THE MAXINKUCKEE ASSEMBLY

A Splendid Program Arranged for the Coming Session.

The program for Maxinkuckee Assembly is almost complete in has made a splendid move in securing Mr. H. G. Hill as General Manager. We understand Mr. Hill is an expert in this line, having been associated with several successful Assemblies.

Mr. Hill informs us that he has secured some of the best attractions in the country for this year's program. Notable among these are Prof. Reno B. Welbourn, Wizard of Electricity, who carries a wagon load of apparatus with which to illustrate by experiment his wonderfal lectures.

Prof. Frank Regan will give three chalk talk lectures. He will be remembered by former patrons as an ideal entertainer.

The Barnard and Harrington orchestras will be on the grounds for almost the whole season. The Barnards are composed of seven players and are one of Indianapolis' favorite concert companies.

A company of seven colored Jubilee Singers are engaged for two days on the grounds. The Gibson-Trottee-Wagner trio will entertain the audiences for three days. This is one of the daintiest and most talented trios of young women artists now on the plat

We Don't Need Him Here.

Charles Hatfield, a rainmaker who has been working since De cember 15 last to produce eighteen inches of rais for southern California by May 1 on a pledge by a number of Los Angeles merchants to pay him $10,000 if he succeeded, has completed his demonstration and has been paid a large part of the amount promised. The remainder will be paid soon, it is said. The fall of rain in Los Angeles during the season ending May 1 was 18.96 inches, which far exceeds that of last season and is above the normal annual precipitation for this section. Hatfield established his rainmaking plant at Altadena, in the footbills of the mountains, about twenty miles from Los Angeles. His method is beach, with gravely bottom. For a generation of gases and their discharge into the atmosphere from a chimney, which has the result, he says, of attracting forces of nature, which compel moisture to form and be precipitated in the form of rain.

Here's To Editor Barnhart.

The press of Northern Indiana will unite in congratulating Henry A. Barnhart, of the Rochester Sentinel, who is celebrating his nineteenth anniversary as editor of that progressive and enterprising newspaper. Editor Barnhart states:

"Ninteen years ago the present publisher took possession of the Rochester Sentinel, then a small weekly newspaper. He had but little experience as a newspaper writer and none as a publisher or manager of a newspaper business. But Rochester and Fulton county were kind to him, he worked hard, and in these nineten years the weekly subscription list has tripled in numbers, a daily edition nearly nine years old has developed into a thrifty circulation and a popular advertising business, and the commercial printing department of the plant has grown so large that eight people are employed therein. Altogether the Sentinel publisher is delighted with the success of his business, has enjoyed a delightful life midst the splendid citizenship of Rochester and Fulton county, Samuel Sellers with his and he expects to live and die there moving pictures will be on the and be buried in the gracious hos-

LaPaz Divine Asks Gov, Hanly Happenings of the Past Week in for Protection.

Gov. Hanly has not yet heeded the urgent appeal for protection that came to him last Wednesday from Rev. Martin Luther Peter, of Lapaz, Marshall county. He had so many other things to occupy his time and attention just now that the Rev. Peter's very recent troubles with the saloonists in Lapaz must wait their turn for official action.

According to the letter that the governor received the Rev. Peter is a much persecuted man. Because he led in the reform crusade at Lapaz and insisted that the saloonists close their places at 11 o'clock at night, his house was stoned by the saloon element, he says, when he appeared on the street they made life miserable for him with their gibes and insults. What he asks for is the governor's protection.

In only one way the Gov. Hanly can protect the preacher, and that is by the prosecuting attorney of Marshall county. The latter official may receive a quiet tip to look into the complaints of the Rev. Mr. Peter, it is stated by one who is close to the governor.

The Logansport high school has DEATH OF JUDGE CAPRON.

Well-Known Jurist Passes Away at His Maxinkuckee Cottage.

The death of Judge Copron at his cottage near the Maxinkuckee landing, Saturday, was a shock to the community. He with Mrs. Capron had recently returned from a winter's sojourn in California and had come to their cottage here: Death was due to diabetes but his condition was critical only for a few days.

Albertus C. Capron was born in Homer, N. Y., in 1830, and came to Plymouth in 1853. He leaves one son. John C. Capron, of Los Angeles, Cal., and a daughter. Mrs. M. W. Simons, of Denver, Col.

In 1890 Mr. Capron was elected judge of the Thirty-first Judicial district, composed of Marshall and school at 10 a. m.; Y. P. Wickizer, of universally kind and he never sought to offend. His decisions Guild bazaar and festival at the and rolings from the bench were never harsh and in his arguments before the court and the jury he sought to convince by argument rather than by adopting tactics of coercion and subterluge. For following this course he enjoyed the confidence and respect of the court and secured the consideration to which his pleas were entitled.

> > In point of intellectual qualities, Judge Capron was regarded by his friends as one of the strongest men that have lived in Marshall county. He was not so versatile as others, his course of thought was not so varied and general, but on subjects upon which he thought he was regarded as par excellence among his compeers. He was never ambitious for honors or popularity and some of his brightest writings were known to only a little coterie of friends.

The rapid growth of tuberculosis among prisoners in the Joliet, Ill., penitentiary, attended by a marked increase in the prison death rate, has aroused the officials to action. An investigation and reform is to be instituted by the State Board of Health.

The members of this board do not deny that under the present conditions all efforts to combat the disease are hopeless. Better general sanitary conditions must be established or it will be impossible to prevent the spread of tuberculosis to all the present prisoners and to all who may he so unfortunate as to be sentenced later.

This is another instance of the state forcing its citizens to live under conditions which mean almost sure death. It is surprising in this day of enlightenment that the state should allow its cifizens to live, voluntarily, in unsanttary homes. Yet it does. The residents of the slum and tenement districts are dying from faulty sanitation and bad hygiene. But more- the state forces some others to spend from one to ten years in a dark cell from which they so often come, stricken by the great 'white plague"wrecks of their former selves and a continual expense to the community.

With the message of "prevention and cure" of consumption in every paper let the state not forget its prisoners who must silently suffer whatever fate is decreed for them.

A Slaughterhouse Victim.

The papers recently reported the death at Cripple Creek, Colo., of a woman who, three years ago, while follows: visiting the slaughterhouse of the Armour Packing company in Chicago, was completely paralyzed on one side as a result of the shock produced by the sight of the terrible tragedies which are constantly being enacted in that great killing establishment. This victim of slaughterhouse borrors is only one of many thousands who meet their death through the slaughterhouses every year. It may not be said, indeed, that the death can be traced so directly and immediately to the slaughtorhouse as in this case, but the multitudes of men and women who die of gouty disorders, rheumatism and other maladies resulting from uric-acid polsoning might enjoy many years of life were it not for the deadly dose of uric acid and other poisons derived from the products of the slaughterhouse-meat enters' disorders, among which must be included trichina and tapeworm, tuberculosis and possibly cancer as well as those which have been traced directly to

A Centennial Celebration.

The people of Fayette, Ohio, recently showed their appreciation of the favor conferred on them in having in their community a fine old lady who has rounded out the full measure of her kundred years. The centennial of Mrs. Amelia DuBois was celebrated by hundreds of people who met to do her honor. The public schools were closed, that the children might join in the celebration. In charge of their teachers, they marched to the home of Mr. and Mrs. DuBois and escorted them to the opera house, where an interesting program, in which many prominent people of the neighborhood took part, was carried out.

One pleasing feature was the presentation by the children of a quantity of flowers the money for which had been collected among themselves.

The interest shown in the occasion by the people of Fayette and surrounding towns is evidence of the high esteem in which this remarkable old lady is held. Every faculty of her mind is alert and responsive, and her brown eyes still retain their attractive sparkle. She is an accomplished needlewoman, and still spends much time in preparing dainty gifts for her friends. Mr. DuBois, to whom Mrs. DuBois was married sixty-one years ago, is no less remarkable than his wife. The unusually healthy and active old age of this fine couple is a testimony to the value of their simple, natural, peaceful life of activity. Commenting upon this, the Fayette Review

Changed Its Mind.

As mamma was propering her boy for breakfast she said: "How many cakes can Eugene eat for his breakfast this morning?"

"I can eat four, Mamma," Scated at the table, his appetite seemed to have materially diminished, for he are only one of the cakes. 'Mamma thought you were going to eat four cakes this morning. What is the matter?"

"Well," said the five-year-old, "my stomach changed its mind,"

It occurs to us that the wise man's stomach often "changes its mind," as in this case, but too often that muchabused organ is so pressed upon as to be convinced against its will, though of the same opinion still, and, yielding to the demands of an abnormal appetite, finds itself wishing the real man had been master over the last of the flesh,

To Prolong Life.

The British Medical Journal recently devoted eight pages to a discussion or the best means for the prolongation of life. Hothouse Plants.

The following abstract from the Cincinnati Lancet-Clinic in regard to one of the worst evils of modern child life is very timely:

"Refinement in matters of social life proceeds hand in hand with refinement in other lines as civilization advances. From the standpoint of the physician and of the anthropologist, it is a question whether the physical side of mankind is improving or degenerating.

The method of bringing up children, especially in the familles of the well-to-do, is too often a serious menace to the child's health and development. Too much indoor life, too much supervision, too little freedom of motion and will is undoubtedly the cause of the many weaklings seen in the families of the wealthy. Such children have the characteristics of hothouse plants.

The remedy is, of course, to do away with the surplus care and attention bestowed on the child, to let the child do more for itself, have more freedom, more fresh air, more play with other children. Foods and medicines are only temporary helps for child wookness.

Nature is its own best doctor, and in the end can take care of "hothouse children" if fond parents will only give her the chance.

Bad Weather and Labor Troubles Interfere With Activity in Chicago.

FACTORY OUTPUT IS LARGER

Sustained Demand for Product Is Indicated by the Large Distribution of Manufactured Material - Outlook is for Large Crops.

Chicago dispatch: The weekly review of Chicago trade, published by R. G. Dun & Co., says:

"Adverse weather and continued strike troubles interfered with a wellrounded volume of local activity, but not withstanding these obstructions the inherent strength of trade has not been affected. Except a lull in the demand for furnace product, almost similar to that of a year ago, new business appeared in satisfactory volume throughout other leading lines of infustry. Production shows no curtailment and the distribution of manufactured material and staple commodities is heavy, indicating sustailned consumption.

"Other encouraging conditions are seen in uninterrupted factory work, building construction and improved dealings in State street trade. Agricultural reports of late had such an optimistic tone it is reassuring to find them amply confirmed by official authority and the promise of larger crops adds to confidence in the general outlook.

Traffic Movement Is Large. "The traffic movement both by lake and rall reflects increased forwarding Although receipts of grain were 25 per cent under those of the corre sponding week last year, shipments gained 63 per cent, and larger marketing is noted in live stock, hides, lumber and provisions. Interior advices show farm work advancing rapidly and country stores meeting with good demand for supplies.

Manufacturing branches have not been directly impeded by labor trou bles and the output exceeds that of a year ago. Steel mills have all the work their capacity permits, and the finished product remains in good request. The buying of pig iron is slower, but considerable known requirements of consumers are likely to enter into booking for the third quar-

"The necessity for basic material is marked by enlarging receipts of ore and lumber, that of the latter being 57,187,000 feet, against 27,247,000 feet a year ago. Demand remained good for woodwork, and there is an upward tendency in prices for output of the Northern plasties.

Hides and Leather.

"Receipts of hides were 7,139,968 pounds, against 3,726,181 pounds a year ago. Market deall fair aggregate. Leather is to wider use, and tanning proceeds on an enlarged scale without apparent accumulation of stocks, while the leather consumers, although costs of supplies are dearer, buy freely, footwear and trunks being in growing demand.

"Receipts of grain were 1.747.912 bushels, against 2,446,690 bushels a year ago, and the shipments aggregated 3,240.082 bushels, against 1,980, 057 bushels. The general demand for breadstuffs was slightly stronger, but poorer export sales weakened the situation. Provisions were in better request and shipments have expanded. Live stock receipts, 252,220 head, compared with 239,245 head a year ago and are under expectations.

"Faffures reported in the Chicago district number fifteen, against fifteen last week and thirty a year ago."

OUICK-WITTED ENGINEER RESCUES MANY WORKERS

Blows Danger Blast When Coffer Dam Gives Way and Hurls Laborers to Place of Safety.

Joliet. Ill., dispatch: High water in the river, together with a weak section in the coffer dam combined to work a catastrophe on the Lorimer & Gallagher section of the work north of the Ruby street bridge. Two hundred feet of the coffer dam near the lower end went out. The water rushed back, flooding the machinery, dump cars and tools. Sevenly-five men who were working on the section at the time narrowly escaped with their lives.

The rescue of the workmen was made by Mike O'Grady, engineer, The break in the coffer dam came almost without warning and the workmen who saw the water rush through ran for their lives, yelling a warning to their comrades. O'Crady heard the signal and blew a danger blast from his engine. The laborers ran and jumped on the cars. When all were on board and with water almost up to the firebox O'Grady pulled the throttle and hauled the gang to safety.

John O'Hern, fireman of the steam shovel, was the only man left on the work. O'Hern could not run because he has a wooden leg. So he climbed on the roof of the fire house and yelled for help. A raft was built and the fireman was rescued.

HARPIST HYPNOTIZES HEARERS WITH MUSIC

Seven Adepts Go Into Unnatural Sleep While Listening to His Wonderful Performance.

Peorla, Ill., dispatch: Rosetti, a French harpist, a modern Svengali, worked a hypnotic spell Sunday evening, in which seven local Germans, adopts in mosic, were wafted to an unnatural sleep by his wonderful playing of his instrument. Herman Sanders, tenor, and Herman Bauer, zitherist, prominent residents, were among those who fell under Rosetti's spell. He played an Italian opera and the music fell from his tinger tips so deftly that it fairly entranced his hearers.

Finally the old man left his instrument and went to his quarters. Ha awakened six hours afterwards and said that he had traveled in a wonderful country of music and flowers. His subjects awakened at the same time and marveled over the strange circumstance, Wednesday Rosetti returned to Sanders for his harp and said he had almost forgotten where he had been Sunday night. WYOMING BANDITS BREAK JAIL

Overpower Sheriff, but Battle Follows in Mountains.

Casper, Wyo., dispatch: Deputy county jail and disarmed by Ed Lee, Martin Tour and William Wardlows, prisoners, who made their escape after securing guns, ammunition and clothing from the sheriff's office and horses and saddles from the stables. The party rode away in the direction of the Casper mountains. Deputy Sheriff Hartog and a posse started in pursuit, overtaking the bandits near the summit of the mountains, seven miles from town, where a battle ensued. Citizens with field glasses witnessed the fight, but night came on and the outcome is not known. A second posse has left Casper and a third will join the chase.

LOSES SAVINGS OF LIFETIME

Milwaukee Citizen Robbed of $12,000 While Visiting in Oshkosh.

Milwaukee, Wis., dispatch: Thirtysix thousand marks, about $12,000 in American money was stolen from Bruno Konetzer, a Milwaukee man, at Oshkosh. Konetzer reported his loss to the police and an effort is now being made to capture the thief. The amount stolen represents the savings of twenty years of hard work as overseer of large estates in Germany. The police anticipate little trouble in getting the thief or the money. The latter consisted of thirty-six bills of 1. 000-mark denomination.

A Balanced Ration. What is a balanced ration? That will depend on the season of the year and whether the cow is producing milk or not. It is evident that the cow in summer time does not use the food elements in exactly the same proportion as in the winter time. In the summer she needs less of the starchy foods because she does not have to keep up the heat of her body by burning up great quantities of carbon in the form of fat and starch.

In the summer time it is estimated that a cow will require about one part of protein to five and a half parts of carbohydrates, while in the winter the carbohydrates should be increased to six parts to each one of protein. This is assuming that the ration consist of foods that are easily digested; for if they are not the use of energy in digesting the food is another element of uncertainty.

It is cortain that the balance of a ration is a thing that is variable, and one that we don't know very much about. It is the safest, however, to feed somewhere between five and six times as much of the starchy foods as of the proteins. Only a perfectly balanced food can be digested perfectly and without loss. We don't know how to balance the foods perfectly and so do not know how to protect ourselves from the losses that are sure to come through the feeding of more of one element than can be digested.

In addition to the other complications comes the one that is caused by the temperaments of the animals. One animal will take the surplus carbohydrate in her food and pass it through herself and but into the manure pile. Another will take that same surplus and store it up in the form of fat on her back, where it is at least worth more than it is in the open barnyard where the carbohydrate has little or no value.

The balanced ration is rather a dark subject and will remain dark for a long time to come. I doubt if we ever get it down to a place where we can say for a certainty that this is so and the other thing is not so.

Best Temperature to Cure Cheese. If there is such a thing as a standard of quality for Canadian or American choese it certainly is in our autumn makes, because "September" quality is generally admitted to be the highest point of excellence attained. It is of importance to remember that the mean temperature in the choesemaking districts for the months of September ranges from about 58 to 62 degrees. Now, if we can cure our summer cheese under September conditions, there is no reason why we should not produce "September" quality throughout the whole season. You never hear of New Zealand cheese being classified according to month Sheriff Webb was overpowered in the of manufacture, because the climatic conditions do not vary in that country throughout the cheesemaking season. It is for us to consider then if these standards, the value of which we know, are as good or better for us to aim at than anything else which has not yet been proved in a commercial way. After weighing all the evidence so far obtainable, I am of the opinion > eral adoption When the central cool curing rooms established by the Canadian government were built they were designed for maintaining a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees, and they have proved to be very satisfactory for such a requirement. Incidentally we have come to this conclusion, that it is easier to maintain a steady uniform temperature at any point between 55 and 60 degrees than it is at any other point, either higher or lower. The reason for this is that we are able to take advantage of the cooling power of the earth, through the coment floor, which has a constant temperature of about 56 degrees, and being a fairly good conductor acts as a regulator when other conditions tend to either raise or lower the temperature .- Prof. J. A. Ruddick.

A Good Dry Ration.

A farmer says that even a dry ration may be a good ration for the production of milk. He submits the following combination as one of the best that can be fed: Clovor hay, pea meal, wheat bran, ground oats, and water, the latter to be not too cold. The only weak point in this ration is the pea meal, which usually is not obtainable, and when it is obtainable is very expensive. To a cascal observer it would appear to be a little over-balanced in the direction of the proteins, none of the elements containing an overbalance of carbohydrates, while clover hay, pea meal and bran have each a very large proportion of protein.

Humanized Milk. This is a term that has lately come into vogue in England. where milk has had milk sugar, water, salt and cream added to it till it is of about the same composition as human milk. The city of Liverpool and some other places have been for some time supplying this milk to the poorer people at about cost. The experiment has been carefully watched and it has been observed that there has been a great saving of infant life. Among the infants not using the milk the death rate has been 159 to every 1,000 born, while where the municipal milk has been used the death rate has been but 78 per 1,000 born, Seeing California.

The average eastern tourist when visiting California enters the state at Los Angeles, takes a few rides on the various radiating electric lines, hustles onto the train for San Francisco, visits the seals, and hastens north or east affirming that he has "seen California"-but has he? True, he has seen sights to which his eyes were not accustomed, eaten various fruits and vegetables strangers to his palate, and breathed the wondrous air, but to see California understandingly one must visit the mountains as well as the valleys. Probably no other section is richer in scenes noted for their beauty and grandeur, places made famous in literature than is Tuolumne county, in the Sierra Nevada foothills of California .- S. H. Smith in Sunset Magazine for May.

NATURE'S ESSENCE.

Extracted From Forest Plants

Nature's laws are perfect if we obey them, but disease follows disobedience. Go straight to nature for the cure, to the forest; there are mysteries here that we can fathom for you. Take the bark of the wild-cherry tree, the root of mandrale, stone root, queen's root, bloodrant and golden seal, make a scientific, non-alcoholic extract of them with just the right proportions and you have Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It took Dr. Pierce, with the assistance of two learned chemists, eight years of of two learned chemists, eight years of hard work experimenting to make this hard work experimenting to make this vegetable extract and alterative of the greatest efficiency.

Just the sort of spring remedy you need to make rich, red blood, and cure that lassitude and feeling of nerve exhaustion. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery bears the stamp of PUBLIC APPROVAL and has sold more largely in the past forty years than any other blood purifier and stomach tonic. The refreshing influence of this extract is like Nature's influence—the blood is bathed in the tonic which gives life to the blood—the vital fires of the body burn brighter and their increased activity consumes the tissue rubbish which has accumn-lated during the winter. Doctor R. V. Pierce, the founder of the Invalidation of large experience and practice, was the first to make up an alterative extract of roots, herbs and barks, with-out a pasticle, was the first to make up an alterative extract of roots, herbs and barks, with-out a pasticle, or alconor. Or Namerotics, which purifies the blood and tones up the stomach and the entire system in Nature's own way. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is just the tissue builder and tonic you require when recovering from a hard cold, grip, or pneumonia. No matter how strong the constitution the stomach is apt to be "out of kilter" after a long, hard winter; in consequence the blood is disordered, for the stomach is the laboratory for the constant manufacture of blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery strengthens the stomach puts it in shape to make pure, rich blood—helps the liver and kidneys to expel the poisons from the body. If you take this NATURAL BLOOD PURIFIER AND TONIC you will assist your system in manufacturing each day a pint of rich, arterial blood, that is stimulating to the brain and nerves. The weak, nervous, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people experience at this time of the year is usually the effect of poisons in the blood; it is often indicated by pimples or boils appearing on the skin, the face becomes thin—you feel "blue." Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery stands atome at the one medicine for stomach, liver and blood disorders that has the ingredients printed upon the wrapper of every bottle leaving the great laboratory at Buffalo, N. Y., which ourse in nature's own way; not only does it stand alone in respect to its ingredients but also as the only spring tonic and reconstructive which absolutely contains no alcohol.

Dead Man Had Planned to Have an Outing on Ranch-Death Is Believed to Be Result of Foul Play, Causing Companion to Be Held.

Kansas City, Mo., dispatch: Herbert . Croker, son of Richard Croker, the former Tammany chief, died on a Santa Fe train between Emporia and Newton, Kas., and there are indications that his death was caused by foul Charles Woodson, a negro porter at the Coates house, is under arrest, pending an investigation, as he was with young Croker and put him on the train on which he died.

Young Croker was on his way to Rliss, Okla., for an outing on the famous 101 ranch. He arrived in Kansas City on Thursday, and appeared at the Coates house at 8 o'clock in the evening, but did not register, After checking a small valise, Crocker asked Woodson to take bim to a "hop joint." Woodson says Crocker was intoxicat-

Porter Complies With Request.

After repeated requests Woodson says that he agreed to accommany Croker to a Chinese resort on Sixth street, between Wyandotte and Delaware, where they remained an hour. Woodson says that he then took Croker directly to the train at the union station. Croker's value is still at the check stand at the Coates house.

Passengers on the train took particular notice when young Croker was assisted into a chair car at the union station in Kansas City by the negro. because Croker was helpless, as if from liquor or some drug. The negro assisted Croker into a seat and then gave him a purse containing a railroad ticket and $19, counting the money out to Croker. The passengers heard Croker say:

"Now. I want you to send me the rest of it."

Negro Gives Him Money.

The negro asked Croker to write his address, but Croker refused, and finally the negro wrote as Croker dictated. The address was "Bliss, Okla., care 101 Ranch."

Immediately after the train started Croker fell into a deep sleep, sonring loudly. Later he grew quieter, and it is not known at what time in the night he died. The conductor thought him drunk, and made no effort to take his ticket up until the train was a few miles from Newton, when he tried to arouse the apparently sleeping man. Then it was discovered that he had died sitting quietly in his seat.

METHODISTS DECLINE TO

Professor's Writings Are Considered Entirely Too Radical to Entitle Him to University Chair.

Boston, Mass., special: At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Boston university to hear the report of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church in relation to the confirmation of Prof. Hinckley G. Mitchell In his professorship at the Boston university school of theology it was decided not to confirm him at present.

President Edward H. Dunn of the trustees presided and ex-Gov. John L. Bates, vice-president of the board, was present. Bishop Daniel A. Goodsell, resident bishop, delivered the finding of the bishops, which was made at their annual meeting in Louisville.

Prof. Mitchell has been attacked for what has been called his heretical doctrines and on several previous occasions has had narrow escapes from condemnation by the board of bishops. He is widely known as a writer and higher critic, and his writings, being perfectly fearless and emphasizing his views with indifference to the consequences, have caused him to be known as an extremely radical thinker.

His text-books are eliminated in all Methodist denominational schools and it is from these that his critics have gained most of their material for their attacks upon his doctrines.

DESTROY BIG OIL TANK WITH CANNON CHARGE

Three Shots Are Fired Into Burning Receptacle Before Breach is Made, Releasing the Fluid.

Mannington, W. Va., alspatch: At an early hour Thursday morning, while Operator Frank Leach was gauging the oil in the huge 14,000-barrel oil tank of the Eureka Line company at Downs, near here, he struck a match and immediately there was a terrific explosion. Leach was thrown with great force a considerable dislance and was seriously but not latally injured.

The explosion blow a large bole in the roof of the tank and almost immediately the oil was on fire. There was about 14,000 barrels of oil in the tank. Every effort was made by the people of Downs to quench the flames, but without success.

It was teared that the tank would explode, in which event the entire destruction of the town would have been certain. A special train was sent from Morgantown with a cannon on board to make a breach in the side of the tank and allow the oil to escape, thus preventing the explosion that was

Three shots were fired against the side of the tank, releasing the 14,000 barrels of oil. The total loss is $25,-000. A nearby 20,000 barrel tank caught fire several times, but was extinguished by the use of blankets and water.

Clerks, Mechanics and Others Return to New York From the Isthmus.

COUNTRY IS UNFIT FOR WHITES

American Consul at Colon Declares the Dissatisfaction Is Confined to the Tenderfoot Element, Who Do Not Know How to Live.

New York dispatch: Fleeing from shama in terror of yellow fever, thirty clerks, mechanics and other em ployes of the government, arrived Thursday on the steamer Seguranca, from Colon. Another cause of their flight from the pestilential isthmus was the living conditions.

"That's what drove nearly every one of us back to God's country," said a college graduate. "There are hundreds more coming. Thirty were left behind on this trip.

"The government suppresses the conditions and the hospitals are full of yellow fever patients," said one of the clerks. "Since Jan. 1 there have been 163 graves dug in the American cometery at Panama. Thirty-five out of sevenly clerks in the administraion building have resigned.

Death Strikes Terror. "The death of Supervisor Johnson of the administration building struck terror among the employes. Barrett, Stuart and Butler were stricken, and then Auditor West was taken to the hospital, where he died.

"Mosquitoes form the principal ingredient of the atmosphere in Panama," said one of the refugees, "and fumigation is of little value so long as mosquitoes are around."

The men complained of "governmental misrepresentation," "favoritism" and "graft." They said they could swear to the truth of what they

Good Food Is Scarce.

"You can't get a square meal at Panama," said a Brown university man. "The food in the hotels is filthy. It is no place for an American. The work is too hard for such a climate, whether you keep books or dig."

"Yes, there is a sort of panic going on among the employes," said Oscar Malmres, American consul at Colon, one of the oldest in the service, "but it is mostly among the tenderfoot sort. They don't stay down there long enough to know how to live. I have been there four years and this yellow fever scare doesn't bother me any more than scarlet fever bothers you in New York. Yellow fever is no more fatal than spinal meningitis."

ANOTHER STORM VISITS SNYDER CAUSING FEAR

Stricken Oklahoma Town Is Scene of Great Suffering on Part of Those

Who Escaped Death. Snyder, Okla., dispatch: Although everything is being done to care for the victims of the tornado, pitiable scenes of want and sufferings are seen here on all sides. Much confusion still exists despite the efforts of hundreds of outsiders to aid the victims. Many who had lost everything they possessed are bungry and practically unprotected from the cold.

Early Friday morning a cloud of cyclonic hue passed over the devastated village, following the course of the former one. This cloud threw the stricken people into a panic, but nothing except a deluge accompanied the passing of the cloud. Snyder is located in a basin formed by the foothills of the Wichita mountains. The drainage is exceedingly poor and water is standing in large pools all over the town. Excessive rains have made the country roads almost Impassable, and as a consequence the relief parties sent to the country districts have not yet fully reported the results of their investigation.

Many bodies lying in temporary morgues remained unidentified, while among the injured dozens who suffered from ugly wounds or broken limbs were without proper medical attention. Others still are missing and an exact list of the casualties is not to be had.

The most serious phase of the situation presented was the necessity for the immediate housing of the homeless and the providing of sufficient medical care for the injured. While physicians and surgeons worked at a distinct disadvantage because of lack of house room and insufficient facili

Mine and These Cause Inquiry. Springfield, Ill., dispatch: It is learned that the trip of Attorney General Stead and Assistant Attorney General Gillespie to Zeigler to investigate the explosion at Joseph Leiter's coal mine was owing to portions of the report of the state mining board and mine examiners, who investigated the explosion, in which they gave as their opinion that there was faulty construction of the mine, inasmuch as the proper quanaity of air could not be pumped into the mine and that the mine was not properly inspected. If these findings are substantlated legal proceedings may be instituted against the Zeigler Coal company for violation of the law. There was no evidence showing that the explosion was due to crime instead of accident.

Private Car Lines.

The railroads seem very willing to have the private car lines brought under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission, A railroad president is authority for the statement that lines are paid mileage, without discrimination, and the question of excessive charges is a matter for the shipper to settle with the car lines, so long as there is no law to govern their rates. Car mileage paying has been decided to be as legal as the payment of rental for property.

I watched the fading away of those last faint rays of light with intense satisfaction. Then I again mounted the stool and again looked abroad. Night had drawn her mantle over the land-not even a star gleamed in the

I listened to hear sounds outside my door, knowing my jailor must soon come with my evening meal. Yes, I had not long to wait ere I heard the shuffling footsteps of the man. He clanked his keys and gave out an apologetic sniff, the usual thing, as he neared the door of my cell. The key moved hardly in the rusty hole, was turned with a doleful sound, half shrick half groan, the door moved back.

"A little oil on the hinges, sirrah," I said, "would render it not so grating on the nerves. Faugh! Is this the food to serve a gentleman?" I added as I picked up the loaf of bread from the floor where he had set it together with a jug of water. My supper! I ordered him to take it away.

"Tis the usual prison fare," he sniffled; "if you want better you can pay for it." Then he backed toward Knowing this, he dared place before me bread and water. It broke the camel's back.

"Out of my sight, you miscrable cenegade," I cried starting up.

I waited for the cuc from him.

"His Majesty demands an audience with you, gracious sir," he said, bowthoughts. Time 'tis said passeth as ing low before me. "He grieves that through some mistake you have been

"Say no more," I replied. "I am as ever at his service."

Again he bowed, and I that knew his every expression caught the flicker of amusement in his eye.

"The horses are waiting, sir," he continued. "His Majesty expects you at Whitehall. He does not like to from your filthy cell." "Here they are, sir," the fallor answered as he took them from the boy. "Tis not my fault," he whined; "I only obey orders." "Fault or no fault, out of the way, scullion," ordered Gil.

So without any ado we passed the humbly howing apologetic fool and went down the corridor and steep flight of stalrs of the prison to the street door, which he opened.

In a circle at the entrance to the prison, bending in their saddles sat. our men of Long Haut. It was dark -few links about. I saw Torraine, who held Bunco, my horse, by the bridle, lean back and with his sword strike a link out of the hand of a man who would be too curious. Before it was extinguished I recognized the man on the horse next to him. It was Pat, my linkman.

On the outskirts of our circle another circle had formed. It was composed of the common lag of the town, the usual rabble that congregate when there was anything out of the ordinary going on.

It was dark in our immediate ring, but light enough in the outer one. In its midst I saw, heard, and recognized our old friend, the petit constable of the White Swan inn, and so did Gil. It did not need his whispered word,

In its entrance stood Rosemary Allyn.

I never saw man make quicker ["Haste," to make me leap into my time in getting through a doorway saddle, than did that jailor, although I was unarmed and he knew it, since my sword had been taken away the night of my arrest.

"You won't be so high and mighty in a fow weeks," he said, retreating down the hall.

I could not bear the looks of this bloated old hypocrite. In Cromwell's time he had been one of those to persecute any Cavalier who happened from various reasons to come under his care. To save his neck he now paid the same considerate attention to his old friends who stood to their convictions. He was intensely repulsive to me. His lank stiff hair, which no doubt was slick enough when slick hair was the fashion, now stood up about his head as it in protest against its new arrangement.

I could afford to scoff at the prison fare since I now lived on hope. Gil had said, "To-night"-it might mean many things, but to me it meant but one-that it would bring my release; how I knew not and cared less.

I was half dozing on my cot, where I had thrown myself after the exit of my jailor, when there again resounded through the corridor the noise of footsteps coming toward my cell, but accompanying those irritating ones were others. I sat up and listened. A firm heavy tread, that could belong to Gil, but did it? A shuffling lighter one, that would be my jailor, and a still lighter shuffling one the failor's help. The next thing I heard was Gil's deep voice. Ah-h-h! They were at the door.

"Be quick, man," he said, "the King knows not well how to wait upon others, while he does know how to punish insolence; such insolence, and to a favorite too, albeit a new one. O, of course, of course," be went on, as the fellow interrupted him with muttered words of protest, "you did not know; orders and so forth, For this he had won his horse, and Do you think the King publishes to to the town every time he takes a new favorite? Haste, haste man, one would think your fingers were all thumbs."

et, and the door helped by Gil's foot opened.

The constable was trying to force his way through the crowd, who had begun to suspect that all was not right. While some laughingly helped him on his way, others, while not seeming to do so, did much to impede his progress. We could hear his voice above the roar of the ever larger growing crowd, which was pushing us hard, crying, "An escape-to the res-

"Cut through them," ordered Gil. Turning we charged the crowd with drawn weapons, slapping them back with the flat of the sword, while he headed down Cheap Side.

I missed Gil from my side. I looked the direction of the constable. I saw him reach down and grasp the fellow by the nape of the neck, then swinging him high in the air, fling him over the heads of the crowd on to a mound of muck and hay which littered one side of the court yard. In a second he was back at my side, while tho crowd cheered and hallocd like mad. That was an act that they could understand without any words.

We galloped into Southwark. There had been no time for explanations. We stopped before the Tabard and all the jokes at a theater perfectly entered the tap room. Immediately a good meal was served, of which I felt in need. From the way the men | Magazine. also did justice to it, one would have thought that they had not caten since leaving Long Haut. Torraine was a hard master when there was work on hand, and he and his men had not frolicked on the way.

I soon satisfied my curiosity. I found that my linkman had not been so remiss as I had thought. He had sneaked back on the night of the arrest and following the coach in which I was confined learned where I was to be incarcerated. Hastening to Gil. he had acquainted him with the news. a prouder man, although a more execrable rider, I never saw.

Having no one to send to Long Haut for Torraine and his men whom he folt he would need, Gil had gone The key at last turned in its sock- himself. Thus while I had spent four days and as many nights in fail Truly he was a man of iron. It had fold upon him, he was many pounds lighter and his moon-like face was haggard.

While away he had left Pat to keep guard at the prison and find out which cell I occupied. This the man was able to do with a little judicious questioning. He was also to watch the movements of the arch fiend, Chief Justice Lord Jeffreys; not an arduous task, for that lord delighted in having his movements chronicled. Everything favored him. When the linkman met the party coming from Long Haut at the edge of Drury Lane-a meeting place previously decided upon-he told them that Lord Jeffreys was to pass through Epping Forest in a few hours. They posted there in hot haste to await him, while Pat was left to try and acquaint me with the fact that they hoped to effect my release. How successful he was in this you know. My lord came all unconscious of the plot on foot. His attendants were with little effort overpowered. Then my lord, who deemed the men of Long Haut highwaymen (and surely a fiercer looking lot one would travel far to find), was soon compelled to sign the paper for my release. If he felt any of that terror with which he was wont to inspire poor creatures hauled before him, it wiped out some one's debt.

They carried him some distance away from his men, and left him bound and tied in a lodge, knowing it would be hours before he would be discovered. It seems in that particular their plans had miscarried, else the constable had not appeared upon the scene.

I laughed heartily, but I poticed that Gil did not echo it. Moreover all through our talk he seemed preoccupied-something was wrong-for Gil loved to be pitted against obstacles-it was as the very breath of his nostrils- and this little episode had been too satisfactory for him not to feel clated at its outcome. Had he not met his old friend the petit constable and had he not gone down before him?

"What is it, Gil," sald I. "Bad rews, my lord," he replied. "What?" I cried.

"Yos, your father is dead," he softly answered. "Ere I had hardly begun my journey I met a man coming from Long Haut with the sad news." "When did he die?" I asked.

"The night you were arrested," he replied. "Did you see him?" I questioned.

"Yes," he said. "God rest his soul. stopped long enough for that and only that. He lies in state in the chapel. Master Basil prays over him day and night. Your father left with him his last messages for you."

"We will go on to-night," I said. But you are tired-will you not drop back and rest." "Not I," he replied.

I saw as he stretched out his legs and could scarce forbear a groan at the pain, how sore and weary he was, but I knew better than to insist.

I sat with my back to the door. I had been intent upon my supper and the tale of my release, in both of which I had taken an equal relish until hearing of my father's death I had lost both. I pushed back my chair from the table and leaning back sat thinking sadly. The men had stopped their chaffering, knowing the cause of my depression. Too late, he had died unknowing! In the land where he had gone, I wondered, if all things were made clear to him.

I was aroused from my reverie by an exclamation from Gil. I turned toward the door at which he was staring. In its entrance stood Rosemary Allyn, Lady of Felton.

Her eyes were wide and dark with excitement. Her hair was blown into wet tendrils about her face. She was flushed from exertion.

"I am come to tell you, sir," she said, "that before twenty minutes shall have passed the King's Blues will be here."

Preaching to the Deaf.

He that hath ears, let him hear, and he that is deaf can now hear by telephone, and has no excuse for staying away from church. A clergyman in Stratford, Conn., has a number of deaf persons in his congregation. He around. He had wheeled his horse in found that, curiously enough, they could understand what was said to them by telephone. So he set up a telephone apparatus on his pulpitdesk and ran wires to a pew near the front of the church. There sit the deaf, holding receivers with a light handle like that of a lorgnette. This deaf pew, however, is not necessary. Telephone connection will be made between the pulpit and any pew. A great boon to the really deaf, but rather vexatious, perhaps, to the persons who are so deaf that they can hear well, but cannot follow the sermon .-"With the Procession," Everybody's

To the Point.

For many years a traveling pealer named Luce has been a well known character in the country towns of New England. His route lies mostly within Maine and New Hampshire, where he sells, needles, pins, soap, extracts, etc., and is always a welcome guest at the isolated farmhouse where he calls. Unlike most itinerant pedlers he is a man of few words.

Last winter while driving down one of the long hills of North Conway his horse becoming frightened, ran, finally bringing up at the foot of the hill with an overturned cart, beneath which lay the unfortunate owner, unable to extricate himself from the wreck. A mountaineer approaching asked, with typical brevity, "Tight?" "No." responded the Yan-Gil had spent them in the saddle, kee, "Luce."-Harper's Weekly.

These leathers have a dull, rich luster, and are easily kept in condition. They are shown in Oxfords and evening pumps.

Pumps are again becoming generally popular as a gentleman's evening dress aboe, shown in patent and dull

Lingerie Shirts.

Every single penny that can be saved out of the dress allowance, whether it be of the smallest or largest description, should be devoted now to the purchase of lingerie shirts. Nothing is going to be more fashionable in the immediate future than white embroidered blonses, very simply made so that the embellishment that is given them is not overshadowed at all by the extravagance of the manner in which they are constructed. Shirts one mass of broderie Anglaise are modish, and shirts covered with medallions of raised embroidery with eyelot-holes here and there are equally fashionable. They look delightful with a tailor-made coat and skirt costume, and as they wash like a rag they are not really extravagantly costly purchases. Many of these lovely shirts are made in Ireland, where so much white wear is embroldered.

Lingerle hats are going to follow in the wake of shirts of this description when summer comes, and as there is nothing more charming above a girlish face, their possibilities should be stored up in cherished remembrance.

Collars for the Season.

Some of the summer shirt waists are fashioned with turn down collars, made on to the garment. Some go a little further than this and beside providing a collar on the garment, fit It with a band inside the collar so that a standing collar may be worn with it. Shirt waisis with self collars which lie next to the neck, can never soils so easily, and every time the collar got soiled or mussed the waist must journey to the tub. Many girls and women prefer the stiff linen collars with shirt waists even in the warmest weather. It is not to be denied that they look neater than any a severity about them which is not always becoming to young faces, and they are certainly uncomfortable when the thermometer is ranging toward the pinoties. And there are so many styles of pretty neckwear that one can scarcely fail to find something both suitable and pretty, outside of the regulation "stand up."

Lace to Me Much Used.

Although the lovely embroideries have taken somewhat from the popularity of lace, it will continue to be used extensively. Laco will be used for surplice bodices, which have been so popular during the winter. Some of these surplices are closed nearly all the way up, and require only a stock and the least little point of a gulmp. In these cases eyelet embroidery or Hardanger embroidery is

A Challis Gown.

Any of the new challis and slike which are shown in such fascinating shades are appropriate for this gown. Broad tucks make the waist individual, and the triple flounce skirt is one of unusual attractiveness. The gown may be made of a more serviceable nature by finishing the neck high and sleeves long.

Favored by Dressmakers. The silk warp henricitas are being taken up enthusiastically by the tailors for those dressy affairs that the Parisienne terms la made demi-failleur, as are the draps d'ete likewise.

styles as well as in the more frilly The variety of new styles for spring and flouncy output of the dressmaker, while the siciliennes and cropes are about equally used by each.

There are some charming examples in the shepherd's checks, of which the framboise tones are among the most modist. In taffetas long coats with plaited skirts are the rule for these. and the collar and cuff is deep toned velvet make for a smart finish. Just about as often as not an embroidered set is worn over the velvet, the linen being coarse or sheer, just as one may fancy.

Frock of Embroidery. The popularity of English eyelet or Broderie Anglaise has benefited the little miss as well as her mother and here is a beautiful little gown in which the exquisite work is used. Bands of insertion adorn the skirt, yoke and bertha and make a neat finish to the belt. The neck may be cut low and the sleeves made short in a puff. India mult or wash chiffon will develop this into a very dressy frock.

Linen a Strong Favorite.

Linen is leading everything-the shoer handkerchief linens for blouses and dresses, and the heavier for suits and for the stonning three-quarter coats. Some of the most stunning new embroideries are combinations of English eyelet and blind embroidery the cyclets making a sort of frame in which designs carried out in blind work are set. Linen walking skirts, embroldered simply or claborately, are making hosts of friends. linen with the big eyelets makes up some of the prettiest skirts, although dots are a close second in popularity. Lots of girls are buying plain linen sheeting and embroidering shirt walst | Truly the producers of apples need to be very popular, because the collar and skirt to match. But they're wise enough to use a simpler pattern in the skirt than on the waist, so that it fruit, can be worn with other blouses.

Short Jackets in Favor.

The every-day linen gowns, which, by the way, in colors, will be among other style of neckwear, but there is the smart summer frocks for late afternoon, are made with short jackets in preference to the long coats. They are rounded in front, not meeting by three inches, are cut up slightly at the back, have elbow sleeves, either finished with a ruffle or a slight flare. There is a turn-over collar shaped to fit the shoulder, or rather the neckband for these little jackets have long shoulder seams. It is made of linen to match or to contrast, scalloped and embroidered or finished with still another shade of the material as a binding.

Ruffles. For dressy gowns, six circular ruffles are used, slashed and rounded at the center of back and front. Some of these are narrow, others wide enough to mount to the hips. This latter skirt in any thing heavier than muslin is exceptionally pretty on a slender, slight figure. It is made in cashmere, the new crepe de chine, messaline, collegne and heavy linen.

Plain Sunshades.

Very lovely and distinctive among the clouds of trimmed and ruffled sunshades are some of a plainness amounting almost to severity. Those are of sheer white linen or mercerized cotton, with a narrow spray of flowers in raised Chinese embroidery encircling the parasol near the onter edge. The embroidery is in all-white, mercerlzed thread being used for it.

This is Heraldic, Quite.

The Victorian corselet is the name given the largest offering in beltdom. It is made of taffeta in white or a pale fint, and is very wide. In front the deep point is stiffened and there is a shaped buckle. The front is seven or eight inches wide, and is rounded at the top, where it is bordered with a ruching and decorated with lace or needlework motifs.

Coat Materials of Linen.

Linen is to be conspicuous as cost material this summer as well as in the realms of frocks, hats and parasols and some of the new linen models are exceedingly attractive.

Smart Little Coats.

Fine embroldered linens are being made up into smart little coats to be worn with skirts of plain material. The combination is most attractive The taffetas, too, are in tailor made and entirely new this season.

Use of the Mulch.

Last week in taking a trip of some scores of miles from home, I noticed a good many patches of strawberries from which the cover had been taken off and thrown between the rows for mulching purposes. The uncovered vines were looking unusually green and fine and the straw between the rows being still bright helped to set them off in delightful contrast. It reminded me of the fact that the use of the mulch is increasing. It is apparent that the time of burning old straw stacks is past. We can use them for mulch to good advantage at any time, and when the straw gets too old for that purpose it can be plowed into the soil or as a last resort can be burned.

I was up in Wisconsin last fall and saw one farm in which potatoes were being grown under the straw. The potatoes had been laid in a thoroughly firmed soll and straw thrown over them. In time they had sprouted and sent their tops above the straw while their roots had gone into the ground below. I suppose the tubers were under the straw and on top of the ground, but I could not stop to find out. At least it was another sensible use of the mulch.

I believe we are just at the beginning of using mulch in the production of farm crops, especially those of the garden. The difficulty seems to be to get a mulch that will do the work. Possibly some smart fellow will find a mulch that can be used year after year without diminution. Boards might do, but they are so expensive as to be out of the question. Bradford Haight, Belmont Co., Ohio, in Farmers' Review.

An Incident in Apple-Selling.

Apple growers frequently are placed in a position where they must sell their crop at absurdly low figpros when the market for apples is really good. We have an Illustration of this in the experience last year of the apple growers in the Champaign region of New York. The orchardists grew a large crop and tried to market it. The buyers and packers got together and held down the price to $1.25 and $1 per barrel. The barrels themselves cost 35 to 50 cents, leaving a small margin per barrel for the growers. Even at that price the middlemen refused to take some varieties of winter apples. A good many growers refused to sell at such a low growers refused their apples themfigure and keps losses from rotting selves, incurring losses from selling and shrinkage. Now they are selling their apples the best way they can at about $2 per barrel, while just across the Canadian line the people are paying $4 per barrel and are unable to get a full supply even at that price. get together and secure for themselves facilities for marketing their Cultivating the Garden.

I am in the list of those that agree that frequent cultivation of the ground in summer is a good thing. I am vory sure that there is little danger of cultivating the garden too much. The cultivation conserves the moisture. All of our garden vegetables require more water than we suspect and the amount that is permitted to escape from the surface soil is just that amount wasted.

It takes three tons of water to every bushel of potatoes produced, so the men say that have made a scientific investigation of the matter. That being the case can we wonder that we have small crops in the garden when we not only do not cultivate but do not even dig out the weeds that are drawing the nourishment up out of the ground with the water that goes into their roots?

The first object of cultivating the garden should be the destruction of weeds, and the next the destruction of the tops of the capillary tubes by which the sun and air are constantly pulling water out of the ground. James Gordon.

England Eating Bananas.

It may be Americans will not always get their bananas at as low a price as they do when they are the principal consumers. Not till four years ago did the English begin to import bananas systematically. In 1901 an English firm put on a few steamers to ply between Jamaica and England. Now they have seven engaged exclusively in the trade and three more are building. During the winter months 80,000 bunches of bananas are imported weekly and in the summer months the demand is doubled. It is estimated that as soon as the new steamers are in commission ten million bananas will be imported into England weekly. If the Continental Europeans get to eating bananas like the Americans the price to the American consumer may go up.

The Seed-Bed.

The proper preparation of the seed-bed is one way to insure success in the garden. The surface soil at least should be fined and re-fined. Many of the seeds used in the kitchen garden are so small that if the soil is not fine they are not properly covered. Small seeds cannot be covered deeply and this is an added reason for having the surface soil very

The first thing to be ascertained in connection with the kitchen garden is to find that it is properly drained.

Why Suffer From Rheumalism?

Why suffer from rheumatism when one application of Chamberlains's Pain Balm will relive the pain? The quick relief which this liniment affords makes rest and sleep possible, and that alone is worth many times the cost. Many who have used it hoping only for a short relief from suffering have been happily surprised to find that after awhile the relief became permanent, Mrs. V. H. Legget of Yum Yum, Tennessee, U. S. A., "I am a great sufferer from rheumatism, all over from head to foot, and Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that will relieve the pain." For sale by T. E. Slattery.
