ROOSEVELT SWORN IN

THE NEW PRESIDENT TAKES THE OATH OF OFFICE.

Tells the Cabinet Officers that His Main Purpose Is to Continue the Policies of McKinley—Pays Visit of Condolence to Widow.

Theodore Roosevelt became President of the United States at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, when he complied with the constitutional provision and took the prescribed oath to support and defend the constitution and the laws of the United States. He took that oath at Buffalo in the library of the residence of Ansley Wilcox, a personal friend, with whom he stopped earlier in the week when the physicians thought President McKinley would recover from the wound inflicted by the assassin.

The scene was a most affecting one. The new President had just come from the Milburn house, where his predecessor lay cold in death. Overcome by the deep personal sorrow he felt, in his characteristically impulsive way he had gone first to the house of mourning to offer his condolence and sympathy to the broken-hearted widow. Secretary Root, who, twenty years ago, had been present at a similar scene, when Arthur took the oath, after the death of another President who fell a victim to an assassin's bullet, almost broke down when he requested Mr. Roosevelt, on behalf of the members of the cabinet of the late President, to take the prescribed oath. There was not a dry eye in the room.

The new President was visibly shaken, but he controlled himself, and when he lifted his hand to swear it was steady. With the deep solemnity of the occasion full upon him, he announced to those present that his aim would be to be William McKinley's successor in deed as well as in name. Deliberately he proclaimed it in these words:

"In this hour of deep and terrible bereavement, I wish to state that it shall be my aim to continue absolutely unbroken the policy of President McKinley for the peace and prosperity and honor of our beloved country."

The great, far-reaching significance of this pledge to continue the policy of the dead President, announced at the very threshold of a new governmental regime, profoundly impressed his hearers, and President Roosevelt's first step after taking the oath was in line with its redemption. His first act was to ask the members of the cabinet to retain their portfolios temporarily in order to aid him to conduct the government on lines laid down by him whose policy he had declared he would uphold, and every member of the cabinet, including Secretary of State Hay and Secretary of the Treasury Gage, who were communicated with in Washington, agreed for the present, at least, to retain their several portfolios.

Col. Roosevelt arrived in Buffalo at 1:35 o'clock Saturday afternoon. He had had a hard night's ride from the North Woods to Albany and then a swift rush across the State by special train, but his bronzed face showed no signs of fatigue as he stepped from the train to the platform. He looked grave and saddened, but not in the least fatigued.

Inquiry was made of the President as to whether an extra session of Congress would be called by him, and he said in substance that there was no fundamental law requiring the calling of Congress together upon the succession of a Vice-President to the presidency, and that after consultation with the cabinet they had decided that no such extra session would be called.

Cabinet Will Stay.

Somewhat to the surprise of the six members of the cabinet who were on the funeral train from Buffalo, President Roosevelt called them into his private compartment and said to them that he wanted everyone of them to consider himself invited to become a member of the new cabinet.

"I not only want you to stay with me," said the President to them, "but I want you to consider that I am selecting you as my choice. You are asked not merely to fill out a term, but to be my chosen counselors. I wish to have the matter regarded in this light. There are vacancies in the cabinet post, and I choose all you gentlemen to fill them. I will appoint you anew."

The six members of the cabinet held a brief consultation, and at the end of it all of them accepted the invitation and pledged themselves to their new chief. At the request of the President they also promised to use all their influence to secure a similar acceptance from the two members of the cabinet who were not present at this happy conference—Secretaries Gage and Hay.

NEGRO WHO STRUCK DOWN CZOLGOSZ.

James B. Parker of New York City is the negro who stood directly ahead of Czolgosz when he shot President McKinley and who hurled him to the ground with a terrific blow after the second shot was fired. Parker was born in Atlanta forty-five years ago in slavery. He left New York last spring to wait in an exposition cafe. He is a giant in size, standing over six feet, and as erect as an Indian. The assassin tore his vest buttons entirely off in the struggle.

QUEEN OF THE REDS CAUGHT.

Notorious Emma Goldman Arrested by Chicago Police.

Emma Goldman, whose anarchistic lectures stirred Leon Czolgosz to shoot President McKinley, was arrested by the Chicago police in the house at 303 Sheffield avenue Tuesday afternoon. In telling of her whereabouts during the preceding ten days she spoke freely, and said that she was in Pittsburg early the previous week. From there she went to Cincinnati, where she remained until Thursday evening, when she went to St. Louis. She said she reached Chicago Saturday morning, and saw the police at the station watching for her.

The anarchist leader made admissions from which the police hope to gather much. She admitted knowing the would-be assassin of the President. July 12 she met him for a few moments in Chicago. Twice she admitted being in Buffalo this summer—once about the middle of July and the second time about the middle of August. On the second visit to Buffalo she visited the Pan-American Exposition.

Miss Goldman denied emphatically that she was in any way connected with the attack upon the President. She declared that there was nothing in her teachings to result in violence. In the same breath she called McKinley the most insignificant President in the history of the country—a weak tool of capital—the enemy of the laboring man. She declared that doubtless Czolgosz had "just causes" to drive him to the act he committed.

The importance of the capture of this anarchistic leader is deemed immense by the federal authorities. It is the intention to charge her directly with being an accessory before the fact in the attempted assassination of President McKinley.

Saturday afternoon the woman called at the postoffice in St. Louis and gave orders that her mail should be sent to Chicago, to the general delivery. The police were already on her trail at that time. Later she received a telegram. This she destroyed.

From nearly every State in the Union and from nearly every public man comes the demand for the crushing of anarchism, the arrest of its exponents, the suppression of its literature, and the interdiction of its meetings.

CATARRH OF KIDNEYS

Quickly Develops Into Bright's Disease.

(PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH WHEREVER LOCATED.)

John Herziger, son of Alderman Herziger, of Neenah, Wis., and Vice President of the Neenah Young Men's Club, writes in a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, the following:

"After suffering for two years with kidney trouble I received relief and a cure from using your wonderful medicine, Peruna."

"For months I was unable to work on account of a severe pain in my back, and when I was able to do anything I was in pain and distressed most of the time."

"Hearing so much of the good results people had obtained through the use of Peruna I determined to give it a trial and it was a lucky day for me when I did so. I am well now and it only took a few bottles of Peruna."—John Herziger, 307 Commercial street, Neenah, Wis.

Two years suffering with catarrh of the kidneys, unable to work on account of the severe pain; could find no relief from medicine; gave Peruna a trial and was promptly cured—such was the experience of John Herziger, of Wisconsin.

This experience has been repeated many times. Not only in Wisconsin but in every

The magistrate looked incredulous.

He says "I was in the very presence of death, but Dodd's Kidney Pills saved me. They are the greatest medicine in the world."

State in the Union. It was indeed a lucky day for this young man when his attention was called to Peruna. What would have been the result had he continued suffering on and fooling away precious time with other remedies, no man can tell. But it is almost certain that it would have ended in incurable Bright's disease of the kidneys, which sooner or later would have proved fatal.

Peruna is a sure cure for incipient Bright's disease of the kidneys. Taken in the early stages of this disease, it cures permanently. Bright's disease always begins with catarrh of the kidneys. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

Congressman Bankhead's Statement.

Congressman J. H. Bankhead, of Alabama, one of the most influential members of the House of Representatives, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., gives his indorsement to the great catarrh remedy, Peruna, in the following words:

"Your Peruna is one of the best medicines I ever tried, and no family should be without your remarkable remedy. As a tonic and a catarrh cure I know of nothing better."—J. H. Bankhead.

Samuel R. Sprecher, Junior Reade Court Angelina No. 3422 I. O. O. F., 205 High St., Los Angeles, Cal., writes:

"I came here a few days ago suffering with catarrh of the kidneys, in search of health. I thought that the climate would cure me but found that I was mistaken, but what the climate could not do Peruna could, and did do. Seven weeks' trial convinced me that I had the right medicine and I was then a well man. I know of at least twenty friends and members of the lodge to which I belong who have been cured of catarrh, bladder and kidney trouble through the use of Peruna and it has a host of friends in this city."—Samuel R. Sprecher.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

For sometime a young man hailing from Mishawaka has been doing the bread-baking, etc., at the Foss bakery. Headache Can be CURED WITH GLASSES.

Sixty per cent of the headache in the world is caused by eyestrain unsuspected by the sufferer. A slight defect in the delicate adjustments of the eye will cause headache, nausea and vomiting, which the patient will wrongly attribute to something he has eaten. If you are subject to headache in any form you should have your eyes carefully examined. We will do this and give you the benefit of the latest knowledge and most perfect instruments and we will tell you what kind of glasses you need, if any.

We treat all defects of vision successfully and according to the latest and best methods. Our improved ophthalmeter is the only one in the county and is a necessary instrument in testing the eye. We are here all the time to make our guarantees good and give you satisfaction for your money and our charges are always reasonable. We do not take your money and then go off where you cannot find us if anything is wrong.

Plymouth, Ind., July 13th, 1901.

To Whom it May Concern:

This is to certify that it affords me much pleasure in recommending to the public the work of Mr. Lot Losey, of this city. My little girl, aged nine, suffered greatly with headache the past winter, especially during the day while at work in school. We consulted our family physician, and under his advisement had her eyes tested by Mr. Losey. His work has given the greatest satisfaction, and since the second day after the glasses were fitted to her she has been entirely free from headache. I am satisfied that any one desiring the services of Mr. Losey will receive just and courteous treatment from him, and that his work will be satisfactory to all concerned.

Plymouth, Indiana, August 26th, 1901. This certifies that I am obliged to use glasses in order to see to transact my usual business, and that I have had glasses fitted by a few specialists and the last time I called on our Lot Losey, and it is with pleasure that I say that for clearness of vision, ease and rest to my eyes, the glasses fitted by Mr. Losey are more satisfactory than any heretofore used.

Attempted Train Hold-Up at Mount Dallas, Md., Is Unsuccessful—Two of the Thieves Escape—French Census Makes Good Population Showing.

Three masked men attempted to hold up a Pennsylvania Railroad train, Bedford Division, at Mount Dallas, Md., and one (a negro, whose identity cannot be established) was shot dead. The other two escaped. At Bedford W. F. Souder, paymaster for the Colonial Iron Company, Riddlesburg, and R. H. Kay, manager of the Morrisdale Coal Company at Six Mile Run, boarded the train with about $25,000, which they had secured from banks to pay off their employees. While the train was standing at the Mount Dallas station, where the engines were being changed, Mr. Souder, who, with Mr. Kay, was seated in the back of the rear car, was startled by a bullet whizzing through the window. The fire was returned and the robbers retreated. The men with drawn revolvers entered each door of the car. The third man who fired the shot at Souders stood on the outside as a guard, but Souders was too quick. Drawing his revolver, he fired at the man who had just missed him, the bullet entering the top of his head, coming out under the chin. Souder was elevated above the man and shot almost straight down, the bullet tearing clear through the head with terrific force and the man fell dead in his tracks, his hand clutching his revolver. The other two bandits, frightened by Souder's shot and a shot from Kay's revolver aimed at one of them, escaped.

The whole of the official returns of the census taken throughout France on March 24 last have now been received and classified at the ministry of the interior in Paris. The figures show a more satisfactory situation than had been expected. The total population of the country was at the date 38,641,333, as against 38,228,969 in March, 1896. The increase during the last five years was therefore 412,364, whereas in the preceding period of five years from 1891 to 1896 the increase had been only 133,819.

MAY BARE FIENDISH CRIME.

Nebraska Convict Held for Burning to Death of Sheriff's Daughter.

Some months ago the daughter of Sheriff Secord of Clay County, Neb., was burned to death in the family apartments at the county jail. At the time it was thought the catastrophe was the result of accident. Now it is believed by many that her death was the result of a cunning and fiendish plot. Theodore Clark, who is serving a three years' sentence in the penitentiary, is charged with the murder. When Clark was convicted he swore that he would have revenge on Sheriff Secord, not alone for his own conviction, but also for the killing of Viret Hawkins, the leader of a gang of thieves that terrorized Clay and Fillmore counties. In March Clark was paroled to his wife by Gov. Dietrich. A few days ago, on the representations of Sheriff Secord and the prosecuting attorney of Clay County, this parole was revoked and Clark returned to prison. It was learned shortly after Miss Secord's death that a compound had been applied to the carpet in the room where she met her fate which would cause ignition with only slight friction. A member of the family passing over the spot where her clothing first caught fire caused a blaze to flare up from the carpet. An investigation was at once begun and it is said that a chemical analysis of the compound shows it to contain elements to be found in the heads of parlor matches. Suspicion at once pointed toward Clark because of his oath of revenge and an effort is being made to ascertain whether or not he was at the jail about the time of the tragedy.

ROBBERS DEFIED BY CLERK.

William Brom, Threatened with Death, Shields Employers' Safe.

His life threatened and the building in which he stood partly wrecked by dynamite, William M. Brom successfully defied a gang of supposed burglars in Chicago. Armed with a revolver, but alone in the receiving office of the Chicago General Railway Company, Brom protected the safe in his charge and saved the company's money. Unable to intimidate the receiving clerk by their threats, the robbers caused the explosion which wrecked the door and a portion of the front wall. Then they attempted to reach the strong box, containing $450, by a concerted charge over the debris. Brom stood his ground faithfully. Dazed and injured as a result of the explosion, he was undaunted. Fired at three times by the robbers as they rushed toward him, he met their attack in kind. They declared they would hurl a dynamite cart-ridge into the office, but Brom replied by emptying three chambers of his revolver in their direction. Unprepared for this vigorous reception, the gang turned and fled. Brom, weak from excitement and from the pain of his injuries, fell exhausted. After a little while he recovered sufficiently to notify the Lawndale police station.

HAWAIIAN FOOD SUPPLY LOW.

Effect of San Francisco Strike Is Felt at Honolulu.

The San Francisco strike threatens to cause serious trouble in Hawaii by reason of the failure of San Francisco exporters to ship cargoes of provisions there. Local stocks of foodstuffs are becoming low, the larger Honolulu dealers are refusing to fill big orders and small retail stores cannot replace their stocks as they sell. The British cable ship Britannia, which has been surveying for the route of the cable from Victoria to Australia, has arrived at Honolulu. Her officers report that the cable will lie within 220 miles of the Hawaiian Islands, to the eastward. The arrival of the vessel has revived talk of the possibility of getting cable communication with the outside world without waiting for action of Congress, by means of a connection with the British line at Fanning Island, about 600 miles from Honolulu.

To My Many Friends: I am pleased to make a report to you of the pleasant visit my wife and I had in Western Canada.

We visited the territories of Alberta, Assiniboia, and Saskatchewan, and found them far surpassing our imagination, but little did I expect to find such rich, loamy soil, so much of it, and so uniform in its level prairie lay. I do think the soil of Canada as a rule equals if not excels the finest prairie farm lands of Indiana. These lands are immense in their richness, and when once the sod is rotted and pulverized, it is as pliable and as easily cultivated as Indiana sandy soil.

Western Canada, from my point of view, offers as fine opportunities for mixed farming as any place in my knowledge. The long, sunny days, together with the rich soil, produce very fine wheat, oats, barley, flax and other cereal products. There is scarcely any attempt to raise corn, except early varieties for table use. The season is too short to depend upon maturing field corn. From the standpoint of getting this land ready for the plow, I must say that I never saw such a vast extent, practically all ready, so all that one has to do is to hitch up the plow and go to work. This is not the case with all the Canadian land, however; some of it has quite a bit of timber, much of it may be called brush land, and some of it has lovely forest groves, dotted here and there, thereby covering a hundred and sixty acres.

I have no doubt but that this country excels as a grazing or ranching country, because they have such rich grass, having an abundance of rain to keep it fresh. They also have plenty of water streams, and as a rule water may be reached at a depth of from twenty to forty feet. From this you see there can be plenty of hay mown for winter feeding, and I have had reliable farmers to tell me that their stock will feed on hay alone, and be ready for market in the spring. Upon inquiring about the expense of raising a steer, a farmer replied that he did not consider it would cost any more than $4 or $6 to develop a 3-year-old steer.

I truly think Canada offers a fine opening for a young man or a man who is renting land in Indiana. One hundred and sixty acres of good black land will cost you only $10 at the time you enter it, and by plowing and cultivating five acres each year for three years, gives you one hundred and sixty acres of good land for $10. This land can be bought from the railroad companies, private corporations or the government for $3 to $4 per acre.

From a financial standpoint, I believe that for a series of years (five), a young man can make $10 in Canada, whereas he would only make $1 here, and I feel sure that I spent more money to get my eighty-acre farm in White County, Indiana, cultivated than it would cost me to cultivate eight hundred acres in Canada. This may seem a strong view to take of the matter, but when you take into consideration the clearing, ditching, fencing and the expensive breaking in of the stumps, and then compare the expense to that of land needing only the breaking, you will conclude that it is not such a wild or exaggerated statement as you might at first think.

I enjoyed the balmy, breezy atmosphere, which was bracing and refreshing, and the cool nights which made it so pleasant for sleep.

One great advantage to the settlers in Western Canada is the free creameries established by the government, and run exclusively in the interest of the farmer.

I visited Thomas Daley, a farmer near Edmonton, Alberta, who showed me oats he had raised, some of which took the first prize at the Paris Exposition last year. The same yielded 110 bushels to the acre in 1899. Yours truly, FRANK FISHER, Mexico, Ind.

Fulton County Fair.
All farmers who love county fairs,—and city people, too—
Don't fail to come to Rochester, whatever you may do!
Be sure to bring the pumpkins great—to startle people's eyes,
And bring your very finest stock to carry off a prize.
There's one thing that is certain, there's a rumor in the air
That all will be delighted with the Fulton County Fair.
For Fulton's farmers have resolved to put the drought to scorn,
By proving that we still have left—fine Indiana corn.
We're proud of our state's history—and the past's romantic days,
When the pioneer dared the savage in the lonely forest ways.
Now few are the survivors, but they'll surely greet you there.
At the old, historic cabin, at Fulton County Fair.
Just like the homes those noble men, whom we will ever bless,
Constructed of the rough-hewn logs in the dismal wilderness.
Then you may fancy how they lived,—those pioneers of yore.—
When the crafty foe, and the savage wolf, were lurking near the door.
And, if you dote on races, don't fail to be on hand,
There will be the finest horses to be found in this broad land.
They'll surely break the records, and you'll not find anywhere,
Finer track or swifter racing than at Fulton County Fair.
You will see the finest products of the Indiana farms.
The flowers arrayed in Floral Hall will be a sight to charm.
The wonders that will be displayed, not equalled anywhere.
See the great show, be sure to go to Fulton County Fair.

FAIR NOTES.

Get Ready Now for the Fair, September 25, 26, 27, and 28.

Every effort is being made for the two great colt shows on Friday of the fair. Mr. Hainbaugh and the McClung Bros. will aid all those that want to compete for their respective shows. Not only the fair management and managers of these shows are desirous for a good show, but scores of citizens have asked that those having colts, not entered in this show, to bring them and make the largest show of the kind held in the state. Whether you think they will take the premium or not bring them. The best colts may be kept at home. It will be less trouble to bring mares and colts than any other stock, and so long as it costs you nothing bring them to the fair.

Mares and colts to be shown in either show will be admitted free on Friday by calling on the secretary, and get your "colt show" pass ticket.

The Secretary will be in his office at Nobby True's every Saturday to issue membership tickets, to sell and transact stock shares, to make entries etc.

Don't forget that on Monday, September 18th, the Pioneers will meet at the fair grounds to build the log cabin, everything is ready. Bring plenty of tools to make the house, stick chimney, sweep wells, ash hopper, etc. Come early, and help put up the last cabin that will ever be built in Fulton county, like they used to build them, viz: Without a nail, steel hinge or window glass. There will be a book to register your name. Date of birth, how long you have been in the county, and your age. The oldest men or women, and the two oldest residents of the county will receive a complimentary ticket good during the entire fair. As there is no pioneer organization in the county, one could be effected at this meeting, making this cabin headquarters for your annual reunions.

We can assure you a show complete in all of the departments. Our plans are such that we follow the Laporte, Huntington and Poplar Grove fairs, and there are booked exhibits, speed horses, shows and privilege people from each of them. Coming as they do from three directions, this fair will be a competitive session with a strong show all around.

Every convenience will be made to accommodate the people. A check room for dinners, wraps, bicycles, etc, will be on the grounds managed by a responsible man. Bicycles are admitted free into the fair.

The poultry department has been thrown open to the world, which will bring the largest show of the standard varieties ever shown on the fair grounds. If you are breeding blooded stock, put it on exhibition. No better place to advertise your birds. When they are shown and you are known, you will get your share of future orders.

The horsemen say the race track is in the best condition since it was built, that it will be faster than last year by several seconds.

We have booked a large list of horses that are in the circuit for the money.
Bobby Mark for the free for all and others equally as good in their class. No hippodrome this year, you will see neck and neck flyers in all the classes.

The prevailing idea has been that the drought would materially injure the fair. It has had no effect in the exhibits except in Agricultural hall, but since the rains, the farmers say there can be a big and complete show made. This hall largely represents the product of the farm, and can be filled to overflowing if each farmer will bring something.

The finest agricultural exhibit of all the fairs that I have attended, either last year or this was at Frankfort. Every farmer brought in something, one brought six ears of corn, another four long stocks of corn, one two melons, and so on. No one any large amount, but when all was arranged the display of every farm product was shown in arches, cylinders, oblongs, etc., that make a fine show, and no farmers were prouder of that show than the farmers of Clinton county, who helped to make it.

Throw something in your wagon, enter it, you may take the premium, if you don't you will help make a show that will do our county honor.

SECRETARY.

Stole a Farm.

A swindler, giving his name as Henry Ullman, appeared in the north end of Wabash county last week ostensibly in search of a farm. After looking at a number of tracts of land he finally decided to purchase of Littleton Lefforge. He made a contract for the farm, and had this acknowledged by John Iseubarger, a notary public. Ullman took this contract and going to Fort Wayne, had a duplicate made, by representing himself to be Mr. Iseubarger. A few days later, he appeared in the office of J. B. Ross & Co. loan agents of Wabash, and showing that a deed and abstract had been made transferring the land to himself, secured a mortgage loan on the farm for $2,000. With this amount of cold cash in his pocket he walked away, leaving no address. It is a new departure in the line of boldups, and the wonder is that some fellow hasn't worked it long ago.

The members of the Kewanna band have received their new uniforms. They are the latest and with the fine new uniforms this band now stands at the head of the well-equipped organizations of the state.

O dainty daughters of the dawn—most delicate of flowers!
How fitly do ye come to deck day's most delicious hours,
Evoked by morning's earliest breath, your fragile cups unfold
Before the light has cleft the sky, or edged the world with gold.
Before the luxuriant butterflies and moths are yet astir,
Before the careless breeze has snapped the leaf-hung gossamer—
While sphered dewdrops, yet unquaffed by thirsty insect-thieves,
Broder with rows of diamonds the edges of the leaves.
Ye drink from day's o'erflowing brim, nor ever dream of noon;
With bashful nod ye greet the sun, whose flattery scoches soon.
Your trumpets trembling to the touch of humming bird and bee.
In tender tepidation sweet, and fair timidity.
No flower in all the garden hath so wide a choice of hue;
The deepest purple dyes are yours—the tenderest tints of blue;
While some are colorless as light—some flushed incarnadine,
And some are clouded crimson, like a goblet stained with wine.
Ye hold not in your calm cool hearts the passion of the rose,
Ye do not own the haughty pride the regally knows;
But ah! what blossom has the charm, the purity of this,
Which shrinks before the tenderest love, and dies beneath a kiss?
In this wide garden of the world, where he is wise who knows
The bramble from the sweet brier; the nettle from the rose,
Some lives there are which seem like these, as sensitive and fair,
As far from thought of sin or shame, as free from stain of care.
We find sometimes these splendid souls, when all our world is young,
Where life is crisp with freshness, with unshaken dew-drops hung.
They blossom in the cool dim hours, ere sunshine dries the air,
But cease and vanish long before the noon-day's heat and glare.
And if in manhood's dusty time, fatigued with toil and glow,
We crave the fresh, young morning heart which charmed us long ago,
We seek in vain the olden ways, the shadows moist and fair—
The heart-shaped leaves may linger, but the blossoms are not there.

Relations by Marriage.

BY AMY RANDOLPH.

Everybody went to Pamela Pepper's wedding. It was quite natural that they should. Miss Pepper was as well known in Cornstalk Corners as the old town clock itself on the steeple of the Methodist meeting-house. She had made dresses and trimmed bonnets there for more years than she cared to remember. She was gossip-in-general, prime mover in all the tea-parties, quilting-bees and apple-butter frolics, head of the charitable and religious societies and chief chronicler of all the dates in regard to births, deaths and marriages. She knew what everybody said to everybody else, what Mrs. Meluth gave for her new seal-skin cloak and in how many weeks Mr. Luckless's farm would be foreclosed on. She was quite au fait as to every household quarrel, all the family skeletons and a score of motives for each action, which no one else would have dreamed of. No story was quite complete unless Miss Pamela Pepper's version of it had been heard. And if people didn't know their own speeches after they had been through the mediumship of Miss Pamela's interpretation, surely that was no fault of hers.

But the blossoming-time comes, we are told, even to aloe a hundred years old—and Miss Pamela Pepper was married just before she floated into the forties. How it had come to pass, nobody knew exactly. There were some who had the hardihood to assert that Mr. Josiah Black had come to the dressmaking establishment to see Mary More, the blue-eyed little apprentice who made the buttonholes and sewed the straight seams, but that being skillfully intercepted by Miss Pamela, she had taken his overtures as intended for herself and accepted him effusively, before he had proposed; and that Josiah, being a meek young man with white eyelashes and a flat, freckled face, had not the requisite courage to escape from the meshes wherewith she had so artfully trapped him.

Be that as it might, it was certain that Mary More had been discharged and that Miss Pepper was now Mrs. Josiah Black. There had been an outfit ordered, economically, from New York, a wedding-cake nearly as big as a cart-wheel, and a deal of ostentation. The bride declared that it was a case of love at first sight.

"It ain't a month," she remarked, gushingly, "since me and Josiah first set eyes on each other, when he came into the store to ask the way to Squire Robinson's. He looked at me—oh, how he looked at me! And I felt a sort of all overishness that I couldn't describe noway in the world! He didn't think of money nor yet of lineage, nor none o' them things; he only felt as we was made for each other by Providence!"

In which case, Squire Robinson remarked, sub rosa, Providence had made a bad mistake of it for once. For Mrs. Josiah Black was tall and shallow, with the frame of a Prussian grenadier, while Mr. Josiah Black was slight and round-shouldered, with flaxen locks and watery, blue eyes. Mrs. Squire Robinson said there was fifteen years' difference in their age. But the bride said it was only five. And who should know if the bride didn't?

But when the couple were seated in the train, speeding toward Blue Point, where the ancestral halls of the Black family were situated, Pamela grew confidential.

"We're agoin' right to your house, Josiah, I suppose?" said she.

"Yes," said Josiah, with a deep sigh. "Where else should we go?"

"Some folks board," suggested the bride. "Just at first, at least."

"I hain't no money for that sort of fancy-work," dolefully remarked the groom.

"Is it pleasant there, dear?" asked the bride.

"Well, it ain't bad," responded Josiah, in a non-committal way.

"You never told me about your family, Josiah," went on Mrs. Black, soothingly.

"Fam'ly?" repeated Josiah, with a startled look. "I hain't got no fam'ly. I ain't never been a married man before."

"I mean your relations, Josiah."

"There's my step-mother," said Josiah.

"And there's my two sisters and my brother and Uncle Lijah and Aunt Nancy—and Heber and Stratton and—"

"Oh, stop, stop!" ejaculated the bride. "They don't all live with you?"

"No," Josiah answered. "Not all."

"Dear me, Josiah," said Mrs. Black, "how dead and alive you seem. Nobody would realize that you had been only three hours married."

"I don't seem to realize it myself," said Mr. Black, leaning his head against the car window, with a thoroughly discouraged air.

"But if you s'pose I'm going to turn my house into a refuge for all your relations," added Mrs. Josiah, with energy, "you are very—dear me! Blue Point, a ready? This can't be the place, can it? Why, we hain't—"

Just then the relentless conductor, swooping through the train, bore Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Black off to the platform, the latter still remonstrating loudly.

Mr. Black was silent and moody as they walked up the steep hill leading to the village street. Mrs. Black was secretly resolving that, husband or no husband, she would not be captured by the Goth and Visigoth horde of relations who doubtless were waiting to pounce on her hearth.

"I must assert myself," she thought, "at the very first, or I shall be overrun!"

"Here is the house," somberly remarked Josiah.

A long, low, red building faced them at the top of a hill, with a fence draped with morning-glory vines, trailing hops and wild vetches, and two or three gnarled quince trees leaning up against the south end.

"There's lights inside," said the late Miss Pamela. "And a fire! There's somebody there!"

"My folks," briefly remarked Josiah.

"Your folks!" repeated Pamela; and there was a world of unsyllabled meaning in her voice. Walking valiantly forward, she flung open the door, and stood facing the little group which was gathered amicably around the blazing fire. And Josiah Black, following, pushed her, in rather an undignified manner, into their midst, with the introductory speech:

"My wife. Here she is!"

"How d' ye do, Mrs. Josiah?" said an elderly woman. "I'm your husband's step-ma."

"And I'm his sister," said a blonde matron with lilac ribbons in her cap.

"And I'm his other sister," spoke up a short, sharp, little female with a black-and-tan-terrier sort of face and a rustling black silk dress.

"Brother Simeon," announced Josiah, as a stout man with a profusely pomatumed head rose and ducked it toward her. "And Uncle Lijah and Aunt Nancy," motioning toward a solid-looking couple in the background; "and my cousins, Heber and Stratton," as two tall, awkward young men emerged from behind a calico-covered screen in the rear.

"I hope you all find yourselves pretty well?" said Mrs. Josiah Black, with the geniality of an arctic iceberg. "But I sha'n't find it convenient to entertain you here."

The herd of relations stared, and Mr. Josiah's step-ma bridled, and said:

"We wasn't a-calculating to stay to tea."

"Tea or dinner, it makes no difference," said the bride. "If we're to get along comfortable together, all these things has got to be understood at once. I ain't goin' to keep free hotel for my husband's relations, and I don't want it to be expected of me."

There was an indignant buzz among the relations at this remarkable piece of plain speaking—they all rose up in concert.

"Well," said they, addressing Josiah's "step-ma," as if she were the representative of the mass, "if Josiah's wife don't want nothin' to do with us, we certainly don't mean to trouble her."

"Don't be in a hurry," faintly uttered Josiah; but none of the relations took the least notice of him, as they seized upon their hats, bonnets, shawls and other articles of outer wrapping with precipitate haste.

"Of course," added Mrs. Josiah, a little alarmed at the result of her own generalship. "I shall always be happy to have you call in a friendly way."

Josiah's step-ma, who had taken a package from the table, stonily remarked as she held it up:

"My ice-pitcher—best triple plate and porcelain-lined—as I had intended for a wedding present. But if folks don't want me, they don't want my presents, so I'll wish you good-bye, Mrs. Black."

One of the sisters took up a cream-jug of chased silver—the other put a plated caster back into its box, and off they marched.

"Our simple offerings," said they, "are hardly elegant enough for one so exclusive in her tastes as our brother's wife."

Simeon Black swung a heavy wicker-basket across his shoulders.

"A tea-set of real Ingy china that belonged to a Chinese sea-captain," said he, "and I got at a bargain—but I guess it ain't wanted," and he, too, departed, banging the door.

One by one the others took a hasty leave, each carrying some little offering of more or less value which had been brought thither for the delectation of "Josiah's wife," while that lady herself stood gazing after them in blank dismay, with an agonized consciousness that she had committed an awful political blunder in this, the first term of her married life.

"There!" said Josiah, grimly, "now you've done it, Pamela. Every one of 'em well-to-do and livin' in their own places. And, as sure as you live, they'll never forgive you in this mortal world!"

"I—I thought they was comin' here to live!" gasped the bride. "I only wanted to protect myself."

"Well, you've done it now," said Mr. Black. "There is such a thing as bein' too beforehanded."

And he sat slowly down, too spiritless even to upbraid his wife. While Pamela felt that her wedding day had not been altogether a success.

For the Blacks were a clannish tribe, and it was even as the bridegroom had predicted. They never forgave Josiah's wife for that first reception.—[The Ledger.]

Chestnut Cultivation.

The supply of chestnuts never equals the demand in this country, and many districts in which the trees are abundant derive a very respectable income from the sale of the nuts. This industry might be made far more productive and profitable than it now is by some little effort toward cultivation.

The chestnut cannot be grown successfully on heavy clays, wet soils or limestone land. It prefers loose, sandy soils, or such as has been derived from the decomposition of slates and shales. It is grown readily from the seed, but the greatest care must be taken not to let the nuts become dry. They should be planted as soon as gathered or kept in moist sand until ready to plant. The nut should be planted where the tree is to stand, as the long tap root makes transplanting difficult. The European chestnut is not only much larger and finer than the American, but has produced, under cultivation, a number of varieties, some of which are highly esteemed for the superior quality of their fruit. The trees do not grow so large as the American, but come into bearing more quickly; the latter does not generally fruit until ten or twelve years old. A Japanese variety has been lately introduced into the states, which, though not very hardy, is quite dwarf in habit, and, while beginning to fruit at four or five years, produces nuts larger even than the European. These two characters—small size and early fruitfulness—give them special value, and if they can be worked upon stocks of the American species trees can be secured which will bear earlier and produce larger nuts than our native species.—[Chicago News.]

Barnum's White Elephant.

"You probably have not heard how Barnum secured the indorsement of the New York press on his alleged white elephant," said Bert Davis, to a Mexico (Mo.) Intelligence man. "Upon the day of the white elephant's arrival in New York Barnum entertained all the press gang at dinner and after that he was to conduct them down to the wharf to see the elephant—a scheme to obtain a little free advertising. In the meantime some of the boys had visited the wharf and saw the elephant was not white, but rather of a mouse color, and they had agreed among themselves to give Mr. Barnum a genuine 'roast.' A few minutes before the start Mr. Barnum had a story to tell the boys in order to put them in a good humor. He said that there was once a big social gathering given in honor of a great beauty. When the beauty arrived with the usual flourish of trumpets all eyes were turned upon her and the general remarks were, 'Isn't she lovely?' and 'How beautifully she is painted!' It is true, she was painted, not by hand, however, but by God. 'Now, gentlemen,' said Mr. Barnum, 'the color of this animal I am about to show you is just as God painted it. Had the work been left to me, I assure you he would have been perfectly white.' The young men appreciated the little story, which resulted in the entire press of the city endorsing the great humbugger's white elephant."

An Ancient Arab University.

The old Arab university of El Azhar, which was founded in the tenth century, and has constantly opposed an inflexible front to the advance of European ideas, is to-day the most important Mohammedan college in the world. Although it has no longer the 20,000 students who crowded its courts in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, there is still an attendance of from seven to ten—some say twelve—thousand, and its pupils are sent out to every Mohammedan country from the Soudan to India.—[Atlanta Constitution.]

CZOLGOSZ OWNS PLOT

ASSASSIN ADMITS A CONSPIRACY TO KILL M'KINLEY.

Confession Implicates Emma Goldman and Other Anarchists—Sewers of Buffalo Searched for Letters Supposed to Give Names of Culprits.

A Buffalo dispatch on Wednesday said that Czolgosz had confessed to the police that his attempt upon the life of President McKinley was the result of a conspiracy in which many besides himself had a part. So far as can be learned, Czolgosz refused to mention any name except that of Emma Goldman, but papers are in existence which, if they can be discovered, will lay bare the entire conspiracy, and will result in wholesale arrests, followed by prosecutions.

In his confession Czolgosz told of his attempt to destroy the written evidences of the conspiracy. He has said that time did not permit him to burn the papers as he had desired. Before leaving his room in Nowak's Hotel, he gathered together all of his papers, taking them from his pockets, from his valise and from the drawers of his table. All were bound together in one package, which he concealed beneath his coat.

Czolgosz says that he made a circuitous and aimless trip about the city, and that at some point, which he cannot now describe, he came upon an open sewer. Into this sewer he cast his papers. Inch by inch the sewers of this city are being searched, and, if such a thing is possible, those papers will be recovered.

On authoritative information it can be said that during the last ten weeks Emma Goldman has visited six anarchist organizations. She has been in Buffalo three times since July 12, having left the city the last time four days before the attempted assassination. Emma Goldman, Czolgosz and Abraham Izaak and Marie Izaak were in consultation in Chicago on two occasions. Marie Izaak accompanied Emma Goldman to Buffalo the last time the arch leader of the anarchists was there.

Plotted a Year Ago.

A plot to kill the President is said to have been hatched a year ago when he was expected to visit Chicago during the Grand Army encampment and view the big parade of veterans. The plot was balked by the announcement at the last moment that, owing to the press of business at Washington growing out of the Chinese complications, the President would be unable to meet his old army comrades in Chicago.

This information is regarded by the authorities as of the utmost importance, because it tends to show that at least some of the Chicago anarchists are connected with the attempted assassination of the President at Buffalo, and that they have had guilty knowledge of a plot to take his life longer than a year.

NEWS OF THE ANARCHISTS.

Chicago Poles denounced Czolgosz.

War on anarchists has been taken up by the police of the entire nation.

Chief of Police O'Neill of Chicago refused to release suspected anarchists on bonds.

The secret service bureau has the name and description of every anarchist in the United States.

Legal authorities assert that both the Illinois and federal laws cover the case of Emma Goldman fully.

The National Life Underwriters' Association has recommended making professing anarchy a crime.

A Wyoming man who expressed sympathy with the assassin was tarred and feathered and ridden out of town on a rail.

The chief of police of New York has ordered a census of anarchists with a view to making the city too hot to hold them.

An acquaintance of the assassin says he was vicious in his youth; that his mother thought him crazy and father predicted hanging.

Chicago police decided that Emma Goldman and other imprisoned anarchists could not be held unless Buffalo authorities furnished evidence of conspiracy.

Czolgosz confesses he was the chosen agent of a band of anarchist conspirators to kill the President, and says he threw papers in a sewer giving details of the plot.

INDIANA INCIDENTS.

RECORD OF EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK.

Decision Will Help Rural Schools—Typhoid Fever Among Nuns at Oldenburg—Reclaiming Kankakee Swamp—Married at Fifty Miles an Hour.

The centralization of schools in rural districts and the free transportation of the pupils in public conveyances to and from schools is rapidly growing in favor throughout Indiana. This experiment was first tried in Delaware County, where the schools were consolidated, and proved a great success. The plan was originated by Charles A. Van Matre, the youngest school superintendent in the State, being only 31 years of age. The authority of trustees to transport school children to school has been the only hindrance to the success of the plan. The question is one that has been long pending and great interest attaches to the recent decision on the matter which State Superintendent Jones has handed down. It is regarded as final in the matter and trustees have only to act. Mr. Jones says that it has been conceded for years that township trustees have almost unlimited powers and rights to organize and conduct their schools. In conclusion Mr. Jones says it would be just as reasonable for one to assert that the trustees cannot buy a bell for his school house or nails with which to make repairs or an encyclopedia as to, assert that the trustee cannot transport children to school at public expense.

Typhoid Fever Rages in Convent.

An epidemic of typhoid fever is raging within the confines of the Catholic convent of the Immaculate Conception at Oldenburg. Thirty nuns have fallen victims to this dread disease and several have died from its effects. The epidemic is more serious from the fact that no men physicians are allowed within the walls of the convent, the rules of the institution being strict in the extreme. The source of the epidemic is believed to have been in the four wells which supply the convent with drinking water.

Kankakee Swamp Is Reclaimed!

The Kankakee swamp, so famous twenty years ago for its vast stretches of morass, is now practically reclaimed to cultivation as the result of patient work. The myriads of water fowl now only pay the region fleeting visits to the disgust of sportsmen. The broad river of old has dwindled to an insignificant stream, choked with sandbars. The swamp now produces some of the best corn in the country.

Wed at Fifty Miles an Hour.

John Sanderson and Miss Josephine Breitenbach of Greentown were married on the Clover Leaf passenger train, between that place and Kokomo. At a given signal of the engineer, while the cars were going fifty miles an hour, the couple stood up and were married by Mayor Rogers of Greentown.

Within Our Borders.

The Gould steel mill at Irondale has started and will run a double force all winter.

Flora's biggest factory, the sawmill and planing mill, owned by R. D. Voorhees, burned.

A. W. Swanson, aged 45, was killed by a train at Terre Coupee, his body being cut in two.

Farmer Tilton of Clay township fired at melon thieves and one lad got a shot through his ear.

During a severe storm seventeen out of a herd of nineteen cattle belonging to Alfred Nickey, near Churubusco, were killed by lightning.

The 10-months-old child of Fred Erdman and wife, Greensburg, swallowed a beauty pin and chain, with the pin open. It lodged in the child's throat, but was finally swallowed. The child will recover.

Thomas Shepperd, who was released from the Michigan City prison after serving a sentence of twenty-two years for murder, has just been married at Sullivan to a Miss Johnson, the sweetheart of his youth.

State Gas Inspector Leach said, at Marion, that the oil wells are not wasting as much gas as supposed. The law, he says, gives the well owners forty-eight hours in which to shut off the gas escaping from newly opened wells.

The Collier Shovel Company of Washington has been consolidated with the Chicago Steel Manufacturing Company of Chicago, and the plant will probably be moved to Hammond. The capital of the consolidated concern will be $650,000.
