The lingering cough following grippe calls for One Minute Cough Cure. For all throat and lung troubles this is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. Prevents consumption. T. E. Slattery.

We have seen Mr. Bryan's paper called "The Commoner" and must candidly confess that we are disappointed in its typographical appearance, editorial matter, and the whole blamed thing in general. The name "Commoner" is very applicable, as no more commoner sheet can be found outside a patent medicine house. Yet, Bill may improve if you give him time, and may give us something worth reading fifteen or twenty years hence.

Chas. Hayes is in Chicago this week purchasing horses for Hayes & Son's livery business. They will run about 18 driving horses the coming season, and will be the best roadster obtainable. Sometime since Schuyler Overmeyer, who lives southeast of Culver, had a fellow appear on one of his fingers. In a very short time it caused no end of pain. Like Oliver Twist, children ask for more when given One Minute Cough Cure. Mothers endorse it highly for erup. It quickly cures all coughs and colds and every throat and lung trouble. It is a specific for grippe and asthma and has long been a well known remedy for a whooping cough. T. E. Slattery.

The farmers of this section are invited to be present and all others who are interested. The interest shown at this time will determine what is to be done. Farmers living in Starke, Pulaski and Fulton counties are especially invited to attend this meeting.

CHAIN SAVES LIFE.

BOYS RESCUE A COMRADE FROM LAKE MICHIGAN.

Solid Wall of Ice Offers Lad in Water No Foothold—Companions' Presence of Mind—Fearful Fall of Two Men from a Balloon.

Five boys formed a human framework to rescue Sidney Morrison from death in the icy waters of Lake Michigan at Chicago. Morrison had been blown from the ice by a gust of wind. He could not swim, but the ice rose above him for seven feet with no ledge to which he could hold. His companions dropped an overcoat over the ice wall, but it was too short. Then Jack Kennedy, with his ankles held by Earl Stearns and John Mason, they in turn being held by Arthur Corcoran and Richard Wurst, was lowered to the rescue. He grasped Morrison under the arms and with great difficulty the two were drawn up to safety. Morrison was unconscious from his struggle in the water, and was carried by his companions through the park and revived. He was able to go unassisted to his home.

CRAZY SNAKE SENTENCED.

Punishment Fixed at Eight Years in Prison and Then Suspended.

The winding up of the Snake trouble came the other day in the United States Court at Muskogee, I. T., as arranged between Chitto Harjo and his band of Indians, through attorneys. It was agreed that they all plead guilty before United States Commissioner Sansom to conspiracy. After pleading they were called into the court, which was in regular session, Judge Thomas presiding, and then, after a forcible charge on the grave offense charged against Crazy Snake and his band, the judge sentenced them to eight years in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $250 each, but agreed to suspend sentence if they would go to their homes and not commit any such acts again.

TWO MEN FALL FROM BALLOON.

Coleman's back was broken and Boyne's shoulder and legs being struck by one of the men, a small boy was seriously hurt in the same way.

Five Die by an Explosion.

Five of them were confined in a drift. One of the men accidentally discharged some unexploded shots and a box of powder was set off. The five men in the drift were instantly killed.

McKinley Takes the Oath.

With impressive ceremonial and pomp of military and civic pageant William McKinley took the inaugural oath of the presidential office at Washington, D. C.

SPEECH OF THE PRESIDENT.

McKinley, in His Inaugural, Reviews Events of Four Years.

President McKinley, in his inaugural address, reviewed the events of his administration. He said the national verdict of 1896 had for the most part been executed. The result of war with Spain, which came without warning, had been signally favorable to American arms, and in the highest degree honorable to the government. "We are now at peace with the world," said the President, "and it is my fervent prayer that if difficulties arise between us and other powers they may be settled by peaceful arbitration and that hereafter we may be spared the horrors of war." President McKinley's address in part is as follows:

Intrusted by the people for a second time with the office of President, I enter upon its administration appreciating the great responsibilities which attach to this renewed honor and commission, promising unreserved devotion on my part to their faithful discharge and reverently invoking for my guidance the direction and favor of Almighty God. I should shrink from the duties this day assumed if I did not feel that in their performance I should have the co-operation of the wise and patriotic men of all parties. The national purpose is indicated through a national method of ascertaining the public will. When once it is registered it is a law to us all, and faithful observance should follow its decrees.

Country Is Reunited.

Strong hearts and helpful hands are needed, and, fortunately, we have them in every part of our beloved country. We are reunited. Sectionalism has disappeared. Division on public questions can no longer be traced by the war maps of 1861. Existing problems demand the thought and quicken the conscience of the country, and the responsibility for their presence as well as for their righteous settlement rests upon us all. There are some national questions in the solution of which patriotism should exclude partisanship. Magnifying their difficulties will not take them off our hands nor facilitate their adjustment. The prophets of evil were not the builders of the republic, nor in its crises since have they saved or served it. The faith of the fathers was a mighty force in its creation, and the faith of their descendants has wrought its progress and furnished its defenders.

As heretofore, so hereafter will the nation demonstrate its fitness to administer any new estate which events devolve upon it. The path of progress is seldom smooth. New things are often found hard to do. Our fathers found them so. We find them so. Opposition has confronted every onward movement of the republic from its opening hour until now, but without success. The republic has marched on and on and its every step has exalted freedom and humanity. We are undergoing the same ordeal as did our predecessors nearly a century ago. We are following the course they blazed. They triumphed.

The public events of the last four years are too near to justify recital. Some of them were unforeseen; many of them momentous and far-reaching in their consequences to ourselves and our relations with the rest of the world. The part which the United States bore so honorably in the thrilling scenes in China, while new to American life, has been in harmony with its true spirit and best traditions, and in dealing with the results its policy will be that of moderation and fairness.

Free Government for Cuba.

We face at this moment a most important question—that of the future relations of the United States and Cuba. With our near neighbors we must remain close friends. The declaration of the purposes of this government in the resolution of April 20, 1898, must be made good. Ever since the evacuation of the island by the army of Spain the executive, with all practicable speed has been assisting its people in the successive steps necessary to the establishment of a free and independent government, prepared to assume and perform the obligations of international law which now rest upon the United States under the treaty of Paris. The convention elected by the people to frame a constitution is approaching the completion of its labors. The transfer of American control to the new government is of such great importance, involving an obligation resulting from our intervention and the treaty of peace, that I am glad to be advised by the recent act of Congress of the policy which the legislative branch of the government deems essential to the best interests of Cuba and the United States.

The peace which we are pledged to leave to the Cuban people must carry with it the guaranties of permanence. Our enfranchisement of the people will not be completed until free Cuba shall be a reality, not a name; a perfect entity, not a hasty experiment bearing within itself the elements of failure.

Restoring Peace in Philippines.

Congress has indicated no form of government for the Philippine Islands. It has, however, provided an army to enable the executive to suppress insurrection, restore peace, give security to the inhabitants and establish the authority of the United States throughout the archipelago. The Congress having added the sanction of its authority to the powers already possessed and exercised by the executive under the constitution, thereby leaving with the executive the responsibility for the government of the Philippines, I shall continue the efforts already begun until order shall be restored throughout the islands, and as fast as conditions permit will establish local governments. The settled purpose long ago prevailed to afford the inhabitants of the islands self-government as fast as they were ready for it will be pursued with earnestness and fidelity. Our countrymen should not be received. We are not waging war against the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands. A portion of them are making war against the United States.

Congress.

In the Senate on Thursday an immense amount of business was disposed of, but not a single point raised was sharply controverted. The river and harbor bill, carrying appropriations of more than $50,000,000, was passed without a word of discussion, and the Senate adopted the conference report on the war revenue reduction measure without disturbing the smoothness of the proceedings. Final conference reports were made and agreed to on the diplomatic and consular and the agricultural appropriation bills and another conference on the postoffice bill was ordered. The last hour and a half of the session was devoted to consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill. In the House conference report on the war revenue reduction bill adopted without division. Final reports on the diplomatic and consular and agricultural appropriation bills were adopted. The major part of the day was devoted to the bill to promote the efficiency of the revenue cutter service.

In the Senate during the greater part of the session on Friday the sundry civil appropriation bill was under consideration. An interesting and at times lively debate was participated in on a resolution to discharge the committee on interstate commerce from consideration of the bill requiring railroad companies to make detailed investigations of all accidents involving loss of life on their lines and to report to the interstate commerce commission. No action was taken. The old question as to the reclamation of public lands in the arid and semi-arid sections of the country was brought up, but the efforts to attach an amendment to the measure appropriating money for the work was defeated. The bills appropriating $500,000 for the Buffalo Pan-American exposition, $5,000,000 for the St. Louis Louisiana purchase exposition and $250,000 for the Charleston, S. C., interstate and West Indian exposition were attached to the bill as riders. By 56 to 16 the Senate sustained a point of order against Mr. Morgan's Nicaragua canal amendment to the bill. Passed sundry civil bill at 1:15 a. m. The House concurred in Cuban and Philippine amendments to the army appropriation bill—159 to 134. Final conference report upon the Indian appropriation bill was adopted and a number of minor bills were put through the final stages. The conference report on the St. Louis exposition bill (which agreed to Sunday closing) was agreed to and the bill was sent back to conference. A motion to concur in the Charleston exposition amendment was defeated—84 to 132. The revenue cutter service bill was sidetracked early in the day by a vote of the House.

The chief event of Saturday was the passage by both houses of what is known as the omnibus public building bill. It increases the cost of buildings in thirty-two States by $2,000,000. The day was devoid of exciting incident in either house, though the galleries were thronged with sightseers. The Senate passed the deficiency bill. Throughout the day the House was in the throes of the closing hours of the session, with many measures clamoring for attention, and with crowded galleries looking down upon the weary legislators. Work began at 9 a. m. and proceeded until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when a recess was taken until 9:30 p. m. to permit conference reports to be framed. Under suspension of the rules a number of important bills were passed, including those for a national standardizing bureau, for conferring bronze medals on the enlisted men of the navy and marine corps for distinguished heroism, and to amend the Chinese exclusion laws and the omnibus public buildings bill. The legislative appropriation bill was also finally disposed of, and many conferences were advanced.

Both houses put in a large share of Sunday under the legislative fiction that it was still Saturday. The House was in session from 2 to 6 in the afternoon, and resuming at 8 o'clock it worked on into the night to dispose of the conference reports which crowded in upon it. There was a big fight over the Senate amendment to the sundry civil bill, which linked together the fate of the St. Louis, Buffalo and Charleston exposition appropriations. The House refused to concur. The conference report on the deficiency appropriation bill was concurred in, thus disposing of that measure. Conference agreements were reached on general deficiency, postoffice and naval appropriation bills, the Senate receding on Holland submarine boat amendment to the last named. The Senate passed a bill urged by labor men regulating safety appliances on railroad trains.

Senator Carter of Montana talked the river and harbor bill to death Monday and the Senate adjourned at 11:55 o'clock without giving out the "pork" contained in that great appropriation measure. Starting in early in the morning, Mr. Carter began his speech with the avowed intention of continuing until the life of the Fifty-sixth Congress should have expired. After a few weak and futile efforts to interrupt him the other Senators gave up all idea of preventing him from completing his talk. Finally at 11:55 o'clock the Montana Senator closed his remarkable address and Senators Hoar of Massachusetts and Cockrell of Missouri announced that the Fifty-sixth session of Congress had completed its work. The action of the Senate on the sundry civil bill was followed by the Senate receding from the Charleston amendment to the St. Louis exposition bill, which had passed the House as a separate measure. This action passed the bill appropriating $5,000,000 for St. Louis. Very little interest attached to the proceedings of the House. Most of the time was consumed in recesses, these being taken at frequent intervals in anticipation of conference reports on appropriation bills. The bill carrying appropriations for the postal service was passed and the sundry civil bill was finally acted upon.

A UNITED STATES SENATOR

Says Pe-ru-na, the Catarrh Cure, Gives Strength and Appetite.

Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator from North Dakota.

Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator from North Dakota, personally endorses Peruna, the great catarrh cure and tonic. In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, at Columbus, Ohio, written from Washington, D. C., Senator Roach says:

"Persuaded by a friend, I have used Peruna as a tonic, and I am glad to testify that it has greatly helped me in strength, vigor, and appetite. I have been advised by friends that it is remarkably efficacious as a cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."—W. N. Roach, Larimore, North Dakota.

No other remedy can take the place of Peruna

Mr. Ed J. Makinson, contractor and builder, 610 Grand Block, Wabash street, St. Paul, Minn., says:

Mr. E. J. Makinson, Contractor and Builder.

"Many doctor bills can be saved by the use of Peruna. I have all my friends taking Peruna, and I have heard nothing but praise from them. Last fall I had a bad cough. I took four bottles of Peruna and it cured me. I am inclined towards consumption, as all my family have died with it. I weigh 185 pounds, and I believe it is Peruna that has given me such good health."—J. Makinson.

remedy, Peruna, comes as a great boon. Not only is it more successful in curing catarrh than the treatment of the catarrh specialists, but it is within the reach of every person in this land. Peruna can be bought at any drug store and is a remedy without equal for catarrh in all forms, coughs, colds, bronchitis, consumption, and all other climatic diseases of winter. Peruna is not a guess, nor an experiment; it is an absolute, scientific certainty. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna. Let no one persuade you that some other remedy will do nearly as well. There is no other systematic remedy for catarrh but Peruna.

Mr. Byron J. Kirkhuff, attorney, counsellor-at-law, writes from 691 Gates ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., the following:

Byron J. Kirkhuff, Counselor at Law.

"I have used your Peruna for catarrh and find its curative powers all you recommend. It cured me of a very bad attack, and though I suffered for years I feel entirely relieved, and if it will benefit others, I gladly give it my indorsement."—B. J. Kirkhuff.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

DON'T FUSS AND FRET.

It doesn't pay to fuss and fret when anything goes wrong. Instead of wailing when you lose, just sing a merry song. It's always better while you work to whistle than to whine, and when luck fails, it never pays to sit down and repine.

The man who makes the best of things shows sturdy common sense. The chances are that he will rise to fame and eminence; but if he doesn't, none the less he'll make the most of life. And women will envy and congratulate his wife.

A Daughter of the Veldt.

Experiences of a Deafened Briton

It is a bad thing to travel in a country during war time, even when you are familiar with its language, but it is far worse when you only know enough of the native tongue to make yourself misunderstood. I have managed to get myself into some gorgeously picturesque situations on this account, and more than once have vowed to master the Boer dialect, or wreck my talking apparatus at the attempt. It is not an easy language to learn. It is very like their kopjes—steep, rough, rocky, and disjointed; and, like the kopjes, you can't take it by storm, but must climb steadily and with patience, and make sure of one step before you venture on the next. It is a superb language to use when one is driving bullocks or blacks; the first sentence seems to roll off the lips like a malediction, and the second chops off short like the bark of a toy terrier. I should ask for no finer form of speech on earth if I wanted to curse mine enemy, but how on earth they manage to make love with it passes my apprehension. Still, I thought it might come in handy if only to frighten Australian horses with, and kept constantly on the lookout for a chance to learn; and verily my chance came unto me in due season. I didn't learn the dialect, but I learned something else which may prove equally useful in later life.

We had pitched camp for a week, in order to allow the ever-fading provisions to catch up with us; so, obtaining permission from head-quarters, I saddled up and rode out to do a little scouting on my own account. For I have long since learned that it's no use hanging around camp if you want to know anything about the real life of the folk who dwell in the land. About six miles from our lines I ran against a dainty little farm-house cuddled up against the slope of a shrub-covered kopje. On one side of the dwelling a trellis-work of vines broke the wind, and on the other a long, double row of orange-trees beautified the scene. Tall, graceful poplar trees whispered in the wind at both front and rear, while a pretty flower-garden, fragrant with flowers, spread far away in front of the substantial dwelling. I was admiring these things from my horse's back when it suddenly dawned upon me that I had possibly played the imbecile in straying so far from camp. But it was too late to hang back. If the farmer-folk were friendly, I was in luck; for the inside of such a dwelling could not be ill supplied with creature comforts. If, however, they were hostile, I was at their mercy, I had no desire to match my pony's pace against the flight of a Mauser bullet; so humming a song and thinking of a psalm, I rode forward as if certain of a kindly welcome. An elderly Boer with a kindly face met me at the door, and gave me the time of day with all civility, a lad took hold of my bridle, and I swung myself out of my saddle just in time to receive a civil greeting from the farmer's wife—healthy, wholesome, substantial, well-fed, and well-clothed. They invited me inside, and there their four daughters introduced themselves to me. They all talked English as well as I could, and before I had been there twenty seconds I had arrived at the conclusion that I should never get a better chance to study the language of the people of our foes, and determined to sacrifice myself upon the flinty shrine of duty. Three of the maidens were plain-faced, good, honest-looking girls, but the fourth had a face many a man would risk his life for.

So much of my whole career has been passed amid the rougher and more rugged scenes of life that a description of dainty womanhood comes awkwardly from me. But I have read so much about the ugliness and clumsiness of the Boer women in British journals that I should like to try and describe this daughter of the veldt, although only a farmer's daughter. I do not know if she should be called short or tall, but her cheek could have nestled comfortably on the shoulder of a fairly tall man. I don't know how much hair she had, but there was enough of it to make a fellow feel as if it didn't matter a rap if half the earth was bald. It was not red, nor yellow; it was like honey, kissed by sunshine. She had the sort of forehead which one never sees on the face of a fool. Nature's sign-board for an emporium for brains. Her eyes were large, brown, and fearless, not bold, nor yet wavering. Her mouth was perfect, not one of those sepulchres which disfigure some feminine faces, not childishly small like a bud bursting into bloom, but a strong, true mouth, large enough for a prayer to slip through, but not big enough to swear with. Her waist would just about fill the crook of a strong man's arm, and make him feel that there was no room for anything else under heaven. Her hands were shapely, brown, and strong, cracked a little by wind and weather; not toy hands, but hands that could spank a baby, or help a husband back to paths of rectitude when all the world had damned him past redemption.

So she looked when I saw her, and I said unto my soul: "Verily it is a good thing for a man to know something of his enemies' language," and I made up my mind to learn. It was the fifth evening after that, and I had registered my fifth visit to the farm, when an event befell which put an end to my studies in Dutch for the time being. I had dined with the farmer, the plain sisters had made music for me, they had lifted up their voices in song, also, for I was an honored guest, having been enabled to do some little deed of kindness through the favor of our courteous general to a relative of the ladies who was a prisoner in our lines. They had given me blankets and rugs for the poor beggar, and the general had handed them to the man. The night was a beautiful one, so, lighting a cigar, I rambled down toward the quarter-mile long avenue of orange-trees; it was to be my last visit, for our troops were on the move at dawn. As I sauntered forward I heard the rustle of a woman's skirts amid the bushes on my right, and looking in that direction I saw the navy-blue dress and the red-gold hair of the lady who had been teaching me Dutch. I had not many seconds to look at her, but brief as the time was I had long enough to notice that one hand the blue skirts switched up so that about a foot of white petticoat was displayed. I also noticed that she was heading toward the orange walk, which I had long since learned was known in the family as "the lovers' walk." She did not look in my direction, did not turn toward me at all, but like many another fool I was puffed up in my folly. What harm is there in it, I mused, if I take my last lesson in Dutch in the shade of the orange trees? Tossing my cigar away, I sauntered after the flying figure, out of the flower-garden, over the field, into the shady walk. I meandered like a he-goat through a gap in a hedge, I walked about fifty yards, and saw no one, heard no one. Then all at once I found myself looking right into the face of a big, hairy savage, who wore a tweed coat and a bandolier full of cartridges; in his hands he carried a handy little Mauser carbine.

"Well, Mr. Spy," said the hairy individual, "you are my prisoner."

I tried to smile, but somehow the springs in my face had got out of order and would not work.

"What did you want sneaking after me for, you beastly Englishman," snarled the man with the gun. "I could have shot you last night, and the night before, and the night before that, if I had liked; but I did not want to bring trouble on this farm. What did you want to hunt me for?"

I found my tongue for a moment, then, "Hunt you be blowed; didn't know such a chap existed."

He lowered his carbine an inch or two. "Then what are you doing in the lovers' walk?"

"What are you doing here?" I blurted.

We stared at each other like two grass-fed calves in the starlight, and I edged a foot or two away from the gun. Just then I heard the patter of girlish feet on the gravel behind me, and, turning my head, saw one of the plain sisters hurrying toward us, and almost at the same second the reddish-gold head of the "beauty," the head of the girl who had been teaching me Dutch, passed from a patch of shadow into the streak of starlight where the hairy young giant was standing fondling his gun. I saw her clasp his arm, heard her hurriedly whisper something in Dutch, which caused the giant to grin as if half his head ached to part company with the other half. The beauty pointed toward me and the plain sister, who had come to a halt beside me. The plain girl put her hand kindly on my shoulder, and whispered: "Don't you think it's too chilly out here?"

Chilly was no name for it. It was as cold as Klondike. The sight of that carbine in the starlight had taken all the warmth out of the atmosphere as far as I was concerned. I turned to go, when a little hand touched mine. The lady who had been teaching me Dutch was at my side. "Before you gentlemen leave," she said, "I want you both to make a promise. You are enemies now; some day, when the war is over, you may be friends. But promise not to hurt each other by talking of this meeting. Otto had no business to come. Father had forbidden him until the trouble ended with the British."

"I came out of love for you," grunted the man with the gun.

"And you came out of fondness for me," murmured the plain girl, her voice shaking with laughter that was almost choking her. I muttered the biggest lie I had ever parted with.

The hairy individual rested his gun against a tree, stepped forward, and lifting his slouch hat to the plain girl, said, "For your sake, I promise."

I lifted my helmet to the "beauty," and said something similar. A few minutes later, as I was buckling my girth, I heard him galloping off southward, to join Olivier's commando. As I swung up into the saddle, the plain sister slipped away, and the "beauty" lifted her hand in farewell. As our hands met, she said, "Why did you come to the lover's walk?"

"To get a last lesson in Dutch," I said, with a sheepish grin.

"Well," she answered, "I hope you'll remember your lesson," and I heard the two of them laughing as I galloped out of the veldt.—A. G. Hales, in the San Francisco Argonaut.

BRITISH SINECURES.

The Queer Lot of People Who Lived About the Queen.

You may expect that the reformers in England will attack parliament immediately upon its assembling for the purpose of cutting off the sinecures of a queer lot of people who have lived about the queen, writes W. E. Curtis, in the Chicago Record. There are a thousand or more attendants at Windsor castle. Many of them hold their positions by hereditary right and have little or nothing to do. The sovereign of England has, however, several honorable and remunerative appointments which King Edward VII. will cling to as tenaciously as his mother. He has the privilege of appointing six trumpeters, who draw pay at the rate of $750 a year and are given quarters in the barracks at Windsor with their families. These appointments are not hereditary and the late queen used them to reward soldiers who had distinguished themselves by extraordinary gallantry.

One of the most desirable posts at Windsor castle is that of "the king's linner," who in ancient times decorated books and manuscripts with initial letters and who now prepares the parchment commissions when his majesty is pleased to confer knighthood or some other honor upon one of his subjects. The gentleman who now fills the post has extraordinary skill with the pen and brush and his diplomas and certificates were greatly admired for their exquisite taste and skillful execution. He receives a salary of $2,500 a year. The clockmaker at Windsor castle receives the same compensation and it is his business to keep all the timepieces in repair. The historiographer, who is supposed to keep a record of events, holds a hereditary office with a salary of $2,500 a year. The master of music, Sir Walter Parrett, the famous organist, receives $1,500 and arranges concerts for his majesty's diversion. The surveyor of pictures is paid $1,500, the librarian (who by the way is Richard R. Holmes, an eminent author) receives $2,500, the examiner of plays $1,600, the keeper of the swans is paid $300 and the barge master, who looks after the boats used by the royal family at Windsor, has a similar compensation.

The king's champion is a relic of the middle ages. On coronation day it is his business to prance around in armor mounted on a mail charger with a long spear and a monstrous sword, and challenge all the world to dispute with him the title of his sovereign to the scepter. This challenge holds good during the period of sovereignty, or the life of the champion, and may be accepted by subject or alien.

Queen Victoria and her uncle, William IV., dispensed with this mediaeval absurdity at their coronations, but the champion's pay and perquisites still continue, for they are hereditary and cannot be abolished even by act of parliament without some indemnity.

The present champion is Francis Seaman Dymoke, who is now a venerable man, and if any should take the trouble to accept his challenge he would have to resign in favor of a more brawny Briton. He receives a salary of $600 a year and certain allowances of food and clothing which he draws from the lord steward of Windsor castle.

Another ancient supernumerary is the page of the pipe, who also holds a hereditary office which dates back to the time of Charles II. That merry monarch acquired the tobacco habit from some of his Virginia colonists and required a page, who was paid a salary of $500 a year, to keep his smoking apparatus in order. In a moment of generosity his majesty made the appointment permanent. Until 1765 the honor was held by the duke of Grafton, who got hard up and sold it to a merchant named Harrison. As Queen Victoria did not smoke the office was a sinecure, but the descendants of Harrison are entitled to the privilege of entering the presence of their sovereign at any time.

INDIANA LAWMAKERS

The Brooks express bill was advanced to third reading in the House on Tuesday, after an attempt was made to kill it, by 42 to 35. A strong petition from Logansport was received by the Governor protesting against his signing the consolidated railway bill. A bill passed the House for life imprisonment for kidnapping. Many Representatives justify the Terre Haute lynching and the anti-lynching bill made no progress. The House, by a practically unanimous vote, passed the bill to remove the board of woman managers of the Woman's Prison and Industrial School for Girls. The bill requires the Governor to appoint a new board of managers and makes the members removable at will. This is the result of the investigation by a legislative committee of charges of cruelty made against the management of the institution.

Gov. Durbin on Wednesday vetoed the Joss railroad consolidation bill, said to have been drawn at the instance of Eastern financiers. In his message the Governor said he objected decidedly to taking from the State all control over its own domestic corporations. Further, he insisted that the bill would take most of the suits against railroads out of the State courts into federal courts and force citizens to go long distances to prosecute suits. The State also would surrender all power over Indiana roads and would be powerless to cope with foreign railroad corporations, and once this power were lost it could never be regained. As a result of the lynching excitement the Legislature has indefinitely postponed all action on the only anti-lynching bill before it. All temperance legislation before the Assembly was killed. The express companies fighting the Walsh express bill joined forces with the railroads in fighting the Calumet canal bill.

The House by a vote of 55 to 38 late Thursday afternoon killed the Agnew bill providing for the construction of a waterway or ship canal from Lake Michigan, at East Chicago, to the Calumet river, a distance of about three miles. The bill was defeated by a motion to strike out its enacting clause, on which there was a hot argument from morning until late into the day. The railroad companies have been persistent in their lobby against the bill on the ground that the waterway would do them great injury. There has also been opposition from residents of Chicago. The bill cannot be resurrected. The Senate killed the valued policy bill, requiring insurance companies to pay the full value of policies in cases of total loss, and so amended another bill on the same subject that this feature was stricken out. The Brooks express bill, which requires express companies to receive parcels from all companies without discrimination, was passed by both branches of the Legislature. The House judiciary committee agreed to report Senator Barlow's anti-lynching bill favorably. It causes forfeiture of the office of sheriff if a prisoner is taken from that official and hanged, and makes reinstatement depend upon the sheriff's ability to satisfy the Governor that he was not at fault.

Friends of the defeated Calumet canal bill prepared a substitute on Friday, but it was finally agreed not to press it for the present. A primary election bill passed. This makes primaries obligatory in Evansville and Indianapolis and optional with central committees of all counties. A petition three yards long came from one county asking for an anticigarette law. The South Bend charter bill was advanced to second reading. A majority report advocating a stringent anti-lynching bill was adopted by the House. The manager of the woman's prison was heard in her own defense. She enters a substantial denial to all charges.

Representative Murphy introduced a bill on Saturday which provides for the consolidation of railroads, and the features of the measure are so nearly like those of the Joss consolidation bill, which Gov. Durbin vetoed, that it is awakening a great deal of speculation. The following bills were passed: Creating county boards of turnpike commissioners; regarding the sale of convict-made goods by requiring that they be labeled as such; requiring mining and manufacturing companies to pay employees once each week; regulating number of trustee districts in incorporated towns, regulating foreign investment companies and giving auditor of State power to forbid their operations in this State; prohibiting the filing of "graveyard" insurance. The bill to provide for beautifying the site of the grave of Nancy Hanks Lincoln, mother of the martyred President, was passed after increasing the appropriation from $2,000 to $5,000. The money will be used only for improving the ten-acre tract of land on which the monument is located, and which will be made into a park.

The congressional reapportionment bill passed on Monday. The Democrats claim that it is illegal and threaten to appeal on the ground that the territory forming certain districts is not contiguous. One district runs from Indianapolis to the Ohio river. The Fort Wayne charter bill passed. A joint resolution passed, to be referred to Congress, asks an amendment to the constitution of the United States to elect United States Senators by the people. The committee investigating the woman's reformatory heard Manager Miss Keeley in her own defense. She denied the charges.

RECORD OF THE WEEK

INDIANA INCIDENTS TERSELY TOLD.

Must Answer for Old Murder—Great Religious Excitement Roused by a Woman—Plan of Widespread Trolley System—Arrest of Boy Mail Thieves.

George and John Reeves, charged with murdering Deputy Sheriffs John E. Gardner and William Cox in Dubois County June 1, 1885, are now confined in the county jail at Jasper. Sheriff Herman Castrup and a deputy having received the prisoners recently from the authorities at Frankfort, Ky., where they had just been released from the penitentiary. On the day of the murder the two deputy sheriffs came upon the Reeves boys on a country road and attempted to arrest them for robbery. The officers were pounced upon by the two brothers, who took their revolvers from them, and after emptying the contents into the bodies of the deputies stole a couple of horses and fled. They were not heard of until ten years later, when it was learned that they were in the Kentucky penitentiary serving a sentence for burning the town of Cadiz. A requisition was secured, but before it could be served the Reeves boys broke out of prison and were, at liberty until recently, when they were arrested by the sheriff at Mount Vernon, Ill. Gov. Durbin issued a requisition on the Governor of Illinois for their return, but the Kentucky authorities were ahead and the prisoners were taken to Frankfort, where they had two weeks of their original term to serve.

Await "Coming of Christ."

The vicinity of Burlington and New London is at the present time in the throes of a new and peculiar religious excitement. A strange woman, who refuses to give her name, has been going about the country preaching what she terms "Christ's temporal kingdom." Her work, at first confined to family visits at the home, has made such progress that she is now holding large day and night meetings and many people are in a religious excitement bordering upon frenzy and are contributing large amounts for the construction of a great temple, in which they are to await the "coming of Christ" to take charge of this "temporal kingdom." The woman shows evidence of a splendid education, is richly garbed and more than ordinarily good-looking. Her speeches are not mere harangues, but are delivered in an impressive, oratorical style.

Project Big Trolley Line.

A. B. Clark, local attorney for the Clover Leaf Railroad, says that plans are well toward maturity for the capitalization of an electric railway corporation to construct a system with Frankfort as one of the main terminals from which there will radiate electric lines to Tip-ton, Kokomo, Logansport, Delphi, Lafayette, Crawfordsville and Lebanon, with Indianapolis as the southern terminal.

Boy Gang Robs Mail Boxes.

John Cook, Oscar Hayworth, 16 years old, and William Sherry, 19 years old, were arrested in Muncie charged with robbing postoffice mail boxes. A United States detective made the arrests after several weeks' investigation. Sherry made a partial confession, implicating Bert Williams, Frank Burnette and William Overs as comprising an organized gang. All are under arrest.

Indiana Gas Has Brief Life.

W. S. Blatchley, State geologist, gives out a discouraging report concerning the Indiana gas supply. He says the decrease in pressure the last year has been greater than in any year since gas was discovered. He now places the life of the field from four to five years.

State News in Brief.

Mrs. Jacob Miller, 54, near Union City, hanged herself. Until recently she was in an insane asylum.

Judge W. C. L. Taylor, Lafayette, died of bronchial pneumonia. He was twice elected to the bench without opposition.

Fedallas Rhodes, aged 71 years, an Indiana pioneer, fell out of bed at Muncie and sustained injuries from which he died soon afterward.

Linas Brown, aged 25, attacked his aged father with a shoe knife and stabbed him several times at Chandler. The old man cannot survive. Brown, who is insane, was arrested.

The cost of maintenance for each inmate in the Marion soldiers' home is 15 cents a day, or a fraction less than $55 a year. The total cost of each inmate is a little over $100 a year.

There is a case of smallpox at Petersburg, and the town council closed the schools and prohibited public meetings. This action broke up a revival, and some of the church people are worked up. The closing of saloons demanded, and a Carrie Nation crusade is threatened.

The Indiana natural and illuminating gas company, Frankfort, recently covered all meters with locked boxes, refusing to give patrons keys to the boxes. Judge T. H. Palmer tore off the lock. Another was put on, and notice given that gas would be shut off if the act were repeated. Judge Palmer tore off the second lock and brought action to restrain the shutting off of gas. It will be made a test case.

Gilbert Emmons, Rushville, was given judgment for $6,500 against the Big Four Railroad Company, in Anderson. Emmons boarded a train in Anderson, with the intention of beating his way to Rushville, having spent all his money looking for work. He was ordered off, but says that before he had time to comply, one of the trainmen kicked him in the face. He fell under the wheels and his leg was so badly injured that it had to be amputated.

Excitement at Winamac.

Last week the citizens of Winamac were thrown in the wildest state of excitement, and it is still unabated, over the charges made by a young lady by the name of Leemasters, that Prof. Reid who had charge of the high school at said place, had taken undue liberties with her person. She was a pupil in school, and worked for the Professor for her board. The professor has been discharged by the school board.

She had a room on the first floor, and charges that Prof. Reid, who always got up at 5 o'clock to attend the fires, would persist in coming into her room. That he came into the room, in all more than fifty times. Mrs. Reid and two young lady teachers say the whole story is a malicious lie, and point out that there was a bolt and lock on her door by which she could easily have fastened the professor out of her room had she desired to do so.

Resolution of Condolence.
Whereas, Mrs. Mary Smith has been called to the life beyond. Having been an earnest worker in the L. S. A., of Poplar Grove, was held in high esteem by that society, having been faithful to our motto of guidance "For Christ and the Church."

Therefore, Be it resolved by the society that we tender our heartfelt sympathy to the children and other relatives in this hour of their sadness and hope that they may look to Him who has said, "I will be with thee," for comfort.

Mrs. DAISY MYERS, Pres.

Last Friday evening the debating club of the Culver High School met the North Bend debating club at the Kaley school house in a joint discussion upon the question, resolved, "That the signs of the times indicate the downfall of this Republic," and were defeated by their opponents, the decision not meeting with the general approval of the audience. The clubs will debate in Culver in the sweet by and by.

Danger of Colds and La Grippe.
The greatest danger from colds and la grippe is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these diseases we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in Pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventative of that dangerous malady. It will cure a cold or an attack of the la grippe in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by T. E. Slattery.

MCKINLEY IS CHIEF

For the Second Time He Takes the Oath as President.

PARADE IS GORGEOUS

Resplendent and Impressive Ceremonies Attending Inauguration.

Brilliant Scene in the Senate Chamber, Followed by Exercises on the Capitol Front—Inspiring Inaugural Pageant Marches Up Pennsylvania Avenue—Great Thoroughfare Aflame with Rainbow Colors and Lined with Cheering Thousands—Dazzling Sight at the Inauguration Ball.

Washington correspondence: William McKinley is again President of the United States. He pronounced the oath of office with impressive solemnity as he stood before the white-haired chief justice on the Capitol plaza Monday afternoon, and then reverently kissed the Bible opened before him. That was the final act of the making of a President, after the people had expressed their will at the polls more than four months before, and the electoral college had declared the will of the people in Congress three months later. There were intermediate steps and many formalities, but this simple act of the taking of the oath to preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States was the culminating act by which William McKinley again placed the crown of authority upon his head and became the chief executive of over 76,000,000 of people. The inspiring program was carried out gorical representation, the trophies of war on land and sea, etc., combined to make a panorama of the nation's power and resources perhaps never excelled in the history of the country.

It falls to comparatively few people to behold such a spectacle as that which those on the plaza saw before them as the President took the oath of office.

In front, acres and acres of humanity, with upturned faces. In trees and upon the ornamental lampposts decorations of human form and shape. Clambering over the statuary which graces the portico of the grandest of all national statehouses, hundreds of adventurous youths and men. High upon the noble dome, peering over hazardous ledges, peeping out from every porthole in the glass roof, still other representatives of Americans who will see or die.

The most imposing, if not impressive, portion of the inaugural ceremonies undoubtedly took place in the United States Senate chamber and was witnessed by 2,000 people. This was the swearing in of the new Vice-President and the inauguration of the Senate for another term of Congress. These ceremonies were very simple in themselves, but the formality with which they were invested, their exclusiveness and the gathering of distinguished men made it an occasion of peculiar interest.

There were gathered all that is considered great in a republic. There were the representatives of the highest legislative bodies in the world, the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States; there was the highest tribunal in the world, the Supreme Court of the United States; there were men who would hold the highest elective offices in the world, the President and Vice-President of the United States of America.

In addition there were the representatives of every civilized government on the face of the earth gathered to do honor to the administration of the United States. There were also gathered wealth, beauty and brains of the country in the gallery. Distinguished and noted men and women endured the crush of the crowded corridors to be present at this national event.

The galleries filled early, and it was a select gathering that witnessed the scene, select, however, only in the favoritism of those who controlled the tickets of admission, for there were as disand the military and civic organizations that gathered, but inside the capitol, beneath the great dome, there was an impressive silence as the Senators gravely gathered in the hall, for there is solemnity as well as enthusiasm in the inauguration of a President.

At night came the ball, the great social function of the day. This took place in the pension building, which has been used regularly for the purpose since it was first erected, the spacious court in the center of the building surrounded by galleries and balconies having been proved to be an admirable scene for a great national reception and dance. Balls have been the regular thing ever since James Madison was inducted into office, except for the fact that Franklin Pierce was passed by because nobody cared to get up a ball for him. Thus ended the regular events of inauguration day, but for the purpose of amusing the hundreds of thousands of visitors divers concerts were arranged for a day or two afterward, which were more or less in the nature of the side show to a circus, but which nevertheless contributed materially to the receipts of the big show.

PARADE A MONSTER.

Impressive Pageantry in Honor of President McKinley.

The parade was a military and civic pageant projected upon a scale of magnificence never before undertaken on a like occasion. Undoubtedly in point of numbers, spectacular features and gorgeous accessories it eclipsed any inaugural display in the history of the nation. Upward of 55,000 men were in line. Every arm of the military service was represented by crack organizations, the National Guard of several States added to the brilliancy of the military demonstration, while civic orders, political clubs, college students, eminent men, chief executives of States with imposing staffs, historical floats symbolic of the progress of the nation, and bands almost without number contributed to the splendor of the spectacle.

The military pageant was exceptionally imposing. It included 1,200 cavalry, 3,000 regular infantry, hundreds of blue-jackets and 2,800 marines, and 15,000 National Guardsmen from several States. In addition there were 10,000 citizen marchers, 10,000 members of civic organizations, and 2,000 college students. In-

In all of its interesting details. In the day followed in the presidential procession from the White House to Capitol, escorted by troops; the installation of McKinley and the new President on the Capitol; the review of the sovereigns and the review of the marching bands in front of the mansion.

The second inauguration of McKinley was even more grandly impressive than the first. For more than three months the inauguration committee, of which the Hon. J. J. Edson was chairman, had been industriously at work on plans and details. While preserving all the time-honored features of inaugural ceremonies, they introduced many new ideas which they felt would greatly improve the inaugural spectacles. In the arches that spanned the streets and in the decorations of the buildings were shown evidences of the progress of the nation, and the inaugural procession embracing the army, the Guardsmen, the G. A. R., the navy, civic bodies, religious and educational interests, and exhibits of material resources, the decorations of the streets and buildings, the receptions and the inaugural ball all kept this central idea before the mind just so far as it was possible for them to do so. The generals participating in the Spanish war, those conspicuous in the suppression of the Philippine rebellion, admirals who fought at Manila bay and at Santiago, the regulars in khaki, the Guardsmen in their gay uniforms, the middies in their jaunty uniforms, the campaign marching clubs with brilliant equipage, the civic bodies each conspicuous for some alledistinguished citizens out on the street and in the great throng in front of the capitol as there were in the Senate galleries. It could not be otherwise, when two hundred thousand came, and only one thousand could be admitted.

Outside the crowds surged around the capitol and filled the great avenue leading thereto. Outside there was cheering incessant over the statesmen who passed numerous bands, aggregating a membership of 3,000, provided the "concord of sweet sounds" that made the occasion memorable for the most ambitious musical auxiliary ever employed in connection with the quadrennial national function.

States which sent military organizations were Maine, Massachusetts, Vermont, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio, Illinois, New Jersey, Michigan, Virginia and Alabama. Brig. Gen. Joe Wheeler commanded the second military division. His aids included Algernon Sartoris, grandson of Gen. Grant, and Brig. Gen. Charles King.

Every Republican Governor, accompanied by his staff and, where the Guard of the State is not out in force, accompanied by a small escort, lent distinction to the pageant, while mayors of cities, eminent statesmen and men of affairs passed in review.

The grand marshal of the stupendous inaugural ceremonies was Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, commander-in-chief of the American army. Gen. Francis V. Green was grand marshal of the parade. Tens and hundreds of thousands of American citizens thronged the sidewalks and the reviewing stands. While they shouted in applause the column swung on to the time of national airs rolling up to heaven from a hundred bands. The strains of "John Brown's Body" and "Marching Through Georgia" mingled with the music of "Dixie" and "Maryland, My Maryland," while the man from the North and the man from the South applauded, each without discrimination. Then "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "America" were heard. The crowds caught up the airs, and 10,000 voices were joined in a national chorus, which proclaimed that sectionalism is a bugaboo and that one flag waves over one people.

If the United States and England should form an alliance, the combined strength would be so great that there would be little chance for enemies to overcome us. # Sore Hands

Red, Rough Hands, Itching, Burning Palms, and Painful Finger Ends.

One Night Treatment

Soak the hands on retiring in a strong, hot, creamy lather of CUTICURA SOAP. Dry, and anoint freely with CUTICURA, the great skin cure and purst of emollients. Wear, during the night, old, loose kid gloves, with the finger ends cut off and air holes cut in the palms. For red, rough, chapped hands, dry, fissured, itching, feverish palms, with shapeless nails and painful finger ends, this treatment is simply wonderful, and points to a speedy cure of the most distressing cases when physicians and all else fail.

Cured by Cuticura

I WAS troubled with hands so sore that when I put them in water the pain would near set me crazy, the skin would peel off, and the flesh would get hard and break, then the blood would flow from at least fifty places on each hand. Words never can tell the suffering I endured for three years.

I tried at least eight doctors, but my hands were worse than when I commenced doctoring. I tried every old granny remedy that was ever thought of without one cent's worth of good and could not even get relief.

I would feel so badly mornings when I got up, to think that I had to go to work and stand pain for eight or nine hours, that I often felt like giving up my job, which was in the bottling works of Mr. E. L. Kerns, the leading bottler of Trenton, N. J., who will vouch for the truth of my sufferings.

Before I could start to work, I would have to wrap each finger on both hands, and then wear gloves, which I hated to do, for when I came to take them off, it would take two hours and the flesh would break and bleed. Some of my friends who had seen my hands would say, "If they had such hands they would have them amputated"; others would say "they would never work," and more would turn away in disgust. But thanks to Cuticura, the greatest of skin cures, it ended all my sufferings.

Just to think, after doctoring three years, and spending dollar after dollar during that time, Cuticura cured me. It has now been two years since I used it and I do not know what sore hands are. I never lost a day's work while I was using it or since, and I have been working at the same business, and in acids, etc.

Local Notes Furnished by the Herald's Special Reporter.

Cadet Bittenger is on leave.
 Capt. Adams was here last week on his regular tour of inspection.
 Capts. Hawkins and Timmons made Plymouth a flying visit Tuesday night.
 Mr. Park, of Martinsville, Ind., was here this week visiting Cadet Landers.

A minister from Chicago will preach to the cadets next Sunday morning.

Winchester and Marlin rifles, and two targets have arrived for use in the target practice.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Solier, of Pioneer, Ohio, were here this week visiting their son who has been quite ill with the mumps, but is now better.

The band will continue to discourage discords discontentedly, despite discouragements and the disaffection of the disgusted, until discontinued.

Dr. J. G. Campbell, pastor of the Milburn M. E. church in South Bend, preached a very interesting and instructive sermon to the cadets last Sunday morning on the subject, "A Young Man's Opportunity."

Miss Williams, a trained nurse of Indianapolis, is here caring for the cadets who are afflicted with the mumps. No new cases have developed for the past ten days and it is hoped that the disease has been actually checked.

The library seems to be patronized in direct proportion to the inclemency of the weather. Since the holidays the reading has averaged out one book to each cadet per week. The seniors are now busy with their essays, consequently they form the bulk of the readers.

The Kokomo trip was declared off account of the existence of mumps in the academy. A very pleasant one had been planned. A large number of young ladies had been invited to attend a reception in honor of the cadets at the hotel, and it is indeed unfortunate that circumstances forbade us making the trip.

The commandant is now instructing the first classmen in the nomenclature and use of modern firearms. One of the most interesting specimens under discussion is a Colt pistol. The piece is loaded, cocked and fired, and the empty shell is ejected, by merely pulling the trigger.

Another interesting fire-arm is a Mauser carbine which was used in Cuba during the late war. A Lee's rifle, and a Krag-Jorgensen complete the list.

Grippe Quickly Cured.
 In the winter of 1898 and 1899 I was laid down with a severe attack of what is called "La Grippe" says F. L. Hewett, a prominent druggist of Winfield, Ill. "The medicine I used was two bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It broke the cold and stopped the coughing like a charm, and I have never since been troubled with "Grippe." Chamberlain's Cough Remedy can always be depended upon to break up a severe cold and ward off any threatened attack of pneumonia. It is pleasant to take, too, which makes it the most desirable and one of the most popular preparations in use for these ailments. Sold by I. E. Slattery.

Philip Working has been drawn on the grand jury and John W. [unclear] on the petit jury.

BEST SPRING MEDICINE.

The Palm Given to Dr. Greene's Nervura.

That Grand Jury, the People, Have So Decided.

Used by Hundreds of Thousands in Spring as a Blood Medicine.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is indeed "The World's Great Spring Medicine." It has come to be recognized by almost everybody as the best possible spring medicine to take, and hundreds of thousands of our people use it during the trying spring months, to tone up anew the relaxed nerves, and re-invigorate and enrich the blood.

A spring medicine is a necessity if one wishes to keep in perfect health and vigor during the changes from winter to summer. This grand spring tonic, this perfect spring medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, is exactly what the system needs at this season. It not only purifies, but makes rich, red blood; it not only strengthens and invigorates the nervous system, but re-energizes and revitalizes the nerves by feeding them with renewed nerve force and power. It is not only an aid to digestion, but it creates a regular, natural and healthy action of the bowels, liver, kidneys, which in the spring are always sluggish and inactive.

In fact, it is just what people need to make them well and keep them well during these months, so threatening to the health of all, and when it is considered that Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is made entirely from pure, health-giving vegetable remedies, and that people give it more testimonials of cure than any other remedy on earth, no one can doubt that it is the very best spring remedy for everybody to use.

Mr. Gustave Lebach of 337 First street, Jersey City, N. J., says:—

"I was troubled with sick headaches, and could not sleep on account of the pains in my head. I was suffering night and day with dyspepsia, could not eat anything, my stomach would sour so. I had to starve myself to have any ease. I had to give up work at last. I was so nervous and miserable, and I was falling away in flesh so that my friends hardly knew me. I tried several remedies, but without avail. At last someone recommended Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I tried one bottle and began to improve. I started in to eat all right; then I picked up my health; my headaches disappeared, and my weakness and sour stomach went away. I used three bottles, and could sleep all night with ease; I used six bottles, and felt like a new man. I can now do a hard day's work without any trouble, and I am as happy as a bird in spring. I was so miserable, always suffering, always in pain, but now I am like a new man."

Use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy this spring, for it is the discovery and prescription of a well-known physician, Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th street, New York City, who is responsible for its beneficial action, and who can be consulted free of charge, personally or by letter.

ruins your digestion, makes you nervous and sallow complexioned, keeps you awake nights and acts against your system generally, try Grain-O, the new food drink. It is made of pure selected grain and is healthful, nourishing and appetizing. It has none of the bad effects of coffee, yet it is just as pleasant to the taste, and when properly prepared can't be told from the finest coffees. Costs about 1/4 as much. It is a healthful table drink for the children and adults. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15 and 25c.

Just as Satisfactory.

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. ### Modern Enterprise.

A merchant who lives on the upper west side of the city was awakened at two o'clock the other morning by the continued ringing of his front door bell. He tried to go to sleep despite the noise, but had to abandon the attempt when a series of shouts coming from the street in front of his house assailed his ears. Mingled with the shouts he heard the voices of men engaged in a war of words. Jumping out of bed he ran to a window, threw it open and leaned out. There were five men on the street, and seeing him they began to yell with renewed vigor. "What is wrong?" shouted the merchant. The five tried to reply at the same time, and the only word the merchant understood was "fire." "What is wrong?" he shouted again. One of the five got his voice before the others. "Your store has burned out," he screamed, "and I'll give you five dollars more than anybody else for the privilege of pasting bills on the front of your building."

The Poker Only.

An old Scottish lady was being closely cross-examined in court regarding a case of assault, in which her husband was alleged to have played a conspicuous part.

"And now, my good woman, tell the court what sort of weapon it was your husband struck you with."

"Wha said he used a weapon?" snapped the old lady.

"You said so yourself when you gave your husband in charge," answered the astonished lawyer.

"I said nae sic thing, for the thing that oor John struck me on the heid wi' was naething mair nor less than the poker." After the laughter had subsided the lawyer tried to show her that it was not always well to call a spade a spade. "Weel, weel," answered the old lady, "ye may ca' a spade what ye like, but I'll mainten tae my deen' day that oor John struck me wi' the poker, an' wi' naething else." The old lady gained her point.

Gold and Silver Guns.

The Gaekwar of Baroda, an Indian prince, had a battery of artillery consisting of gold and silver guns. There are four guns, two of gold and two of silver. The gold guns were made in 1874 by an artisan of Lakha, who worked on them for five years. They weigh 400 pounds each, and except for the steel lining, are of solid gold. They are mounted on gun-carriages of carved wood, overlaid with silver. In 1876, when the Gaekwar went to Bombay to meet the Prince of Wales, he took the gold guns with him to salute the Prince, and that was the only occasion on which they have been allowed to leave the State of Baroda.

WHAT IS OVARITIS?

A dull, throbbing pain, accompanied by a sense of tenderness and heat low down in the side, with an occasional shooting pain, indicates inflammation.

On examination it will be found that the region of pain shows some swelling. This is the first stage of ovaritis, inflammation of the ovary. If the roof of your house leaks, my sister, you have it fixed at once; why not pay the same respect to your own body?

You need not, you ought not to let yourself go, when one of your own sex holds out the helping hand to you, and will advise you without money, and without price. Write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and tell her all your symptoms.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound having been recommended to me, I decided to try it. After using several bottles I found that I was cured. My entire system was toned up, and I suffered no more with my ovaries."—MRS. ANNA ASTON, Troy, Mo.

AFTER EIGHTEEN YEARS

Mrs. Doty of Highland, Iowa, Restored to Health—A Miraculous Case—Her Husband Is Cured of Bright's Disease by Same Means.

Highland, Iowa, March 4, 1901.—Special.—Friends of Mrs. W. H. Doty are very much pleased to notice the wonderful improvement in her condition. For eighteen years she has been a sufferer from rheumatism, and the torture she has endured during this time is past all description. Mrs. Doty tells the following story:

"I have suffered for the past eighteen years with Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism. I have tried doctors, patent medicines, plasters, liniments, electric treatments, and nothing did me any good. I had nearly lost all faith in anything, when I sent for six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I said to my husband I expected that it was some more money thrown away, but when I had taken them a week I could see that they were helping me. The lameness I had suffered with for so long is nearly all gone. It is not a quarter as bad as it was. For years I had to wear a warm bandage around my forehead to prevent the pain. Since using the Pills I have been able to remove this altogether.

"I cannot find words to express my heartfelt thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills for their wonderful cure of my case. My husband has suffered from Kidney Trouble for years. Last spring a doctor said he had Bright's Disease, and treated him, but he received no benefit, and he kept growing thinner and weaker all the time. When I got Dodd's Kidney Pills he commenced taking four a day. He has taken them three months and is nearly well. His strength is increased, and the improvement in his case is almost miraculous. Dodd's Kidney Pills have certainly been a God send to us."

It is just cases like those of Mr. and Mrs. Doty that have made Dodd's Kidney Pills so very popular in Iowa.

They are 50c a box, six boxes for $2.50. Buy them from your local druggist if you can. If he cannot supply you, send to the Dodds Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

He Knew Them.

The story is told of a militia regiment—whose reputation was none of the best—that on one occasion a detective from Scotland Yard asked to be allowed to inspect the regiment, to discover, if possible, whether a certain malefactor were in the ranks. Permission being given, the detective, accompanied by the adjutant of the regiment, made the tour of the various companies, front rank and rear rank.

When the official had got to the last man of the rear rank of the rear company he stopped suddenly and gazed earnestly at the rather embarrassed warrior.

"You surely have made a mistake!" exclaimed the adjutant, indignantly. "Why, you have pitched on the best man in the battalion. He has been with us for more than twenty years, and he is our pattern soldier. His arm is a mass of badges, and he is the example of all that is best in the life of a soldier. You surely cannot know him?"

"No," replied the detective; "I do not; but I know all the others."

Rather Unkind.

Flasher—Tut, tut. You shouldn't be so revengeful as to make her wait through eternity simply because she made you wait while she fixed up some-times.—Life.

Black Knot of the Plum and Cherry.

The opinion is quite prevalent among farmers and many fruit growers, that the disease known as Black Knot, so often found upon plum and cherry trees, is caused by certain insects. It is true that we may often find upon cutting open these knots, the larvæ of certain insects, but it is a universally recognized fact, among those who have given the matter careful attention, that these unsightly knotty excrescences are due to a special fungus which is almost always confined to the plum and sour cherry. The insects are there, because they find these knots to be good breeding places.

The swellings are first noticed in early spring, often as soon as growth begins. They are then of a yellowish color, but get darker with age. In May and June, a crop of spores, which answer to seeds in higher plants, appears on the surface of the knots, resembling to the naked eye a soft downy covering. This soon disappears, when the knots continue to get darker until winter, when they have the characteristic black color, which makes them so conspicuous at this season of the year. If examined carefully late in the fall, the surface of the knot will be found to be covered with a great many minute pimples or elevations, each one of which is a fruit of the fungus in which the winter spores are contained. These are in turn distributed later on, and find a lodging place in the crotches of limbs and in the openings of the bark, and at the junctions of the annual growths. As these spores germinate they send their vegetative organs into the growing tissues of the branch causing swellings, which often extend along the branches four or five inches. These vegetative tissues do not all die during the winter, but some live over and so new swellings at the edges of the old ones may be seen the following year. In this way the branch may continue to be infested until finally it becomes completely surrounded, when the circulation is cut off and the branch dies. When these knots appear upon several branches at the same time, it is only a question of a very short time before the tree will die.

TREATMENT. The treatment generally recommended is to cut off the knots and burn them, which is a good thing to do, "if it is done before the winter spores have been distributed." If not, then some additional treatment will be necessary. It is recommended therefore, that all "knots" be cut off and burned during the month of February and in addition to this spray the trees with a strong solution of Bordeaux mixture during the first warm days of spring. About the time that buds start, spray again with the ordinary strength Bordeaux mixture. This ought to destroy all of the winter spores. Then in case the branches may have been already infected the previous year, they should be sprayed again during the month of May and the first of June. The young knots may be destroyed by painting them with chloro-naphtholeum or with pure kerosene oil. Whenever these remedies are thoroughly applied, there will be no trouble in controlling the disease providing all old, worthless trees have been cut out and burned and providing also that the people of the entire neighborhood co-operate in this plan of action. Wherever the Damson plum is grown this disease is almost sure to be present; and as it is one of the "injurious plant diseases" referred to in the Indiana inspection law, the necessity for prompt action on the part of all owners of infested trees, will be evident to all.

A Fireman's Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman of Burlington, Iowa. "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by Thomas Slattery. Price 50c.

Two or three who enjoy a hunt in the proper season were talking over game laws and combining to see that they were enforced. "What we need," said one, "is a hunting and fishing organization that will include in its membership not only town residents, but also farmers. The mistake in the past has been the organization of such associations wholly from men of the city, which at once antagonizes the farming element, for it is upon their lands that the game must be found. I'm in for a joint organization to enforce the game and trespass laws; to pay rewards for the arrest of game and fish violators and to see that they are brought to justice. Such an organization would mean much to the future of the rod and gun in Marshall county. It could be so arranged that the mutual membership would give hunting and fishing rights upon the property of associate members in the organization and also form a combination to see that all game and fish law violators receive adequate punishment."

Prof. Ivison, of Lonaccong, Md., suffered terribly from neuralgia of the stomach and indigestion for thirteen years and after the doctors failed to cure him they fed him on morphine. A friend advertised the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and after taking a few bottles of it he says, "It has cured me entirely. I can't say too much for Kodol Dyspepsia Cure." It digests what you eat. The farmers report that numbers of dead quail are being found in the snow. The protracted cold and the heavy mantle of snow which has covered the ground so long are the causes. The deep snow prevents them from getting food even were it plentiful. An exchange suggests that by throwing cracked corn or wheat screenings where quail could get it, the lives of many of these birds, the handsomest we have, could be saved. The quail is sure to find whatever food is thrown out, providing it is placed on clear ground. The quail is a hustler, and it is only protracted cold weather and heavy snows that can prevent this bird from subsisting, of itself. The suggestion to provide them with food as long as the snow lies can be easily and cheaply complied with and the lives of many of these really ornamental birds to a farm can be saved and all of them kept in fair condition until they can provide for themselves.

A bloodless face indicates trouble. Watery blood a menace to health. We know how pale people can get rich blood. Come let us tell you about VINOL.

When blood is watery and thin, or, as doctors would say, lacks red blood corpuscles, it is a sign that much is radically wrong. We would advise everyone who has such symptoms to start at once to take a proper remedy to overcome this trouble. That remedy is VINOL, the greatest and most modern tonic and re-builder. VINOL owes its virtues to the fact that it contains in a highly concentrated state the active principles extracted from Cod's Livers, the same elements that have made Cod Liver Oil famous for wasting diseases. Because we know so well and because we know so surely what it will do, and how it will accomplish the good it does in a scientific way, we unreservedly endorse and recommend it, and in every instance guarantee to refund to anyone what they pay us for VINOL if they do not find it entirely satisfactory.
