LEWIS' VICTORY

The Boys From the Lewis Institute, of Chicago, Even up old Scores by Defeating Culver Saturday.

Just in order to even up old scores and repay Culver for the drubbing received at the hands of the foot ball team last fall, Lewis Institute took it out of the base ball team last Saturday. Culver had hard luck at times on errors, and they were errors by men, who had a reputation for not making them. They were costly too. Half the runs made by Lewis were the result. Culver had nine hits and Lewis, seven. The score of 9 to 4 better illustrates than a column of explanation.

In one respect Culver had their opponents outclassed. Culver can play clean ball if permitted. However there is a limit to human endurance and the limit was reached Saturday. Lewis' dirty tactics received a few good jolts and it was remarkable how much their manners improved after the said jolts. It is a grave mistake for any team to attempt football tactics with Culver's team as it has simply changed clothes and hasn't forgot a single thing learned last fall.

Lewis went to bat and LeFever found Ray very easy. Miner hit to Moeller who threw low to first. Goehring hit out to Schaff who failed to handle it and Miner scored. Savage sent a hot liner to center, scoring Goehring. Falls missed the first one and the ball beat Goehring to second which surprised him greatly. Falls shot one up high and Pearce got under it and dropped it. Mead hit to Wood and was out at first.

Pope J. hit to Meade and out at first. Schaff hit safe and was caught stealing second. Pierce fanned. Side out.

French hit to McQuaid who threw low to Pope. Delves hit to McQuaid who handled the ball at second, catching French and Delves tied the ball on the race to first. Safe. Tracy came to bat and Pearce stopped a foul tip with the side of his head and for the first time in his career "Bunny" took out time. A liberal application of cold water put him on his feet again but he felt that jolt all the rest of the game. Tracy eventually sawed. Ray shot a high one up and LeFever gathered it in. McQuaid walked and stole second. Moeller made a nice sacrifice to second and was out at first, McQuaid scoring in the excitement. Rockwell and Pope H. batted thin air. Miner hit to Moeller and out at first. Goehring slammed out a hot liner through Moeller and Schaff reached second. Savage flew out to Wood. Falls sailed a pretty one to Pope H. which Henry hived retiring the side. LeFever flew out to French. Wood fanned and Pope J. presented Ray with a P. O. Meade fouled out to Pope J., French hit to McQuaid but it went over Pope's head and French made in two; Delves got a single to right. Tracy followed and Rockwell missed it scoring French. Miner hit to Moeller and he caught Tracy at the plate. Goehring got a hit scoring Miner. Goehring scored on Savage's hit. Falls thrown out at first. This was the fatal inning, everyone who had a chance took an error and Lewis ran bases, played football and had a rough house in general. In some circles this may be good form but it is not school athletics. A mucker and a gentleman never are combined into one person. Schaff got into something like old time form and got a clean two base hit. Pearce tried to kill it and flew out to Delves. McQuaid fanned, Moeller followed suit.

Meade hit safe. French bunted to Wolcott who had gone into the box, LeFever's arm being sore. Wolcott got the ball to first too late and Meade scored. Delves sent out one to center and Henry Pope fielded off to McQuaid. French sprinted for second and ran over. McQuaid sunk the ball into him before he could return. Tracy didn't know any better than to drop a high fly into McQuaid's ward and Ray rolled on down to first base. Rockwell hit a little one near the foul line and was fouled into trying to steal second while a bluff kick was on, Lewis' catcher slammed it to second and Rockwell was caught between bases. Pope H. and Wolcott fanned. Miner walked. Goehring bunted and was out at first, Savage dropped one in front of the plate and Pearce threw out Miner at

The oratorical contest held under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. at the Methodist church last Friday evening was a decided success. The medal was awarded to Miss Fay Hulse, by a small fraction of one per cent, showing that there were others with strong claims to the honors. The church was well filled with an appreciative audience, every body appearing to be satisfied with the good that was accomplished.

CHILDREN CHEER THE PRESIDENT

Little Tots Lead in Reception to Executive at Redlands, Cal.

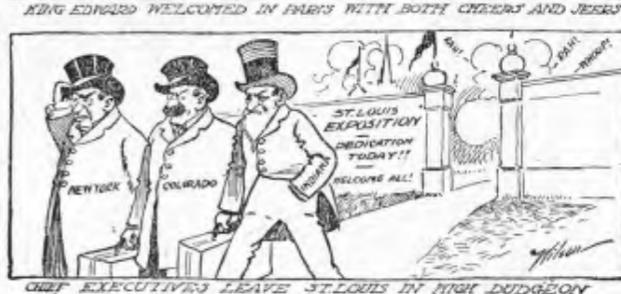

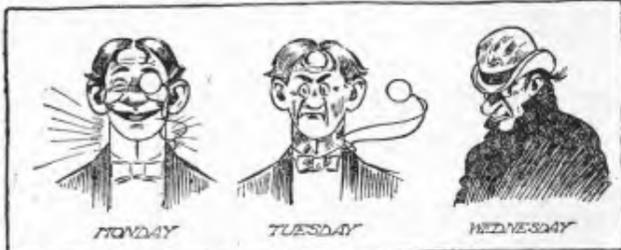

ALL SING THE NATIONAL SONGS

Mr. Roosevelt in His Address Advises the Young People to Play With a Will, but to Ignore Play When It Comes to Work.

Redlands, Cal., dispatch: President Roosevelt was given a taste of California hospitality. A swaying mass of 10,000 people greeted his train on its arrival at noon, surrounded his carriage, cheered itself hoarse, and listened with rapt attention to his address. Governor Pardee and Lieutenant Governor Anderson met President Roosevelt at the station.

Children Cheer. A feature of the reception that pleased the president especially was the school children who greeted him with cheering and song. Fifteen hundred children were placed in a special grand stand opposite the balcony where the president spoke. They greeted him with the wildest enthusiasm, waving American flags, and causing the president to bow again and again to the tots, smiles wreath-ing his face. The children later sang national airs, which again called forth his approbation.

Extends Welcome. When the train arrived carriages in waiting took the president to the Calma hotel. Mayor Fowler introduced Governor Pardee, who in a brief address welcomed the president to California. Assemblyman G. T. Johnson then delivered an address of welcome in behalf of the state legislature.

The great throng cheered itself hoarse when the president arose to deliver his address. It was several minutes before he could proceed. He said in part:

"I am glad, indeed, to have the chance to visit this wonderful and beautiful state, but I did not have to come to know you or like you, for I know what the sons and daughters of the state have done. If I did not appreciate their achievements I would indeed be a poor American. But for the country itself, though I had been told so much of its beauty and its wonders, I had never realized or could not realize in advance all I have seen.

Talks for Irrigation. "Your irrigation system should be extended and widened. Forest and stream should be used to build up the interests of the home maker, for he is the man we want to encourage in every possible way. I think our citizens are realizing more and more that we want to perpetuate the things of both use and beauty. Beauty surely has its place, and you want to make this state, more than it even now is, the garden spot of the continent.

"I congratulate you on the way you have built up these new cities in a way deduct it from the company's credits instead of adding it to the list of taxable property. Several other insurance companies will be affected. The action of the assessors was taken upon the advice of Corporation Counsel Tarsney.

to illustrate the virtue of pioneer citizenship, at the same time avoiding the roughness characteristic of so many new settlements.

Remembers McKinley. "The young men must be impressed with the idea that, whatever we have of soil, climate, or condition, it must be the man who does the most toward making a state or a nation's progress and greatness.

"Two years ago you welcomed here my chief, the late President McKinley. He did his part in war as in peace, and if it had not been for the efforts that you of the Grand Army and he put forth, we would have neither an American country nor an American President to-day.

Advice to Little Ones. "The sight of these children convinces me of the truth of a statement just made to me by Governor Pardee when he said that in California there is no danger of race suicide. You have done well in raising oranges, and I believe you have done better raising children. Children, I have just one word for you, and it will apply to the older people as well. It is this: "When you play, play hard, and when you work, don't play at all."

The President's train stopped at San Bernardino and was greeted by an enthusiastic crowd.

RUSSIA TAKES NEW CHWANG

Makes Preparations for Long Stay of Troops in the Province.

SQUADRON IN PE-CHI-LI GULF

Czar's Forces Have Large Number of Guns and Provisions and Military Stores Are Arriving in Quantities—Soldiers Occupy River Forts.

Pekin cablegram: The Russians re-occupied New Chwang on Tuesday, May 5, in force. Simultaneously the Russian squadron has arrived in the gulf of Pe-Chi-Li. The Russians brought a large number of guns with them and have ordered a big supply of beef on the hoof. Large supplies of provisions and military stores are arriving. The Russians have also occupied the forts at the mouth of the Liao river and ordered another force to occupy Tien-Chwang-Tai.

Builds Military Works. There are now 14,000 troops between Port Arthur and the Liao river. It is also reported that the Russians are constructing military works near Liao Yang, on the road to the Yalu river above. These preparations are regarded as an extensive scheme on the part of Russia to forestall action by countries opposed to her plans in regard to Manchuria.

Japan to Occupy Corea. It is hinted in diplomatic circles that Japan will occupy Corea, as an answer to Russia's coup in holding Manchuria.

Russia's coup has caused profound surprise here, as recent developments had led to the expectation that Russia would compromise her demands, since they had been revealed to the powers. The latest maneuver is interpreted as being intended as a reply to China's refusal to grant Russia's demands, to the protests of the powers, and as a declaration that she is ready to fight in order to maintain possession of Manchuria.

New "Drill Ground." The foreign ministers discussed information to the effect that the Russians had taken a large tract of land across the river from New Chwang, commanding the terminus of the Shan-Hai-Kwan railroad. It was stated that the tract was needed for a Russian drill ground. The selection of the site seemed remarkable, because all the troops were then quartered on the opposite side of the river, several miles distant, where plenty of land was available.

DEPOSITORS FACE LOSS THROUGH BANKS

Receiver for Two Indiana Institutions Urges Creditors to Force Them Into Bankruptcy.

Waterloo, Ind., special: The closing of the doors of the De Kalb bank of Waterloo and the McClellan bank of Auburn May 4 has developed into one of the largest failures that this county ever has known.

The closing was precipitated by Mrs. Elizabeth McClellan, widow of the late C. A. O. McClellan, filing complaint against her son-in-law, ex-Mayor Don A. Garwood of Auburn. She desired to have the interest of the estate in the banking business settled up so the heirs could have their shares and thereby dissolve the two banks. J. D. Leighty was made receiver and he gave out a statement that he believed the banks would pay 100 cents on the dollar.

Mr. Leighty now states that the creditors had better force the institutions into bankruptcy. Leighty said he had unearthed numerous irregularities. Mrs. McClellan, he said, over-drew her account at the Waterloo bank, for which she gave her note for $25,000, two years ago, and her son, Charles McClellan, had given a note for $80,000 for an overdraft at the Auburn bank. It appears now that there will be a shortage aggregating $80,000. The creditors' claims aggregate $130,000. Many people in this place had deposited their last dollar. It is affecting all lines of business.

PARROT'S ALARM SAVES LIFE

Cries of Bird Summon Neighbors to Relief of Injured Man.

Washington, N. J., dispatch: Attracted by cries of "murder," "help," "come quick," neighbors of George B. Andrews of this place ran to his home to find out the cause. They knew the cries were made by his parrot, but they had never heard it scream so loud before.

Andrews lay on the floor unconscious, bleeding from a great gash in his neck. He had been repairing the ceiling and had fallen from a step-ladder, striking a stove. A physician took six stitches to close the wound, and said that in only a few minutes Andrews would have been dead.

A few years ago this parrot's screams awakened Andrews in time to arouse his neighbors and save them from fire, which started in the house next door.

Strike Breaker Is Murdered on the Tender of His Engine.

JOIN IN REQUEST FOR TROOPS

Strikers Urge the Mobile & Ohio Railroad Officials to Prepare a Writ Calling on the State to Send Militia to the Scene.

Jackson, Tenn., dispatch: As a result of the strike on the Mobile & Ohio railroad in this city one man was killed, two trains wrecked, and business is badly tied up. There are indications that the situation will become more serious and further trouble is feared.

Chief of Police T. C. Gaston and his force were called to the Union depot by the officials of the road on account of a wreck having occurred there, alleged to be the work of the strikers. A fish plate had been laid between the rails of a switch and a monster engine was ditched. The engine was placed again on the rails and returned to the shops, and when it returned to carry the train north the switch was thrown and another delay was occasioned.

Kill an Engineer.

Will Yarboro, a young man, was shot and killed on the tender of his engine. Yarboro boarded the train at Bethel Springs, south of here, made a trip to Okolona, Miss., as a brakeman, and returned to Jackson. The train on which he was killed was the same as that manned by Capt. Pringle, a bridge foreman, and his crew of negro hands. South of Jackson the negroes were run off the train and at Bethel Yarboro joined Pringle's train.

The strikers say that they know nothing of the identity of the man or men who did the shooting and deprecate the act.

To Call for Troops.

Sequel to "The Bow of Orange Ribbon."

A LOVE STORY BY AMELIA E. BARR

CHAPTER II.—(Continued.)

About six o'clock Arenta Van Arrens made a personal response to her friend's message. She was all excitement and expectation. Who do you think called on me this afternoon. No less a person than Madame Kippon. Gertrude Kippon is going to be married. She is going to marry a French count! And madame is beside herself with the great alliance.

"Our drawing-rooms, and even our streets, are full of titles," said Cornelia. "I think it is a distinction to be plain master and mistress."

"That is the truth; even this handsome dandy, Jeris Hyde, is a lieutenant."

"He was in the field two years. He told me so this afternoon. I dare say, he has earned his title, even if he is a lieutenant."

"Don't be so highbly-tighty, Cornelia. I have no objection to military titles. In fact, I rather lean to official titles of every kind."

Then Arenta, having arranged her ringlets, tied her sash and her sandals, the girls went down to the parlor.

Mr. Moran, Rem Van Arrens, and Lieut. Hyde were present. The latter was handsomely dressed in a dark blue velvet coat, silver-laced, a long white satin vest and black satin breeches. His hair was thrown backwards and tied with the customary black ribbon, and his linen and laces were of the finest quality. He met Cornelia as he might have met a princess; and he flashed into Arenta's eyes a glance of admiration which turned her senses upside down, and

"Dear Arenta, we shall have so much more time, to-morrow. Come to-morrow."

But Arenta was not pleased. She left her friend with an air of repressed injury, and afterwards made little remarks about Cornelia to her brother, which exactly fitted his sense of wounded pride.

"Ever since she was a little girl, eleven years old, I have loved her," said Rem; "and she knows it."

"She knows it; that is so. When I was at Bethlehem, I read her all your letters, and many a time you spoke in them of her as your 'little wife.' Come, come, we must go to our rooms, for that is our father I hear moving about. In a few minutes he will be angry, and then—"

She did not finish the sentence; there was no necessity; Rem knew what unpleasantness the threat implied, and she slipped off his shoes and stole quietly upstairs. Arenta did not hurry, though the great Flemish clock on the stair-landing chimed eleven as she entered her room.

"After all," she mused, "the evening was a possibility. It was a door on the latch—I may push it open and go in—who can tell? I saw how amazed he was at my beauty when I first entered the parlor—and he is but a man—and a young man who likes his own way—so much is evident."

Then she heard her brother moving about the floor of the room above her and a shadow darkened her face. She had strong family affections, and she was angry that Rem should be troubled by any man or woman, living.

their meeting, and the delay had been intended, and the consequences foreseen!

In a dim kind of way Hyde realized this fact as he sat the next day with an open book before him. He was not reading it; he was thinking of Cornelia. Soon he closed his book with impatience, and went to Prince's and bought a little rush basket filled with sweet violets. Into their midst he slipped his visiting card, and saw the boy on his way with the flowers to Cornelia ere he was satisfied they would reach her quickly enough. Then turning aimlessly into Pearl street, he saw Cornelia.

She was dressed only in a little morning gown of Indian chintz, but in such simple toilet had still more distinctively that air of youthful modesty which he had found so charmingly tantalizing.

Cornelia was going to the "Universal Store" of Gerardus Duyckinck, and Hyde begged to go with her. He said he was used to shopping, and could tell the value of laces, and knew how to choose a piece of silk, or match the crewels for her embroidery; and, indeed, pleaded his case so merrily, that there was no refusing his offer. And how it happened lovers can tell, but after the shopping was finished they found themselves walking towards the Battery, with the fresh sea wind, and the bright sunshine, and the joy of each other's presence all around them.

Now Love has always something in it of the sea, and the murmur of the tide against the pier, the hoarse voices of the sailor men, the scent of the salt water, and all the occult unrecogized, but keenly felt life of the ocean, were ministers to their love, and forever and ever blended in the heart and memory of the youth and maid who had set their early dream of each other to its potent witchery. Time went swiftly, and suddenly Cornelia remembered that she was subject to hours and minutes. A little fear came into her heart, and closed it, and she said, with a troubled air, "My mother will be anxious. I had forgotten. I must go home." So they turned northward again.

At the gates of her home they stood a moment, and there Hyde touched her hand and said, "I have never, in all my life, been so happy. It has been a walk beyond hope, and beyond expression!" And she lifted her face, and the smile on her lips and the light in her eyes answered him.

Cornelia trembled as she opened the parlor door; she feared to look into her mother's face, but it was as serene as usual, and she met her daughter's glance with one of infinite affection and some little expectancy. This was a critical moment, and Cornelia hesitated slightly. Then she said with a blunt directness which put all subterfuge out of the question:

"Mother, I have been a long time, but I met Lieut. Hyde, and we walked down to the Battery; and I think I have stayed beyond the hour I ought to have stayed, but the weather was so delightful!"

"The weather is very delightful and Lieut. Hyde is very polite. Did he speak of the violets he sent you?"

"I suppose he forgot them. Ah, there they are! How beautiful! How fragrant! I will give them to you, mother."

"They are your own, my dear. I would not give them away. Take your flowers and put them in water—the young man is very extravagant, I think. Do you know that it is quite noon, and your father will be home in a little while?"

And there was such kind intent, such a divining sympathy in the simple words, that Cornelia's heart grew warm with pleasure, and she felt that her mother understood, and did not much blame her. She went with some haste to her room, and, forgetting all else, sat down and permitted herself to enter the delicious land of Reverie. She let the thought of Hyde repossess her, and present again and again to her imagination his form, his face, his voice, and those long caressing looks she had seen and felt, without seeming to be aware of them.

PHOTOGRAPH WINS A CASE.
Bright Idea That Was Worked by Clever Lawyer.

A Philadelphia lawyer tells the story that a picture of Fanny Davenport once won a case for him. His client was suing the Pennsylvania Railroad company, of which Wayne MacVaugh was counsel, for $7,500 damages for the death of her husband. "Just a few days before the case was to have come up she happened into my office and announced that she had married again. 'Good Lord, madam, I gasped, 'why couldn't you have waited until your case came up? It's next to impossible for me to get damages for you now.' She said she didn't care very much, and went out, seeming very happy.

"Well, it just happened that I had a photograph of Fanny Davenport on my desk, and when the next day Wayne MacVaugh happened into my office to discuss quite another matter he picked up the photo and admired it. 'Who's your friend?' he asked.

"I had a sudden inspiration and I said: 'Why, that's the lady who is suing your company for $7,500.'"

"The deuce you say," said he. "Handsome woman, isn't she?"

"She is, indeed," I replied.

"H—m!" he exclaimed, looking at the picture closely. "A deuced handsome woman, I should say. A deuced handsome woman! There was a slight pause. 'What'll you take to settle this case?' he asked.

"I thought of my client's second marriage, and I fixed the figure at $5,000. The deal was consummated, and the case never came to court."—New York Tribune.

made her feel, for a moment or two, as if she could hardly breathe.

Upon Arenta's brother he had not produced a pleasant impression. Without intention, he had treated young Van Arrens with that negative politeness which dashes a sensitive man, and makes him resentfully conscious that he has been rendered incapable of doing himself justice. And Rem tried in various ways to introduce some conversation which would afford him the pleasure of contradiction. He failed to consider that his barely veiled antagonism compelled from the doctor, and even from Cornelia and Arenta, attentions he might not otherwise have received. So Hyde easily became the hero of the hour, he was permitted to teach the girls the charming old-world step of the Pas de Quatre, and afterwards to sing with them merry airs from Figaro, and sentimental airs from Lodoiska.

Fortunately, some of Dr. Moran's neighbors called early in the evening. Then whilst parties were formed. But though Cornelia was all sweetness and graciousness, though Rem played well and Lieut. Hyde played badly; though Rem had the satisfaction of watching Hyde depart in his chair, while he stood with a confident friendship by Cornelia's side, he was not satisfied. There was an air of weariness and constraint in the room, and the little air of departing visitors did not hide it. Rem approached his sister and said, "It is time to go home." Arenta looked at her friend; she expected to be asked to remain, and she was offended when Cornelia did not give her the invitation.

"I expected you would ask me to stay with you, Cornelia."

"I think it is best for you to go home with Rem. Otherwise he might, in his present temper, find himself near Becker's, and if a man is quarrelsome he may always get principals and seconds there. In the morning Rem will, I hope, be reasonable."

"I thought you and I would talk things over to-night. I like to talk over a new pleasure."

"I have always thought Cornelia a very saint," she muttered, "but Love is the great revealer. I wonder if she is in love—to tell the truth, she was past finding out. I cannot say that I saw the least sign of it—and between me and myself, Rem was unreasonable; however, I am not pleased that Rem felt himself to be badly used."

And she said her prayers, and fell calmly asleep, to the flattering thought, "I would not much wonder if, at this moment, Lieut. Hyde is thinking about me."

In reality, Lieut. Hyde was at that moment in the Belvedere club, singing the "Marsellaise," and listening to a very inflammatory speech from the French minister. But a couple of hours later, Arenta's "wonder" would have touched the truth. He was then alone, and very ill satisfied; for, after some restless reflections, he said impatiently:

"I have again made a fool of myself. I have now all kinds of unpleasant feelings, and when I left that good doctor's house I was well satisfied. His daughter is an angel. I praise myself for finding that out."

Then he rose, threw off his velvet and lace, and designedly let his thoughts turn to Arenta. "She is pretty beyond all prettiness," he said softly as he moved about. "She dances well, talks from hand to mouth, and she gave me one sweet glance, and I think if she has gone so far—she might go further."

Sir Thomas Advertised.

Some fifteen years ago Sir Thomas Lipton, or Mr. Lipton, as he was then, was a passenger on an East Indian steamer, bound for Ceylon.

While in the Red Sea, the boat was disabled and it became necessary to throw overboard a part of her cargo. Lipton was an interested spectator of the preparations for lightening the ship.

Suddenly he fled from the scene and after a short but earnest conversation with the chief engineer, secured a stencil, a paint brush and a pot of black paint. Then to the astonishment of the captain and passengers, he cheerfully labeled each box and bale thrown overboard with the magic "Lipton" which has since become a household word wherever his commodities are used.

The cargo, of course, floated ashore, and for miles in Arabia and other lands the native saw that that legend. Subsequently the passengers on the injured steamer were compelled to abandon it and take to small boats.

On reaching land Sir Thomas was the first to get a cable office, and wire news of the destruction of the boat and safety of the travelers to London. The message was signed "Lipton." Of course his name was in every English newspaper the next morning signed to that message, and he was the best advertised man in the whole of the kingdom.—From London Answers.

Keep the Negro on the Soil.

Usefulness will constitute our most lasting and potential protection. Those of you who would help my race, use your influence to keep it on the soil. On the soil the negro is found at his best. He is found at his worst when in contact with the temptations of city life. Wherever you can teach a man or a race to do a thing better than another man or another race you have solved the problem of that man and race. Where our people have had proper guidance and proper teaching I can point you whole communities of thrifty, prosperous and law-abiding colored men.—From Booker T. Washington's Auditorium Address.

Tolstoi, the Most Distinguished Man Alive Today.

The Berlin Tageblatt asked its readers, "Who are the most distinguished ten men alive today?" It received about 1,000 answers, of which Tolstoi received the greatest number. We know him as a Russian writer, having devoted himself to literary composition and to the elevation of the peasantry. By his peculiar religious or socialistic belief he incurred the ill will of the government officials and has been on the verge of being exiled for a number of years. He is the foremost philanthropist of the age, and had he directed his massive brains toward the situation of state problem he would have made his power felt over the entire world.

Sermon By Dr. Banks.

Trust and service go together. The man who believes in nothing, who has no faith and confidence, is bankrupt of good cheer and courage in efforts to help others. No man is well fitted to do good until he trusts in the strength of an arm greater than his own in the goodness of his heart upon which he may rest with perfect peace.

An elderly merchant in a western city was in sore trouble. He had one of those living sorrows which are infinitely harder to bear than the grief which death brings. He had a son who had been caught in the toils of strong drink. One Saturday night the father had been trying to help him and had failed. It seemed as though his heart would break.

At midnight he was still staying in his office on the brink of despair. For two years he had been working and praying and it seemed that he was to lose everything at last. Almost unconsciously he took up from his desk a paper lying there, and his sad eyes fell upon Katrina Trask's little poem and he read these words:

Lie down and sleep;
Leave it with God to keep
This sorrow which is part
Now of thy heart.
When thou dost wake
If still 'tis thine to take,
Utter no wild complaint;
Work waits thy hands,
If you shouldst faint,
God understands.

He went home and slept in peace. He arose the next morning refreshed and full of power. It was the sabbath and setting himself to work with new devotion his boy was brought to trust in the Saviour and was redeemed from his sin that very day.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES AT WORLD'S FAIR DEDICATION

The extreme of pomp and ceremony marked the dedication ceremonies at St. Louis of the Louisiana Purchase exposition. President Roosevelt, former President Cleveland, President Francis of the exposition company, President Carter of the world's fair commission, members of the cabinet, and the Supreme court had seats in the center of the platform in the Liberal Arts building. At the president's right sat the visiting diplomatists, a distinguished looking contingent, which attracted much attention. In this section, also, were other distinguished foreigners and representatives of the state department at Washington, headed by Assistant Secretary of State the fair association, formally presented the fair buildings.

Both President Roosevelt and ex-President Cleveland, who delivered addresses, were given enthusiastic welcome by the enormous crowd, which packed the building. The applause which greeted both of the distinguished orators was prolonged for almost twenty minutes.

The services were made notable by the military display, the gathering of dignitaries, and the utterances of men of highest position marked this first of the three dedicatory days of the exposition.

To former President Cleveland was credited one of these notable utter-

Loomis. To the left of the president sat the joint delegation of senators and representatives, representing congress, the foreign commissioners to the fair, and Gen. Miles, Adj. Gen. Corbin and Gen. John C. Bates, with many other scarcely less distinguished.

The assembly was called to order by President Francis. He first introduced Cardinal Gibbons, who delivered the invocation. He was followed by Thomas H. Carter of the national commission, who acted as president of the day.

The choir of 2,000 voices then sang "The Heavens Proclaiming." At the close David R. Francis, president of ances when he declared his belief that the Louisiana purchase showed this nation to be the "one favored of God." To President Roosevelt was credited another when he asserted that this country, first among republics, had learned to expand without breaking up, and to grow strong without losing liberty.

The exercises were closed by a benediction delivered by Bishop Potter of New York city.

At the conclusion of the speeches the one hundredth anniversary of the signing of the treaty which transferred the Louisiana purchase from France to the United States was marked with a salute of 100 aerial guns.

Boy Smokers.

With reference to the proposed bill penalizing juvenile smokers, it is interesting to note that twenty years ago the prohibition of tobacco to children under 16 was proposed in France, but not brought into force. In several other countries, however, juvenile smoking is restricted by law. The nearest instance is Norway, where the sale of tobacco to any boy under 16 is forbidden, except on an order signed by an adult relative or employer. The penalizing fine varies from 2s to 5s. In nearly all the American states there are similar laws, with penalties also for the youthful consumer. It is the same in Canada and the government of Victoria is leading the way in Australia. A clause in the licenses of tobacco dealers forbids them to trade with children under the age of 16. More than two years ago the House of Keys discussed a similar law for the Isle of Man.—London Chronicle.

Falk Refuses Testimonial.

Circuit Attorney Falk of St. Louis, through whose efforts not a few bootleggers of that city have been convicted, declines to accept a testimonial from admiring citizens who wished to show their appreciation of his work. The testimonial tendered was a residence costing $15,000, and Mr. Falk, while cordially thanking his fellow citizens, said he could not accept other remuneration than his salary for simply performing his duty.

Chaplains Get Increased Pay.

Hereafter the chaplains of the Pennsylvania legislature are to get $5 a day instead of $3. "Why should not the poor fellows who do the praying have a fair share of the booty?" asks sarcastic Dr. Swallow, the prohibitionist. "Doubtless $6 for a three-minute prayer will double the applications as compared with $3 a prayer and the fight for these positions will grow more bitter as the next session approaches."

Architect's New Idea.

"If a man of wealth wants to build a house these days all he has to do is to go to a prominent architect, tell him just what he wants and how he wants it, and before a spade is stuck in the ground the prospective house owner can see exactly how his ideas have been carried out by looking at a perfect model of the proposed structure," said F. B. Vincent, a New York architect, to a Washington Star man at the New Willard. "Many a man is absolutely disappointed in his house when it has been completed from a set of plans on paper that have met his approval. He did not know how this or that would look, and such changes as he desires may be impossible on account of the construction. The consequence is the man is never satisfied. In order to obviate this architects who are up to date have undertaken to model in plaster when it is the wish of the man who wants the building erected. The entire exterior of the house is moulded after the plans approved by the applicant, and if the finished house (in plaster) does not suit him it can be entirely remodelled until it does, and the cost is not so very great. Of course, the interior can be changed at will."

The Hotel Keeper's Gratitude.

A country boniface prints this delightful "card" in a weekly newspaper published at Hayden, Ky.: "A few kind words to the people who stayed at my hotel during the Circuit court: I can say that there have been fewer board bills jumped than ever before. I wish to extend my best regards to all of you people who live at the head of the rivers for your kindness and your good behavior what time you stayed at my hotel. Always before there was more or less shooting done around my place by drunken people, but this time there wasn't any of that. So all sober-minded people come and stay with me, and we will treat you the best we know how."

HORTICULTURE

Pollination of the Marthas.

There has been a rather extensive planting of the Martha Crab throughout the northwest, and, since the trees have got into bearing age, an almost equally general complaint that while it blossoms freely it is a shy bearer. I was told a few days ago of one case where a Minnesota man had been induced to plant a large orchard of the Martha and was now considering the project to cut them all down or top work them entirely to other sorts. He told me that they would come out full of bloom and then have little or no fruit. Mr. D. C. Hazelton of Nichols, Aitkin Co., Minn., north of St. Paul, came before the Minnesota Horticultural Society at its December annual meeting with a statement of his experience with the Martha that seems to demonstrate that all this variety requires to convert it into a good cropper is to be neighbored closely by other varieties to pollinize it, and it confirms what many of us suspected for many years, and perhaps some have known that we have other varieties that may be benefited by the use of pollen, not their own. Mr. Hazelton is a man of excellent standing in the Minnesota society and any statement of facts he makes on his own knowledge can be relied upon. His statement as to the Martha is as follows: Three Marthas set in spring of 1883 always blossomed full, but did not bear anything to speak of till 1900; then they bore about seven bushels each; this is in his plat No. 1. In the same plat is a Martha set in 1892 that has borne a fair crop for four years; this tree has had for a pollinizer an old early Strawberry crab twenty feet east that bears every year; these Marthas always bear heaviest on the side next to other bearing trees. In that year, 1900, he had six swarms of bees that worked hard on the apple trees especially on the Marthas. In his plat No. 2 about 200 feet away from the others were two Marthas set in 1883 one of these stands in an open space between the rows; fourteen feet east is an old Wealthy that has been bearing since 1893; another, twenty feet southeast, and an old early Strawberry forty-five feet nearly southeast. This Martha commenced bearing before he had any bees and has borne heaviest on the south and east sides. Standing thirty-five feet west is another Martha set in 1883. This stands in the center of a square of four trees, two early Strawberry and two Hibernals, so close that the limbs touch. They all began bearing about the same time and that Martha bears heavily on all sides. Plat No. 3 has three Marthas in the center of a row, all set in 1897. These Marthas commenced bearing in 1900; there is a Whitney on one side, Hibernals and Hilsops on the other.

If the Martha can be made an annual good cropper, Mr. Lyman may have to look out for his laurels with his Prolific, and possibly the reputation of my favorite crab, Mr. Peffer's Gibb, may be enhanced.—Oliver Gibbs, before Wisconsin Horticulturists.

Spraying and Dusting.

When the petals fall from the apple, the codling moth is on hand to lay her eggs; the calyx is then wide open, and the young caterpillars will seek the calyx for their first meal; later this calyx will close up tightly and if poison can be introduced before this closing it will be better retained, says Prof. F. M. Webster. The whole object of a lifetime with these moths is to deposit their eggs, and will do this, largely at least, as soon as the bloom falls. Then is the time to spray, and not after the other work is over and the eggs laid and hatched and the young worms making their way into the young apples, and the calyx of those not affected so closed over as to prevent the free admission of the spray. The young canker worms are minute and very hungry, easily killed by poisons about this time, but let them alone until they are one-half to two-thirds grown, and they seem to thrive on poisons. The potatoes are just coming out of the ground; there are a few beetles only and but little plant to treat. Get an old fruit can, punch fine holes in one end and fix a broom-handle to the other so as to hold the can vertically over the young plants, and tapping it lightly with a light stick, sift a mixture of one pound of paris green and ten pounds of a low grade of flour directly on the surface, where it is needed and where it will adhere to the leaves. This is not spraying, but it will kill off the old beetles that first appear, or at least many of them, before they lay their eggs.

Cows on Cement Floors.

From Farmers' Review: We have about 25 cows at the Ohio State University that recline more or less, six months in the year, on cement floors. Thus far, rheumatism has not prevailed in our herd, within my knowledge. I have no evidence, from experience or otherwise, that corroborates Professor Carlyle's view that cows standing on cement floors become rheumatic.—C. S. Plumb, Ohio State University.

TIRED BACKS.

Come to all who overtax the kidneys.

Don't neglect the aching back.

Many dangerous kidney troubles follow in its wake.

Mrs. C. B. Pare of Columbia avenue, Glasgow, Kentucky, wife of C. B. Pare, a prominent brick manufacturer of that city, says: When Doan's Kidney Pills were first brought to my attention I was suffering from a complication of kidney troubles. Besides the bad back which usually results from kidney complaints, I had a great deal of trouble with the secretions, which were exceedingly variable, sometimes excessive and at other times scanty. The color was high, and passages were accompanied with a scalding sensation. Doan's Kidney Pills soon regulated the kidney secretions, making their color normal and banished the inflammation which caused the scalding sensation. I can rest well, my back is strong and sound and I feel much better in every way.

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Pare will be mailed to any part of the United States on application. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

Laundering the Baby's Clothes.

Many mothers are ignorant of the serious injury that may result from washing the clothing of an infant with strong washing powders and impure soap. For this reason it should be laundered at home under the mother's directions and only Ivory soap used. To throw the little garments into the ordinary wash shows great carelessness.—E. R. Parker.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Circumstances Alter Cases.

Maud—I was so delighted to have met you again yesterday after all these years, but—er—really, I felt rather hurt that you didn't introduce me to the gentleman who was with you.

Mabel—My dear, I don't consider him the proper sort of a man for you to meet.

Maud—The idea! If he's the proper sort for you—

Mabel—O! I can't help it; he's my husband.

"What we need in politics—"

"Yes?"

"As I was saying, what we need in politics is—"

"Well?"

"—is less politics."

"Fact! You're right!"

Oh!

Mr. Tongue—Yes, they were married secretly. The bride's father wouldn't give his consent, you know, Dame Gossip—Really? And who was the groom?

Mr. Tongue—Why, it wasn't the groom. She married the coachman.

The Testimonial He Wanted.

"Gladys," said Chumley to his manly sister, "I've done so much for you you should write me a testimonial."

"A testimonial?"

"Yes; you might say: 'Dear brother, once I was a timid, delicate girl, but since using your collars, shirts and ties I have become a new woman.'"

An Unjust Aspersions.

"Yes, our society's new President certainly is a busy woman, but they say she is neglecting her duties as a wife and mother."

"That is not true. I know for a fact that she manages to see her family almost every day."

An Honest Avowal.

"You would never have amounted to anything if it had not been for your wife," said the inconsiderate relative.
"That's probably true," answered Mr. Meekton. "But I think I deserve a little credit for having had the nerve to get married."

Getting Him Keyed Up.

Mrs. Homer—How do you manage to get your carpets so clean? Do you hire a professional carpet beater?
Mrs. Neighbor—No; my husband beats them, and I always do something to make his angry just before he begins the job.

Fatal Slip.

She—Certainly. You must have forgotten that father is a milkman.

The Subject He Liked Best.

"And what is that?" said the man, smiling a compliment.

"Yourself," said the impertinent girl, demurely.

Ecclesiastical.

Church—Do you think he is a well-proportioned man?

Gotham—No; his lungs are away out of proportion to his brains.

LOVES THE PRAIRIES.

Miss Anna Gray is Delighted With Her Western Canada Home.

Anna C. Gray is a young lady formerly of Michigan. She is now a resident of Western Canada, and the following, published in the Brown City (Mich.) Banner are extracts from a friendship letter written about March 15 to one of her lady friends in that vicinity. In this letter is given some idea of the climate, social, educational and religious conditions of Alberta, the beautiful land of sunshine and happy homes. Over one hundred thousand Americans have made Western Canada their home within the past five years, and in this year upwards of 50,000 will take up homes there.

Miss Gray took her leave for Didsbury, Alberta, the home of her sister and other relatives and friends on Jan. 10 last, and after a two months' sojourn in her western prairie home, she writes of it as follows: "I know I shall grow to love the prairies. We have a beautiful view of the mountains and it seems wonderful to me to see home after home for miles, and it is becoming thickly settled all around us. With the exception of the last few days which have been cold and stormy, we have had beautiful spring weather ever since I came. The days are beautiful. I call this the "land of the sun," as it seems to be always shining; the nights are cold and frosty. On arriving here, I was so greatly surprised in every way. Didsbury is quite a business little town. All the people I meet are so pleasant and hospitable. They have four churches in Didsbury—the Baptist, Presbyterian, Evangelical and Mennonite. The Evangelicals have just completed a handsome church, very large and finely furnished, costing $2,500. They have a nice literary society here, meets every two weeks. They have fine musical talent here. Your friend, Anna C. Gray.
