GAY TIME FOR CADETS.

Thanksgiving Exercises Attended by Many Visitors--The Various Events.

Thanksgiving was a distinct success. There were pretty girls and home folks; and the fellows who didn't have these had boxes to console them, as the present sick list well attests. The weather did its part, certainly; the football team was all right; the battalion was in good, snappy shape; the dance was simply dandy and fine. There never were so many people here before; even "Dad" Lamson could not find places to put them all.

the plain mount from the rear stunt practiced in the acrobatic troops in the United States Cavalry. Another star stunt in team work was Cadet Sergeant Mann's vault and mount to stand on the off horse.

On Thursday morning a salute of thirteen guns was fired in honor of Congressman James A. Hemenway, and on Friday morning a review of the battalion of cadets was tendered him. The corps acquitted itself in a way to elicit considerable ington ever witnessed a prettier or more unique sight.

Cadet Captain Jaquith led with Miss James. Others in the figure were Cadet Captain De Prez with Miss Webb, Cadet Captain H. Bays, Miss Starr, Cadet Lieutenant F. Bays, Miss Woolen, Cadet Lieutenant Doggett, with Miss Vogelsang, Cadet Lieutenant Young with Miss Lamson, Cadet Lieutenant Deming with Miss Hemenway, Cadet Lieutenant

CULVER MILITARY ACADEMY RIDING HALL.

Single rooms were turned into veritable dormitories, and every bed had at least one occupant for each slat. An early rising lady guest beat a horrified retreat from the office, when she found one gentleman snoozing peacefully on the office desk, and two others on the grand piano. Guests who asked for a room with bath on the parlor floor, were assigned to neighboring farm houses, with a half-mile walk to the hotel for breakfast. But no one complained; it was too jolly a crowd to be bothered by such a little thing as a lack of room in which to sleep. Altogether, there were one hundred and fifteen visitors; as for the boxes, Walter stopped counting these when they overflowed from the store room into the front office.

We will recount briefly some of the things that happened.

FOOT BALL PARTY.

The cadets of the first team were entertained by Major and Mrs. Gignilliat at their quarters on Wednesday evening. A game of football, somewhat different from the regulation game, yet quite exciting, was indulged in during the evening. The winners were Miss Wilson and Cadet Madero. The prizes were presented to them in a graceful little speech by Capt. Brookfield. Refreshments were chicken salad, cheese straws, sandwiches, ice cream and cake. Foot ball player cups filled with candy were presented as souvenirs. Those present were Mrs. Starr, Mrs. Matheson, Misses Starr, Wilson, Fauvre, Burnside, Butt, Anderson, Woolen, Cadets Bays, H., Bays, F., Cavanaugh, Hunter, Burnside, Hanlon, Buckingham, Knight, Heinly, Larrabee, Humphrey, Madero, Capt. Brookfield and Edwards.

MILITARY EXERCISES.

On both Thursday and Friday mornings the cadets of the troop gave an excellent exhibition in rough riding. Hunter and Gruet made a clean vault of four horses, breaking previous records. The mount to stand from the rear, shown in the Thanksgiving performance, is not only a new feature at Culver, but is a distinct improvement on praise from both Mr. Hemenway and the many visitors. One of the most enthusiastic spectators of the review was a gray-haired Colonel of the Civil war. In the well set-up ranks in which stood his grand-son there was no jaunty young cadet who stood more erect than this old warrior, Col. James Patchell. An ounce of lead in his body, scarred with many a wound gained in his country's service, and with some seventy years behind him, he was a striking illustration of the inability of time to destroy the effects of real military training, or to deface one whit the stamp of the true soldier. The kindling of his eye, and the smile of approval when the cadets marched by, meant that he considered them soldiers too, and he has seen enough soldiers to make him a pretty competent judge.

The wall-scaling, considering the short time in which the cadets have been practicing, was excellent and Capt. Thomas, the instructor, is to be congratulated.

The graded drill of the four companies on Friday afternoon resulted in the following grades: A Co., 75; B Co., 71 2-7; C Co., 76 1-7; D Co., 72 5-7.

THE DANCE.

Red and white was the decorative color scheme, and it could not have been prettier. The many pennants, too, were a pretty feature. The opening was heralded by the roar of a cannon outside; simultaneously a football dropped to the ball room floor; a myriad of red and white lights flashed into existence; the music started, and so did the dancers in the opening figure, a curtsy and bow to the chaperones, and the column was formed. Exactly how they did it would be tedious explaining, but in a few minutes the dancers, with strips of white bunting marched into a pretty fair representation of a gridiron. The football team lined up and ran through the field, the orchestra obligingly changing to double time. Then the girls left their beplumed partners, and took the red-sweated champions for an entrancing promenade beneath arches of clashing swords. No ball room in brilliant Wash-

Craig with Miss Wheaton, Cadet Lieutenant Locke with Miss Helm, Cadet Lieutenant Morehouse with Miss Schrader, Cadet Lieutenant Wood, J., with Miss Burnside, Cadet Lieutenant Westphal with Miss Kenyon. The grand march followed, and was concluded by the distribution of programmes. These appropriately bore a picture of the football team, with their maroon jerseys in natural colors.

The Old Gym contained that night the elements of a brilliant party that many a grand ball room might feel proud to have on its floors. Strikingly handsome costumes contrasting pleasingly with the gray and gold of cadet uniforms, and the exhilarating music of a splendid orchestra added their part, but the grace and beauty of the girls on the floor was the crowning feature: lucky cadets, that so much beauty should have responded to those little engraved cards with the red flag embossing; congratulations to the senders who were thus rewarded.

When "The Star Spangled Banner" was played at three o'clock and dancers and spectators stood in salute to the national air, it seemed all too early to close this delightful evening; and when the music changed to "Home, Sweet Home," and then sweetly and softly died away, there ended one of the prettiest parties that Culver has ever known.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS ITEMS.

Bruce, who was on the side next to the train, saw it first and jerked the line which checked the horses or all might have been killed. He was thrown on his face bruising his nose and arm. The others received similar but lighter bruises. The train stopped, backed up and took them on to Knox.—North Bend Correspondent.

FIFTY-EIGHT TO NOTHING.

Culver's Foot-Ball Season Closes Triumphantly.

Thursday's game, which marked the close of the season, was witnessed by an unusually large crowd of visitors, and was a very pretty one to look at. There was never a moment when the visitors really seemed to have a ghost of a chance although, excepting the Wabash team, none has looked so formidable during the preliminary practice.

Culver won toss and chose to kick, Armour to defend the west goal.

Hunter kicked over and the return was stopped upon the five yard line. Armour made the distance on first down but were forced to punt on the third following, recovering the ball on a fumble. They soon had to punt again and this time Culver didn't drop it. Bays, F., turned right end for thirty-five yards, first down and was downed outside. The ball was punted in and Culver dropped the ball. The visitors punted third down. Culver hammered straight down the field and Knight went over for the first touch down. Goal kicked.

The ball went to the fifteen yard line and Armour's man was downed in his tracks.

Third down they punted. First down Barrett went through right tackle thirty-five yards and touched down. Goal missed.

Hunter sent the ball to the five yard line and the return was twenty. Third down was a punt and Barrett blocked the ball, falling on it. Culver soon lost the ball on a fumble. Armour made but little gain and punted. Armour took a brace and held almost immediately to loose the ball on a fumble and Knight touched down. Goal kicked.

Armour kicked to the ten yard line and Knight ran it back twenty. Burnside made twenty-seven on a quarter-back run. Culver fumbled. Armour punted and Knight ran the ball back to its starting point. Steadily Culver forced Armour down the field until with a foot to go, Bays F., hurdled and touched down. Goal kicked.

Armour kicked to the twenty yard line and Burnside ran it back twenty-five. Armour soon got the ball on downs. They fumbled second down and it was Barrett's ball. Culver was held twice and Hunter punted fifty yards and the ball was downed as caught. Time was up on second down. During this half Culver scored a safety making the score 25-0.

SECOND HALF.

Armour kicked to the twenty yard line and Barrett ran it back twenty. Armour got the ball on a fumble and punted immediately. Culver smashed down the field and Bays H., touched down. Goal missed.

THIRTEEN ARE KILLED IN MINE

Gas Explosion Brings Death to Many at Bonanza, Ark.

Fort Smith, Ark., special: Thirteen miners were killed and great damage was done by an accidental explosion of gas in a coal mine at Bonanza, Ark., twelve miles from this city. At nightfall only six of the victims had been recovered. The explosion occurred at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. There were about 175 men in the various shafts at the time. All escaped without injury except the thirteen who were employed in entry "K," the scene of the explosion. The force of the explosion was terrific and timbers were torn from the walls of the passages for several hundred yards. It is thought that the gas was accidentally ignited by a miner's lamp. The miners who escaped, with the aid of others summoned from nearby shafts, immediately set about clearing the passages in the hope that some of the thirteen entombed men might have survived the explosion.

MUD FROM LAKE IS VALUABLE

Expert Says Fuel May Be Had From an Iowa Tract.

Des Moines, Iowa, special: A mud lake covering 180 square miles in Hamilton county promises to furnish to this state 22,000,000,000 tons of fuel. Edward Atkinson of Boston, Mass., who was employed to visit the county and submit plans for draining the land, has reported that he believes the mud is of untold value. It contains, he says, large quantities of carbonaceous matter. If allowed to stand, he says, it will form itself into a great coal bed. He believes it is similar to the mud in the meadows of Massachusetts and says it may be used for fuel by extracting the water and drying thoroughly. A company may be organized to prepare the mud for the market.

Grand Rapids, Mich., dispatch: The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, 60 years old, were burned to death in a fire which consumed their home. The couple lived alone outside of the city limits. There is a strong suspicion that the fire was accompanied by a murder and suicide. The Smiths had not lived happily together, and only last Saturday Mrs. Smith told a neighbor that she was afraid of her husband; that he had threatened her, saying "If it were not for the law I'd murder you." Smith also had told this neighbor that he intended to get rid of his wife.

SECOND PLACE FOR UNCLE JOE

Illinois Congressmen Start a Boom for Vice Presidential Honors.

CANNON IS NOT IN ACCORD

Speaker Has Vigorously Criticized the Senate and Has No Desire to Be Compelled to Preside Over Deliberations of the Upper Branch.

Washington dispatch: Some members of the Illinois congressional delegation are hard at work booming Speaker Cannon for the vice presidential nomination. Illinoisans are claiming to have a mortgage upon the second place, and insist all that remains is for them to select the candidate. The Illinoisians, however, consider the field open, and have many reasons to advance in support of the argument that the vice presidency should be given to them.

Cannon Objects. "Uncle Joe" is doing nothing to deprive the state of the honor of furnishing the tail to the ticket. In fact, he is willing to put his shoulder to the wheel and labor as industriously as any of his colleagues, but when it comes to encouraging his candidacy he is up in arms. He is perfectly content with the speakership. From his point of view the honors of that office are the highest that could possibly be bestowed upon him. Given his choice between the speakership and the vice presidency, he would not hesitate a moment in selecting the former.

At Outs With Senate. Although the nomination may be forced upon him, Speaker Cannon will do all he can to escape the punishment of being compelled to preside over the senate. During his long career in the house, Mr. Cannon repeatedly and vigorously has criticized and condemned the senate, and he is just now in a little tussle with the upper branch of congress over the adjustment question.

WARE TO RESIGN

Washington special: It can be announced that Eugene F. Ware, commissioner of pensions, will retire from office in November of next year and return to the practice of law in Kansas.

Mr. Ware's decision to resign is the result of his long-felt dissatisfaction with the nature of the duties of his office. Mr. Ware declines, however, to admit that he has any intention of resigning. Ex-representatives Richard Whiting Blue and Samuel W. Peters of Kansas have been mentioned in connection with the successorship to Mr. Ware.

ELECTRIC WEIGHING SYSTEM

Washington special: To secure for the docks of the port of New York a system of electric weighing machines that will reduce the cost of weighing cargoes from 20 cents a ton to less than a cent a ton, was the purpose of the Washington visit of J. S. Clarkson, surveyor of the port of New York. The new machines will cost about $3,000 each, but Mr. Clarkson maintains the new system would pay for itself in a short time. Mr. Clarkson says the weighing apparatus now being used is of the ancient type known as steel-yards.

HOUSE WILL NOT ADJOURN

Washington dispatch: It can be stated on the best authority that the house will not adjourn. Speaker Cannon expects to have his committee slate made up next Monday or Tuesday. The estimates from nearly all government departments are complete and ready for the appropriation committees. He is therefore resolved that the house will proceed with business just as if it was a regular session.

tees early next week. The announcement of the committees will be for the convenience of the speaker rather than to expedite the transaction of business. He is subject to more or less annoyance while the committees are under consideration because of the importunities of friends of aspiring members. It has been determined by Speaker Cannon, after conference with his party leaders, that the extra session will not adjourn until noon Dec. 7, and that with the fall of the gavel ending the extra session the regular session will begin.

REINSTATES CLERKS

Washington dispatch: The civil service commission has found that Miss Anna Dreyer, former clerk in the St. Louis postoffice, and Andrew McGrew, former clerk in the treasury there, were illegally discharged by Postmaster General Payne and Secretary Gage, and has ordered their reinstatement pending the filing of definite, specific charges. Miss Dreyer and McGrew brought charges against Postmaster Baumhoff, which were sustained, and he was discharged by the president. Then Miss Dreyer and McGrew were discharged for conspiring against Baumhoff. Neither was given opportunity to make defense.

Party of Railroad and Mine Officials Were in the Coaches, Which Were Passing Through a Deep Canyon—Strikers Said to Be Ugly.

Scofield, Utah, special: An attempt was made by striking Italian and Finn coal miners to roll a boxcar down the railroad tracks leading through a deep canyon through which a party of railroad and mine officials were coming. The attempt was prevented by the militia, and several arrests were made.

One of the sentries at the mines near Scofield was fired upon from a house from which a red flag had been displayed until taken down by the militia. The culprit was not caught. An ugly feeling seems to be growing rapidly among the strikers.

GUARD THE MINES

Increased Military Force is on Duty at Cripple Creek.

Cripple Creek, Col., dispatch: The military force in this district has been increased and a close guard is maintained at all the large mines that are being operated with nonunion men. Nine of the men who had been confined at Camp Golfeld since last Sunday have been released, but several new arrests have been made and there are still ten prisoners in the bull pen, including C. G. Kennison, Sherman Parker, and W. F. Davis, members of the Union Stock company.

The full facts regarding the attempted wrecking of the Suburban, Florence & Cripple Creek train on Nov. 17, have been disclosed. It appears that a detective in the employ of the railroad company was one of the three men who removed the spikes and fishplates from a rail. The other two men, it is alleged, were Charles McKinney and Thomas Foster, who are under arrest.

ONE MAN CONFESSES

It is said that McKinney, when confronted with the detective, confessed his share in the plot under promise of leniency. Two agents of the railroad were in hiding within twenty-five feet of where the crime was being attempted.

These men were heavily armed, but did not shoot, for to have done so would have endangered the detective's life. Foster's friends assert that he will be able to establish an alibi.

Although General Sherman Bell declared that he had information of a plot to blow up the state house and assassinate Governor Peabody and himself, Governor Peabody said that he had not heard of any threats or plots of that nature.

MINERS' OFFICIAL IS ARRESTED

Telluride, Col., special: Guy Miller, president of the Telluride Miners' Union, No. 63, Western Federation of Miners, has been arrested and placed in the county jail with seven other union men. The charge against Miller has not been made public.

Diamond-Studded Belt Cost $10,000 and Goes for $2,900.

New York special: The diamond-studded belt presented to John L. Sullivan when he was at the height of his fistic career in 1887 was sold at auction to J. Rosenthal for $2,900. The belt is said to have cost $10,000. On either side of a solid gold plate, on which is engraved the presentation inscription, are large and small diamonds. Pictures of the one-time champion in various poses adorn the belt, some in raised metal and others in photographic print. The belt is supposed to have gone through almost as many vicissitudes of fortune as has its former owner and many of its stones are missing.

DESTROY CONTENTS OF POUCH

Letters Are Torn So as to Obliterate the Addresses.

St. Louis, Mo., dispatch: A mail pouch that was rifled near Oelwein, Ia., has been received at the office of Chief Postoffice Inspector Dice. The pouch contained several hundred letters and had been cut open and the contents rifled. Money orders and checks amounting to $10,000 were left. Nearly all the letters were torn or mutilated in such a manner that it will be impossible to forward them to their destinations. The sack was seen intact at St. Joseph and was found rifled at Oelwein.

MESSMER IS TO HEAD MILWAUKEE DIOCESE

Appointment of the Green Bay Prelate to Be Archbishop Meets With Favor.

Rome cable: The report that the congregation of the propaganda has decided to propose to the pope the appointment of Bishop Sebastian Gebhard Messmer of Green Bay, Wis., as archbishop of Milwaukee in succession to the late Archbishop Katzer is confirmed.

Milwaukee, Wis., dispatch: Roman Catholics here are much pleased with the selection of Bishop Messmer of Green Bay to succeed Archbishop Katzer. Father Augustin Schinner, administrator of the Milwaukee diocese, who was prominently mentioned himself for the succession, said:

"I expected the selection of Bishop Messmer all the time. I have no doubt he will be welcome here. He is a man of great ability."

H. J. Desmond, editor of the Catholic Citizen, said: "The appointment of Bishop Messmer is not surprising. He may be looked upon as logically in line for such promotion. From personal acquaintance I have learned to esteem him highly. He is notably interested in all those movements which aim at the moral, intellectual and social improvement of the laity. In those matters where there are chances for difference of opinion Bishop Messmer always has been classed with the conservative element."

"It is a very good choice," said Very Rev. Joseph Rainer, rector of the Seminary at St. Francis. "Bishop Messmer is a learned man and a progressive one. While he has not received unanimous support in this diocese, the difference of opinion has not been vital, and all will be pleased at the selection."

FEAR THEY HAVE LOST $100,000

Investors Call Mining Scheme a Get-Rich-Quick Affair.

Kankakee, Ill., dispatch: Financial circles of this city have been stirred by developments in a mining scheme of the Gironx Consolidated Mines company, in which local capital is interested to the extent of $100,000. Although the company is headed by Joseph L. Gironx, until recently general manager of Senator Clark's copper mines at Jerome, Ark., it is characterized as a "get-rich-quick" concern by the Kankakee investors, who are mostly business and professional men. Several days ago Gironx transferred his local notes and mortgages to his wife. Later it was alleged that the company had misrepresented affairs. Several attachment suits followed. The mines said to be owned by the company are in Mexico and Nevada. Gironx was formerly a resident of Bourbonnais, a suburb of Kankakee.

More Than a Hundred Animals Are Deserted by Cottagers.

New York special: James E. Welsh was considerably shocked when he received word from Mount Tabor, N. J., that at least 100 cats had been left behind by cottagers who had spent the summer there. Mount Tabor is a Methodist camp meeting ground, and as he is a Methodist he could not understand how the good people could go away and leave their pets to starve and die. With visions of wealth and unnumbered cats he started out, accompanied by his gas machine, shotgun, long-haired catching net and various other paraphernalia which belong to an animal taker. When Welsh arrived he found cats in all stages of starvation, but they were wild and ferocious, and, do the best he could, he was only able to bag a baker's dozen.

SOLDIERS TO SUBDUDE COWBOYS

Detachment Sent to Drive Them Off Montana Indian Reservation.

Missoula, Mont., special: Word was sent to Fort Missoula by Major W. H. Smead, Indian agent on the Flat Head reservation, that the Indian police were unable to cope with Joe Merrigan and his band of cowboys, who have 1,500 head of stock on the reservation and refuse to pay the grazing charges. Major Forey, Captain Maxie and fifty men on orders from Washington, left for the scene of the disturbance and will run off the herd. The hurried march gave rise to all kinds of rumors, among which was one that a deputy sheriff had been shot and two or three Indian policemen wounded.

When the meal was over Dr. Dunwiddie arose, and, as was his habit, returned to the house up the road to see to his patient's condition, and found that Johnson had slept through the night scarcely stirring, still as a baby. Things were going well to help on his recovery; and though it would be months before he could be able to get around, yet there was every hope and every reason to expect him to recover.

Johnson moved and opened his eyes slowly as Dr. Dunwiddie entered the room. Vacant, hollow eyes were, with a stare in them which startled Dolores.
Dr. Dunwiddie was at his side instantly, but without a sign of haste. "He is used to your voice," he said to Dolores, without turning his head. "Speak to him, Miss Johnson. Say anything to him—anything you are in the habit of saying."
Dolores came no nearer the bed; she stood quietly at the window, and asked in her ordinary voice, slow, uninterested: "Are you ready for breakfast, father?"

"The hollow eyes closed weakly for a moment. Mrs. Allen entered at that moment with the beef tea, and Dolores, taking the bowl from her hand, crossed over to the bedside. Johnson again opened his eyes with the old expression of distrust and dislike in them. She bent over him, and Dr. Dunwiddie raised his head a trifle gently on his arm as she put the spoon to his lips with steady hand and unmoved face. But when she offered him the second spoonful he closed his eyes and endeavored to turn aside his head, with the sullen expression on his face. Dolores bent over the bed and held the spoon steadily to his lips, as she said, in a tone that thrilled her listeners by its slow, almost stern sweetness:
"Drink this, father."

He obeyed like a child, and she fed him carefully according to the doctor's orders. Dr. Dunwiddie watched her movements wonderingly. Where did this girl get her womanly tact? Surely not from this man upon the pillows, whose face was indicative of nothing but a brute nature.
It was an exquisite morning. Mrs. Allen was with the doctor, there was no need of her there, and she went out and sat on the door-stone in the shadow of the pines. Leaning her head against the door-post her hands fell to her lap. Her eyes were intent on the mountain with a sort of hungry look in them. It had meddled so with her life—or was it the fate of the stars that crippled her father and prevented his going to court where the men were eager to have him, like the vulture on the mountain. She knew little of fate or law, but it seemed to her that the one possessed her, and the other was waiting, waiting in a terrible silence for her father to go to prove the malice prepense in the laming of the mare—a waiting that appalled her by its dogged patience.

What her neighbors thought she did not care; she had lived without them; she could still live without them. Had she known how roughly they used her name she would scarcely have understood their meaning. Her mind was too pure and too high above them to comprehend the evil they would lay at her door. Lodie, among them all, was the only kind one. Not one of the women had been near her, but the women never did come; she cared nothing about that, only there was something in her life that had not been there before and that called for companionship for the sympathy of other women. But Dora would come, she thought, with sudden brightness in her heart—Dora and her uncle, and young Green as well, until—until the truth were known. Then, what would they think or say—Dora and her uncle, who were honorable people, the nurse said, and young Green who had been so kind to them—so kind? Did he not risk his life for her father? Yet even then he must have known about the mare and by whom the deed was done. Did he not tell her himself that the man who had committed such a dastardly deed should suffer the full penalty of the law? And the law had a terrible significance to her.

Lodie came slouching up the path, tall, gaunt, angular, in the full glory of the sunlight. He removed his rusty never before seen, said, with quiet authority:

"Be quiet, Johnson. Not another word. Charlie, go into the other room. Mrs. Allen, help me at once; his excitement has brought on hemorrhage."
As Green closed the door behind him he caught a glimpse of Johnson's face that he never forgot. It was pallid as death and ghastly with the hollow eyes. Horror and amazement mingled in his face as he noiselessly crossed the room and passed out of the house through the pantry at the rear, without disturbing the two on the door-step, and struck out among the pines beyond toward the summit where the winds were soft and the sky blue and still. He saw nothing around him clearly; his thoughts, in a tumult, were in the little bare room of the house below where the strong man, who had just been brought back from death, lay in his repulsive fit of passion; and with the mare in the stables at home, the beautiful, intelligent animal, ruined forever through a cowardly act of malice; the two blending so closely that he could not separate them, mingling with the stray words he had heard in the town of other and darker things than he had dreamed.

Then, like a touch of peace, came the thought of the two girls on the door-step, two such lovely, womanly girls, each with a noble soul, yet totally unlike, the one whose life had been set in among the grand mountains touched with their grandeur and nobility of thought and life, and to him the purest, most tender of women, the other proving her tenderness through all her life in the heart of the big city with its temptations and its evils.

His face ghastly in its pallor. "That, Dolores," he said, gravely. "After the rest of 'em'll be glad of it, too." She watched him shuffle down the path and along the road to the tavern. Presently two light hands were laid on her shoulders, and a soft, low voice exclaimed:
"Dolores, Dolores, I am Dora. Look up and tell me you are as glad to see me as I am to have found you. I am so glad, Dolores."

Dolores' fingers closed tightly as she looked up at the girl before her—the cousin who had come to claim her, the only one in all the world who had ever loved her since Betsy Glenn died. She was a small little lady, and neatly dressed from the wide-brimmed white hat with its drooping gray plume, to the blue ribbon around her throat, and the soft gray costume and delicate gloves. Her eyes were wide and gray, dark with excitement, soft with a touch of tears; her mouth was gentle and sweet, but the lips were colorless; her small oval face was white as death, save for a faint trace of feverish color upon either cheek.
Dolores knew nothing of the nature of Dora's disease, and to her the girl was a picture—something to look at and love and admire, but too fair to touch. Her eyes grew luminous as she looked at her. The brown eyes and the gray met. Dolores' lips parted in one of her rare smiles that transformed her face for the moment; her eyes were like wells of light, beautiful, unfathomable.
Young Green was standing behind Dora. During the time he had known Dolores never had she looked like that; it was a revelation to him of what she was capable. She did not see him; she saw nothing but Dora, and it was uncommon for women to show such marvelous depth of soul to another woman. Dora saw no one but her cousin. They did not kiss each other; they offered no endearment common to women. Dora sat down on the doorstep beside Dolores.
"I am so happy!" she said.
Dolores said nothing. Her eyes talked for her.

Young Green, with a feeling that he had no right to be there, passed unnoticed around to the rear of the house and entered through the low door of the pantry.
Dr. Dunwiddie greeted him with a smile, but he did not speak, as he was busy with the bandages on Johnson's arm. On preparing one of the bandages he stepped aside, and at that moment Johnson slowly opened his eyes upon young Green's face. He was conscious, and his eyes had the old look in them excepting that it was intensified by their hollowness. His face grew ghastly in its pallor, then livid with fury; the close set eyes under the narrow forehead were wild and bloodshot; instinctively the fingers of his right hand were feebly clenched as he endeavored to lift himself from among the pillows, unmindful of the pain, as he cried in a hoarse whisper, between panting breaths:
"Ye hyar? Fool, with yer—larin'—an' yer books. I swear I'd get even—with ye—fer to—ef ever—ye—kem hyar—agen, a-settin'—my gal up—ter think—herself better'n—her feyther a-terrin' her head—with yer—foolin' an'—yer soft words—as though—ye'd look et—a—smith's darter—fer—no good—"

Young Green started to speak, but Dr. Dunwiddie, with a stern expression on his face which his friend had never before seen, said, with quiet authority:

"Be quiet, Johnson. Not another word. Charlie, go into the other room. Mrs. Allen, help me at once; his excitement has brought on hemorrhage."
As Green closed the door behind him he caught a glimpse of Johnson's face that he never forgot. It was pallid as death and ghastly with the hollow eyes. Horror and amazement mingled in his face as he noiselessly crossed the room and passed out of the house through the pantry at the rear, without disturbing the two on the door-step, and struck out among the pines beyond toward the summit where the winds were soft and the sky blue and still. He saw nothing around him clearly; his thoughts, in a tumult, were in the little bare room of the house below where the strong man, who had just been brought back from death, lay in his repulsive fit of passion; and with the mare in the stables at home, the beautiful, intelligent animal, ruined forever through a cowardly act of malice; the two blending so closely that he could not separate them, mingling with the stray words he had heard in the town of other and darker things than he had dreamed.

CHAPTER XVIII.
Dolores and Dora.
"And you found Uncle Joe when every one else had given up the search," said Dora, softly, her eyes full of loving admiration. "How brave you are, Dolores. I would never have had the courage to do it, but then I'm not brave anyhow."
"Why shouldn't I do it?" Dolores asked quietly, turning her large eyes wonderingly upon her companion. "He is my father."

"Of course he is," Dora replied, with a nod of her bright head, untying the broad ribbons of her hat and swinging it around upon her knees. "Papa is my father, too, Dolores Johnson, and I love him; but I would never have enough courage to go off on a lonely dangerous mountain to find him if he were lost—no not if I had a dozen men to go with me. Suppose you had slipped over one of those terrible ledges Mr. Green told us about, or walked right off into a chasm when you thought you were in the path? No, I couldn't do it, ever, but I wish I were brave like you."

Dolores said nothing, because she had nothing to say. Dora must be a coward if she would not do that for her father; any of the women of the settlement would have done the same. "Mr. Green told us all about you," Dora continued, "and I wished so much to get at you, but you would not come to me, and I could not come to you, and then the rain—oh, 't rain it raineth every day,' and I began to think I would have to wait a week at least, and the things Mr. Green told me about you when he returned from here made me all the more restless and anxious to get at you, you poor dear."

"He saved my father," Dolores said, presently. She said it slowly, as though she were forced to say it.
Dora nodded.
"I know it," she said, "the man who came over for the doctors told us about it, but you saved him more than anyone else. Dolores, and you cannot deny it. They'd never have thought of going over there to look after the deputis gave up the search had it not been for you."

COLLECTING FARES IN CANADA.
Method Is Practiced, But Hardly Up to Date.
"There are all kinds of ways for collecting fares on the street cars, but one that I saw recently in Canada was certainly unique if not particularly up to date," says G. M. P. Holt. "I was taking a ride on the four-mile trolley road running between Sherbrook and Lennoxville, in Canada. The first thing that met my eye on entering the car was the sign, 'Nothing changed over $2.' I don't see exactly why they were so particular about the matter, as it didn't strike me that the class of passengers they were carrying was that which makes a practice of carrying 10-dollar and 20-dollar bills only."
"But what tickled me the most was the fare-taking that occurred soon after. The conductor came down the aisle carrying in his hand a curious looking arrangement that resembled a large, square 'dark lantern.' It had a handle attached which the conductor grasped, and when he shoved it toward my face and said 'fare' I perceived that it had a glass front and a slit in the top where you dropped your nickel or ticket, and then you could see the same go down to the bottom."—Springfield, Mass., Union.

Pittsburg Industries.
The Pittsburg district has more industrial superlatives than any other similar area on earth. It has the greatest iron and steel works, the greatest electrical plants, the largest glass houses, firebrick yards, potteries and at the same time is the center of the world's greatest coal and coking fields.

DAILY ROUTINE AT WASHINGTON
Doings of the Senators and Representatives at the Capitol.

WITH NATIONAL LAWMAKERS
Condensed Reports of the Happenings in Congress Compiled by Experts for the Benefit of Busy Laymen—Outline of Proceedings.

Wednesday, Nov. 25.
The Senate completed the appointment of committees for the Fifty-eighth Congress, adopted the motion providing for the reconsideration of the vote by which the Newlands joint resolution for the annexation of Cuba was referred to committee, and made the Cuban reciprocity bill the unfinished business. The first speech on the merits of the Cuban bill was made by Mr. Carmack (Dem. Tenn.), who opposed the bill and said nothing less than the general tariff revision would give the relief needed. There was further debate between Mr. Hale (Rep. Me.), Mr. Teller (Dem. Cal.) and Mr. Newlands on the Newlands resolution, in which Mr. Newlands further outlined his views and Mr. Hale deprecated all agitation on the subject. Mr. Teller declared Cuba was in no sense a dependency of the United States. After a brief executive session the Senate at 2:16 p. m. adjourned until Friday.
The house was not in session.

Friday, Nov. 27.
After a brief session the Senate adjourned until next Tuesday. The business was confirmed almost exclusively to the introduction of relief bills. Senator Daniel introduced a bill appropriating $5,000,000 for the erection of a patent office east of the capitol, the site to cost $600,000. The Cuban reciprocity bill was laid before the Senate, but as no one expressed a desire to speak upon it Mr. Cullum at 12:22 p. m. moved an executive session, and three minutes afterward the Senate adjourned.
When the House convened a message from the President transmitting correspondence relative to Panama additional to that forwarded to the House in response to a resolution was received. Mr. Payne (N. Y.), the Republican floor leader, then moved that when the House adjourn it be until next Tuesday. Thereupon Mr. Williams (Miss.), the minority leader, and Mr. De Armond (Dem., Mo.) twitted the majority upon dilatory tactics and asked for a definite statement of party policy. In the course of his reply Mr. Payne said the Republicans would hardly care to take up the question of tariff revision and disturb conditions on the eve of a presidential campaign. He also said the time was not opportune to consider reciprocity with Canada. There was a party alignment on the vote adopting the motion to adjourn over, the Democrats voting against it, the vote being 81 to 63. Mr. Patterson (Dem., Tenn.) introduced a bill to abolish slavery in the Philippine archipelago and to abrogate the treaty with the Sultan of Sulu. Mr. Hepburn (Rep., Iowa) introduced the pure food bill which was reported to the last Congress by the committee on interstate and foreign commerce. Mr. Parker (Rep., N. J.) introduced a bill providing for a national military park commission to consist of five civil war veterans and two from the confederate army and a bill restoring the army canteen. Adjournment was voted at 1:20 p. m.

GET MURDERERS AFTER BATTLE
Chicago Car Barn Bandits Are Captured Near Miller's Station, Ind.

DESPERATE FIGHT TO ESCAPE
Two Detectives Are Wounded, One Perhaps Fatally, by Youthful Criminals, and Brakeman Is Shot Down in Cold Blood by One.

Chicago, dispatch: In the wood and on the sand hills of northern Indiana all day Friday Harvey Van Dine, Peter Niedermeier and Emil Roeski, the three youths wanted for the car barn murders and robbery and for half a dozen others of the most desperate and bloody deeds ever recorded in the criminal annals of Chicago, fought their last fight.
Surrounded at break of day by seven detectives, who had trailed the boy murderers to their hiding place in a dugout at Wilson, Ind., four miles from Miller's station, the crime-riddled youths blazed their way to brief liberty in the fiercest battle Chicago detectives ever experienced, probably fatally wounding Detective Joseph Driscoll and seriously wounding Detective Matthew Zimmer.

Leave Trail of Blood.
The red-letter day of their tragic career thus began, the bandits, leaving a trail of blood across the snow-covered dunes and hills of Lake County, proceeded to East Tolleston, murdered John Sovia, a Pennsylvania railroad brakeman, seized a work train and fled to a cornfield, where they made their last stand against a frenzied posse of farmers, railroad laborers and special detectives.
After a brief struggle here Niedermeier and Van Dine surrendered, while Roeski made his escape and dragged himself, wounded, bleeding and exhausted, through the woods to Aetna, Ind., a mile and a half distant, where he was captured by a band of volunteer man hunters.

Bandits' Victims.
In their effort to escape the desperadoes shot the following men:
Joseph P. Driscoll, 32 years old, detective at Sheffield avenue station, shot by Niedermeier through abdomen.
Matthew Zimmer, 40 years old, detective sergeant, shot by Van Dine through arm and through left cheek.
L. J. Sovia, 23 years old, of Tolleston, Ind., brakeman on Pennsylvania line, killed by Niedermeier.

FIGHT WORKMEN WITH WATER
Kenosha People Use Hose Against Telephone Company's Employees.
Kenosha, Wis., dispatch: Water from four lines of hose in the hands of citizens drowned out the telephone workmen. They retreated ignominiously and made no further attempt to set poles. The Kenosha Independent Telephone Company took advantage of the day to attempt to run its lines on Ashland avenue. The property owners protested to no avail. Then they filled up the post holes and threatened the workmen with violence. The men persisted in the face of threats, so the citizens resorted to the water cure, which was effectual.

FATAL MISSTEP LEADS TO DEATH
Murder and Suicide in Wake of Operation on Washington Woman.

GUILTY MAN TELLS OF CRIME
Discovers That He Is Under Suspicion, Writes Letters Confessing His Share in the Matter, Then Murders His Wife and Kills Himself.

Washington special: As a sequel of the death of Miss Margaret Hale on Monday last at a sanitarium at Brentwood, Md., from the results of an operation, and the arrest of Dr. Joseph V. Ohlendorf, head of the institution, on a charge of murder, Robert F. Hale killed his wife and then committed suicide. Hale left letters confessing he was responsible for the girl's death and professing repentance.
Miss Margaret Hale and Robert Hale were both employed in the government printing office. They were not related, but passed as cousins.
Gives False Certificate.
When Miss Hale died at the Brentwood sanitarium Dr. Ohlendorf issued a certificate giving the cause of death as heart disease. The local authorities, however, considered the circumstances suspicious and Chief of Police Sylvester of Washington was asked to investigate, and as a result Dr. Ohlendorf's arrest followed.

About midnight Wednesday the local authorities received information of the arrest of Ohlendorf and two detectives called on Hale, who was known to be an intimate friend of the dead girl, for information about the case. He was in bed at the time, but dressed and received his visitors. He denied that he ever had been anything but the best of friends. He was cool and collected, and the detectives left under the impression that Hale was innocent.
Pians Murder and Suicide.
Thursday morning about 6 o'clock Hale put on a bath robe and went to the front door for the morning paper. He read the account of Miss Hale's death, including a paragraph stating that an employe of the government printing office was under suspicion and soon would be arrested. He put the paper aside, went to his desk, and wrote several letters. Then he took a drink of whisky, and, getting his revolver, returned upstairs.

Two hours later a neighbor passing by the house noticed the house dog sitting on the door steps howling dully. The neighbor entered the house, and in a bedroom on the second floor found the bodies of Hale and his wife. There was a bullet wound in the woman's left temple and Hale had the top of his head blown off. He had lain down in bed with his wife, drawn the covers over both, and then, with one arm free, killed her and then himself.
Tells of His Disgrace.
From letters left by Hale it is thought when he was downstairs he intended to kill himself only. One note reads:
"I have disgraced myself; I have disgraced my wife, the dearest, best and noblest woman in the world. I write this that all may know she is not to blame in any way, shape or manner for my perjury. She is too proud; too noble, and too honorable. If I had done as she always wanted me to, the end would not be as it is—death and disgrace for me."

In a letter to his wife Hale wrote:
"To Fannie: You are the best woman in the world, but unfortunately you married a degenerate. Think kindly of me sometimes, as there are few virtues that are mine. Have my remains cremated that there may be neither name nor remembrance of me. You will find all your papers in the tin box. Collect the insurance from the National Union and Equitable Life."
In view of the notes it is supposed that when Hale entered the bedroom his intention simply was to kill himself, but the sight of his wife and the thought of the revelations unnerved him and made him desperate. He was a Mason, 52 years of age, and had some property.

A NEW CHURCH

The New Evangelical Church at Mishawaka Dedicated Last Sunday.

Rev. L. Newman, Formerly of Culver Evangelical Charge is Pastor.

Last Sunday the handsome new church of the Evangelical Association at Grove and Elizabeth streets Mishawaka, was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies. The dedication sermon was given by Bishop Breyfogel, of Reading, Pa. The new church is one of the handsomest houses of worship in Mishawaka. It is constructed of hollow concrete cement block, tuck pointed red, giving the appearance of stone. The building is 56x48 feet, is 30 feet high and to the top of the spire is 70 feet. The auditorium is 36x48 feet, has a bowled floor and is fitted with antique eban circular pews of handsome design. The seating capacity is 400. It is lighted by electricity and heated by a furnace. The church represents an expenditure of about $7,000.

PASTOR OF THE NEW CHURCH.

Rev. L. Newman, pastor of the First Church of the Evangelical Association, is what may be termed a self made preacher of the gospel. He was born on a farm near Logansport, May 5, 1859. He attended the country schools, but never had the opportunity of attending high school or a theological seminary. He studied the scriptures at home and prepared himself for the ministry when not performing farm work. At the age of 23 he passed the ministerial examination and was licensed as a probationer in the Rochester circuit of the Evangelical Association. He was ordained in 1895 at Dayton, O., and served the Rochester circuit four years, the limit of the church; the Culver circuit four years and the Webster mission two years. Mr. Newman was remarkably successful and popular in all these places and many converts were led into the church under his preaching.

In April of the present year Mr. Newman was sent to Mishawaka as a successor to Rev. Tracy. Since his arrival in the city there have been 21 accessions to the church.

Mr. Newman was united in marriage in 1880 to Miss Malinda Hoffman. They have two daughters, one being organist in the church. The family reside at 209 North West street.

Mr. Newman is very popular among his church people and citizens generally. He is considered a good pulpit orator and an earnest pastor. That he is not afraid of physical work has been shown during the construction of the church, for he has labored on the building in every way possible saving for the congregation hundreds of dollars. Mr. Newman is of pleasing personality and address and is in close touch with the ministers of the city.—So. Bend Tribune.

Attention Farmers.

Why remain in the north and stay in doors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go south where you can work out doors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and, besides, have to be protected from the rigors of winter by expensive shelter.

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer, and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materials known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor, in general farming, fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the south than in any other section of the Union.

Life

Liable to Paralytic Stroke.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Gave Me New Life.

"This is to certify that I have used Dr. Miles' Remedies quite extensively, especially the Restorative Nervine, which has done wonders for me. Six years ago I had nervous prostration and in the three years ago, at which time I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I kept taking it for six months and have taken an occasional dose during the last two years. I am practically a new man and feel that I have been given a new lease of life. I used to have very bad attacks of stomach trouble but since using the Nervine I can eat most anything I want with impunity. I was examined in Omaha by a noted German doctor three years ago. He told me I was liable to a paralytic stroke any moment; that my whole left side was badly affected. That was just before I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. My work for two years and a half has been very trying on my nerves. I am a presiding elder, traveling my districts at the rate of ten thousand miles a year, preaching on an average of five times a week, besides many business meetings, and the multitudinous cares of my work in general. Thanks to Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine I have been gaining in flesh despite this hard work until now I weigh a hundred and ninety-six pounds, nearly twenty pounds more than in all my life. I preach Nervine wherever I go to those afflicted with nerve, heart or stomach trouble."—Rev. M. D. Myers, Presiding Elder, Free Methodist Church, Correctionville, Ia.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES.

The second year is doing well in spelling.

The ninth year began the study of Scott's Lady of the Lake.

After being absent a week Nellie Duddleson is again in school.

The furnace has been re-emented and it is hoped it will not smoke now. It has not the few days used since.

Pearl Myers, Hazel Bagley, Harrison Bagley, Orpha Wilson and Rea Smith have recently entered the high school.

The programs on Wednesday of last week were interesting. Quite a number of parents favored us with their presence.

The township teachers' institute will be held next Saturday at the high school. In the forenoon the life of Lincoln and part of Scott's Ivanhoe will be discussed.

Most of the teachers of Culver and Union township attended the Marshall County Teachers' Association at Plymouth last Friday and Saturday. There were some good papers read and good discussions. Saturday forenoon was possibly the most interesting session. Supt. Carr, of Anderson, gave the annual lecture and aided much in the discussion of various topics. He emphasized strongly the need of instruction and example of morals and manners in the school. The small attendance was the most discouraging feature of the association.

Traveling Grocery Stores.

A "traveling grocery store" in the shape of a car load of goods from a wholesale house visited Bourbon last week and supplied the farmers and towns people with the goods. The Bourbon papers say that while some of the goods were furnished at lower prices than by home merchants, the prices through out averaged higher. These traveling concerns have not visited Bremen as yet. Our people have long since found that the home merchants treat them on the square, give them honest weights and measure and good goods at the right prices. Besides the home merchants buy whatever they have to sell, accommodate them in many ways, and do their full part in the development of the country, so that there is a general disposition to stand by the home dealer.—Bremen Enquirer.

THE CITIZEN.

FOUR DEAD.

Poison in Sardines—The Miller Family at Pulaski Dead.

Frank Miller and his brother Jacob, of Pulaski, died last Tuesday after a day's illness of ptomaine poisoning. Mrs. Frank Miller and her father, John Johns, lingered in the throes of death until Thursday evening when they passed away.

The family on last Friday ate from one can of sardines, which were purchased at a local store, and while each noticed a bitter taste, the brothers partook liberally of the fish, while Mrs. Miller and her father ate but sparingly of that food. The children, who were at school, on their return tasted the fish but spit it out without swallowing, thus providentially escaping fatal consequences. The effects of the poison at first were not particularly hurtful to either of the ill-fated ones, who were apparently unconscious of the poison's insidious work. On Saturday the brothers were around the farm and in town, but they experienced a dizziness, their walk was unsteady and their vision affected. Not until Sunday was a physician called, when he discovered the true nature of the alarming illness that had seized them, but they were then beyond human relief. With swollen tongues and choking breath they gradually sank into unconsciousness until one by one death relieved them.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller leave two small children, whose great loss they scarcely yet realize.

The funeral of the brothers and Mrs. Miller were conducted from the Pulaski Catholic church last Saturday morning. The remains of Mr. Johns will be taken to his former home in Noble county for interment.—Winamac Democrat-Journal.

Fads and Frills

A Handsome Coat.

Long tuckered coats are much worn both with skirts of the material and as general wraps. This one is essentially smart and suits both purposes equally well, but, as illustrated, is made of soft gray broadcloth with trimming of the new Parisian lamb bread in gray and white, and makes part of a costume. The tucks give the long line that mean slenderness and grace and the collarless neck is peculiarly well adapted to wear with a fur scarf or pelerine or with any similar addition to the outfit. The sleeves are both new and smart and can be worn over those of the waist without danger of rumpling. The quantity of material required is 3½ yards 44 or 2¾ yards 52 inches wide.—May Manton in Chicago Record-Herald.

Girl's One-Piece Apron.

An exceedingly pretty apron is shown here in an original design, made up in lawn and edged with embroidery. The apron is in one piece and slips on over the head. This means a saving in the labor of making, for there are no buttons and buttonholes and no back opening. A narrow belt is worn with the dress and if desired, pockets might be added.

Aside from the simplicity of the design and make any one can see at a glance how easily a garment of this kind could be laundered, the front and back being the same. It requires only a few minutes' time to make the garment and as little time to freshen it up by laundering.

Lawn, dimity, cross-barred muslin, gingham and batiste are suitable materials.

Pretty and Serviceable.

The common custom of using rush mats under hot dishes as a protection to a housewife as giving an air of daintiness to a prettily set dining ta-mat with an opening in the center, into which you can slip a piece of asbestos cut the shape of the linen, only a trifle smaller. When the mat needs laundering, slip out the asbestos and launder as dummies.

Flaring Turbans Stylish.

In turbans, the canotier, or boat shape, still holds first place, though some round and box shapes are seen. These hats are made in quilted silk, in chenille or braided felt, in beaver, in velvet, in fur.

Little bouton roses will hold the popularity they have gained this summer and the most famous of the Parisian milliners show a liking for the mingling of these tiny roses in a very deep red and tea rose, or yellowish pink shade. One black velvet hat with high crown and broad brim has prim little roses in these two colors grouped around the crown like a high dog collar, with a cluster of the flowers at the side, from which starts one black plume curling over the brim and down over the shoulder.

Fashions of the Hour.

All reception frocks will be cut very full, lying on the ground all round and showing any amount of stitchery. The intricacies of dressmaking are greater than ever and, despite the attempt at apparent simplicity, the enormous amount of detail in every frock worthy of note is such that only experts can undertake it with any hope of success. The woman who can afford two or three superior frocks has a good investment, because there is so much work in them and the materials are so sumptuous that they really ought to last a longer time than usual. Fashions of the hour are costly, and it is useless to pretend they are not.

Proper Dance Frocks.

Very finely accordion-plaited frocks are de rigueur for dances; and the fichu and wide berthe of lace and indeed of ribbon, are both popular. A delightful vieux rose crystalline frock for a young girl had both bodice and skirt finely plaited. Round the hem were medallions of cream Brussels applique, outlined with black velvet leaves. The accordion-plaited bodice was inserted with straggling applique leaves of the same fell over the shoulders. The arm was bare at the top, while the full sleeve was put on just above the elbow and held in place by black velvet leaves, which looked particularly well on the white arm.

Fashionable Fabrics.

Among the fashionable fabrics zibeline and the rough mixtures are the best materials for street suits. The variety shown in these materials is almost endless. Zibelines come in so many colors and combinations that they furnish material for severe tailor suits, for dressy wraps and for elaborate costumes. Then the novelty zibelines are seen in spotted and "nub" effects, stripes, irregular figures and pepper and salt patterns.

Petticoats of Paris.

The flannel petticoat is seen once more at the leading lingerie shops in Paris. It is beautifully shaped and trimmed with frills of silk, often inserted with medallions of coarse silk embroidery. In most cases these are lined with thin silk. As a matter of fact, flannel is a lovely fabric if it is only treated properly, and nowadays the manufacturers produce it in the most beautiful colorings. Such garments entirely upset all our old ideas of the red flannel petticoats of our grandmothers!

Pretty Dressing Sack.

Attractiveness is as important a factor as comfort in the selection of a dressing sack, and both these details were considered in designing the one shown here, in figured material and having a prettily shaped collar and deep cuff in plain colored material. It takes no more time to make up a pretty dressing sack, and the material costs no more, than to make up a common looking garment—and how much more satisfaction there is in feeling that you have a pretty, neat sack of the latest design.

The design shows a tucked yoke in front, thus enabling one to make a dainty, pretty design without the large collar. The sack may be worn with or without the belt. For a neat little dressing sack that is nice enough for afternoon wear as well as for a morning sack this is a good model to follow.

Made up in figured Japanese silk or challis, and using white or plain colored material for collar and cuffs, one fashions a most charming design.

Cashmere, albatross, fleece-lined material and silk are suitable to the mode.

Latest in Collars.

Cape collar of cream crepe de chine bands, joined by fagoting and bordered with silk fringe. The neck is finished by an application of ecru lace.

Belt buckle of silver with colored stones.

Fashion Tips.

Silky broadcloth is used for separate waists. Wood fiber lace in two tones trims the rough fabrics. Soft shades of gray and white have won my lady's favor. The plainest serge gown is wonderfully touched up by collars and cuffs of oriental embroidery.

Study the Soil.

The study of soil physics is receiving every year more attention. That it will pay us all to devote more thought to this subject is obvious. It is a remarkable fact that, though chemistry is an old science, the educated nations of the past have paid little attention to their soils, but have ruthlessly impoverished them. This was doubtless due to the fact that only a few people understood the sciences necessary to reveal the characteristics of the soil, and the few that did were unable to obtain any enlarged audience among the scattered tillers of the ground. So the old, wasteful methods went on. But now we have a fuller enlightenment and every farmer can become to some extent a soil physicist. In fact, many of our farmers are developing quite an aptitude for the study of soils, and this is one of the very hopeful signs of our day.

The old way was to follow one method of tillage on all soils. The modern way is to adapt the process to the soil, and this manifestly requires great variation.

Among the most important factors of the study of soil physics is soil drainage. Whether it will be possible to drain a soil and obtain good results will depend on the composition of the soil and of the subsoil. Every farmer should study his soils till he knows the composition of his soils in every part of his farm. He should know the relation of sand to clay in each lot. This is not a hard matter to understand, when we have recourse to the books and appliances devoted to the subject. Education is cheap in these days. It is worth something for a man to know the absorptive quality of all his soils and to understand just how rapidly the moisture is drawn up through his ground. Such a man will sometimes find out that he has certain soils so heavy in clay that after the top dries up the movement of water upward is stopped, as evaporation is checked. When a man gets down to the percentages of things he finds that clay ground of a certain purity in clay will produce absolutely nothing. That he can add some sand to such soil and produce the grosser feeding plants, such as cabbages, and that he can add still more sand and produce the more delicately feeding plants, like potatoes.

A little investigation may convince him that the cause of his poor yields of grain are the heavy texture of his soils and that it will pay him far better to attempt to grow cabbages and the like than to try to grow grain. Many a man is trying to grow on his soils plants totally unfitted for those soils. He thinks, perhaps, that the soil lacks in fertility, when the only trouble is that the mechanical construction of his soil is at fault. Nature has created plants adapted to almost every kind of soil, barring too pure clay and too pure sand. Manure is frequently wasted in large quantities on such land, in an attempt to make it produce what it is not mechanically fitted to produce. Some soil is porous to such a depth that the leaching loss of fertility is very great, and the best results can be obtained only by growing deeply rooting plants.

Applying Farmyard Manure.

By an experiment conducted at the Ottawa Experiment Farm, and which lasted over a period of years, it was proved that an equal weight of fresh stable manure and of well-rotted manure, applied to all the principal crops of the farm, gave practically equal results, a slight difference being in favor of the fresh manure, says James McFadyen. It is a great mistake to believe that manure wastes to any extent when spread upon the land. Unless there is considerable fermentation, there will be very little of the valuable elements escape by evaporation. I do not recommend too heavy an application at one time. We seek to have it divided, so that it will cover all the land every second year, if possible. If the manure is reasonably short, so that we may have it incorporated into the surface soil with the disc or spade harrow, cultivator or gang plow in the spring, and to about the same depth as we wish to sow our grain, its indirect value to the growing crop is greatest. Farmyard manure is the most natural and perfect plant food available, and it has indirect results that no commercial fertilizer can give, because it adds to the soil so much vegetable matter, so much humus, by which all clay and sandy soils especially are greatly benefited, though not just yet available as plant food. But whenever there is a decay of vegetable matter there is always a certain degree of heat formed. We see this very plainly in the manure heap. Then let us have this neat formed in the soil, that the growing plants may derive some benefit from it, and the soil will be made more mellow, crumbly and porous, because of the heat and moisture.

The Corn Kernel.

The corn kernel is naturally divided into seven parts, each part being in bulk about the following percentage of the whole: Tip cap, 1.20; hull, 5.47; horny gluten, 11.61; horny starch, 37.15; corn starch, 21.26; tip starch, 13.71; germ, 9.59.

Gen. Dick Takes a Chance.

In the lottery of seats Gen. Dick of Ohio has been one of the most unfortunate members of the house, having never yet secured a desirable seat. At the beginning of the Fifty-seventh Congress he was one of the very last Republicans called, and had to take the seat in the extreme southwest corner, the alternative being a seat in the "Cherokee strip" on the Democratic side. Later in the session he discovered that a fairly desirable seat on the Republican side was vacant, and after watching it for a week or so applied to the sergeant-at-arms.

"If no one else with a prior claim wants that seat," he said, "I think I'll take it." "What! take that seat!" the sergeant-at-arms fairly shouted. "Why, man, there isn't a member of the House would have it. Two members who have occupied that seat have died within the past year."

"I'll take it," promptly responded the Ohio member. "I had a blamed sight rather be dead than sit where I am." He took the seat and survived that session and the next—Washington Post.

Reads Like a Miracle.

Friarspoint, Miss., Nov. 30.—The Butler case still continues to be the talk of the town. Mr. G. L. Butler, the father of the little boy, says:

"The doctor said my boy had disease of the spinal cord, and treated him for two months, during which he got worse all the time. Finally the doctor told me he did not know what was the trouble. The boy would wake up during the night and say that he was dying. He would be nervous and trembling and would want to run from the house, saying he saw ugly things which frightened him. After we had tried everything else, I read an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills as a cure for Nervous Troubles. I purchased some and used them until he had taken altogether eight boxes when he was sound and well with not a single symptom of the old trouble. This was some months ago, and I feel sure that he is permanently cured. We owe to Dodd's Kidney Pills all the credit for his restoration to good health."

A Hand to Win With.

One of the suppressed stories of the recent municipal campaign has just come out, and it is related as showing a readiness not generally credited to leader Charles F. Murphy, says the New York Times.

A district leader whose nationality inclines him to superstition seriously protested to the leader of Tammany Hall against the name of the mayoralty candidate being printed "Geo. B. McClellan" on campaign banners.

"There be thirteenth letters in it that way," said he. "Sure, an' ye'd better spell out the George."

"Thirteen!" exclaimed Murphy.

"Why, that's a full suit and every one of them trumps!"

THANK PE-RU-NA FOR THEIR RECOVERY AFTER YEARS OF SUFFERING.

Miss Muriel Armitage, 26 Greenwood Ave., Detroit, Mich., District Organizer of the Royal Templars of Temperance, in a recent letter, says:

"I think that a woman naturally shrinks from making her troubles public, but restored health has meant so much to me that I feel for the sake of other suffering women it is my duty to tell what Peru-na has done for me.

"I suffered for five years with uterine irregularities, which brought on hysteria and made me a physical wreck. I tried doctors from the different schools of medicine, but without any perceptible change in my condition. In my despair I called on an old nurse, who advised me to try Peru-na, and promised good results if I would persist and take it regularly. I thought this was the least I could do and procured a bottle. I knew as soon as I began taking it that it was affecting me differently from anything I had used before, and so I kept on taking it. I kept this up for six months, and steadily gained strength and health, and when I had used fifteen bottles I considered myself entirely cured. I am a grateful, happy woman to-day."—Miss Muriel Armitage.

Peru-na cures catarrh of the pelvic organs with the same surety as it cures catarrh of the head. Peru-na has become renowned as a positive cure for female ailments simply because the ailments are mostly due to catarrh. Catarrh is the cause of the trouble. Peru-na cures the catarrh. The symptoms disappear.

greatest exhaustion. This is a very common sight and is almost always due to pelvic catarrh.

It is worse than foolish for so many women to suffer year after year with a disease that can be permanently cured.

Peru-na cures catarrh permanently. It cures old chronic cases as well as a slight attack, the only difference being in the length of time that it should be taken to effect a cure.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The Alaska Boundary Question.

In the December Pearson's, Mr. Richard V. Oulahan gives an account of the grounds for the recent dispute between the United States and Canada, regarding the boundary line of Alaska, and its final settlement by the Alaska Boundary Commission. This Commission, composed of three Americans, two Canadians, and one Englishman, eminent jurists and lawyers all met in London last September to adjust this dispute. Mr. Oulahan's article presents both sides of the question, showing the grounds each country had for its contention.

HUMOR OF ELECTION TIMES.

Unusually Neat Retort Credited to a Spellbinder.

Congressman Slemph of Virginia told a story the other day which he says is an illustration of the retort courteous in a Virginia campaign.

According to Mr. Slemph, there were two spellbinders in a backwoods district named Patrick Cauley and "Old Man" Adams. They were engaged in joint debate, and Cauley, a hot-headed Irishman, had spoken pretty plainly his opinion of his opponent and the party to which Adams belonged.

When Adams rose to reply, he said slowly:

"The honorable gentleman's speech reminds me of a story about a farmer friend of mine back in the woods. It was in the days when there was a brand of bacon known as 'Cincinnati bacon,' because it was made in that city. The makers used to press all the grease out of this bacon and then soak it in water, so that its appearance was not changed.

"This friend of mine bought a wagon load of it, and a few days later a neighbor asked him how he liked it.

"Well," said the old man, "it looks all right and it weighs all right, but when you come right down and try it out by frying, there is more or less fuss and sputter and sizzle and less grease than any doggoed bacon I ever seen."—New York Times.

Some People Are Lucky.

Some people make an intelligent study of food and get on the right track (pure food) others are lucky enough to stumble upon the right way out of the difficulty just as a Phila. young woman did.

She says: "I had suffered terribly from nervous indigestion, everything seemed to disagree with me and I was on the point of starvation when one day, I happened to run across a demonstration of Postum Food Coffee at one of the big stores here.

"I took a sample home and a sample of Grape-Nuts as well and there tried them again and found they agreed with me perfectly. For months I made them my main diet; and as the result I am restored to my former perfect health and can eat everything I want to.

Burnside, Bays, F., Knight, D., Hanlon, Heinly.

The following old cadets were back for Thanksgiving: H. R. Fitton, H. M. Nichols, R. S. Wile, H. P. Pope, Harry Lamson, A. J. Pope Lawrence Younger, and Carey Lull. J. W. Major Gignilliat has just received through the courtesy of Col. Larned, professor of drawing at West Point, a splendid set of drawings executed by the U. S. M. The following are the men to whom Capt. Edwards will award "R S". thirty-five yards and was downed so hard he was out of the game. Smith D. fifteen yards. Barrett twenty-five to touch down. Goal kicked. Score 58-0.
The cold weather was responsible for most of the fumbling. Otherwise Culver played a faultless game. The lack of team work on the part of Armour was largely responsible for the large score as they had weight and experience enough to have given Culver a hard tussle. They did at times as it was, and then was when Culver got in her good work. No individual starring but swift heady team work opened up a hole and the linesmen ran their heads off almost to keep up with the procession. Had Culver had any such form in the Wabash game as she had in Thursday's contest there would have been no disputed score. The team was simply invincible. And now, how about the future.

Why Won't Brees Make Good.

Nobody knows except Brees, and Brees won't tell. Sweeping claims in the newspapers don't make champions, unless the claimer makes good when the claims are challenged. Culver, referred to in The Chicago Tribune as the "strongest academic team in the West," and the only Academy ever defeating a team that has defeated one of the Big Nine, has challenged Brees to make good her championship claims, at any time and at any place; and Brees with the print in the Chicago and St. Louis papers hardly dry on her claims and her offers to justify them, declines to meet Culver. Why? This little rooster down in Missouri has been crowing loud enough to be heard a considerable distance. Why won't he make good when an Indiana rooster, with a good game pedigree, answers the challenge? Is it all crowing and no spurs down at Brees?

Colored Society Event.

Miss Lena Hester, who has for some time past had charge of the culinary department at the Commandant's quarters, entertained her friends at the mess hall and janitorial staff at a birthday party Saturday evening last. The popular game of "Si Pinkham" was indulged in, after which refreshments consisting of chicken salad, orange ice, cake and candy were served. The popularity of the fair hostess was attested by thirty-seven handsome presents.
