IS AWARDED $1,000 DAMAGES

Mrs. Idona Green is Given Verdict in Fulton Circuit Court.

The big damage suit brought by Mrs. Idona Green, of Culver, against Andrew J. Voorhees, a saloonkeeper, of Culver, and his bondsmen, D. C. Knott and J. W. Wolford, was won in the Rochester circuit court by the plaintiff, the jury awarding her $1000, at 9:30 o'clock Friday night, after being out nearly twenty hours.

The plaintiff sued for $2000 personal injury damages. Through her attorneys Wm. Matthews and Samuel Parker, she alleged that while she, her husband and baby, were driving along the streets of Culver on Sunday, Elza Lohr, a boy yet in his teens, recklessly ran his horse into their rig, upset it and permanently injured her. She further set forth that the liquor was sold to a minor, contrary to law, and therefore the saloonkeeper or his bondsmen are responsible.

Attorney Enoch Myers was special judge in the case. Attorney Logan, of Plymouth, and Holman, of Rochester, represented the defense. This is the second trial of the case, the former jury disagreeing.—Plymouth Independent.

Hawkins-Mertel.

Mertel, one of Fostoria's well known and estimable young ladies. The wedding was a quiet one and took place in the presence of only a limited number of immediate relatives. Excellent refreshments were served, after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins will be at home at 314 south Poplar street. Fostoria Times.

What Hiram Cronk Saw.

The brevity of the history of the United States and the wonderful manner in which the nation has waxed in power and greatness are brought into striking relief when it is considered that almost its entire development up to the present time was witnessed by one man. The federal constitution was but thirteen years older than Hiram Cronk, the last pensioner of the War of 1812, who has just died. The government under the constitution was but eleven years older. When Mr. Cronk was born John Adams, the country's second president, had barely entered the fourth year of his term.

There were but sixteen states, Vermont, Kentucky, and Tennessee having been admitted since the revolution. Mr. Cronk saw twenty-nine added. The country's population was 5,000,000. He saw it grow to 80,000,000. He was three years old when Jefferson made the first addition to the country by buying Louisiana; and he saw other additions made until the original area was quintupled. As a boy of 14 he fought bravely in the weak young nation's first foreign war, he had reached the middle age when it fought with Mexico, as an old man he saw it torn with civil strife, as a patriarch he saw blue and gray fighting together to free Cuba. He heard discussed almost every political question that has agitated the country. The Missouri compromise was passed the year before he cast his first vote; free silver was the issue when he cast his last.

When a youth Mr. Cronk plied the trade of an itinerant shoemaker. He lived to see the factory system, which was unknown in America then, drive the shoemaker almost completely out of business, and along with him the weaver, the spinner, and most other independent workers on a small scale.

In plying his trade of itinerant shoemaker he walked or rode horseback. Stephen invented the locomotive in 1814, when Mr. Cronk was fighting for his country. The first railroad was finished in England eleven years afterward, when he was 25 years old. He lived to see more than 200,000 miles of railway built in the United States. He saw the oil lamp supersede the tallow dip and gas and electricity supersede the oil lamp. He saw the fast mail, the telegraph, and the telephone supplant the stage coach and postboy as the best facilities for communication.

No man ever saw more historic changes than Mr. Cronk, and it is doubtful if a man who is born now and lives 105 years will see as many.—Chicago Tribune.

Value of the Local Paper.

The local paper tells you about the things most interesting to you. It chronicles the births, deaths, marriages and neighborhood happenings of your own community. It tells about the contemplated public improvements, the news of the shops and factories of the region—everything that goes to make up the sum of your daily life. A property owner who does not keep posted by taking the local paper cheats himself. A citizen of any community who considers himself public-spirited will justify his claim with difficulty unless he is a subscriber. A newspaper is the cheapest thing on earth. By means of the printing press thousands can have the results on the work of a few men.

The local happenings of a large territory including your home and its surroundings are of greater interest to any man than anything else on earth. If not they should be. This intelligence is delivered to your home each week for three cents. Is it not worth it? Can you afford to do without it? As a citizen, a householder, a property holder, a business man—your duty to yourself demands that you subscribe for the local paper. If neither of these get it, tell the proprietor that he is neglecting his duty to his customers, and patronize a live one.

The local paper does more to build up a community than any other industry. The local paper contributes a greater proportion to charity than any other local business enterprise. If your local paper is worthy the name, don't insult your intelligence by neglecting to read it. If it is no good start one yourself and thereby confer a blessing on the community, for a place without a local paper is in a sad way.—Argos Reflector.

Why Men are Bald.

We were in the society of many curates and old maids at an English tea party. The conversation turned on the question, "Does the wearing of hats make men bald?" One grave and unworldly old curate opened and closed—the discussion by saying, "Not hats, dear friends, but shirts. Now, you will have noticed that a man takes off his shirt over his head, thereby dragging the hair out of his head by the roots, whereas a woman—here three tea cups dropped.

Good Roads Bring Trade.

The South Bend Tribune says: Every farmer, every business man, it matters not in what part of the United States he resides, should take a lively interest in the good roads movement, says a writer. There are few matters of such vital interest to the farmers and the merchants of each and every town are just as much interested. Good well kept roads leading to a town are sure to bring trade that otherwise would go to some other place.

Then good roads mean economy; cost less for repairs, consequently lower taxation; means that teams can haul loads from 50 to 200 per cent greater, and mean less wear and tear on horses and wagons. If there are poor roads in any section the people may well start a movement to improve them, doing the community a service worthy of highest commendation.

A Good Law.

Here is one of the many acts passed by the late legislature and it will be wisdom if all concerned will carefully peruse it and act accordingly. "Whoever, being a tenant, with intent to defraud his landlord, unlawfully disposes of, or applies or converts to his own use, without authority or consent of such landlord, so much of the crop growing or raised on the leased premises as belongs to the landlord, under his contract of leasing with such tenant is guilty of embezzlement, and on conviction shall be imprisoned in the state prison not less than one year nor more than three."

James Whitecomb Riley's "Old Swimm' Hole" in Hancock county may be wiped out unless the citizens of Greenfield are successful in their efforts to prevent the spoliation. Property owners along Brandywine creek near Greenfield are attempting to get a court order which will enable them to straighten the creek. If this is done, the "Old Swimm' Hole," made famous by the Hoosier poet, will lose its identity.

An ice cream social was given for the benefit of the band, on Henry Spyer's lawn Friday night. The numerous lights, decorated tables and gay, improvised band stand lent quite a festive air to the grounds. The concert given by the band did much toward attracting a large crowd and a neat sum was netted for them. The band boys appreciate the efforts of the young ladies who had charge and who did so much toward making a decided success of the affair.

The colored minister who was invited to pray for the New York legislature will not be invited again. He prayed that the Almighty would guide the Assembly through life and bring the members safely to "that general assembly where Jesus Christ is the speaker and business is transacted without graft or the dictation of a lobby." So many of the members took it as a personal reflection that they were too nervous to do business the rest of the day. Bryan's Commoner.

This will be welcome news to the management of the Academy and may (?) receive their approval as the dumping of excursionists upon the grounds would aid in maintaining discipline and the beauty and cleanliness of the campus.

LITTLE CHANGE IN TRADE WORLD

Teamsters' Strike Is Still a Detering Factor in Business at Chicago.

DEMAND FOR STAPLES IS GOOD

Country Merchants Are Making Satisfactory Sales, Remittances Being Prompt, but City Dealers Are Fighting With Labor Unions.

Chicago dispatch: The weekly review of Chicago trade published by R. G. Dun Co. says:

"The hurtful influence of the protracted teamsters' strike again seriously affected business in the distributing lines, and broken weather also was an adverse factor. Notwithstanding these hindrances, deliveries improved and accumulations of delayed freight were reduced. Production remains heavy, and some of the largest users of metals and wood added to their forward orders. New demands appeared for considerable finished materials, and in addition to the extension of heavy construction much new building is contemplated by current permits.

Wholesale Trade Improves. "With the ability to ship more promptly the wholesale departments obtained fair bookings in general dry goods, clothing, footwear and foodstuffs. Earnings of western railroads have kept up close to recent gains. The movement exceeds that of a year ago in iron ore and products, lumber, hides, live stock and provisions. With farmers busy tilling the soil, it is not surprising that the marketing of grain exhibits a sharp falling off and poorer demand may account for shipments from this port, 19.4 per cent under those of corresponding week last year. Country stores are seen to be making satisfactory sales of reasonable wares, and although mercantile defaults show an increase, collections occasion little complaint.

Gain in Manufactures. "Manufacturing, as a whole, has not encountered any retrogression. The consumption of iron and steel appears to be steadily expanding, when it is considered that production is forced almost to the limit of capacity and surplus stocks are very light. Receipts of iron ore exceed all previous records and commitments were increased in shipbuilding, rails, cars, structural iron and heavy machinery. The market was steady in prices for both hides and leather, reflecting good demand, and fair orders were placed with the shoe factories for fall output.

Grain Receipts. "Grain receipts were 1,581,833 bushels, against 1,981,485 bushels a year ago, and the shipments, 2,787,352 bushels, compared with 3,459,789 bushels. Privileges remain in good demand. Export orders bring more numerous. Compared with the closing a week ago prices are higher, in wheat 5 cents per bushel, corn 1/2 cents, oats, 1/2 cent, pork 25 cents per barrel, lard 5 cents, ribs 2 1/2 cents, and lower in choice hedges 30 cents a hundredweight, and hogs and sheep each 10 cents.

"Failures reported in the Chicago district number thirty-three, against fifteen last week and twenty-four a year ago."

NOTED MASON COMMITS SUICIDE

Archibald McLellan, too Old to Continue Work, Puts Bullet in Heart.

Chicago, special: Believing he was too old to satisfactorily continue his duties, Archibald McLellan, 71 years old, one of the best known Masons in the United States, ended his life at the desk he had long used in a room on the nineteenth floor of the Masonic Temple. A bullet wound, close to the heart, terminated fifteen years of faithful service to his order in the office of Gil W. Barnard, grand secretary of the Free and Accepted Masons of Illinois. Occupants of the adjoining offices heard the shot and Miss Louisa Startts, a stenographer, was the first to reach the dying man's side. Before a physician arrived McLellan expired.

DETECTIVES ARE SLAIN WHEN BOMB EXPLODES

Workingman Stumbles on Edge of Walk at Warsaw and Dies With Officials He Sought to Evade.

Warsaw cablegram: While attempting to escape the observation of two detectives here Friday a workingman stumbled on the edge of a sidewalk and a bomb which he was carrying in his pocket exploded, killing him and the two detectives and injuring twenty-three persons.

The authorities are convinced that the bomb was intended for the governor general. He was attending the services at the cathedral, which is situated a few yards from the scene of the explosion. All the high officials and members of Russian society here also were present. The governor general had recently been threatened with a bomb attack, particularly since the May day disturbances.

After the officials had entered the cathedral detectives observed a poorly dressed man loitering in the vicinity. The explosion occurred only a minute before the people commenced to pour out of the cathedral. Three minutes later the governor general would have passed the spot.

The injured included three women, one student and two schoolboys. One of the latter is detained at the police station, having been noticed warning people against going near the scene of the explosion.

This outrage is the sixth of similar character in Warsaw since the January disturbances.

The man who was carrying the bomb was identified as a Polish shoemaker named Dobrowski, a member of the violent section of the socialists.

SEALING VESSEL CREW IN PRISON IN URUGUAY

Canadian Ship Is Seized for Violating the Laws, the Officers Being Given Penal Sentences.

Halifax, N. S., dispatch: The Nova Scotia sealing schooner Agnes G. Ottawa, Ont., May 18.—R. L. Borden brought up in the house Wednesday the seizure of the sealer Agnes G. Donahoe by the government of Uruguay for alleged seal poaching in territorial waters. The owners claim the vessel was seized on the high seas. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the premier, said in reply that all the government could do was to make representations to the British government.

The car turned over on its side and was dragged for about four car lengths. Conductor M. A. Shields, in charge of the train, reported that no one was seriously injured. The passengers were transferred to the Cincinnati sleeper and the train proceeded after a physician was taken on the train to look after any injuries.

The following were slightly injured: Mrs. Fred H. Whipple, C. P. Laimpman, N. H. Van Meter, J. J. Gussfield, all of Chicago; E. S. McCoy, Battle Creek, Mich.; A. C. Kieffer, Indianapolis, Ind.; I. N. Treadwell, Indianapolis, Ind.

REVISE POLICY REGARDING CANAL

Panama Supplies Will Be Bought at Home Until Action by Congress.

LISTEN TO SPEAKER CANNON

President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft Yield to Leader's Plea in Order to Avoid a Split in Ranks of the Party.

Washington special: The president and Secretary Taft have reconsidered their determination to purchase canal construction supplies in foreign markets whenever it was found that they could be bought more cheaply there than at home.

Speaker Cannon took a hand in the affair as the champion of the exclusively American purchases, no matter at what price, and so vigorously were his arguments and so threatening his declaration that the announced policy would, if carried out, cause a disastrous split in the party that he virtually brought Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft to his terms.

Congress to Decide.

Under the agreement congress will decide whether the Panama purchases shall be made in the open market or confined to home manufacturers. Mr. Cannon promising an early decision. Until then only such supplies as are immediately needed, which will be comparatively small, will be bought and no foreign built ships will be purchased.

There is no limit as to where the materials that will be required during the next five months shall be bought, but it is understood that foreign purchases will be avoided if at all possible. Mr. Cannon calls this decision a victory; the president and Mr. Taft speak of it as a compromise, involving only a concession to the high protectionists. They say that the president accomplished his purpose by "throwing a scare into those who regard the tariff as sacred," which they profess to believe will result in the modification of some of the schedules at the next session of congress.

Cannon Sees Taft.

Mr. Cannon was very much in earnest when he started out on his campaign. He called first on Mr. Roosevelt. The president turned him over to Mr. Taft, after explaining that he had no desire to stir up internal dissensions, but that he thought it was time to do something. Mr. Taft said the same thing, adding that if congress was afraid to assume responsibility he was not. He said congress had twice refused to speak out in favor of American concerns, and drew on the war department records to prove his statement.

Mr. Taft said, with some warmth, that if this double negative action meant anything, it was that American firms were not to be favored at a financial sacrifice. Mr. Cannon admitted the inaction of congress, but in extenuation pleaded campaign necessities and other considerations. He said that now that the subject had been brought right to the front there was no doubt that congress would speak out plainly in favor of American manufactures, and he pleaded that it be given another chance as matter of urgent party expediency.

Promises Early Action.

He promised that if his wishes were acceded to he would see that the question is brought up as soon as congress meets in October and promptly settled.

One result of the new arrangement will be to put new life into the movement for a ship subsidy. The advocates of that measure already are lining up their forces, and are confident of success, for they argue if congress directs that American manufactures be favored in the purchase of canal supplies it cannot refuse to favor American ship owners.

LAND BATTLE IS IMMINENT

Japanese Are Advancing in Three Columns Upon Positions of Russians.

CZAR'S SCOUTS IN THE DARK

Oyama Veils Movements of His Forces by Making Feints at Enemy's Left, Which Is Thought to Cover Deeper Purpose.

Tokio cablegram: News from Manchuria indicates that a battle is imminent. The Russians occupy a line forty-two miles long from Yehhoehing to Haidosien, by way Supingschien, where they have good defensive positions, strongly entrenched.

The Japanese are advancing in three columns from Kaiyuan, Changtufu, and Fakumen. In the eastern field the Russians, who retreated from Tungshan and Singking after the battle of Mukden, rallied at Wanghaothe, forty miles north of Tungsha, but subsequently withdrew north of their advanced position, being now at Linhoehen, fifteen miles north of Wangkaote. Their main position is at Hailungching, where Gen. Paterloff commands. A battle is expected soon at this place also.

Apparently the columns that are advancing along the Fakumen, Changtufu and Kaiyuan roads must encounter a strong line of Russian positions along the range of hills and the high river banks about ten miles southwest of Fenghwa.

The Russian front extends for twenty miles on both sides of the railway. The opposing front extends for twenty miles on both sides of the railway. The opposing armies are in close touch.

Japs Ready to Attack.

Gunshu Pass cablegram: The Japanese are showing every evidence of preparation to assume the offensive, constantly shifting positions and pressing the Russian left, where the cavalry forces are daily exchanging shots. The demonstration on the Russian left, however, is probably only a feint to cover the real stroke at the right. This is thought more probable because of the care with which the Japanese are screening the movements on their left, using Chinese bandits freely for this purpose. The attempts of the Russian scouts to pierce the curtain have not been successful. Profiting by past experience a new system for the transportation of wounded men from the battlefield by means of pack horses has been organized. Experiments have shown good results.

Tells of Outpost Attacks.

St. Petersburg cable: A dispatch from Gen. Linevitch says: "A small detachment of the enemy on May 16 occupied Yandi pass on the front of the armies. The Japanese also attempted to occupy Shahotse, but were repulsed and retired southward. The same day the Japanese approached Honukhu, about six miles south of Taul, but were forced to retire."

Battle May Be Delayed.

Paris cablegram: The apparently complete disappearance of the Russian far eastern fleet leads to the belief either that a battle is imminent or that Admiral Rojestvensky has succeeded in establishing a naval base. On the other hand, it is pointed out here that the position of the fleet May 16 in latitude 13:30 and longitude 111:30 indicate that it might have been decided to follow a course north of Luzon into the Pacific instead of going through the straits of Formosa, where Admiral Togo is believed to be waiting Admiral Rojestvensky.

It is maintained the Japanese difficulties have been increased by their inability to determine whether the Russians are proceeding unitedly or have divided their fleet into two squadrons. Some experts maintain that the fleet has been divided for the purpose of permitting one division to reach Vladivostok, while the other occupies the attention of Admiral Togo.

WASTE BY FOREST FIRES.

Average Annual Destruction Amounts to an Enormous Sum.

The average destruction by forest fires in this country is estimated at $25,000,000 or more annually. It is impossible to prevent all this waste—in some respects the worst that fire can cause, because it takes years to replace it—just as it is impossible to establish conditions whereby all other forms of property shall be protected against this agent of destruction, but it undoubtedly is possible to enforce a policy or policies to very appreciably reduce the danger and the loss if once the public is brought to realize the gravity of the situation. In Germany and France these experiences are guarded against in large measure, because the governments have strict forestry laws, and the forests are well policed and vigilantly cared for. Here the general government can do little except on its own preserves and the work of protection must be left to the states, which as yet do not seem to have risen to a sense of their responsibilities.—Boston Transcript.

Back at Work Again.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 22nd.—(Special)—Crippled by Kidney Disease till he could not stand on his feet for the hours required at his trade, F. R. McLean, 90 East Ferry St., this city, had to quit work entirely. Now he's back at work again and he does not hesitate to give the credit to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Yes," Mr. McLean says "I was too bad, I had to quit. I could not stand on my feet for the necessary hours. It was Kidney Disease I had, and a friend advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I did so and after using six boxes am completely cured and am working as steadily as before I was sick. I recommend Dodd's Pills to any one afflicted with Kidney trouble."

GRIP'S UGLY SEQUEL

KNEES STIFF, HANDS HELPLESS, RHEUMATISM NEAR HEART.

Mrs. Van Scoy Experiences Dangerous After-Effects from Grip and Learns Value of a Blood Remedy.

The grip leaves behind it weakened vital powers, thin blood, impaired digestion and over-sensitive nerves—a condition that makes the system an easy prey to pneumonia, bronchitis, rheumatism, nervous prostration, and even consumption.

The story told by scores of victims of the grip is substantially the same. One was tortured by terrible pains at the base of the skull; another was left tired, faint and in every way wretched from anemia or scantiness of blood; another had horrible headaches, was nervous and couldn't sleep; another was left with weak lungs, difficulty in breathing and acute neuralgia. In every case relief was sought in vain until the great blood-builder and nerve-tonic, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, was used. For quickness and thoroughness of action nothing is known that will approach it.

Mrs. Van Scoy makes a statement that supports this claim. She says:

"I had a severe attack of grip and, before I had fully recovered, rheumatism set in and tormented me for three months. I was in a badly run-down state. Soon after it began I was so lame for a week that I could hardly walk. It kept growing steadily worse and at last I had to give up completely and for three weeks I was obliged to keep my bed. My knees were so stiff I couldn't bend them, and my hands were perfectly helpless. Then the pains began to threaten my heart and thoroughly alarmed me.

"While I was suffering in this way I chanced to run across a little book that told about the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The statements in it impressed me and led me to buy a box. These pills proved the very thing I needed. Improvement set in as soon as I began to take them, and it was very marked by the time I had finished the first box. Four boxes made me a well woman."

Mrs. Laura M. Van Scoy lives at No. 20 Thorpe street, Danbury, Conn. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are equally well adapted for any other of the diseases that follow in the train of grip. They are sold by all druggists.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Affray at the Tabard.

The words, "The King's Blues will be here," had hardly fallen from her lips before Gil had turned and given a command to Torraine. He found the fellow (and he was not the only one) staring in open-eyed and open-mouthed admiration at Lady Felton; at her lovely shoulders and arms gleaming like ivory through the yellow lace of her gown. Her cloak had slipped from off them. Small blame to him; does not a strong man always admire a beautiful woman?

It required a sharp kick, which Gil meant to be secretly given, but was only too evident, to make him pull himself together and drop his eyes abashed before Gil's stern ones. His consternation and loud "ouch!" caused the men to laugh; even the lady smiled. Upon which he heartened himself to another peek, but Gil would have none of that. He marshaled the men quickly and hastened their exit from the room.

Gil was following, but when he heard the next words of Lady Felton's he stopped.

"One of your men betrayed you," she said.

"Tis Jim Scrugs, the traitor!" Gil cried, and he put himself through the opening after Torraine and his men. I felt pity stir within me for the fellow, traitor though he was. I knew what the reckoning would be when he should meet Gil.

"You are wet, Lady Felton, come nearer the fire," I said, and took her hand in mine.

"Did you not understand me?" she queried with dilated eyes. "I said the guards would be here in twenty minutes or less."

"Twenty minutes is a long time," I answered as I drew her before the fire and seated her.

"Was your prison then so enjoyable you would court it again?" she asked.

"God forbid!" I muttered. "I am afraid you will take cold—you are wet." I touched her dress lightly with my hand.

"Poof, no, only my cloak," she said;

"There was no one," she replied. "Nell would never have forgiven me if word had not been gotten to you."

"Nell's a charming creature," said I stung by my lady's way of putting it.

"Charming indeed," she admitted loyally. Then: "I see, sir, that you, too, follow the fashion set by the King. Wouldst rival him? Have a care."

"Rival the King?" I exclaimed. "Not I."

"You would not be the only one. Really she has enough lovers," she said, with a shamed lilt in her voice.

"Amou to that," I said fervently. "She and Lady Felton have between them, 'tis said, scoured all London till there is not a creature upon two legs but swears fidelity to either one or the other. London is agog with their amours. In Nell's case it may be true, but as for Rosemary Allyn, Lady of Felton, I think she is proud to give her lips to be kissed by any one but the man she loves."

I looked down deep into her heart through clear mirrors, and what I saw made me tingle through all my being responsive.

"I believe you are right, sir," she said. Then—"But I have not told you how Nell found out that the inn was to be surrounded and you recaptured, and I must hurry, the time will soon be up. You must know first that there are high doings at Whitehall to-night—a dance, and then the King dines with Mistress Nell. Poor me is kept at home. 'In sooth,' sayeth ma tante, 'it is not seeming in an Allyn to take up with all the wild doings of a disolute court.'" She mimicked Lady Dwight to a nicety. "So I am kept at home as close as a babe in swaddling clothes. Moreover she has heard rumors that the King has cast his eye upon a new face which suits his fancy. It was at the last ball that the King commanded that I dance with him, so she draws her inference from this, that mine must be the face he admires. Her eyes are ever upon me and I am kept from court functions, lest I fall a victim to his Majesty's fascinations. She regards Mistress Nell with slight favor, and as for Lady Castlemaine she is quite be-

"Nell tried to make the King still see it in the light of a joke," she continued. "She brought her most daring mimicry into play; but cajoled she ever so much it was of no avail. The gross insult to his Majesty must be avenged. He gave the order for your rearrest. Nell, finding she could not turn the King from his set purpose, sent me word by Mister Arnold, who wished to come with me, but I insisted upon his going back, for after your escape some one might remember that he had left the ball room and that he was your friend." She had finished.

"It is a rare delight to me to see you, and I thank you," I said, "but you should have let him come with you; it was a dangerous thing to do."

"Twenty minutes, as you said, is a long time," she merely observed, "and it must be nearly up."

"Twenty minutes is all too short for me," I returned. "I would have it twenty times twenty, and times that again—and so as to stretch those minutes somewhat I shall take you home."

"Torraire can escort the lady back and meet us at the marsh west of the town," put in Gil as if he had settled the question. "The horses are at the south wall, by the old well. It lacks a few minutes of the time."

"You have planned very well, Gil," said I, "save in one particular, I, not Torraire, will take the lady back to town."

"No, no," Rosemary cried; "Gil is right. You might be captured on the way."

I smiled at her, nor was I to be persuaded from my purpose. Gil opened his mouth to argue the point, but I cried:

"Quick, they are here—sure of your men. They are evidently sure of their man, they come with so robust a tread."

He rushed from the room. I blew out the light. Taking both the lady's cloak and my own, I grasped her hand. Thus we followed mine host of the Tabard through a pantry door, down the kitchen garden path to the south wall, where he immediately left us, hastening back.

Rosemary and I, standing hand in hand, heard the clash of steel upon steel as Torraire and his jolly boys met the King's Blues. The voice of Torraire rose above it all, growling like a bear over a carcass. With Gil it was different. He never uttered an unnecessary word—a name called sharply, a jesture or wave of his sword was enough to the men, who knew him.

I understood affairs. Gil was keeping the men from entering the inn as long as possible. Presently we heard the crash of the heavy oaken door, accompanied by a shout. The Guards rushed for the tap room.

I felt Rosemary's hand tremble in mine. I pressed her fingers warmly to reassure her, and now considered it time to mount our horses, which we could barely discern in the gathering fog. The mizzic had ceased.

What happened after the King's Blues forced the tap room door. I learned later from Gil. He chose from among our men one about my height, and had him in the tap room almost as soon as I had left it. He told him to stand where the firelight would throw his shadow out upon the wall, so that those outside might see it. The Guards advancing saw and immediately fell into the trap. They shouted with loud cries of exultation, as they rushed for the doors and windows.

When the Blues entered, the man, as if taken by surprise, made a dash for the kitchen. The crowd clattered after him. He led them a lively dance about the kitchen, knocking down pots and pans. Being a fellow of resources, and minding Gil's instructions that he should keep the crowd at bay as long as possible, he slid into the cellar, and banging down the door after him clamped it.

MIKADO'S ADVICE TO BOYS.

Wise Precepts Laid Down By Seemingly Enlightened Ruler.

In view of the astounding progress of Japan it is interesting to recall the following rescript which was issued by the emperor to the Japanese schools some fifteen years ago: "Be filial to your parents and affectionate to your brothers; be loving friends; conduct yourselves with modesty and be benevolent to all. Develop your intellectual faculties and perfect your moral powers by gaining knowledge and acquiring a profession. Promote public interests and advance public affairs. Ever respect the national constitution and obey the laws of the country, and, in case of necessity, courageously sacrifice yourselves to the public good." Recent events have proved that the last injunction at least was taken to heart by the youth of Japan.—The Graphic.

The Main Thing.

"A village client of mine had been trying through me for seven years to collect a claim against the government," said the lawyer, "and at last the claim was allowed and I received a check for $8,000."

"As the man was poor I knew that this would be a great windfall for him and it was with considerable exultation that I put the check in my pocket and started for the house. The man himself was away somewhere, but as his wife answered my knock I showed her the check and called out:

"At last, Mrs. Davis—at last!"

"What is it?" she asked.

"The claim has been allowed and here is a check for $8,000."

"Yes, I see," she answered, "but please don't talk quite so loud or you will wake the baby up!"

In Women's Interests

Some New Styles.

Shot effects promise to be popular, not only for evening wear but for day gowns. Shaded fabrics, also, are considered good style. This effect is being shown in blouses; a shaded chiffon is used, the top of the blouse, gathered full into a lace yoke or a high collar, being of the deepest tone, and gradually diminishing to the waist, and the sleeves reversing in progress of tint, with the full puffed tops of the darker tone, and the frills below the elbow of the lighter one. A pink shaded from a delicate sunset hue to almost flame was employed in one such model; and another was done in shades of mauve. In shot materials, from mauve to blue is a favorite combination, and so is from pink to pale purple; green toning to pink is also a pretty commonplace effect, and gray shot with golden yellow is effective in small portions, such as for a blouse rather than a full costume. Chiffon, thin woolen materials, and silks are all appearing with shot effects. Black velvet ribbon is still the trimming most in request for somewhat bright fabrics, when used as blouses, and also for white lace, chiffon, or soft silk; there is nothing to equal the touch of black. It seems, curiously, both to tone down and bring out all the value of the color. A deep pointed or swathed belt, criss-crossed closely with narrow black velvet ribbon, is one simple way of applying the touch. Rosettes or light centered little bows in black velvet again are excellent, sprinkled down the front and on the sleeves with discretion and taste.

New Laces.

The new laces are very interesting, especially the guipures, which are exceptionally bold in their effect and really look, when planted on a fabric, more like very thick, coarse embroidery.

The embroidery idea seems immensely influencing the laces of the moment, and the quantities of net laces are patterned to imitate embroidery.

In those laces that are formed partly of lawn and partly of guipure or net the embroidered effect enters largely; and here again, in the matter of laces, every taste is consulted.

Either very bold, coarse laces, or very fine laces suit, and just now there are both; while the bold laces are extra bold the dainty laces are extra dainty. Truly is Fashion in sympathetic mood. And with the laces there is lots of that openwork embroidery that the Parisians call broderie Anglaise; and this broderie Anglaise trimming (it can't be classed as a lace, but will be used as a lace) is being very much favored by the Parisian folk.

Tips for Short-Waisted Girl.

The short-waisted woman should always favor vest-dressed bodices, not yoked ones; she should likewise rejoice over the revival of the high sleeve, which gives greater length to the appearance when in conjunction with a fitting bodice than did the drooping sleeve. She would be wise, also, to have her waistbands made deep, but so cut that they descend more over the hips than they rise above the waist line, a precautionary measure very easy to attain with the deeply pointed belts in front.

Suit of Gray Taffeta.

The popularity of the surplice bodice lines is apparent in everything from street frock to evening gown. The model is not only pretty and becoming, but within the scope of the home dressmaker.

In this suit the skirt is one of the newest shaping, circular on sides and back and with fullness gathered back of the narrow front edge. On the bodice the V-shaped opening is filled in with a plastron of tacked silk and a tucker and stock of heavy all-over lace. A double puff forms the sleeves, gathered to a band of lace ending just below the elbow. The girle is of the material.

The Suspender Gown.

The suspender gown is new in name and design and sure to please the younger contingent of the fashionable world, as these gowns give a remarkably youthful appearance to the wearer. A gown of this sort is particularly charming when made of fine checked silk in one of the pale shades, with guipure and sleeves of finest white batiste. This model was made from pink and white checked silk and the collar and cuffs formed of white batiste and Valenciennes lace. The hat worn with it is pink chip, with soft white silk scarf and pink coque pompon.

Brown Silk Costume.

Brown taffeta was used to make another costume, which is extremely simple, but effective. The skirt is full and finished at the bottom with three deep tucks. The tucker front of the bodice is all-over cream lace, outlined by a shaped piece of velvet, which meets the deep girle of the same material. Velvet also makes the unique cuffs on the sleeves, and is of a contrasting shade of brown.

Gold Hair Nets.

Falling to devise anything original, certain leaders of fashion are seeking back through hundreds of years to single out some antique style and appropriate it as their own. Just now it is the "Juliet net." It is woven of slender golden strands, with many tiny jewels entangled in its meshes. As a head dress for evening wear it is becoming highly popular and more than one beauty who has graced a theater box within the last week has worn such a gleaming mesh around her low coiffure. The effect in every instance was so pretty that the wearers divided attention with the stage players. As it was such a net that on snared Romeo, it still may possess some of its old subtle charm.

Serges to Be Much Worn.

Serges have taken on a new lease of life, as well as new fineness and suppleness, and will be worn more than in many seasons. The severe tight-fitting tailor coat in half and three-quarter length demands a maker of ability and a wearer of excellent figure, but given this combination, it is an exceedingly smart and elegant garment. In the model shown the skirt is laid in small plaits at intervals over hips, forming a panel front, and on the coat there are two plaits on each side, running from shoulder to bottom. A similar treatment is given to the otherwise plain sleeve. Green velvet is used for the flat collar.

Jackets, Skirts and Long Coats.

The jackets and skirts seem equally divided between the bolero, which has large sleeves to the elbow, and the long coat with regular men's sleeves to the wrist. With those coats plaited skirts are not becoming, but with boleros they are the prettiest. And, after all, nothing is nicer than a semi-plaited skirt, devoid of trimming.

Delicious long cloaks with enormous flowing sleeves and with a stole of embroidery are made up unlined, of painted chiffon or crepe, and worn over a lace underdress, cut low at the throat. This idea dates straight from pompadour days, as does all our coloring of the year.

Here's Caprice in Colors.

There is an exquisite new shade in silks called wood of the rose. It is in reality the reddish tint of the rose stem. This new tone is winning admiration every day, the color being ideal for day toilets.

Chameleon taffetas are simply stunning for either street or house gowns, the golden browns and olive greens being the special colorings most liked.

New Shirtwaist Suits.

The new shirtwaist suits are evolving new uses. Made in fluffier fashions and with greater elaboration than the severities of a year ago, they have a dressiness that equips them for flatter and dressier and more elaborate occasions. There are now shirtwaist suits and shirtwaist suits, for morning and afternoon shopping and visiting wear.

Triple Ribbon Appears.

A new ribbon has appeared which has three thicknesses, each of a different shade, all of which are held together by a single border, so that when drawn up they compose a triple ruffle. The same ribbon in rather wide widths makes into rosettes, and it is in this form that it will be most in demand for trimming hats.

You'll Like This Lace.

Among the new laces is Swiss batiste, delicate and sheer, with Irish point combinations.

WORTH REMEMBERING.

There are three entirely different kinds of ingredients used in making the three different varieties of baking powders on the market, viz:—(1) Mineral-Acid or Alum, (2) Bone-Acid or Phosphate, and (3) Cream of Tartar made from grapes. It is important, from the standpoint of health, to know something about these ingredients, and which kind is used in your baking powder.

(1) Mineral-Acid, or Alum, is made from a kind of clay. This is mixed with diluted oil of vitriol and from this solution a product is obtained which is alum. Alum is cheap; costs about two cents a pound, and baking powder made with this Mineral-Acid sells from 10 to 25c. a pound.

(2) Bone-Acid, or Phosphate, is the basis of phosphate baking powders and the process is fully described in the patents issued to a large manufacturer of a phosphate powder. The U. S. Patent Office Report gives a full and exact description, but the following extract is enough:

"Burned bones, after being ground, are put into freshly diluted oil of vitriol and with continual stirring and in the following proportion," etc.

From this Bone-Acid phosphate baking powders are made; such powders sell from 20 to 30 cents a pound.

(3) Cream of Tartar exists in all ripe grapes, and flows with the juice from the press in the manufacture of wine. After the wine is drawn off the tartar is scraped from the cask, boiled with water, and crystals of Cream of Tartar, white and very pure, separate and are collected. It differs in no respect from the form in which it originally existed in the grape. Cream of Tartar, then, while the most expensive, is the only ingredient that should be used in a baking powder to act upon the soda, as its wholesomeness is beyond question. Cream of Tartar baking powders sell at about 40 to 50 cents a pound.

Such are the facts, and every one, careful of the health of the family, should remember this rule:—Baking powders selling from 10 to 25 cents a pound are made of Mineral-Acids; those selling from 20 to 30 cents of Bone-Acid; and those from 40 to 50 cents of Cream of Tartar made from grapes.

The President's Salute.

The president's salute consists of twenty-one guns and why this particular number was hit upon has been the cause of much speculation. One solution, more clever than probable, is that when the revolution took place the nation was considered able to shift for itself, hence, twenty-one. Another is that figures of the year of the Declaration of Independence, 1776, when added together make of total of 21. The royal salute in England is also twenty-one guns, having been originally seven, which number fired three times for the three political divisions makes the total.

SIMPLE WALL DECORATIONS.

New Material and New Ideas for the Decoration of Homes.

The styles of home decorations have completely changed in the last few years, and it is pleasant to say that they have changed for the better. Time was when we hung monstrous patterns printed on paper against our walls, and considered them more or less pleasantly. It would hardly be fair to say that we considered them beautiful or artistic. But they were the vogue and were put on. The time has come when, with our better methods for interior decoration, better effects can be secured.

In wall coverings, whether they be of paint, or of kaolin, or of Alabastine—whatever the material used to cover the wall—the thing desired is that which has the greatest covering power, as well as permanency and beauty of color. Alabastine, a wall covering ground from Alabaster rock—which means a hard white rock—is the ideal covering for a wall.

The most beautiful wall decorations in the world are those which are laid on with the brush. The mural designs in our large public buildings, and the frescoed designs in the large cathedrals and churches, have a permanency and an art of which wall paper is but a cheap imitation. These mural schemes and frescoed designs can be brought within the reach of the every day home. They can be done with Alabastine, which is permanent in its coloring. It does not rub off, and it has the soft effect of pastel.

A great many people defer the re-decoration of their rooms not only because of the expense but because of the discomfort of it. With Alabastine there need be no discomfort and there can be no muss, for all that is needed is to lay a sheet or canvas on the floor, have your man come in with a pail, make the solution and simply brush it on the wall. That is all there is to it, and the room is perfectly clean and thoroughly renovated.

Natural Conclusion.

Tess—How do you know she's going to marry Mr. Hearnley for his money?

Jess—She told me so.

Tess—You don't mean to say she admitted she was going to marry him for his money?

Jess—Same thing; she told me she was going to marry him.

Every man has a streak of genius in him—only a streak, mind you.

I drew her before the fire and seated her.

"I'm as dry—as an empty glass." She glanced at the array of empty bottles and glasses still upon the table.

"How stupid of me," I cried, and rapping on the table I ordered wine and supper for the lady.

"No, no, only a glass of wine," she said. "I am thirsty with the ride."

"I should think you well might be," said I.

I poured her a glass of wine which the landlord immediately brought. As I held her cloak before the flame to dry it I devoured her sweet face with eager eyes.

I would have taken her hand again, but I saw that my proud lady would have no love making in a tavern. Indeed her eyes looked so coldly into mine I wondered if perchance I had dreamed dreams and seen visions four nights ago in that old mansion of Lord Felton's?

"I take it as a great honor, Lady Felton, that you should have ridden all this distance to warn me," I said finally.

"Put not the credit upon my shoulders," she returned, and she shrugged those adorable ones set about with lace. "It was forced upon me. I could scarce help but come when so sweet an one as Nell Gwyn sent me word, and asked me to see that you had warning. Indeed, I would not have come even for her—she may take care of her own lovers; I have oft told her that sitting upon so many stools she'll even find herself upon the floor some day—but the night being fine and I wanted a ride to blow away the megrims."

I was amused at my sweetheart. She was piqued about something. At my look of incredulity—I glanced at the window where the rain beat against the pane with a clicking sound—she instantly added:

"Oh, it has only been raining a short time. Moreover Dream House was so dreary; Aunt Elaine had gone to bed, that I was like to die of ennui, so I welcomed Nell's message."

"You need make no more excuses, Lady Felton," I retorted. "Could you not have sent some one?"

yond the pale. Well to continue, in the early hours of the ball the room was agog with a scandal. Lord Jeffrey had been halted in Epping forest by a gang of men—highwaymen, and made to sign a paper it was supposed for a large sum of money. They left him tied and gagged in the Forest Lodge, not a very dignified manner for his lordship. A message revealing this state of affairs somehow came to the King's ear, and he sent to the lodge to find out if it were true. They found my Lord Jeffrey tied fast and madder than a baldrick bear. I assure you the tale lost none in the telling and retelling as it ran from mouth to mouth in the ball room, provocative of much laughter and merriment. It seems that it was not for a sum of money but the release of a prisoner that he had signed the paper. His lordship freed at once sent a constable to apprehend the prisoner, and he himself hastened to the King to explain the outrage to him. His Majesty, being for the time at odds with Lord Jeffrey, never gave him the chance for explanations, but enjoyed the joke with the rest. Now my lord, you know, is rightfully hated by many, so their contempt was too much for him, and with a face purple with rage he left the room in a huff. His Majesty, however, laughed another kind of laugh when, later dining with Nell, it was brought to his notice what Lord Jeffrey had signed—the pardon of a young man, Quentin Waters by name, whom he himself had had confined in Ludlow. The way of this was, a young man (it was no doubt Jim Scrugs) impudently to see the King. Now every one knows that nothing puts the King in a humor so quickly as to be disturbed in his amours. But the man insisted so persistently upon an interview that they at last took him to the King, where he explained all, and that you were to be caught napping here."

She stopped a moment. I did not feel so much pity for the fellow as I had. He had been taught to know at Long Hunt how summarily traitors were dealt with.

Saved By Dynamite.

Sometimes, a flaming city is saved by dynamiting a space that the fire cannot cross. Sometimes, a cough hangs on so long, you feel as if nothing but dynamite would cure it. Z. T. Two physicians could not help her; she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which eased her cough, gave her sleep, and finally cured her." Arm in arm the union and confederate veterans are walking in friendly reunion on the battlefield of Bull Run, Va. where they fought each other in deadly conflict over forty years ago. Perhaps 40 years from now the Chicago strikers and their employes will be smoking the pipe of peace and breaking the bread of brotherly love together.

It is not generally known that postmasters have authority to redeem spoiled postal cards and envelopes which have been returned if the stamp which they bear has not been effected. The postal cards are redeemed for three-fourths of their face value, and stamped envelopes at the value of the stamps they bear. Frequently a person in addressing a postal card or stamped envelope will make a mistake and spoil it, and the tendency is to conclude that it is a loss. Those should be carefully preserved, the stamp kept intact, and then taken to the post office where nearly the whole value will be saved.

The Portland Exposition.

During the coming summer the Lewis and Clark exposition will be open at Portland, Ore., and no doubt thousands will avail themselves of this opportunity to visit an extensive fair. It was feared for a time that the management of the Portland exposition would yield to the demand that it be run seven days in the week. Better council prevailed, however, and the Sabbath will be respected. The machinery will be stopped on that day, all shows on the "Trail"—corresponding to the "Pike" at St. Louis, will be discontinued. The gates are to be closed until noon on that day, and in the afternoon there will be religious exercises. This is a distinct gain for Sabbath observance and resounds to the credit of the far West which is popularly supposed to do things on the "wide open" method.—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

PILES the sufferer who thinks this disease inoperable has never tried that remedy "Hermit" Salve. A trial will convince the most sceptical. 25 & 50c. All druggists. Hermit Remedy Co., Chicago.

The Clean Sweep

This celebrated Loader is now on exhibition at the Agricultural Warerooms on East LaPorte Street, Plymouth. You should call and examine this machine before placing your order this season.

A Few Special Features of the "Clean Sweep"

- 1. The "Clean Sweep" will divide a swath.
2. The "Clean Sweep" works well after a tedder.
3. The "Clean Sweep" is a smooth worker on the swath.
4. The "Clean Sweep" does not pound or thresh the hay.
5. The "Clean Sweep" does not bunch, wad, or tangle the hay.
6. The "Clean Sweep" does not kick itself to pieces in a season.
7. The "Clean Sweep" carrier can be raised as the load enlarges.
8. The "Clean Sweep" handles windrows of reasonable size perfectly.
9. The "Clean Sweep" is one of the greatest labor savers of the century.
10. The "Clean Sweep" does not elevate trash and manure with the hay.
11. The "Clean Sweep" is the best loader made for use after side delivery rakes.
12. The "Clean Sweep" may be detached from the rack by the men on the load.
13. The "Clean Sweep" works on ground hilly or level; in wind or in calm weather.
14. The "Clean Sweep" carries is easily removed to make machine compact for storing.
15. The "Clean Sweep" is simple in construction, light running, easy to operate, compact and durable.
16. The "Clean Sweep" does not cause you heavy repair bills; it has no $8.00 crank shaft to break once of twice a year. This is a point well worth remembering.
17. The "Clean Sweep" in dozens of field trials has demonstrated its superiority over all other loaders for clean work and great adaptability to different conditions of ground and hay.
18. The "Clean Sweep" will pay for itself with the savings of the first year's use—many times it will pay for itself in one day in the amount of hay saved, which might otherwise be damaged by rain.

PLYMOUTH, IND., March 26, 1904. C. D. KYSER, Plymouth, Ind. DEAR SIR:—I am very much pleased with the Clean Sweep Hay Loader I bought of you last season. It takes the hay from the swath just as clean as it can be raked with a horse rake, without gathering up the old weeds and trash next to the ground. One can drive from the heaviest windrow to the lightest swath, and without the least adjusting will take it up perfectly clean. As the cylinder of the Clean Sweep Loader revolves in such a way as to place the hay on the carrier without taking it over the rear of the cylinder, no hay is left scattered along as other hay loaders do, especially when loading light hay or straw from the swath. In ordinary hay I can take four tons per acre a load can be loaded from the swath in from 12 to 20 minutes, and from the windrow in as short a time as it would be possible to load it, as the loader has the capacity of carrying all the hay that can be handled on the load. Two or three horses will load the largest kind of a load, as the loader does not materially increase the draft. Anyone wishing to buy a loader will find the Clean Sweep equal, and in many points superior, to any loader on the market. F. E. JACOBY.

ARGOS, IND., April 10, 1904. C. D. KYSER, Plymouth, Ind. DEAR SIR:—That Clean Sweep Hay Loader bought of you last year is all right. I did think once they would never make a hay loader that would be any good, until I bought the Clean Sweep. I find that one team can load a load of hay nicely. We loaded 16 loads of hay in 5 hours, and if we had not had so far to haul we could have loaded 20 loads in 4 hours. I can pick my hay and load one ton in ten minutes. You know where we live and any time there is hay to make we can show anybody that what I have said is true. JOHN S. C. GREEN.

PLYMOUTH, IND., April 10, 1905. C. D. KYSER, Plymouth, Ind. DEAR SIR:—The Clean Sweep Hay Loader bought of you last year is all right. It takes the hay from the swath just as clean as it can be raked with a horse rake, and does not gather up the old weeds and stubbles like the horse rake. One can drive from the lightest to the heaviest hay without the least adjusting. It is the best hay loader I have ever used—does really better than it was represented to me. Anyone doubting these words can be thoroughly convinced by coming to my farm next haying, and anyone wishing to buy a loader will find the Clean Sweep equal, and in many points superior, to any other loader on the market. V. A. LIDCKER.

ARGOS, IND., April 25, 1905. C. D. KYSER, Plymouth, Ind. DEAR SIR:—I will say that I am very much pleased with the Clean Sweep Hay Loader that I bought of you. If a man will try one he will buy it. I can load a load of hay in from 12 to 18 minutes, depending on the hay. My two little boys and I made my hay and did it so easily we hardly realized we were at work. T. W. IRWIN, R. F. D. No. 12, Argos, Ind.

PLYMOUTH, IND., March 2, 1904. C. D. KYSER, Plymouth, Ind. DEAR SIR:—Will say the Clean Sweep Hay Loader is a perfect machine in every respect and makes hay making a pleasure instead of a dread of having so much help to handle the hay. ELMER SEITZEMRIGHT.

PLYMOUTH, IND., April 30, 1905. C. D. KYSER, Plymouth, Ind. DEAR SIR:—In reply to yours of recent date would say that the Clean Sweep Hay Loader was rightly named, for it does its work perfectly; whether the hay is heavy or light it cleans it all up. I consider it one of the greatest labor-saving machines a farmer can have on his farm. A 20 acre hay harvest is not decided with a Clean Sweep Hay Loader on the farm. From 1 p. m. to 6:45 p. m., with three men and two boys twelve years of age, we put up 14 loads of hay for feed in two days in the field to the barn was three-fourths of a mile. One of the men mowed the hay away in the barn and the boys drove the team on the hay fork. The other boy drove the team in the first. I think it is the greatest labor saving machine I have on my farm. E. W. WELSH.

CULVER, IND., April 7, 1905. C. D. KYSER, Plymouth, Ind. DEAR SIR:—I am very much pleased with the Clean Sweep Hay Loader I bought of you last season. It takes the hay from the swath just as clean as it can be raked with a horse rake. You don't get any old weeds and trash next to the ground. One can drive from the heaviest windrow to the lightest swath and without the least adjusting it takes it up perfectly clean. I did not try to see how many loads I could take in one day, but I think it is a big improvement over the old way. I got my hay away before I realized that I had hardly started, and it does not take near as many hands and goes lots faster. PHILLIP STICKMAN.

PLYMOUTH, IND., April 16, 1905. C. D. KYSER, Plymouth, Ind. DEAR SIR:—I am very much pleased with the Clean Sweep Hay Loader I bought of you last year. It is a money saver. My Clean Sweep Hay Loader will pay for itself in two years in saving hired help. Two years ago it cost me $90 to make my hay; last year it cost me $5. I made nearly the same amount of hay as the year before. I said I did not want a hay loader, for some of them would do some factory work, but when the Clean Sweep came on the market and I saw it work, I bought one immediately. They are up-to-date and perfect in all ways, light in draft, take the hay up clean in the swath and clear out of the windrow. Takes it up fast and low, just as you want it to come. It never chokes up in heavy hay. My Clean Sweep Loader never caused me one minute's trouble or five cents for repair during the season. On account of being an up-to-date, well made and durable machine, there is no reason why it will not last a man forty years if taken care of and oiled when not in use. D. O. HARTMAN.

Should you desire further information inquire of the following named parties who own and operate the "Clean Sweep": Mark Vanvactor, Plymouth, R. F. D.; Hayes Munn, Donaldson, R. F. D.; Byron Carpenter, Argos, R. F. D.; Jos. D. Hiser, Culver, R. F. D.; Eben Parish, Plymouth, R. F. D.; Mich. Crauthers, Plymouth; Henry Crauthers, Plymouth.

Convulsion, Fits, then Epilepsy.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine has been so successful in curing these brain-wrecking diseases that there is every reason to believe that even the most hopeless cases can be benefited, if not fully restored.

We will be pleased to refer any one thus afflicted to many who now enjoy the blessing of health, after years of hopeless suffering.

"I have a son that had brain fever when two years old, followed by fits of the worst type, and he was pronounced incurable. I spent hundreds of dollars for him, without relief. After about fifteen years he became so bad that we sent him to Logansport hospital for the insane, at Logansport, Ind. He was there nearly three years, but he continued to grow worse, so we brought him home, some July 29, 1902, in an awful condition. He had lost his mind almost entirely. He hardly knew one of the family, could not even find his bed; was a total wreck. He had from 5 to 10 fits a day. We were urged to try Dr. Miles' Nervine, and before the first bottle was used, we could see a change for the better. We have given it to him ever since, and he has had but two very light spells since last August, 1902, and that he was not well either way. We pronounce him cured, as he can work and go anywhere. If any one wishes to ask any questions concerning this, they can do so freely to the doctor.

E. H. BUNNELL, Lincoln, Ind.
Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.

DEATH IN TRAILING SKIRT

Danger That Lurks in Present Day Obedience to Fashion's Whim

The following short story from the Woman's Journal is very timely in the warning given against trailing skirts:

Only a little dust, almost imperceptible dust, caught on the rug on the floor of the handsome hall.

It was a Turkish rug, lying on the perfectly waxed, hardwood floor, in a hall where neatness seemed to reign along with all the appointments of wealth.

But there was that almost imperceptible dust. How did it come there? If you had ears that could hear its voice it would tell you. It would say that it had clutched a fold on the beautiful lady's gown and come in from the street.

It was a beautiful gown as well as a beautiful lady—a tailor-made gown, and its fashionable bias flounce trailed stylishly on the ground.

Everything was stylish about the lady, from her fair face, with rather deep circles below the eyes, to her slender and handsome walking shoes. She walked trailing her gown properly, dust or no dust. Indeed, she ignored the dust of the street; but will the dust ignore her?

Let us listen, if she will not, for this almost imperceptible dust moves and acts with fearful force, and if we listen possibly we may understand its language.

Soon after coming in on the beautiful lady's gown, other steps followed and other gowns helped to move the dust along farther into the house; but it had a fancy for the beautiful lady. Her frailness attracted it and it followed her to the bed chamber. Her feet had never trod the loathsome precincts whence it came, but it came to her on her gown.

Soon there came to the chamber a little child, a sweet, rosy cherub. In its romping it stirred the dust about.

Then the dust began to be separated, being formed of many particles, and these talked among themselves. As they talked they danced back and forth, waltzing, swilling, capering, with every motion of the child and its mamma, the beautiful lady.

A scientist could have understood them if he had caught some of them under his microscope. He would have called them "germs." With what alarm he would have recognized the diphtheritic, and with what dismay would he have seen the tuberculous germ approaching the frail lady.

Back and forth, dancing, capering, waltzing, the germs kept time while baby, in its mother's arms, said, as thousands of other little ones were saying—

"Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep; If I should die before I wake, I pray the Lord my soul to take."

This baby was saying it for the last time.

When night came again, thousands of little voices sent up the baby prayers, but this one was gasping out its little life on mamma's bosom—destroyed by a germ.

A yellow card at the front door warned all comers against diphtheria. The beautiful lady vainly sought health for a year or more, then found rest "beyond the sorrow and the parting."

"Broken hearted," it was said. "Found death in the dust of the street," said the microscope. A victim of the long skirt.

Fashion and Consumption.

In all American cities and most of the larger towns promiscuous expectation is prohibited. There are ordinances and rules against spitting in public conveyances, on the floors of assembly halls and on the sidewalks. Of necessity, however, this cannot be prevented in the gutters and on the pavements.

By educating the tuberculosis patient himself in regard to his duty to his fellow citizen much more can be done. A careful consumptive is a good citizen; a careless consumptive is an enemy to society and the state.

Even with the civil and self-imposed precautions, the dust of the highway and crossings is teeming with various disease germs. It is practically impossible to eliminate these beds of filth. In the cleanest streets such colonies of germs are present.

The use of long, dragging skirts on the average highway is the height of folly. It is worse. It is absolutely dangerous. The sweeping cloth picks up dust and dampened particles carrying tubercular germs. They are thus transplanted into the very household. In this simply yet sadly effective way, the children, so carefully guarded, are exposed to the dreaded plague. The entire family, satisfied with their fancied security, are stunned when tuberculosis claims one of their loved ones.

It may not strike the family circles. The household servants may be affected. Many of the deaths of domestics have their explanation. The mistress, after a shopping tour, leaves her mud-bordered skirt for the maid to clean. In the cloud of dust arising from the brush the fatal bacillus lurks. The girl, already weakened from too long hours indoors, succumbs. A few weeks later she is forced to stop work and waste away in hopeless dependence on her overburdened family or at public expense.

Another girl is easily obtained and the careless mistress never suspects any connection between her foolish fashion and the doomed domestic's sad fate.

Expectoration on the streets can never be stopped. The streets cannot be cleaned. But this can be done every woman should wear sensible skirts entirely clearing the ground. This will entirely eliminate this great avenue of tuberculosis invasion.

The American Heart.

We have heard much about the American stomach and the American nerves, but we are just awakening to a discovery that there is being rapidly developed a form of heart disease which, if not peculiar to America, may at least be said to be more prevalent in this country than in any other part of the world. The heart-weakness resulting from the use of tobacco and alcohol and from a sedentary life on the one hand, and extremely violent exertion on the other hand, is no longer a rare condition, but has come to be one of the most common affections with which the physician has to deal. A large proportion of the men rejected in the army examinations are refused on account of heart weakness. A large proportion of the public men who die suddenly die as a result of the failure of the heart. The same may be said also of many of the cases in which the cause of death is reported to be pneumonia, typhoid fever and other affections in which special strain is brought to bear upon the heart, and in which the failure of the organ to meet the emergency is one of the most common causes of death. The cigar, the cigarette and the pipe are probably the most common cause of this growing frequency of cardiac affections; but the neglect of physical exercise, overeating, the use of condiments and excesses of all sorts are also to a large degree responsible for the rapid increase of this grave malady.

SOME WHOLESOME RECIPES.

Vegetable Soup.—Simmer together slowly for three or four hours, in five quarts of water, a quart of split peas, a slice of carrot, a slice of white turnip, one cup of canned tomatoes and two stalks of celery cut into small bits. When done, rub through a colander, add milk to make of proper consistency, reheat, season with salt and cream, and serve.

Roast Imperial.—Mix together one-half cup of lentil pulp (prepared by rubbing well-cooked lentils through a colander), one-half cup of pea pulp, one-half cup of English walnuts, and season to taste with sage and salt. Line an oiled baking dish one-half inch deep with the mixture. Pack in loosely a dressing made from the following ingredients: Four slices of zwieback, steamed until softened, one-half cup of hot cream, sage and salt to taste, and one well-beaten egg. Mix together lightly with a fork. Cover closely with peas, lentil and nut mixture. Spread over the top thick cream, bake in a moderate oven until firm enough to cut into slices. Serve with cranberry sauce or fruit jelly.

Scalloped Potatoes.—Pare the potatoes and slice thin; put them in layers in a earthen pudding dish, dredging each layer lightly with flour, add salt, and pour over all enough good, rich milk to cover well. Cover, and bake rather slowly till tender, removing the cover just long enough before the potatoes are done, to brown nicely. If preferred, a little less milk may be used, and a cup of this cream added when the potatoes are nearly done.

Chopped Cabbage.—Take one pint of finely chopped cabbage; pour over it a dressing made of three tablespoonsful of lemon juice, two tablespoonsful of sugar, and a half cup of whipped cream, thoroughly beaten together in the order named. This is also nice served simply with sugar and diluted lemon juice.

Macaroni with Tomato Sauce.—Break macaroni into inch lengths, enough to make one cup, and drop into boiling water. Let it boil until perfectly tender. In the meantime, prepare the sauce by rubbing a pint of stewed or canned tomatoes through a colander to remove all seeds and fragments. Heat to boiling, thicken with a little flour; a tablespoonful to the pint will be about the requisite proportion. Add a half cup of very thin sweet cream and one teaspoonful of salt. Dish the macaroni in individual dishes, and serve with a small quantity of the sauce poured over each dish.

Steamed Fig Pudding.—Moisten two cupfuls of finely grated Graham bread crumbs with half a cup of thin sweet cream. Mix into it a heaping cupful of finely chopped fresh figs, and a quarter of a cup of sugar. Add lastly a cup of sweet milk. Turn all into a pudding dish, and steam about two and one-half hours. Serve as soon as done with a lemon sauce prepared as follows: Heat to boiling in a double boiler a pint of water in which are two slices of lemon, and stir into it a dessert spoonful of cornstarch; cook four or five minutes, or until it thickens. Squeeze the juice from one large lemon, and mix it with two-thirds of a cup of sugar. Add this to the cornstarch mixture, and allow the whole to boil up once, stirring constantly; then take from the fire. Leave in the double boiler, surrounded by the hot water, for ten minutes. Cool to blood heat before serving.

ANOTHER LIFE SAVED.

Mrs. G. W. Fooks, of Salisbury, Md., wife of G. W. Fooks, Sheriff of Wicomico County, says: "I suffered with kidney complaint for eight years. It came on me gradually. I felt tired and weak, was short of breath and was troubled with bloating after eating, and my limbs were badly swollen. One doctor told me it would finally turn to Bright's disease. I was laid up at one time for three weeks. I had not taken Doan's Kidney Pills more than three days when the distressing aching across my back disappeared, and I was soon entirely cured."

Robbed by Kind Stranger.

Madame Langle, a widow, residing in the rue de Vanves, in Paris, found on returning to her home the other afternoon that she had lost her keys. She was mentioning her predicament to the concierge when a well-dressed man entered the porter's room and listened to the lady's story of her loss. He volunteered to ascend a ladder in order to affect an entrance and to open the door with another key left in the rooms. His offer was gratefully accepted, and when he came downstairs and opened the door, the obliging stranger was profusely thanked by the lady, who, however, missed her jewels and some 4,500 francs. She has laid a complaint of theft with the police against the kind stranger.

The Young Physician.

WHAT HIS EXPERIENCE PROVED.

In the early sixties it was usually the duty of a practicing physician to ride many miles every day on his regular round of visits upon his patients. In those days a young man who had received a splendid medical training in one of the best medical colleges of that day was accustomed to ride six, twenty or thirty miles or more visiting the sick and afflicted. His success was soon phenomenal. Doctors and families called him for consultation to towns at considerable distances by rail. One of his specialties was the cure of those distressing diseases of women. He had early discovered that by combining the vegetable extract of the following medicinal plants in just the right proportion without the use of alcohol—his prescription invariably cured such cases. Later, in order to place this remedy before the public in a shape easily to be procured, he established a laboratory at Buffalo, N. Y., where regularly qualified chemists were put in charge to accurately prepare his prescription and put it in shape for shipment to all parts of the United States. This remedy, which he named Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, is not a "patent medicine" in the common acceptance of the term, but a tonic for women, and a regular physi-

LIVING TOO HASTILY

AMERICAN WOMEN BREAK DOWN

Irregularities and Female Derangements Result—Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Owing to our mode and manner of living, and the nervous haste of every woman to accomplish just so much each day, it is said that there is not one woman in twenty-five but who suffers with some derangement of the female organism, and this is the secret of so many unhappy homes.

No woman can be amiable, light-hearted and happy, a joy to her husband and children, and perform the duties incumbent upon her, when she is suffering with backache, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, bearing-down pains, displacement of the womb, spinal weakness or ovarian troubles.

Irritability and snappy retorts take the place of pleasantness, and all sunshine is driven out of the home, and lives are wrecked by woman's great enemy—womb trouble.

Read this letter: Dear Mrs. Pinkham—

"I was troubled for eight years with irregularities which broke down my health and brought on extreme nervousness and dependency. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved to be the only medicine which helped me. Day by day I improved in health while taking it until I was entirely cured. I can attend to my social and household duties and thoroughly enjoy life once more, as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me a well woman. Without an ache or a pain."—Mrs. Chester Curry, 42 Saratoga Street, East Boston, Mass.

At the first indication of ill health, painful or irregular menstruation, pain in the side, headache, backache, bearing-down pains, nervousness or "the blues," secure at once a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin its use.

Alabastine

Your Walls

Alabastine produces exquisitely beautiful effects on walls and ceilings. Easy to apply, simply mix with cold water. Better than kalsomine, paint or wall paper. It is not a kalsomine, it is a sanitary, permanent, cement coating, which hardens on the walls, destroying disease germs and vermin, never rubbing or scaling. Kalsomines mixed with either hot or cold water soon rub and scale off, spoiling walls, clothing and furniture. They contain glue, which decays and nourishes the germs of deadly disease.

If your druggist or hardware dealer will not get Alabastine, refuse substitutes and imitations and order of us. Send for free sample of this and information about decorating.

Dr. Pierce does not claim for his "Favorite Prescription" that it is a "cure-all." It is recommended as a most perfect specific for woman's peculiar ailments. No uniform are the results which follow the use of this remarkable remedy, that it can be truly affirmed of "Favorite Prescription" that it always helps and almost always cures. Ninety-eight per cent. of the women who give this medicine a fair and faithful trial are cured and remain cured.

It is a powerful invigorating tonic, imparting health and strength in particular to the womb and its appendages. The local, womanly health is so intimately related to the general health that when diseases of the delicate womanly organs are cured the whole body gains in health and strength. For weak and sickly women who are "worn-out," "run-down" or debilitated, especially for women who work in store, office or schoolroom, who sit at the typewriter or sewing machine, or bear heavy household burdens, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will prove a priceless benefit because of its health-restoring and strength-giving power.

THE PROOF.

"I want to tell you of the great improvement in my health since taking your 'Favorite Prescription,'" says Mrs. H. S. Jones of Forest, N. C. "When I began its use I was a physical wreck and had despaired of ever having good health again. Could not sit up all day. I noted a great improvement before the first bottle was all used. I was suffering with almost every pain that a woman is subject to: had inflammation of the ovaries, painful and suppressed periods, and other symptoms of female disease. After taking six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' I felt like a new person. Can ride horseback and take all kinds of exercise and not feel tired."

FEEL CRANKY?—Case of constipation. A man or woman who neglects constipation suffers from slow poisoning. Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic.

The quick relief which this liniment affords makes rest and sleep possible, and that alone is worth many times the cost. Many who have used it hoping only for a short relief from suffering have been happily surprised to find that after awhile the relief became permanent. Mrs. V. H. Leggett of Yum Yum, Tennessee, U. S. A., writes: "I am a great sufferer from rheumatism, all over from head to foot, and Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the only thing that will relieve the pain." For sale by T. E. Slattery.

How to Ward off Old Age.
The most successful way of warding off the approach of old age is to maintain a vigorous digestion. This can be done by eating only food suited to your age and occupation, and when any disorder of the stomach appears take a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets to correct it. If you have a weak stomach or are troubled with indigestion, you will find these tablets to be just what you need. For sale by T. E. Slattery.

A Good Suggestion.
Mr. C. B. Wainwright of Lemon City, Fla., has written the manufacturers that much better results are obtained from the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in cases of pains in the stomach, colic and cholera morbus by taking it in water as hot as can be drunk. That when taken in this way the effect is double in rapidity. "It seems to get at the right spot instantly," he says. For sale by T. E. Slattery.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the Best.
"I have been using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and want to say it is the best cough medicine I have ever taken," says George L. Chubb, a merchant of Harlan, Mich. There is no question about its being the best, as it will cure a cough or cold in less time than any other treatment. It should always be kept in the house ready for instant use, for a cold can be cured in much less time when promptly treated. For sale by T. E. Slattery.
