MAXINKUCKEE BOAT WINNER

First of Series of Annual Inter-Lake Yacht Races.

Maxinkuckee honor was upheld in the victory of Ethert Shirk's White Ludy over the Louise from Bass lake in two races that were sailed last Friday and Saturday. They were the first of a series of annual Indiana inter-lake yacht races and the local boat was easily the winner, crossing the finish line ten minutes ahead in each race.

For several years, there has been an effort to start the inter-lake sport and much of the credit for making the actual beginning belongs to P. J. Lavery, of Whiting, Ind., who brought his book over from Bass lake for the match. Both bonts were built in Wisconsin and they had northern interlake records before coming to Indiana. They sail under class A regulations and carry 500 square feet of sail. Large spinnakers are used in addition to the usual equipment for racing.

A light wind was blowing in the first race on Friday afternoon. A triangular course had been laid out which was sailed around twice. The Maxinkuckee boat led easily on the first trip around. But she was overtaken by the visitor who turned the first buoy on the second round half a minute ahead It was the prettiest brush of the whole series and the only time that the Bass lake boat appeared to be a dangerous competitor at all But she held the lead for only a short time, as a number of mishaps overtook Capt. Lavery thereafter during which the White Lady gained a lead which could not be Captain Lavery got a bad start because in the jockeying at the first buoy he was forced to foul it and had to go of our former offerings of fruit and around a second time. This enabled the White Lady to get a good lead which she stendily increased. Her sailing time for the second race was sixty-five minutes as against two hours and twenty. three minutes in the first race.

Captain Lavery had several disadvantages to contend with. As was his first experience on Lake Maxinkuckee he was unfamiliar with its peculiarities, which are quite different from those of Bass Lake. His crew failed to arrive for the races and he had to rely on his wife and little son for assistance in sailing the bont. Both proved themselves worthy seamen. Though somewhat disappointed that his boat did not make a botter showing. Lavery took his defeat in a sportsmaulike spirit The White Lady proved abundant. ly that she is an exceptionally good boat. She was well sailed by Capt. Shirk and his efficient crew of sailors. This boat is a new type for Maxinkuckee. The double center board and double rudder equipment give the boat marked advantages not enjoyed by Bass Lake yachts. Both are racing machines of the latest model, built solely with the view to obtaining a maximum speed.

Although it was not necessary to sail a third race to decide the contest, the White Lady having won the first and second, it was started Saturday afternoon for the sport of it. On account of a storm that came up after the first round had been made, it was necessary to abandon the race. It promised to be the best contest of the series, as both boats kept close together.

Racing Association has been organized as a result of last week's contests and the 1906 races will be sailed on Lake Maxinkuckee the first week in August. Officers elected are Elbert Shirk, of Peru, president; P. J. Layery, of Whiting, first vice president; J. K. Lilly, of Indianapolis, second vice president: Tom Wilson, of Logansport, secretary: Booth Speed, of Crawfordsville, treasurer. These officers represent the Yacht Clubs of Wawasee, Bass lake and Maxinkuckee. Invitations will also be extended to the sailors of Cedar lake, Pine lake, Winona and other Indiana waters to bring their boats to Maxinkuckee next year to sail for the trophy that will be offered. Owing to the increasing interest in Indiana lakes, this project is looked upon as a happy one.

Jonathan Reed Is True to Death Bed Promise Never to Leave Body of His Wife.

New York dispatch: Jonathan Reed, the hermit of Evergreen cemetery, is dead. He died in a private sanitarium near Troy, N. Y. His body will be brought to this city and entombed beside the caskot of his wife in the magnificent mansoleum at Evergreen, where he spent most of his waking hours, for twelve years in mourning.

He left a large fortune. He died childless, and the estate will be divided among his nephews. Among them is Proprietor Frederick A. Reed of the Park Avenue botel and Edward Reed, for several years head bar tender at the new Amsterdam hotel.

Jonathan Reed died after four months of illness, aged 72 years. On the night of May 17 laborers passing the great tomb at Evergreen, where they had seen the white haired man come and go every day, were surprised to see the bronze door standing ajar.

They made their way inside. The old man was unconscious on the floor, his face ghastly, and himself near death from a stroke of apoplexy. Though he begged not to be separated from his wife's body, he was removed to the home of his niece at Valley Falls, N. Y. There he was siricken with paralysis and his mind gave way.

Jonathan Reed made his fortune in the trucking business, from which he retired twenty years ago. His wife was Miss Mary Guild. It was on her death bed he promised never to leave ber side until he should join her in death. It was to keep this promise that he caused to be built a great mausoleum where he could make his home beside the dead.

Successful Bidder for Commissary Privileges Along Panama Canal Has Been in the Same Line for Fully Thirty Years.

Oyster Bay, L. I., dispatch: The contract for the hotel and subsistence corcession on the Panama canal zone, awarded to Jacob E. Markel of Omaha, Neb., by President Theodore P. Shonts of the Panama railroad company, will stand.

This, in effect, is the decision of President Roosevelt, who approved a report on the subject made to him by Mr. Shonts.

The contract amounts, in the aggregate, to many millions of dollars, but Mr. Shonts' report indicates that it may be abrogated at the will of the government, which actually will own the permanent plant used by Mr. Markel in filling the terms.

The president has anthorized the publication of the report, which treats of the protest made by the two firms, Hudgins & Dumas and H. Balfe of New York, against the award of the contract to Mr. Markel. They alleged that they had not been accorded fair treatment by President Shonis, and that through a leak in the commissioner's office Mr. Markel had been informed of the nature of their proposa! and had been enabled thereby to incorporate in his bid the firms of Hudgins & Dumas and Mr. Balfe, was invited to make proposals.

President Is Satisfied. Mr. Shonts' statement clears up these allegations to the satisfaction of the President. He explains that on his arrival at the isthmus on July 26 be found a pressing necessity for imemployes. It was determined by Gov. Magoon, Mr. Stevens and himself that the railroad company should furnish the plant, including the buildings and equipment; that it should maintain the equipment, so that in the event of it becoming necessary for the railroad to cancel the contract, the entire plant could be controlled.

Des' Moines, Iowa, dispatch: Holding a rifle leveled at the head of Judge J. R. Slaughter of Carbondale, John Barker made a daring escape from the court of that officer, Barker was on trial on a charge of attempting to start a riot and the Carbondale court room was filled with witnesses and spectators at the time.

During the progress of the trial Barker asked permission of the judge to leave the court room for a few minutes. He was granted the leave, but Judge Slaughter took occasion to follow the prisoner out of doors. No sooner had Barker passed around a corner of the building than he ran for a buggy standing nearby and jumped in. When the judge came toward the buggy Barker reached down to the scat and picked up a rifle.

Leveling the weapon at Judge Slaughter, he cried, "If you follow me or give an alarm I'll blow your head off." Then he lashed the horses into a run, standing with gun in hand till out of sight. The crowd in the court room, growing anxious over the delay in the trial, came out just in time to see Barker disappearing down the road.

It is believed friends of Barker's assisted him in the escape by placing the buggy and rifle at his disposal and that he knew of the assistance awaiting him when he left the court

Faults in College Athletics.

Theoretically a college match provides an opportunity for generous emulation between young men in some orm of recreation which they follow for its own sake. This conception is retained in England better than in this country, where the national tendency to make a business of whatever is undertaken works against the best form of amateur sport. It is thus that great expenses are fell to be necessary in training; there is a tendency to take professional performances as the standard, and with this goes of nocessity a desire for elaborate training and the erection of what should be a recreation into a solemn duly of winning. And from this in turn arise most of the troubles which have attended the growth of college athleties. Hartford (Conn.) Times,

CHAPTER XIII.

Joan Stands Within Her Danger. Sa soon as Werner von Orseln returned to Castle Kernsberg with news of the foreing of the Alla and the overwhelming numbers of the Muscovite hordes, the sad-eyed Duchess of Hohenstein became once more Joan of the Sword Hand.

The invading army must have numbered thirty thousand, at least. There were, all told, about two thousand in Kernsberg. Von Orseln, indeed, could easily have raised more. Nay, they would have come in of themselves by bundreds to fight for their Duchess, but the little town could not feed

When Werner von Orseln and Peter Balta met the invader at the fords of the Alla, Maurice von Lynar and Alt Pikker had remained with Joan, nominally to assist her dispositions, but really to form a check upon the impetuosity of her temper.

Now Von Orseln was back again. The fords of the Alla were forced, and the fighting strength of Kernsberg united itself in the Eagle's Nest to make its final stand.

Aloft on the highest ramparts there was a terrace walk which the Sparhawk much affected, specially when he was on guard at night. It looked towards the east, and from it the first trained alacrity of seasoned men at glimpse of the Courtlanders would be obtained.

Presently the chief captain's step was heard on the stone turnpike.

"Ha, Sparhawk," he cried, "this is cold cheer! Why could we not have talked comfortably in hall, with a beaker of mead at one's elbow?"

"I wanted to speak with you on a matter we cannot mention elsewhere." said Maurice von Lynar.

"How long can we hold out if they besiege us?" "Two months, certainly-with luck, three! "And what of the Duchess Joan?" persisted the young man:

Why, in the same time she will be dead or wed!" sald Von Orseln, with an affectation of carelessness easily seen through.

"We must get her away to a place of eafety," said the young man. Von Orseln laughed.

"Get her? Who would persuade or compel our lady? Whither would she go? Would she be safer there than hero? Would the Courtlander not find out in twenty-four hours that there was no Joan of the Sword Hand in Kornsberg, and follow her trail?"

"We must persuade her-capture berg compel her, if necessary. Kernsboth cannot for long hold out against lander Court-

Maurice von Lynar leaned forward towards his chief captain and whispered a few words in his ear.

"Ah!" he sald, and nodded. Then, after a pause for thought, he added. "That is none so ill thought on for a beardless younker! I will think it over, sleep on it, and tell you my opinion to-morrow. At any rate," the chief captain growled to himself, "you have a protty part set for me. I may forthwith order my sbroud. I shall never he able to face my lady again!"

to ride a reconnaissance to ascertain whether the advancing enemy had cut Kernberg off towards the north. On this matter Von Orseln thought that her Highness had better judge for herself. Here at last was something to be done. It was almost like the old foraying days, but now in a more desperate cause. No one in all Castle Kernsberg was to know of the departure of this cavalcade. The Sparhawk was appointed to command during Von Orseln's absence. Ten men only were to go, and these picked and sifted riders-chosen because of their powers of silenceand because, being unmarried, they had no wives to worm secrets out of them.

Joan and her chief captain rode on ahead, Von Orselu glancing keenly about him, and Joan riding free and careless, as in old days when she overpassed the hills to drive a prey from the lands of her father's enemies.

It was grey morning when they came to a goatherd's hut at the top of the green valley. Already they had passed the bounds of Hohenstein by half a dozen miles. The goatherd had led his light skipping train to the hills for the day, and the rude and chaotic remains of his breakfast were still on the table. Borls and Jorian cleared these away, and, with the arms, they placed before the party a breakfast prepared with speed out of which they had brought with them and those things which they had found to their hand by foraging in the cottage of the goatherd- to-wit, sliced neat's tongue dried in the smoke, bread of fine wheat which Jorian had carried all the way in a net at his saddle bow. Boris had charge of the wine skins, and upon a shelf above the door they found a great butter pot full of freshly made curded goat's milk, very delicious both to taste and smell.

Of these things they are and drank largely, Joan and Von Orseln being together at the upper end of the table. Borls and Jorian had to sit with them. though much against their wills, being (spite of their sweethearts) more accustomed to the company of honest men at arms than to the practice of dainty eating in ladies' society.

Soon Joan of the Sword Hand rose to hor feet, for the ex-men at arms had few words to say.

"Let us now mount and ride homeward," she said, "there are no enemy to be found on this northerly road. We shall be more fortunate upon another occasion."

Then Werner von Orseln serlous himself for a battle more than any he had ever fought Hohenstein, of Henry the Lion of

Two others also there are, heart joined to us, especially in this respect, your Highness cannot go back. We have come out, not to make a reconnaissance, but to put storm blows over."

The Duchess had slowly risen to her feet, with her hand on the sword which swong at her belt.

"You have suddenly gone mad, Werner!" she said; "let us have no more such fools and trailors as to deliver

"Nay," said Von Orseln, looking steadily upon the ground. That will we rot do. Kernetery is in good hands, and will fight bravely. But we cannot hold out with our few folk and scanty provender against the leaguer of thirty thousand. Nevertheless we will not permit you to sacrifice yourself for our sakes or for the sake of the women and children of the city."

Jonn drew her sword. "Werner von Orseln, will you obey me, or must I slay you with my hand?" she cried. The chief captain yet further bowed his head and abased his eyes. "We have thought also of this," he made answer. "Me you may kill, but these that are with me will defend themselves, though they will not strike one they love more than their lives. But man by man we have sworn to do this thing. At all hazards you must ablde in our hands till the danger is overpast. For me (this he added in a deeper tone), I am your immediate officer. There is none to come between us. It is your right to slay me if you will. Mine is the responsibility for this deed, though the design was not mine. Here is my aword. Slay your chief captain with it if you will. He has faithfully served your house for five-and-thirty years. 'Tis perhaps time he rested

And with these words Werner von Orseln took his sword by the point and offered the bill to his mistress. Joan of the Sword Hand shook with mingled passion and helplessness, and her eyes were dark and troubled. "Put up your blade," she sald, striking the hill with her hand; "if you have not deserved death, no more have I deserved this! But you said The Duchess Joan was in high that the design was not yours. Who,

"My lady," said Werner, gently and respectfully, "your servant Von Lyner bade me tell you that he would as faithfully and loyally take your place now as he did on a former occasion!"

"Ah," said Joan, smiling wanly with a quick change of mood, "I hope he will be more ready to give up his privileges on this occasion than on

FRUIT FOR IOWA.

We have received several inquiries from different parties in the state asking us to suggest a list of fruit adapted for planting in Iowa. So much depends upon the soil, drainage, etc., that it is difficult to give a list that will cover the whole state of Iowa.

"lowa is such a blg state, with so many variations of soil and climate that it is undesirable to offer a list of varieties for general culture. For those who contemplate planting an orchard the first consideration is that of soil and site. Some of the best orchard lands in the state are situated on the Missouri river bluffs. The preparation of the soil is of equal importance with the selection of the site. Thorough preparation means not only pulverizing the ground by growing some kind of a bood crop on it previous to planting the trees, but also means deepening the cultivation layer by subsolling.

"In regard to selection of varieties this is a matter that should be considered with especial reference to locality. It seems to me that there are three principal fruit districts in the state. A northern, a central and a southern area. I would advise the writer of the above inquiry to examne the orchards in his own vicinity before making a selection of varieties.

Find out what trees are doing best in those regions, and what treatment in the matter of cultivation appears to bring the best results.

"On elevated northern slopes with good drainage and good tillage the following list of apples might prove satisfactory, and would probably be as good as could be secured at the present time. This list is given in the order in which the varieties ripen: Yellow Transparent, Beneni, Duchess, Wealthy, Grimes, Jonathan, York Imperial, Bon Davis, English Golden Russet. This list no doubt could be varied and the variations would depend on the number of fall and winter apples that the grower might wish to

"With regard to plums, I would place chief reliance on the native varieties, planting heavily of such kinds as Milton (a plum of poor quality, but better than Pottawattamic), Stoddard, Hawkeye and Hammer, New Ulm is a variety that has come under my notice this year and one that appears to be quite valuable. Among the domestic plums the safest varietics to plant are Shropshire, Damson, Communia and Glass. Some of the Russian or East European plums have made an excellent record this year. Of cherries, Early Richmond, Wragg, Monmorency and Sklanka will fill the season in a satisfactory manner. "When we come to pear growing we have a somewhat more difficult problem, and I would not advise any one to embark in commercial pear growing without first understanding that it is an industry which requires first, especially favorable situations; second, long experience, and, third, much careful study and attention. do not think that pear growing is likely to prove successful anywhere on the black prairie soils of the state, but on the higher bluff lands along the rivers there is no reason why an abundance of pears of fine quality cannot be grown. Mr. B. A. Mathews of Knoxyllle, lown, has studied pear culture very carefully for twenty-five or thirty years and is now making a success of it. He grows his tree in sud in order to check the growth, and in this way prevents blight. He grows only those varieties that are least liable to blight; gives careful a tention to spraying and the destruction of insects and fungus pests and overlooks the work of marketing them himself. Flemish Beauty is probably his best paying variety. Birket is a ready variety and has no blight, although the fruit is not very large. Begt do la Motte is another variety which he prizes quite highly.

"It would be well for you to join the State Horicultural Society, and in this way obtain their reports, which contain a large amount of valuable information regarding fruit growing in your locality."

One farm writer gives a ration to be fed hogs that are not provided with shelter. We are inclined to the belief that no ration can take the place of good warm quarters for winter.

KINDNESS TO SHEEP.

No animal will so quickly respond to the kindly care and interest of its owner as will the sheep, and you will notice that the successful shopherd has the fullest confidence of his flock. Kindness pays in the handling of any class of stock and if animals dread the approach of the one who takes care of them, as is sometimes Martell de Janville, writes under the the case, then something should be pseudonym of "Gyp" and illustrates, done in the direction of securing another stockman.

TRIAL ORCHARDS.

The growing of trial orchards in the different states is a practice that is proving immensely beneficial to the has eight of these trial orchards and Wisconsin has four. They are placed in them are tried the varieties that are being placed on the markets by nurserymen, or that are to be placed on the markets. Our people would do well to familiarize themselves with the results of the work in each of these orchards, as it will save them from paying out good money for task to find out what is in a variety orchard. A nurseryman puts in a new variety on the market or an old variety that he claims to be a new variety. The man in charge of the (rial orchard takes it, puts a few scions into a or three years has results. The fruit may be found to be only an old one that is worthless. The discovery of more value is the discovery of what each variety of apple or other fruit will do on any kind of land. The experience of the men in charge of the trial orchards accentuates this fact very clearly. Some of the varieties that do well on a prairie soil are about worthless on timber soil, and the reverse is true. We think, from what we have seen, that the work of the trial orchards is very valuable, and that our legislators can well afford to expend the money necessary to carry them on.

HORSES ON ALFALFA.

Alfalfa is found to be fine to feed to young and growing draft borses, on | farmers." account of the high per cent of protein in the plant. The Live Stock ournal says that draft horse breeders west of the Missouri river, where so much alfalfa is grown, find that they can grow draft horses on alfalfa that develop large size and fine action cheaper than in any other country or clime. A good draft horse that sells at $200 costs but little more than a steer to raise. There are several large breeding studs of pure bred Percherons in Kansas, Colorado and the west, that have demonstrated the success of draft horse raising. Alfalfa with a very little oats and corn is producing ton horses in the West cheaper and faster than in any other country. They can breed draft horses out there and mature the goldings fitted for market, heeping the mares for breeding as worth double as much as the goldings. And so this plant is found as valuable for growing young horses as for other classes of live slock. These things will cause the sowing of more plats of alfalfa in these contral slates than heretofore; we say because it has been found wise to first determine sulfable soil for alfalfa. When this is settled by trial larger fields may readily be sown.

Fortile eggs should be gathered often, as with a very little heat they begin to incubate. A number of hens laying in the same nest sometimes furnish heat enough to render the first eggs laid unfit for table use.

The process is very easy and most every fruit-grower understands that by keeping the soil well cultivated about the base of the gooseberry that the lower branches can be laid down and covered with a few inches of earth and the branches will root so that by spring they can be removed and planted out in nursery row and grown to the proper size for transplanting into the fruit patch. WHEN TO WATER PLANTS.

A subscriber asks "Should plants be watered during sunshine." Why not if they need it? The watering of the fruit-growing interests of the states in | plant should be governed by its condiwhich they are grown. Illinois now tion and surroundings. The whole thing in a nutshell is, water a plant when it requires it. From my own exin different parts of the states, and perionce I have never had any bad results from watering flowers during sunshine, any more than in dull weather. During sunshine and bright weather the evaporation from most plants is more excessive than in dull weather, consequently plants call for more nourishment in the form of water, and if the plants are growing worthless trees. It is not a difficult fast, and the pots are full of roots I often find it necessary to water them if it is carefully grown in such an three or four times a day. Air, sun and light are important factors in building up the plant, and one is not much use without the other. Water containing soluble matter is absorbed by the roots and travels through the branch on a mature tree, and in two plant as crudo sap, passing upward to the leaves; there it forms a combination with carbonic acid gas, derived under a new name, or a new variety from the air, then by the action of sun and light is refined and digested. such a fact is of value; but of still As the sun plays such an important part in the disintegration (as it were) of the food of the plant, I cannot see how it would have any injurious effect to water plants during sunshine; but would look at it as a thing essential if the plants needed it. I always aim to have watering done early in the morning or about three or four o'clock in the afternoon.

> "When an lows farmer is growing grass, grain and hay, and feeding those crops to cattle, hogs and sheep, and selling fat stock, butter, cream, cheese, poultry and eggs, he need not fear competition from any quarter. These are the crops nature has fitted Iowa soil and climate for far above that of any other section of the globe. Low prices and hog cholera may come, but stick to the stock business, and it will come around all right. I have traveled over a good deal of Iowa in the last year, and everywhere I go I find that the farmers who own good farms and good homes are the men who have been in the stock business most of their lives. If I could only recall my life I would go on a stock farm and let all truck business and fruit growing alone, only enough for home use. These are my honest convictions as to the future for Iowa's

PLANT SEEDS. PLANT SEEDS.

Nearly all of the best apples and plums which are profitably grown in the northwest, are home grown scedlings of quite recent origin. This fact should be very encouraging to one who is willing to plant seeds, especially apple seeds. The State Horticultural society has $1,000 hung up as a prize for the party who will produce a tree as bardy and productive as the Duchess, bearing fruit equal to the Wealthy in quality and appearance, and which must keep as well as the Melluda. The prize hangs high, but some one will bring it down with an apple seed. We should test the possibilities of more fruit seeds; may be that covered, prize-taking seedling is growing, or can be grown, from seeds now matering in your orchard, Again, these bardy little seedlings are producing the ideal roots for grafting and budding. The girls and hoys who live on the farm should be baught these arts, also, how to grow and save the roots, solous, etc., for future use. The long winter evenings or stormy says could be profitably used in giving instruction and demonstrations in such work. I trust the professor of our school of agriculture will prepare some supplemental readers for our rura! schools on these and kindred subjects.

We are glad to know that sweet elever is increasing in favor, especially Almost every fruit grower increases It is being found that live stock which do not like it at first and which will scarcely cat it unices compelled to by hunger become fond of it after they become accustomed to it. In consideration of the great power it has to grow under poor and sandy conditions it will certainly render very considerable service in sections where the soil is poor and where in consequence it may be difficult to grow suitable supplies of folder.

DOES PROHIBITION PROHIBITS

Uncle Sam's Powerful Object Lesson at Leavenworth Penitentiary. Law That Works.

[Special Correspondence,] Leavenworth, Kan. - Out of 1,200 prisoners conflued in the United States penitentiary here over 400 are liquor outlaws caught by Uncle Sam's officers while trying to break the Prohibition law of Indian Territory. There could be no stronger proof of the fact that Prohibition prohibits when it has officlals back of it who intend to enforce it. The Oklahoma State Capital in a recent Issue says:

These 400 prisoners are from Indian Territory and the small indian reserva-tions in Kansas and have been "sent up" for selling whisky to indians. It is a business so profitable that unusual risks are willingly run by the ingenious tribe that has descended from the simple old smuggler who shoved the bottle from which he had just sold a mouthful of whisky into the flaring leg of his boot and thought himself as sly as a lox. The latter vender of contraband liquid re-freshment developed the bootlegging idea in the same way that Watt developed the steam engine, but whisky hunting depulook beyond the boot leg to wagon axle, the ox bow and the horse collar. A whisky peddler's active business life is just about as brief now as it was in the early seventies, when Judge Parker of Fort Smith first sent his marshals into the Indian Territory.

The fact that this strict enforcement is kept up in spite of the cordon of license states which surround Indian Territory emphasizes the success of the law.

The 400 imprisoned outlaws are so many agents of a banished business which cares nothing for law and defles public sentiment anywhere and everywhere in order to snare new victims and fatten its bloody purse.

Sam Jones' Dog.

You can't attack the liquor traffic anywhere without going into politics as sure as I am talking this afternoon, and you know it. Who runs the politles of Wheeling, of Pittsburg, of Cleveland? You know you can't get at the Prohibition question. Outside of politics there is nothing to fight. I am like the fellow who was going along with a pitchfork on his shoulder and a vicious dog ran out at him to bite him and the man just took the fork down and jabbed it through the dog and the owner of the dog said, "What did you do that for?" The fellow said, "He was going to bite me." "flut," said the owner of the dog, "why didn't you take the other end of the fork?" "Well," said the fellow, "why didn't be come at me with the other end?"

The liquor traffic is coming at us with the death and destruction end, and I am going at it with the pitchfork end every time. If we license the saloon keeper he is good as unybody. I have but one objection to the licensed saloon keeper, and that is the same objection I have to a bedbug-it's the way he gets his living-off the heads of families. Sam Jones.

How Saloon Men "Obey." Small notice is taken of the fact that the new police captain of the central precinct has evidenced his intention of continuing THE POLICY OF FORCING THE SALOONS TO CLOSE AT THE LEGAL HOUR. Detroit Free Press.

Here is the whole liquor question in a nutshell. The only time the saloon obeys the law is when it is forced to. It is a lawbreaker by nature and never will voluntarily respect any statute-municipal, state or national. With an honest, God fearing official in command, backed by an honest, God fearing party, Prohibition can be just as easily enforced as any license substitute that was ever devised.

(Original.) How it happened I can't explain. I remember being at the glove counter and laying my shopping bag on the counter. Then I went to the other end. where there was a lady for whom I was obliged to wait before getting room. I bought a pair of gloves, opened my bag and put them in. I did so. without looking into the lag, I passed the lady for whom I had waited. She was standing at the end of the counter I had first visited, and I remember seeing a bag before her that looked so like mine that I looked down to discover if I had my own bag in my hand and saw that it was an exact duplicate of the one before the lady. I thought nothing of this, for they were a very common type.

When I got home I tossed it into a closet. The next day, before going out with it, I opened it to put in some samples. I was surprised to find in it a purse containing $20, a few samples and a letter, the envelope of which was missing. Eager to learn what these things meant, I read the letter. It

Dear Julie-Meet me Thursday aftermoon (3:35) at the northeast angle of the open square. I shall disguise myself as an old man. Wear the costume of an oldwoman. Mary doesn't suspect anything.

I was petrified with horror. I was Mary; Gilbert was my lover. The writing was disguised, but the longer I looked at it the more I was convinced that it was a bad attempt to conceal the hand of Gilbert Merriman. I glaneed at the clock. I had just half an hour to get to the place of meeting.

When I reached the square the clock in St. Paul's spire stood at 3:10. 1 walked to the northeast angle, drawing a heavy veil down over my face, through which I could see, but not be recognized. I concluded to sit on one of the benches and wait. Several women came in, but they were all young and passed on. Five minutes before the appointed time an old woman came by with a basket of apples on her arm. As she passed me I asked if she would sell me one. She held out her basket for me to choose, but did not speak. I looked into her face and felt sure that I had caught my

She gave a repressed shrick, "You and Gilbert are mistaken in thinking Mary does not suspect. You must have lost Gilbert's letter, for Mary loss it and will be here-perhaps is here now-to expose you. They took me back to the office, gave me pencil and paper, and I wrote a note to Gilbert begging him to come to me at once. The messenger was a long while finding him, and when he came I was ready to collapse. I never shall forget the look of pained wonder on his face when he saw me.

A GLANCE AT WAYS AND MEANS

Alliance Programme For September Full of Political Pointers For Temperence Workers-St. John, Swallow, Wilson, Sheen, Ganmer and Others Represented-The Virst Prohibition Party Platform of 1869. [Special Correspondence.]

Chicago, III. "Our case once fully stated on the moral side, we should, push to the front the economic and financial side of Prohibition," declares Prohibition Mayor W. A. Weaver of East Liverpool, O., in a brief, clear cut story of his recent remarkable campaign in his home city, just published in the September programme of the National Prohibition Alliance, This story of how he won out, backed by a brave and loyal band of political Prohibitionists, gives a new aspect to the possibilities of that movement. Temperance people may or may not have descrived the sneer that they have "played politics" in the past, but a new spirit is awakening within their ranks that is surprising politicians and puzzling the Rip Van Winkles of boss-

Evidence that this is true appears in this latest Alliance programme for September, which is entitled "Methods of Victory." The programme specially commemorates the thirty-sixth anniversary of the formation of the Prohibition party movement. Short, interesting discussions of political ways and means by such leading Prohibitionists as Hon. John P. St. John, Dr. Swallow, Alonzo Wilson, Dan R. Sheen and Clay F. Gaumer, the last three now holding office as state representatives in the Illinois legislature, and Mayor Weaver form a series of remark ably inspiring messages full of timely counsel to temperance people and Prohibitionists. As in the case of "Marching Orders of the Great Reform," the July Patriotic Programme and the widely used Alliance Debate Brief, first published in June, the September programmie will prove of wide interest outside of strictly Alliance circles. The programme is, as usual, issued by Charles R. Jones, chairman, 530 The Temple, Chicago, Ill., to which requests and inquiries should be addressed.

One of the notable features of the September programme is a reproduction of the first Prohibition national platform, adopted at the Chicago convention, Sept. 1, 1869, This first national Prohibition platform, read in the light of more than three and a half decades of progress, is extraordinary for its present timeliness and appropriateness and reveals An old man, much bent and leaning wieldly how unwavering and persistshifting political currents of more than a third of a century. Here are the his-

That while we adopt the name of the National Prohibition party as expressive of our primary object, and while we denounce all repudiation of the pubhe debt and pledge fidelity to the principles of the Declaration of Independence and the federal constitution, we deem it not expedient at present to give prominence to other political issues.

"I persist, because it means everything to me, and I shall persist always, Jane, unless you marry another man."

"Now, don't say that, Wilton, for although I like men and get on admirably with thom as friends, I never expect to love or marry any man!"

"It is impossible to believe that you will never love; such a woman is sure to love and love deeply. Such a life is rounded out only by love."

"But, Wilton, my life is full of other things; I have no place for love or marriage."

"Not now, perhaps, because your globe-trotting and your art studies have crowded it out for a time; but some time it will burst forth into every fibre of your being, and, Oh, Jane, if I might have the joy of calling it forth!"

Really, Wilton, try to be practical In this, as you are in other matters. With my wandering foot and my distaste for home life what kind of a wife would I make? Go to some sweet and loving girl, lavish this beautiful love on her and let her make you happy."

You ought to know how useless is advice like that. It is not that I simply want to marry. I want to marry you."

The third time your mother's health took you to Switzerland with her for an indefinite time. Now, that all these things are out of the way, your career steps in."

"There was another reason in each case, Wilton. I did not love you well enough. Our friendship has meant so much to me; in fact, I have few if any friends with whom I have so much in common; yet have I ever sought to encourage anything more than friendship on your part?"

"You certainly have not; but the master passion of a man's life does not have to be nurtured and encouraged into growth; it grows in splic of everything."

"You sail for Europe, when?" asked Wilton.

"The 15th."

"And will remain how long?" "One year."

This attempt to undermine her professional air castle rather nettled Jane, and when the man had claimed his dance came, she gave him the sweetest of smiles, while to poor Wilton she gave only a cool nod as she walked away. He stood and watched her as one watches the fading of a beatuiful sunsel, when all its gorgeous colors die into a somber gray. When she passed from his sight it seemed to him that all the color of his hopes had turned to this same gray. He left without again entering the ball room.

Something in Jane's look brought Wilton to her side, instead of to Mrs. Oagle's, where he was evidently expected, and the petals of the deep red rose which had been meant for him, were gracefully scattered among the guests as the widow departed.

Next morning Jane received another box of exquisite Sunrise roses.

BARROOMS IN THE BIG HOTELS Are Being Driven From the Field by the Boudoir Buffet. .

magnificent botel barrooms, which were a feature of Broadway life a decade ago, are being driven from the field by the boudoir buffet. Oldtime hotels like the St. Nicholas, the New York, the Metropollian, the Morton house, Union Square, Coloman and others that made New York barrooms something to talk about a few years ago almost have gone out of existence. Burkeepers and mixers of special drinks that made them famous either have gone to another sphere or into other business, and there are none to take their places. To cite the most conspicuous example the famous olliptical bar in the Hoffman house, which Edward S. Stokes made the talk of two continents, has been taken away. The collection of expensive paintings, so famous that a special view hour each morning was appointed for women, has been dispersed. What was once the most magnificent barroom in the world in now a very commonplace cafe in comparison with the more modern New York hotels. There is a small barroom in another part of the hotel which bears about the same relation to the sumptuous Stokes menage as a pushcart does to a pony carriage. This is true of all the big hotels. The waiter and small table have put the barkeeper out of business. In many of the new boudoir bars if a customer steps up to the small bar and orders a drink he is asked to take a seat at one of the tables and a waiter will carry the drink to him. This usually involves a tip to the waiter that approximates one-half the price of the drink. The old-time barkeeper complains bitterly at the innovation of the foreign waiter in the barroom or cafe. Co-operation of English Farmers.

The Agricultural Organization society was formed four years ago to promote reciprocal aid among British farmers, and statements at the auqual meeting recently held show that its object is being successfully carried out. The number of branch societies has largely increased and is now 113, embracing 22 counties, while the membership has advanced from 1,500 in 1904 to 6,500 now. One of the important aims of the society is the cheapening of freight rates, which have been excessively burdensome in England to the small shipper. This is being done with success by combining farm products in wholesale quantities. General working expenses have been reduced and in some cases the prices of products have been increased through the harmonious working of the society. It also enables members to buy in wholesale quantities from one central point instead of dribbling out small orders to a large number of producers. Farmers can buy their supplies and implements at wholesale prices, and this is considered so important that prophets are found who see in it the redemption of British agriculture from the low estate to which it has declined.

Tartars Slaughter Without Distinction to Age or Sex, Relenting Only When Victims Agree to Embrace Belief of the Invaders.

St. Petersburg cablegram: The long feared holy war of Islam against Christian has been proclaimed in Caucasia, and the green flag floats along the Pergian frontier.

The Tariars are massacreing the Armentans without distinction as to age or sek.

At the village of Minkend 300 Armenians were slaughtered. Dispatches say that mublated children were thrown to the dogs and that the few survivors were forced to embrace Islamism in order to save their lives.

The country is swarming with bands of Tartars under the leadership of their chiefs. Many thousands of Tartar horsemen have crossed the Person Russian frontier and joined the insurgents in destroying Armenian villages.

Russia has no troops at the accne of the mussucres that can be trusted to stay the Tarture. The few troops in the district are too busily engaged in keeping the social democratic revolutionary party in check to pay any attention to the massacre of the Armenians.

At Tiffis the social democrats are at open war with the Cossacks. At Baku the troops have all they can do to protect themselves.

The lates advices from Baku say that firing continues in the outskirls of the "Black town" quarter and that the rioters are committing acts of incendiarism and plunder at Balakhan. Many factories in the Voga provinces already have been closed owing to the lack of inel. The workmen there are much eveited and disorders are antici-

Two thousand social democrats had forced an entrance into the town hall, which was closed owing to the celebration of a religious holiday, the beheading of John the Baptist, Revolutiotary speeches were made and the chief of police ordered the meeting to disperse.

Part of those present obeyed, but the remainder refused and some revolvers were fired.

According to the official account the crowd was roughly handled by the commissary of police, whereupon the Third company of the Poliava regiment was summoned. The commander of the company ordered the demonstrators to disperse, promising not to arrest them if they obeyed. Shots were then fired on the Cossacks, not only from the town hall but from the courtyard and the street.

A number of rioters assembled in a neighboring house, broke through a wall leading to the hall, and opened fire with revolvers on the Cossacks and police, wounding a Cossack and a policeman. The Cossacks thereupon fired on the rloters. Official figures give the casualties as twenty-three killed and fifty wounded.

Gold Coin of More Than Century Ago Found in North Carolina.

Charlotte, N. C., dispatch: An iron por containing $50,000 in gold coin, the newest of which was 115 years old, was found on the farm of James Rivers, near Chesterfield, S. C., by Tyler Teal, a white laborer, and Will Howards, a negro, while engaged recently in digging a ditch. The pot was carried to a point two miles away and buried near a creek bank. When, two days later, the finders went after the pot it had mysteriously digappeared. The negro charges the white man with having appropriated and hidden the money from him, while Teal declares the story is all a joke and no pot was uncarthed. Detectives have secured cyldence confirming the discovery of the hidden wealth, but thus far no trace of the gold has been found.

Truth About the Popular "Proprietary Medicines."

The recent campaign against the use of proprietary medicines, conducted in the columns of The Ladles' Home Journal and Collier's Weekly. has evoked an answer from the Committee on Legislation of the Proprietary Association. The committee says;

"In considering the question raised by recent attacks upon proprietary medicines, every reasonable man will admit that there is a wide and legitimate field for the manufacture and sale of medicines already prepared for general use and easily obtainable at all times and everywhere. . As a matter of fact these medicines are not patented at all, and the popufar use of the word 'patent' in connection with them is a misnomer. Any pharmacist will tell you that practically the only 'patent' medicines in use to-day are those which are manufactured either by foreign or domestic pharmaceutical bouses, and which are now almost exclusively dispensed by physicians or designated by them in their prescriptions.

"The medicines which are now the subject of wholesale attack by Mr. Bolt and Editor Hapgood are the oldfashioned family remedies properly described as 'proprietary medicines.' They are the favorite remedies among millions of people all over the country; and, notwithstanding the constant effort of some physicians to creato projudice against them, no one ever yet heard of any of the millions of users of such remedies asking for legislation or other action adverse to

COOD BLOOD FOR BAD

Rheumatism and Other Blood Diseases are Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"In the lead mines I was at work on my knees with my elbows pressed against rock walls, in dampness and extremes of cold," said Mr. J. G. Meukel, of 2975 Jackson avenue, Dabuque, Iowa, in describing his experience to a reporter "and it is not surprising that I contracted rheumatism. For three years I had attacks affecting the joints of my ankles, knees and elbows. My ankles and knees became so swollen I could scarcely walk on uneven ground and a little pressure from a stone under my feet would cause me so much pain that I would nearly sink down. I was often obliged to lie in bed for several days at a time. My friends who were similarly troubled were getting no relief from floctors and I did not feel encouraged to throw money away for nothing. By phanes I read the story of Robert Yates, of the Klauer Manufacturing Co., of Dubuque, who had a very bad case of rhenmatism. I decided to try Dr. Williams Pink Pills for Pale People, the remedy he had used. In three or four weeks after beginning to use the pills, I was much better and in three months I was well. The swelling of the joints and the tenderness disappeared, I could work steadily and for eight years I have had no return of the trouble. My whole family believe in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Both my sons use them. consider them a household remedy that we are sure about."

What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for Mr. Meukel they are doing for hundreds of others. Every dose sends galloping through the veins, pure, strong, rich, red blood that strikes straight at the cause of all ill health. The new blood restores regularity, and braces all the organs for their special tasks. Get the gennine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at your druggists' or direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y.

Will Establish Clinic for Poor.

Mrs. Harry Wallerstein, a New York society woman of Massachusetts birth, has decide to establish a clinic for the poor and, better yet, will conduct it herself, for she feels that the six years' course of arduous study in law and medicine which she has just completed will enable her to carry out this scheme. "My specialty will be attention to the milder diseases and also affections of the lungs and heart. In no way do I presume to intrude on the work of the regular physicians who charge fees for their services at reasonable rates. My work will begin this autumn and no fee will be put upon the poor," said Mrs. Wallerstein in speaking of her work.

"I suffered with eczema all over my body. My face was covered; my eyebrows came out. I had tried three doctors, but did not get any better. I then went to another doctor. He thought my face would be marked for life, but my brother-in-law told me to get Cutleura. I washed with Cutleura Soap, applied Cution of Ointment, and took Cutieura Resolvent as directed. I could brush the scales off my face like powder. Now my face is just as clean as it ever was.—Mrs. Emma White, 641 Cherrier lace, Camden, N. J., April 25, '05."

Agrees to Settle Suit for Alienation Providing No Opposition Is Made to Divorce Proceedings-Refuses to Let Mother Visit Son.

New York dispatch: Appraising his wife's affections at $5,000, Charles E. Converse is credited with having transferred his life partner in person without her consent having been asked to one Paul MacCormac, who had been named in the suit for divorce. The husband's action for absolute divorce was granted, the money pald over and Mrs. Converse became Mrs. MacCormac.

These facts came out in a petition filed in the supreme court by Mrs. MacCormac that she be permitted to see her child more frequently than once a month as the divorce writ declares. Her counsel, addressing the court, said: "Converse's character is best known by his own admissions, Converse does not deny that he bartered away his wife.

Wife Is Not Consulted.

"This was without her knowledge, and his 'great love,' as he expresses it, for his wife was such that $5,000 bought it. He is a confessed drunkard, according to the court record, and he does not even dare to deny the facts contained in his own letter."

"I did not know until long afterward that Mr. MacCormac paid any money to Mr. Converse for me and to settle his $100,000 suit," said Mrs. MacCormac, "They only let me see my boy three hours once a month, and I don't think that is enough. Some time after I left Mr. Converse he came to me and said: 'I am going to enter suit for a divorce and I don't want you to make a defense. If you will agree not to contest it I will settle the alienation suit against Mr. MacCormac and there will be no disagreeable publicity."

Tried to Avoid Publicity.

"Of course I wanted to avoid publicity. Naturally I din't want to parade my troubles in the courts, so I consented. The only stipulation I made was that I should be permitted to see my boy when I desired. Mr. Converso said nothing to me about the payment of money.

"What I dld was perfectly honorable," declared MacCormac. "It is only just to my wife, however," he added, "to say that she did not know any money was paid by me to have the suit brought by Converse sct-and a Coal Agent Is. The rule under which one has to define his occupation in all kinds of legal transactions in England lands a great many people in difficulties. Quite recently, for instance, a man was told in one of the courts that he was not, as he thought, a "gentleman."

It has been decided that the following are not "gentlemen":

A clerk in the audit office, an attorney, an attorney's clerk, a buyer of silks, a man who solicits orders on commission, a solicitor's clerk out of regular employment, but engaged temporarily making out bills for a firm. On the other hand, each of the fol-

Mull's Grape Tonic Cured

Suffered 23 Years From Constipation and Stomach

Wilbert Thompson never knew a well day-he had been constipated all his life-many doctors treated him, but all failed to even help him-his health falled rapidly and on January 21, 1903, Mrs. Thompson asked us to suggest a treatment for her husband. We thought the case too serious and recommended that a specialist be consulted_but he also failed to help the patient -NOW HE IS WELL.

Mrs. Thompson first wrote us as follows: "My busband, aged 23, suffers from sharp pains in his stomach and sometimes thinks it is his heart. Let me know by return mail what causes the pain, if you can. Mr. Thompson has been treated by several decrees, but they have given bim up." We promptly advised that a first-class specialist be consulted. We quote: "We want to sell Mull's Grape Tenic, hecause we know the will dure constitution but 55c, a bortle is no object to us when a human life is at stake, and if your hecland's case is as serious as you state, we suggest you consult a reliable specialist, not for advertising kind, promptly." At the same time knowing that Mull's Grape Tenic could do no harm, we advised its use until a physician could be consulted. January 25th, Mrs. Thompson wrote that a physician had been consulted. He diagnosed the case as being chronic constipation and dyspepsia. His treatment was followed faithfully, but there was no perceptible improvement in Mr. Thompson's health. Then he began taking Mull's Grape Tonic and on September 2, 1903, we received the following letter from Mrs. Thompson:

"You will remember that I wrote to you last January in regard to my husband's health. It is four months since he quit taking Mull's Grape Tonic for constipation, which he suffered from since birth. He took just 24 bottles of it and is perfectly cured. He is much stronger and has gained considerably in flesh. I can-not thank you enough for Mull's Grape Tonic. 'It is worth its weight in gold.' Just $12 oured him and he has spent hundreds of dollars with doctors who did him no good. It did all you claimed it would,"

Very respectfully yours, MRS. W. H. THOMPSON, 801 Main St., Poorle, Ill. Mr. Thompson stopped taking Mull's Grape Tonic in June, 1993. He has been completely cured and has taken no other medicine since that date. Over two years and no return of the disease, should prove a

Every Heart-Ache

Every pain in the breast, difficult breathing, palpitation, fluttering or dizzy spell means that your heart is straining itself in its effort to keep in motion. This is dangerous.

Some sudden strain from overexertion or excitement will completely exhaust the nerves, or rupture the walls or arteries of the heart, and it will stop. Relieve this terrible strain at once with Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. It invigorates and strengthens the heart nerves and muscles, stimulates the heart action, and relieves the pain and misery.

Take no chances; make your heart strong and vigorous with

"I suffered tereibly with heart discuse. I have been treated by different physicians for my trouble without results. I wout to a physician in Memphis, who chained that I had dropsy of the heart. He put the X-ray on me, and in connection with his medicine he came mour making a finish of me. Some time before this a Mr. Young, of St. Louis, was in our town. He saw my condition, and recommended Dr. Miles' Heart Cure to me. I gave it little attention until my return from Memphis, when I concluded to try it, and am pleased to say three bottles cured me.

Notice to Delinquent Tax Payors

THE Tax Duplicates still show a large amount of delinquent taxes, which I am compelled by law to collect. I have notified all those who are delinquent in order to save them the extra expense of mileage and cost of levying. The law regarding the collection of delinvuent taxes is so strict that I have no alternative but to enforce payment by levy and sale of personal property if these taxes are not paid. I hope the delinquent tax payors will consider this and come in and pay at once, and save themselves the extra expense and trouble which must necessarily follow if these taxes are left unpaid.
