Marks Re-Elected.

At a meeting of the township trustees held in the office of the county auditor last Monday, Geo. D. Marks was re-elected county superintendent of schools. It was claimed by some that the contest would be a hard one as Mr. Marks had the whole field against him. Trustee Jackson, of Center township, was chosen chairman, and the vote was by ballot and secret. Marks received the entire republican vote and was elected on the first ballot, he having received 7 votes. This makes the third term for him, which alone speaks well for the high opinion of the trustees and teachers have of him. Mr. Marks entertained a number of trustees and friends at dinner at the Kellison, after the election.

The Claypool Herald.

The Claypool Herald, George Nearpass' new paper, reached us last week. It is the same size as the Culver City Herald and about the same print. It contained the usual amount of news and judging from the number of local advertisements, is well patronized. Mr. Nearpass has had all kinds of experience during the time he has been connected with newspaper work. Every round of the ladder from the lowest to the highest is familiar to him and we hope that his new venture will be the most profitable and pleasant he has ever experienced.

Memorial Services at Culver.

The memorial services were carried out according to the program in a highly appropriate manner. The weather was threatening in the morning but a large crowd assembled long before the appointed time. Promptly at 9:30 o'clock the Henry Speyer Post G. A. R. and the Relief Corps gathered at their hall, formed in line and marched to the M. E. church where the ritualistic services were given interspersed with music and song, given by Miss Straeter, Mrs. Behmer, Otto Stahl and Alex. Dinsmore, after which M. C. McCormick, of Knox, delivered a most eloquent oration which was well received by the large audience. After the services, the Post, Relief Corps and the Knights of Pythias formed in line for the parade to the cemetery. The parade was headed by the Maxinkuckee band and commanded by Jacob Myers, officer of the day. At the first beat of the drum the countenances of the old soldiers lit up with a patriotic enthusiasm and as they started upon that march towards the cemetery to pay their tribute of respect to those who had gone before it was with a full realization that each year their numbers grow less, and the few remaining ones are more feeble, their steps more measured and slow and in a few more years these solemn rites must be performed by those who are inspired by a remembrance of heroic deeds performed upon the field of battle.

"How sleep the brave who sink to rest,
"By all their country's wishes blessed."
After the ceremonies the Post participated in the decoration of graves at Poplar Grove.

The Sunday Trains.

The Sunday trains now established on the Vandalia line between Terre Haute and South Bend, will enable the public to take advantage of the Sunday excursion rates, one fare for the round trip. These tickets are good going and returning on trains of the Sunday on which they are sold, from and to points where such trains stop; however no tickets are sold for less than twenty-five cents for round trip, nor for distance from starting point to which the one way rate is over three dollars and fifty cents. For folder and further particulars address the nearest Vandalia line agent or C. W. HARTMAN, Traveling Passenger Agent, Logansport, Ind.

Memorial Services at Poplar Grove.

The Memorial services at Poplar Grove were rendered in a most touching manner. They appealed at once to one of the noblest attributes in man, "loyalty and devotion to country." The cemetery at this place is one of the finest in the country, owned and kept in repair by the Odd Fellows of Maxinkuckee. The ceremonies were opened by prayer offered by Rev. Kemp, of Argos, after which Rev. Streeter delivered an oration which was much appreciated by all who heard it. The Henry Speyer post and Relief Corp. of Culver, and the Lafayette Gordon post, of Argos, participated in the decoration of the graves.

LARGE CROWDS.

C. M. A. Commencement Exercises Largely Attended by People from Neighboring Towns and Country.

People by the hundred came to Culver Wednesday to see the exercises at the Culver Military Academy. It put one in mind of a county or street fair—farmers coming in from all around us—and why do they come? That is easily answered; first, because here is found the greatest military academy in the United States and just now the commencement exercises are going on and they are worth going miles to see. Second, because they can combine business with pleasure and while here take advantage of trading at the best market in the state. Culver merchants are known all over for paying the highest market prices for produce, grain, etc. Third, because they are always made welcome and treated the very best, whether at the C. M. A. or in Culver.

BAND CONCERT.

First Number on Program for Entertainment of C. M. A. Visitors.

The first number of the official program of the commencement exercises at Culver Military Academy was held last Saturday evening in the gymnasium in form of a band concert. It was a good sample of the fine program of entertainment which the superintendent and faculty of the school had prepared for the commencement visitors. The band consists of 18 pieces, every one a star, under the able leadership of Capt. W. W. Wilson. They played the highest grade of music, correctly and with ease, which speaks well for the training they have received. A number of the pieces were encored and all in all it was the best concert ever given at the C. M. A.

HUNDREDS DIE IN THE FLOODS

Kansas City and North Topeka Are Scenes of Dire Suffering.

THOUSANDS WITHOUT HOMES

Fires Burn in Many Sections of the Flooded Region, the Water Supply is Cut Off and the Town is in Darkness.

Flood conditions in the Missouri and Kansas river valleys break all records since 1844.

Twenty thousand persons are homeless in Kansas City and dependent on the citizens for support.

Fires are burning in many sections of the flooded area. The city's water supply has been cut off. The town is in darkness. Dangers from fire, flood and famine threaten.

Ghouls Ply Their Trade. Vandals are looting the deserted dwellings and business houses. The Third Regiment has been called out to assist the police in protecting life and property.

All cars have stopped except on two lines. Every railroad is tied up and no trains are leaving the city for south, west or north.

Mayor Reed of Kansas City has issued appeal for funds to supply relief.

Forty-two persons are dead and many reported missing. Five bridges were swept away, and night and to drive to distraction the coolest heads.

Story in Brief. A comprehensive summary of existing conditions in and about North Topeka follows:

Dead—200 to 250, some by fire, but more by drowning.
Homeless and in want—8,000 people.
Estimated value of property lost—$4,000,000.

The dead identified—Five.
Floating bodies seen—Thirty.
People missing—800 to 1,000, including those known not to be in immediate peril.

Residences burned Saturday night in North Topeka—200 (estimated).
Bank buildings collapsed—Two.
Wholesale grocery stores flooded—Two.

Large business blocks on the verge of crumbling—Fifty.
Wholesale commission houses deserted—Six.

The city water works has also been rendered useless and Topeka is without fire protection. The known drowned include:

Karl Rupp.
Orinville Rupp.
Two Rupp sisters.
C. H. Garrett's 5-year-old son.
Twenty bodies are held awaiting identification, but five times as many are feared to be hidden in the bosom of the water. Providence only knows where.

Hundreds Are Prisoners.

A fair idea of how scores of residents of North Topeka and environs are situated can be obtained from the following statement relative to a few of the many places where human beings are awaiting rescue:

B Street Colored Baptist church—One hundred imprisoned for two days and two nights.

Grand Army Hall—Seventy-five women and children being supplied

THE SPORT OF THE MILLIONAIRE.

Deadly Automobile in its Daily Tour.

Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kas., are separated by body of water three miles wide, only communication being by boat.

An unconfirmed report says that twenty-seven men were on the Union Pacific bridge when it went down and all were drowned.

Heavy Damage. The wholesale and packing-house districts and great railroad depots are flooded. Thousands of freight cars containing supplies are surrounded by water, which endangers their contents. Damage to property now is placed at $5,000,000, but may far exceed this sum.

Dispatches indicate residents of Mississippi and Missouri valleys are in danger. Wpather bureau bulletin shows water at Kansas City is seven feet above danger line. Flood is expected to rise two feet above danger line at St. Louis.

Dead Number 250.

Only three hundred of the thousand or more victims of Saturday's flood, who were in dire peril, were rescued in North Topeka and its environs Sunday. The number of the dead was shown to be, by conservative estimates, nearly 250, and many hundreds of men, women and children are in extreme danger.

The condition of most of the survivors is terrible. The strongest were reduced to utter weakness. The will power, the love of the father or the mother for the offspring in notable cases alone accounts for the survival of so many.

No food for two days, and in some cases for three, hedged in between the branches of trees or in small rooms or lofts in factories, houses and barns, no sound save that of the roaring flood, no hopeful view, but only the washing of fire brands and a look into the murky, swirling water—all these circumstances intensified a thousand times—combined to whiten hair in a

Pape elevator—Eighty-five imprisoned, but with excellent chance of early rescue.

Topeka Woolen Mills—One hundred beleaguered.

Casey Flour Mill—Ninety-four unable to escape, but suffering chiefly from lack of food.

Fire station—Eighty-four imprisoned by the water.

Rock Island and other passenger trains—Probably 200 isolated, though not in great discomfort, as the railroads are sending food.

MINERS AGREE TO ARBITRATE

Joint Committee to Settle Strike Over Mistreatment of Mule.

Terre Haute, Ind., special: After a three weeks' strike of 600 miners at Battle Creek because the operator would not consent to arbitration over the discharge of a mule driver accused of cruelty to a mule, a joint committee has been appointed to settle the trouble.

At a mine owned by W. S. Bogle of Chicago a mule stopped suddenly in a passageway. Its ears being more acute than the driver's, it had heard the snap denoting a fall of a slate. Several tons crushed the life out of the mule. Had the mule gone a few steps farther the driver would have been killed.

At the Seelyville mine, which was flooded recently, the miners found a mule standing in water to its neck. It had gnawed at the supporting timbers to satisfy the hunger craving and was nearly exhausted.

MORMONS GREET THE PRESIDENT

Thousands Cheer Roosevelt When He Enters Salt Lake Temple.

PLAINSMEN ACT AS ESCORT

Cow Punchers and Sheep Men Travel Far Over Rough Roads to Honor the Chief Executive and Take Part in the Parade.

Evanston, Wyo., special: President Roosevelt was given hearty welcome by the 5,000 people gathered at the station. The president was introduced by Senator Clark of Wyoming, and, after a short address, departed for Rawlins.

The president divided the day at Salt Lake City and Ogden, being welcomed by great crowds in both cities.

The president arrived at Salt Lake City at 8:30 o'clock in the morning. As he stepped from the train he was met by Gov. Wells, Mayor Thompson, and Secretary of Agriculture Wilson. South Temple street for blocks was lined with military, civic, and fraternal organizations, and as the carriages passed all fell into line.

Rough Riders as Escort.

Fifty rough riders, in typical plainsmen's attire, acted as a special escort. Several battalions of United States troops and the Utah national guard followed. Bringing up the rear were nearly 600 mounted cow punchers and sheep men, many of them having come over 150 miles of rough trails to greet the president. The sunburned, brawny plainsmen, in their sombreros and blue shirts, formed the most picturesque part of the parade.

School Children in Line.

Nine thousand school children, every one of them waving a flag, greeted the president at the reviewing stand.

After speaking a moment to the children, the president reviewed the long parade, and then, re-entering his carriage, was driven to the tabernacle. When President Roosevelt stepped forward, after an introduction by Gov. Wells, 11,000 people rose to their feet and cheered wildly for fully a minute.

The president spoke in eulogy of the Utah pioneers, who, he said, came here not to exploit the land and then go somewhere else but to build homes.

To Honor Utah.

Secretaries Moody and Wilson also spoke briefly. Secretary Moody aroused considerable enthusiasm by promising to name a battleship Utah if congress would grant him five battleships at the next session.

Leaving the tabernacle, the president was driven to Senator Kearns' residence for luncheon and rest. This was entirely an informal affair.

The chief magistrate was greeted at Ogden by thousands of people gathered from all the counties of northern Utah. The procession was over a mile in length and passed through the principal streets. All along the line of march the streets were crowded to the ropes that had been stretched to prevent a jam.

Veterans Guard Chief.

Features of the parade were the large assemblies of Grand Army of the Republic and Spanish war veterans, who acted as the guard of honor, and the long lines of railroad em-

More than 5,000 children, representing the public school pupils, were gathered at Lester park, and here the president made a few remarks. At a pavilion on the public square the president was welcomed by Mayor Glasmann in a few words. Senator Reed Smoot then introduced the president, who spoke briefly.

PRESBYTERIANS OUST REV. LOUIS RICHTER

General Assembly Sustains the Action of the Minnesota Synod in Excommunicating the Pastor.

Los Angeles, Cal., dispatch: The Presbyterian general assembly sustained the action of the Minnesota synod in deposing the Rev. Louis Richter of Minneapolis from the pulpit and excommunicating him from the church.

The charge against Mr. Richter was that he, as a Presbyterian minister, had occupied a post as agent for the dissemination of literature for the brewery trust. It was also charged that he appealed by circulars to the saloons and breweries to contribute to a fund to enable him to prosecute his case before the general assembly.

The regular business before the general assembly was the report on foreign mission. The report showed that the board of foreign missions has 127 stations, 1,402 out-stations, 764 schools, 27,370 pupils in school, 38,342 Sunday school scholars, 693 churches (312 of these are in Corea, and it is scarcely proper to call them churches, as they are rather groups of believers, 122 students for the ministry, 10 printing presses, and 91 hospitals and dispensaries, which treated during the year 290,103 patients.

The board sent out to the foreign field 142 missionaries, sixty-six of whom were returning to their fields and seventy-six were newly appointed. This is the largest number ever sent out in a single year. Even with the large reinforcements many fields are still needing workers. The board has under appointment for the new year fifty-six new missionaries. The missionaries asked for exceed 200.

For the six successive years the board reports no deficit.

The report of the treasurer of the twentieth century fund showed that the contributions had been $12,039,063—the largest amount ever reported by the church for a single fund. Pennsylvania gave $2,756,155, New York $2,038,990, Illinois $690,271, Iowa $398,407, Missouri $327,674, Michigan $317,599, Minnesota $299,243, Indiana $255,209, and Wisconsin $112,502.

The contributions to educational institutions, including academies, colleges and theological seminaries, amounted to $1,543,500.

The assembly by unanimous vote decided to hold the next meeting at Buffalo, N. Y.

A LOVE STORY BY AMELIA E. BARR

(Copyright, 1900, by Amelia E. Barr)

"My dear, dear grandfather, you carry wisdom with you! Oh, wise, wise grandfather! You have made me happy to a degree!"

"Very well, but say not that I gave you such counsel. When your father speaks to me, as he is certain to do, then I will say such and such words to him; but my words in your mouth will be a great offence, and very justly so, for it is hard to carry words, and carry nothing else. Your dear mother—how is she?"

"Well and happy. But my father is not so happy. I can see that he is wearied of everything."

"Not here, is his heart. It is in England. If of Liberty I now speak to him, he has a smile so hopeless that both sad and angry it makes me. No faith has he left in any man, except Washington; and I think, also, he is disappointed that Washington was not crowned King George the First."

At this point in the conversation Van Heemskirk was called to the door about some business matter and George was left alone with his grandmother. She put the cups quickly down, and going to George's side, said:

"Cornelia Moran spends this evening with her friend Arenta Van Arians. Well then, would you like an excuse to call on Arenta?"

"Oh, grandmother! Do you indeed know Arenta? Can you send me there?"

"Since she was one month old I have known Arenta. This morning, she came here to borrow for her Aunt Jacobus my ivory winders. For thy pleasure I will get them, and thou canst take them this evening to Arenta."

"O you dear, dear grandmother!" and he stood up, and lifted her rosy face between his hands and kissed her.

"Get me the winders, grandmother; for now you have given me a reason to hurry."

Then she went into the best parlor, and opening one of the shutters let in sufficient light to find in the drawer of a little Chinese cabinet some ivory winders of very curious design and workmanship. She folded them in soft tissue paper and handed them to her grandson with a pleasant nod; and the young man slipped them into his pocket, and then went hurriedly away.

Doubting and hoping, he reached the Van Arians' house soon after seven o'clock. It was not quite dark, and Jacob Van Arians stood on the stoop, smoking his pipe.

"Good evening, sir," said George with smiling politeness. "Is Miss Van Arians within?"

"Within? Yes. But company she has to-night," said the watchful father, as he stood suspicious and immovable in the entrance.

"I have come with a message to Miss Van Arians."

"A very fine messenger!" answered Van Arians, slightly smiling.

"A fine lady deserves a fine messenger. But, sir, if you will do my errand for me, I am content. I have brought from Madame Van Heemskirk some ivory winders for Madame Jacobus."

"Come in, come in, and tell my Arenta the message thyself. Welcome art thou!" and Van Arians himself opened the parlor door, saying:

"Arenta, here is George Hyde. A message he brings for thy Aunt Angelica."

And while these words were being uttered, George delighted his eyes with the vision of Cornelia, who sat at a small table with some needlework

"I have come with a message." In her hand, Arenta's tatting was over her foot, and she had to remove it in order to rise and meet Hyde. Rem sat idly fingering a pack of playing cards and talking to Cornelia.

In a few moments, Arenta's pretty enthusiasms and welcomes dissipated all constraints, and Hyde placed his chair among the happy group and fell easily into his most charming mood. They sang, they played, they had a game at whist, and everything that happened was in some subtle, secret way, a vehicle for Hyde's love to express itself.

About half-past nine, a negro came with Cornelia's cloak and hood. George folded the warm circular round Cornelia's slight figure; and then watched her tie her pretty pink hood, managing amid the pleasant stir of leave-taking to whisper some words that sang all night like sweetest music in her heart. At the leave taking he heard a few words which gave him a delightful assurance of coming satisfaction. For as the two girls stood in the hall, Arenta said:

"You will come over in the morning, Cornelia?"

"I cannot," answered Cornelia. "After breakfast I have to go to Richmond Hill with a message from my mother to Mrs. Adams."

And George, hearing these words, could hardly control his delight. For he was one of Mrs. Adams' favorites, and so much at home in her house that he could visit her at any hour of the day without a ceremonious invitation.

He took a merry leave of Arenta, and went directly to his rooms. "Tis my destiny! 'Tis my happy destiny to love her!" he said softly to himself. "I shall tell Mrs. Adams how far gone in love I am," he continued. "I shall say to her, 'Help me, madame, to an opportunity'; and I think she will not refuse. As for my father, I heard him this morning with as much patience as any Christian could do; but I am resolved to marry Cornelia. I will not give her up; not for an earldom! Not for a dukedom! Not for the crown of England!"

Joris Hyde allowed the sweet emotions Cornelia had inspired to have, and to hold, and to occupy his whole being. Sleep was a thousand leagues away, and he flung open the casement and sat in a beatitude of blissful hopes and imaginations.

And after midnight, when dreams fall, the moon came up over Nassau and Cedar streets and threw poetic glimmers over the antique churches, and grassy graveyards, and the pretty houses, covered with vines and budding rosebushes; and this soft shadow of light calmed and charmed him.

"It is a sign to me! It is a sign! So will I put away every baffling hindrance between Cornelia and myself. Barriers will only be as those vaporous clouds. I shall part them with my strong resolves—I shall—I shall—I—!" and he fell asleep with this sense of victory thrilling his whole being.

CHAPTER V.

Turning Over a New Leaf.

When Hyde awakened, he was in that borderland between dreams and day which we call dawn. The noises finally woke him thoroughly. "I am more alive than ever I was in my life," he said; and he laughed gayly, and went to the window. "It is a lovely day; and that is so much in my favor," he added, "for if it were raining, Cornelia would not leave the house."

Then he fell into reverie about his proposed visit to Mrs. Adams. Last night it appeared to him an easy and natural thing to do. He was not so sure of his position this morning. But there are times when laissezaller carries before it, and Hyde was in just such a mood. "I'll run the chance," he said. "I'll risk it. I'll let things take their course." And after all, when a man is in love, to be reasonable is often to be cowardly.

When he was dressed he went to his hotel and breakfasted there. Early as it was, there were many members and senators present—eating, drinking coffee and disputing. Hyde took no notice of any of these disputes until a man—evidently an Englishman—called Franklin "a beggar-on-horseback-Yankee." Then he looked steadily at the speaker, saying with the utmost coolness and firmness:

"You are mistaken, sir. The beggar-on-horseback is generally supposed to ride to the devil. Franklin rode to the highest posts of political honor and the esteem and affection of worthy men in all the civilized world."

With these words he rose, pushed aside his chair with a little temper, and, turning, met Jefferson face to face. The great man smiled, and put his hand affectionately on Hyde's shoulder.

"You spoke well, my young friend. Now, I will give you a piece of advice—when any one abuses a great man in your presence, ask them what kind of people they admire. You will certainly be consoled."

Hyde, casting his eyes a moment on this tall, loose-limbed man, whose cold blue eyes and red hair emphasized the stern anger of his whole appearance, was well disposed to leave the scurrilous Englishman to his power of reproof.

Riding hard, it was quite half-past nine when he drew rein at the door of Richmond Hill. Thus far, he had suffered himself to be carried forward by the impulse of his heart, and he still put firmly down any wonder as to what he should say or do.

He was shown into a bright little parlor with open windows. A table, elegantly and plentifully spread, occupied the center of the room; and sitting as it were the vice president and Mrs. Adams and also their only daughter, the beautiful, but not very intellectual, Mrs. Smith. Mrs. Adams met him with genuine, though formal kindness; Mrs. Smith with courtesy, and the vice president rose, bowed handsomely, hoped he was well, and then after a minute's reflection said:

"We were talking about the official title proper for Gen. Washington. What do you think, Lieutenant? Or have you heard Gen. Hyde express any opinion on the subject?"

"Sir, I do not presume to understand the ceremonials of government. My father is of the opinion that 'The President of the United States' has a Roman and republican simplicity, and that any addition to it would be derogatory and childish."

"My dear young man, the eyes of the world are upon us. To give a title to our leaders and rulers belongs to history. In the Roman republic great conquerors assumed even distinctive titles, as well as national ones."

"Then our Washington is superior to them."

"Chief Justice McKean thinks 'His Serene Highness the President of the United States' is very suitable. Roger Sherman is of the opinion that neither 'His Highness' nor 'His Excellency' are novel and dignified enough; and Gen. Muhlenberg says Washington himself is in favor of 'High Mightiness,' the title used by the Stadtholder of Holland."

"And how will you vote, John?" asked Mrs. Adams.

"In favor of a title. Certainly, I

He flung open the casement. shall. Your Majesty is a very good prefix. It would draw the attention of England and show her that we were not afraid to assume 'the majesty' of our conquest."

"And if you were to please France," continued Mrs. Adams, "which seems the thing in fashion, you might have the prefix 'Citizen.' 'Citizen Washington' is not bad."

"It is execrable, Mrs. Adams, and I am ashamed that you should make it, even as a pleasantry."

"Indeed, my friend, there is no foretelling what may be. And, after all, I do believe that the President regards his citizenship far above his office. What say you, Lieutenant?"

"I think, madame, that fifty, one hundred, one thousand years after this day, it will be of little importance what prefix is put before the name of the President. He will be simply George Washington in every heart and on every page."

"That is true," said Mrs. Adams. "Fame uses no prefixes. It is Pompey, Julius Caesar, Pericles, Alfred, Hampden, Oliver Cromwell."

"Washington will do for love and for fame," continued Hyde. The next generation may say Mr. Madison, or Mr. Monroe or Mr. Jay; but they will want neither prefix nor suffix to Washington, Jefferson, Franklin—and, if you permit me, sir—Adams. The Vice President was much pleased. He said "Pooh! Pooh!" and stood up and stepped loftily across the hearth rug, but the subtle compliment went warm to his heart.

"Well, well," he answered, "heartily, and from our souls, we must do our best, and then trust to Truth and Time, our name and our memory. But I must now go to town—our affairs give us no holidays."

(To be continued.)

BRavery, AND TRUE COURAGE.

Japanese Sure He Would Be Killed, But Didn't Mind.

The little lieutenant who lived just across the street from O. K. Davis, the New York Sun's war correspondent in Tientsin, said to him one day:

"I should be very happy to have you visit me in my home in Japan after this war is over, but I expect to be killed."

He was perfectly sincere and unaffected. His belief did not alter his attention to duty in the slightest. He went wherever he was ordered as gayly as if it were to a feast, no matter if the field was swept with bullets.

When I saw him in Peking a day or so after the legations had been relieved he said simply: "Perhaps I shall not be killed this time after all."

Would you call it courage when such a man as that leads a little column against a stone wall, and when he can't get over at first, sits down and waits until he can? He hasn't any conception of courage. He is brave, but with the bravery of a bulldog.

There is more real courage in the old hen fluttering over her little chickens to protect them from the threatening hawk. If it were not for them she would flee fast enough from the danger.

There you have the essential difference between courage and bravery, and between the American soldier and the Japanese or Russian. The Orientals, counting the Russian as an Oriental, are dangerous men to meet because they have no care for the result. How much more dangerous is the man who sees through to the end and discounts it all, yet goes ahead to the desperate finish.—Everybody's Magazine.

Outsiders, recognizing the superiority of the Newcastle product, and being financially unable to erect ranges there, are doing the next best thing, viz.: Shipping soil gathered from around Newcastle to their plants, to a distance as far away as 200 miles. Several carloads of soil have been shipped to Indianapolis, Chicago and Cincinnati firms for the growing of roses. He pursued it and it showed fight, but he finally conquered it. They were water moccasins and measured three and a half feet in length and over two inches in diameter.

Miss Alice Shultz, who is now living in South Bend, was a guest of Dr. Rea and family Sunday.

Charles Miles, formerly of this place, who is now located at Plymouth was a visitor last Friday.

Henry Zechiel, Wm. Overman and Mr. Vanschoiack transacted business at Plymouth Monday.

About fifteen colored people arrived last week. They will work at the Lake View hotel this season.

Misses Effie and Bertha Mattix returned to their home in Akron, Wednesday after visiting Miss Tressie Rogers.

Miss Edna Hayes came home last Thursday. She has been attending high school at Bement, Ill., for the past year.

Sam Helfick, well known in this city, is again seen at the park. He will help Bill dispense liquid refreshments this summer.

New time tables or boards have been placed at the north and south side of the depot. This will be a great convenience to the traveling public.

Mrs. Kate Edwards is moving her stock from the Shaw building to the building across from the postoffice formerly occupied by Keen Bros.

Dr. Wiseman is having the interior of the postoffice white coated. It will aid the clerks as it makes the room much lighter. Buswell and Jones are doing the work.

Rob't. Kreuzberger is having a new brick walk put in along the park from the Vandalia railroad grounds to the pop factory. A new cross walk is badly needed there.

Schlusser Bros. are having an ice house and ice cream storage built back of the pop factory. The work is under the direction of Mr. Hussey who will represent the firm at the lake this season.

Medbourne & Green have installed a new soda fountain at their factory and are ready to accommodate any who desire anything in that line. They will also handle a fine line of candies and cigars.

Ray Poor's new lunch wagon is now fitted out and in running order. He will be found at Kreuzberger's park and carries a full line of candies, cigars, tobaccos and cigars. Hot and cold lunch served at all hours.

A number of cross walks will be laid in the near future, the brick having been hauled last week. This will add greatly to the convenience of the public and beauty of the town. There are a few walks in town yet that should be replaced with brick or cement.

A very important communication concerning sheep scab will be found in this issue. We will print regularly the reports of the Purdue University agricultural experiment station. These reports are of great interest to the farmers as they represent the views of the best authorities we have in the state.

STOLEN—A row boat from my cottage on the south end of the lake, a row boat 12 to 14 feet long, clinker, built by Ed Morris, painted blue on outside, buff inside, white railing, originally had No. 1 painted on white railing which had been covered by white paint. Any information that will lead to the recovery will be liberally rewarded.

DANIEL McDONALD.

Dr. Wiseman was called to Napoleon, Ohio, last Friday to see his sister Mrs. Charlotte Rose, who has been for many months in a precarious condition of health. While there he improved the opportunity to call upon many of his old school mates, he having attended high school in that city thirty-one years ago. He returned Monday and reported Mrs. Rose as somewhat improved.

An Excursion to Lafayette.

Arrangements have been made with the central passenger association by which anyone of the state may secure one and one-third fare round trip tickets to Lafayette from the local agents, on June 11th and 12th, and good returning to and including June 13th. Requests for tickets should be made early so that the local agent will have time to secure them if he has not already done so.

While the object of the excursion is primarily to enable visitors to see the buildings and grounds of the experiment station, it will also afford the young men and women of the state an excellent opportunity to inspect the splendidly equipped laboratories of the university proper which enable the institution to give such thorough training in industrial subjects.

Ample provision will be made for the care of lunch baskets and wraps, and suitable places for eating lunches will be provided. Those who do not care to bring lunch can get meals at the various hotels and restaurants in the city and West Lafayette.

It is hoped that a large number of farmers and others will avail themselves of this opportunity to visit the station. Nearly every farmer will find some line of work in progress in which he will be especially interested and which he can inspect with both pleasure and profit. Come and let us get better acquainted. Bring your families and neighbors with you. We assure you that you will be heartily welcome.

W. C. T. U.

The W. C. T. U. held their first business meeting at the home of Mrs. Wm. Wilson, May 22. Two new members were received, Mrs. George Kline and Mrs. Ella Davis. The following departments were then organized: Literature, Sunday school, Sabbath observance, Press and Medal contest. A synopsis of the work of each department may not be interesting to our friends. The literary department aims to prepare, collect and distribute temperance literature, that public sentiment may be educated along this line of work. The Sunday school work aims to teach the great principles of temperance through the quarterly international Sunday school lessons by insisting that special lessons be prepared for those days. The Sabbath observance is to arouse the public intellect and conscience by leaflets and press articles petitions and all other available means to the religious and scientific reasons for keeping the Sabbath. The press department aims to provide the press with the latest and most important news concerning the W. C. T. U. work and bring before the reading public, facts, illustrations and statistics that are helpful in educating the public mind along this line of reform. The medal contest gives the principles of the W. C. T. U., in the attractive form of public entertainment.

A Startling Evidence.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds to be unequalled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Bentorville, Va., serves as an example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all lung and throat troubles, consumption and pneumonia and grip. Guaranteed by T. E. Slattery, druggist. Trial bottles free. Regular sizes 50c and $1.00

Worst of All Experiences.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. H. S. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I am completely recovered. For liver, kidney, stomach and bowel trouble Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by T. E. Slattery, druggist.

Sheep Scab Obtained from the Stock Yards.

The season is approaching when some feeders will go to the stock yards to purchase sheep for fall feeding. Those who do so, will not have had the benefit of previous experience. Those having such experience will as a rule have found the venture unprofitable. One of the causes of the unprofitable side is the danger of introducing scab. This disease is parasitic and the stock yards are permanently infected. Sheep passing through the yards, although free from disease when entering, seldom escape without infection. The regulations of the bureau of animal industry seek to control the danger by keeping separate pens for affected sheep, and to prevent the spread by requiring that all diseased sheep intended for sale for feeding purposes shall be dipped twice at an interval of 10 days, and all sheep not affected, but intended for feeding purposes shall be dipped once before shipment.

This department has been making a special effort to trace the origin of all cases of scab reported from this state, and from the findings, concludes that these regulations are insufficient. Of the last 4,506 head of scabby sheep reported, it has been found that 4,161 had previously come from the stock yards or fed with sheep coming from the yards. This leaves 345 cases of scab reported as coming from our farms.

The loss upon the 4,161 head was greater than the profits upon all those purchased for feeding purposes that did not develop disease. Besides, this large number gives us the reputation of having scab, that is not deserved. Greater security can be secured by dipping upon the farm, but our advice is to let the sheep alone.

Obituary.

Mrs. Margaret Burkett Wolf was born in Perry county, Ohio, Oct. 5, 1827. She was reared and educated in her father's home until she was married and became the head of her own household. Miss Burkett was united in the holy bonds of matrimony Feb. 25, 1849 to Mr. Gideon Wolf. They established their home at the first in Sandusky, Ohio, in which were born three of the children. They removed to Rochester, Ind., from Sandusky in 1853. Here they resided nearly two years. Subsequently they came to reside near Leiters Ford. This was the old homestead and in which were born most of the children. Mr. Gideon Wolf came to his mortal end on the 61st anniversary of his birth, which occurred February 11, 1885, and he was given sepulture in the beautiful Odd Fellow's cemetery in Rochester, where by the side of her husband were laid the remains of the widow and mother, as once before in youth's beauty and manhood they were united each for the other in joint life but in the realm of mortality, so again in the habiliments of immortality they will be united in the life unending. Mr. and Mrs. Wolf were the parents of nine children, all of whom are living and seven of whom were present, joining in the solemn services. The names of the children in the order of their births are as follows: Delilah Ellen Phillips, Chicago, Ill.; Katherine Edwards, Daniel Wolf, Culver; Susanna Hickman, South Bend; Fernando Wolf, Salida, Colo.; John Wolf, Chicago; Samantha Bremner, Plymouth; Laura E. Gerard, Gypsum, Colo., and Timothy Wolf, Culver. She was the grandmother of nineteen and the great-grandmother of three, making the total number of descendants, thirty-one children.

Mrs. Wolf was a member of the Methodist church nearly all of her natural life. Her religion was not of a demonstrative kind but was steady in its tenor and very practical in the applied truths of christianity and benevolent in character. Being good was doing good. As in her life, so in the closing of her earthly career, her faith was finally triumphant and her peace was like a river flowing strong and clear out to the great ocean beyond. Peacefully she sank to rest as the setting of the sun behind the western hills.

Mrs. Wolf was for many years a member of the Daughters of Rebecca an order which she very much loved and greatly enjoyed especially in the lodges of that order in Rochester and Richland Center, Ind.

Margaret Burkett Wolf departed this life May 28, 1903, aged 75 years, 7 months and 23 days. She went to the "Mansions prepared" from the family home in Culver, on the shore of Lake Maxinkuckee. Of all her residences none was more pleasant to her than this one so near this body of water in which she took so much delight in various ways. To her expectant soul sunrise gleams in the bosom of the lake and falling within her open door were symbols of the shining way and the glory of the Jasper throne.

WRAPS AND GOWNS

Taffeta Waist.
Blouse of straw-colored taffeta made with groups of plaits. The yoke is made with groups of crosswise plaits, which appear to extend down the sleeves, opening out at the elbows. The yoke has straps cut on the edge, the ends fastened with buttons. Under these straps is a band of white batiste, embroidered with black; this and the straps extend over on to the sleeves.—Neueste Blousen.

Gray Tea Gowns.
As regards tea gowns, there is rather a fancy for gray just now. Certainly there is nothing prettier for home wear than this Puritan color, besides which it has the advantage of harmonizing well with practically every other shade imaginable, says the Illustrated London News. Any kind of crepe looks well in silver gray, and it can be trimmed with a dash of bright color to prevent its looking fade. A pretty model in crepe de chine was accented pleated throughout, finished off with a great turned-down collar and an Empire sash tied above the waist line, with some tassels of orange silk mingling with the loops. Another gray gown was made up in a soft woolen material worked with spots of white silk. It was smocked on the bust, and from thence fell quite loosely to the feet. The neck was cut in a small V-shape and edged with a fichu of white net, bordered by a deep fall of lace, the line of juncture being concealed by a very narrow band of chinchilla. The sleeve was a full bishop shape, drawn in at the wrist by means of the smocking, the cuff being formed of net slightly folded, edged with a band of fur and a flounce of lace falling well over the hand. A rose-pink chon placed on the bust gave a charming finish to this fascinating garment.

To prevent a lamp from smoking soak the wick in strong vinegar and dry it well before using it. The flame will then burn clear and bright.

Dry colored cambrics indoor and if possible in a darkened room, for nothing is more likely to bleach colored cotton than strong light upon it while it is wet.

The smell of paint in a freshly painted room will soon go off if you keep in it a pailful of water with a little hay in it. Renew the contents of pail twice or thrice in the day.

Pancakes baked on a soapstone griddle are much more digestible than those cooked on iron. A soapstone griddle should be heated very slowly to avoid the danger of cracking. It is never greased, but is rubbed thoroughly with dry salt.

Fringe Feathers.
Quite the latest thing for hat adornment is a fringe feather which seems to be composed of two ostrich feathers a black one over a white one. Near the stem end the black one is simply curled lightly over the white one. For more than half the length, however, the strands of the black plume are knotted just as silk fringe is. This hanging over the soft snowy white plume gives a most noticeable effect. It is very pretty, though the black part looks to be of fringe until one examines it quite closely.

Nervous folks ought to partake often of cheese, which acts as a sedative. They should beware of eating cheese to excess, however, as it is a tax on the digestion.

The daily bath is a great protection from infectious disease.

Pastry should be cooled off in a warm room; taking it suddenly from the oven to a cold larder will make it heavy.

Save old cords, for if you soak them in paraffine, they will make excellent fire lighters, either for reviving a dying fire or with a few sticks, for kindling one in the first place.

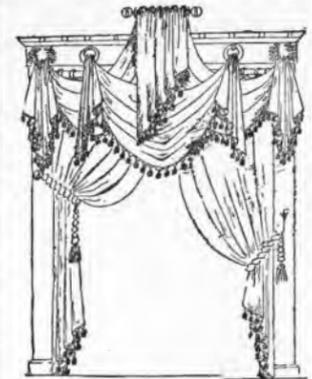

Window wedges are worth much and cost little. No bedroom window should be without its wedge, for by means of it rattling may be prevented on stormy nights and the occupant of the room may sleep undisturbed. Turpentine will cleanse zinc and make it look like new. Wash the zinc first in hot soda water and then rub with a flannel dipped in turpentine.

Any Way You Like It.
A vegetarian soup is made as follows: Cut up one pound of thinly peeled and well washed potatoes into small dice; prepare in the same way the same weight of Jerusalem artichokes; add about two ounces of very finely cut up white carrots. Put the whole into a saucepan and pour in one quart of cold water. Carefully skim it as it nears boiling. Put in a leveled teaspoonful of salt and half that quantity of pepper. Let it boil gently until all the vegetables are soft. Strain them through a muslin cloth. Let the soup again boil up and serve it with toast; or mash the vegetables, mix it with chopped cold meat, season and flour it; make it into cakes and fry them a light brown.

Beautifying the Home.
The keynote of the interior of the house beautiful forms its character in the artistic arrangement of the draperies. The arrangement should give the form of an idea. This is as important as it is to produce a harmonious color scheme, which makes the colors blend in tone like chords in music. One curved line ought to be in harmony with another.

The illustration shown presents a scheme to make a high door look lower and yet maintain its stately appearance.

Door Drapery.
The material used is fifty inches wide and any practical draper can cut and drape it.

Young Mothers.
"Theories!" was once the cry against reform ideas of any assistance to expectant mothers; but time tries what science discovers, and it is no theory that you can mold the unborn's mind and diet in a way to produce easy birth and beautiful children. We imitate the Greeks there and improve

SPRING COSTUME OF DOTTED VOILE.

In pretty shade of Yale blue, made of tight-fitting, with slightly bloused waist and flared skirt. Trimming of on their plan, says Vick's Family Magazine. Summed into simple facts, the general rule is to eat fruit lavishly, as much vegetable diet as agreeable, little white bread or meat, plenty of cereals save wheat, and all the rice you can relish as vegetable or dessert. A daily short nap, and sponge bath, I advise from experience. Avoid exciting, terrible or hideous sights.

Child's Dress.
Little children are always effectively dressed when wearing garments cut with waist and skirt in one. This very pretty little frock combines a Russian front with a box plaited back and is well adapted to boys up to four years of age and to girls until they reach the age of six. The only change that is necessary to convert it from the masculine to the feminine garment is that of making the lap from right to left in place of from left to right. The quantity of material required for the medium size (four years) is 2 1/2 yards 27 inches wide or 2 yards 44 inches wide.

Pretty Kimona.
Old shirt waists may be used to good advantage by being made into kimona dressing sacques. Remove the collar and cut in a V at front of neck. Remove cuffs, gather at wrists and take out gathers at waist line. Now take cloth of a contrasting color and sew a strip about two inches wide around bottom of waist and sleeves and up fronts around neck, and the kimona is complete. They are very little trouble to make and are both pretty and comfortable on a hot day.

The Tailor-Made.
Really the woman with no figure at all, either too much or too little, looks nice in the trim tailored suits, and she who always thinks of herself with a sigh can make a gown of etamine homespun in anyone of the nice little new fashions and look extremely well. In the dressier materials come the family of silks, and a silk gown tailor-made is exquisitely neat and adaptable to all occasions.

Fetching Morning Coats.
"Santuzza" jackets and aprons are quaint additions to the morning dresses for home wear. They imitate the small garments worn by the heroine in "Cavalleria Rusticana," and are made in silk etamine, with trimmed edges.

IRRIGATION BY PUMPING.

Irrigation has been carried on for centuries by means of canals in which the water moved in response to the law of gravity. Later air power has been used as a means of lifting the water and storing it in reservoirs, from which it could be afterwards used on the land. Some water for such purposes has been raised by pumping with steam and gasoline engines. Generally, this latter method has been considered too expensive to be advocated for general use. But some time ago the Arizona station took up the problem and is solving it in a way that promises to be very advantageous to some of our western farmers. For pumping steam engines are used, and the fuel is that found on the farm—in the case of the Arizona station it is tornillo wood purchasable at $2.25 per cord. It may be that such fuel is abundant in many sections of the country where there are arid wastes to irrigate. A number of different engines were tried and they pumped from 600 to 1,085 gallons per minute. The fuel cost of irrigating one acre of land to a depth of three inches ranged from 51 to 76 cents. This water was used on the alfalfa field, and proved to be very profitable. Were it to be used on a field of vegetables it would, of course, prove still more profitable. Water is the key to agriculture, and its application to land at low cost means the bringing under cultivation of large areas that have hitherto borne nothing but buffalo grass and sage brush.

MANIPULATING THE UDDER.

It is well known that some cows will give down small squirts of stripplings for a considerable time after a full flow of milk has ceased. This milk is elaborated from the last portion of the milk-producing material which the alveoli have manufactured at the time of the milking. The formation of material from which milk is manufactured goes on all the time, according to our best present knowledge, but the process is especially active at the time of the milking. When the milking begins some of the milk is already elaborated; the greater portion of the milk is, however, most likely formed during the process of milking from the material stored up in the alveoli during the interval since last milking. Toward the end of the milking the flow of milk is much smaller than before until it practically stops, unless continuous stripping is resorted to. It is the rich milk adhering to the cavities and ducts of the udder which is thus lost to the dairymen if the milking is interrupted at the point when many milkers stop milking. By simple manipulations of the udder this portion of the milking can be easily obtained, and being very rich in butter fat and other milk solids, it will greatly improve the quality of the whole mess of milk if added thereto.—F. W. Woll, Wisconsin University.

SMALL MEETINGS OF DAIRYMEN.

It has become customary in some localities of the West for the managers of creameries to get together their patrons and discuss matters of mutual interest. Sometimes two or three creameries are interested, especially if they be all under one management. These small meetings are frequently more effective than are large ones, as the speakers are freer in their remarks and get down to the problems that are continually coming up for solution. Such meetings make it possible for the butter maker or manager to get better acquainted with the patrons of the factory and find out a good many things that are bound to work to his advantage, in his efforts to hold his milk makers.

Nature is supposed to be infallible, yet it gave the rooster a comb, but no hair.

GRIPPE HURT KIDNEYS.

The lingering results of La Grippe remain with the kidneys for a long time. They suffer from over exertion and the heavy drugs of Grippe medicines. Doan's Kidney Pills overcome this condition.

AURORA, NEW MEXICO.—I received the free sample of Doan's Kidney Pills which I ordered for a girl nine years old that was suffering with bed wetting, and she improved very fast. The pills acted directly on the bladder in her case and stopped the trouble. J. C. LUCERO.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH.—My husband received the sample of Doan's Kidney Pills and has taken two more boxes and feels like a new man. He is a fireman on the Grand Trunk R. R., and the work is hard on the kidneys. Mrs. Geo. GIFFORD.

PLINY, W. VA.—The free trial of Doan's Kidney Pills acted so well with me, I wrote Hooff, the druggist, at Point Pleasant, to send me three boxes, with the result I have gained in weight, as well as entirely rid of my kidney trouble. My water had become very offensive and contained a white sediment and cloudy. I would have to get up six and seven times during the night, and then the voiding would dribble and cause frequent attempts, but, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills, they have regulated all that, and I cannot praise them too much. DESTROYED THE SOUVENIR.

King Edward's recent visit to Edinburgh recalls the last former visit made by an English king—that of George IV., in 1822. Among the first to go out to the royal yacht was Sir Walter Scott, to present the king with a silver star, the gift of the ladies of Edinburgh. Sir Walter remained in conversation with the king for an hour and in the exuberance of his loyalty put into his pocket, as a relic, a glass from which the king had drunk some wine. Then the author shortly afterward sat down thoughtlessly and crushed the glass to pieces.

To the housewife who has not yet become acquainted with the new things of everyday use in the market and who is reasonably satisfied with the old, we would suggest that a trial of Defiance Cold Water Starch be made at once. Not alone because it is guaranteed by the manufacturers to be superior to any other brand, but because each 10c package contains 16 ozs., while all the other kinds contain but 12 ozs. It is safe to say that the lady who once uses Defiance Starch will use no other. Quality and quantity must win.

The North Pole Farce.

Sir Clements Markham, president of the Royal Geographical society, strongly deprecates the costly expeditions which the various nations sent out in rivalry without any system of co-operation. He considers future north pole expeditions as worthless; useless for geographical purposes; useless from the naturalist's point of view.
