Farewell Sermon.

Sunday evening Rev. Barber preached his farewell sermon at the Grace Reformed church to a large audience. His sermon was an earnest appeal from start to finish, for his hearers to resist the devil and cleave unto the Lord. At the close of his remarks he very touchingly spoke of the separation about to take place, and hoped and prayed that all present would meet again in the better kingdom. Rev. Barber has been upon this charge about eight years, and during this time he has worked zealously to build up the church, both spiritually and socially. There is not a man in the community but what will speak a good word for Bro. Barber, and acknowledge that he is a conscientious Christian gentleman, truly devoted to his life's work and a true teacher of the doctrines laid down by the greatest of all teachers, the meek and lowly master. Not only will he be missed, but it will be exceedingly hard to fill the vacancy caused by the departure from our midst of his family, who were conspicuous figures in all church work and in advancing the cause of morality and truthfulness in all walks of life. The HERALD, with the public, heartily wishes Rev. Barber and family success wherever their lot may be cast.

That Boat Race.

Last Sunday Judge Winfield took a ride over the crystal waters of Lake Maxinkuckee in his beautiful launch, which is already noted for speed as well as comfort. When near the Norris landing, the Judge saw bearing down upon him a magnificent launch known as the Dorcas, commanded by Messrs. William and Edward Fulton, and owned by W. H. Fulton. When this craft came in hailing distance of the Judge, the sporting characteristics of his young days returned, and he just ached to show the Dorcas that his launch could throw water in her face, in fact could leave her so quickly in a friendly race that she would not "know where she was at." Hence, the Judge just hinted to the commanders of the Dorcas that he would like a friendly test of speed, and although the owner, Mr. Fulton, is a "Hard Shell Presbyterian," and does not countenance racing, the boys concluded to risk the wrath of their usually amiable sire and go Winfield one for luck, consequently accepting his challenge. The ball immediately opened, when like a bird the Winfield launch shot ahead, while her larger opponent had to take time to get under motion. But when the Dorcas did get in motion she struck something like a 15 knot per hour gait and bore down upon her rival like a cyclone and passed her, leaving her far in the rear. The Judge gave up the race, acknowledged his defeat, but yet knows that if his little launch was beaten, she is the pride of the people on the west side. The Dorcas was built to order by Chas. Lamb, of Goshen, is 26 feet long with six foot beam, and carries a three-horse power gasoline engine.

Fourth of July at Culver.

Notwithstanding that there was no celebration here, Culver was visited by hundreds of people from all over the country who spent the day boating, bathing, etc. In the evening there was a fine display of fire-works on the east and north side of the lake, S. P. Sheerin giving an especial fine display from his dock.

LOCAL BREVETIES.

Vol. 7, No. 1.
 Smoke Reed's 205. 45tf.
 "Town Clock" "Town Clock."
 Tiosa celebrated the 4th in grand style.
 Culver merchants handle "Town Clock."
 North, east, south and west, "Town Clock" cigar always the best.
 You smoke and I smoke the only smoke the best, "Town Clock."
 A large number of our citizens attended the celebration at Argos on the 3d.
 Quarterly conference was held at the M. E. church last Tuesday morning.
 The Vandalia section men of this place are assisting in laying side track at South Bend.
 Don't forget that at Barne's store Maxinkuckee, you can find anything that the market affords at very reasonable prices.
 Last Saturday afternoon a base ball team from Culver defeated the Delong team, at the latter place, by a score of 22 to 8.
 Cory & Stevens of Argos took down the Palmer House wind-mill Monday and transplanted it where it could get more wind.
 Twenty-five dollars will buy a good square piano. Good reasons for selling. Call at this office for further particulars.
 Wednesday, the glorious Fourth, a party from Rochester enjoyed a picnic at the Maxwell cottage on the east side of the lake.
 Walter Kuhn, nine years of age, caught and landed without aid a four pound bass, July 4. Here is a feat for some youngster to beat.
 T. Couzelman and family, and Mr. John Lewis and wife, of St. Louis, Mo., are now nicely settled in their beautiful cottage, "The Roost."
 Mr. H. H. Culver has rented cottage No. 6 near the Lake View Hotel, and will occupy the same with his family during the outing season.
 Prominent parties from Terre Haute, Indianapolis, Chicago, New York and other noted cities of these United States have registered at the various hotels the past week.
 I ship laundry every Tuesday night and laundry should be left at my barber shop before 5 o'clock p. m. on said day to insure shipment.
 CON BONAKER.
 Perry Barnard, who shot his wife, mother-in-law and little child at Flora about two weeks ago (his wife dying), is still at large, although the authorities have offered $500 reward for his arrest.
 Try Dykeman's bread, cakes and buns at John Osborn's grocery. Received every morning fresh from the Logansport bakery. The largest loaves in the state. Full weight guaranteed.
 Any one having dry hickory or sugar wood for sale, can secure a good price for the same by hauling two cords to the cottage known as the "Shanty," first cottage east of Palmer House, at once.
 Grandpa Hand, who has reached the advanced age of 87 years, has been in quite poor health of late, but is still able to get around by the aid of his cane. His mind is clear, and he could give incidents of early days that would make an interesting volume.

The excursion that arrived here Saturday from Terre Haute and remained till Monday was a rather slim affair, but it is hoped that later in the season this new arrangement of things will become more popular.

A letter from Terre Haute states that Lawrence, son of Chas. Watson, formerly of this city, has been afflicted with an abscess, consequently was taken to the hospital where an operation was performed. The surgeons were compelled to take out his intestines and clean them as the abscess had already broken upon the inside. The boy is now improving nicely.

Yesterday afternoon Ted Howe launched his new sail boat, the "Indiana," in Bel river. The boat is a twelve foot catboat and the work upon it was done entirely by the young man. It is of fine appearance and glides over the water with perfect equilibrium. The craft will be taken to Lake Maxinkuckee where the Howes will spend the summer.—Logansport Journal.

An Epworth League rally will be held at the M. E. church next Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. The reports from the district convention, held in Kewanna last month, will be read, and speeches on Epworth League work will be made. Special music has been provided for, and altogether it will be an interesting meeting. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

Next Sunday morning at the M. E. church there will be preaching by the pastor. In the evening there will be a special service at 8 o'clock under the auspices of the Epworth League. Prominent features of this service will be special music, reports from delegates to the district convention, and the installation of new officers. All other services at the regular hours. The public is cordially invited to attend. F. O. FRALEY.

Carpenters are now at work on the new pavilion at the Maxinkuckee Park. C. G. Cantrell, of Cincinnati, Ohio, will arrive on the 5th, and will erect a large hotel to accommodate the visitors. This hotel will be simply a lodging house. Meals will be served by other parties who have not been selected. J. V. Coombs, the president, is now on the ground in his new cottage, overseeing the improvements. The Assembly will open July 28, and on the 29th Hon. Sam M. Jones and Ex-Gov. Will Cumback will deliver addresses. The assembly continues 16 days with 36 lectures and ten entertainments.

Good Roads.

The question of good roads has long since agitated the minds of cottage owners around the lake. They complain that for many years they have paid their portion of taxes, and charge that the moneys allotted for the improvement of highways have been used to improve the roads elsewhere than those around the lake shore which are, and always have been, in a most horrible condition. The question of a first-class road around the lake should interest every farmer in this section of the county, as during the summer months said road is being constantly traveled. This matter should be of especial interest to Culver, citizens, as year by year this city is becoming one of the great trade centers, notwithstanding its rivals; hence a good road around the lake shore means a greatly increased business. Something certainly should be done relative to the matter. Who will start the ball rolling?

"I Am The People."

Thursday we received a telephone from an attorney of South Bend asking us if we could publish a legal notice for him in this week's issue, and when we answered him in the affirmative, he informed us he would be in Culver upon the noon train. He also telephoned Sheriff Marshall to meet him at the train, as it was necessary for him to sign the order. But when the document was presented to said sheriff, he flatly refused to sign, as no legal notices under his jurisdiction could be published outside of Plymouth, "not on your life," notwithstanding that the client has a legal and moral right to publish such notices where he desires. But the "ring" and the Plymouth Democrat rules the roost, and although these outside papers are expected to keep mum and pat them on the back, they take good care that the piums go to the organ that advocates "to the victors belong the spoils." Perhaps the "Great I Am's" will wake up some fine morning and find that the papers outside the "hub" will have something to say about the rottenness in "Denmark."

An Apology.

The undersigned is very sorry that he had occasion to speak about a certain young man of Culver being intoxicated recently, and hopes that intoxicated r have an opportunity of doing so again.

M. A. MAWHORTER.

It is said that Adam Wise, of Plymouth, will be Congressman Brick's Democratic opponent at the next election, and that his nomination is a foregone conclusion.

For the Farmer

Man's first home on this planet was, according to all tradition, in a garden of delights that in our Bible is called the garden of Eden, says American Cultivator. After an experience of most varied sort lasting many thousand years, man is again learning that to be a gardener and in close touch with nature is his happiest and safest position. Much of the cultivation of the earth in future will be under glass. It is so already in the vicinity of Boston and other large cities, where greenhouses bring the delights of the summer season into the time when all nature is wrapped in the cold of winter. We learn from our friends in Florida that even there they are preparing to grow oranges and bananas under some patent as being cheaper and safer than building fires for that purpose. It is probably the New Englanders in Florida, who know how largely glass is used for the growing of flowers and vegetables, who introduced this to the people of Florida. If it is successful there, why cannot this method be used in many other places with equal advantage? As the badhouses in any neighborhood are increased they help to moderate the severity of cold in winter in their vicinity. So the general building of greenhouses helps those who do not use them directly.

Lead Plaster.

A small quantity of lead plaster in the hills of corn will be found beneficial, as the plaster absorbs moisture from the atmosphere and will give a green color to corn when other corn not receiving plaster will be yellow. Plaster is not considered a valuable fertilizer, but it is nevertheless capable of increasing the amount of ammonia derived from the air and in proportion to its cost gives excellent results.

It is stated, that Mrs. Beeber, of Logansport, contemplates the erection of a magnificent hotel on her grounds near the depot, and have the same ready for occupancy at the opening of the summer season of 1901.

Remember that Barne's the Maxinkuckee groceryman, is still on deck with a larger stock than ever, and that he especially caters to the lake trade.

But there's no need to feel like that. Listen to J. W. Gardner, Idaville, Ind. He says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he is all run down, and don't care whether he lives or dies. It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents, at T. E. Slattery's drug store. # ZOE'S CONQUEST.

ARE you quite sure you do not mind being left alone? You are not nervous?" queried Major Milner of his host's daughter, Zoe Wentworth.

"Not in the least. I am accustomed to being alone," Miss Wentworth replied. "I remember on one occasion," she continued, "it was when my father and Gerald were up in town, there was an alarm of burglars. I was anxious on my mother's account, for, as you know, she is an invalid, but fortunately she heard nothing of the excitement. The servants were nearly in hysterics from sheer fright."

"And you, Miss Wentworth?"

"O, I rather enjoyed the reconnoitering than otherwise," she replied, with a laugh.

"This house is a bit lonely. I must say," observed Gerald Wentworth, "but I back Zoe against any ordinary burglar."

The Major smiled good-humoredly. Not that he wished to doubt the truth of the latter's remark, but he had no faith in woman's presence of mind in any emergency. True, Zoe seemed rather different to the average woman he had met in his thirty-five years, still, she was only a woman. Though possessing a natural courtesy of manner, there lurked, deep down in the Major's heart, a half contempt—a condescending indulgence towards the weaker sex.

As Gerald spoke Zoe glanced at Major Milner, and observing the half-amused look in his gray eyes, she smiled to herself—a smile half-disdainful, half-defiant.

"Your opinion of our sex is not flattering, Major," she said, sweetly, turning her beautiful dark eyes in his direction. "You did not think I could read your thoughts so well," she continued, "but, tell me, am I not right, you think us altogether inferior beings?"

"O, come, Miss Wentworth, you are very severe. Please do not imagine that I wish to underrate your capabilities. I feel sure you would do justice to the family name if occasion arose."

"Thank you, Major. Your good opinion is invaluable to me, I assure you," she replied quietly.

He shot a quick glance in her direction as she laughed at him? But her face was bent down over her plate, and her downcast eyes with their heavily fringed lids, revealed nothing.

"By Jove! I believe I am wrong this time in my estimate of a woman," mused Major Milner to himself. "She may be the sort who would have shone in the Indian mutiny. I like that proud curl of the lip."

An hour later Zoe Wentworth was sitting alone in the drawing-room. The men had gone off to a political meeting, and Mrs. Wentworth was up-stairs asleep. The girl held an open book in her hand, but she was not reading; she was thinking of some one with a pair of gray eyes, until at last, tired out, she fell asleep.

She awoke with a start. Surely she had heard some peculiar noise in the dining-room? Opening the door cautiously she peered into the hall. The next moment she started back as if electrified, for close to her stood a masked figure with a revolver in hand.

"No sound or I will shoot you dead," he hissed. "Show us the silver, and be quick—we've no time to waste."

She had barely time to exchange one horrified glance with the old butler, whom she perceived lying on the floor of the hall gagged and bound, when her assailant pulled her roughly by the arm into the dining-room, closing the door noiselessly behind.

"Now, my girl, hurry up," he said rudely.

Zoe Wentworth appeared not one whit abashed. She calmly sat down on the nearest chair, and smiled serenely upon the strange company. There were five of them, and all strong men—armed and masked.

"Gentlemen, you have so taken me by surprise that you must first allow me to regain my equanimity. Listen," and her voice became serious, "I have an invalid mother upstairs. Any shock might kill her. Promise on your oath to make no noise, and I will show you the valuables. Do you agree?"

"Yes, yes. We've no wish to harm the old woman, but business is business, and ah!" for the girl had unlocked an oak chest containing the rich family plate.

"You will need a cart to carry all that away," she observed, with a smile.

"O, we'll manage somehow, miss—don't fear," laughed one of the robbers.

They drew from their pockets large cloths, in which they commenced to stow away the contents of the chest. Zoe looked on outwardly calm, but raging inwardly as she saw the beautiful old silver tossed into a heap on the floor.

Presently two of the gang, seeing supper laid on the table, commenced to carve the joint of beef.

Their comrades murmuring at the risk attempted to drag them away, and a sort of tumult began.

"Hush!" said the girl, severely. "Keep your promise. They say even thieves have honor."

"By gad! she's right. Come boys, the lady has behaved royally to us. Let's decamp now, quietly and decently," said one, who appeared to be the chief of the gang.

But the men had already begun to tackle the food prepared for Colonel Wentworth and his party and showed no inclination to move.

Zoe, seeing this, conceived a plan.

"Have some supper, by all means," she said, crossing over to the sideboard for the wine, which she passed freely round the table, smiling and conversing with each robber in turn.

"Here's a bumper to the finest lass going," cried one, rising from his chair with difficulty.

"Shut up, idiot," remarked one of his companions, politely emphasizing his remark by the aid of an empty pie dish.

"More wine, more wine!" cried the hilarious one.

"You have drunk it all," the girl said, "but if you like I will fetch some of my father's old port from the cellar. Shall I go?"

"Yes, yes," they exclaimed, in chorus, clinking their empty glasses.

One of the men, less tipsy than the rest, stumbled to his feet to accompany her, but she waved him back with an imperious gesture.

When outside the room she quietly turned the key in the lock. She was just on the point of going up stairs to rouse the men servants when she heard carriage wheels coming up the drive.

A second later she was tearing down the drive like a mad creature.

"Stop!" she panted to the bewildered coachman, who drew up with a jerk.

Some one opened the carriage door. "Great heavens! is it you, Miss Wentworth—what is wrong?" whispered Major Milner, full of anxiety, for the carriage lamps revealed the pallor of her face.

In a few words she managed to explain to them the meaning of her sudden appearance, and how she had managed to keep the burglars prisoners until their return.

"Well done, Zoe," said Major Milner, in an undertone, as he passed by her on his way into the house, and the look in his eyes sent a thrill of pleasure through her. She did not answer, but turned away smiling softly to herself.

The robbers were captured with little difficulty, their tipsy condition making it easy for their captors, and the morning found them safely ensconced in the nearest police station.

Major Milner did not attempt to find words to express his admiration for Zoe's pluck, but from that hour his feelings towards her underwent a change, and she, realizing her victory, was content.

Three months later they were married.—The Princess.

Laurel Crowns.

The laurel crown used to decorate the brow of the victor in the old Olympian games, or the head of some triumphant general, was composed of bay leaves. The bay is laurus nobilis, and thus the wreath or crown has been called laurel or bay, according to the whim of the writer. The bay was considered by the ancients to be an antidote against poison and a security against lightning, its leaves were used to provide a pleasing incense, and a spray of bay was carried in the garments of all superstitious persons as a guard against all dangers. It is interesting to note how the laurel or bay has passed down to these more prosaic times; the heads on medals, coins, etc. are almost always crowned with laurel. Then we have a poet laureate, or the poet crowned with laurel—that is to say, the chief poet of the times. Again, the title of bachelor, won by exceptional skill in connection with art or science, takes us back to the middle ages, when young doctors were crowned with laurel, and received the title of bacca laurel.—London Gardeners' Magazine.

They Never Do.

"There is such a thing as somnambulism, of course?" queried the anxious-looking young man as he appeared at the lawyer's office.

"Certainly," was the reply.

"But do somnambulists ever write letters?"

"Never heard of it."

"A somnambulist wouldn't write 250 love letters in a year, would he, and each and every one of them asking the girl to marry him and threatening suicide if she didn't?"

"Never!"

"Then there's no help for me, and you may see the girl and settle the breach of promise suit on the best terms you can."—Washington Post.

"I'm right," said a man in a discussion with his wife, "but I'm outtalked."

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

State Geologist's Report on Minerals—Future of Natural Gas Is Not Promising—Husband Appears to Wreck Wife's Second Honeymoon.

The report of the State Geologist of Indiana contains over a thousand pages relating to the natural resources of the State. It shows that although Indiana ranks in area but thirty-fourth among the States of the Union, yet it stands sixth in the production of coal, fourth in the production of petroleum, second in the production of natural gas, seventh in building stone, and sixth in the value of its clay products. The value of the production of the five leading mineral resources is estimated at: Petroleum, $2,228,276; coal, $5,177,044; natural gas, $5,060,969; stone, $1,731,914; and clay, $3,211,512. Of chief interest in the geologist's report is his statement of the present condition of the natural gas supply. The pressure, which averaged 325 pounds in 1890, was but 155 pounds on Jan. 1, 1900. He says: "From this it will be seen that the future of natural gas in the State is not a promising one," which is a mild way of stating the case. Meanwhile the decreased supply of natural gas is partly responsible for increased activity in coal mining, the output for 1899 being greater than for any previous year. The coal deposits of Indiana cover about 7,500 square miles, of which between 6,000 and 7,000 square miles are underlain by coal. All told there is estimated to be about 40,000,000,000 tons of coal in Indiana, of which one-fifth is workable under the present conditions. It is estimated that 100,000,000 tons have already been mined out. Fortunately the supply will last longer than that of natural gas, the geologist calculating that even if the past rate of increased production is maintained the field will last not less than 300 years.

Enoch Arden in Kokomo.

Six years ago, Howard M. Fritz of Kokomo married Miss Mary Brandon of Clinton County. A month later Fritz deserted his bride and went to Texas. Two years ago Mrs. Fritz received a copy of a Texas newspaper which told of her recreant spouse obtaining a divorce. Later the word came to the deserted bride that Fritz was dead. Thus doubly assured that she was no longer a legal wife, Mrs. Fritz a month ago was married to Joseph Sanders. Her second honeymoon was rudely interrupted. The ghost of Enoch Arden reappeared in the person of Howard M. Fritz, whom she thought dead. Fritz stalked into the house where his wife and her latest husband sat, and brusquely demanded possession of his wife on the ground that he was the ranking husband and had priority rights. In consideration the woman and husband No. 2 went to Judge Kent's court at Frankfort and had the second marriage annulled. She also applied for a divorce from No. 1 and will remarry Sanders as soon as the decree is granted.

Farmer Kills Wife and Self.

John Whitehead, a farmer, and his wife were found dead at their home, seven miles southeast of Poseyville. The woman was lying in an outbuilding, while he lay in the parlor with the top of his head blown off. It is thought Whitehead killed his wife and then himself.

Within Our Borders.

Ed Hunter, 17, Muncie, drowned in Dayton, Ohio.

Census will show that Terre Haute has 40,000 inhabitants.

Franklin donated $7,750 to life insurance companies in 1899.

Robinson show horses caught "pink-eye" while in Kokomo.

Farmers are using rural telephones to warn their neighbors of tramps.

New Albany has shipped 360,000 gallons of strawberries to northern cities.

Shelby County Council has appropriated $1,000 to complete the county investigation.

A son of Michael Hoffman fled from New Albany after hitting a playmate with a brick.

While hauling logs in the woods two miles from Belden, Charles Stephenson was crushed to death by a saw log.

Robert Lockhart, at Stanton, Tenn., and Miss Katie Kline, at Patoka, were married over the long-distance telephone.

Special Census Agent Foster found a colored man servant at the home of David Braden in Indianapolis, who said he was born in 1796.

In a fight over a woman at the Big Four station in Terre Haute Charles Davis of that city shot three times at W. G. Elliott of Mattoon, Ill., without effect. One of the bullets, however, passed through a straw hat worn by Harry Labey, a newsboy, and knocked it from his head.

Crazed by drink, O. A. Barlow of Greensburg was the principal actor in a double tragedy, as a result of which he and his wife are dead. In company with his cousin, A. M. Lane of Hope, he went to his home, pulled a pistol and shot his wife through the heart. He fired a second shot through his own brain. The cause of the tragedy is not known.

Mrs. James Banta was shot and probably fatally wounded by Fred Gilbert, aged 20 years, near Craig. Gilbert had been paying attention to Pearl, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Banta. One afternoon, while she was riding in a buggy with a young man and another young lady, they were met by Gilbert, also in a buggy, on the road. Gilbert asked Miss Pearl to get out, as he desired to talk to her. She refused and gave him to understand she did not want to have anything further to do with him. It is said the parents objected to her keeping company with him.

FRIVOLOUS CUBAN BELLES.

Average Knows More of Complexion Powder than Baking Powder.

"The belles of the island often bedeck themselves with fireflies, in lieu of costlier but paler jewel lights," writes Edward Page Gaston, describing the sights to be seen "Up and Down a Cuban Street" in Women's Home Companion.

"These insects are nearly four times as large as are the 'lightning bugs' in the United States, and emit a beautiful glow from their breasts and underwings. The young women dearly love to imprison them in the gauzy folds of their summerland costumes and enmesh them in the hair in mock coronets. Sometimes a senorita will wear a brilliant firefly or two imprisoned in a tiny cage of gold or silver wire hanging as a bangle to her bracelet. It is an astonishing sight to see a light-bedecked Southern beauty shimmering in the soft night as if clad in a thousand gems, but having no other adornment than this economical one of fireflies. The poor use them in a more practical way for lighting their houses, by putting them under wire screens or in bottles, and they prove quite successful in this office of utility. At one time the laws of Spain forbade the poor in Cuba using any other means for house-lighting than fireflies, and the practice is still a common one long after this strange law has been abolished.

"The life of the women of the upper classes is a very narrow one, and the average girl has little else than marriage to look forward to. It behooves her to make an early marriage, too, while the charms of youth abide, for she will likely begin to fade at 30. Handsome matrons are infrequent, as in all tropic lands. Her mother teaches her very little else than in the way of personal accomplishments, and the natural result is that the average girl knows a great deal more regarding complexion powder than she does of baking powder; and her lack of other useful knowledge is in much the same proportion.

"The young men 'play the bear' in their love-making, as they do in all Spanish countries, and one will often see a love-taken youth standing in the public street for weary hours before the house of his chosen one, patiently waiting the time when the parental consent shall open the door to him."

"JIM THE SILENT."

He Is Considered the Richest Bachelor in the World.

James Henry Smith, the richest bachelor in the world, has suddenly entered New York society. He has about $50,000,000 in his own right. Society is delightfully expectant, and more than one mamma has an eye open to windward for her beautiful daughter. "Jim the Silent" has been James Henry Smith's nickname in Wall street for years. He has held an office at No. 10 Wall street for a long time, and an apartment at No. 1 West 13th street, in the Wilbraham. Few have been invited to his rooms, which are filled with the rarest bric-a-brac and thousands of well-covered books. He has seldom left them save for business. Society has never seen James Henry Smith before. He has been content with his books and his business—he has made a little modest fortune of two or three millions all by himself. True, he has been a member of many clubs—the Union, University, Raquet, Wool, Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht and the Downtown, but the clubmen have seldom seen him. Mr. Smith, with $50,000,000 at his command, has begun to entertain. He has begun in a very quiet way for a multimillionaire, but it is hoped he will entertain more lavishly. Coaching parties are now his fad, instead of an afternoon in the club-window with a magazine for his solitary companion.

Ring in Love with Witchcraft.

The ring has figured not only in domestic concerns—in affairs of love and witchcraft—but in church and state. The Greeks of ancient days elevated the ring from a mere bauble to a sentimental distinction, and ever since that time the ring has assumed a significance accorded to no other article of personal adornment. By them it was regarded as a type of eternity and became the emblem of stability and affection.

The "Lunatic at Large" is an amusing tale by a new author, J. Storer Clouston.

A new novel by Gertrude Dix is called "The Image Breakers," and will appear in the fall.

NEWS FROM OUR COLONIES.

Dean C. Worcester, one of the Philippine commissioners, tells the following story of the late Gen. Lawton: "I was with Gen. Lawton at the village of Imus after our soldiers occupied it. The natives were very glad to see us, and they soon formed an affection for Gen. Lawton, who never tired of listening to their complaints and helping them. The Filipinos are natural musicians, and I suggested one day that we teach, if possible, the village band of Imus to play the 'Star Spangled Banner.' Gen. Lawton was greatly interested. I took the leader of the band to my hut and whistled the air over and over for him and he wrote out the music after half an hour's work. Then he drilled the band, and in the course of a day or two the band played it excellently. The village priest was so glad to see Gen. Lawton that he introduced the 'Star Spangled Banner' into the regular mass music of the church, to show, as he expressed it, that he appreciated what the Americans had done for them. The priest told Gen. Lawton that he was always going to have the 'Star Spangled Banner' played as part of the mass, and as long as we were there he did so."

Mrs. Daniel Case of Honolulu, who is now visiting Topeka, Kan., relatives, has some interesting things to say of life in her new home. It is warm in Honolulu the year round; the thermometer never rises above 90 nor falls as low as 50. She is able to have fresh fruit on her table all the time. Honolulu is a very cosmopolitan city. Mrs. Case says that many families own their own private automobiles. Many of the residents are wealthy, and the churches and schools rank among the finest in the world. There are about 8,000 white people there, but there is little social life, as many of the women are engaged in doing missionary work for the outlying islands. There are a few women's clubs, but as a rule they do not long survive, as the climate is so enervating. The styles are of the latest, as they are introduced there even before they are in this country, and the people are quick to adopt them.

MRS. CASE.

American regulars in Negros seem to take kindly to the island, if their letters may be taken as evidence. Living is extremely cheap there for the native. The American is expected to live in a grander style, but he can satisfy this demand and still live handsomely on the modest salary a soldier draws from Uncle Sam. Thirty-one Mexican dollars per month they look upon as a grand income, entitling one to all the luxuries of life. The Chinese and the Turks are in their element among such a people, and their restriction seems imperative if the natives are to be protected in their simplicity. Negros is regarded by these soldiers as "the Eden of the southern seas."

The Sultan of Sulu, with a retinue including several of his wives, is in Singapore, ostensibly on a religious mission. A Hong Kong dispatch to a Manila paper says the Sultan has gone to Singapore in order to protest to the British against the Americans establishing a tariff against imports, claiming that it is a violation of the treaty of 1877 between Spain, Great Britain and Germany, Germany guaranteeing the Sulu islands free trade, whereas the Americans have established a tariff nearly doubling the prices of tobacco, rice and the Sulu staples of life, most of which are imported from Singapore.

Writers afflicted with a mania for unloading dialect stories on defenseless readers have in the Philippines a rich field to work. There are thirty dialects in operation in Luzon alone, and every one of them is loaded with agony and disturbance.

Upward of $11,000 has thus far been contributed toward the guaranteed fund of $70,000 to meet the expenses of the Cuban public school teachers who are to be taken to Cambridge, Mass., for a summer course of instruction at Harvard University.

The Havana Board of Health appointed by Gen. Ludlow has resigned on account of the municipality not wishing to accept its recommendations.

There is a larger percentage of urban residents in Cuba than in the United States. The population is 355 to the square mile.

Two hundred and fifty-seven vessels entered the ports of Porto Rico in the past three months.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

According to the School Review only 41.51 per cent of the pupils in American high schools are boys.

Several communities in lower Italy have recently petitioned the King for the abolition of compulsory education, because of its cost.

At Trinity College, which is now being built near Washington, D. C., for the higher education of women, the curriculum will be similar to Bryn Mawr, with courses in Greek, Latin, French, German, English, mathematics and history. It is expected that the fine buildings will be ready for occupancy in the autumn.

HORROR IN HOBOKEN

Awful Loss of Life and Destruction of Property by Fire.

BIG STEAMERS BURN.

Ocean Liners Bremen, Saale and Main Are Left Charred Hulks.

Huge Docks of the North German Lloyd Company Destroyed - Flames Communicate to Steamers Moored Along the Piers—Death List Placed at Nearly 300 and the Monetary Loss at $15,000,000 - Victims Entombed in the Blazing Hulks.

With a loss of probably 300 lives and the destruction of property valued at nearly $15,000,000, the entire pier system of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company at Hoboken, N. J., was burned Saturday by a fire originating among bales of cotton. The magnificent ocean liners Main, Saale and Bremen were destroyed by the flames and the peerless Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was scorched and only was snatched from the blazing piers and shifted into midstream by the liveliest kind of work.

Starting where cotton bales and oil barrels were stored on a pier of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, the flames swept over five acres of piers, destroyed the five large Campbell warehouses near by and attacked the ocean steamers lying at the piers. Three Lloyd steamers, the new Bremen, the Saale, survivor of many misfortunes, and the freighter Main, were burned down to the water line. The great steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, pride of the Lloyd line and the second largest steamer afloat, was seriously burned, while the Phoenicia of the Hamburg-American line was damaged and a score of lighters and harbor vessels were destroyed.

How Lives Were Lost.

Fully fifteen hundred people were working on the piers and the vessels when the fire began. There were the longshoremen removing and loading cargoes, the sailors on the vessels, and even a number of passengers on one ship which had just arrived. Cut off from shore by walls of fire, driven off the piers into the water, cooped up in cabins from which the sky could be seen through narrow portholes but no rescue could be had, hundreds of persons met fearful deaths. Nobody will ever know how great the number is.

Ships, piers and warehouses were all burning within nine minutes from the start of the fire. Then when the engines and fire tugs came they were powerless to put a limit to the flames. Not till a pier of the Hamburg-American line was blown up by dynamite was the fire under control. The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was saved by cutting the cables that bound her to the pier and towing her up stream. Then the Saale and the Bremen, one a mass of fierce flames which licked up masts and funnels, the other with fire bursting from every part of the superstructure, were towed down stream. The Saale carried many imprisoned men in her hull, and the Bremen was known to have seventeen men still alive at the pumps, but no power on earth could rescue them. The Main could not be freed and burned at the pier.

Water and fire combined to make one of the most fearful scenes of destruction of human life that New York has ever witnessed. The black column of smoke rolled straight to the east, where it was visible still in a single mass seventy miles away. Tens of thousands of people lined the banks of the river to witness the awful spectacle. The hospitals in New York, Hoboken and Jersey City were crowded with the injured, and men were being brought in by scores.

An Awful Spectacle.

Those who gathered along the shores of the Hudson river to witness the great conflagration saw a spectacle that they can never forget and one that always will have a conspicuous place in the history of New York. River and bay were enveloped in a pall of black smoke, through which angry flames, bursting us from volcanoes, on the Jersey shore and in the water itself, leaped like red spheres into the sky. The surface of the water was covered with floating and blazing masses of freight, thrown in haste from the doomed vessels—all unnoticed in the mad race to rescue more precious human life being sacrificed in the great ships.

The greatest loss of life appears to have been on the Saale. She carried 450 people and was to have sailed for Boston during the afternoon. When the police boat captain went aboard of her with his rescue party he saw bodies lying all about the deck. The steamship Bremen carried a crew of 300 men, the Main 250. The burning or smoldering remains of canal boats, lighters and barges were scattered all the way down the river and bay to Staten Island and Governor's Island. Each of these craft added something to the list of the dead.

Caused by Explosion.

The fire originated on pier 3 of the North German Lloyd series. It was caused by the explosion of a benzine tank, so the fire fighters declared, which ignited a large quantity of cotton awaiting shipment. The fire was first discovered by a watchman on the pier at 4 o'clock. He saw a small streak of flame shoot from a bale of cotton and immediately gave the alarm.

At the sight of the first burst of flames scores of tugs hastened to the piers, drawn by the hope of salvage. The first thing to which they addressed themselves was to extricate the beautiful steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse from her dangerous position. She was already afire on her starboard side forward. She was drawn into the stream and dropped with the ebb tide and put down her anchor. She was surrounded by fireboats and tugs. It was fully twenty-five minutes before the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was out of reach of the flames which were encompassing piers and steamers.

Her commander maintained the utmost discipline, and as the vessel was being towed into the stream let down lifeboats and sent his officers and crew to the rescue of the unfortunate creatures who were struggling for their lives.

The Saale and the Bremen were towed out five minutes after the larger steamer had been carried into the stream. It was impossible to tow the Main, and she was left to burn and sink at her pier.

Scenes of indescribable horror followed. Frantic men were seen at the portholes of the Saale vainly beckoning toward tugs and small boats and lifting up their hands in their entreaties for help. Their escape from above was absolutely cut off. They could look out of the small portholes and for the last time see the blue sky and the shimmering green of the Hudson's estuary. Scores of them died in this way. Some of them were clinging to strips of bagging and ropes which had been thrown to them by the deck hands of neighboring tugs. One man was pulled through a narrow porthole of the Saale, and only one, for he was small of stature and very slender. The score of poor wretches who saw him escape from the porthole were last seen clutching the brass edge of the aperture and reviling their more fortunate fellow.

Whisky Fed the Fire.

In the middle of pier 3 was a large quantity of cotton bales and alongside this inflammable substance were 100 barrels of whisky. The fire had its origin in the cotton and was fed by whisky. The casks which contained the spirits exploded and their contents were scattered over the inflammable merchandise upon the pier. The fire swept over the pier

PROPERTY LOSS IS ENORMOUS.

Steamship and Dock Companies Great Pecuniary Sufferers.

The property loss can simply be approximated. A conservative estimate made by a prominent fire underwriter places the entire damage at not less than $10,000,000. The three docks of the North German Lloyd line are total losses, with all their contents. The pier of the Thingvalla line is totally wiped away, and an extension which had just been built on the Hamburg-American line's expanse of piers was burned down to the pile tops. The warehouses of Palmer Campbell, which were across the street from the North German Lloyd line docks, suffered greatly and a number of houses along the street were scorched badly.

The loss on the steamship properties and to other companies is estimated approximately as follows: The steamship Main of the North German Lloyd line cost $1,500,000 outside of the cargo, fittings and stores. The loss is placed at $1,300,000 for the vessel and about $400,000 for the fittings and stores and cargo that was aboard of her. The steamship Bremen of the North German Lloyd cost $1,250,000 and her fittings and cargo were valued at $300,000. The cargo and stores were entirely consumed and the loss to the vessel proper will amount to at least $700,000. The Saale, the steamship which will have the most horrible story of death to unfold when the divers go down in her, cost the North German Lloyd Company $1,250,000 and the fittings and cargo were valued at $300,000. The damage to the vessel proper is placed at about $800,000.

The damage done to the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse is estimated at $25,000. The three docks of the North German Lloyd line, which were burned to the water's edge, are estimated to have cost $300,000. The docks were well filled with merchandise just received from abroad and valued at $350,000. The Thingvalla pier, which was entirely consumed, was valued at $50,000, counting the stores which were on it. The Hamburg-American line dock, which had just been completed as an extension to their great pier and which was destroyed in order to prevent the spread of the flames, was dam-

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL

New York—Reports of declines in commodity prices continue to come in, and there has been some falling off in the volume of business. The months of July and August always have been a comparatively dull season in nearly all lines of trade. The fiscal year of the Government has ended, and advices from Washington state that exports estimate that exports of merchandise will reach the enormous total of $1,400,000,000, an increase of $173,000,000 as compared with the preceding year. In the stock market the situation is still one that tends to conservatism. Buying orders are being held back because of the presidential campaign, the reports of crop damage and the Chinese complications. The prevailing idea now is that the market will continue dull and rather narrow for several weeks.

Chicago—The speculative fever in the wheat market gave no sign of abatement during the week, although the trend of prices was reversed and the previous week's advance all but obliterated. The pace had been too fast, and, alarmed over the probability of future scarcity, the operators figuring on a rise lost sight of the present plenty. Because of the latter condition the speculators lacked the assistance of the millers and shippers, who on the eve of deliveries from the new crop were naturally desirous of awaiting the effect upon the market of the early movement before buying more than was necessary for their immediate wants. There would appear to be no remedy for the shortage of spring wheat except such economy in its use as must come from higher prices. But it is not likely that speculation will do much more toward the application of this remedy until the test of experience from diminished supplies has been applied and shall give clearer indications than at present exist of their actual necessity. Unless the present information concerning the crops of Europe proves to be wrong, the importing nations will require as much wheat from this side as they took during the crop year now about to close. That such a quantity can be supplied at any such prices commanded for the previous crop is out of the question. Corn hung in the balance between the influences of reported small reserves of old corn and a favorable week for the growing crop.

VON KETTELER CUT TO PIECES.

Brutal Butchery of the German Minister by Chinese.

Official dispatches received by the consular body at Shanghai, a cablegram says, confirm in the fullest manner the report of the butchery of Baron Von Ketteler, the German minister, June 18. The ambassador was riding in Legation street when he was attacked by Chinese troops and Boxers, dragged from his horse and killed. His body was hacked to pieces with swords. The German legation and six other buildings were burned and a number of servants of the legations were killed and their bodies thrown into the flames. Official confirmation of this ghastly business has created the utmost consternation among the consuls general of the powers. The consuls entertain little hope that any foreigners are left alive in the capital.

Two secret imperial decrees have fallen into the hands of foreigners, according to a special dispatch from Shanghai, which says the first, dated June 20, recites events around the capital, and attributes the trouble to religious fanaticism against Christians, leading to violent outbreaks which the Government is unable to suppress. Foreign troops are between Taku and Peking, and the foreign relations have reached a desperate point. The Government, therefore, calls upon all the viceroys and governors to show their loyalty to the throne and to raise armies and funds in defense of Peking and to defeat foreign dictation. The second, which is dated June 21, eulogizes the Boxers as loyal, true men, who, though not soldiers, have defeated the foreigners advancing on Peking, and commands the officials to co-operate heartily in the patriotic work.

FILIPINOS KEEP ON FIGHTING.

Fifty Rebels Killed in Numerous Battles They Started.

A week's scouting in northern Luzon resulted in fifty rebels being killed and forty wounded. One American was killed. Troops operating in North Ilocos burned six of the barracks belonging to Gen. Tino's forces and captured Tino's correspondence. Gen. Tino with 200 of his men armed with rifles escaped. Near Manguris the Americans attacked and defeated a large body of bolomen.

At Angeles Gen. Aquino surrendered to Gen. Grant. At Tarlac three officers and fifteen Filipinos armed with rifles surrendered to Lieut. Burns' scouts. At Pampanga the rebels liberated a prisoner named Aiken, who was sick. He reports that Capt. Charles D. Roberts of the Thirty-fifth regiment is well. The Filipinos attacked the town of Benguet twice. The garrison succeeded in driving off the insurgents.

The American Philippines commission is studying the approaching necessity for the substitution for army officers performing civil functions of civil service men, and has asked the Washington Government to send examiners to the Philippines to hold civil service examinations there at the same time as in the United States, with the idea of creating a Philippine civil service board.

SCENE OF FIRE WHERE HUNDREDS LOST THEIR LIVES.

with greater rapidity than the devouring elements travel over the dry grass of the prairies. It caught the awnings and rigging of steamers and spread with inconceivable rapidity to the highly polished woodwork of the cabins and the inflammable cargoes which were being stored in the holds. Within nine minutes every steamer and every pier was ablaze. Six hundred longshoremen were at work stowing the cargoes and fully 900 sailors, engineers and stewards were on board the vessels. Many of the men met miserable deaths. How many may never be known.

FIGHT PITIFULLY FOR LIFE.

Terrible Scenes Enacted on the Burning Vessels.

Men on the Main trampled each other and were burned alive as they sought vainly to flee.

William Kootz, a 16-year-old boy, a steward on the Bremen, jumped from the vessel and swam to the pier.

Fully 100 men were seen to jump over the sides of the Saale as she was being pulled out into the stream.

Despairing cries of those back of the portholes could be heard. They seemed to be struggling for what little air and respite the holes gave those already there.

Down near the water line of the Saale a swarthy faced sailor could be seen dipping a long towel into the water and bathing with it his blistered face. He was calmly awaiting death.

Robert Fowler, a plumber who had been working between decks on board the Bremen, crawled on his hands and knees along the deck among a crowd of frenzied sailors and leaped overboard.

A woman rushed to the deck of the Bremen and held her baby out imploringly toward the men on a tugboat near by. They could not approach, however, and the woman dropped the infant into the water. She hesitated to follow, but a moment later her dress caught fire and she threw herself into the river.

Several men were stuck fast in the portholes of the Saale while the ship was gradually sinking. It was a terrible sight. Some of the men, most of all of whom were foreigners, called in their own tongue to "Help us for God's sake." Their struggles were something frantic. Nothing could be done for them. The upper part of the vessel was a living furnace. A tug crew tried to get the prisoners through the portholes, but the holes were too small. The poor fellows struck in despair as they saw the tug drawing away.

aged to the extent of $15,000. The warehouses of Palmer Campbell, houses E, F, G and H, were burned. The damage to buildings alone amount to at least $50,000, and the contents $1,250,000.

One lighter containing 5,000 bags of sugar was destroyed, the loss being $27,000. Eight barges and eleven canalboats were either burned or sunk with their cargoes. Total valuation $125,000. Minor losses on floating property burned at the fire proper or set on fire by burning driftwood will amount to about $20,000.

Four of the North German Lloyd fleet suffered. The unlucky Saale was totally destroyed, the Bremen will probably be a total loss, the record-holding Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was badly damaged, the Main was sunk at her pier. The Bremen was one of the six twin-screw vessels built in 1896 and 1897. She had heretofore been singularly fortunate and had never met with serious mishap. Her maiden trip was made in June, 1897, from Bremen to New York City. She was a steel vessel, 550 feet long.

Accidents have marked the career of the Saale since she was built in Glasgow in 1886 for the North German Lloyd line. Shortly after her first trip she ran aground, but was rescued without injury. She again went aground off Flynn's Knoll in 1896, but got off unharmed. The Saale on Aug. 4, 1892, during a fog, ran into and sunk the Norwegian bark Tordenskjold. No one was injured. On June 12, 1889, the Saale struck an iceberg, but escaped with little damage. The Saale was a single screw steel boat, 438 feet long.

The Wilhelm der Grosse, which had just arrived at the North German Lloyd piers, was badly scorched at the bows by the fire, is the second largest ocean steamer afloat, being surpassed only by the Oceanic, recently launched. The ship is even more famous for speed than for size. In its maiden trip across the Atlantic in the fall of 1897 it broke three ocean records. It made the passage in five days twenty-two hours and thirty-five minutes from Southampton, which was two hours better than the record run of the St. Paul a short time before. At the same time the best single day's run on record had been made. The Kaiser Wilhelm is 625 feet long, 66 feet beam and 43 feet deep. These figures, however, do not mean so much to a landsman as the statement of the fact that the boat has four smokestacks, each twelve feet in diameter and 106 feet high.

The accommodations provided are for 400 first-class passengers, 350 second class and 800 steerage, and the complement of officers and men is 450. The bunker capacity is 4,500 tons.

Look in your mirror today. Take a last look at your gray hair. Its surely may be the last if you want it so; you needn't keep your gray hair a week longer than you wish. There's no guesswork about this; it's sure every time.

LIBBY, McNEILL & LEBBY, Chicago.

With this issue Vol. 7, No. 3, commences. It means that the HERALD has meandered down the rocky road for six years, and although its trials and vicissitudes have been many, it bids fair to float to the breezes for many years to come. We are fully cognizant of the fact that there are a few in this immediate vicinity that would like to see the HERALD pass into oblivion, but like the immortal Grant, it will not be "downed." Although some have, who pose as church members and Sunday school teachers, tried through chicanery to utterly ruin the HERALD, yet it weathered the blasts and talks weekly to thousands of readers. To our friends we extend most heartfelt thanks for their liberal patronage, and promise to give them a better paper in the future. As this is the commencement of a new volume, we urge our subscribers to call and renew their subscriptions, as we need the money.

A Contemptible Falsehood.

The following was published in the Lounger's column of the Logansport Chronicle two weeks ago, and was copied in the Kewanna Herald last week:

"On the Vandalia train south from Culver, last Tuesday afternoon, were several delegates to an Epworth League meeting at Kewanna. They were fairly good vocalists and kept 'You Can't be a Soldier of the Lord' on the wing from Culver to Bruce Lake. An old gentleman asked one of the singers if the aggregation was a Salvation Army band out on a frolic. She said not, that it was an Epworth League, that their society reclaimed hundreds of fallen creatures every year, and their efforts should be encouraged. He retorted loud enough to be heard all over the car: 'My dear madame, I notice in my town that every bum comes to Jesus every winter, signs the pledge, and goes to the devil as soon as spring commences.' There was silence in the car from Bruce Lake to Kewanna."

As the local editor of the HERALD was one of those Leaguers, we happen to be in a position to know that the above is a base perversion, made up out of whole cloth, emanating from the brain of a man who should be in better business than wilfully slandering a body of young people who are at least trying to do right and are doing a great work among the younger class of society. The only singing that was done was just as the train was pulling into Kewanna when the Leaguers struck up "Let a Little Sunshine In." No such conversation took place, to our knowledge, and altogether the article is a bundle of lies from start to finish.

The Celebration at Argos.

The celebration at Argos July 3, in honor of national Independence Day, was a grand success so far as drawing a crowd is concerned, there being at the least calculation from four to five thousand people present, who in the broiling sun chased each other up and down the streets in search of amusement, which failed to materialize to any great extent. There was a balloon ascension at 10 o'clock, a ball game in the afternoon between Kewanna and Bremen, and was won by the latter, who secured a $50 purse; and the end came by another balloon ascension at 9 p. m. The small boy was there with his torpedoes, fire-crackers and other combustibles, which helped to relieve the monotony. The merchants, restaurants and ———, well, we draw the line, did a tremendous business, while at intervals the famous Argos band interspersed excellent music. All in all, Argos is a hustler, and can give any other town in the county pointers when it comes to drawing crowds, as the business men are right at the front when it comes to advertising their city as a "Summer from Hummersville."

Capt. de Blumenthal, who has been one of the able instructors at the Academy for the past three years, sailed for Europe last week. He will visit the Paris exposition and other points of interest in France, Germany and other foreign countries before his return. We are pained to chronicle that he has severed his connections with the Culver Military Academy and will fill a chair at the Chicago University the ensuing year. We also understand that a Chicago University professor of very high attainments will be his successor. Capt. de Blumenthal will be sadly missed, not only at the school, but by the citizens in general, as he was a most agreeable and courteous gentleman to all those coming in contact with him.
