If it is a plaid, check, or stripe in outing, we have it for you.—Vauschoiack.

Owing to a rush of job work and to the fact that we have been practically, editor, devil and compositor, we are late this week. Next week we will have a printer and here after the HERALD will hum.

Unesda, nice flanelet dress. Get the goods from us and make it.—Vauschoiack.

Mrs. Jennie Rosenburg, of Monterey, visited her sisters, Mesdames Mow and Matthew, Monday and Tuesday.

These cool evenings suggest nice night robe made from some of our beautiful outing.—Vauschoiack.

Thomas Medbourn shipped his well apparatus to Lucern Monday to drive a well for Mr. Newman.

Outings at 4½ etc. Outings at 5cts., 7cts., 10cts., and 12cts.—Vauschoiack.

Samuel Fry brought an apple to this office Monday, which weighed a pound and a half. It was of the Pound Pippin variety.

What's the matter with those fine outings for children's night dresses, at Vauschoiack's.

Ed. Goodlow left for St. Louis Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harwood, who spent the summer at "The Haws", left for Logansport Tuesday.

The gasoline engine placed by the the railroad company at Grass Creek is causing some annoyance.

David Smith and Henry Zechiel worked Tuesday afternoon on the furnace under the Reformed church. Somehow the furnace does not give the best satisfaction.

Horace Shugrue, Sumner Wiseman, Clyde Walter, and Edwin Bradley, spent Sunday in Sandusky, Ohio. They went Saturday at midnight via the Nickle Plate.

Robert Rea is home for a few day's vacation from the University of Chicago. Robert is working hard, and will do four year's work in two and a half, which is far better than most boys can do.

Frank Jones is plastering the Mose Menser house, which he will occupy as soon as finished.

We pay salary of $15 per week and expenses for man with rig to introduce our Poultry Mixture in the country. Hustlers wanted. Reference. Address with stamp American Mfg. Co., 124-126 Lafayette Ave., Terre Haute, Ind.

The enterprising town of Bremen has entirely re-organized its fair management this year, has increased the purses and premiums and will have the greatest fair in its history of successful fairs. A good string of race horses are already on the list. The dates are October, 10, 11, 12, 13, 1899.

Steamer excursion to Maxinkuckee will be for the revival meetings at the Christian church. The meetings are now in progress, conducted by Rev. J. V. Coombs and Prof. A. O. Hunsaker.

Miss Lulie Platt is in Argos. She has been visiting friends there the past 10 days.

Remember that Keen Bros. are the photographers of experience. Give them a call when you want good work.

Charles Medbourn, is home from a summer's job with the Maxinkuckee Ice Co. at South Bend.

Daniel Wolf and M.E. Garn visit friends at Paulding Ohio last Sunday.

There will be a necktie social held at Dr. Loring's office Burr Oak one week from this Saturday, commencing at 8 o'clock p. m. for the benefit of the new U. B. church. You are invited.

Capt. Morris made Logansport a visit today, Friday.

Milton Mawhorter is in town visiting his parents.

Mrs. J. K. Mawhorter is still quite sick.

The Misses Maud and Elma Gandy, of Elkhart, are in town visiting their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Meredith, who have been visiting friends in Ohio, the past two months, returned to Culver today, Friday.

P. J. Garn left at this office two 20 Ounce Pippin apples, five of which weighed six pounds. He took 40 bushels from one tree, which made 180 gallons of cider. He also brought two of the Topa Haukins variety which were very large.

The windows for the basement of the M. E. Church have arrived and are being put in.

There will be immediately following the Sunday school hour in the basement of the M. E. Church next Sunday, preachings evices.

Mrs. Bert Voreis is seriously ill at the home of her father near Burr Oak.

Mrs. Sarah Erbe and Mrs. Malinda Ickes of Michigan, Mrs. Ida Stuck of Elkhart, Ind., Mrs. Mary Bruner and husband of Paulding Ohio, are visiting their aged father Isaac Weirman at Hibbard this week. Miss Eldora Keen returned to Culver Wednesday morning after an extended visit with relatives and friends in Ohio.

Indiana crude oil has reached the highest price in many years. Several new wells have been sunk and old wells are producing rapidly and Indiana is "in the swim".

The reunion of the gallant old Ninth Indiana in Plymouth next Wednesday and Thursday will be well attended by surviving members of the regiment and other soldiers, and the camp fire and other meetings will be interesting to everybody. —Plymouth Republican.

The children's day exercises at the Reformed church was a grand success. Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Buswell are visiting friends in the Southern part of the state, and will be absent a week or 10 days.

For the next six months the nights will be longer than the days.

Fulton county fair commences next Wednesday.

L. J. Herd who represented the Logansport laundry here this summer moved his goods to Plymouth today. He has secured employment in the Novelty Works and with a large force of new men will go to work Monday morning, the novelty has gone into the hands of the bicycle trust, and expects to have a greatly augmented business. Charles Hayes will soon occupy the house vacated by Herd.

Henry Speyer made Plymouth a visit Tuesday.

Mr. Jacob Speyer returned to his home in New York City last Friday. Sheriff Marshal was in Culver Wednesday.

Homer L. Nearpass has been on the sick list all this week.

Last Sunday the last of the excursions were run to St. Joe.

Admiral Geo. Dewey is now receiving great honors from the American people at New York City.

The superintendent of the Starke county infirmary was arraigned Monday for cruelty to the inmates of the county house. An investigation will be made by the commissioners.

School commenced last Monday. The fact that there was an almost complete change in school books this year caused a general kick from patrons of schools. We shall give our readers a few brief reasons why the new law is a delusion and a snare.

Mrs. K. Edwards will return from Chicago to-day with a complete line of winter millinery, and will occupy the Shaw building. She invites all the ladies to call and examine stock and learn prices before going elsewhere.

While in Plymouth Tuesday, we called upon our old friend H. A. Deeds, whose dental parlors are located over the corner hardware, Michigan and Laporte streets. He has a suit of rooms fitted up in elegant style, and in the dental department he has all the modern improvements that go to complete a first class dental office. Mr. Deeds has had an office in Culver for several years, and during this time has won the esteem of all those who came in in contact with him, and who are thoroughly conversant of the fact that he is unexcelled at his business. We would especially urge you to call upon the doctor when in Plymouth, who will give you a cordial welcome. Read his notice in another column.

Fatal Accident Near Inwood.

Milo Johnson accidentally shot himself while hunting in the woods four miles northeast of Inwood Sunday. In company with two of his children he went into the woods to kill a squirrel for his brother-in-law who was sick. He shot a squirrel, stunning, but not killing it, and it started to come down the tree. Johnson quickly reloaded the gun and commenced to club his game with the butt of the gun, when the load was discharged striking his heart and resulting in instant death. He leaves a wife and five children in very moderate circumstances. —Argos Reflector.

Workmen Read.

A citizen left us the following: If a merchant should deal in liquors, he could say to his customers:

Notice is hereby given that if you will come in my store three times a day during the next year and purchase a drink of whisky each time, paying me ten cents a drink at the end of the year I will donate, for the benefit of your family:

- 5 barrels of my best flour.
- 100 pounds fine granulated sugar.
- 100 pounds rice.
- 10 pounds coffee.
- 10 gallons syrup.
- 5 yards calico.
- 3 pair shoes.
- 1 $10.50 cloak for your wife.
- And then I will have $20 left to pay for the liquor you drank.
- Any other grocer can afford to do the same thing. —Exchange.

CULVER MILITARY ACADEMY.

Items of Interest Compiled by Our Special Reporter.

Cadet Hollbrock of VanWert, Ohio, has been granted a leave of absence on account of sickness.

The new cadets are making rapid progress in the drill. Many of them will probably be issued rifles during the coming week.

Cadets are looking forward with much interest to the first game of the foot ball season. The goal posts are up, the field marked off and it begins to look like business. Quite a number of last year's team are back and there seems to be some promising material to fill the vacancies from. Cadet Anderson B has been laid off the team for a day or so with a game knee, but we understand he is about all right again. Several scrub teams are out for practice every day, showing a general interest in the game which is a good indication, as it will probably bring out good material that might not otherwise have developed.

This is a record breaking year for the cavalry department. About seventy cadets are already enrolled and Captain Floyd reports among them some very excellent material.

There are up to date about one hundred of the old boys back. In fact about all of them who could come back did so.

The new chemical and physical laboratories are about finished, the fittings are up-to-date and very complete, and when the new apparatus which has been ordered is in place the academy will have an equipment for these studies that will be hard to beat.

We understand that Captain Eisenhard, the head of the science department, has been making some interesting collections of the plant and animal life about the lake. The Captain is so enthusiastic and makes the studies under him so novel and interesting that the boys pronounce him "just fine" as a teacher.

A dark room for the cadet amateur photographers is about completed, it is made with a dark and winding passage way at the entrance so that any one may enter or leave the room without admitting the disastrous white light. It is also fitted with red lanterns lighted by electricity and facilities for washing and drying plates.

Cadet Tressler, who resigned from the academy to enlist in the volunteer army during the Spanish-American war, is again this year a cadet.

Much attention is being paid to the setting up drill this year, and we understand that the general set up of the battalion is to be brought to a standard this year that cannot be excelled.

The new officers of the academy this year are: Captains Blackford and Wood, graduates of the Virginia Military Institute, both detailed as tactical officers, Captain Wood being also in charge of indoor athletics, Captain Brookings, a graduate of Brown University, who takes Captain Campbell's place; Captain Eisenhard, in charge of science department and of whom we have spoken elsewhere and Captain Forest, graduate of the University of Michigan, and of considerable athletic fame, having been a distinguished member of both the 'Varsity foot ball team and 'Varsity crew.

A Word to Mothers.

Mothers of children affected with croup or a severe cold need not hesitate to administer Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It contains no opiate nor narcotic in any form and may be given as confidently to babe as to an adult. The great success that has attended its use in the treatment of colds and croup has won for it the approval and praise it has received throughout the United States and in many foreign lands. For sale by T. E. Slattery, druggist.

A fine line of outings just in at Vauschoiack's.

THE SONG AND THE SINGER.

The world loves cheridly—
His honey, not the bee,
Its fruit and not the tree,
The blossom, not the ground,
The truth, not him who found,
The light, and not the bringer,
The song and not the singer.

We are but instruments,
The strings attuned and terse,
Whereon the hand of Time
Strikes some few notes sublime
And so the music prove
A thing for men to love,
What matter whence it came
Or what the singer's name—

HOPE.

BY JENNY WREN.

If there is a time trying to house-keepers, it is the period called house-cleaning.

Farmer Gray's wife was no exception—good, motherly soul that she was. She was up with the lark day after day, and gave little rest to those working under her supervision. But as paint which never showed signs of soil shone with new gloss, and even the possibility of dust was removed from where no trace of dust could be found, her eyes brightened, and a happy thought would go flitting through her brain.

"It will be all over, and everything ready, before Reuben comes home."

Reuben was her pride—the boy who, utterly regardless of the clean, sanded floors, would walk boldly in where no other foot dared tread, leaving his imprint in mud to mark his course—the boy for whose future she had woven such wonderful air castles.

He must be a lawyer, a great man, one whose name she should some day see in the public prints. This seemed to her the very height of ambition.

Reuben was coming home—a college graduate—to spend with them his vacation, and then back to the busy town to earn fame. Was it any wonder the floors, the walls, the ceilings, must give evidence of their mute delight?

Trudging along at a slow jog-trot, occasionally speaking a word of encouragement to the tired mare, Farmer Gray was nearing home. But a troubled look rested on his face, very different from the bright cheeriness generally found there, and ever and anon his eyes wandered stealthily to a little figure perched on a high seat.

"One could see only the face—a pinched, worn little face, from which two great brown eyes peered out, and seemed to take in every blade of grass by the roadside, every leaf upon the trees, as some wonderful heaven-sent vision accorded her.

"You mustn't mind, my dear, if Mrs. Gray seems a little put out like when she first sees you. It's house cleaning time, and she don't much like strangers botherin' her; but she'll soon find out you won't be in the way, and when she sees the roses comin' back to your cheeks she'll be happy enough. Only don't worry her if at first she's a wee bit flustered."

"Oh, I'm so sorry you brought me, if she won't like it!" answered the child—for child she seemed, sitting there, though seventeen summers had passed over her head.

"There, there, now! She will like it, I tell you; and when she once sees you, and feels sorry for you, you'll find how kind and good she is," said the farmer, striving, with the remembrance of duty done, to reassure his sinking heart, as he came in sight of his own pasture land.

He had gone, bright and early, that morning, into the doctor's office, to tell his old friend of the honors his boy had won, and that soon Reuben was coming back to them; and after giving him a few words and a warm hand shake of congratulations, the doctor had added:

"I was thinking of you, wishing for you, as you entered. There is a little girl here who is dying for the want of pure country air and a little nursing in the way of food. She needs plenty of milk and liberty to roam all day in the fields. Take her back with you; it will be the making of her. And tell Mrs. Gray I sent her, and am coming down soon to see how she is getting along."

"It's house cleanin'," answered the farmer, and a world of meaning was in the short sentence.

Both men looked grave; but the doctor spoke again:

"We can't let the girl die if it is. I tell you, Gray, she is starving for country air, for green fields, and the music of the birds. Let her go. Mrs. Gray won't turn her out."

So it was decided; but Farmer Gray's "Whoa!" rang out a little less loud than usual, as he reined up the old horse at his own door; but the quick housewife's ears caught it, and it brought her speedily to the door, to bid him welcome, and see if his boots were fit to tread her spotless floors. The tracking then with mud must be left for Reuben. Poor Mrs. Gray! She was hot and tired, though she would not have acknowledged it. Her feet were weary, for all day they had borne her weight.

"What have you got there, Seth?"

and sharp. "Company, I declare, and it's house cleaning!"

Then, as the farmer tenderly lifted down the girl in his strong arms, she continued:

"A child, I declare! Well, all I can say, Seth Gray—you must stay at home and take care of her!"

She turned away, forgetting, in her indignation, even her doors.

"Never you mind," said the farmer, as he noticed two great tears swimming in the large brown eyes, and trembling, ready to fall, on the jetty lashes, while the delicate mouth quivered. "It's just her way. She don't mean it. Come now, dear—"

"You'd better show her to the spare room," interrupted the shrill tones again, as they entered.

Then, as her husband returned alone from his errand, his wife's wrath broke its bounds.

"Are you mad, Seth Gray, to put any more care on my shoulders at this time? You can take another ride to town to-morrow and take the child back where she came from. My hands are full enough."

"The doctor said we could save her life, mother. I thought we wouldn't let her die for the want of trying."

Mrs. Gray said no more, but that evening, when she was washing her favorite china with her own hands, and a little figure, stealing up beside her, whispered, "Let me help you," though she answered, "Such as you cannot help," all remonstrance ended there, and soon the little fingers were deftly wiping the smoking dishes, and, with careful haste, putting each in its appointed place.

Somehow, as the days wore on, Mrs. Gray found she had more time to sit and rest—that instead of added care, it seemed lessened; while a little fairy-like figure flitted here and there and everywhere, like a burst of sunshine.

House cleaning was over now; her voice had lost its harshness, her brow its frown; and as Hope, who had rushed to her own room at the sound of wheels, watched her from a window open her motherly arms to welcome her boy, saw her happy tear-dimmed eyes, the girl wondered how she could first have regarded the woman with such dread.

Hope's own eyes did not seem so big now; a faint peach bloom had stolen into her cheeks; her figure had lost its angular lines in rounded curves, and all day a thanksgiving seemed to come bubbling to her lips in song.

"Why, who's that, mother?" questioned the tall, handsome young man, as he turned his laughing blue eyes out through the open window and saw the little figure among the flowers.

"She's a child father brought me home in house cleaning. I wasn't overglad to see her, but I think I'll miss her when she goes."

An amused smile overspread the listener's face. He could appreciate that welcome at so inopportune a season as house cleaning time.

Reuben wondered, as the days lengthened into weeks, why his home-coming had never been so pleasant before.

He, too, began to think he would miss Hope when she went away. Somehow the parlor had lost its look of stiffness, and even had an air of habitation, with its fresh flowers in every available receptacle.

"Well, I guess we have done all we can for Hope," said the farmer, one day. "Poor child! she's an orphan, and will have to win her daily bread. But she's got back some of her strength, and the color has found its way back to her face again; and you must be tired of havin' the care of her"—this with a quizzical expression, while he narrowly watched his wife's face.

"You'll do no such thing, Seth Gray! Just like a man—when the girl's beginning to pick up, to whisk her off to the hot town again! She's learned my ways now, and she's not much in the way. Besides, she's company for Reuben."

So it seemed, as out to the queer-roofed arbor they sat side by side, she listening, with downcast eyes, and a happy, tearful smile, while he told her how different his home had seemed since she had entered it, and how, in solving the enigma, he had discovered his love for her.

"But what will mother say?" asked the sweet voice—for, since Reuben came, she had learned to say "mother," too. "She has such great and wonderful dreams for your future, and thinks that somewhere some princess, clad in shining robes, is waiting for you."

"I have found my princess, Hope!" he answered, placing his arm about her. "She is here, and her soul is clothed in such beauty—such glory shines through its windows (your eyes)—that she needs no outward embellishment! Only say you love me, darling, and I have no fear but that the mother who has ever smiled upon my boyish folly will not frown upon the first wisdom of my manhood."

So hand in hand, as the sun was sinking in magnificence, they entered the house together, and he led the shrinking girl to his mother's side.

"We have come to ask your blessing, mother," said Reuben, in his honest, manly tone. "Hope has made me very happy by promising to be my wife."

In mute bewilderment Mrs. Gray looked at them both, a sense of her own folly smiting her as with a sharp sword, and bringing with a crash all her castles to the ground.

But she looked from the calm, resolute face of her son to the sweet, fair girl whose hand lay in his, and drawing Hope down, she kissed the young red lips, and uttered no word of her disappointment.

Farmer Gray heard the news with a shake of the head and a twinkle of the eyes, as much as to say he had predicted it from the first.

But when the good doctor came later to tell them that they had not, as they had supposed, given their son a dowryless bride, but that he, her guardian, represented a snug little fortune for her—though, in his proud love and young ambition, Reuben would almost have wished it otherwise—as the farmer whispered to his wife, "Blessings in disguise sometimes come even in house cleanin', my dear," the last frown left her still comely face, and there is no one in the world so dear to her as Hope, her son's wife, and the little children whose feet bring dust or dirt, without reproach, upon the still spotless floor.

A DIABOLICAL WEAPON.

It is Said that It Originated in Japanese Ingenuity.

"I have handled a good many outlandish weapons," said a New Orleans curio dealer, "but here is a little instrument that for pure diabolism beats anything I ever saw in my life. I bought it the other day from a Norwegian sailor, who tells me it was given to him by a Jap at Yokohama—a story that you may take for what it is worth."

As he spoke he opened a show case and took out what seemed to be an ordinary Chinese marking brush, of rather large size. The handle was some ten inches long and the diameter of a lead pencil. By giving it a sharp twist it separated about a hair's breadth from the end, after the manner of a sword cane, and attached to the smaller piece was a slender rod with a needle point. The rod was not much bigger than a knitting needle, and with the handle it had the effect of a very small and delicate stiletto.

"I should think that would break if it were used to stab with," remarked a visitor after examining the contrivance.

"Certainly it would," replied the dealer, "and that is where the fiendishness of the thing comes in. Look closely at the glass rod and you will see a tiny groove filed around it about two inches from the hilt. Suppose that it was driven into the body of a man, it would be certain to break at the groove and would leave at least three inches of glass buried in his vitals. The puncture would be so small that it would close when the stump was drawn out, and I doubt exceedingly whether a single drop of blood would follow. In other words, the victim could receive his death blow without knowing exactly what had happened to him. He would feel a shock and a pang, but find no wound, and meanwhile the assassin would stick his brush together and go about his business. The same idea might be applied to stylographic pens."

A Cuckoo Caught in the Act.

Everybody has read in the natural history books how the ungrateful young cuckoo makes room in its foster mother's nest by evicting the rightful occupants, hatched and unhatched. As, however, few people have had the good fortune to see a young cuckoo, it has been rather difficult to understand exactly how the ingrate managed to turn out eggs and squabs. A patient naturalist, John Craig, has now solved the mystery, and in "The Feathered World" there are two photos, taken under his auspices, of a young cuckoo in the very act of murdering a step brother. When the outline of the young cuckoo in the two pictures is once grasped, one can see how well suited for its fell purpose is the position it takes up. Head well down, legs wide apart gripping either side of the nest, wings outstretched to prevent any slipping back sideways, the unfortunate victim well poised on its broad back, the curious depression in which serves to steady it—the attitude is perfect for accomplishing the final act in the curious tragedy of nature by which a cuckoo is reared at the expense of the family of its foster parents.—London Chronicle.

Chiropodists in the British Army.

A most important addition to the English army within the last few months are the chiropodists, one member of which craft has been attached to every regiment of foot. At last summer's manoeuvres in Salisbury Plain it was found that footsoreness deprived the regiments of more men than any kind of ailment. Now when Tommy has a corn or a bunion it is promptly removed and even they who are afflicted with the "flat-foot" are cured. Moreover, the men are being instructed in the care of their feet, how to harden them and to prevent blisters, and finally the chiropodists have been responsible for a change in the shape of the service shoe, which, while quite as "smart" as it was before is now much better adapted to the hard work of marching.

DE GALLIFET TO ARMY.

French War Minister Declares Dreyfus Incident Is Closed.

A general order has been issued by Gen. de Gallifet, the French minister of war, regarding the Dreyfus case, which reads in part as follows:

"The incident is closed. The military judges, who enjoyed the respect of all, pronounced the sentence in perfect independence. All of us, without harboring an afterthought, bowed to the decision. We shall equally accept the act which a feeling of deep pity dictated to the president. There can no longer exist the idea of reprisals of any kind, hence I repeat the incident is closed."

The Paris Official Journal publishes President Loubet's decree for the pardon of Dreyfus. It also prints the official report of Gen. de Gallifet, minister of war, suggesting that Dreyfus be released. Gen. de Gallifet points out that, though it is the first duty of the Government to insure respect for decisions of justice, yet the general wish of the country for pacification makes it necessary that there should be an immediate end of the painful conflict. Moreover, Gen. de Gallifet declares the serious condition of the prisoner's health must be considered, as he is not in a fit condition to stand further imprisonment. The long imprisonment on Devil's Island, Gen. de Gallifet urges, should also be taken into consideration. Besides, there are higher political reasons for the course he suggests, and the court martial itself has plainly indicated its wish that the carrying out of the sentence should be tempered with mercy.

FILIPINOS DITCH A TRAIN.

Two Americans Are Killed—Gen. Otis' Plan Fails.

A party of Filipino insurgents ditched a railroad train a mile and a half south of Angeles Friday morning and then opened fire upon the derailed cars from a bamboo thicket close to the track. Two Americans were killed and five others wounded. Lieut. Lome and five of his scouts, who were on the train, made a vigorous defense and caused the enemy to flee. Six dead rebels were afterward found in the thicket from which the rebel fire came. Gen. Wheaton, with six companies, proceeded from Callet to the relief of the train, but his services were not needed.

Word has reached the War Department showing that Gen. Otis has sought to imitate the policy employed in Cuba of buying Filipino arms, and that his efforts have been unsuccessful. The natives were given to understand that upon the surrender of a gun the military authorities would pay the person surrendering it $10 and guarantee him immunity from arrest for previous armed opposition to the United States and protection for the future. Notwithstanding this tempting offer not one bona fide surrender of a gun is reported.

A dispatch from Manila Thursday contained the information that the Fifty-first Iowa volunteers had sailed for the United States on the transport Senator.

BULL FIGHT TURNS TO RIOT.

Disappointed Mexican Spectators Become Enraged.

Failure on the part of the manager of a Campeche, Mexico, bull fight to fulfill his promises resulted in a general riot, during which many persons were badly injured. The manager had advertised fights with six fierce bulls and Spanish picadors were billed to perform the highest feats of the profession, including somersaults over the backs of the most savage animals that could be procured. Instead of the ferocious beasts, six tame bulls were introduced, and the animals ran away from the center of the ring when the fighters approached them. This enraged the spectators to a degree of frenzy. They tore down the seats and the very ring itself, assaulting the performers and the manager, who, it is claimed, was seeking flight with the proceeds of the tickets sold.

Several newspapers have given Secretary Elihu Root the initial "B," which does not belong in his name.

Henry W. Corbett, United States Senator from Oregon, went to New York in 1844 and worked in a store in Catherine street for $3.50 a week. He slept under the counter, swept the store, and saved a dollar a week.

Congressman-elect Gordon of Ohio, who succeeds Mr. Marshall of that State, has the unique distinction of coming from a district that never sent a Republican to Congress.

A special effort is to be made in next year's census to expedite its completion. In the last two censuses (those of 1880 and 1890) the publication of the results occupied from five to seven years. In the act providing for the census of 1900 Congress provided that the four principal reports—those on population, mortality, manufacture and agriculture—must be published by July 1, 1902.

At the special election in Rhode Island in June to decide the question of the acceptance or rejection of the amended State constitution the vote, as officially canvassed, was as follows: In favor of the new constitution, 4,697; against, 12,742 votes. The total vote of the State was less than 17,000 on the amendments, though in the presidential election of 1896 Rhode Island cast nearly 55,000 votes.

ELECTIONS THIS FALL.

State Officers and Legislators to Be Voted For in Twelve States.

Although this is an "off year" politically, several State elections to be held in November are of interest. They will occur on Tuesday, Nov. 7.

Iowa will choose Governor, Lieutenant Governor, judge of the Supreme Court, superintendent of instruction and railroad commissioner, also members of the Legislature. For State officers there are five regularly nominated tickets in the field—Democratic, Republican, Populist, Prohibition and United Christian.

Kentucky will elect Governor and seven other State officers and Legislature, and the canvass is being aggressively waged, especially because of the nomination of an independent Democratic ticket, headed by John Young Brown for Governor, against the regular party ticket, headed by William Goebel. There are four other tickets for State officers—Republican, Populist, Prohibition and Socialist-Labor.

Maryland will elect Governor, Attorney General, Comptroller and Legislature, and vote upon a proposed amendment to the constitution of the State. For State officers there are five tickets in the field—Democratic, Republican, Prohibition, Social Democratic and Union Reform.

Massachusetts will elect Governor and five other State officers and Legislature. Only one ticket has yet been nominated, that of the Social Democrats.

Mississippi will elect Governor and nine other State officers and Legislature. For the State officers there are two tickets in the field—Democratic and Populist. The people of Mississippi will also vote upon a proposed amendment to the State constitution. The Legislature will choose a United States Senator to fill out the term, ending March 4, 1901, of Edward C. Walthall, Democrat, deceased, whose seat is occupied temporarily by William Van Amberg Sullivan, Democrat, by appointment of the Governor.

Nebraska will elect judge of the Supreme Court and two regents of the State University. For these the Democrats, Populists and silver Republicans have nominated a fusion ticket. The Republicans are to nominate Sept. 21.

New Jersey will elect part of its Legislature.

New York will elect the members of the Assembly and vote upon four proposed amendments to the constitution of the State.

Ohio will elect Governor and six other State officers and Legislature. For the State officers there are four tickets in the field—Democratic, Republican, Prohibition and Union Reform.

Pennsylvania will elect State Treasurer, justice of the Supreme Court and judge of the Superior Court. There are four tickets in the field—Democratic, Republican, Populist and Prohibition.

South Dakota will elect Chief Justice and two associate justices, for which thus far the Republicans alone have made nominations.

Virginia will elect a Legislature which will choose a United States Senator to succeed Thomas S. Martin, Democrat, whose term will expire March 4, 1901.

AGED CASHIER IS ATTACKED;

Murderously Assaulted in a Palatine, Ill., Bank by Supposed Robber.

Cashier Fred J. Elbert of Charles H. Patten's bank at Palatine, Ill., was beaten with a hammer in the hands of a man whose purpose is thought to have been robbery, Wednesday afternoon. The assault occurred in the bank. Elbert's skull was crushed by two blows. The assailant, who claims his name is Walter Lawton and is 32 years of age, was prevented from carrying out his supposed plan to rob the bank by Henry Plagge, an aged farmer, who entered the place immediately after the cashier's bleeding body had been thrown under a desk. Lawton struck him on the head with the hammer repeatedly, but the aged man fought for his life. Plagge wrenched the hammer from his antagonist's hand and the stranger then drew a revolver. In the struggle between the two men for this weapon it was discharged and Lawton was shot in the abdomen.

Lawton was then seized by townspeople who had heard the sounds of the struggle and the cries of the wounded man. He told the village authorities that he had come to take the life of the bank cashier because he had broken up his (Lawton's) home in New York five years ago. The townspeople do not believe this story, as it is well known that Mr. Elbert has not been in New York within twenty-five years. Lawton was taken to a Chicago hospital, being hastened out of the village by the authorities on account of the threats of summary punishment made by enraged citizens, and there he died.

DEWEY'S HOT WORDS.

Told German Admiral We Were Ready to Fight the World.

In a letter from Nice to the Chicago Record, Jos. L. Stickney gives Admiral Dewey's account of the incident with Admiral Von Diederichs in Manila bay. Admiral Dewey is quoted as saying:

"Admiral Von Diederichs sent his flag lieutenant to me with a list of complaints that he wished to make against the way I treated the ships under his command. They had exhausted my patience. I had been forbearing in the extreme, and this protest of complaint was too much. The German officer who brought the message was on the afterdeck, and when I read it I stepped to the door of my cabin. He came to meet me and stood in the doorway. As nearly as I can remember my exact words were: 'What is it you want? Do you want war? You know what that means. If you do you can have it in five minutes. We are a peaceable people, but we have got into a fight now and we are ready to go on. If necessary we are ready to fight the world. You may tell Admiral Diederichs that I am blockading this bay, and that I shall take such steps as are the right and the duty of the blockading officer.'"

SUFFERED 25 YEARS

Congressman Botkin, of Winfield, Kansas.

In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman, Congressman Botkin says:
 "My Dear Doctor—It gives me pleasure to certify to the excellent curative qualities of your medicines—Per-na and Man-in. I have been afflicted more or less for a quarter of a century with catarrh of the stomach and constipation. A residence in Washington has increased these troubles. A few bottles of your medicine have given me almost complete relief, and I am sure that a continuation of them will effect a permanent cure. Per-na is surely a wonderful remedy for catarrhal affections.

"J. D. BOTKIN."
 The most common form of summer catarrh is catarrh of the stomach. This is generally known as dyspepsia. Congressman Botkin was a victim of this disease twenty-five years. Per-na cures these cases like magic. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O., for a free book.

The microbes that cause chills and fever and malaria enter the system through mucous membranes made porous by catarrh. Per-na heals the mucous membranes and prevents the entrance of malarial germs, thus preventing and curing these affections.

Trouble with Electric Cars in Corea.

A young American, in the employ of the contractors of the Seoul-Chemulpo Electric Railroad, writes interestingly of the new electric road in Seoul, Corea. The road was well built, the cars coming from America and motormen were imported from Japan to run them. For some reason the fenders and gangs did not arrive, and this was the chief cause of the trouble. Those who were interested in the railroad insisted that the opening of the road should not be postponed, and, accordingly, the citizens were out in crowds to see "the devil wagon run by a wire." Soon after the car started, a child ran across the track, became excited, and was run down and killed. A mob soon gathered, which began to pelt the cars with stones, and all on hand fled for their lives. The car was torn to pieces and then burned. The wires were pulled down, but, fortunately a serious accident was averted by turning off the current at the power house. Another car was sent out later in the day and met the same fate. A mob started for the power house, but was dispersed by the police.

Ladies' Plaid Golf Capes.

The new fall and winter styles in ladies' wear are now out, and as a rule, are more bewitching than ever. A most fascinating garment is the ladies' plaid golf cape illustrated and described in another column of this paper by the John M. Smyth Co. of Chicago, and at the extraordinary price of $5.65. This golf cape is indeed wonderful value, and yet it is but a sample of the thousand and one useful articles illustrated and described in the enormous catalogue of the John M. Smyth Company.

For those who are accustomed to sending away from home for their goods it is of the greatest importance to know the character and reliability of the establishments selling goods to families from catalogues. The great emporium of the John M. Smyth Co. has been established for a third of a century, and has furnished over half a million homes in Chicago and vicinity alone, and enjoys the confidence of the public by its many years of fair dealing.

The Barber Got His Money.

A suspicious-looking individual entered a barber shop in Manchester, and while being shaved casually remarked: "I suppose a good many customers forget to pay?"
 "No, sir," the barber replied. "There was a time when I used to give credit, but I never do now. In fact, nobody asks for it any more."
 "How's that?"
 "Well, you see, said the barber, trying the edge of his razor on his thumbnail, whenever I shaved a gentleman who asked me to mark it up I put a little nick in his nose with my razor, and kept tally that way. They very soon didn't want to run up bills."
 There was a tremor in the customer's voice as he answered, from beneath the lather:
 "Do you object to being paid in advance?"—Tit-Bits.

Fifty Cents for Nothing.

What will the inventive brain of man do next? This is a question some one asks almost daily. There is one, though, who leads all others, who for a quarter of a century has been making fine laundry starch, and to-day is offering the public the finest starch ever placed on the market. Ask your grocer for a coupon book which will enable you to get the first two packages of this new starch, "RED CROSS" (trade mark brand), also two children's Shakespeare pictures, painted in twelve beautiful colors, natural as life, or the Twentieth Century Girl Calendar, all absolutely free. All grocers are authorized to give ten large packages of "RED CROSS STARCH" with twenty of the Shakespeare pictures or ten of the Twentieth Century Girl Calendars to the first five purchasers of the ENDLESS CHAIN STARCH BOOK. This is one of the greatest offers ever made to introduce "RED CROSS" laundry starch, J. C. Hubinger's latest invention.

Road Civilities.

The man on the yellow bicycle swerved hurriedly to one side to get out of the way of a buggy and ran into the curbstone, to the serious disfigurement of his front wheel.
 "You will pardon me," jeered the man in the buggy, stopping to look at the wreck, "if I call that a mighty poor turn out."—Chicago Tribune.

Chicago Great Western Increase.

The gross earnings of the Chicago Great Western Ry. for the second week of September, 1899, show an increase of $37,922.70 over the corresponding week of last year, making a total increase of $65,999.98 for the first half of September. The total increase for July and August, the first two months of the fiscal year, has been $156,635.68. Increase in net earnings since July 1, $71,367.15.

Pain Conquered; Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 92,649]

"I feel it my duty to write and thank you for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. It is the only medicine I have found that has done me any good. Before taking your medicine, I was all run down, tired all the time, no appetite, pains in my back and bearing down pains and a great suffering during menstruation. After taking two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I am now on my fourth bottle and all my pains have left me. I feel better than I have felt for three years and would recommend your Compound to every suffering woman. I hope this letter will help others to find a cure for their troubles."—MRS. DELLA REMICKER, RENSBELAER, IND.

The serious ills of women develop from neglect of early symptoms. Every pain and ache has a cause, and the warning they give should not be disregarded.

Mrs. Pinkham understands these troubles better than any local physician and will give every woman free advice who is puzzled about her health. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass. Don't put off writing until health is completely broken down. Write at the first indication of trouble.

An Australian Gold Field.

The romance of Australian gold mining is not inappreciated by the history of the Wyalong gold field, in New South Wales. Less than seven years ago it was simply a grazing district, consisting largely of crown lands. At the end of 1894 the settled population in the Wyalong and Barmedman districts was between 4,000 and 5,000, the number of claims worked being about 300. In 1895 the quantity of gold obtained was 25,497 ounces; in 1896 it was 33,195 ounces; and in 1897, 34,370 ounces, being the largest auriferous output of any gold field in the colony, the next richest being Hillgrove, with 31,886 ounces. The total yield from the Wyalong gold field from its discovery at the end of 1893 up to the present has been estimated at 130,000 ounces.

Have a Piece of Devonshire.

It was at an open-air meeting in a village near Exeter that a well-known speaker was holding forth.
 "Men," he shouted, "what we want and what we are going to get is free land. We want the land for the people. Free land, men, we want, and we are going to have free land."
 Just then a large piece of earth landed on the speaker's eye, and while he was removing the clod a voice yelled out:
 "There's a piece of Devonshire to begin with!"—Tit-Bits.

NEBRASKA'S GREAT CORN CROP

300,000,000 Bushels Is the Estimate and It May Be More.
 A conservative estimate of Nebraska's corn crop, which is now safe from frost, is 300,000,000 bushels. It is hard for the mind to grasp just what these figures mean.

Counting 60 bushels of shelled corn to the load, it would take five million teams to haul the crop to market, a caravan that would reach around the world. It will take an army of 80,000 men over two months to husk it if they husk 60 bushels a day each. If loaded into cars of 30,000 capacity it would take 600,000 cars to haul the crop, a train over 4,000 miles long. At no time within the past ten years has there been such a tendency on the part of farmers to look for new locations, either to better themselves or to provide homes for their children. Many sections in the East are overcrowded while thousands of acres of rich, well-watered lands can still be had in Nebraska and northern Kansas at comparatively low prices. Thousands will visit that country this fall, as the railroads have announced cheap-rate harvest excursions for Oct. 3 and 17.

Speaking from Experience.

Master—Tombs, this is an example in subtraction. Seven boys went down to a pond to bathe, but two of them had been told not to go into the water. Now, can you tell me how many went in?

Tamed by Milk and Music.

A voracious resident of Germantown tells this snake story: "Three or four years ago I spent my summer vacation on a farm in Lancaster County. Behind a hedge, near the woodpile, there lived a little snake, and as I had heard that milk and music had a great attraction for snakes I made up my mind to try the combination on this fellow. So one afternoon I sat down on a fagot of wood, with a tin plate of milk on the ground beside me, and began to play on a mouth organ. In a little while the snake stuck his head out from the hedge, listened, and then wriggled slowly and timidly toward me. Watching me out of the corner of his eye, he came on till he reached the milk. He drank it, curled up and listened to the music, and after I stopped playing he crawled back to his hole under the hedge again. Every clear afternoon that summer I entertained my little snake with milk and music, and he never once missed coming out to see me. Indeed, some days when I was late I found him waiting for me, patiently dozing on his back, with his tiny head pillowed on the edge of the tin plate. The next summer he was still there; he remembered me and was glad, heartily glad, to have me back again. But the third summer he was gone. The tin plate, all rusted, lay where it had always lain, but the hole beneath the hedge was choked with weeds and no little snake came out to drink my milk and listen gratefully to the music of my mouth organ. Doubtless he was dead."—Philadelphia Record.

Prepared Soap Bubbles.

If one wishes to make soap bubbles which will last several days, prepare the following mixture in a room where the temperature is not lower than 65 degrees: Dissolve in a gentle heat one part of castile soap, previously cut into thin shavings, in 30 parts of water, distilled, if possible, and when the solution is cool, stir it.

Having done this carefully, mix in a bottle by violent and persistent shaking, a little at a time, two parts of glycerin with three parts of the above mentioned solution of soap and allow it then to stand where it will not be in the way of dust. The liquid, which is at first clear, soon becomes turbid. After a few days a white precipitate will have risen to the top of the liquid, leaving the remainder clear. Draw off the clear portion with siphon (a bent tube) and keep it for use. To use a siphon it is necessary first to fill it and then to plunge the shorter arm into the liquid to be drawn off.

This mixture is called glycerin liquid. The film it forms is of such strength that a bubble four inches in diameter may be kept in the open air of a room for three hours if supported by a ring of iron or bone an inch and a half in diameter or allowed to rest on some soft woollen fabric. If placed under a glass shade, it may last as long as three days. If filled with tobacco smoke, it looks very much as if it were solid.—Boston Transcript.

Two Big Necks.

"Once, when I was in New York some years ago," said A. W. Whelpley, "I found myself one afternoon standing before a counter in one of that city's largest dry goods houses selecting some collars, when suddenly two men sallied up while a good many ordered collars of various sizes, and I heard various sizes, rather hoarse voice, as I heard them down."

"I turned to note the man with the thick neck and beheld Grover Cleveland beside me. I knew him by his resemblance to the fellow on the cigar boxes."

"I had been given my change and a small packet of wares by the Auburn haired goddess of the counter, and with one more glance at the generous proportions of the man of destiny I was moving away when, strangely enough, the autocrat of the house of congress, Tom Reed, came steaming up to the counter."

"There they stood, neither evidently knowing the proximity of the other. "And bless me if he didn't ask for collars, second medium, welt band, turned front, 21!"

"I wondered if he thought the store provided a surveyor for such monstrous measures, but the goddess was equal to the occasion and handed out the desired size."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Some Superstitions.

When starting for the river, says a writer in London Field, if you have to turn back and get something that you have forgotten, you are sure to catch little or nothing that day. This is an article of Devon folklore, and I am inclined to think the west country folk right herein. The disappointment, the hurry and the bringing of wrong things always act prejudicially upon what out to be the unruffled, even temper of a successful angler. He becomes hasty and rash, most often with ill results to his basket.

In the western highlands it is currently believed that if you see a colt with its back to you when starting in the morning on a fishing excursion it is the worst of luck, only to be exceeded should you hear a cuckoo before breakfast.

Missing Time.

What do people do with their surplus time? They used to weave the cloth their garments were made of and make them by hand. They now get them ready made at the stores. It takes less time to do every act of drudgery than it used to take. What becomes of the surplus time? If we have gained an hour over our ancestors, what becomes of it?—Atchison Globe.

IS IT RIGHT For an Editor to Recommend Patent Medicines?

(From Sylvan Valley News, Brevard, N.C.) It may be a question whether the editor of a newspaper has the right to publicly recommend any of the various proprietary medicines which flood the market, yet as a preventative of suffering we feel it a duty to say a good word for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. We have known and used this medicine in our family for twenty years and have always found it reliable. In many cases a dose of this remedy would save hours of suffering while a physician is awaited. We do not believe in depending implicitly on any medicine for a cure, but we do believe that if a bottle of Chamberlain's Diarrhoea Remedy were kept on hand and administered at the inception of an attack much suffering might be avoided and in many cases the presence of a physician would not be avoided and in very many cases the presence of a physician would not be required. At least this has been our experience during the past twenty years. For sale by T. E. Slattery, druggist.

NAMED THE JOCKEYS.

THE MIDGETS EACH HAD A BAD CASE OF SWELLED HEAD.

A Spanking Over a Waiter's Knee Cured One, and an Unceremonious Tumble Into the Ocean Took the Insolence Out of the Other.

"It is a notorious fact," said an old horseman, "that successful jockeys are more afflicted with the big head than any other class of midgets you're liable to meet up with. On two occasions that I recall I've seen American waiters take prominent American jockeys down when the latter have become insufferable in their conduct. Some years ago an eastern jockey whose fame was spread broadcast throughout the racing world was talking dinner with a party of foolishly notorious friends at the Cliff House, outside of San Francisco. The jockey had been riding during the winter racing in and around San Francisco, and on this day he had won the swell event of the year on a rather no account horse. Consequently his hat was a whole lot too small for him.

"He was an insulting little chap at best, but on this occasion he simply let his tongue run away with his brains. His humor took the turn of joshing an old time waiter at the Cliff House who had been in California since the days of the Argonauts. The old man had long side whiskers, and the jockey made sundry and divers remarks to the waiter about the opportunity he was giving to the wind by wearing whiskers of that particular length, and the old man took the talk good naturedly without paying much attention to the touch of nastiness in the midget's remarks. Finally, however, when the wine had gone around pretty freely, the jockey reached up behind his chair as the old waiter was in the act of performing some little service for the men at the table, and twisting his hand in the hair on one side of the old server's face, he deliberately pulled out a fairly large handful of the latter's whiskers.

"The old man leaped back with pain and indignation, the jockey laughing at him blottically. Then the waiter coolly lifted the jockey out of his chair by the scruff of the neck, sat down and calmly deposited the midget across his knees, face downward.

"Son," said the waiter, "there's something that you've stood in need of for a long time past, judging from your actions here during the past few months, and that something you're about to get and get good," and he brought the palm of an ample hand down with a smack that sounded very pleasant indeed into the ears of all the rest of the people in the room (except the jockey's friends) who had seen the beard pulling incident. Then he brought both hands into play, and the raptaplan told of splendid execution. The jockey kicked and struggled, but he couldn't break loose, and he had to take his medicine. Then his friends at the table jumped to his rescue, and, quickly letting the jockey slide on to the floor, the old waiter, thoroughly aroused, jumped up and knocked them down one after the other. He just polished them all off in detail, and when he had got through with them he stood his ground. Then the manager appeared on the scene, and when he was told by a number of other guests, prominent men, what had happened he assisted in kicking the party out of the house.

"Another time a jockey who leaped into prominence with meteoric speed by reason of his winning two of the great events of the eastern turf in quick succession got the worst of it at the hands of a Coney Island waiter. I saw the incident myself. The jockey had had such a mighty accession of the 'I am it' spirit that he considered he could perform all sorts of mean little tricks at the expense of all hands and do the same with impunity. On this day he had won three straight races, and his impertinence was something monumental. He took dinner with three bookmakers on one of the big Coney Island piers. The man who waited on the party was a bullet head, but a quiet, attentive man at that. He was removing some plates after the second course when the jockey picked up a siphon of seltzer and deliberately squirted half the bottle full in the waiter's face. The waiter wiped his face and his shirt front off with his table towel and then he walked up to the jockey's chair and said: "Have you had yer dip in de sea yet t'day, Freddy?"

"No," said the jockey, with an expression of surprise on his face, as if he wondered what was coming.

"I t'ought not," said the bullet headed waiter. "Dat's de reason I'm goin' t' let you have it now."

"Then the waiter suddenly picked the famous jockey up, and before any of the men at the table could interfere he carried him over to the railing of the pier and dropped the midget horse rider into the water, about 15 feet below.

"I jist want t' see if de little snooter wit' de swelled nut kin swim as well as he kin ride a horse," said the waiter, quietly watching the jockey come to the surface and strike out. The jockey could swim, and he made the beach without any trouble, but he didn't return to the pier."—Washing-

Hon. Geo. P. Bemis
Omaha's most popular Mayor.

Hon. Geo. P. Bemis, the most popular man ever elected as mayor of the city of Omaha, Neb. He is also one of the oldest and best known real estate dealers and negotiators of loans in the west. His business is very extensive. He is not only one of the best judges of real estate but he knows a good thing when he sees it, whatever it may be. So we call attention to the following statement made by him and several other men who are not only popular in Omaha but are known from ocean to ocean. They are Hon. A. U. Wyman, Ex-Treasurer of the United States and now President of the Omaha Loan and Trust Co., one of the largest and most prominent negotiators of Western farm and city loans. Hon. W. J. Connell, Ex-Congressman and now Omaha's City Attorney. Hon. W. A. Paxton, Pres., Union Stock Yards. Hon. T. S. Clarkson, Ex-Commander in Chief G. A. R. Hon. C. J. Smyth, Attorney General of Nebraska. Hon. A. S. Churchill, Ex-Attorney General of Nebraska, and many others as well known, each of whom has personally signed the following statement.

"TO WHOM THIS COMES. GREETING: We take pleasure in commending the virtues of the remedies prepared by the Dr. B. J. Kay Medical Co. Having known of some remarkable cures of Omaha people effected by the use of Dr. Kay's Renovator and Dr. Kay's Lung Balm, we believe that these great remedies are worthy of the confidence of the public.

At this season, your system needs renovating. The internal organs are inactive. The waste matter is not eliminated but absorbed, thus contaminating the blood and debilitating the entire system. The nerve force is not replenished, consequently you are tired and have no energy. These symptoms are present in the Spring and after an epidemic of La-Grippe. To renovate the system and remove all bad effects of La-Grippe or Spring lassitude use Dr. Kay's Renovator. It certainly has no equal. Send for proof of it. It is a perfect renovator and regulator of all internal organs, curing the very worst cases of stomach troubles, constipation and obscure liver and kidney complaints. Try it and you will wonder at its marvelous effects. Write us describing your case carefully and we will give you valuable advice free and send you a 116 page illustrated book of receipts etc. If druggists do not have it don't take any substitute they say is "just as good" for it has no equal. It can be had by return mail from us. Price 25 cts. and $1. Dr. B. J. Kay Medical Co., Saratoga Springs, N. Y. and Omaha, Neb.

DEWEY IN NEW YORK

Cruiser Olympia Arrives Two Days Ahead of Time.

BIG WELCOME BEGINS.

News of Unexpected Arrival Causes Fever of Excitement.

Calculators Thought the Hero Was 600 Miles Away When He Was Within Gunshot of His Native Land—Admiral and All on Board Reported Well—Signal Men Are Kept Busy Answering the Salutes of Welcome.

Admiral Dewey Tuesday morning treated the nation to another surprise.

With the United States cruiser Olympia, flagship of the fleet that won the victory of Manila bay, he quietly sailed into New York bay at 7 o'clock in the morning, nearly sixty hours ahead of time. The famous cruiser was first sighted off the coast shortly before 6 o'clock. At 7:04 she passed in at Sandy Hook, and half an hour later she anchored in the lower bay.

While Admiral Dewey and the Olympia were reported by "expert" calculators to be about 600 miles off New York City they were almost within gunshot. It was the admiral's failure to touch at Bermuda that left everybody in doubt as to his course and his whereabouts. His early arrival is taken as further proof of the "Dewey way" to be on time.

All the morning, as the cruiser lay at anchor, her signalman was kept busy dipping the ensign in answer to the welcome of passing vessels. An orderly came ashore from the Olympia soon after she had anchored, with dispatches and messages from the admiral and officers. He said they had a pleasant passage across the Atlantic, that all were well on board and glad to be home.

New Yorkers Tuesday knew how Admiral Montejó and his sailors must have felt that May morning, more than a year ago, when Dewey appeared in Manila bay, days ahead of the time the Spaniards had bargained for. The reception committee had asked the admiral to reach New York by Thursday, Sept. 28. He replied that he would be there by that time, and the people, knowing he would be, knowing he

keep his word, expected that he would hover off the coast and then come in and drop anchor at the stated time. His arrival, therefore, was a shock. But the people got over it quickly and went to work with renewed vigor to prepare for the reception to the nation's hero.

It was eleven minutes to 6 Tuesday morning when the sleepy marine observers at Sandy Hook saw a trim-looking American man-of-war looming up in the mist off the lightship, seven miles off shore. They kept tab on all of Uncle Sam's ships and knew that no cruiser was due at New York that day. Meantime the ship drew nearer, and soon her signals, denoting that she was the Olympia, were describable. The news was quickly flashed to the city and then transmitted all over the country. By 7 o'clock the famous sea fighter had drawn close to shore and a few minutes later she crossed the bar. She proceeded about a mile and a half up the bay, inside the Hook, and then anchored. The Olympia sailed from Gibraltar Sept. 10, and had occupied about sixteen days in crossing the Atlantic.

Dies in Hospital Fire.

St. Vincent's hospital at Norfolk, Va., was burned to the ground at 2 o'clock Thursday morning. One woman was burned to death and two persons are missing. A nurse, Mrs. Dolan, was severely injured. The financial loss is estimated at $200,000.

Told in a Few Lines.

Sam Ireland, Paducah, Ky., crushed George Crumby's head with a whipstock. Standard Oil Company asserts that the Nebraska anti-trust law is unconstitutional. Mrs. Mary Needham, Pittsburg, Pa., poured oil on a fire. She's dead and two houses burned. Anguilla, one of the British West India Islands, was swept by a hurricane. Two hundred houses were destroyed, rendering 800 persons homeless.

CROWDSORY FOR WAR

PEACE MEETING IN LONDON ALMOST A RIOT.

English-Boer Demonstration in Trafalgar Square Brings 50,000 Crying War—Masses Back Up Chamberlain, Approving His South African Policy.

Trafalgar square, London, was the scene Sunday of a meeting which will become historic as showing the strong drift of the masses in England toward war. A peace demonstration had been advertised to be held in the square, where Nelson on the top of his monument has looked down on many a gathering significant of popular opinion when the tide of feeling runs high. The leaders of the peace party were to make one last, supreme effort and demonstration to influence public opinion. The radical press during the past week gave conspicuous place to notices of the coming meeting, while the other papers were ominously silent, though a suggestion was dropped that a counter demonstration was not unlikely.

Acting upon this hint, Brigades of both persuasions were present Sunday, but, as events soon showed conclusively, the war party was overwhelmingly in the ascendant. Only one speaker essayed to plead for peace. What he said is matter of conjecture, as no sooner had he begun than on the outskirts of the crowd of 50,000 people some one started "Rule Britannia." The chorus soon rolled over the square and swallowed up all other sounds. Nevertheless the speaker continued his address with an earnestness and determination fully as British as that of his hostile audience, but not long. Soon missiles of various kinds—decayed apples, aged eggs and whatever else came handy—hurled through the air; rushes were made upon the stand, soldiers who happened to be present were carried on the shoulders of the crowd and only the appearance and prompt action of mounted police enabled the speaker and his friends to escape with their lives. What was intended to be a protest against the drift of events toward war was turned into a demonstration that showed unmistakably that the tide of English feeling now runs too high in the Transvaal affair to be stayed by public discussion.

Not only from the Trafalgar square meeting, but from the general tone of the English press and of the people, wherever the latter have given expression to their views, it is clear that the nation is back of Salisbury and Chamberlain and that it is only among scholarly statesmen such as Morley, or writers such as Frederic Harrison, that peace finds advocates. Even these seem to recognize the futility of their attempts to stem the current.

Press comment is altogether partisan, the Government organs approving the crowd and the opposition claiming it was a preconcerted movement. Johannesburg advices report wholesale dislocation of the Rand mining industry. All the mines are closing; all the Boer defenses are being strengthened. War seems the only possible outcome unless Kruger takes heed of the coming storm and bends before it.

ODD FELLOWS' JUBILEE.

Celebration of the Seventy-fifth Anniversary of the Order.

The diamond jubilee of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows was recently celebrated in Detroit. A public welcome was extended at the Detroit Opera House by Mayor Maybury and Michigan Odd Fellow officials. Representatives from every State and territory and the Canadian provinces were present. Alfred S. Pinkerton, grand sire, responded to the welcomes, after which the sovereign grand lodge representatives proceeded to Harmonie Hall, where the first business session was held.

It was estimated that 10,000 persons connected with the various divisions of Odd Fellows were in the city. The passing in review of 4,500 Odd Fellows and their sisters of the Rebekah order was the finest and largest procession seen in Detroit since the great G. A. R. parade in 1890. Fully a score of bands furnished the music.

Brig. Gen. Martin, commander of the Michigan department of the Patriarchs Militant, led 1,000 members of the military branch of Odd Fellowship, all in full uniform, carrying drawn swords. Ohio sent six cantons of patriarchs, Indiana three, New York three, Pennsylvania three, Massachusetts three, Michigan three and St. Thomas, Ont., one.

Lodges vied with each other as to turning out the greater number of men uniformed in some striking manner. The representatives of the sovereign grand lodge occupied respective carriages, designed by shields hung thereon, bearing the names of the States the occupants represented.

Propositions to make membership in both the Patriarchs Militant and grand encampment compulsory for representatives of the sovereign grand lodge were defeated in the session of the sovereign grand lodge. A proposition to hold biennial sessions instead of annual was also voted down. Richmond, Va., was chosen as the place of meeting in 1900.

LAKE CRAFT IN PERIL.

Vessels Caught in the Storm Have Hard Runs to Reach Safety.

Chicago was the center Sunday of a storm area whose strange influences made night of early afternoon and transformed Lake Michigan from Evanston to South Chicago into a sea almost as troubled as the Atlantic off the dreaded Hatteras during the autumn gales. The wind attained a velocity of forty-seven miles an hour and wrought havoc with pleasure craft in the harbor and along the shore. A number of yachts were capsized in the basin. The life-saving crews were kept busy afternoon and evening answering signals of distress and going to the assistance of imperiled boatmen.

FILIPINOS TO VISIT OTIS.

Americans Held by the Natives May Be Given Their Liberty.

Aguinaldo made overtures of peace Tuesday by sending two insurgent majors through the American lines under a flag of truce. They were taken to Gen. MacArthur, ostensibly to arrange for the release of sixteen American prisoners of war, among them Lieut. Gilmore and his men from the gunboat Yorktown. Army officers are confident, however, that this was merely a pretext for reopening negotiations for surrender. They made no request for an exchange of prisoners, and left Gen. MacArthur after a brief conference, promising to return with the released prisoners in a few days. They asked, however, in return for the release of the prisoners that envoys be permitted to accompany them through the lines to confer with Gen. Otis.

In asking permission to send American prisoners into our lines, a correspondent says, Aguinaldo shows that he no longer has the idea of holding these men as hostages to protect himself. He is probably beginning to understand that his threats against the American prisoners are useless, and if carried into execution would close the door even to the general amnesty which had been promised by Gen. Otis. He is, therefore, taking a very proper step to enable his representative to ask for a conference with the American general in command.

The Secretary of War, however, does not hope for an immediate cessation of hostilities in the Philippines, and will give no orders which will change the general plan of campaign. Secretary Root presented this proposition to the cabinet, and it was discussed very briefly. The general opinion was that the commanders in the Philippines could handle the situation, and that there was no occasion for any action by the authorities in Washington.

The conditions have not changed. The Government cannot recognize any so-called rebel government. Gen. Otis is the representative of the United States in the Philippines, and he has an army there to put down the rebellion. His orders are to suppress this rebellion, and his terms to the rebels are unconditional surrender. The President and Secretary of War have approved Gen. Otis' action. They will not modify any demand he has made. There will be no conditions. The rebels must surrender and accept the authority of this Government. They can secure recognition for no alleged government of their own.

Admiral Watson reports the rout of a force of rebels entrenched on Lingayen gulf, island of Luzon, by the gunboat Paragua, commanded by Ensign Davidson. The Paragua is one of the small gunboats purchased from Spain by Gen. Otis and turned over to the navy. The scene of the battle was on the north coast of Luzon, off the port which forms the northern terminus of the railroad.

SOME STARTLING FIGURES.

Casualties Resulting from Troubles in the Pana Mining District.

The grand total of casualties since the advent of negro miners from the South to take the places of striking white miners in the Pana district is something appalling. The coal strike was declared in southern Illinois on April 1, 1898, because of the failure of the operators to abide by the decision of the arbitration board. Four months later the importation of negro miners from Alabama commenced.

With the arrival of the first batch of negroes the trouble began. Numerous clashes of a more or less sanguinary nature occurred almost daily, but the first great tragedy came Oct. 13, when the mine guards at Virden shot and killed eleven strikers and wounded nineteen more. One negro was killed and four wounded in this battle. Other battles fought at Pana, Carterville and Virden, in which the roll of dead and wounded was more than doubled, followed.

Following is a complete list of casualties since the beginning of the trouble:

Oct. 13, 1898, at Virden, 11 whites, one negro.
Oct. 16, 1898, at Pana, one negro; April 1, at Pana, two whites, five negroes.
June 30, 1899, at Carterville, one negro.
Sept. 17, 1899, at Carterville, seven negroes.
Total, 13 whites and 15 negroes.
Wounded: Sept. 29, 1898, Pana, one negro; Oct. 11, 1898, Pana, two whites; Oct. 13, 1898, Virden, 19 whites, four negroes; Nov. 17, 1898, Pana, one white, two negroes; April 10, 1899, Pana, eight whites, one negro; June 30, 1899, Carterville, 20 negroes.
Total, 30 whites and 28 negroes.

THOUSANDS DIE BY STORM.

Entire Villages in Japan Reported as Swept Away.

The steamship Empress of India brings details of the storm which swept across Japan. The prefectures of Kochi, Takamatsu, Ehime and Okayama suffered most, a total of 325 lives in all being officially reported lost, with 11,135 houses overthrown or inundated in Kochi, Takamatsu and Okayama.

Ehime reported no financial loss, but the death of 1,500 residents, the greatest casualties occurring at a large village near the Besshi copper mine, which was utterly obliterated. From the wreck of this mine itself 120 corpses had been removed at last advices, while it was feared that fully 600 others remained below ground.

FIRE IN STOCK YARDS

HORSE PAVILION AND TRANSIT HOUSE RUINED.

Flames Attack Buildings Over Area of Many Acres—Aggregate Loss to a Score of Structures $294,000—Hundreds of Horses Stampede.

For the second time in three years fire has wiped out mammoth horse sale stables at the Chicago stock yards. The Dexter Park pavilion, two residences and three detached horse barns were destroyed, and the old stock yards hotel, the Transit House, was badly damaged.

For awhile it was feared the flames would spread to the stock yards proper, but hard work on the part of the fire department, aided by a strong southwest wind, which carried the flying embers in the opposite direction, averted this danger. The property loss is estimated at between $300,000 and $400,000.

About 2,500 horses were in the pavilion when the fire broke out and these were turned loose. In the stampede which followed three persons were injured, none, however, seriously. Two hundred guests of the hotel were forced to rush from the building, many of them leaving their effects behind in the scramble for places of safety.

The fire was discovered at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon in the southeast corner of the huge pavilion. The first alarm brought four engines and a hook and ladder truck, but by the time they arrived the fire had gained such headway that a 4-11 alarm was sent in. This was quickly followed by two special calls, each for ten more engines, and in a short time thirty-four engines were at work.

Within fifteen minutes after the discovery of the fire the huge building, with its dome towering nearly 200 feet, was enveloped in one seething, surging mass of flame. The long speedway in the center caused a draft, which carried the flames far out beyond the building, communicating with the hotel 150-feet away.

Seeing that the pavilion could not be saved, the firemen turned their attention to the hotel. The fire started in the hotel in the rear near the elevator shaft, and up this the flames shot high above the roof, communicating the blaze to each of the four floors. After nearly three hours' work the flames were subdued, but not before the building was left almost a shell.

The total loss to the Union Stock Yards and Transit Company, according to the estimate of J. A. Spoor, vice-president and general manager of the company, will reach the sum of $294,000. All of the property was insured, but with the exception of the hotel the insurance was not equal to the value of the property.

RAISING MONEY FOR WAR.

Question of How Uncle Sam Will Raise Funds for Philippine War.

Secretary Gage, of the Treasury, is engaged in the task of ascertaining whence the funds are to come with which to pay the largely-increased army recently determined on by the President and Secretary Root. The receipts of the government did not meet the extraordinary expenditures when the army was smaller, and the problem of how to meet the cost of 30,000 additional troops gives the Treasury Department some uneasiness.

The administration, it is said, is unwilling to make another bond issue, but if this cannot be avoided it will be done; and it is asserted that Secretary Gage has ample authority to issue more bonds for the prosecution of the war in the Philippines, which is regarded as a part of the war with Spain. It seems to be generally conceded that custom duties should not be further increased and thus the means of raising necessary funds lie in war taxes, or bonds, or both.

The following are some of the suggestions that find favor among the revenue officials: The imposition of a stamp tax on all patent protected articles, the theory being that the value of the article is greatly enhanced by the protection of the patent laws of the United States, and that, as a war measure purely, the government would be justified in demanding a fractional part of the profits secured through the establishment of a monopoly by virtue of the patent laws.

It is also proposed to place a stamp tax on all slot machines in which there is any element of chance. It has been found that the manufacture of these machines has attained gigantic proportions. In each of them the percentage of profit to the proprietor is enormous, and the tax would not be oppressive. Of course, this would not strike those machines which dispense chewing gum, for in them there is no element of chance, and the gum already pays a government tax.

Another proposition that has met with favor at the hands of the Treasury Department is one to put a stamp tax on all firearms, except such as are used for national, State or municipal purposes.

WILDER MONUMENT DEDICATED

Great Shaft to Dead Soldiers Viewed by Thousands of Visitors.

The 113 Indiana monuments and markers and the Wilder brigade monument at Chickamauga Park were dedicated at Chickamauga Park in the presence of 10,000 people. About 4,000 old soldiers from Illinois and Indiana were present. The ceremonies began with the dedication of the Indiana monuments and markers. These represent an expenditure of about $80,000 by the State of Indiana. Gov. Mount delivered the address, formally turning the monuments over to the Government. An address was also delivered by Gen. James R. Carnahan, a member of the Indiana park commission. The monuments were received with an appropriate speech by Gen. H. V. Boynton on behalf of the Secretary of War.

Following the dedication of the Indiana monuments the Wilder brigade tower was dedicated. This tower represents an expenditure of $18,000 by the members of the Wilder brigade, and it is the most imposing and massive monument on the national battlefield. At the Wilder shaft Maj. James A. Connolly of Springfield, Ill.; Gen. Smith D. Atkins of Freeport, Ill., and others spoke. The speech of Col. Tomlinson Port of Chattanooga was the first ever delivered by a Confederate veteran on Chickamauga battlefield at the dedication of a monument to Union soldiers of the civil war. N. B. Forrest Camp, Confederate veterans, was present clad in uniforms of gray.

THE WILDER MONUMENT.

The monument is constructed of limestone quarried from the hills in the vicinity of the park. It is seventy-five feet high and is an embattled circular tower resting on a square base twenty-feet in dimension. A spiral stairway on the inside leads to the top, from which a view of the entire park is obtained. The cost of the monument completed was about $10,000, the entire amount having been contributed by the members of the brigade. Gen. Wilder himself being the most liberal contributor.

ASKS QUEEN TO INTERVENE.

President Kruger Appeals to Victoria to Prevent Bloodshed.

London advices say that President Kruger's cablegram to the Queen, asking for peace will likely prolong the delay and possibly result in a conference. The president of the Transvaal assumes high moral grounds and argues with great earnestness. It is difficult to see how the Queen can ignore the appeal. There are considerations that will modify the effect of the petition—its tardiness and the fact that the Transvaal Government had appealed to the continental powers previously.

Meanwhile the preparations for war continue with every evidence of bellicose industry on both sides. Double forces are working at the royal arsenal and dockyards to equip and transport troops to the cape. All factories making the paraphernalia of war are working overtime on large orders.

The reply of President Steyn of the Orange Free State to the note of Sir Alfred Milner is far more diplomatic than pacific. It is thought that the Free State road will plunge into war at its first opportunity. The Boer activity in preparing for hostilities is not less than the British. The distribution of rifles goes on with increased rapidity and the massing on the frontier is nearing completion.

The Uitlander council, as the result of meetings held at Pietermaritzburg and Johannesburg, decided to address a communication to the British high commissioner, Sir Alfred Milner, urging the imperial Government to break off negotiations with the Transvaal. The reasons for this action are that "the severe distress prevailing may compel the remaining Uitlanders to accept any compromise offered, that loyal British subjects are becoming discontented and that great unrest exists among the natives."

WHITE DOLLARS ARE SCARCE.

Uncle Sam Will Not Now Take Gold in Exchange for Silver.

It may be an astonishing statement to say that the United States Government refuses to accept gold of its own coinage in exchange for silver dollars, but that is what at least one sub-treasurer is actually doing. The complaint comes from St. Louis, where the sub-treasurer declines to exchange silver dollars except for silver certificates. Neither gold nor bank notes will tempt the white coins from his vaults. It is quite possible for the United States treasury to reach a point where a general order will be issued to all sub-treasurers forbidding them to exchange silver dollars for gold, national bank notes or any other form of currency except silver certificates.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Aeronaut's Parachute Refuses to Open—Farmer Shot by a Widow—New Railway from Elwood to Lapel—Disastrous Fire at Milltown.

Prof. Dennis, an aeronaut, attempted a parachute drop at the Crawfordsville fair. When the time came for Dennis' balloon ascension fully 30,000 people were present at the fair. He ascended successfully until about 200 feet from the ground, when the balloon burst. The parachute failed to open until within a few feet of the earth, against which the aeronaut was dashed with scarcely diminished velocity. It is feared his injuries will prove fatal.

Widow Shoots Aged Farmer.

In Scott township, Mrs. Davella Swartz, a widow, shot Wesley Green, an aged farmer, with an old-fashioned muzzle-loading shotgun loaded with slugs. The load took effect in the man's leg, shattering the limb, and it is said that he cannot recover. The shooting occurred at Mrs. Swartz's home and resulted from frequent annoyances on the part of Green.

New Railway Projected.

Thomas Newkirk, a wealthy capitalist of Richmond, has secured the right of way for a railroad from Elwood through Anderson to Lapel, where it will be united with the Chicago and Southeastern, owned by Harry Crawford of Chicago. The promoters behind the enterprise state it is to tap the Indiana coal fields for the gas belt cities and factories when coal becomes necessary.

Big Marl Bed Discovered.

State Geologist W. S. Blackley and Assistant George H. Ashley, who have been prospecting in LaPorte County for marl beds, discovered the largest bed in Indiana. It is located at Fish Lake, covers 400 acres and is from ten to twelve feet thick. Swift & Co., the Chicago packers, own the property.

OILED CLOTHING.

The Waterproof Garments and the Traditional Sou'wester of the Sailor.

A suit of oiled clothing such as is commonly worn by sailors, consisting of a coat and a pair of trousers, costs from $1.50 to $2.50, according to the quality. An oilskin sou'wester costs 25 to 50 cents. There are many makes of oiled clothing, including some whose trademarks have been familiar for many years. The oilskin coat hanging outside the outfitting and supply stores in streets along the water front has long been a familiar sign.

The life of an oilskin suit depends, of course, primarily upon the wear to which it is subjected, but largely also upon the care taken of it. An oilskin suit will last longer and keep much better if hung up when not in use than it will if rolled up, but it may be that the user has no place to hang it or that he keeps it rolled up to be ready to carry with him at any time, as a pilot would do. In dry latitudes, where a sailor has less occasion to wear them, his oilskins, if cared for, would of course wear longer than where they were often worn. Usually the average life of an oilskin suit worn by a sailor would be about a year.

When a sailor's oilskins crack or get worn so that they are not waterproof, he oils them. They may need oiling two or three times a year. There are prepared oil dressings made for this use and put up in little tin cans. Some sailors use oils of one sort and another, and some sailors make a mixture of their own for a dressing. The sailor is likely to have a preference for some one brand of clothing and to stick to it, and he has his own idea as to the best dressing for it, but he carries always with him a dressing of some sort. It is put on with a brush, the garments being hung up and painted with it.

Oilskin coats worn aboard ship by men before the mast are cut short, so as not to interfere in any way with their movements. The coats worn by the officers of a ship are cut longer. The officers in some cases wear rubber coats, but the oilskin is the coat they commonly wear.

Oilskin clothing and the traditional sou'wester are most familiarly associated in the mind with ideas of sailors and of the sea, they are also, as matter of fact, very largely and extensively worn upon the land by truckmen and car drivers and many other outdoor workers and by sportsmen.—New York Sun

Snake Eat Snake.

A sight was witnessed one day at the Zoo that has been the talk of the people managing the animals of the garden ever since. Keeper Myers, who has charge of the snake cages, was about to feed the reptiles, when, to his horror, he saw one blacksnake measuring six feet devouring its mate, which was about the same length and size of itself. The reptile had swallowed its fellow head first, and only a foot and a half still remained outside its mouth. It was lying quietly, and about once every 30 seconds a swallowing motion would seize it, when as much as two inches of its meal would disappear. Myers opened the cage and, grabbing the powerless snake by the tail, began tugging away to release it. This proved to be no easy task, as the cannibalistically inclined monster had a firm hold on its breakfast. After several minutes of pulling that brought the perspiration out on the keeper the snake was set at liberty. For a time it seemed paralyzed, but gradually regained its strength.—Chicago Herald.

On a rainy afternoon not long ago one of the pretty young matrons of Connecticut avenue left the car from which she had ridden up town and darted through the drizzle toward her home, a few doors from the corner. She had no umbrella. A Willie of the characteristic type, who was riding in the same car, noticed that she had no umbrella. He was right after her with his own umbrella up and extended.

"May I see you home, miss?" he inquired languishingly, stepping up alongside of her.

She turned to him with a dazzling smile. "Certainly," she replied. "Watch me." And she ran up the steps of her home and entered the vestibule door without looking back.

"The rude thing!" muttered the Willie, blushing to the roots of its wavy hair, as Laura Jean would say, and then it took the next car.—Washington Post.

"What was your father whipping you for last night?" asked one small boy of another.

"Oh," replied the other, "we had an argument about my Sunday school lesson, and he was proving to me that the whale actually did swallow Jonah."—Troy Times.

Lincoln and the Hair Restorer.

Here is a story of President Lincoln from the late Judge Carter, who was a member of congress from Cleveland during the war and one of Mr. Lincoln's most intimate friends. It relates to a Quaker philanthropist from Philadelphia who did not have a hair on his head, but took a great interest in public affairs and was constantly calling at the White House in behalf of somebody or other who happened to be in trouble and took up a great deal of Mr. Lincoln's time. The president treated him with great courtesy, although his patience was frequently tried. One day when the philanthropist was particularly verbose and persistent and refused to depart, although he knew that important delegations were waiting, Mr. Lincoln suddenly rose, walked over to a wardrobe in the corner of the cabinet chamber and took a bottle from a shelf. Handing it to his visitor, he remarked:

"Did you ever use this stuff on your head?"

"No, sir; I never did."

"Well," remarked Mr. Lincoln, "I advise you to try it, and if at first you don't succeed, keep it up. They say it's a good thing to make the hair grow. Take this bottle with you and come back in six months and tell me how it works."

The astonished philanthropist covered his polished pate with his broad brimmed hat and left the room, while Judge Carter, coming in with the next delegation, found the president over in the corner doubled up with laughter at the success of his strategy, and before he could proceed to business the story had to be told.—Chicago Record.

JOTTINGS BY THE WAYSIDE.

To Our Friends and Neighbors who Read the Culver City Herald.

We left you recently upon the banks of the Little Vermillion Creek four miles south of New Port, and becoming uneasy, we harnessed up and drove after dark to the residence of Mr. Chas. Nichols, a very kind accommodating farmer who gave us stable room and charged nothing for the accommodation. Monday morning, Sept. 11th, started at 25 minutes of 7 a. m., passed a very nice country with nice buildings, and good roads. Drove through a very nice hustling little town, P. M. we drove through Clinton. This is a coal mining town with very poor buildings and a saloon on nearly every corner. Here we crossed the Wabash river on a ferry and after we had landed on the other side, we had a chance to try the good qualities of our horses. The hill was sandy and so steep that the ferryman was afraid the wagon-box would tip back, but we landed on top all right and knew that we were well equipped for our trip. Drove about 17 miles and put up for the day. Tuesday the 12th, started at 6:30 a. m., drove through Elsworth, and Terre Haute, and in the evening crossed the state line, drove about 20 miles.

Wednesday the 13th, started 5:50 a. m., passed through Marshall, Martinville and Casey. These are neat hustling little towns, drove 26 miles.

Tuesday the 14th, started 6:25 a. m., passed through Greenup, Jewett and Montrose, traveled 25 miles. All this country from Clinton to Montrose is very poor and rough.

Friday 15th, started 6:05 a. m., passed through Teutopolis, a Catholic town with fine school buildings, the town otherwise was not neat. Effingham is also a Catholic town with fine school buildings, passed by Altamont and St. Elmo, drove 29 miles. Near Altamont and west is a real nice country also about St. Elmo the same.

Saturday 16th, started 5:50 a. m. Drove through Vandalia, a lively business city and by Smithboro, drove 35 miles and put up for the night at Mr. Buchanan's, Ex-treasurer of Bond Co., Ill. He is a nice accommodating gentleman.

Sunday 17th, started at 9:10 a. m., drove to Greenville, where we received a most welcome letter from our parents, also mailed one home. At this place is a very large Military manufacturing establishment. Southwest is a very fine large stock farm, drove through Pocahontas. South-west this place is a prairie country, stopped at 4 p. m.; drove 17 miles. Monday the 18th, rested our horses and did our washing as we were at a very kind and accommodating farmer.

Tuesday 19th, started 6 a. m. Drove through Highland, St. Jacob and Troy, where we received mail from home, then through Collinsville, drove 28 miles and are now in a barnyard of a farmer with our horses under good shelter and plenty of good hay.

We are now in sight of the smokey city of which you have commonly called St. Louis. We are all hearty and enjoying our trip. It is now 9 p. m., the boys are now in bed asleep. With a friendly good night to all inquiring friends, I will have to close. ALVA PORTER.
