FIRST SATURDAY NIGHT CLUB.

Base Ball Notes.

They were from Wabash college. They came here with a record of no games lost this season, and after a little practice game with the young soldiers of Culver, they intended to return home with another scalp in their belts. But lo! and behold the fates had decreed otherwise, and it was a sheepish lot of ball-tossers that stepped from the train at Crawfordsville last Saturday night, and sadly told their anxious comrades that the score was 18 to 10 in Culver's favor.

The game was won through the heavy batting of our team, the masterly work of our battery and the errors of Wabash. From the very first, Culver's batting was phenomenal. Crawford started the game with a home run. This rather dazed Mr. Smith, the Wabash twirler, and before he fairly knew it, the bases were full. McQuaid then came to bat. Realizing the responsibility of his position, he braced himself for an extra effort. Swish went his bat, and away went the ball, soaring over the tree-tops near the east barracks, and before it could be returned to the diamond, McQuaid and the other runners had crossed the home plate. It was the longest and neatest hit made upon the grounds this season and the "rooters" fairly howled themselves hoarse over the event.

Wabash then tried to show their skill with the bat, but one run was all they secured.

In the second inning, with two men out, and two men on bases, Masters stepped to the plate and cracked another home run, and once again the welkin rang with the terrible yelling of the "rooters."

In the third inning, Portness, the lightning twirler, who has pitched for some of the very best teams in the state, including the famous "Whiting Grays," went in the box for Wabash, and although he pitched an excellent game, the rest of the team was too badly rattled to give him any support. He is credited with nine strike-outs, and allowed but one man to walk, yet ten more runs were secured after he went in the box, due mostly to errors, however. A three base hit by Crawford in the fifth and a two-bagger by Woodward in the eighth were the only long hits made off his delivery.

Wabash made a neat double play in the sixth, and at intervals during the game made ten runs, but Culver had them on the wagon and nothing could stop the procession.

The score by innings:
Culver, 5 3 2 3 1 0 0 4 0—18.
Wabash, 1 2 1 0 2 1 2 1 0—10.

Hyde Park high school, of Chicago, plays the academy upon the home grounds next Saturday afternoon, and next Wednesday our team goes to Cleveland, Ohio, to play the University School which is coached by Capt Wickham of our last year's faculty. The trip promises to be of much interest to the boys, and everybody is anxious to have them win.

The Saturday Night Club is doing hard work preparatory for the presentation of its musical extravaganza Monday evening June 3.

The black horse troop is receiving its share of attention, and during the commencement exercises will give some very fine exhibitions.

Everything has been done upon the grounds to beautify them, and when the lagoons are cleaned the park will be in excellent shape.

The programs for this year's commencement excel in point of artistic excellence all previous efforts, and the people are very anxious to procure them as souvenirs.

When the decorations in the gymnasium are completed it will be a model of exquisite beauty.

LOCAL BREVETIES.

Our compositor, Miss Myrtle Nearpass, has been quite ill the past three days, hence owing to lack of help the HERALD comes out late this week. Printing is not like farming and most any other business, we cannot go out on the streets and procure help.

Chas. E. Holbruner, a carriage manufacturer of Logansport, has purchased a lot on Long Point and is erecting a cottage that will be an ornament to the west side.

Contractor A. L. Bogardus, is doing some repairing on J. H. Vajen's cottage.

Chas. Loudon has built an addition to J. W. Morgan's cottage and is treating all the buildings to a fresh coat of paint.

Contractor Bogardus has just completed an addition to J. L. Ketcham's cottage and for room and comfort it stands in the front ranks in the row around the lake.

H. R. Bliss has just completed a cook room at his cottage and a new grape arbor. He has things in ship shape for the season.

Judge A. C. Capron of Plymouth will have his new cottage ready for occupancy about the last of next week.

Contractor Wheeler of Plymouth will commence the erection of a new cottage next week south of Maxinkuckee landing for Miss Jennie Darnell of Terre Haute.

Daniel Carr, formerly of Culver moved his family to Plymouth, this week.

Special Notice.

Owing to the fact that the residence the editor and family have occupied nearly two years has been sold, and that it is imperative that he seeks new quarters, and as there is not an empty house or vacant room in town, and must find a place to reside; therefore in order to have the time to look around, will not issue a HERALD next week. We sincerely hope that our readers will appreciate our situation and bear with us on this occasion.

Have you bought YOUR Spring Suit?

Better buy now. The best patterns are first sold. We've lots of new things for spring wear not shown other places. It's not possible here to describe the styles and patterns—they are too numerous—but you can come assured of finding something to please you at a price less than it would cost elsewhere. Our suits run from $5.00.

It is Not Always Easy

for a mother to decide upon her boy's outfit for the spring, but we made it as simple as possible by showing garments that are adapted especially to the boy's age and the use to which the suit is to be put. Our boy's pants start at $1.00 and up to $5.00. A very interesting line of Men's Furnishings to choose from.

RATS STEAL JEWELS.

MYSTERY OF ROBBERIES IN CHICAGO STORE EXPLAINED.

Case Had Baffled Employers, Employees and Detectives for Several Weeks—Kansas City Street Railway Claim Agent Charged with Jury Bribing.

Rats carried off jewelry valued at over $500 from the show windows of the Goodrich & Potter Company in Chicago the other night. A big crowd watched the little creatures seize articles twice as big and twice as heavy as themselves and tug and pull until they dragged them out of sight. The next morning nearly all of the stuff stolen in the last six weeks was recovered, and the clerks of the jewelry firm, who have been watching each other with suspicious eyes, gave a sigh of relief. Rats are believed to have been responsible for the thefts which began six weeks ago and continued so mysteriously that the Pinkertons and the Chicago Electric Protective Association were asked to catch the thief. The firm didn't know until this time that a few cages, baited with cheese, would have stopped the disappearance of their stock in trade. Even the detectives wouldn't believe this until the flooring was torn up and rings, watches, brooches and charms were found where the rats had taken them. It was soon discovered that the rats had carried the jewelry away to nibble the paste from the tags which were attached to each article. Each article had a little slip pasted upon it when it was placed in the window; when the stuff was found these were gone.

JAILED FOR JURY BRIBING.

Kansas City Street Railway Official Is Prosecuted by Lawyers.

Charles Church, assistant claim agent of the Metropolitan Street Railway at Kansas City, was arrested on a warrant sworn out by William H. Wallace, chairman of a committee appointed by the Kansas City Bar Association to investigate charges of alleged jury bribing. The Bar Association has been actively pushing an investigation of alleged jury bribing and perjury in connection with damage suits pending in the local courts against the railway company and as a result of its work a special grand jury called to consider the matter recently indicted Grant Woodward and one Davis. Both are out on bond.

Wipes Out Four Lives.

Evert Conway, a railway switchman at Evansville, Ind., brooding over an imaginary wrong done his father in a trade, killed W. C. Garrison and wife, fatally wounded Officer Wallis, wounded two other men, attempted to kill his own father, slew a herd of cows belonging to Garrison and set fire to his barn, and then, surrounded in his own house, committed suicide.

Jealous Husband Kills Himself.

John Fleck of Cincinnati committed suicide at the Kirk Hotel, Hamilton, O., by poison. Before dying he wrote a letter to his bride of two weeks, beginning: "Not dear any longer, but I shall die in the room where we spent our first day as man and wife." Fleck was apparently insane with jealousy.

Horrible Accident in Steel Works.

Two men are dead and three are expected to die as a result of an accident in the Bessemer department of the National Steel Company's plant at Youngstown, Ohio. The mishap was caused by the cover of a mammoth converter letting go and allowing thirteen tons of molten metal to flow over the mill.

Armour Elevator Is Burned.

Fire partially destroyed the grain elevator in Kansas City, Kan., owned by the Armour Packing Company and operated by the Merchants' Elevator Company, entailing a loss estimated at $50,000.

Big Strike in Effect.

About 50,000 machinists in all parts of the country have begun strike for nine-hour day and increase of wages. Allied trades are affected in only a few cities. At several industrial centers settlements with the union prevented walk-out.

Fair Is Dedicated To-Day.

Dedication of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo took place Monday, after a parade, partly military and partly civic, with ceremonies fitting the occasion. Vice-President Roosevelt made the principal address.

Armored Train Dynamited.

MRS. LYMAN J. GAGE IS DEAD.

Wife of the Secretary of the Treasury Sinks Into the Final Sleep.

Mrs. Lyman J. Gage, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, died at 9:30 o'clock Friday evening at their home in Washington, D. C. The immediate cause of death was heart failure, a result of wasted strength due to an attack of the grip. Mrs. Gage was conscious almost to the last moment. At the final moment there were present at her bedside her husband, her daughter, Mrs. Pierce of Evanston, Ill., Dr. Johnston and a trained nurse.

Mrs. Gage was taken ill on March 11 while on a visit to her daughter. On that day she wrote the Secretary that she had had a chill and that the doctor had ordered her to bed. For ten days she remained ill at Evanston and then recovered sufficiently to go to Washington. Immediately after her arrival there she suffered a relapse and went to bed again, never to rise. Rheumatism supervened, accompanied by low and persistent fever. Her strength gradually wasted, and for several weeks Secretary Gage has lived in the shadow of the approaching death of his helpmeet.

Mrs. Gage was loved by all who knew her. Though never fond of formal society, since going to Washington she had endeavored to do her duty as the second lady of the cabinet. During the past winter Mrs. Hay, wife of the Secretary of State, has been in mourning, and this has thrown more than the usual burden upon Mrs. Gage. But friends of the family deny that devotion to social duties had anything to do with the breaking down of her health.

Marriage Has Its Romance.

Mrs. Gage was Miss Cornelia Lansing of Albany, N. Y., a member of one of the well-known families of the East. As a very young woman she became the bride of Lloyd G. Gage, a brother of Lyman J. Gage. Lloyd Gage had been a semi-invalid for many years and in a few years became more frail and weak and the climate of Colorado was sought with the hopes that it might give new life to the sufferer. He soon died, however, leaving his widow in the very prime of life. Lyman J. Gage had likewise married, and shortly after the death of his brother sickness and death entered his family and left him a widower. Mr. Gage was then an employe of a bank.

Since the death of the brother Mr. Gage and his sister-in-law had been in correspondence, the grief of both proving a bond of friendship and sympathy. However, there had been little exchange of sentiment and the story goes that the betrothal finally came by telegraph. A letter from Mr. Gage to his sister-in-law told her that after mature deliberation he had come to the conclusion that she was the woman to be his wife. He earnestly hoped that she agreed with him. If so, he begged her to telegraph him the one word "Yes." If she did not answer was necessary. The marriage followed at the home of a relative in Denver and was a most happy one.

DEATH CLAIMS EDWIN F. UHL.

Former Ambassador Finally Succumbs in a Long and Gallant Struggle.

Edwin F. Uhl died at his country home, Waldheim, near Grand Rapids, Mich., at 12:20 Friday afternoon. Around his bedside were gathered members of his family and family physicians, who watched the end of what had been a long and gallant struggle. For more than a year Mr. Uhl had been failing, and nothing but his splendid constitution so long deferred the end.

Edwin F. Uhl, assistant Secretary of State during the second Cleveland administration and later United States ambassador at Berlin, was born in Rush, N. Y., Aug. 14, 1841. His parents removed to Michigan two years later and located on a farm near Ypsilanti, where Mr. Uhl was brought up. He graduated from the University of Michigan in 1862, studied law and began its practice in Ypsilanti and after a term as prosecuting attorney of Washtenaw County he removed in 1876 to Grand Rapids. Almost immediately Mr. Uhl took a foremost position in the Kent County bar and among his clients were railroads, large corporations and estates. Always a Democrat, he was twice elected Mayor of Grand Rapids and repeatedly declined places on the Democratic ticket for Governor and Congress.

In 1893 Mr. Uhl accepted the appointment as assistant Secretary of State and was very close to the administration in several important international transactions. He continued in Washington two years and then went to Berlin as United States ambassador to remain until the close of the administration. He returned to Grand Rapids after his retirement from office, but being out of sympathy with the dominant Democracy he took no active part in politics.

CAN'T LEAVE IT ALONE.

RISE FROM RUINS.

STRICKEN CITY OF JACKSONVILLE TO BE REBUILT.

The Great Fire Which Wiped Out 148 Blocks, Rendered 10,000 People Homeless and Inflicted a Money Loss of $10,500,000.

Jacksonville, Fla., is slowly arising from the effects of the recent awful visitation, when a mighty conflagration swept over the place, wiping out 148 blocks of buildings, inflicting a monetary loss of $10,500,000, rendering 10,000 people homeless and destitute and entailing casualties, the exact number of which is not even yet determined. Order is being gradually evolved from the chaos which followed the withering disaster and under the stimulus of committees of leading citizens the people are beginning to take new heart.

The fire which entailed such a heavy loss upon Jacksonville was the worst in the history of the State. With the rapidity and fierceness of prairie fire sweeping over the sun-dried plains, or of a forest fire among inviting pine trees, the flames passed over a section of the city thirteen blocks wide and two miles in length, embracing in the same consuming breath the proudest and most substantial buildings equally as the most unpretentious negro dwelling. Fanned by a strong wind, the flames leaped into the air for hundreds of feet, and bending over in the form of archways attacked buildings several rods away, leaving the intervening structures to be consumed at will. Against the advance of the conflagration at its height man's efforts were futile. Water turned into steam in the terrific heat and even dynamite was powerless to open gaps over which the flames could not reach. Finally, like a monster with appetite satiated, the flames died down and the most destructive fire in the history of Florida became a memory of sorrow.

Origin of the Fire.

The fire started a little before 1 o'clock in the afternoon at the plant of the Cleveland Fiber Company, where some fiber drying on a platform was ignited by falling soot from the chimney of a negro cottage. The start was an unfortunate one, for the fiber building was little more than a tinder box and the surrounding buildings—the humble dwellings of the negroes—were highly inflammable. Right here the fire department lost its grip on the fire. The flames quickly spread from the fiber plant to the negroes' dwellings, and soon a dozen of the latter were masses of fire.

The course of the fire lay eastward along Beaver, Ashley and Church streets to Hogan's creek, dipping out of its way here and there to lick up a block or two, but ever burning with accelerating speed and intensity. When it reached Julia street, which runs at right angles to the St. John river and Beaver street, it was at its height, and so terrific was the heat that men could do nothing but look helplessly on. The draught created by the intense heat carried portions of roofs, timbers and the like high into the air, whence they fell, blocks distant, to start fresh fires.

At this time the fire department began using dynamite in blowing up houses, hoping thereby to create spaces over which the flames could not spread. But their work was futile. The very air seemed to be on fire. Millions of sparks were carried into the air, to descend in a fiery rain, and buildings far in advance of the dynamite brigade broke into flame.

In succession the Windsor Hotel and the St. James' hotel were consumed and then followed Trinity M. E. Church, the opera house and other substantial buildings.

When Main street was reached another inflammable section presented itself for destruction. Paint shops, with quantities of stored oils, were numerous here and they burst into explosive flame. Then came a hardware store, containing powder and dynamite. These exploded with terrific force and the air was filled for a time with bullets, as the flames discharged cartridge after cartridge. The firemen were driven away and the flames gained fresh energy. Down the street they spread with the rapidity of a train of ignited powder and soon five blocks of Bay street were burning furiously. Finally at the corner of Bay street and Laurel the spread of the flames was checked.

All the churches in the city were destroyed. Among other notable buildings burned are the municipal building, fire department building, the armory, the Duval County court house, the jail, the criminal court house and the County Clerk's office.

For the reconstruction of the county buildings a bill has been drafted appropriating $200,000 and another bill providing for the issuing of $500,000 in city bonds was introduced in the Legislature for the reconstruction of the city buildings. Meantime relief has been pouring in from Atlanta, Charleston, Detroit, New York, Boston, Chicago and other cities.

PRIEST IS FOUND DEAD.

Victim Had Disappeared from Home in Hazleton, Pa.

Some of the mystery concerning the whereabouts of Rev. Edward S. Phillips of St. Gabriel's Church, Hazleton, Pa., who disappeared from his home two weeks ago, has been cleared up. A body found Thursday night in a house in Ninth avenue, New York City, has been identified as that of the priest, and the police are working on the theory that he was murdered. One arrest has been made. Kirk Stanley, a massage operator, in whose rooms the body was found, is locked up suspected of being connected with the crime. The body was not discovered until decomposition was well advanced. Father Phillips had been away from Hazleton for about two weeks, presumably on a vacation.

STRIKE COSTS TWO LIVES.

Troops Fire on a Mob at Albany, N. Y., and Kill Innocent Bystanders.

Two dead, one dying and sixteen suffering from injuries more or less severe, was the record at noon Friday of casualties resulting from the strike of United Traction Company employes in Albany, N. Y. Of three men who were wounded by the fire of the National Guardsmen William Walsh and E. Le Roy Smith are dead. The fatalities were caused by a squad of Company E, Twenty-third infantry, which fired from an open trolley car on which it was riding at 4:20 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The car had been attacked by the mob with a shower of bricks and missiles.

At Albany, N. Y., Thursday morning the United Traction Company began preparations to move its cars. At 8 o'clock Gen. Barnes, in command of the Twenty-third regiment, brought out before the Quail street barn his entire regiment. At the same time the Tenth battalion started down town, dropping out details on the way at street corners along the traction line running to Broadway. One company of the Twenty-third—Company A—started to clear out the mob massed at the curve on Central avenue. Persuasion was of no avail. "Charge bayonets!" shouted Lieut. Col. Brady, who was near by. Down went the gleaming points, and on a rush the men started for the crowd. Just as they reached them the order to reverse guns was given, and the butts smashed against human flesh.

With a howl the crowd started back, some with bloody faces and some with broken bones. The moving mass was not allowed to stop until it had been driven three blocks away. Then every side street for blocks around was cleared and army details began the work of closing the saloons and houses. The soldiers had to club the men with their rifles. Finally the streets about the car barns were cleared.

As the motors kept coming down the hill, a dispatch says, the crowd near the postoffice grew and became excited. The military charged upon the crowd and drove it two blocks away from the junction of State and Broadway. The cars ran up the roadway as far as the company's barn and although there were several thousand people the hostile demonstration was limited to jeering those on the cars. Next the repair wagons guarded by seventy mounted signal corps men came down the street and turned up Broadway, where there was some repairing to be done.

The strike has been a costly experience for the United Traction Company. In addition to the deaths and severe injuries which have resulted, there has been at the least $11,000 worth of property destroyed and a loss of $125,000 to the company otherwise. There is considerable indignation expressed over the shooting of Walsh and Smith, both of whom were business men and reputable citizens, who were not interested in the strike save from an onlooker's viewpoint. They were seated in the doorway of Smith's store when the troops fired at the mob. Smith was prominent in business, political and social life there, as also was Walsh.

Chicago Woman a Victim to Her Belief in Dowie's Power of Cure.

Mrs. H. Worthington Judd and her baby died at her home in Englewood, Ill., abjuring medical treatment because she and Mr. Judd were Dowie devotees. Dowie was called to cure her, but failed. The "Overseer of Zion" was then summoned before the coroner's jury, and it is said will be made to answer, if possible, for the deaths, as a post-mortem examination convinced the coroner's physician that medical aid would have saved mother and babe.

Dowie's appearance at the inquest marked his first testimony during his residence in Chicago as to the death of one of his followers. Judd was the first witness, and he recounted a heartless story of the sufferings of his wife. He told of going back to his bed and resting after he had called up Dowie on the telephone and asked him to pray for his wife. He declared that had his wife asked for a physician he would not have called one. "Would you have refused the dying request of your wife had she asked that a physician be summoned?" asked the coroner of Mr. Judd. "Yes, sir, I would," was the answer. "I would have known that she was not in her right mind had she made such a request."

After Judd had finished Dowie took the stand and told his story. He said that when he called at the Judd home he found the woman in a serious condition, but after he had prayed for her she apparently rested comfortably and had passed the critical stage. He then went home, he said. The undertaker then told the rest.

An "M. D.'s" Open Letter.

Benton, Ill., May 20.—R. H. Dunaway, M. D., of this place, in an open letter, makes the following startling statement:

"I had Diabetes with all its worst symptoms. I applied every remedy known to the profession, as well as every prescription suggested in our books. In spite of all, I was dying, and I knew it.

"As a last resort, and with scarcely any faith whatever, I commenced taking Dodd's Kidney Pills. In one week I saw a great improvement. After I had taken five boxes, I was sound and well. This is ten months ago, and I have not taken any medicine of any kind since, and am convinced that my cure is a permanent one.

"As a practicing physician with years of experience, I most positively assert that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best medicine in the world to-day, for Diabetes or any other Kidney Disease. Since using them myself, I have used them in many cases in my practice, and they have never failed.

"I am making this statement as a professional man, after having made a most thorough test of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and because I feel it my duty to the public and to my professional brethren. The truth can never hurt anyone, and what I have said is the absolute truth.

"R. H. DUNAWAY, M. D."

It is no wonder that the public are enthusiastic over this new medicine, when our leading physicians themselves are being won over to its use.

There would not be so many open mouths if there were not so many open ears.—Bishop Hall.

The drowsy, sleepy feeling I used to have has entirely disappeared. The dyspepsia has left me and my rheumatism is gone entirely. "Fall in!" and they form at beat of drum;
"March!" and adown the street they come,
Under the elms where the shadows play
And, dancing, dapple the dusty way,
Past the heug's whose bursting bloom
Fills the air with a sweet perfume,
Under the blue of the brigat May sky
Again the heroes are marching by.

Not as they marched in days of old,
Young and gallant and strong and bold,
To the stirring lit of a martial air
Or the warlike note of a bugle's blare,
But staid and slow, for the needs are white,
And the feet are heavy that once were light,
And the sturdy shoulders are bending now,
And old Time's fingers have marked each brow.

'Tis twoscore years since the war god flung
The challenge grim from his evil tongue,
'Tis twoscore years since the village street
First heard the tramp of these marching feet.

And men left mother and child and wife
And sought the clash of the civil strife,
To throw their lives in the breach and fight
For flag and cause they deemed the right.

And now they're marching again to-day,
Old and feeble and bent and gray,
Not to the storm of shot and shell
Nor the raging rout of the battle's hell,
But to the churchyard, calm, to heap
Tributes fair where their comrades sleep,
Wreaths of lily and rose to strew
O'er the men in gray or the men in blue.

Softly mutters the muffled drum,
Down through the leafy lanes they come,
Lulled by the whispering birds and bees,
Fanned by the scented summer breeze
That, through the arching boughs above,
Sings the message of brother love;
On through the fair land's blest increase
The heroes move on their march of peace.

SUE LYLE'S SORROW.

SUE LYLE was the village hermit. For twenty years she had never been outside her own gate but twice, and those two times were when she followed her old father and mother to their last resting place among their kindred dead. Once she had been the village belle, and no more light-hearted, sunny-faced girl could have been found in all the country side than just pretty Sue Lyle, the wood-carver's only daughter.

In these bright, halcyon days she had many suitors; but Sue was no coquette, and she smiled only on one—handsome Luke Hamilton, the young artist. Luke was a poor orphan boy, and had his way to make in the world, but Sue loved him, and the morning before he went to the army he put the engagement ring on her finger.

It was a full year before she looked into his dear face again, and then his furlough lasted only three days. But Luke was a good correspondent, and every week brought her a cheery letter. There came a time—a Saturday morning in the month of May, 1863—when Susan turned away from the little country postoffice without her accustomed letter; and before the day was over she learned that there had been a great battle on the Chancellorsville ground, and that her noble lover had been left dead upon the bloody field.

The blow almost killed her. For days and weeks she went about the house like one in a dream. She could not shed a tear, and no complaint escaped her lips, but her heart was broken, and her pale face and hollow eyes appealed most eloquently to the hearts of all who came to express their sympathy.

After the first keen edge of her sorrow wore away, she arose from her stony grief, put out of sight all the sweet tokens of the precious dead, and without a word went back to her daily household duties. But she was never the same girl again. Her loss seemed to embitter her life, to make her hard and exacting even with those she best loved, and after a while her young friends, hurt by her indifference, ceased their efforts to keep a hold on her heart. She never went outside of the gate, not even to church, and after her parents died, weeks and weeks would pass without her even exchanging words with a single soul, except the grocer's boy who came every Saturday morning to deliver her week's supply of groceries. Sometimes the neighbor women would run in with their knitting and budget of news, and sit an hour or so with the poor lone woman, but the welcome they received was not cordial enough to invite a speedy return.

So the years rolled away, and Susan Lyle drifted further and further away from human love and sympathy, and the villagers, when they spoke of her at all, sighed over the wreck of a life which had once been so full of fragrance and beauty. Though the little cottage was kept as neat and trim as hands could make it, and the fence around the lot in the best of repair, the severe plainness of the home, outside and in, was so marked as to be positively painful. From the morning when with aching heart the disappointed woman had locked her piano and banished from her sight all the pretty adornments which had given such bewitching charm and grace to the home, it had been her studied care to see that not a trace of beauty should ever creep in to brighten the gloom she considered so fitting to her shattered life.

There was one thing, however—the rose bush which Luke had brought her from the Sunny South—that she had not the heart to banish from her sight. He had been at great pains to procure it, and had carried it all the way home in his pocket. Then, too, it was his hands that had planted it, and she could not pluck it up by the roots, although it grieved her to the heart to see it growing so strong and thrifty, right at her very door, while poor Luke was lying in an unknown grave, with not even a rose bush to mark where he was buried. She had promised him that he should have the very first rose that bloomed. But before that time came 'round he had sealed his patriotism with his life.

The bush grew and twined all over the side of the little cottage, and every year its wealth of blossoms made the whole neighborhood fragrant; but the roses all withered and dropped off when they had given out their sweetness, for Susan never had the heart to pick a single one, after the promise she had made to Luke. Though at first it pained her to look at this last gift of one so dearly beloved, as the years came and went she learned to love that bush, as if it had been a living thing, and to look forward eagerly to the coming of the summer months when she could feast her eyes on the only friends that had any claim upon her affections—Luke's roses.

One cool evening in May, more than a score of years after all the sweetness had been crushed out of Susan's life, a delicate-looking boy came slowly up the walk which led to her door, and timidly asked shelter for the night. Susan was not in the habit of entertaining strangers, but before she had time to send him away, the boy, who really was ill, staggered forward a step or two, and then fell fainting on the very threshold. Instantly there flashed into her mind a line of that old war song, "Brother's fainting at the door," which she and Luke had sung together the very morning he had gone away for the last time; and right eloquently did it plead for the sick stranger at her door.

"Poor boy! I should not wonder if he were starving, his face looks so white and pinched," she said, as she brought water to bathe his pallid brow.

As soon as he recovered from the swoon she helped him into the house and laid him on her soft bed. Though it vexed her that he could not eat a morsel of the dainty food she brought him, she lay down hoping that by morning his appetite would have returned and he would be able to continue his journey in safety. But in the morning he was not able to lift his head from the pillow, and many mornings came and went before he was able to tell his name, or where his kindred dwelt.

All this time Susan kept him in her house, and cared for him tenderly as if she had been his mother. Perhaps she would have sent him to the hospital that first morning had not a small gold locket she found suspended around his neck touched the one tender spot in her heart. She had seen that tiny locket before, and even before she opened it she knew that she held in her hand a key which would unlock the mystery surrounding her lost grave.

As soon as the boy was able he told her that the locket had once belonged to a soldier—a dark-haired young man who was mortally wounded at Chancellorsville. After the battle was over his mother, who lived near the battle field, had ministered to the dying stranger, and though he could not speak nor give his name, the poor young man had put the locket and a package of pictures into his mother's hands; but as there was no address on anything left in her possession, it had been impossible for her to return the property to the friends for whom it was intended. He told her, too, that his mother had buried the dead stranger under a large elm tree in sight of the battle field, and that every Decoration Day she covered the solitary grave with the most beautiful flowers she could find.

Susan listened with dimmed eyes to the touching story, and just as soon as the boy, whose name was Willie Rae, was able to travel, she cut the finest of the roses, and went with him to his home to learn all that his mother could tell about the stranger she had ministered to before Willie was born. Among the pictures she found her own—an old-fashioned ambrotype, stained with poor Luke's heart-blood, and, as she looked upon it, for the first time in a score of years tears came to her relief. There was no doubt about the grave's being her own; so Luke's roses were tenderly laid upon it, and Susan, after rewarding the poor widow for her kindness to the dead, took Willie with her, and went back to her Northern home in time to keep Decoration Day by sending a wreath of Luke's roses to lay upon every soldier's grave in the village cemetery.

"What a mistake I have been making all these years in shutting out from my life so much human love and sunshine!" she said to herself, when she saw how gratefully her tribute to the dead was received. "I have certainly been very selfish in my grief, never thinking that other hearts might be as heavy as my own. With the help of my Father in heaven, the remainder of my life shall be spent in helping others."

And she has kept her vow. Once a year she takes Willie back to see his mother, and lays a wreath of roses on Luke's grave; but there are always enough left to decorate the sixteen graves made for the boys in blue who are sleeping in the old cemetery near her home.

Adversity's Round Robin.

"This is a cold world; a man can't get a job unless he has a good suit of clothes."

"Well, that's logic."

"Logic? He can't get a good suit of clothes unless he has a job."

MEMORIAL DAY

We turn us from the toil and trade and busy ways of men
To strew their low green shelter tents with blossoms once again.
This army of our soldiers, in their lone, last rendezvous,
Where sleeping sentries give no sign the long night watches thro'

And nature's broi'dery of grass,
unsleed by marching feet,
Creeps softly by the closed doors and covers all the street.
And gently as the healing dews
upon the daisies fall,
And sweetly as the chanting birds
from sunny distance call—

The brooding sky, the smiling earth,
the warm and fragrant air
Fill all the heart with love of Him
Who made the world so fair.
And whether war be sometimes right, or war be always wrong,
And whether victory be proof—
the small against the strong—

His deed is Christy, man for man, who layeth dear life down—
Whatso his color—blue or gray or simple island brown;
Then in this silent camping
ground, we tarry, comforted,
And hush our heartaches, knowing true the glory of our dead.

The land was kind that signed for them advancement and release
And set their weary feet among the hills of perfect Peace
And ye bear witness, beauteous flowers that tender hands let fall—
Faith to the utmost in His love,
Supreme and over all.

OHIO TAKES ITS FIRST DIP IN SALT WATER.

President McKinley Participates in the Ceremonies—Miss Barber Presses Button that Sets Vessel Free—Fifty Thousand Cheering People Witness Event.

At San Francisco, amid the booming of the big guns of the warships, the shriek of thousands of steam whistles and the cheers of 50,000 people, the battleship Ohio at 12:26 Saturday afternoon took its first dip into the sea. Miss Barber, a niece of Mrs. McKinley, pressed the button that released the big hull and Miss Helen Deshler of Ohio broke the bottle of champagne and gave to the new fighting machine its name.

Fortunately Mrs. McKinley's condition permitted President McKinley to attend the launching from the yards of the Union iron works. To witness the launching of this ship, named in honor of his native State, was the real object of the President's long trip across the continent, and was the event which has attracted to the Pacific coast the Governors of three States, the Ohio congressional delegation, several United States Senators and many other notable and distinguished people.

Dramatic and picturesque as was the sight of 14,000 tons of steel sliding into the full-breasted tide of San Francisco bay, it was not so splendid and magnificent as the great naval pageant which accompanied, nor as profoundly impressive as the greeting extended to the President by the 4,500 employes of the shipyard.

President Welcomes Soldiers.

The transport Sheridan arrived from Manila during the day, with a large number of soldiers on board, and as it steamed into the harbor the presidential party, on the Slocum, steamed out to and around the transport. It was but a few seconds before the soldiers, crowding on the rails of the transport, recognized the President, and their enthusiasm at the unexpected welcoming by their President knew no bounds.

The President drove rapidly through the streets and was cheered enthusiastically and in response repeatedly lifted his hat. Arrived at the transport dock, he boarded the government tug Slocum, which was to carry the presidential party and congressional delegation and other favored guests to the scene of the launching at the Union iron works. Besides the cabinet members and the ladies, there were on board the little vessel Gov. Nash of Ohio and his staff, Miss Barber, niece of Mrs. McKinley, and Miss Deshler and her sister.

A great fleet of craft of every possible description had preceded the President out into the blue waters of the bay, all loaded down to the water's edge with masses of humanity anxious to do the President honor. It was a glorious sight. Flags and bunting streamed from their fastenings in the cool breeze, flags fluttered and streamers of national colors trailed in the wind. Bands played popular airs and there was an incessant cheering. Added to the noise which issued from the smaller craft in the bay was the boom of the cannon from several warships anchored in the harbor. All along the water front the fleet of boats were given ovations and returning cheers and salutes were echoed all down the bay.

The Ohio party boarded the steamer Resolute and the United States steamer McDowell conveyed Gen. Shafter and his officers of the post and the women of their party to the scene of the festivities. Barges without number, loaded to their utmost capacity, were towed down the bay by powerful tugs and in and out of the procession steamed the government tugs Governor Markham and Governor Irwin, bearing Gov. Gage and his staff and other State officers.

President McKinley arrived at the Union iron works shortly after 10 o'clock. There he found the 3,000 employes assembled in the big yard. The President was greeted with a cheer and was presented a gold plate in memory of the occasion. He spoke briefly to the men, thanking them for the gift and complimenting them on their skill as workmen.

Big Ship Goes Into the Sea

The ceremonies were simple, but significant. There was the formal exchange of acceptance on the part of the government and then, the tide having reached its flood, the word was given. The bottle of California champagne depended from the bow by ribbons of red, white and blue braided into a rope.

At 12:26 sharp Irving M. Scott gave Miss Barber the signal and she touched the magic electrical machine. The guillotine shot downward like a flash and severed the cord. The dog shore toppled over of its own weight and the cleverly constructed system of props caved in like a house of cards.

As soon as the launching was over President McKinley boarded the Slocum and hastened back to the dock. He was impatient to be once more at the bedside of his sick wife. Without waiting for the gang plank to be run out he stepped over the rail to the pier, hurried to a carriage in waiting and was driven rapidly to the Scott residence.

BUFFALO FAIR OPENED.

Pan-American Exposition Is Dedicated with Pomp

Lowering clouds that threatened rain and a wind that blew in fitful gusts marked the opening hours of dedication day at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo. The exposition grounds and the business districts of the city where the military and civic parade formed were the centers that attracted the largest numbers, while the streets and avenues connecting the two swarmed with animated crowds. The street scenes were picturesque.

The proceedings to disbar H. R. Robbins of Starke county are now in Allen Circuit Court at Fort Wayne and he cannot take any more changes of venue under the law. The case will be tried before Judge O'Rourke, regular Judge of that Court.

It is rumored in Plymouth that the old Parker House lot has been sold to a Mr. Speicher, who will erect a large building thereon. It is high time this was done, for some time past the ears of the passer by have been charmed by the croak of the bull frog, and that in the very heart of the city.

Last Sunday morning, the cadets and officers of the Culver Military Academy attended the M. E. Church in a body. They made a very striking appearance in their natty uniforms, polished buttons etc. Rev. Forest C. Taylor the pastor, preached a most excellent and profound sermon on the subject of prayer, which for sound logic and eloquence of delivery would be hard to beat even by those who have stood in the pulpit for years upon years. Had we space, we would have liked to have published the sermon in full. Although a very young man, Mr. Taylor is a great sermonizer and an orator of marked ability.

A brother editor is responsible for this sublime outburst: "Our heart is swelled with gratitude and our voice is choked with emotion like a muly cow with a turnip in her throat. The world is after all a happy one and as we gaze from the window of our editorial monastery at the sun-kissed landscape, sweet visions of milk and honey, humming birds and molasses, bricked cheese and brocial nectar dance before our astonished vision like a calf before a circus procession. Last Saturday one of our subscribers came up and paid in cool cash three years in arrearage and two years in advance. Praise God from whom all blessing flow.

It seems certain that there will be no general use of voting machines in the coming election," says the Indianapolis Sentinel, as the county commissioners will not purchase them. In this situation why should not arrangements be made to lease twenty or thirty machines for the election." This would be a good scheme for other places to follow as it gives machine voting a trial without much cost.

W. S. Easterday attended the Indiana Funeral Directors' Association last week and remained from Tuesday till Friday evening. He reports a very enthusiastic session. The new law relative to embalming has brought hundreds of undertakers to the front looking sharp after their license; and as a most rigid examination takes place none but those who thoroughly understand their business need apply. Right here we wish to say, that Mr. Easterday of this place stood away up at the head of the list of competent men. He also examined the ashes of cremated men, which were on exhibition in beautiful jars, and says if any one desires to be cremated after they have unwound this earthly coil, they can be accommodated by leaving orders at his undertaking establishment.

"Well my boy," said a Burr Oak father Saturday to his son who wanted a wheel, "you'll find one on the end of that wheel-barrow, there is a big pile of coal ashes back of the house that will have to be moved. The handlebars are of white ash and adjustable, so you can get any style of hump on that suite your fancy. It is regulated largely by the load you put on. The bigger, the more you have to hump yourself. Be careful and do not mar the enamel on the frame and keep the ball-bearings well oiled so they won't cut the cones. The tire is non-puncturable, so you won't have to take a pump and a repair kit with you. By the time you remove that pile of ashes I think you will have made a century run, also the perspiration.

A VALUABLE MEDICINE.
For Coughs and Colds in Children.
"I have not the slightest hesitancy in recommending Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to all who are suffering from coughs or colds," says Chas. M. Cramer, Esq., a well known watchmaker, of Colombo, Ceylon. "It has been some two years since the City Dispensary first called my attention to this valuable medicine and I have repeatedly used it and it has always been beneficial. It has cured me quickly of all chest colds. It is especially effective for children and seldom takes more than one bottle to cure them of hoarseness. I have persuaded many to try this valuable medicine, and they are all as well pleased as myself over the results. For sale by T. E. Slattery, druggist.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

New Law Increases Compensation of Teachers—Little Boy the Victim of Strange Malady—Student Crazy by Unrequited Love—Kills His Prisoner.

School authorities in the State are amazed at the possibilities of increased cost of teaching in the common schools under the operation of the law passed last winter fixing the basis of pay for teachers. Now is the time when the school authorities employ teachers for the next school year, and in doing so the discovery is made that there will be thousands of dollars of increase in the salary totals. The new minimum pay is figured at two and one-half times the percentage of the teacher in the examination on which the teacher's license was issued. For instance, if a teacher made 100 per cent the pay would be $2.50 a day. Twenty days a month are counted, and that would make the salary $50, and ten months in the year, $500. Few of the new teachers receive above $300. Of course not many have 100 per cent to their credit, but with 90 per cent there is an advance of $150.

Members Drop from Body.

Raynaud's disease, of which only two cases have ever been reported to the American physicians, is slowly consuming 3-year-old Garnet Jones of Winchester. The malady is described by Dr. Milligan of Winchester. The spinal cord becomes first affected and causes a contraction of the arteries. It cuts off the supply of blood to the extremities of the body. The parts diseased finally shrivel and die, dropping from the body. The boy patient had seemingly excellent health from the time he was born until recently, when the disease suddenly came upon him. It appeared in the form of common hives, the eruptions breaking out on the fingers and toes. Then the eruptions ceased and the fingers became colored, first white, then red, and finally ended by assuming a dark blue and later becoming dead, until they dropped from the child's hands.

His Love Drives Student Insane.

John Shephard, a student at the Indiana Normal School and a member of a prominent family at Danville, Ill., has been driven insane by being jilted by a young woman student. The attentions of Shephard for a time were to all appearances reciprocated. He was found roaming the streets of Laporte, crying aloud for the young woman.

Escaped Prisoner Recaptured.

John Davis, who escaped from jail at Winchester by knocking senseless the wife of Sheriff Overman when she was serving his supper, was captured in Muncie. He had been held for trial on the charge of shooting an officer at Blountsville who attempted to arrest him for a desperate crime. A deputy sheriff George Reeves was shot to death near Huntingburg while being taken from Jeffersonville reformatory to Jasper, where he and his brother John were to be placed on trial for a murder committed nearly twenty years ago.

Within Our Borders.

At Mentone natural gas was struck the other day.
Richmond fire losses last year, $35,613. Building permits, $175,540.
Noblesville bottling works started. Down all winter. No gas.
Robert Daily, 19 years old, was killed by an electric car at Marion.
Fire in Merchants' Distillery at Terre Haute caused a loss of $20,000.
The Thompson planing mill, Oakland City, burned. Loss $1,000, small insurance.
Mrs. Martha Peck, Kokomo, tried seven times to commit suicide. Poison, choking and hanging. Will go to asylum.
Congressman A. L. Brick has decided to recommend C. D. Sherwin as the next postmaster at Goshen, to succeed M. A. Cornell.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben T. Webb, Lafayette, celebrated their sixty-sixth wedding anniversary. They have ninety-five descendants.

A woman swindler worked Middletown females for $100. Sold 'em rose bush sprouts of a fine variety. They never sprouted.

Elections for minor officers are held in 300 incorporated towns in Indiana. Local questions rather than partisan politics decided results.

Hickman Rich and wife were instantly killed by a north-bound train at Sullivan. They were returning home in a wagon and endeavored to cross the tracks.

Charles Bannata, living near Mount Summit, was standing in the back yard when a crow alighted on the fence. Bannata secured his shotgun, intending to kill the bird. The shot instead of hitting the crow hit Mrs. Bannata, who was standing near, and inflicted a fatal wound.

La Porte will entertain May 21 and 22 the largest delegate body in its history. The Knights of the Maccabees and the Ladies of the Maccabees will meet there in the largest State convention yet held, and preparation is being made for the entertainment of over 1,000 delegates and visitors.

Within the past two months three business men of Elwood have suddenly disappeared, leaving no message to their families, and as yet none of them has been heard from. The last to be added to the list of missing is John Ballard, who was formerly engaged in the furniture business in Elwood.

MRS. M'KINLEY IS BETTER.

Physicians Now Take Very Hopeful View of Her Case.

Mrs. McKinley has continued to improve and her physicians are very hopeful. Her condition was so far improved Sunday evening that she was able to sit up a while. During the President's absence at the launching of the battleship Ohio Mrs. McKinley slept quietly.

It is learned that the rally which marked the turning point in Mrs. McKinley's illness came immediately after a treatment on Thursday which included a saline injection directly into the blood. Her pulse showed quick improvement and she has continued to improve ever since. Leading physicians who have been informed of the course of treatment which has been pursued not only entertain the hope but have confidence in the prediction that the patient will have better health in the future than she has had for many years.

President McKinley is in receipt of cablegrams from the King and Queen of England, President Loubet of France and many other European potentates inquiring as to Mrs. McKinley's condition.

The President and his wife will go direct from San Francisco to Canton. At Mrs. McKinley's old home, surrounded by familiar faces and with every comfort, it is expected that her recuperation will be more rapid than if she went to Washington. President McKinley spends much of each summer at Canton, and the arrival there will not be far from the date of his regular annual visit. He will probably proceed immediately to Washington after leaving Mrs. McKinley, returning to Canton as soon as the more pressing public business has been disposed of. Miss Mary Barber, Mrs. McKinley's niece, will go with Mrs. McKinley to Canton.

The Ogden route will be taken. The train will be about as large as the one that came West, having accommodations for the President and cabinet and ladies, Secretary and Mrs. Cortelyou, Dr. and Mrs. Rixey, Mr. and Mrs. Moore, Assistant Secretary Barnes and the White House staff and eleven members of the press and photographers.

PHILLIPS' CORN CAMPAIGN ENDS

Wind-Up of the Fight Involving 15,000,000 Bushels of the Cereal.

George H. Phillips' corner in May corn was made a thing of the past on the Chicago Board of Trade Friday. The young speculator sold in the pit during the first hour of the session about 500,000 bushels from 54 to 50 cents, and probably as much more the rest of the day. It is generally thought Phillips held a line of from 14,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels of corn when his holdings were at the maximum. That included what he bought for May,

PHILLIPS AND HIS MODEST HOME.

July and September deliveries. He had probably 7,000,000 or 8,000,000 bushels for May, and made about 10 cents a bushel profit on 6,000,000 bushels of it sold in the pit.

The Phillips May corn deal is held by old-time members of the Board of Trade as one of the most remarkable speculative feats in the history of the board. Covering a period of about three months, the deal has involved, according to the popular estimate, as much as 15,000,000 bushels, on which it is figured Phillips and his customers have made a profit of about $750,000, although the expenses of the deal will cut this down somewhat. The price of May corn advanced from 35 cents to 60 cents. The Phillips holdings are said to show an average profit of 10 cents a bushel, with the exception of the several millions of cash corn which Phillips was obliged to take in on deliveries.

ENDS THE LIVES OF THREE.

Youth at Evansville, Ind., Has a Carnival of Bloodshed.

Murderous hate, inspired by an injustice which he believed had been done to his father in business matters, caused Evert Conway of Evansville, Ind., to kill his neighbor and his neighbor's wife, fatally wound a policeman and shoot two other men. In his rage he killed every cow in his neighbor's stable, set the stable on fire and just missed shooting his own father when the latter tried to interfere with him. He ended his bloody course in his own home, where he shot himself through the heart, after the entire police force of the city, numbering fifty men, had surrounded the house and made his escape impossible.

Conway's father recently sold a dairy to the neighbor, Garrison, and his son didn't like it. He wrote several threatening letters to Garrison, but they were disregarded. Sunday morning Conway went to the stable where Garrison was milking and shot him dead. He then turned his gun on his father, who tried to interfere. Mrs. Garrison ran into the back yard and Conway shot her as she descended the steps. He then barricaded himself in his house, and when Policeman Wallis tried to arrest him, shot him. A riot alarm was turned in and the entire police department responded. Before the police arrived Conway went into his own home next door and kissing his wife good-by, went upstairs and shot himself in the heart. He died instantly.

G. A. R. OF INDIANA.

VETERANS HOLD ENCAMPMENT AT LOGANSPORT.

Hundreds of Old Soldiers Throng the Streets of the City—Annual Address of Commander Beem—Condition of the Great Brotherhood.

Logansport correspondence.

Hundreds of veterans were in Logansport to attend the State encampment of the Grand Army. All of the railroads sold round-trip tickets at a low rate, and few of the men who wore the blue remained away because of lack of funds.

Citizens made ample preparations to entertain the visitors, and the streets were prettily decorated. Nearly every store floated a flag and the hotels and boarding houses were gay with color.

Department Commander Beem in his address on Wednesday before the Grand Army said that of the original colonels of the 156 Indiana regiments appointed by Gov. Morton only sixteen survive and that the average age of the survivors of the Civil War is over 60 years. He concluded:

Commander Beem's Address.

"It is not strange, therefore, that the membership of this department should have steadily declined for several years. Regardless of this, however, the situation has some encouraging features. The membership last year was 16,615; gained during the year since, 1,706; total, if no losses, 18,321. Losses by death, 419; losses from other causes, 1,619; total losses, 2,110. Membership at the present time, 16,211. The number of posts in good standing last year was 455; since six new posts have been organized and eighteen have disbanded, leaving 443 posts in good standing now."

The department commander notes with satisfaction the growing observance of Memorial Day—more general May 30, 1900, than ever before. He has a word of encouragement for Sons of Veterans, and then speaks of the Woman's Relief Corps as follows: "When God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam and by that mysterious process which has always been the wonder and admiration of man, evolved woman from one of his ribs, it seems that the necessity for woman's help had its inception in the thought of the infinite. It is a fact, however, that the idea never had its perfect development until the organization of the Woman's Relief Corps, auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic. During the days of trial, hardship, suffering and battle, the soldiers of the Union had the sympathy, the prayers and the active help of the loyal women of the land. To the honor and glory of the women, be it said, they suffered with a heroism equal to the heroism of the battlefield. The loyal women of that day were equally patriotic and equally devoted to the cause of the Union, and they are now equally entitled to honor and credit with the men who bore arms. To aid and assist worthy soldiers in distress, to help care for his widow and orphans, to sympathize with and encourage the Grand Army of the Republic, to honor the cause for which he fought, to teach patriotism—these are the high and splendid purposes of the Woman's Relief Corps. We welcome their kindly efforts in our behalf, and we appreciate the sympathy and patriotic support of all loyal women."

R. M. Smock's Reports.

The report of membership for 1900 is as follows:

Members in good standing Dec. 30, 1899, 16,615. Gained during the year 1900: By muster in, 599; by transfer, 243; by reinstatement, 864, a total of 1,706, making a grand total of 18,321. Loss during the year 1900: By death, 419; by honorable discharge, 27; by transfer, 474; by suspension, 1,189; by dishonorable discharge, 1, making a total loss of 2,110. Members in good standing Dec. 31, 1900, 16,211; members still suspended, 2,564, leaving a total of 18,775 on the rolls. Members dropped during the year, 1,898. Members and their families relieved, 212; others relieved, 88; amount expended for relief, $2,204.99.

The grand parade Wednesday afternoon was a feature of the meeting long to be remembered. Veterans too old to continue the march were relieved at various parts by vehicles. Leo Rassieur of St. Louis, national commander-in-chief, was among the officers in carriages. It is estimated that 10,000 men were in line, including the 800 delegates, which is said to be the largest number attending a convention of the G. A. R. for years.

The following officers were elected: Department commander, Captain Milton Garrigus of Kokomo; senior vice-commander, Rodney Strain of Logansport; junior vice-commander, Chas. W. Jones of Indianapolis; medical director, Dr. Warren R. King of Greenfield; chaplain, Rev. B. F. Shepherd of Pleasantville; delegate at large, Benjamin Starr of Richmond; alternate, Dr. A. R. Tucker of Noblesville.

Captain Garrigus won in a walk in his race over E. E. Georgia for State commander, the latter's name being withdrawn early in the session. Captain Garrigus was born in Wayne County in 1831. Before the war he taught school and was postmaster at Greentown. He served four years at the front with distinction.

The Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic selected Mrs. E. C. Sawtell of Fort Wayne for president and Mrs. Margaret Blöse of Richmond vice-president. In a secret session they passed a resolution condemning the War Department for their action in Russell Harrison's dismissal from the army service.

CAPT. GARRIGUS.

"Don't Speak to me."

All manner of extravagant expressions are possible when a woman's nerves are overwrought.

The spasm at the top of the wind pipe or bronchial tubes, "ball rising in the throat," violent beating of the heart, laughing and crying by turns, muscular spasms (throwing the arms about), frightened by the most insignificant occurrences—are all symptoms of a hysterical condition and serious derangement of the female organs.

Any female complaint may produce hysterics, which must be regarded as a symptom only. The cause, however, yields quickly to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which acts at once upon the organ afflicted and the nerve centers, dispelling effectually all those distressing symptoms.

Mrs. Lewis Says: "I Feel Like a New Person, Physically and Mentally."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to speak a good word for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For years I had ovarian trouble and suffered everything from nervousness, severe headache, and pain in back and abdomen. I had consulted different physicians, but decided to try your medicine, and I soon found it was giving me much relief. I continued its use and now am feeling like a new person, physically and mentally, and am glad to add one more testimonial to the value of your remedy."—Mrs. M. H. LEWIS, 2108 Valentine Ave., Tremont, New York, N. Y.

Writing to Mrs. Pinkham is the quickest and surest way to get the right advice about all female troubles. Her address is Lynn, Mass. She advises women free. Following is an instance:

Mrs. Haven's First Letter to Mrs. Pinkham.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I would like your advice in regard to my troubles. I suffer every month at time of menstruation, and flow so much and for so long that I become very weak, also get very dizzy. I am troubled times that I can hardly get around, have sore feeling in lower part of bowels, pains in passing it; have leucorrhoea, headache, fainting spells, and sometimes have hysteria. My blood is not in good condition. Hoping to hear from you, I am."—Mrs. EMMA HAVEN, 2508 South Ave., Council Bluffs, Iowa. (June 3, 1899.)

Mrs. Haven's Second Letter.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to express my gratitude for what your medicine has done for me. I suffered for four years with womb trouble. Every month I flowed very badly. I got so bad that I could hardly do my work. Was obliged to sit or lie down the most of the time. I doctored for a long time, but obtained no relief. I began using your remedies—Lydia and Liver Pills—and now feel like a new woman."—Mrs. EMMA HAVEN, 2508 South Ave., Council Bluffs, Iowa. (Feb. 1, 1900.)

THE SASKATOON DISTRICT.

One of the New Western Canada Districts.

The Great Advantages of Settlement Where the Soil is Unexampled Fertility.

During the past year or two a large number of American settlers (those going from the United States to Canada) have made homes in the Saskatoon district in Western Canada. They have found the climate all that could be desired, and their prospects are of the brightest. In writing of it a correspondent says:

The lands for sale are choice selections from a large area, and every farm is within easy distance of a railway station. Experience has shown summer district enjoys immunity from zards. The soil, from cyclones and blizzards through South Saskatchewan, flowing rivers in the tract, is one of the finest and having a high water table, being navigable and having a current, being a stream of 1,000 feet, average width of

The agents of the government of Canada, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in your paper, and who will be glad to give full information, tell me that within the limits of the tract there are two distinct varieties of soil. One is a rich black loam, and the other is a somewhat lighter loam, containing a small admixture of sand. There appears to be no appreciable difference between the fertility of these two kinds of soil. Both are alluvial in their characteristics; both are marvelously productive, and both rest upon a subsoil of clay. The advantage of this formation is that it retains the heat of the day during the night, and is favorable to the early maturity of crops. Every kind of crop will here attain the highest perfection of quality. The land is admirably adapted for stock raising and dairy farming, as well as growing grain. Some idea of the richness of the natural grasses of the prairie may be formed from the fact that more than 200 tons of hay were gathered within a short distance of Saskatoon, and stored up for use during the winter. A growth so luxuriant demonstrates beyond all possible question the suitability of the land for pasturing cattle, and no doubt this important industry will be largely carried on.

Nature has been lavish in her gifts to this territory. Not only is the soil of unexampled fertility, but the climate is delightful and healthy. Such is the testimony of every settler, and this testimony is confirmed by enthusiastic opinions from every traveler, explorer, missionary or newspaper correspondent, who has ever visited this famed Saskatchewan Valley. In former years vast herds of buffalo came here to winter from the elevated storm-swept regions south of the United States boundary line, proving thereby the adaptation of these rolling prairies to the purpose of raising stock. The land is dry, with sufficient, but not excessive rainfall, capable of early cultivation in the spring, and free from summer frosts. The configuration of the country renders artificial drainage unnecessary, and prevents the accumulation of stagnant pools; mists and fogs are seldom seen. The days of summer are full of sunshine, under the genial influence of which crops rapidly ripen. Autumn is characterized by an almost unbroken succession of fine weather, during which the crops are safely garnered. In winter it is cold, but extremely exhilarating and pleasant, owing to the wonderful dryness and bracing qualities of the air. The winter is a source of profit as well as enjoyment to the people, being far healthier than a humid climate.

Water and Fuel—These two prime necessities of life are plentiful throughout the district.

Juvenile Logic.

HOW FISHES TRAVEL UPSTAIRS

Part of Their Journey from Narragansett Bay to Nemasket River. It is not an uncommon thing to see on pleasant days, when the fish are running at East Taunton, Mass., hundreds of men, women and children clustered around the fishway watching the fish struggling up against the strong current, and trying to get into the smoother waters above the dam, where they may shoot off at their leisure to the spawning place in the Nemasket River.

The fishway is so constructed that it is impossible for the fish to make a clear swim from top to bottom or vice versa. They must work up the river in the eddies, for the tide is also very strong there near the dam, and until they reach the lower part of the fishway. Thence they struggle and wriggle into the lower entrance of the fishway, thus making sure of at least a chance to rub up against the boards and rest before they begin their wearisome fight for the top and smooth water.

It is in this fishway that the interest of the average spectator is centered, since here the fish can be seen plainly in bunches almost thick enough for one to walk across on their backs, and where one may easily reach down and pull them out of the water. They are generally packed in so thick that they cannot escape the quick-moving hand of man or boy.

A watchman is on duty at the fishway all of the time to see that no one disturbs them, but when his attention is taken up by questions that are asked frequently, those who like fish right out of the water smuggle them out and are away before they can be apprehended. It is understood that there are thousands of these herring stolen in this way and other ways before they get to the clear water, but there doesn't seem to be any help for it.

The Rascal.

Counsel for the defense had pleaded with such earnest and pathetic eloquence on behalf of his client, who stood charged with pocketpicking, that the audience was moved to tears, and the prisoner himself was rubbing his eyes with a silk handkerchief.

At that moment the barrister, happening to glance in his direction, suddenly stopped in his speech and exclaimed: "Why, the rascal is using my handkerchief!"—Tidbits.

If Coffee Poisons You.

ruins your digestion, makes you nervous and sallow complexioned, keeps you awake nights and acts against your system generally, try Grain-O, the new food drink. It is made of pure selected grain and is healthful, nourishing and appetizing. It has none of the bad effects of coffee, yet it is just as pleasant to the taste, and when properly prepared can't be told from the finest coffees. Costs about 1/4 as much. It is a healthful table drink for the children and adults. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 15 and 25c.

Revised in Time.

"Miss Strong," he began, "will you be mine? That is to say, er—"
She had knotted her fair brows in a frown.
"Er—that is, may I be yours?"
"Yes," she said, with a smile.—Indianapolis Sun.

Bad Breath

Undigested, decaying food remnants, in the mouth and stomach, giving off pestiferous gases, are the cause of that awful breath, so repulsive as to cause a halt in friendship, affection, love,—any form of intimacy. Nobody can stand its overpowering stench, and it is a cause of terrible misery to those afflicted and their dear ones. There is only one way to cure it—disinfect the digestive canal with CASCARETS! Clean it out, keep it clean, let CASCARETS stimulate the lining of mouth and stomach, and put it in shape to work naturally and properly. Nothing but CASCARETS will bring about the desired result. BE SURE YOU GET THEM!

BEST FOR BOWELS AND LIVER.

THIS IS

THEY WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP THE TABLET

GUARANTEED TO CURE all bowel troubles, appendicitis, biliousness, bad breath, bad blood, wind on the stomach, bloated bowels, foul mouth, flatulence, indigestion, pimples, pains after eating, liver trouble, sallow complexion, dizziness. When your bowels don't move regularly you are getting sick. Constipation kills more people than all other diseases together. It is a starter for the chronic ailments and long years of suffering that come afterwards. No matter what ails you, start taking CASCARETS today, for you will never get well and be well all the time until you put your bowels right. Take our advice; start with CASCARETS today, under an absolute guarantee to cure or money refunded.

ens.—Detroit Free Press.

"I have been using CASCARETS and as a mild and effective laxative they are simply wonderful. My daughter and I were bothered with sick stomach and our breath was very bad. After taking a few doses of Cascarets we have improved wonderfully. They are a great help in the family."

FOR ALE—Any one wanting good white oak lumber for piers, sidewalks or building material, can be supplied by calling on the undersigned. HENRY ZECHTEL, G. S. YORK.

This paper might be filled with items like the following, and every one be the absolute truth. I had rheumatism for years and tried almost everything, but got no permanent relief until I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm, three bottles of which have cured me. It is the best medicine I ever used.—Philip E. Rhoads, Pennville, Mo. Pain Balm is for sale by T. E. Slattery, druggist.

"A neighbor ran in with a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when my son was suffering with severe cramps and was given up as beyond hope by my regular physician, who stands high in his profession. After administering three doses of it, my son regained consciousness and recovered entirely within twenty-four hours," says Mrs. Mary Haller, of Mt. Crawford, Va. This remedy is for sale by T. E. Slattery, druggist.

You will waste time if you try to cure indigestion or dyspepsia by starving yourself. That only makes it worse when you do eat heartily. You always need plenty of good food properly digested. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the result of years of scientific research for something that would digest not only some elements of food but every kind. And it is the one remedy that will do it. T. E. Slattery.

The least in quantity and best in quality describes Dewitt's Little Early Risers, the famous pills for constipation and liver complaints. T. E. Slattery.

John Twinman of Indianapolis, was here Sunday and left orders for some improvements to be made up on his cottage in Indianapolis row.

W. H. Fulton of Indianapolis, is putting some improvements on his property on the east side, in the shape of a stone wall under his cottage and the erection of a new pier

Mrs Mary Byrd, accompanied by her son Walter and Mrs. Henry Cverman, visited the Longeliff hospital at Logansport, recently and saw John Byrd, who is being treated there. She reports that although not improved physically as was hoped, he seemed to have perfect possession of his mental faculties and was delighted to see his mother. He said that he longed to return home as he was lonesome. Mrs. Byrd is satisfied that he is well treated and cared for.

Notice.
