Gov. Hanley has refused to sign several bills originated by Senator Wood and passed by the legislature, announcing that he would accept no bills which owed their origin to his former law partner with whom he is in a personal quarrel. Hardly a dignified position for the governor of a state to take!

Judge Bernetha of the Fulton-Marshall circuit will receive an increase of salary from $2,500 to $3,500 as the result of a bill which was last week passed by the legislature. He had been receiving $3,000, of which $500 was to defray his expenses while on his circuit work while away from home. The judge did not ask for the increase as he was quite satisfied with his salary.—Rocheater Sentinel.

"Separate the sexes and see how long the dance would live in Urbana," said Evangelist Dow in a sermon on amusements over in Illinois the other day. Well, Bro. Dow, you separate the sexes and we reckon it would likewise knock out matrimony and church socials. It would also cause the making of pie to become a lost art, and thus a valuable contribution to the pleasure and comfort of life would be lost, for no woman would ever make a pie for her own sex, and the men couldn't.

School Teachers' Pay.

The bill to increase the minimum wages of school teachers of Indiana, which will amount to about 20 per cent, has been signed by Governor Hanley. The measure was drafted by the educational commission that was appointed by the governor two years ago to investigate matters relating to the salary of the teachers and other school subjects. Educators say that the new law will add about $75 a year to the pay of grade teachers.

The legislature has also by enactment lengthened the school year. When a township has a school levy of 25 cents it may extend its school terms to six months, receiving help from the state deficiency fund. At present the levy must be 40 cents. It provides also that when the levy is 40 cents the term may be extended to seven months.

German township is the only one in Marshall county which does not levy more than 40 cents.

Ditch Bill Passes.

The Kelley house bill to regulate the cleaning out of ditches was passed in the senate, by a vote of 28 to 11. The J. W. Parks ditch bill, which has been passed by the senate, relates to the construction of ditches. The Kelley bill places the cleaning of ditches in the hands of the county surveyor and provides that when a petition is presented by interested property owners he shall notify all interested and give a hearing. If the sentiment is for the cleaning out of the ditch the surveyor makes the allotments and lets the contracts. The measure provides also for a remonstrance against the cleaning of a ditch.

Assessors at Work.

All of the township assessors and their deputies are now at work. They have until May 15 to complete their duties, the time being fixed by statute. Very explicit instructions have been given in the expectation of getting a fair appraisement of real estate, which will be made this year, and an equal assessment of property for taxation.

HOME LIFE ON FARM

Paper Read by Mrs. Norris of the East Side at the Township Farmers' Institute

ORDER AND SYSTEM ARE PRIME REQUISITES OF COMFORT

Attitude a Mother Should Observe Toward her Children

[BY MRS. HARVEY NORRIS.]
Some one has said we must do a thing a thousand times before we can do it perfectly, and then we cannot tell exactly how it is done. Let us remember we never get to old too learn. So, in the language of Isaiah the prophet, allow me to say, "Come let us reason together."

We would not attempt to inaugurate a set of rules that would govern all the details of the duties of a housewife, but rather mention a few general principles which, if orderly and systematically followed, will aid in the management of a household.

Home! There is no word in the English language so full of meaning. To some it means hunger, want, vice and crime; no bible, no good books, no love, no child or children, no Sabbath, nothing but despair. But it is the humble farm home we desire to speak of, and especially the part that a mother plays. The home is the engine of the farm. The farm hands cannot rush the household, but the household can rush the farm.

Let us just mention a few rules: Economy, harmony, promptness, order, cleanliness, and last, but not least, godliness. It is useless to mention the old routine—wash and churn on Monday, iron and bake on Tuesday, mend clothes on Wednesday; then put in the leisure time raising chickens, turkeys, calves, etc. But how to do those things with the least steps is the important thing.

Use good judgment and plan your work ahead—so much for each day. Set your stake and work to it. Never be behind with your meals, for by so doing you will probably throw the whole machine out of gear. Never let the work rush you, but you rush the work. Do not work much after night, for you must sleep about half of the time or be half asleep all the time. Spend at least one hour each day reading good literature. Never try to manage more than your own household. A mother should be as wise as a serpent and as harmless as a dove.

When you visit the schools, colleges and hospitals you will find order and cleanliness; and it is just as essential in our farm homes. "Order is heaven's first law." Hold the confidence and respect of your children and servants; don't expect too much from them. Be firm but kind.

Make your work a pleasure and teach it to the children. Make each child feel that they have a part in the home, and then appreciate the little that they do, no difference how small it may seem—if no more than to set up the chairs and carry in the wood. Make your children feel that home is a great machine, and cannot run smoothly without each one doing their part. It is the successful performance of little duties that prompt children to do greater things.

Above all keep the children in school. Take an interest in their lessons. Always greet them with a smile and a kind word. Teach them to love and respect their teacher, minister and the aged, and to be kind to animals. Teach a forgiving spirit towards each other; but you can't do that unless you practice it yourself. Give the children time to read, time to work, and time to play. A mother should always take time to visit the little playhouse or the little barn with the broomstick horses. Never make a promise to a child unless you can fulfill it. As your children grow from babyhood into boyhood and girlhood, keep step with them. Never betray their confidence, so that in the times of trials and conflicts, they will seek their mother's counsel as a brood of chicks will seek the protection of the mother hen.

The mother should be the anchor of the home. Teach the little daughter to make the bread, and to make a bed or hang a curtain with neatness, and let her feel that she has accomplished a great work. Create such an interest in the Sunday school lesson that the children will be anxious for Sunday to Give the boy a chance. If he wants to connect the bones of a chicken together encourage him to do so. On butchering day if he wants to see how the animal is put together don't tell him he is only in the way—that boy is learning something. If the boy shows a talent for mechanics and likes to whittle, don't drive him out behind the house, let him sit in the wood-box. What if the whittlings are all on the outside; better that than not to know where he is. Keep the boy on the farm. I don't mean to make farmers out of all of them—you can't do that. Each boy has a different inclination. If the boy is inclined to get "blue" or discouraged, make frequent visits to the field, take the lines and go a "round." It will do you both good. Talk much about the future; that some day they will be bread-winners, and that without sacrifice there is nothing accomplished. By the sweat of our brow we earn our bread. Success with the children is mastering the common-places.

Economy! Remember disorder always means waste. It would not be wise for me to dress my family and furnish my home the same as Neighbor B, when he has a farm of 200 acres, and we only 80 and that not all paid for. It would not be wise for me to buy a fine wrapper a gold watch when the family is in need of a good cow. It is the little leaks that oft-times sink the ship. If your husband has a mortgage to pay or a building to put up, make the egg, butter and turkey money pay the small expenses. Take an active interest in your husband's business.

UNCERTAIN MARCH.

A Month in Which All Predictions Come to Naught.
March has ever been a month of varying temperature with a predominance of cloudy days. The weather man can remember when on one occasion there fell to the earth 12 inches of snow in less than twenty-four hours. That was in 1804. He can also remember the year when the mercury climbed to 82 degrees, and 1878, when the temperatures for the entire month averaged 50 degrees.

One can never tell how much rain to expect in this nearly month either. The average precipitation for March for the past thirty-six years is a little over 4 inches, but in 1904 the total was almost three times that amount, and in 1855 there was not an inch of precipitation during the thirty-one days.

As to the wind, it is always doing unusual things during this month. Its average is said to be 12 miles an hour and the prevailing direction from the northwest, but once in 1863 it blew at the rate of 50 miles an hour and came directly from the southwest.

Our's is a Successful Store. Why?

There is nothing mysterious about successful store-keeping, nothing surprising about the large business we are doing in clothing and the many goods we are selling. An ordinary store, one just like the others about it, gets ordinary business just like the rest and has to fight hard for it. But a store like this, that steps out in advance of the rest, distinguishes itself for better merchandise, gives better values—that is the one bound to build a reputation for itself and get the confidence of the public. Our store is where you'll find it a pleasure and a profit to buy.

The "Ideal" Washer

Wash Day, robbed of its terrors, becomes a day of pleasure instead

A Few Reasons why you should buy an "Ideal"

It runs so easy that a child 12 years old can operate it.
It will wash a tub of clothes in from 6 to 8 minutes, thus making it possible for you to do your washing in one-half the time and with one-half of the effort formerly required without the aid of a first-class washer.
It will not injure the finest or most delicate fabrics.
It is the simplest machine on the market, having no gears, springs or other devices which add no value to a washer whatever.
It is not an expensive machine in the first place, and will pay for itself in a short time.
The Ideal weighs only 50 pounds and any woman can handle it.

Also carry a very complete line of Clothes Washers at popular prices
