Wednesday evening there was a slight earth-quake at St. Joseph,

John Mitchell, who committed an assault upon an aged lady by the name of Kehoe, a week ago last Sat-day at Logansport, confessed his guilt and has been sentenced to Jeffersonville prison for the term of 21 years. Aside from this assault the villain stabbed his victim, cutting an ugly gash in her side. He has confessed to making assaults upon other women.

John Frick of Noble county, brother to Mrs. J. K. Mawhorter, was in town this week visiting his sister, who is slowly recovering from a severe illness.

The state board of parole is in session at the Northern Prison.

It is believed that Holdeman, the ex-

At the recent Fulton County Fair Ephriam Dougherty, who is over 90 years old, exhibited 14 varieties of potatoes of his own raising and was given twelve first prizes and two sec-squashes and first and second on hogs. For a farmer of his age he beats any other man in the United States.—Plymouth Democrat.

It is thought that the new M. E.
church will be ready for dedication about Thanksgiving. The carpenters, we understand, have been somewhat delayed on account of lack of material, which could not be avoided by anyone concerned.

Men owning cider presses say they never were kept busier making cider than they are this year. There will be plenty of hard cider to drink next winter, but the people will be

Rambo apples are now grown in this section of the country.

An interesting series of meetings has been held this week at Popular Grove, which it is to be hoped will result in much permanent good. The attendance has been good in spite of inclement weather. Rev. J. W. Barber preached a good gospel sermon on Monday night. Tuesday night
the subject was Sunday School work, and was preliminary to the S. S. rally which is to be held next Sunday.
Others who have preached during the week, are, Rev. R. J. Reid, pastor of the M. E. church at Knox,
Rev. Newman of Culver, and Rev.
W. E. McKenzie of the Plymouth
M. E. church. Several prominent county S. S. workers are expected to be present next Sunday.

On August 9th, somewhere upon this mundane sphere, Mr. Charles Curtis and Miss Elsie Walter were made husband and wife. The young people kept the matter a profound secret until a few days ago, only the parents and those deeply concerned, knowing a thing about it. We understand that our worthy deputy county treasurer, took this course in order to fool the boys at the court house, and that he did it to perfection will not be denied by the best of 'em. Although it is rather late,
the HERALD extends congratulations.
In the meantime Mrs. Curtis continues to follow her duties as teacher, while Charlie calmly handles the cash in the treasurer's office, chuck-ling to himself with great satisfaction over the fact that he fooled them.

Plymouth Independent: Peter Kruyer, custodian of the county infirm, came in today and told us of a huge rock that was found on the infirmary farm. Dynamite was used to raise it and in so doing it was broken into many pieces. Five wagon loads were gathered up and there are still nineteen pieces too large to be put upon a wagon besides many small pieces. The whole stone weighed probably between 20 and 30 tons.

The jury in the John Osborn insurance case, which was tried before Judge Capron at Rochester last week, returned a verdict in favor of Osborn to the amount of $2,207.90.
This has been a hard contested case,
it being tried twice and knocked off
the calendar once owing to irregularity in the time it should have been called. A judgment was rendered in both trials in favor of Osborn. This will probably end the matter, as lawyers, without they have a "sure thing" hardly ever carry a case to the Supreme Court.

When Twilight Comes.

When twilight comes across the quiet land,
I crave your presence, you who understand
The comradeship of word and look and smile;
The gentle talk and laughter, after-while,
And homeward walk across the wave-worn sand.

How will it be, I wonder, when the grand,
Full mid-day glow of life has vanished,
and
The sun's last rays fall coldly on the dial,
When twilight comes.

Oh, that we two together still may stand;
Undone, perchance, the deeds we hoped and planned.
Tired and very old, yet missing naught
Of tenderness or olden word or thought.
God grant that life may leave us hand in hand,
When twilight comes.
—Theodosia Pickering Garrison, in Truth.

THE SHIP THAT BECAME AN ISLAND.

The huge clipper, with its quaint figurehead and its flying jibboom projecting far out over South street, New York, had just sounded six bells, and the other deep-water craft along South street were taking up the refrain, when old Capt. Smith filled and lighted his corncob pipe for the third time that evening, and nodded approvingly at the forest of graceful masts and spars extending along the water until lost to view around the bend at Dover street.

"Thar," he said, "ef that ere haint a sight fur ol' eyes may not only my timbers be shivered, but my spare yards also. Gorjis, ain't it, shipm'?" prodding old Capt. Mitchell in the ribs with his cane. His friend responded with a not very enthusiastic grunt, whereupon the old man continued: "Yessir, they haint no place like th' street to freshen your memories o' th' days that onct was, when sailin' craft ruled the ocean, and when these iron steam pots was as skurce as a pirate in kingdom come. I tell you, mates, some days when I've bin walking along the North River front an' seen nothin' but steamships as fur as my deadlights could reach, I've been as blue as a skipper with sea biles. But when you onct get aroun' here—wot then, my hearties, wot then? You can say what you please, but I maintain that the sight of them spars is enough to make you feel fifty years younger."

When the Captain ceased speaking Capt. Mitchell and Capt. Reeves became involved in their stock argument as to whether a clipper ship built of wood is not superior to one constructed of iron. The argument waxed warm, as it always did, and soon all the old captains and a number of outsiders became involved. As was usual the case was finally appealed to the Ancient Mariner.

"Wa'al," said the old man sagely, "there air a great many good p'int to be considered on both sides o' th' most important question. Cap'n Mitchell sais that you kin git more cargo inter an iron ship, bein' that th' sides is thinner, an' that she doan' spring a leak so easy, 'cause they ain't no seams in her to be caulked up. That's all right so fur as it goes, but like a broke bowsprit, in doan' go fur enough. Now, as Cap'n Reeves maintains, a wooden clipper will stand more poundin', bein' as there's more give to its sides, and it also rides th' water better, bein' as wood's more buoyant. Pusson'y I prefer the wooden vessel. But, gen'l'men, doan' never build a ship outen unseasoned timber. Doan' do it. I onct sailed in that kind o' craft an' I wouldn't do it ag'in fur all the gold this side o' Hongkong. Never heern about it, eh? Wall, jes open yer weather ears an' I'll tell ye th' strangest 'sperience that ever happened to an orthodox skipper.

"I had only had my master's certificate 'bout a year, when one day one o' th' partners o' th' tradin' company I had made my last cruise fur come up to me and said: 'See here, Cap'n, how would you like ter change ships? We've got a new, spankin' clipper fresh off the ways. She was built in a hurry, I'll admit, but she ain't none th' less staunch on that account. Now, you take 'er, an' we'll see't you doan' lose nothin' by it.'

"Wa'al, mates, wot could I do? It doan' pay to bunk agin yer agents, and then, too, a new ship ain't to be sneezed at, so I accepted on th' spot. She was bound for the Cape o' Good Hope. Had I known she was built o' unseasonable timber you wouldn't o' got me to sail up th' Erie Canal on 'er, but 'course I didn't know that. The agent who got me ter sign didn't say 'nary word 'bout it, nuther. That's wot 'sprised me most; fur of all th'

men who pretended to be pious. Ol' Corey—that was the agent's name—was th' beatnest you ever seen. He 'ud go aroun' with his nose in th' air lookin' fur all th' world like a sky pilot who has jes' finished readin' ter chapters from th' scriptur. Why, th' ol' duffer had a wart on th' end of his nose, big one 'twas, too, an' I'll curl up an' bust of th' ol' fool would have that wart taken off simply 'cause th' Testament sais remove not th' ancient landmark. He married a pretty little bundle o' caliker—Matildy Simpkins, that was. Her mother—howsomever, I'm fallin' too far off my course.

"As I was sayin', I tuk the ship, which already had her cargo on board, and started out. It wasn't a good time ter start, for we had an' ol' moon, a nor'west wind, an' ebb tide, a combination which doan' leave enough water in th' East River to float a row-boat. Howsumever, arter walkin' over the Dimon' Reef and three or four other ledges, we cleared the Bar an' started out.

"Everythin' went well until we kilt our first pig at th' equator. We had made good weather all th' way down, an' besides butcherin' th' pig th' men shaved a lubber with a bar'l hoop jes' as we crossed th' line. We was havin' a great time, I tell ye.

"Wa'al, one day when we got 'bout fifty miles north o' Ascension Island we struck th' doldrums, an' thinks I here is a good time ter send th' men over th' side fur a swim. Over they went, but they came out ag'in quicker nor they went in. 'Lord, Harry,' sais I, 'wot's th' matter, my hearties? Git back in th' ocean, every man Jack o' yer.' But they didn't.

"Cap'n," sais one o' th' men, 'ef that ain't the most remarkable sight I ever seen, may I be keelhauled.'

"Wot is?" sais I. 'Look fur yourself,' sais he.

"Wa'll, as they all stood there lookin' like a passel of fools, I strung myself down over the side in a bowline, an' then I guv a gasp, an' purty near flapped into th' water. Mates, ye may not believe me, but th' side o' that ship was sproutin' buds like a bass-wood tree in April. Buds, do I say? Nay, they was mostly small sprouts an' branches, an', moreover, they kep' growin' so fast that could see 'em shootin' outen th' planks like fire outen a bar'l.

"I promptly ordered all th' men over th' sides with axes an' saws an' knives an' set 'em to work cuttin' th' branches out. But, lor, it did no good. Fur every branch we cut out at least five came in its place. It grew to be one an' two days, an' th' old ship began to take on th' appearance o' one o' these floatin' summer gardens ye see goin' down th' East River. Th' masts looked like May poles, an' I'll be chingwanged of a big rose bush didn't sprout right out on th' end o' th' 'st-head. As fur th' yards, all festooned with hangin' vines—wa'al, mates, all I got ter say is that if it wasn't th' most remarkable sight ever seen by man or Neptune I strike my r'yals, that's all. Course th' ship wouldn't make no impetus with sich impediments hangin' onto her, an' she became as unmovable as the rock of Gibraltar.

"We finally guv up tryin' to make port, and guv ourselves up to fruit-raisin' an' flower gardenin'. Th' apple trees raised as fine a cargo o' apples as ye ever seen, an' as fur grapes an' roses an' cherries, why you didn't have to luk twict ter see that we had th' richest agricultural craft afloat. Wa'al, things kep' growin', an' th' ship begun ter look like one o' them floatin' islands ye see in th' Indian Ocean. But we didn't mind; we were livin' a quiet, happy life, tossin' about on th' ocean, an' we didn't keer if we never got back, as I heered some women in short skirts sing at Coney Island last week. We even named th' ship Smith Island.

"The funniest thing ever was ter see th' effect th' tropics had on th' temperate zone fruits that grew on th' ship. Pears an' apples grew bigger nor swash buckets. One apple would make five pies, an' as fur grapes why when the vines was in full growth they'd weigh th' ship down tell th' water come nigh up to th' berth deck. Ships uster stop and buy fresh fruit off us.

"But like all good things I ever dropped inter, this life came to an end. It was this way: We was all asleep in th' pear grove one day, when all o' a sudden we was awakened by a peculiar sensation. Th' ship seemed ter be movin'. Up I jumped, an' sure enough we was cuttin' through th' water like a whale with both fins an' his tail agoin'. I soon see wot made us move, howsumever. It was a British ship-o'-the-line. She had come up while we slept, got a line around a cherry tree an' was towin' us ter beat all creation. I hailed th' Captain an' tol' him to cast off or I'd cut th' rope. In reply he said I could be blowed. He said he wanted th' island an' he calculated ter take it. An' in conclusion he said that if I cut th' hawser he'd be blamed ef he wouldn't blow th' hull shebang outen th' water.

"Wa'al, I raved aroun', but it did no good, an' th' frigate kept towin' us along. We finally made the island o' Trinidad, an' then wot d'ye think that old British duffer did? He tied us up on one end o' th' island, raised th' British flag on one o' th' pear trees, an' proclaimed it British territory. How was that for brass? But th' wustest part came when they evicted me an' my crew for non-payment of taxes. Think o' that, mates!

"I tuk passage fur hum soon after, an' laid the matter before th' State Department, but I got no satisfaction. Th' Secretary o' State said that I was th' best liar he ever seen, an' ter go home an' stop drinkin'. That's where he was wrong, fur ye all know, mates, I ain't no drinkin' man, an' as fur lyin', ef there is a more truthfuller man than I am I'd like ter see him; eh, mates?"

The mates agreed in a half-hearted manner.

COWBOY LASSOES A SHARK.

Landed the Rope Under the Fins of the Monster, Says the Skipper.

"Yes, there are funny things going on down the bay and soon they will really be catching sharks with cod lines." This was the remark of a coaster who happened to drop into J. H. Blake's on Widgery's wharf. The remark was nothing surprising. Yesterday afternoon Captain Rickett, who commands one of the oddest-looking three-masted fisherman's boats that sets sail from this port, and right here it can be said that he is among the smartest of the captains, poked the nose of his craft right round Commercial wharf. As he did so, some one from Henry Sargent's fish store on Commercial wharf, called out in that familiar style known to every traveller along the water front. "What you got, captain?"

"Wait and see," came the reply and in his impatience he went to the lower deck and calling to his assistance his crew of five men, held up a swindle tail shark, which, as matter of fact, he had captured near Dunderkard Ledge, just about eight miles from the Cape lights.

The captain was called to explain how he got the fish, but he was reluctant to say much until the eager observers had a better opportunity to see his catch and then, opening up in a very graphic way, said: "We were sailing along very quietly with nothing to cause a ripple on the smooth surface of what had been a smooth sea, when some one at the lookout called out, 'A whale ahead!' and then came a cry: 'It may be the sea serpent, of which we have heard so much.'"

As they drew nearer, a tail flopped in the air and the water flew up as if under the influence of a sub-marine mine, and the captain seeing danger called out every man to the ropes.

To capture the fish was the next thing in order and there happened to be on board a man who had thrown the lasso over many a wild Western broncho, and he was the man who did the trick.

The man gathered up his rope, surveyed the distance and with a dexterous fling, landed the rope right under the fins of the sea monster. Then the fun began, for the shark showed the gameness of a trout, and plunged here and there, throwing up the water in his trial. The men on board held to the ropes, and as one described it to a reporter of the Press, "it was a tug of war." At last the shark showed signs of weakening and then it was a dead pull to the boat. When the game, so to speak, was once on board, accurate measurements were made and it was found that in length the fish was 9 feet 7 inches; the tail was 6 feet 7 inches and that it had eight fins. It was a voracious monster, for in its maw at least six herrings remained undigested.—Portland (Ore.) Press.

Burke's Famous Dagger.

Apropos of Lord Rosebery's visit to Beaconsfield to unveil a memorial to Burke, a correspondent writes: Sir Edward Lawson has at his house, Hall Barn, at Beaconsfield, some very interesting relics of Burke, among them the identical dagger which Burke flung on the floor of the House of Commons in his speech on the second reading of the aliens bill on the 28th of December, 1792, to testify his abhorrence of the principles of the French revolution. It is a mere toy dagger made of wood. It was sent from France to a manufacturer at Birmingham with an order for a large number to be made like it, and Burke had only received it the same day from Sir James Bland Burgess on his way down to the House. The celebrated dagger scene was like many other historic episodes in the House of Commons, wholly unpremeditated.

Ragtime in Reality.

"Do you have any rag time down here?" asked the man with the guitar. "It's always ragtime down here," replied the hard-times citizen, with a lugubrious sigh, "nothing but rags; hardly any patches."—Chicago Daily News.

Her Self-Esteem.

"I love you," he passionately said, "with all my heart, with all my soul, and with the whole strength of my being!" "I don't see how you can help it," replied the maiden, who was fully aware of her own worth.—Puck.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Death Signals Its Approach—Burglar Killed by a Girl—Horrible Suicide at Shelbyville—Founder of a Town Commits Suicide.

Chesterfield has a mystery. Persons have been warned by peculiar rappings that death was near and several have died. The seventh case was reported recently, Ora McDaniel being the victim. The warnings which preceded the deaths consisted of loud rappings on the front doors of the homes three nights in succession, followed by raps on the inner doors. The Steinman family of seven was in good health two months ago. All have received the death warning since, six have died and the seventh is on her deathbed.

Girl Vanquishes a Burglar.
Miss Goldie Cothran, aged 14, of Muncie, struck a burglar in her room with a silver-backed hair brush and the unknown man was fatally hurt. The robber was detected by the girl carrying a valuable clock from the residence when she commanded him to drop the time-piece. This he did and, closing the door, turned upon her, when she threw the brush, striking him in the temple. He fell to the floor and has remained unconscious since.

She lived with her father and was alone when she committed the act. She never spoke after running from the house. Her apparel was destroyed by fire and the body was literally roasted. Mrs. Bright was not happily married and was separated from her husband.

On a public stage near the business center of Seymour, and in the presence of 8,000 persons, W. R. Smith of Jonesville and Mrs. Sarah Harper of Seymour were married. Each is nearly 60 years of age and were once before husband and wife, having been divorced several years.

The Dewey who has been welcomed back to Washington by his fellow townsmen and who is the recipient of a nation's tribute is the same Dewey as of yore, except that since he left here—within a short two years—he has had his opportunity and seized it, and his new measure has been taken. Seventeen months ago he emerged from the "wings" and took a place on the stage of marvelous historical achievements. He was 60 years old when he left Washington. In his personal appearance no noticeable change has occurred, except that his eyes are possibly brighter and his bearing rather more soldierly. The man Dewey, however, is the same. His smile is as genial as his bows and gestures of recognition as cordial as in former days before he became the national hero. His head has not been turned by the adulations of millions.

If ex-Attorney General MacVeagh tries to get his client, Captain Carter, out of jail on a writ of habeas corpus he will be going against a stone wall. The thing has been tried before and the highest courts of the land have passed affirmatively on the competency of military courts in times of peace to deal with those in the military service guilty of infractions against the civil laws. Courts of final appeal have held that the constitution is not violated and that neither officers nor privates can secure civil trial on the theory that the constitution guarantees every man charged with offending against the law a trial before a jury of his peers. The articles of war are held to establish the right of military courts to pass upon cases agreeing in every essential particular with the Carter case.

President McKinley is a great reader of newspapers. Every day he goes through at least fifteen newspapers. His skill in reading rapidly is as great as that of the average exchange editor. His time is very valuable and everything is done to facilitate the process. The papers are arranged for him by an attendant. They are opened and folded so the editorial page is uppermost. He glances at the heads of all the editorials and reads enough to get the gist of all which bear upon public matters. Before casting the paper aside he glances also at the news columns. In addition the White House has its special corps of readers who clip, classify and paste in scrap books all matters of public interest.

The wonderful growth of the United States is graphically illustrated by the increasing size of the different official registers kept on the shelves of the Interior Department. This year's Register is a tremendous two-volume quarto affair, weighing nearly twenty pounds. It will be considerably larger than the last one published, and that contained 2,743 pages and showed that there were 200,000 persons in the service of the Government. It looks large beside the first volume published in 1820, when Monroe was President and John Quincy Adams was Secretary of State. Then the Register was an octavo of 224 pages.

The regular publication of the "Blue Book," otherwise known as the Official Register of the United States, is nearly ready for the printer. It will be bound and ready for subscribers by the time Congress meets. Although its pages have a dry and uninteresting look, being for the most part an endless succession of names in parallel columns, the Blue Book is in greater demand than almost any other Government publication. It is exceedingly valuable for reference purposes, containing the correct official title, together with the residence, birthplace and salary of every man, woman and child in the employ of the United States.

Attorney General Griggs will direct proceedings to be brought against Captain Carter's alleged accomplices in the robbery of the Government on Savannah contracts to recover the stolen money. The Atlantic Contracting Company, which did the work, and which is charged with having been in collusion with Carter in the fraudulent operations, is made up of rich men who are supposedly responsible. Secretary of War Root will have the experts of the War Department supply the Department of Justice with full data upon which to proceed against the persons incriminated.

For the past two months the Government has had E. S. Holmes of the statistical division of the Agricultural Department at work in Texas getting figures as to the damage done by the Brazos river floods last July. The report says that the property destroyed will figure up to $7,412,583. In the devastated region the landlords are accustomed to advance money to the tenants on the security of the prospective crops; $750,000 was so advanced. With the rent anticipated for the use of the land the owners are out of pocket $2,519,000.

Brig. Gen. Charles P. Eagan, who was suspended from rank and duty as a result of the language employed by him before the war investigating commission, hopes to obtain a vindication from Congress during the coming session. Gen. Eagan is in Washington to settle matters connected with the furniture of the house he occupied before his departure for Hawaii. It is understood, however, that he is trying to enlist the sympathy of members of Congress in order to obtain a congressional investigation of the beer scandal.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS FREE.

One of the Grandest Offers Ever Made.

The first five persons procuring the Endless Chain Starch Book from their grocer will each obtain one large 10c package of "RED CROSS" starch, one large 10c package of "HUBINGER'S BEST" starch, two Shakespeare pictures, printed in twelve beautiful colors, as natural as life, or one Twentieth Century Girl Calendar, the finest of its kind ever printed, all absolutely free. All others procuring the Endless Chain Starch Book will obtain from their grocer two large 10c packages of starch for 5c, and the beautiful premiums, which are being given away. This offer is only made for a short time to further introduce the famous "RED CROSS" starch, and the celebrated "HUBINGER'S BEST" cold water starch. "RED CROSS" laundry starch is something entirely new, and is without doubt the greatest invention of the twentieth century. It has no equal, and surpasses all others. It has won for itself praise from all parts of the United States. It has superseded everything heretofore used, or known to science in the laundry art. It is made from wheat, rice and corn, and is chemically prepared upon scientific principles by J. C. Hubinger, an expert in the laundry profession, who has had twenty-five years of practical experience in fancy laundering, and who is the first successful and original inventor of all fine grades of starch in the United States. If you would have the best, ask for "RED CROSS" and "HUBINGER'S BEST," which are the finest starches on the market to-day. The jobbing houses all handle it, the retail grocer has it on his shelves, you find it in all the homes, while the careful housewife has adorned the walls of the house with the beautiful Shakespeare pictures which are being given away in introducing "RED CROSS" and "HUBINGER'S BEST" starch.

Helping Somebody.
No more beautiful tribute was ever paid to a human being than that to Sir Bartle Frere by his wife. Once, upon going to the railway station to meet her husband, she took with her a servant who had never seen him.

"You must go and look for Sir Bartle," she ordered.

"But," answered the nonplussed servant, "how shall I know him?"

"Oh," said Lady Frere, "look for a tall gentleman helping somebody."

The description was sufficient for the quick-witted man. He went and found Sir Bartle Frere helping an old lady out of a railway carriage, and knew him at once by the description.

Pleasing the Baby.
A few days ago two ladies, one of whom carried a baby, entered a carpet shop and signified their desire to look at some carpets. The shopman cheerfully showed roll after roll, until the perspiration literally streamed from every pore of his body. Finally one of the ladies asked the other if she did not think it was time to go.

"Not quite," was the answer of her companion; and then, in an undertone, she added: "Baby likes to see him roll them out, and it is not time to catch the train yet."—Tit-Bits.

First-Class Suit of Clothes for $7.90.
For those who are accustomed to sending away from home for their goods it is of the greatest importance to know the character and reliability of the establishments selling goods to families from catalogues. The great emporium of the John M. Smyth Co., located at 150 to 166 West Madison street, Chicago, has been established for a third of a century, and has furnished over half a million homes in Chicago and vicinity alone. This firm enjoys the confidence of the public by its many years of fair dealing. It issues an immense illustrated catalogue that should be in every family, as it describes and gives the price of every article required for household use. A sample of the extraordinary values offered by this firm is shown in the illustration of the gentlemen's suit of clothes at $7.90 in another column of this paper. These suits are indeed wonderful values, and yet they are but a sample of the thousand and one useful articles illustrated and described in the beautiful catalogue of the John M. Smyth Company.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 18,992]

"DEAR FRIEND—I feel it my duty to express my gratitude and thanks to you for what your medicine has done for me. I was very miserable and losing flesh very fast, had bladder trouble, fluttering pains about the heart and would get so dizzy and suffered with painful menstruation. I was reading in a paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I wrote to you and after taking two bottles I felt like a new person. Your Vegetable Compound has entirely cured me and I cannot praise it enough."—MRS. J. O. BARNARD, MILLTOWN, WASHINGTON CO., ME.

An Iowa Woman's Convincing Statement.

"I tried three doctors, and the last one said nothing but an operation would help me. My trouble was profuse flowing; sometimes I would think I would flow to death. I was so weak that the least work would tire me. Reading of so many being cured by your medicine, I made up my mind to write to you for advice, and I am so glad that I did. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and followed your directions, and am now well and strong. I shall recommend your medicine to all, for it saved my life."—MISS A. P., BOX 21 ABBOTT, IOWA.

Smart Monkeys.

A Capuchin monkey was given some walnuts, which he tried to crack with his teeth, but found he was not strong enough. He then seized a stone which was near by, held the nuts on the ground with one hand, and used his stone hammer with the other, with excellent results. Other monkeys have been seen to utilize nut picks.

The Quietest Town.

Colorado Springs boasts of being the quietest town in the country. No church bells are rung there and no whistles are blown. A local paper admits that dogs bark at night in Colorado Springs, as they do everywhere else, but it adds that "when they run about they make no noise with their feet in the sandy soil."

Had Observed It.

"Yes," remarked Mr. Ferguson, who still had his cycling suit on, "the rain came up when I was about half way here, and I can tell you I streaked it for home."

"Yes," responded Mrs. Ferguson, "I noticed the streak—up and down your back—as soon as you came in."

A Matter of Weight.

"This is the new tandem, is it?" said the fair maiden. "How much will it weigh, with the attachments all on?" "With all the attachments on that it needs," he whispered in her ear, "it weighs about 115 pounds more than it does now."

A Sunday School Boss.

Gen. "Joe" Wheeler, the noted Confederate, is a meek-looking little man, who looks like the proper kind of person to boss a Sunday school. Perhaps he can, but it is certain that few living men know better than he how to lead a cavalry charge. He was a commander of cavalry in the Confederate army at the age of 26.

Try Grain-O! Try Grain-O!

Wall Paper Designer.

Although you may not know it, your new wall paper may be the design of no less distinguished a person than the Marquis of Lorne, who lately executed a number of wall paper and frieze patterns which a London firm purchased and have put upon the market.

Traveling on the Burlington Railroad on the way to Denver, a little town called Atlanta, near Hastings, Nebraska, is pointed out as a point of interest because of the corn cribs built there along the tracks. In all there are twenty-four separate cribs, 12 feet wide and 12 feet high, with a total length of 5,964 feet, or a distance of nearly a mile and a quarter. This year's enormous crop (three hundred million bushels for the State of Nebraska) will test their capacity. Everybody seems prosperous in Nebraska. Nobody complains but the bankers, who find it hard to lend their money. Nobody wants to borrow it.

Parrot 125 Years Old.

One of the longest lived birds on record died recently in London. It was a parrot named Ducky, the property of the Prince of Wales, and was 125 years old.

She Dared.

"Your teacher whipped you?" roared Gayboy. "How dared she?" "Well," blubbered the boy, "she said she also licked you when you were in her class, and she guessed she'd risk it."

In the Wee Hours.

Mrs. A.—But can't the dear little thing's father suggest some name? Mrs. B.—Yes, every night his father calls him a new name, but I'm afraid they wouldn't do.

A Reliable Cowcatcher.

By this whimsical incident the Chicago News reminds us that in real life, as well as in the dictionary, words have more than one meaning.

"Pardon me," said the tourist, as he gazed at the country's first locomotive, "but why is that lasso hanging under the smoke-stack?"

"That," responded Amber Pete, the acting engineer, "is the cowcatcher. That was an iron concern that came with the engine, but the boys didn't exactly understand how it could catch a cow, so they unscrewed it, and put on one that they knew something about. It's the best cowcatcher this side of Denver, too."

The Philippine War

Is proving more stubborn than anticipated. It needs a vigorous contest to straighten matters out. "What's in a Name?"

Everything, when you come to medicines. A sarsaparilla by any other name can never equal Hood's, because of the peculiar combination, proportion and process by which Hood's possesses merit peculiar to itself, and by which it cures when all other medicines fail. Cures scrofula, salt rheum, dyspepsia, catarrh, rheumatism, that tired feeling, etc.

A WONDERFUL CURE

Of diarrhoea. A prominent Virginia editor had almost given up, but was brought back to perfect health by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Read his editorial.

From the Times, Hillsville, Va.—I suffered with diarrhoea for a long time and thought I was past being cured. I had spent much time and money and suffered so much misery that I had almost decided to give up all hopes of recovery and await the result, but noticing the advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and some also testimonials stating how some wonderful cures had been wrought by this remedy, I decided to try it. After taking a few doses I was entirely well of that trouble, and I wish to say further to my readers and fellow-sufferers that I am a hale and hearty man today and feel as well as I ever did in my life.—O. R. MOORE. Sold by T. E. Slattery, druggist.

"Best on the market for coughs and colds and all bronchial troubles; for croup it has no equal," writes Henry R. Whitford, South Canaan, Conn., of One Minute Cough Cure.—T. E. Slattery.

IS IT WORTH
For an Editor to Recommend Patent Medicines?
(From Sylvan Valley News, Brevard, N.C.)
It may be a question whether the editor of a newspaper has the right to publicly recommend any of the various proprietary medicines which flood the market, yet as a preventative of suffering we feel it a duty to say a good word for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. We have known and used this medicine in our family for twenty years and have always found it reliable. In many cases a dose of this remedy would save hours of suffering while a physician is awaited. We do not believe in depending implicitly on any medicine for a cure, but we do believe that if a bottle of Chamberlain's Diarrhoea Remedy were kept on hand and administered at the inception of an attack much suffering might be avoided and in many cases the presence of a physician would not be avoided and in very many cases the presence of a physician would not be required. At least this has been our experience during the past twenty years. For sale by T. E. Slattery, druggist.

The secretary of agriculture, Mr. Wilson, has prepared a statement to show the beneficial effects of the Dingley tariff bill on farm products. The total agricultural exports for the fiscal year of 1897, he says, amounts to $683,471,139, while for 1898 they aggregated $854,027,929, an increase for the year of $171,556,790. For the fiscal year of 1898 the total domestic exports were $1,210,292,076, an increase of $178,284,404 over those of the previous year.

The value of the three principal articles of imports in the agricultural line, coffee, sugar and wool, shows a wonderful decrease in 1898. In 1897, we paid $81,544,884 for coffee; the following year, $65,076,561. Last year we paid $60,472,703 for sugar, which was $39,193,478 less than what we paid in 1897. The amount of wool imported in 1897 was 350,852,025 pounds, as against 132,755,302 pounds in 1898, the decrease in value being $26,459,499. The heavy decrease in these products, Secretary Wilson says, is owing to the heavy importations made before the Dingley bill was made a law.

The exports of domestic merchandise for the month of August were valued at $84,580,475, an increase of $3,755,425 over the month of August last year, when they amounted to $80,825,050. For the eight months from Jan. 1 to Aug. 31 they reached $773,645,725, an increase of $136,948,396, the exports for the eight months of 1897 amounting to $641,697,330.

For the eight months from Jan. 1 to Aug. 31 United States imports amounted to $126,923,597, against $545,325,777 for the same period last year. The imports for the month of August, 1898, amounted to $42,465,194. For the eight months ending Aug. 31 they amounted to $471,232,299.

The manufacture of silk in the United States, in 1890 amounted to $6,097,771 in value. Since 1890 the rate of increase has even accelerated, making it probable that the silk production of the United States today amounts to nearly or quite $150,000,000 per annum in value. Meantime the importation of manufactured silks has fallen rapidly that of 1890 being $35,636,374 and that of 1898 only $3,523,110.

The Biglow Papers.

"The Biglow Papers" deserve to be considered, says J. S. Tunison in The Atlantic. They were not exotic. They grew right out of the soil upon which the struggle culminated that had absorbed the activities of the whole English speaking race. They are as real to one member of that race as to another. Just for the reason that in the midst of a civil conflict with its factional and dispersive tendencies the highest flights of poetry were impossible, the poet was artistically right in turning back to the ways and language of common life. He has given the passion as well as the humor of his time. He enables his readers to live over again a period which, when it can be seen in its entirety, without the distractions that were merely incidental to it, will stand out as the characteristic part of the nineteenth century, embodying in its results all those individual and national aspirations which were hardly more than words when the century began. Whoever returns to the study of that period will find the details wherever he may, but he can always vitalize them with the breath of Lowell's poem.

An Old Fashioned Remedy For Baldness.

An old time but good remedy to prevent the hair from falling out is a wash made by steeping three large onions in a quart of rum, or until the strength is drawn from the vegetable, and applying it to the scalp every second day. The odor of the onion soon passes off, but if found disagreeable, ten drops of lavender oil and ten grains of ambergris will overcome the scent. — Woman's Home Companion.

FOUND LOST FORTUNE

VALUABLE VALISE GOES TO HONOLULU BY MISTAKE.

Lost in a San Francisco Hotel, It Is Recovered in the Hawaiian Capital with Contents of $50,000 Intact—Gum-Chewer's Mouth Paralyzed.

R. B. Danning, who left Honolulu Aug. 30 on the steamship Australia, lost a valise containing nearly $50,000 in bank notes, bonds and sugar stock in the Occidental Hotel, just after he arrived in San Francisco. The valise was shipped by mistake on the Nippon Maru as part of the personal effects of Purser Rives, who discovered the mistake and left the valise on the Pacific Mail wharf. He evidently had no idea of the value of the contents of the valise, as he made no report to the steamship company's agents, and the valise containing a small fortune lay comparatively unprotected among other uncalled-for packages, until advice received resulted in a search being made. The lost valise was found intact.

Passenger Trains Stalled in the Mountains on Account of the Fire.

One mile and a quarter of big snow sheds on the Central Pacific in the Sierras between Cisco and Emigrant gap burned early Wednesday morning, causing a loss of $50,000 and blocking all travel on the road for the whole day. That the fire was the work of an incendiary was shown by the fact that the Western Union wires and fire alarm to Cisco were cut.

EX-SENATOR HARLAN DEAD.

Last Survivor of Lincoln's Cabinet Passes Away in Iowa.

Ex-United States Senator James Harlan, the last survivor of President Lincoln's cabinet, passed away in Mount Pleasant, Iowa, Thursday. He had been rapidly failing for the last three months. The immediate cause of his death was congestion of the lungs. At the time of his death there were with him his daughter, Mrs. Lincoln; his nephew, James Whitford; the nurse and two or three friends.

James Harlan was elected four times to the United States Senate and served in that body sixteen years. His seat in the Senate was declared vacant in 1857, while he was serving a term ending in 1861, but he was re-elected immediately. He resigned in 1865 to accept from President Lincoln the place of Secretary of the Interior, but was again elected to the Senate in 1866 and served until 1873. He was a delegate to the peace convention in 1861 and at different times was chairman of the Senate committees on public lands, District of Columbia and Indian affairs. He was a member of the committee on foreign relations, agriculture and the Pacific Railroad. After leaving the Senate Mr. Harlan became editor of the Washington Chronicle. From 1882 until 1885 he was presiding judge of the court of commissioners of the Alabama claims. He was at one time president of the Iowa University.

Mr. Harlan was a native of Clark County, Illinois, having been born there Aug. 25, 1820. He graduated at Indiana Ashbury University in 1845 and became superintendent of public instruction in Iowa in 1847. In 1853 he became president of the Iowa Wesleyan University and was first elected to the United States Senate in 1855. Originally he belonged to the Whig party.

SLAIN AT WEDDING SUPPER.

Groom and Bride Assassinated by the Woman's Rejected Suitor.

Charles Rankin, a farmer 27 years of age, murdered Frank Walker and his wife, whom he had married but a few hours before, and then committed suicide, at the home of James Cook, nine miles east of Montgomery, Mo., on Tuesday evening. Rankin was a jealous lover of the bride, formerly Miss Goshorne.

The bride and groom sat side by side at the head of the wedding supper table. There was an uncurtained window behind them. Suddenly there was a mingled din of screams, gunshot reports and crashing glass. The bride and groom sat dead in their chairs. The onlookers, held by horror of the sight, saw a flash outside the window and heard another report. Terror stricken, the guests at the feast summoned the sheriff and a posse was formed to search for the murderer. In the yard of the house lay the murderer, dead. He had bared his foot that he might get a better hold of the trigger with his toe and had then blown his head off. He left a note explaining that he could not live without the girl, and as to kill her husband would be to make her miserable, he had decided to end the lives of both and then kill himself.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

Yale's student choir is to wear vestments. Dartmouth's new freshman class has 196 members. West Virginia University will not issue honorary degrees. Mount Holyoke College began its new year with 562 students. Japan has 30,000 schools, with 100,000 teachers and 5,000,000 pupils. Work has been commenced on the new front for the Yale Law School building. Radcliffe now offers 130 courses for women, an increase of fifteen over last year. Beginning this year no charge for tuition is to be made at the Missouri State University. During the last six years the value of the property of nineteen leading colleges has increased 37 per cent. Friends of the proposed national university hope to persuade Congress to pass their bill at the next session. Many of the students at Russian universities are mendicants who solicit alms and wear cast-off garments. The University of Pennsylvania has many students from South America and has issued a catalogue in Spanish. Bags of flour and buckets of water were emptied upon the freshmen at Lafayette by the sophomores in spite of the fact that President Warfield had requested that there be no hazing. A great deal of interest is being taken in the fortunes of the University of California and Stanford University. The respective patronesses of these institutions, Mrs. Phoebe Hearst and Mrs. Stanford, are vying with each other in bestowing gifts upon their favorites.

CORNER STONE LAID.

M'KINLEY PERFORMS IMPOSING CEREMONY AT CHICAGO.

Wields a Silver Trowel in the Exercises at the New Federal Building—Great Parade Follows—Soldiers of Three Wars in Line.

Under a bright sky, in an atmosphere of Indian summer, with flags waving and the strains of the national anthem pealing forth and viewed by throngs at windows and on roofs, the corner stone of the new Chicago Federal building was laid by the President of the United States Monday morning. President McKinley spread a trowelful of gray mortar upon the foundation stone of the great Federal structure. He received it from a shovel handled him by a hod carrier. Workmen more experienced in the art of rearing mighty buildings spread other mortar upon the base. The corner stone, white and massive in the sunlight, was lowered from a flag-entwined derrick upon the foundation stone, dropping upon and hermetically sealing the copper box containing documents and coins which may not see light for another century.

Secretary of the Treasury Gage waved his hands to the multitude. Then, as a band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and a battery on the lake front boomed the national salute 10,000 persons, standing with uncovered heads, cheered the nation's ruler and the nation's anthem.

Thousands from the windows and tops of the high buildings about—from the flag-bedecked turret of the Union League Club, the dizzy cornices of the Great Northern, the massive heights of the Monadnock building—took up the mighty refrain. These persons numbered fully 15,000. Following the example of those who had points of vantage, the tens of thousands who could not see, and had not heard a word, but held back from the proximity to the Federal building by lines of bluecoats, had patiently held their ground for hours, sent up a hoarse cheer. As the stone was falling to its bed, and inch by inch closing the sunlight from the precious box, a member of the First artillery, I. N. G., signal service, who stood in the presidential stand, wig-wagged his flag thrice. A man on a sky scraper in the vicinity wig-wagged another flag, and a third man, farther east, waved his flag. And two seconds by the stop watch after the corner stone of the new Federal building was laid the deep-toned salute of the cruiser Michigan and Battery D echoed from the lake front and mingled with the acclamations of the populace.

When silence reigned again Secretary Gage, white-haired and distinguished, stood over the huge block of Illinois limestone and said, with dignified emphasis: "I now pronounce the laying of the corner stone complete, and ask Rev. Frank Gunsaulus to ask God's blessing." And the thousands and the tens of thousands bowed their heads as Rev. Gunsaulus called upon the supreme being to hold the great structure-to-be in his keeping.

The trowel was an insignia of holiday Chicago. With the deft turn of the President's wrist and the falling of the wet mortar upon the stone was completed that little act about which all other acts, great or small, of the fall festival centered. With the laying of the corner stone at the southeast corner of the structure which is to be Chicago's magnificent postoffice—the most imposing building in all this city of giant structures—the climax of a week's festivities had been reached. Eloquence from jurists, statesmen and divines, the presence of the premiers of three great governments, and the representatives of a dozen other nations made the occasion one calculated to clinch the memory of every spectator.

LED BY THE PRESIDENT.

Grand Civic and Military Pageant Follows Nation's Chief.

The ceremonies attending the laying of the corner stone of Chicago's new post-office building were followed in the afternoon by a pageant which surpassed all similar civic and military displays in the history of the city. It was viewed by thousands who formed two compact walls of humanity miles in length. There were no threatening skies to mar or conceal the lavish decorations of the Court of Honor or to dampen the patriotic ardor of the hosts of people. Veterans of three wars received their proper measure of applause. Gray beards of the Mexican war and the aged warriors of the civil conflict heard echoes of the bugle, life and drum which fired their heroism at Buena Vista, Gettysburg, Vicksburg and Richmond; the veterans of the strife yet fresh in memory still showed the scars of battle, while scores of semi-military and civic organizations gave additional weight to the significance of the parade. The distinguished visitors from Canada, Mexico and from this country all received and were made to realize that Chicago has a heart in proportion to its size.

President McKinley's appearance along the line of march was attended by a continuous wave of applause, while with bared head he bowed to the throngs. From the appointed place through the maze of downtown streets to the reviewing stand the President looked into a sea of faces.

Vice-President Mariscal of Mexico, surrounded by a cavalcade of horsemen in brilliant colors; Sir Wilfred Laurier, premier of Canada, escorted by another cavalry guard; distinguished generals of the American army in their sashes and regimentals, members of the President's cabinet in severe black, and scores of other distinguished guests were paid for their visit to the city by the greetings given them. The concourse of people which witnessed this military pageant was doubtless one of the largest gatherings in the history of the city. The color everywhere, the bright, clear sky, the soldiers passing by and the presence of high dignitaries of this and other governments all combined to make the military parade a success beyond all sanguine expectations.

Cadets Walter and Koontz W. of Culver are members of the C. M. A. Band again. The band has now about 18 members, and can be truthfully called an up-to-date musical organization. Capt. Wilson, the musical instructor, spares no pains in order to advance the boys in music as fast as possible, and already there is that harmony which excellent training alone can give.

Last Saturday afternoon the opening foot ball game of the season was played upon the home ground between Lafayette High School and C. M. A.'s team. The visitors arrived upon the 8:12 train and spent the fore part of the day in preparing themselves for the contest. Shortly after three o'clock the goal started by Lafayette kicking off to Culver and in 30 seconds after the ball was in play, Bauman succeeded in making a touchdown, but goal was missed. Score 5-0. C. M. A.'s favor. Lafayette again kicks off to Culver. C. M. A. loses the ball on downs, but Vories steals it from Lafayette, and Bauman takes the pig-skin over the line for the second touch-down, and then kicks goal. Score 11-0 C. M. A.'s favor. After the third kick-off by Lafayette, the ball was pushed back and forth for a few minutes, when Bauman made his third touch-down. No goal. Score C. M. A. 16-Lafayette 0.

Shortly after the fourth kick-off, Bigwood received an injury to his ankle, which compelled him to leave the game, Cochran taking his place. After about five minutes playing Bauman makes his fourth touch-down. No goal. Score 21 in our favor. Lafayette again kicks off, and Cochran takes the pig-skin over the line for another touch-down. Goal is kicked. Score 27-0. Culver's favor.

Lafayette kicks off and Vories makes a touch-down after a long run. Goal is kicked. Score C. M. A. 33-Lafayette 0.

After the kick-off, Bauman again takes it over the line for his fifth touch-down. C. M. A. kicks goal. Score 39-0. our favor.

The half ended after a hard tussle in which C. M. A. had the advantage.

In the second half, Jackson W. took Stifels's place, on account of an injury to the latter.

This half was a repetition of the first half on a small scale. Bauman made two more touch-downs and a goal making the score 50-0. C. M. A.'s favor.

After considerable hard playing Cochran succeeded in making another touch-down and a goal, the last to be made in the game. Final score 56-0. C. M. A.'s favor.

It was a clear case of one team outclassing another team supposed to be in its class.

Anderson, Captain of C. M. A. team, was unable to play on account of a "jame knee."

The next game will be with West Division High School, Chicago, on the home grounds next Saturday afternoon.

THE ROUNDER.

What He Sees, Hears and Thinks About It. All Told in His Own Way.

THE ROUNDER learns that not a thousand miles from Culver, a boy recently died. It is said that a dog in the streets suffering with the agonies of hydrophobia would have received more mercy, for he would have been disposed of and thus put out of his misery. But in the case of the boy, who was a helpless cripple, his spine being injured it is said at the hands of a brutal father, when but 9 or 10 years of age, suffered a lingering death, until about 16 years of age, when the God of the universe called him home. It is reported upon good authority that this helpless boy was caged up in a 2x4 room where he was compelled to practically cook his own meals, build his own fires and otherwise wait upon himself, although he had to drag himself over the floor by his hands. It is also stated that when death came to his relief, and the father was notified of his death, he ate his noon-day meal before attending to his son. In fact, if all statements are true, tongue cannot express the horrors this poor boy passed through at the hands of a heartless father and an inhuman step-mother, who should be punished to the fullest extent of the law, and the ROUNDER has his opinion of the people who live in that neighborhood, for allowing this poor boy to suffer all these years without interference.

THE ROUNDER thinks that if there is a Grand Jury in Starke county, it should be notified of this inhuman affair, so it can sift the matter to the bottom and bring the guilty wretches to justice. That such brutish proceedings should be tolerated in a civilized county and community, is something the ROUNDER does not understand.

THE ROUNDER learns that there are men in this town who refuse to donate anything toward securing the clock for the new M. E. church. This is all wrong. Every man who has interest in the progression of Culver at heart, should donate so far as his means will allow toward its development. This is an enterprise that every citizen should encourage and feel proud of, hence awake and tender your mite.

THE ROUNDER has lived in this world a long time, and the longer he lives the more he finds out. He finds people whom he can denominate in two classes: First: Those whose whole aim in life is to elevate and better the condition of humanity.

Second: There are those who are habitual liars, and there is nothing left undons by these leeches of society, wherebv they can injure the reputation of their neighbors—and BETTERS. These liars can be found in droves, or closely congregated together, and one will lie and the other swear to it. Every community is possessed of just such characters, whose lies have severed friendships and debauched the innocent.

REST ON THEIR ARMS.

BRITISH AND BOER TROOPS READY FOR WAR.

Complete Campaign Plan Between Transvaal and Orange Free State Reported—No One Able to Explain England's Hesitancy in Striking.

A Berlin dispatch says it is understood there that before the beginning of hostilities against the Transvaal Great Britain will send a circular to the powers explaining her motives and objects in going to war with the Boers. Dispatches from Pretoria say that a complete plan of campaign has been arranged between the Transvaal and the Orange Free State. Tuesday the British and Boer forces were believed to be about thirty miles apart.

Preparations for war are going on very rapidly at the time this is written, but without any startling features. Reports say that the Transvaal will have nine generals in command of columns. Gen. Jan Kock is to command on the Natal border. Commandant Cronje on the southwestern. Gen. Schalkburger on the eastern frontier and Gen. Malan at Rustenburg. Over all press telegrams the Boer Government is maintaining a severe censorship. Great excitement prevailed Tuesday at Cape Town, where it was reported that the Boers had occupied Laing's Nek.

SOUTH AFRICAN REPUBLIC FLAG.

There is nothing to soften the war spirit of recent dispatches. Neither is there anything to show that the authorities at Pretoria have any desire to come to terms peacefully with Great Britain. Had the Boers not determined to fight it out or if they were not prepared for hostilities they would, it is thought, have sent some pacificatory answer to Great Britain's message. It is said that the colonial office received an important dispatch from Sir Alfred Milner, British high commissioner for South Africa, Monday, the contents of which, however, were not made public.

The London Daily Chronicle says that it has reason to believe that the mobilization of a naval brigade is contemplated. A statement that Dr. Jim Jameson has been seen in Matabeleland raising a corps to defend Rhodesia is published without comment. The Post says: "What are we waiting for? is the question every one is asking, but cannot answer." The Chronicle says: "It is on all hands admitted that from a military point of view the Boers are and must for a long time remain masters of the situation." The Standard says: "The situation is full of danger, and no one will be surprised to hear all further talk of peace rendered futile by a collision between the Boers and the imperial troops, or by some hasty raid across the frontier."

An advertisement appeared in London Tuesday morning announcing the formation of a corps of rough riders, patterned after Roosevelt's rough riders, for service in South Africa.

Advices from Charlestown, Natal, via Cape Town, say that eighty members of the Orange Free State Artillery, with six guns, have arrived at Volksrust, in the Transvaal, near the Natal border. The officials at Charlestown have received instructions from the colonial secretary to remain absolutely still and offer no resistance. No women have been left in Volksrust, and the natives are leaving Charlestown. Gen. Joubert, the vice-president of the South African republic and commander-in-chief of the Transvaal forces, arrived at Volksrust Monday.

It is believed that the following crushing demands on the Transvaal were decided upon at the British cabinet meeting: Indemnity to Great Britain for the cost of sending out troops to South Africa; the dismantling of the Boer forts; the suppression of the Leyds legation in Europe; the independence of the judiciary; the equality of the English and Dutch languages in the Volksraad, and the complete admission of British suzerainty. The feeling in London Monday was that nothing short of a miracle could prevent war.

REPULSE REBELS AT BACOOR.

American Troops, Under Fred Grant, Inflict Heavy Loss.

The Filipino insurgents made an attack on Bacoor Monday and an all-day fight ensued. The American troops were commanded by Gen. Fred Grant, who conducted operations in person on the firing line. The Filipinos were finally repulsed with heavy loss. The American loss was two killed and eight wounded. The insurgents opened the fight at 8:30 in the morning by cutting the wires between Bacoor and Imus and then ambushing a signal patrol of eight men.

A signal sergeant was killed and two other Americans wounded. The little party of Americans was soon re-enforced by a company of the Fourteenth infantry and several companies of the Fourth, who fought their way along the road from Imus. The fighting continued until evening, when the insurgents cut the wires between Bacoor and Manila.

WARSHIPS ASSIGNED TO MANILA.

President Acts on Dewey's Advice to Strengthen the Fleet.

By the advice of Admiral Dewey the cruiser Brooklyn, the gunboats Marietta and Machias and several other war vessels are being prepared for a trip to the Philippines to augment the naval forces already there. Admiral Dewey is said to have strongly urged a much larger and more important fleet for the Philippines, contending that it was necessary to make the blockade of the islands more effective. He favors an aggressive land campaign, and believes that this, with a vigorous blockade, to cut off the supplies that have been regularly smuggled to the Filipinos, will shortly reduce them to submission, as the only alternative of starvation. In addition to the vessels now being made ready for the journey, the cruisers New Orleans and Albany, the Monocacy and the gunboat Nashville may be sent.

Acting Secretary Allen telegraphed orders to the cruiser Nashville, at San Domingo, Thursday, to proceed to San Juan, P. R., and coal with all dispatch, and then proceed to Gibraltar on her way to join Admiral Watson at Manila. At the same time orders were sent to the Brooklyn and the New Orleans to prepare to leave as soon as possible for the Philippines, via the Suez canal. Orders were also sent to San Francisco to prepare the Badger to cross the Pacific as soon as practicable. Acting Secretary Allen also telegraphed to Boston to prepare the Bancroft for sea immediately. The Machias and Marietta will also be ordered to start for Manila in the course of a week or two, and probably the Annapolis.

The orders, it is officially explained, are due to Admiral Dewey's advice that every vessel of the navy that can be spared from other duty be added to Watson's fleet, with the view of crushing out the rebellion as rapidly as possible. He thinks this can be quickly accomplished with the increased army force soon to be assembled in the Philippines, if there is sufficient naval force to secure a rigid blockade, and if there is energetic co-operation between the sea and land forces.

CONDITION OF THE TREASURY.

Decrease in the Public Debt During September of $8,400,775

The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business Sept. 30, 1899, the public debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,148,905,780, a decrease for the month of $8,400,775. This decrease is accounted for by a corresponding increase in the cash on hand. The debt is recapitulated as follows:

|--|-----------------|
| Interest bearing debt | $1,046,048,850 |
| Debt on which interest has ceased since maturity | 1,215,030 |
| Debt bearing no interest | 389,337,412 |

Total.....$1,436,601,392
This amount, however, does not include $647,965,903 in treasury notes outstanding, which are offset by an equal amount of cash on hand. The cash in the treasury is classified as follows:

| | |
|--|---------------|
| Gold | $343,002,379 |
| Silver | 499,628,449 |
| Paper | 78,678,145 |
| Bonds, deposits in national bank depositories, disbursing officers' balances, etc. | 83,932,112 |

Total.....$1,015,241,086
Against which there are demand liabilities outstanding amounting to $727,545,473, which leaves a net cash balance on hand of $287,695,612.

The comparative statement of the receipts and expenditures of the United States during the month of September shows that the total receipts were $45,334,144, and the expenditures $37,579,372, which leaves a surplus for the month of $8,754,772. The receipts from customers were $19,120,357, against $16,759,574 for September, 1898. Internal revenue, $24,364,591, against $21,555,288 for September, 1898. Miscellaneous, $1,849,194, against $1,433,207 for September, 1898.

For the last three months the receipts were $125,407,886, against $184,748,114 for the same period in 1898. The expenditures charged against the War Department during September were $10,541,515, as compared with $24,643,374 for September last year. Against the Navy Department, $4,757,853, as against $7,251,219 for September last year.

WIND FAILS YACHTS.

FIRST OF THE CUP RACES A DISAPPOINTMENT.

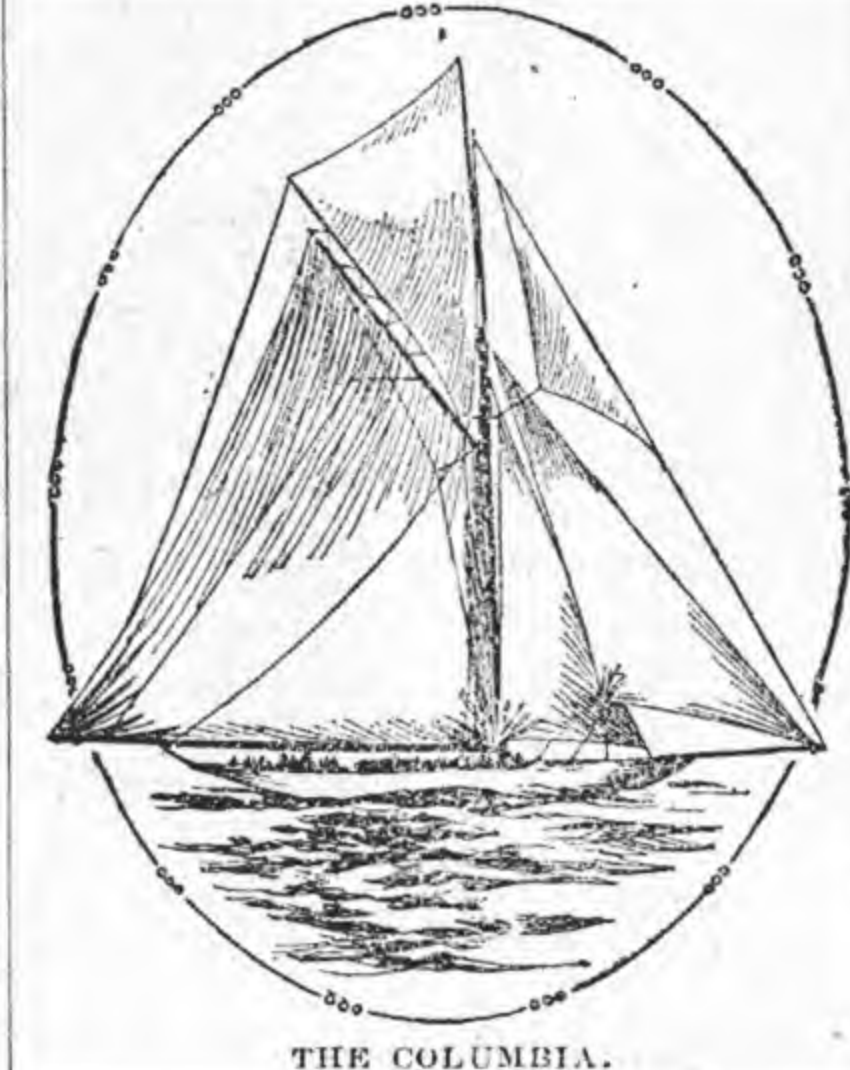

Boats Unable to Finish Within the Prescribed Time Limit—Contest Becomes Finally a Mere Drifting Match—Fluky Breezes the Cause.

A fickle wind that blew by fits and starts made a fluke of the first of the races for the America's cup between the Columbia and the Shamrock, and it left them three miles from home when the time that they had under the rules to finish the course had elapsed. For the tenth time in the history of the America's cup the British Tuesday tried to win a battered piece of silverware. Its intrinsic value is only a few hundred sovereigns, yet hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent in efforts to win it back.

Sir Thomas Lipton, a man of millions, whose boast has been that he never failed in anything he undertook, is the latest Britisher to try and win back the cup and re-establish English supremacy on the seas.

Ever since the year 1851 there has been a silver cup twenty-four inches tall and weighing 100 ounces in possession of America's yachtsmen, which Englishmen have eagerly coveted. This aged bit of metal represents the yachting championship of the world and was first won by the schooner America and subsequently defended with success by nine craft representing the flower of American yachts.

In 1871 the schooners Columbia and Sappho jointly represented this country. On all other occasions but one boat carried American colors to victory. Ten contests have been sailed, ranging over a period of forty-four years. The last series of races was sailed in 1895, when the sloop Defender beat Lord Dunsraven's cutter Valkyrie III.

The wind alone was to blame for the failure of Tuesday's yacht race, neither the Columbia nor Shamrock being able to reach the line within the five and one-half hours allotted by the rules as limit time. Everything that British or American skill could devise in the way of preparatory work was done long before the yachts were given the word to cut loose from their moorings and make sail for the Sandy Hook lightship, the starting point of the race. The course selected for Tuesday's race was a sail of fifteen miles to windward or leeward and return.

After starting almost a minute behind her rival, Columbia had overtaken, passed her, and had rounded the stakeboat two minutes ahead. On the run home, Shamrock, by fine handling and good luck, had overtaken Columbia, had gained the lead, lost it again, and gained and lost it again. When the five and a half hours, within which the rules said the boats must cover the course, had elapsed, the two were so near together that an apple could have been tossed from one to the other. A moment before this Columbia had poked her nose ahead of Shamrock. They were on almost even terms when the whistles were blown that announced the end of the time. Shamrock was perhaps a few feet, maybe a third of a length, in the lead.

Except for the failure to cover the course in the prescribed time, it was what the experts called a satisfactory race in every way. On the whole, it may be said that Columbia showed to better advantage, for on the run out over the fifteen-mile course she gained steadily, and on the beat back Shamrock had all the luck with the fickle breezes, and yet at the end was only on even terms with Columbia.

RETAINS THE ORINOCO.

Venezuela Wins the Vital Point in the Boundary Dispute.

The Venezuela boundary arbitration court, sitting in Paris, rendered its decision Tuesday. The court in effect splits the difference between the extreme claims of the parties. Venezuela retains the mouth of the Orinoco, which was the vital point of the controversy, yet the Venezuelans are already crying out that might has overcome right. On the other hand the English are very well satisfied, having obtained all they really expected.

Venezuela saves Barima Point, the boundary line starting about thirty-five miles east thereof, thus preserving the mouth of the Orinoco, besides a large tract of country within the Schomburgk line which England absolutely claimed. Great Britain on several occasions refused to consider arbitration regarding territory within the Schomburgk line. This included the right bank of the Orinoco river, the command of which gave Great Britain control of the mouth of the great river. It was this claim that especially aroused the interest of the United States. If it was acknowledged, then southeastern Venezuela in a commercial and military sense would be subjected to the control of Great Britain. This was the crux of the controversy. The retention and complete control of the Orinoco was essential to Venezuela's independence.

The decision of the tribunal, in addition to control of the Orinoco and the coast line eastward, gives Venezuela all the territory westward of the Schomburgk line, which Great Britain claimed, but was willing to submit to arbitration. In addition Venezuela gets 4,000 or 5,000 square miles in the interior eastward of the Schomburgk line in the territory that Great Britain would not originally submit to arbitration.

RESUME WAR ON FILIPINOS.

Lawton and Grant with Strong Armies Clear Trenches at Imus.

The attacks of the Filipino insurgents on the American troops in Cavite province, in which one officer and a private have been killed and eleven privates wounded, had their sequel Tuesday when Gen. Grant moved out from Imus toward Bacoor. Gen. Lawton drove the insurgents up the Imus road and crossed the river. Meanwhile three companies of the Fourth infantry advanced from an opposite direction on Imus and soon the island between Bacoor and Imus and the river banks was clear of rebels. The enemy fell back on San Francisco de Malabon and Cavite Viejo. One American officer and a private were wounded.

The scene of the operations described above is in Cavite province, between Bacoor and Imus. Bacoor is on the shore of Manila bay, southeast and across Bacoor bay from Cavite. Imus is about eight miles directly south of Bacoor. Cavite Viejo lies at the bottom of Bacoor bay, south of Cavite. San Francisco de Malabon is about eight miles south of Cavite Viejo and the same distance west of Imus.

The rebels who have been annoying Gen. Grant's forces came from the west end of Cavite province and from south of Imus. They have plainly been trying to break through the American line from Imus to Bacoor, so as to get into the country directly south of Manila and toward Laguna de Bay. The central part of Cavite province is cut up by the affluents of the Zapote, Bacoor and Canar-chite rivers, all of which fall into Manila bay east of the Cavite peninsula. The "island" spoken of is formed by the Bacoor river and a branch of its main affluent, the Tibagar, which rise in the country between Perezdasmarias and Laguna de Bay and unite about three miles south of Bacoor.

When the Americans advanced into Cavite province the rebels made their stand at the Zapote river, were routed, and fled south and west. The Americans then advanced through Bacoor and San Nicolas and Imus to Perezdasmarias. The last place was soon abandoned on account of the swampy nature of the country. The Americans did not attempt to take possession of the west end of Cavite province, and the rebels have retained posts at Novaleta, four miles southwest of Cavite Viejo, and at other points further west and south. The Americans also cleared the rebel vessels off of Laguna de Bay and have occupied Calamba, at its southwestern corner.

WAR TO BE PUSHED.

President Decides on Vigorous Campaign in Philippines.

President McKinley's policy on the Philippines was officially outlined after a conference held by him with advisers at the conclusion of the Dewey dinner at the White House Tuesday night. It is to push the war to a successful conclusion with all possible vigor, and when peace comes to submit to Congress for settlement the question of the future of the islands. This program was announced after the conference by Congressman Boutelle of Maine, chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs.

LAW AS INTERPRETED.

Notice that an unearned premium will be restored and holding the amount subject to the call of the insured is held, in Tisdell vs. New Hampshire Fire Insurance Company (N. Y.), 40 L. R. A. 765, insufficient to satisfy the obligation of an insurer to return the premium as a condition of canceling the policy.

The duty of an operator or an agent of a coal mine to employ a competent mine boss being imposed by statute is held, in Williams vs. Thacker Coal and C. Company (W. Va.), 40 L. R. A. 812, to be fully performed by the employment of such a mine boss, and for the latter's negligence the operator or agent is held not to be liable.

A "standard guaranty to maintain 80 per cent. insurance," stamped on the face of a policy of fire insurance is held in Cutler vs. Royal Insurance Company (Conn.) 41 L. R. A. 159, ineffectual to supersede a provision that the policy shall be void in case of other insurance—at least when the policy itself is for more than 80 per cent. of the value of the property.

Insurance on merchandise kept for an illegal business, such as a stock of drugs and liquors kept by a dealer who did not have the permit required by law to sell them, is upheld, in Erb vs. German-American Insurance Company (Iowa), 40 L. R. A. 845, against the claim that it was void as against public policy. With this case is a review of the authorities on this somewhat unique question of the validity of insurance on property illegally used.

As a result a union machinist was employed and now holds the position. Hess sued the Typographical Union and its members, asking $25,000 damages for the loss of his position, and also for an injunction forbidding the defendants from striking or threatening to strike or boycotting or intimidating any publisher who desired to employ him. The case was tried by a jury in Judge Daingerfield's court. The judge submitted eighteen points on which the jury was to pass, in addition to the general verdict, and a peculiar feature was that the special points were all in favor of the union, while the general verdict was against it—the jury bringing in a verdict in favor of Hess and awarding him $1,200 damages. The case has been appealed by the printers.

Wants Dem Presents Back.

A curious case will come before the Vienna law courts shortly. Some weeks ago a young doctor and a girl of 19 put an end to their lives in one of the suburban hotels of Vienna. Having no money left they bequeathed their jewelry, which they described as "imitation," and a watch and chain specified as of Abyssinian gold, to the chambermaid who waited on them. The latter, not at all delighted with this worthless and ill-omened finery, handed it over to one of her subordinates. Then followed the discovery that the trinkets, so far from being counterfeit, were genuine, and of the costliest description, their value amounting to no less than £1,000. Remorse not unnaturally overtook the original legatee, and she has entered against her friend to recover the goods or their worth on the ground that the gift was made through ignorance.—London Chronicle.
