Congress refused to make an appropriation for the work, and President Grant declared them temporarily suspended in

CRIMINALS AMONG WOLVES.

Great Cunning Manifested by These Animals in California.

E. Seton Thompson, naturalist to the Government of Manitgba, has, under the title, "Wild Animals I Have Known," given a series of observations on the cunning of beasts. That quality is in general the device of the weak, but the helplessness which it indicates may be of different grades. There is the cunning of wolves, which use their wits to rob man of his flocks and cattle, that of the domesticated creatures, which sometimes delight in criminal acts, and the cunning belonging to selfpreservation among those anima's on which others prey.

Mr. Thompson claims for certain animals, says the Scientific American, a share of the deference paid to depraved greatness. For example, there was the wolf which, in the fourteenth century, terrorized all Paris for ten years; a lame grizzly bear which, in two years, ruined all the hog-raisers and drove half the farmers out of business, in the Sacramento Valley, and a certain wolf in New Mexico, which was reported to have killed a cow every day for five years.

This wolf grew to be so well known that an increasing price was set upon his scalp, until the sum reached a thousand dollars. Ordinary means of hunting or trapping failed completely. The wolf and his mate brought up their cubs among some rocky precipices, within a thousand yards of the farm, and killed cattle daily.

At this period Mr. Thompson made the acquaintance of the vandal, and tried to kill him by scientific methods. He melted cheese mixed with fat of a heifer in a china dish, cut it into lumps with a bone knife, to avoid the taint of metal, and concealed in the lumps strychnine and cyanide, in odor-proof capsules. In doing this he wore gloves steeped in cow's blood, and even avoided breathing on the bait.

One of these lumps, placed in a tempting position, disappeared. Mr. Thompson followed the track to the next lump, and the next, and noticed that those also were gone. At the fourth he found that the wolf had laid all four together and scattered dirt over them.

The wolves now took to stampeding and killing sheep. Half a dozen goats are usually kept with each flock, as leaders, and they are not easily stampeded at night; so when wolves are about the sheep crowd about these leaders and remain there while the shepherds drive the wolves away. The object of the wolves is to stampede the sheep, and then pick them up, day by day, afterward.

One night they ran over the backs of the huddled flock, and killed all the goats in a few minutes. The sheep were then available for prey.

Traps to the number of a hundred and thirty were set in different parts of the big ranch. The trail of the pack was followed, and it became apparent that the leader, warned by the scent, stopped all the rest, and advanced alone to the trap. He scratched until he laid bare a dozen buried chains and pickets. Then he entered an H-shaped series of traps, realized his danger, and slowly backed out, putting down each paw backward until he was off the dangerous ground.

Afterward he sprung as many traps as possible, by scratching clods and stones at them with his hind feet.

A Sunday in Culver.

Richland Ceuter, Aug. 2, 1899.

MR. EDITER - Last Sunday, me an Betsey Ann, she's my wife, konkluded tew spend a day at Kulver, havin hearn tell thet it was a rite pert place fer amoosement. With us it's tew think an then act, an so i bitched up the ole gray mare an by nine er'clock a. m., we have in sight uv ther lake, an my! how things hev changed | under the bondholders' management. sence me an ole Awbynawby uster go galvantin around, huntin wild deers an ketchiu black bass. Gingerbread an mapel merlasses, how hilalutin things is around the sparklin lake about now. Me an Betsey saw hundreds uv allfired hummering lookin houses all along the banks on the east side, an when we cum down thet grate big hill on the east side, we struck a place thet a feller sed was Kulver Park, an ther butiful sight uv the same cum mighty near knockin ther persimmons off uv Betsey Ann's left optic, so startled wus she at the onusual sight. Them ere buildins- must uv, cost a heap uv money, an they do look tarnal nice. The grounds is fixed up in clippin style with paths runnin everywhere, with purty whitewashed stones on both sides uv em. Grate guns! They say at this place they larn boys how tew be sojers. i wudent a minded bein a soger if we'd a had quarters like them durin the rebellion.

Well, me an Betsey Ann druv around to Kulver an the fust thing we heard wus a lot uv fellers tootin horns, and a feller thumpin a big drum while another feller wus pastin a little drum like sixty. There wus the blamdest crowd Betsey an me has seen fer a long time, an everybody scootin around as if they were tryin tew find somethin. On every side wus fellers yellin "Peauuts, cracker-jack, segars," an a lot uv other yellin tew numerous tew meution. Moren ten fellers told us where we could get our grub an fer only 25 cents, but we had stole the march on em an brought our dinners along. We saw fellers yellin, "Evry time you knock a baby down you git a segar," an at another place a nigger was stickin his head through a hole in a canvass an evry time you hit him on the head you got a segar. Rite between the baby business an the nigger business was a feller runin an engine which turned what a feller sed wus a merry-go-round, which made a heap uv racket. We seen fellers drunker than biled owls an supposed they must hev drugged the New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs cold tea wich wus secured by enterin certain back doors. i got several glasses uv tea there an Betsey sed it made my breth smell awful. i told tery's drug store. Regular size 50c. and her she wus mistaken, as i seen wim men in a place they called a garden drinkin tea wich looked jest like mine. Jumpin Jehosophat! but it made em act funny. Grate jumpin Modocks, but Kulver is a double barreled circus an a hull county fair throwed in, on Sunday.

There wus three or four steamboats jest piled full uv peeple, an a lot uv little boats all scootin over the water like a lot uv spirits. There wus a feller there with the darndest masheen. We paid a nickel, put somethin in our ears, and blamed if the the third best lists, and many other valuable thing didn't talk like it wus a human bein. They called it a funnygraph an it surely wus funny tew hear it being given to advertise and introduce this talk. Land 'o Goshen! but what a lot uv keers there wus. They called em exkursion trains. About five er'clock Betsey an me started fer hum, an Betsey sed she came near losin her religion, at sech doins on the Monday, August 21st 1899. Your list can Lord's day, but i told her this is a summer resort an the Lord's day don't count. Well excuse poor ritin, printed in the following issue of The New an hopin to see Kulver again soon, i remane, yours truely,

RAILROAD TROUBLE AHEAL.

The Vandalia and Three S Will Probably Soon Lock Horns.

When the Vandalia cut itself loose from the money-losing Indiana & Lake Michigan connection between this city and St. Joseph, it added to its expense account a very large sum for transfer work which is now done by the Three S railway, under which name the I. & L. M. is known

The Three S has direct connection with the Oliver and Studebaker private roads and thereby bauls a whole lot of freight that must be shifted over to the Vandalia.

To avoid this expense the "Van" recently purchased $12,000 worth of right of way south of the Three S track and it was soon seen that the road intended to cross the Three S at a point west of the present station on South Franklin street, this plan of procedure being a big money saver.

The Vandalia proceeded to grade but the Three S folks seemed to have some ideas on the matter and they began to put in a siding that extended down beyond the proposed crossing point.

It is hinted that there will be other side tracks built by the Three S and all will extend beyond that same point; will be kept filled with cars, and will be carefully watched. The Vandalia is not to get across the Three S track without the latter knowing something about it. A nice fight seems to be ahead with the Three S holding a surplus of advantage. - South Bend Times.

"TO WHOM THIS COMES, CREETING: We take pleasure in commending the virtues of the remedies prepared by the Dr. B. J. Kay Medical Co. Having known of some remarkable cures of Omaha people effected by the use of Dr. Kay's Renovator and Dr. Kay's Lung Balm, we believe that these great remedies are worthy of the confidence of the public.

At this season, your system needs renovating. The internal organs are inactive. The waste matter is not eliminated but absorbed, thus contaminating the blood and debilitating the entire system. The nerve force is not replenished, consequently you are tired and have no energy. These symptoms are present in the Spring and after an epidemic of La-Grippe. To renovate the system and remove all bad effects of La-Grippe or Spring lassitude use Dr. Kay's Renovator. It certainly has no equal. Send for proof of it. It is a perfect renovator and regulator of all internal organs, curing the very worst cases of stomach troubles, constipation and obscure liver and kidney complaints. Try it and you will wonder at its marvelous effects. Write us describing your case carefully and we will give you valuable advice free and send you a 116 page illustrated book of receipts etc. If druggists do not have it don't take any substi-
