This is a beautiful and exceedingly attractive place, founded by a gentleman whose name it bears, "Culver Military Academy," has accomplished much, and is doing great good for the many manly fellows who are here. There are about 300. The officers and teachers are highly cultivated, Christian gentlemen, at least four of them being old graduates of our University. We were at the Batalion inspection this morning and enjoyed the precision with which every movement was made.

The boys seem well pleased with their work and all look happy and healthy. The location is splendid, buildings substantial and everything is done for the comfort and efficient training of the young men. The horses used in the riding hall number 50 and are all jet black. and each name begins with A. as Allah, Abe, Accident, Alone, Alabama, Africa, America, Asia, etc.

This section is not near so beautiful for situation as ours, but while nature has not been so layish in spreading before the view such grand mountain scenery, the people are more zealous in keeping nature's work attractive. Roads are far better, farms and country homes look well kept and the people seem happy and prosperous.

Around here land sells from $80 to $150 per acre and very little is on the market. Few negroes are seen on the farms. The owners and sons do nearly all the farm work, and the wife and daughters do the house work. The town of Culver with only 600 inhabitants has better sidewalks and cleaner Poplar Grove Church, Monday afstreets than we can boast of; no shameful alloy ways like the ones in the rear of our postoffice. A short time since a man who had served a sentence in the Ohio penitentlary, declared that to send him back meant death by tuberculosis. Inquiry was made. The head physician announced that the building was a hotbed of consumption. A prominent official stated that a ten years' sentence was equivalent | This is my change. I like to putter to condemning a man to death-by pulmonary fuberculosis.

Dr. S. A. Knopt, the greatest American authority on tuberculosis, was invited to visit the penitentiary. Without hesitation he pronounced it the his inimitable chuckle, "to make a most unsanitary penal institution be had ever seen.

The output of many prisons is enough to convince of the truth of the above statements. The sallow complexions, weakened bodies, sunken chests of the ex-convicts, all are the stamp of murderous prison hygiene. All the rules for combatting the great white plague are reversed. For sunlight, they are given darkness; for fresh air, a damp, musty atmosphere; for out-of foor life a weary in-door grind, a large part spent within the narrow confines of a single cell.

Is it not enough to take from a fellow being his liberty and appropriate the labor of his hands, without forcing him to live under such conditions? Dare the state continue to condemn any of its citizens to such a death? Shall the sentence in a public prison cease at its legal expiration, or shall the poor victim continue to suffer from its dire effects until he fills a consumptive's grave?

In this day of Anti-Tuberculosis agitation, it would seem that public institutions, whether asylume, schools, prisons or assembly balls should be the first to be brought under proper sanitary conditions. Ir is useless, hopeless to educate the masses in regard to the care and prevention of tuberculosis and then maintain at public expense botheds for the development of consumptives to be finally turned loose in the community.

The Tonic Use of Water.

Cold water is the universal tonic. The best time for taking a cold bath for tonic effect is just after getting out of bed in the morning, when the body is warm. A cold bath should never be taken when one is chilled. One not accustomed to cold bathing should begin carefully with water not colder than 75 deg. F. The bath should be short, not to exceed a minute, and for feeble persons not more than fifteen or thirty seconds when applied to the whole surface. The bath should be immediately followed by rubbing and exercise for fifteen to thirty minutes. There should always be good reaction; that is, the whole surface, including the hands and feet, The should quickly become warm. bath should not be followed by languor, headache, lassitude or other indications of excessive reaction. When one experiences such symptoms, the indication is that the bath was too long or too cold or not followed by sufficient exercise. For feeble, very young or elderly persons the water used should rarely be lower than 65 degrees to 75 degrees in winter. The bath should be taken in a suitably warmed room.

Slaughter of the Innocents.

A study of statistics reveals the terrible fact that nearly one-bulf of ad the human beings born into the world dle before the age of five years. In the city of Statten, Germany, nearly one-half-473 out of every thousanddie during the first year of their lives. In Ireland, Scotland, Norway and Sweden, where children are given better care, have more outdoor life, and more intelligent attention is given to feeding, the number of deaths is only one-fiftieth as many as in the city of Statten, being ten per cent.

It rests me because it gives my mind a complete change. For, whether you believe it or not," he added, with poem and to make a chair are two very different things.

"Now, if you think you can learn something from me, learn that, and remember it when you are a man. Don't keep always at your business, whatever it may be. It makes no difference how much you like it. The more you like it, the more dangerous it is. When you grow up, you will understand what I mean by an 'outlet.' Every man must have an 'outlet'-a hobby-that is, in his life, and it must be so different from his regular work that it will take his work into an entirely different direction. We doctors call it a 'safety valve.' and it is. I would much rather," concluded the poet, "you would forget all that I have ever written than that you should forget what I tell you about having a safety valve."

For a Cold.

The daily cold bath is one of the most effective safeguards against taking cold. Of equal Importance is abundance of fresh fir in the sleeping apartment. Upon the first symptoms of "a cold," deep breathing exercises in the open air or in a well ventilated room should be taken at frequent intervals. In nearly all cases where this simple treatment is taken, there will be no further deselopment of the cold, and the symptoms will disappear. A doctor connected with a large institution for children recently tried this method upon the inmates with surprising suc-

NO MORE HEADACHE

GENERAL WEAKNESS AND PEVER DISAPPEAR TOO.

How a Woman Was Freed from Troubles That Had Made Life Wretched for Many Years,

The immediate causes of headaches vary, but most of them come from poor or poisoned blood. In anamia the blood is scanty or thin; the nerves are imperfeetly nourished and pain is the way in which they express their weakness. In colds the blood absorbs poison from the mucous surfaces, and the poison irritates the nerves and produces pain. In rhoumatism, malaria and the grip, the poison in the blood produces like discomfort. In indigestion the gases from the impure matter kept in the system affect the blood in the same way.

The ordinary headnche-cures at best give only temporary relief. They deaden the pain but do not drive the poison out of the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills on the contrary thoroughly renew the blood and the pain disappears permanently. Women in particular have found these pills an unfailing relief in headaches caused by auminia.

Miss Stella Blocker recently said: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did me a great deal of good. I had headache nearly all the time. After I had taken three boxes of these pills I became entirely well."

"How long had you suffered?" she was asked.

"For several years. I can't tell the exact date when my illness began for it came on by slow degrees. I had been going down hill for many years."

"Did you have any other ailments?" "I was very weak and sometimes I had fever. My liver and kidneys were affected as well as my head," "How did you come to take the remedy that cared you?"

"I saw in a southern newspaper a statement of some person who was cared of a like trouble by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My physician hadn't done me any good, so I bought a box of these pills. After I had taken one box I felt so much better that I kept on until I became entirely well."

Miss Blocker's home is at Leander, Louisiana. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists. Besides headache they cure neuralgia, sciatica, nervous prostration, partial paralysis and rheu-

W. A. Woodbury, of advertising fame, has a medical friend whose hair has long since deserted him. The doctor was feeling a baby's pulse one day, while the mother, aunt, nurse, and small brother watched in breathless silence. #### COFFEE HEART

Very Plain in Some People.

-New York Times.

A great many people go on suffering from annoying ailments for a long time before they can get their own consent to give up the indulgence from which their trouble arises.

A gentleman in Brooklyn describes his experience as follows:

"I became satisfied some months ago that I owed the palpitation of the heart, from which I suffered almost daily, to the use of coffee (I had been a coffee drinker for 30 years), but 1 found it very hard to give up the beverage.

"I realized that I must give up the harmful indulgence in coffee but I felt the necessity for a hot table drink, and as tea is not to my liking, I was at a loss for awhile what to do.

"One day I ran across a very sensible and straightforward presentation of the claims of Postum Food Coffee, and was so impressed thereby that I concluded to give it a trial. My experience with it was unsatisfactory till I learned how it ought to be prepared-by thorough boiling for not less than 15 or 20 minutes. After I learned that lesson there was no trouble. Postum Food Coffee proved to be a most palatable and satisfactory hot boverage, and I have used it ever since.

"The effect on my health has been most salutary. It has completely cured the heart palpitation from which I used to suffer so much, particularly after breakfast, and I never have a return of it against when I fles or land

NO JOY IN FORGETFULNESS

There was once a poor woman whose life had been such a bitter one that she wanted her memory taken away. He to whom she had given the love of her young heart had not fulfilled the promises of his youth; his weaknesses had developed into crimes, so that he was compelled to flee for his life; and the sons and daughters she had borne and brought up had repaid her care and kindness with neglect and abuse, and at last, one by one, had wandered far from her fireside. So the heart of the poor woman was broken, and she passed, a sad and desolate soul, down the dark valley of the shadow of death. She came at last to the dim river, and asked the boatman to take her over.

"This is the river of forgetfulness," said the boatman. "Will you stop and drink before you cross?"

The woman's face brightened and her voice was full of eager longing. "Yes," she said, "I will drink; I will forget then that my hopes have fuil-

"You will forget that you ever loved him," came the response.

The words seemed to stir a faraway memory. There was a long pause. Then the woman leaned forward to drink.

"I will forget that my little ones left my arms. I will forget how I wept for them in the darkness when they did not return at night. I will forget that they lost the right path and wandered away, never to return to me."

"Yes," said the boatman, "you will forget that you ever pressed them to your bosom, forget that you ever felt the tiny fingers wandering caressingly over your face. You will forget the visions you saw, the fond hopes you cherished as you used to rock them to sleep at night,"

The woman was not stooping by the river now; she had raised horself and was walking toward the boat.

"You may row me across," she said. 'I shall not drink of the waters of forgetfulness,'

Have you ever said, dear reader, in a moment of despair, "there is nothing in all my past to be thankful for?" Never say it again. Have you ever wished that you might drink of the waters of forgetfulness? Never wish it again .- A. B. Curtis.

Much Learned Through War

War is abhorrent, but it has at least tarmies on the war scene and describone innocent use, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. It is an efficient educator in geography. War teaches this branch of education with more interest and thoroughness than the most accomplished professor in his classroom and, on the other hand, it is urged by many eminent military men that an accurate knowledge of geography is necessary for successful warfare.

The art of war and geography are called "the handmaid of tactics and strategy." So important is the relation of geographical education to war that the London Times has opened its columns to the discussion of the subject. One of its correspondents, in true British fashlon, says that "to think imperially with any profit we must think geographically."

The technical importance of geographical knowledge in war and the war correspondence is one of the asimportance of "thinking importally" tonishing evidences of modern progmay not appeal to the American read- ress and of the development of the er, but there can be no question as to newspaper's function as a popular edthe educational value of the dis- peater. Every year it happens that the Kaiser tells this or that young officer whose dancing is not up to the mark to leave the ball until he has improved. The consequence of this strictness is that for weeks before the beginning of court festivities every regimental casino of the guards is turned into an officers' dancing academy. The older officers become dancing masters and coach their younger comrades in the particular dance practiced at court.

Cannot Reduce a Rate.

It is stated in Washington, that under the Townsend rate bill, if a rate is fixed by the Commission it cannot be lowered by a railroad. Should an emergency arise calling for a decreased rate, the railroads or shippers would have to appeal again to the Commission, there being polatitude allowed, whatever the circumstances. Hitherto a maximum rate has been the rule, but no such concession is made under the pro posed legislation.

THE DE LAVAL SEPARATOR CO. dolph & Canal Sts. | 74 Cortlandt Street Investigation of the Packers.

Very general interest has been manifested in the government investigation now in progress into the mode of conducting business by the large packers located in Chicago and clsewhere. Much has been written upon the aileged illegal and improper modes of business procedure connected with the packing industry; but it seems that so far no definite charge of any kind has been sustained and no proof of illegal or inequitable methods has been dis-closed to the public. While a wave of severe criticism of this great industrial interest is now passing over the country it might be well to remember that the packers have bad as yet no opportunity to make specific denial, the many indefinite charges of wrongdoing having never been formulated so that a categorical answer could be

The recent report of Commissioner Carfield, which embodied the results of an official investigation undertaken by the Department of Commerce and Labor of the United States, was a vindication of the Western packers, but this result having been unexpected altempts in many quarters to discredit it were made.

In view of the situation as it now stands, however, attention may properly be called to a few facts that owing to popular clamor are now being apparently overlooked. Fair treatment In this country has beretofore been accorded to all citizens whose affairs assume prominence in the public eye and some of the facts that bear upon the relation of the packers to the commerce of the country may at this time be briefly alluded to. It would be difficult to estimate the benefits gained by the farmers of the country resulting from the energetic enterprise of the packers, for whatever is of benefit to the farmer is a gain to the entire commerce of the country. And connected with their continuous aggressive work no feature perhaps has been more important than their efforts in seeking outlets all over the world for the surplus products of the farmer, Our total exports of agricultural products have gained but little in the past twenty years, and leaving out corn, the total of all other farm products was far less in 1903 than in 1891. But in packing house products there was considerable gain during this period, because an organized and powerful force has been behind them seeking new and broader markets.

Besides the benefits reaped by farmers on account of the enterprise and energy exercised by the packers in attaining commercial results by foreign trade, the great development in the manufacture of packing house by-products has added enormously to the value of all live stock raised in the United States. The waste material of twenly years ago, then an expense to the packer, is now converted into ar-ticles of great value, and, as an economic fact, this must correspondingly increase the value to the farmer of every head of cattle marketed at the numerous stockyards of the country. Let these facts be remembered while now it is so popular to regard the great packing industry as deserving of condemnation. At least it must be admitted that, so far, there is no adoquate reason for the almost unanimous bowl that may be heard every. where in the face of the Garfield report above alluded to which practically exonerates the packers from the obscure and Indefinite charges that have been for some time past made the subject of popular comment - American Homestead.

After eSeing His Bride of Four Months Commit Suicide, Young Farmer Presses Trigger of Shotgun With Stick and Joins Her.

Springfield, III., dispatch: The mistake of a young girl, a bride of four months, and its discovery by her husbond, who chose death in preference to separation which he believed inevitable and necessary because of his wife's wrong, caused Oscar Sims and his girl wife to enter into a suicide compact which they carried out Friday at their farm home near Virden, fifteen miles south of this city.

Side by side, within a few feet of the door of their home, the bodies of Sims and his wife were found by their neighbors. On a table inside the house two notes were found. In one the girl explained that she was about to die in atonement for the wrong she had done her husband, while the other, written by the husband, explained that he died because life was no longer worth living after he had found that it could not be lived with his wife.

Watches His Wife Die,

When neighbors, attracted by the report of a shoighn, reached the Sims farm, they found husband and wife lying side by side in front of their The girl was dead and her young husband died before he could be earried into the house.

The same shotgun killed both. The girl died first, her husband standing near and watching while she fulfilled her part of the compact. She placed the stock of the gun in a crevice, and standing so the muzzle of the weapon pressed against her left side, she pressed the trigger with a stick. The whole left side of her body was torn away by the heavy charge of shot.

After watching his wife die, Sims reloaded the gun, and setting it in the fence in the same way, only a few feet from where his wife's body lay, he stepped up to the muzzle of the gun and with the same stick used by his wife, pushed the trigger and fell with his left side mutilated as much as that of the dead girl.

The reason for this feeling was created by a little experience which befell him early in his public career. Imbucd with a full sense of his importance, he had the temerity to get upon his feet in opposition to a pending measure. Another Pest in Australia.

Victoria is the largest fruit-producing state in Australia. About ten years ago a few pairs of English starlings were introduced, with the expectation that they would help to keep down the insects that infest fruit trees. The birds have raised five broods a year and the few pairs have now become myrlads. The laws passed for their protection have been repealed and apparently futile efforts are being made to exterminate them, for they have become the worst enemy of the Australian fruit industry. All kinds of fruits, from the grape and strawberry to the apple and peach, have become their favorite food, and they save the farmers the trouble of harvesting. Brought in as a blessing, they are now a pest.

Heart

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure has made many hearts well after they have been pronounced hopeless. It has completely cured thousands, and will aimost invariably cure or benefit every case of heart disease, Short breath, pain around heart, palpitation, fluttering, dizzy, fainting and smothering spells should not be neglected. Take Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and see how quick you will be relieved.

It cannot make a new heart, but will restore a sick one by strengthening the heart nerves and muscles, relieving the unnatural strain, and restoring its vitality.

"It's vitality.

"I had a very bad case of heart trouble. For six months I could not more. Last July I was plowing corn and feeling bad all day; in the afternoon in plowing one row I had to lay down, or fall down, three times. My heart throubled as though it would burst through, and I had difficulty in getting my locath. I purchased a bottle of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and before I had need had of it I could lay down and sleep all night. Freviously I had to get up from five to ten times a night. I have taken several bottles, and my heart is as regular as clock work. I feel like a new man and can work considerable for an old man, 54% years old.

A Good Snggestion.

Mr. C. B. Wainwright of Lemon City, Fla., has written the manufacturers that much better results are obtained from the use of Chamberlain's Colie, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in cases of pains in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus by taking it in water as hot as can be drank. That when taken in this way the effect is double in rapidity. "It scems to get at the right spot instantly," he says. For sale by T. E. Slattery.

were out of town-well better late lacking in you, sir, since you did not than never." I finished with a shrug of the shoulder.

"Was there no post or messenger to send it by?" she questioned.

"I preferred to walt until I could see you myself-I wished to give it into your own hands," I said.

"Do you suppose I would allow any one to hold me to the few words scrawled upon that slip of paper? You must have strange ideas of women, sir, if you think they value their happiness so lightly?" she asked.

I did not answer her. Instead, I

"I give it up, that you may transfer It to one more worthy of you."

"Indeed, sir-more impertinence!" she cried in a disdainful manner. "Has someone also conferred upon you the office to pick and choose my suitors for me?" she asked, pertinently.

"Lady Felton, be not so scornful," I returned. "Since you are so loath to take the paper, I'll tear it up and so make an end of the miscrable busi-

I made a motion to do so.

"Nay, do not"-she stopped me with a gesture. "I would keep it as a memento of your magnanimity. So you give me to Cousin Raoul?"

With a light laugh the lady lowered the seroon from her face, and at the same time dropped into her natural voice. It was Rosemary Allyn!

With a bound I was at her side and had grasped her arm.

"What do you mean by this masquerading?" I demanded.

She gave out a saucy laugh. "Since you have given me to Cousin Raoul you have no right to question again.

"My God! Rosemary, do not trifle

'Had you any curiosity concerning "True," I replied dryly. "But you Lady Felton? Indeed, it certainly is want to see so famous a heauty, It would have been no difficult thing to have found out what I have just told you.

"I had none," I admitted, "Be my plea that I was too absorbed in Mistress Allyn,"

I bowed low before her.

"Listen!" she whispered, and held her hand up. "I thought so. It is my father. I dld not dream it was so late. He is coming here."

She ran to the candles and snuffed them out and was back at my side without a sound.

"Mary," he called at the door, and turned the handle. Seeing it was dark within-although I felt his cold gray eyes must penetrate the darkness of the corner where we stood like culprits, scarce breathing.

Then dooming all women to perdition he stumbled into another room. I felt the slight figure quiver with resentment.

"You must go," she whispered, " will let you out the side door."

She took a candle from one of the sconces and I lit it. I looked at her inquiringly as we stepped through an opening into a back hall.

"You must know, sir," she explained, "my father likes you not, in the position of sultor to his daughter's hand-he thinks to decide that question to his own satisfaction in glving me to my cousin Raoul Dwight but," she added proudly, "he has not taken in the reckoning the most important person-myself."

"Sweet Rosemary," I said, and would have taken her to my arms were to be with me in twenty minutes, and-so you are, thanks to me, not you."

She made a moue at me. She was adorable! but I was not to be deterred from my determination by her beau-

"You will tell me what you are doing here, at once," I said, harshly. "Once you deceived me by masquerading as a brother, and I shudder yet when I think of what might have been the consequences; now you would assume the character of Lady Felton-I will have no more play acting."

"Are you speaking to Lady Felton or Rosemary Allyn?" she demurely

"God's blood!" I cried, "You shall not trifle with me so."

But she went on.

"If to Lady Felton, she must needs order you from her presence. If to Rosemary Allyn-that is a different thing."

It was like tow playing with fireshe had tempted me too much-she was not to be resisted. I took her in my arms and bent her saucy head back while I kissed her on hair, brow, eyes, cheeks, and lastly mouth, where my lips would fain have lingered.

"Fie, sir!" she gurgled, struggling in my arms. "You have crumpled my new gown; 'tis but just home from Manton's."

I muttered something which condemned Manton to the infernal regions. I felt a ripple of merriment go through her form.

"You shall stay where you are until you tell me what I wish to know," I said. "The longer you delay the more rushed to assist me with his light. delighted I shall be."

"Release me and I will tell you," she pleaded.

"Pay toll first," I replied.

"Know, then, sir, what all the town knows, that I am called by baptism Rosemary Allyn, Lady of Felton," she

Then in sheer asionishment I let her slip from my arms. Alas, the bit of paper which should pave the way time; before I could fend the fellow for a reconciliation between my brother and myself was as nothing. We both loved the same woman! I of law were about me. I fought for wondered if Rosemary Allyn-Lady a time, but against odds. Felton-would cut the Gordian knot.

She saw my chagrin upon my face, and said:

Why, I only left you a few moments | followed her down the steps to the

"When may I see you again?" ! "Yes," she affirmed; "I believe you asked. "I must see you soon, I have much to tell you. I am calling at Lady Dwight's to-morrow morningcan you not arrange it so as to be there afterwards?" I insisted cagerly.

She thought she could be there, and after kissing her hand respectfully, I hurried the second time that night from her presence.

CHAPTER XVI.

"To-Night."

Although I had come out of Lady Felton's house by the side entrance, I went round to the front to summon my servant. I asked him if any one had entered the house while he waited there. He answered "Yes." and that the gentleman had questioned him rather sharply as to his business. He had told him that he was only looking for a stray wayfarer who might wish to hire him. Whereat my lord peremptorlly ordered him off. He had retired from the house but come back shortly. You see he was a fellow of discernment, and because of that quality I gave him an extra coin.

As I walked with my linkman toward the Blue Boar I felt that I was being followed. We had hardly turned into Holborn before I was pos-Itive of it. A follow brushed insolently past me and sought to catch a glimpse of my face.

"Quentin Waters, you are my prisoner," he said. He put a whistle to his lips and blew it shrilly three times. "Out of the way, sirrah," I cried, and drew my sword; meantime Pat

"Put it up, put it up," the fellow bellowed. "I have a warrant for your arrest signed by the King."

At these words Pat took to his long legs and made strides down Holliorn, The shadow of the law was too much for him, perhaps with cause. In his case and also in mine discretion was the better part of valor. I concluded to follow his example. I had not off for a few seconds to make the opportunity, his men, those bull dogs quaint my man with my destination." The fellows knowing they had me would consent to nothing. I was hustled into a coach, carried to Ludlow, and there locked in a putrid cell -a cell such as was used for criminals of the worst type.

An ignominious ending to a most lelightful day! An ending altogether imaccountable to me, "A warrant signed by the King!" the constable said and that was all he would say. Put not your faith in Princes, for when they promise most they do

I wondered how long it would take Gil to find out where I was hidden. I wondered for four days. The first day I paced my cell in varying moods. I damned that linkman up and down the length and breadth of England, that he had not waited long enough to learn where they were taking me so as to acquaint GII with the fact.

I tried in every way possible to bribe my jailor to send word to him, or at least to find out who had been instrumental in my arrest, and what I had been arrested for. It was of no avail. He would only say that he had his orders; I would soon know. The old hypocrite!

But what fretted me most was that I could not keep my word in three instances: to my lady, who would look for me, and conjecture as to what kept me from her; to the men who would await my coming back of Montague House-how they would jeer at my seeming cowardlee; and to myself, whom I had promised an interview with Lady Dwight. I was hurning to be rid of my news. My plans had been, after seeing Lady Dwight to send Gil on to Long Haut with the information to Lord Waters of another son.

When the day in which I was to see Rosemary and the others passed, calmed down. The following days I passed quite tranquilly awaiting developments, losing myself in dreams of Rosemary, quite the most profitable thing I could do, although it seemed sacrilege to bring my lady even in thought into so vile a place as this cell wherein I was confined. It was dank and humid, while loathsome insects with legs as many as centipedes crawled about. In a corner a window grated and barred hung, and through this the light of day filtered. I looked toward its faint beams, on this the fourth day (a beam however small and lean was preferable to the dark corners of this hole) and saw gliding in like a fairy elfin a butterfly. Poor wanton thing! Life must indeed have been monotonous that it should forsake light and joy, for darkness and pain. As I watched it, too bigh for me to reach, a stone was hurled through the grates in the window, and hit the luckless flying Insect, that twisted like a leaf in autumn down, down, while the stone rebounded from the wall of the cell to my feet.

It had a paper tied about it, and I hastened to pick it up, fearing my jailor might have heard the noise and come to see what it meant. I hid the paper and listened. All was still. I held it up to the light and read. "To-night." At last! Gil was en evi-

Now my brain kept tacking to pleasanter things; how would Gil accomplish his task? How wreck these prison bars?

I pushed the three-legged stool beneath the window and stood upon it. I could just reach the window sill with my finger tips. I drew myself up and looked out, as I had done many times before. I saw tops of trees and far off a winding stream; now all was hazy like a picture seen through a smoked glass. I could see a light hobbling here and there, and imagine I heard the measured cadence of the boatsmen's oars, as they forried their fares across. I was not high up in that old prison, else that frail butterfly had not fluttered to its death, or the stone been thrown. (To be continued.)

CURED BY HARD WORK.

Young Woman's Desire to Escape Home Life More Than Satisfied.

A young woman came to me one day and asked my intercession in securing her an opening in newspaper work. I happened to know that there was no need of her seeking work, hecause she had a home and an allowance. She was needed in the family circle to assist her mother in her manifold duties, which were not a tenth part as hard and disappointing as the work she wanted to do. I knew that reasoning would do no good, and was not at all sure that a vivid description of the life and all it meant would send her home contented with her lot. But I decided to try it. The young woman was musical and fond of reading-she also had a large circle of friends and many social duties. I told her that all would have to be offered up as sacrifices to hard work, so exacting and wearying that there was neither time nor inclination for the niceties of life, says a writer in the Philadelphia Bulletin.

She was obstinate, as I somewhat expected she would be. She secured the coveted position and worked just a month. She needed no more time to convince her that her former life was pretty nearly ideal, and had the good sense to return to it. There are thousands like her in restlessness, but Iew whose native good sense conquers so easily.

Plans Cheap Incubator. A poultry enthusiast proposes to erect a number of incubators near several unused springs at Glonwood Hot Springs, and to use running hot water in place of lamps which usualy supply the necessary heat. The projector of the plan hopes to hatch out from 5,000

New Street Frock,

The street frock is the first item of the new season's outfit and many and varied are the styles displayed. One worthy of mention is in ecru panne cloth and the skirt is fitted around the hips in plaits but untrimmed. The jacket is in three wide tucks just below the bust line and double revers, heavily stitched, run from shoulder to waist line. Snake silk finely tucked is used for the vest and Persian embroidery, in pale shades, makes the stock. The skirt on jacket has just enough ripple to set prettlly over the hips. Circular tucks corresponding with jacket form the lower part of sleeve, which is finished with a turned Trimmings for the Coat. A plain coat changes its character if the substitution of an effective deep collar and cuffs to match is made, one of the prettiest of the deep collars being nothing but an adaptation of the regulation coat collar with the lapels notched a little differently. An extension reaches nearly to the armhole, echoing the coat-collar effect, and both are embroidered (in the color of the pongee) with little fourpetaled flowers.

When lace is used for trimming it is always the beavier sorts in large, offective patterns, and with pongee is always colored to match the material.

The Loose Coats.

Most of the loose coats are made with bias backs-vory much bias-to get as circular an effect as possible, with plenty of material to spread out over the soft fluff they are usually worn with.

Every sort of length (and a hundred styles) is good, from the short loose coat to long ones, with three-quarter lengths perhaps most popular of all. Some of them are almost plain, fitting rather closely down to the waist and then flaring out into full skirts; and these plain ones must bear the stamp of careful tailoring.

Half Sleeve Is Handy.

Very good idea it is to supply half long lace sleeves ready to be basted in when required. These are sold in connection with a high chemisette, or a high collarband, and as most essential to elbow sleeve costumes, when required to be worn by day as well as for evening wear. In fact, many women require three distinct furnishings for each bodice. A chemisette, a plastron, or collar band, as a neck and open front finish. After that a pair of lower face sleeves closely shaped to the arm and lastly the flounces and frills that trim many elbow sleeves.

The Short, Loose Silk Coat.

Preparations are already under w for the launching of a short, loose silk coat, which will make an ideal wrap for even the warm weather. This is the Lady Teazle, which bears some resemblance to the once popular "frocks and frills" jacket, though slightly longer. The idea, of course, originated in Paris, but it was helped in the making by a clever American buyer, who understands the requirements and tastes of the American public.

A Smart Design.

Chiffon henrietta, one of the most effective of the soft wool materials which are so popular this season, was chosen in a green shade for the design shown. Chiffon taffeta to match formed the smart collar, novel revers and cavaller cuffs, while a simple design was braided on in narrow black soutache. A deep fall of lace is a graceful touch. The skirt is the stunning four-gored model, with plaits which can be stitched to any proferred depth. Voile, broadcloth, poplin or taffeta will make an effective suit after this pattern.

Hasty Pudding.

Mix until like thin cream two cunces flour in a basin with cold milk. Then just a pint of mills to boll with a piece of lemon poel or any flavoring that is preferred; whilst still boiling your in the flour and milk, taking care dish with butter, put a layer of jam at the bottom, pour the pudding on to this, grate nulmeg on the top and a few pieces of butter. Bake in the oven about ten minutes.

Arrowroot Lemonade.

One ounce of the hest arrowroot. two ounces of castor sugar, the to attain this distinction.

strained juice of two lemons, the whites of two eggs, three pints of bolling water. Mix the arrowroot to a smooth paste with a little cold water, add the lemon Juice, sugar and the whites of the eggs heaten stiff. Stir in three pints of boiling water, put it into a stewpan, let it boil up quickly, stirring it all the time. The drink is somewhat thick and liked by people who are suffering from a sore and dry Kid Waistcoat Popular.

The soft kid waistcoat is as popular as ever. It is generally made double breasted, and cut away to take in a chemisette of plaited muslin and Valcuclennes lace, or one of coarse lace and perhaps a rolled collar of some colored velvet. A touch of velvet is always a welcome finish to a cloth frock, and on a plain sleeve buttoning tightly down to the wrist we often note a small turn back cuff of velvet to match the rolled collar of velvet at the neck of the habit bodice.

Coat of Pongee.

Pongee and linen coats are to be much worn by the little people, as well as by the woman of fashion, and the one shown here is easy of construction and decidedly new. Three inverted box plaits stitched in slot-seam effect give fullness to back and front. The jaunty little stray in back defines the waist line. Fancy cuffs and collar are the only adornment, and these may either of them be omitted if desired. Linen, pongee or silk may be used in this small garment.

For Children's Wear.

Nothing takes the place of white muslin for hest wear during the summer for children. White linen pique, duck and mobalr will be widely used for coat suits on girls from 10 to 16 The colored linens will also be used, especially for spring. There is a dulf brown, a pale red and an ceru that made admirable school suits worn over blouses of the same material, of the same shade in another material.

Lingerie Hats.

Lingerie hats are so different from last year's as anything could bethey're a little smaller, and differ in texture and treatment, and even in color. Soft mulls (in delicate pink or blue) are shirred and pleated into pleturesque bits of fluff; and hand-embroblered hats are the same wonderful revelations of needlework as the lingoric blouses and gowns they

These Are Modish Tips.

Bows of all sizes are in favor. Fine neck chains are worn over the soft white lingeric blouses. The most charming little tallored hats of fine straw are trimmed simply with wings and ribbon.

Such a pretty idea in sleeves for a dinner gown is a round bow of many loops tied on the upper arm.

Here's a New Fabric.

Elolienne is one of the prettlest fabrics of the year. It is a sheer wool, some qualities dotted in slik-and is shown in all the lovely new colors.

Gov. Glaflin's LL. D.

The father of the late Gov. Claffin was a successful leather merchant, but desired a professional career for his son. Accordingly, the young man duly entered upon a collegiate course; but, like many another brilliant man. soon found his capabilities did not lie in that direction.

Finally, discouraged with classical problems, chagrined at his failures, and dreading an impending examination, the leather business loomed up attractively before him, and he suddenly left his alma mater in undignified baste and returned home, loaving his trunk behind him.

He was not, however, thus easily to escape the gibes of his fellow students, for on the following day arrived the trunk, gayly festooned and labeled, "William Claffin, LL. D.," the It does out go lumpy. Grease a pie title being derisively translated "Learned Leather Dresser."

> The tables were turned, however, when in later life, Classic baving become governor of Massachusetts, the much coveted title of LI. D. was conforred upon him by Harvard college according to long established custom, he being the only member of his class

Plant Breeding.

Plant breeding is a modern idea, hough it has been practiced unscientifically for thousands of years. The breeding of plants is not exactly parallel with the breeding of animals, for crossing is not a very large factor in the work of the so-called plant breeder. Selection of the best plants for parentage is the main factor at the present time as it ever has been. Thus, the various kinds of celery that we have on our markets came from careful selection of the best in older varieties, and very seldom resulted from crossing except as nature made the crosses.

We are just at the beginning of the science of plant breeding, and will ultimately use the principle of crossing plants to get new varieties. Some remarkable things are sometimes done by means of this crossing. We have seen yellow tomatoes growing beside red tomatoes, and from the intermixing of the pollen, seed has been produced that the next year gave tomatoes the form of the yellow ones but with the rich color of the reds.

This is but an example that will illustrate the great possibilities in plant breeding. The slow progress we are making is due to the fact that we have left almost everything to nature, and nature is not interested in producing plants of unusul service to man. Nature is as much interested in a tomato as in a man, and her only plan is to preserve it on the earth.

Within the next twenty years the science of plant breeding will entirely revolutionize the conditions under which our gardening is being carried on. The vegetables that today are standard will have dropped behind and he little grown. Other varieties, better for eating or with a better appearance, will have come to the front, and we cannot but see that this change will go on indefinitely, as there seems to be no end to the possibilitles in the science of plant breed-

Barrels or Boxes.

In a communication to the Farmers Review, David Ruble says: "Why don't the fruit dealers adopt the apple box in place of the apple barrel? The box is easier to handle, packs up in less space, does not bruise the fruit, sells better, and should not be so expensive. The lumber here (Oregon) costs but ten conts per box, and the cost of making is two cents. For holding a bushel of apples we make a box here of the following dimensions: 18 inches long, 13 inches wide and ten inches deep. We use boards cut as follows: Two boards three-fourths inch thick 13x10 inches; two boards one-half inch thick 14x191/2 inches: two boards five-eights inch thick 10x 191/2 inches."

We publish Mr. Ruble's figures as he gives them, but we do not quite understand the force of the last three sets of figures. The apple box is coming into use more and more, but it is evident that it will have to be made very cheap to drive out the barrel. According to the estimate of cost by Mr. Ruble, three boxes would cost 36 cents, which is about what barrels can be purchased for in some parts of the apple producing regions. The box will have to be made much cheaper than that unless barrels go still higher. Barrels have some advantages over boxes in the minds of the men that handle apples. They claim that less handling is required with barrels than with boxes, and that the barrel can be rolled while the box cannot. In loading and unloading barrels from trains and ships as well wagons many establishments have arrangements for rolling the barrels up or down inclines, which facilitate their handling. Mr. Ruble says that "the boxes pack closer," but this is used as one objection to the box by shippers of fruit, as they say there is then no room for the circulation of air around the fruit packages .- Farmers' Review.

Smut on Onions.

People that raise onlons from seed sometimes notice dusty outbreak on the plants raised from seed. The fungus becomes established in the soil. and such soil should be avoided for the growing of onions from seed, though it may be used for the growing of transplanted onions. If it is necessary to continue to use the soil for the growing of onions from seed the following treatment is recommended: Mix 100 pounds of sulphur with 50 pounds of air-slaked lime. This should be the application for one acre of land and it should be sown in the drills at the time of planting the seed. The Connecticut station reports that one pound of formalin in 20 gallons of water makes a mixture that may he sprinkled over the seed before it is covered with the soil and that this will prevent the growth of the rust fungus. Some growers use a fertilizer drill and drill into the land per acre from 75 to 125 bushels per acre of ground lime. This helps to hold back the discase.

Kerosene Emulsion.

To make kerosene emulsion use two gallons of kerosene, one-half pound common soap and one gallon of water. Dissolve the soap in hot water, add the kerosene, and churn all together until a white creamy mass is formed which thickens on cooling. This must be diluted before using by adding nine gallons of water to each one gallon of the emulsion.
