

STARTLING SENSATION

Serious Criminal Acts Charged to Culver School Girl—Held on Bonds to Circuit Court

Probably the greatest shock Culver has ever experienced was the arrest on Tuesday of the young daughter of a well-known family charged with leaving her new-born infant on the tracks of the Vandalia road at Plymouth. The child had been dead some hours when found, but it is believed that, while it had not reached full maturity, it was living when abandoned. This naturally points to another crime and to an accessory in the person of some physician.

As the story goes, the girl (only 15 years of age, and a pupil until recently in the eighth grade when she was expelled for absenting herself) went to Plymouth some days previous to the tragedy and took refuge in a hotel of shady repute. There her sister, a visiting married woman, joined her and stood by the unfortunate girl in her trouble. The infant was born on Friday night of week before last, and on Saturday morning the sisters left the hotel and came to Culver. In about a week the girl was again on the streets and on last Sunday was in her class in Sunday school.

On Monday Prosecutor Molter and Sheriff Voreis came down on the noon train and took the girl and her sister to the county seat. By nightfall everybody had heard of the affair and it was the sole topic of conversation; even the school children had learned more or less about it. Tuesday morning the sister returned, but the accused girl was held for a preliminary hearing. This was held in the afternoon before Justice Unger who fixed bail at $100 and the girl came home that evening. The succeeding steps are a matter of conjecture, but presumably a regular examination will be held when the state will outline its case with a view to a grand jury presentment.

It is said that the chambermaid is said to be an important witness. To make a case of child abandonment or murder it will be necessary to prove that the girl was the mother of the dead infant. But the crime of abortion, if such a crime was committed, should not be difficult to establish, and here is where the avenging hand of justice should be heavily laid. The girl, though wayward, is young and can hardly realize either the sinfulness of the past few months of her life or the enormity of the criminal operation which it is alleged has formed the climax of her career, and there is every chance for her to retrieve herself and become a good woman; but for the male accessories to her shame there is no charity which can be exercised to exterminate their participation.

A QUESTIONABLE LAW.

Can Men Over 50 be Compelled to Pay a Poll Tax?

The law recently enacted requiring men past the age of 50 years to pay a poll tax has created some excitement and much trouble to the county officials all over the state. It is thought that this was not the intention of the legislature. If such was their intention the amount is only 50 cents instead of the regular poll tax of $1 in the city and $2 in the county, making $2.50 in all.

It is believed that the law-makers intended this to apply only to those under the age of 50 years, and that where "voter" is used, "poll" should have been inserted, making the same read: "And in addition thereto a poll tax of fifty (50) cents upon each legal poll in the state," which would have cleared the men who have passed the half century mark and who have always been exempt from poll tax.

It is possible that some steps may be taken to have the matter decided, as there is much complaint from all sources.

LOCAL JOTTINGS

—The Knox Republican says that there is considerable counterfeit silver circulating in that vicinity.

—There's one place in town, anyhow, dear sisters, where you can keep your mouth open as long as you please, and that's at the dentist's office.

—When he went home to dinner the other day and found the furniture out on the porch and the kitchen fire out, he relieved his feelings by giving the framed motto "God Bless Our Home" a savage kick.

—County Truant Officer Langanbaugh was in town last Friday gathering statistics for his annual report, among others the enumeration of the children who come within the truancy age limit—6 to 15 years.

—The youthful exuberance of the Benton Harbor track team converted the postoffice lobby into a bear garden Saturday evening, and Postmaster Wiseman was compelled to call up the marshal. Then the gang faded.

—If Plymouth people cannot buy tickets to Chicago for 2 cents a mile, they will probably buy tickets to Valparaiso where they can get return tickets for Chicago for $1.20, making the trip to Chicago and return to Plymouth on $2.84.

—Ticket agents at the Union station at Indianapolis are much surprised over the result of the two-cent rate on the roads of Indiana, and although sales are made but one way the results from the sales are fully up to those of the old methods of selling tickets.

—The secret for burning ashes with coal discovered by John Elmore, an Altoona (Pa.) cobbler, is as follows: Common salt, 1 pound; oxalic acid, 2 ounces, and water, 1 gallon. The Citizen has experimented with the foregoing, using three parts of ashes to one part of coal. The mixture burns brightly and gives out great heat, but consumes rapidly, and one hodful cost us 6 cents. We stick to plain coal.

Chance to Make $100.

If anybody knows who put the Bell telephone service out of business south of Culver last Sunday afternoon he can make $100, as the company has a standing offer of that amount for the conviction of any person who seriously interferes with its lines.

At 2:30 Manager Hoffman was notified that the toll lines south would not work, and he started out to investigate. About 12 miles south of town, in the Bruce lake neighborhood, he discovered that five lines running through a tree were tied together with wire. The work was done by some one familiar enough with telephone operation to know that the performance would disable the service. It was about 7:15 when the discovery was made. During the interval the entire service between Logansport and South Bend was suspended, entailing a loss of upwards of $200 to the company.

NEWS FROM THE ACADEMY

Happenings of Interest and Personal Paragraphs Gathered at the School the Past Week.

The call of "Fire" about 3 o'clock Sunday morning brought officers and cadets to the house of Captain Fleet where a few minutes before the inmates had been awakened by smoke which was filling the house. The fire was found to be in the basement where the flame was burning slowly along two of the joists for a distance of six or eight feet. All the openings to the upper part of the house were closed or the draft would have soon carried the fire to the rooms above and then to the entire house. Fortunately the flames were discovered before they had worked through the floor and prompt action with a hose extinguished the fire with not more than $100 or $200 damage to the building. The fire evidently started from contact of the joists with the chimney back of the fireplace in which there had been a log fire during the evening.

Cold winds dampened the enthusiasm of all concerned at the athletic events of Saturday. A track meet was secured at a late date with a team from Benton Harbor, and Culver succeeded in carrying off 67 points to their opponents' 32. No records were broken during the meet.

Fortune was not so favorable in the baseball game with Evanston academy which followed the track meet. Evanston outplayed the cadets and won by a 3-1 score. Givens, Culver's captain, was the only one of the local team able to hit the ball. He made two two-baggers as his contribution to the batting average of the game. In the last half Captain Towne tried several of the candidates for positions on the team.

In compliance with the recommendation of Captain Mallory, U. S. A., who made the inspection last spring, the government has sent to the academy some smaller and lighter pieces for artillery work. These, four in number, have been received and Captain Bays has been having drills during the past two weeks. The new pieces are 3.2-inch breech-loading steel guns. In addition to these there have also been received one limber and chest for the gatling gun, fifteen sets of artillery harness, and fifty new Krag carbines. With the four guns each drawn by a team of four blacks, artillery drill is becoming one of the most picturesque of all the varied drills to be seen every Tuesday afternoon.

The baseball season opened in C. M. A. last Thursday by a game with the Kewanna team. On account of the short time for playing after drill the game was limited to six innings, but these six were filled with a fine article of baseball. Both pitchers held their opponents.

TEMPERANCE.

A Distinguished State Worker Holds Two Fine Meetings Here.

The visit of Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley, vice-president of the State W. C. T. U., on Tuesday was a splendid inspiration to the temperance women of Culver. Her addresses in the afternoon and evening were full of practical suggestions and furnished plenty of ammunition for future work. The evening audience filled the Refomed church. Mrs. Stanley held the keen attention of her hearers for more than an hour. She is a fine talker. Her heart glows and lips burn with her mission of raising the standard of purity in American citizenship. Her recital of the victories of the prohibition forces, and the steady progress which is being made in the patriotic work of driving the whiskey traffic out of legalized business was mightily encouraging.

A collection of $6.44 was taken at the close of the service in aid of the state work, and a number of names were added to the local membership roll.

School Census.

The school census of the village was taken by Earl Brown last week. The enumeration shows 95 males between the ages of 6 and 21, and 89 females, a total of 184.

to one or two hits and the fielding was clean and fast. A long run by Eckhart and a catch of a fly just before it touched the ground was one sensational play. Another was made by Kewanna's center fielder who ran under a long hit over his head, jumped and caught the ball in his left hand. The score was 2-0 in favor of the cadets at the close.

Regular guard was held for the first time this year last Thursday night and will be continued until all the cadets have had several tours and have become familiar with the duties and responsibilities of a sentinel. This guard is composed of 15 privates, 3 corporals, a sergeant of the guard and an officer of the guard. Their tours of duty commence at taps, 9:30 p. m., and extend until 12:30 a. m. There are five posts, so there are three reliefs and each man is on post one hour. The officers of the guard are all detailed from the first classmen regardless of their regular rank in the battalion.

The subject of fire protection for the dwellings about the academy has been brought to the front by the fire at Captain Fleet's, and a meeting of the married officers and the quartermaster was held Sunday to consider ways and means. As a result it will probably not be many weeks before a line of pipe and sufficient hose to turn two two-inch streams upon any of the dwellings will be in place for future emergencies.

The Y. M. C. A. meeting of Sunday night was a Lake Geneva meeting and was conducted by Mr. Northcote, a senior of DePauw university. The local organization hopes to have a big delegation attend the student conference in June at Lake Geneva and is beginning to rally its forces to that end.

Will Run Sunday Cars.

Goshen, Ind., April 19. — For more than a year the owners of the traction line between this city and Warsaw, all of whom are connected with the Presbyterian organization known as the Winona assembly, have refused to run trains on the Sabbath, and when the matter was first discussed some of them threatened to resign if Sunday trains were operated. It was announced today, however, that in answer to public demand, a Sunday schedule has been agreed upon and hereafter hourly cars will be run on that day. Through cars will also be run to South Bend, a distance of 50 miles. The line is really a part of the religious enterprise at Winona.

PUTTING ON FINE AIRS

Improvements Now Going on in Culver Indicate Prosperity and Forecast Beauty

The Vandalia station grounds will be more elaborately ornamented this season than ever before. One large flower bed has been added, and a walk has been laid out along the shore direct to the Lake-view. The hollow has been drained and a rustic bridge is to be thrown across it. Besides enhancing the landscape effect the new walk will afford a shorter way to the hotel from the pier and bath house. Perennial shrubs will take the place of annual blooms in the flower beds. The long pier was put out Tuesday.

Our Greatest Need.

A valued friend and reader of the Champaign Gazette sends it a quotation from a late issue of the Wall Street Journal, which coming from such a locality, is something very notable. It could only come from such a source by and through conviction as to the thing most lacking among the high financiers of this country. Here is what it says:

"What America needs more than railway extension, and western irrigation, and a low tariff, and a bigger wheat crop, and a merchant marine, and a new navy, is a revival of piety, the kind mother and father used to have—piety that counted it good business to stop for daily prayer before breakfast, right in the middle of harvest; that quit field work a half hour earlier Thursday night, so as to get the chores done and go to prayer meeting; that borrowed money to pay the preacher's salary, and prayed fervently in secret for the salvation of the rich man who looked with scorn on such unbusiness-like behavior. That's what we need now to clean this country of the filth of graft, and of greed, petty and big; of worship of fine houses and big lands and high office and grand social functions. — What is this thing we are worshipping but a vain repetition of what decayed nations fell down and worshipped just before their light went out? Read the history of Rome in decay and you will find luxury there that could lay a big dollar over our little doughnut that looks so large to us. Great wealth never made a nation substantial nor honorable. There is nothing on earth that looks good that is so dangerous for a man or a nation to handle as quick, easy, big money. If you do resist its deadly influence, the chances are that it will get you soon. It takes greater and finer heroism to dare to be poor in America than to charge an earthworks in Manchuria.

"The supreme need of the hour is not elastic currency or sounder banking, nor better protection against panics or bigger navies, or more equitable tariffs, but a revival of faith, a return to a morality which recognizes a basis in religion and the establishment of a workable and working theory of life that views man as something more than a mere lump of matter."

HOW TO ADVERTISE

EFFECTIVE METHODS THAT WILL BRING RESULTS.

SHOULD TELL THE PRICES

Generalities Are Meaningless to the Public—Why the Mail-Order Man Wins—Try the Plan.

If you, Mr. Merchant, would compete with the mail-order houses there are three main essentials to success—the goods—the prices—advertising.

The last of these is quite as essential as either of the others.

In the great majority of cases the local merchant has the goods, and he makes the prices, but in very many cases he either fails to do the advertising, or what he does do is not effective in the same way that the mail-order man's advertising is effective.

The writing of effective advertising is not an art, it is not a business that requires years of study to learn. A few hours of study and comparison will give you every essential detail that you will need.

It is comparatively safe to say that 75 per cent. of the advertising carried by local merchants in the local papers is worded in generalities only. Such advertisements as the following are found in every paper:

GO TO
FOR
Hardware, Stoves and Tinware
BEST GOODS LOWEST PRICES

The mail-order man's advertising is different. It is specific, and while the glowing descriptions given are often should quote in his advertisement should quote the public that he is giving bargains; they should be prices that would compare favorably with the prices of the mail-order catalogues, and he should impress it upon the public that he not only shows them what they are buying before they pay for it, but that the purchaser has no freight to pay, and does not have to wait an interminable time for the goods he buys, as when ordering of the mail order houses.

It is specific advertising that draws. The advertiser who describes in detail the goods he has to sell, and quotes the price he asks for it will attract the favorable attention of the public far more often than the one who deals only in generalities. It is this kind of advertising that pays. It is this kind of advertising that is attracting the dollars from the smaller cities and towns and farms to the mail-order houses of the city. It is this kind of advertising that drew $200,000,000 into the coffers of the Chicago mail-order houses alone last year, and it is this kind of advertising on the part of the local merchants that the mail-order houses fear more than any other one thing.

But, Mr. Merchant, whether your line be hardware, dry goods, groceries, clothing or other commodities, it is well to go further than your newspaper advertising, though this is the foundation of success. Go to the local printer and have him make you little catalogues of your own. They do not need to be large affairs, but small folders of four, eight or 16 pages. Put into these folders the descriptions and prices of the goods you are carrying, or leaders in the line. Be sure that the prices quoted are right, then put one of these into the hands of every customer; keep them circulating throughout the community, and make a practice of getting out a new one every few weeks.

You, Mr. Merchant, can make adver-

A $40,000 TREASURY ROBBERY.

Clever Work of Detective Revealed the Thief.

The robbery of the sub-treasury in Chicago recalls the fact that the treasury department in Washington was the victim of a $40,000 theft about 30 years ago. At first, although no reasonable explanation of how the thing could have been done by an outsider could be given, it was assumed that it was the work of some one unconnected with the office in which the robbery occurred. It was not long, however, before a clever detective became acquainted with the fact that one of the clerks who might have had access to the bundle of bills was acquainted with a professional gambler of shady antecedents. That discovery solved the problem. A little patient watching resulted in catching the gambler with the stolen notes, and the rest was easy. The clerk was arrested, and, while in confinement, was given to understand that he was betrayed, whereupon he confessed the robbery, which was accomplished by shoving the package of notes, all of large denominations, into a position where they could be "snaked up" with a case provided with a hook.

Clever Trick of Tramp.

A queer comedy of cheating is now causing much amusement in Paris.

A laborer named Bedasse, living at Ymonville, in the Eure et Loir, went to Melun with two pounds in his pocket. Having spent this in liquor, he conceived the idea of getting on to Paris for nothing.

Finding an empty third-class compartment, he fastened a flannel belt round his neck, stuffed a handkerchief into his mouth, pitched his empty purse onto the opposite seat and, lying down, first had a sleep and then, when Paris was reached, refused to give any sign of life till the alarmed station staff poured a cordial into his mouth.

Then he was taken to a hospital, where he told a story of being attacked by three men, but police questions becoming too difficult, he at last related his stratagem, and was haled from his sick bed to prison.—London Globe.

Old Wall Street Character Dead.

Van Schaek & Co., one of the oldest stock brokerage houses in New York, have just lost their oldest and most famous customer. Almost up to the time of his death a few days ago, he would drop in occasionally to ask Mr. Gorham, Derby Crandall or Col. Handy how the market was going. He kept in touch with the market notwithstanding his great age—95. Russell Sage was one of his chums, and he used to make all manner of fun of the miser, who was nearly six years his junior, patting him on the back and calling him "kid," "little boy," etc.

Town Belle Criticized.

ILL FROM OVERWORK

NERVOUS PROSTRATION CURED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

By Toning up the Blood and Nerves Patient Recovered Weight, Strength and Good Spirits.

When the nervous system is broken down from overwork, or whatever cause, life loses its joys. Not only is the nervous victim a sufferer himself but he is usually a trial to the whole family. Nervous breakdown is often gradual, appearing at first to be merely an unusual fretfulness. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills tone up the nerves in the most direct way and not only cure minor troubles but serious disorders as well.

Mr. W. W. Munroe, of 16 Hazel Park, Everett, Mass., says: "About four years ago this September I became all run down from overwork and from confinement to work during warm weather. For two months I grew steadily worse. I lost in weight and strength and had no appetite. My memory failed me quite rapidly, and I became in a very low state, both physically and mentally. I took no interest in life, neither in business nor recreation. In my position, as foreman in a large manufacturing chemist's establishment in Boston, a good memory is absolutely essential to success because of the immense amount of detail that must be carried in the head.

"I grew very despairing, could not bear to have people meet me and my friends remarked on my condition. About the middle of December a friend told me one day that he had tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and found them reliable. I commenced taking them and at the end of two weeks the change for the better was remarked by friends. I continued using the pills until I was thoroughly recovered. I regard them as a fine remedy and make this statement voluntarily in gratitude for the benefit I received from them."

These pills actually make new blood and have cured such diseases as rheumatism, nervous and general debility, indigestion, nervous headache, neuralgia and even partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia. As a tonic for the blood and nerves they are unequalled.

If you are a sufferer from any disorder of the blood and nerves write for proof of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have accomplished in cases similar to yours. Every testimonial used by this company is carefully investigated before being published and is authentic.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or direct by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Lowell, Mass.

By the aid of the editor the home merchant can ride the mail-order magnate out of the home community on the rail of publicity. The moral is advertise; advertise systematically and persistently. Tell the public what you have to offer, and tell it so they will understand.

misleading—a thing which Blank's advertising should never be—they attract the attention of the reader and possible purchaser because they tell about some one thing that he may possibly want.

The mail-order man makes a run on a few things which he is willing to sell at a close margin of profit in order to attract trade in his general line on which heavy profits are made. Blank should advertise hardware in much the same manner the mail-order man advertises hardware, and he has this advantage—he can invite the people of the community to visit his store and see the goods for themselves so they will know just what they are buying.

If, instead of expressing meaningless generalities in a two-inch space, Blank had used a little more space and properly displayed an advertisement something like the following he would have been sure to have attracted attention to his store, and in all probability would have been surprised at the drawing power of his advertising:

And when you do this do not begrudge the publisher the reasonable price he asks you for adequate space in his columns. He will give you better value than any other commodity you can buy.

NO THORNS IN HER PATH.

Josephine Daskam Writes in Tribute of the Golden Rule.

"I believe myself to be notably fortunate in my relations with my domestic employees. During a period of eight years, in which I have employed household labor in four widely different places, I have never once been addressed with intentional disrespect by any person in my employ," says Josephine Daskam Bacon in the American Magazine.

"I have never been left a day without my regular staff of employes, which has varied from one to five (that is to say, that I have never been left suddenly or without sufficient notice to supply the vacancy).

"I have never had a satisfactory worker leave me except for what I considered a good reason (in the majority of cases an advantageous marriage).

"I have never lost an unsatisfactory one except by my own dismissal. I have never to my knowledge, or even suspicion, suffered the loss of a penny's worth by theft, and my record for breakage is such that it produces utter incredulity.

"In three cases out of four I have had services willingly and frequently offered me along lines where it was not expected or requested. I have had extra money offered by me to offset extra work occasioned by sickness refused on the ground that at such times all the household expected to share the trouble.

"And as a climax I am able to state that once, at least, on my offering a raise in wages to express my appreciation of competent and devoted service I was met with the astounding suggestion that as my expenses were heavy at the time and likely to in-

THE LIONS OF THE LORD

A TALE OF THE OLD WEST
BY HARRY LEON WILSON

AUTHOR OF "THE SPENDERS"

When he had said over the words as long as his parched throat would let him, he became quiet. To his amazement, some new, strange peace had filled him. He took it for the peace of death. He was glad to think it was coming so gently—like a kind mother soothing him to his last sleep.

His head on his arm, his whole tired body relaxing in this new restfulness, he opened his eyes and looked off to the south, idly scanning the horizon, his eyes level with the sandy plain. Then something made him sit quickly up and stare intently, his bared head craning forward. To the south, lying low, a mass of light clouds, volatile, changing with opalescent lights as he looked. A little to the left of these clouds, while his head was on the sand, he thought his eyes had detected certain squared lines.

Now he scanned the spot with a feverish eagerness. At first there was only the endless empty blue. Then, when his wonder was quite dead and he was about to lie down, there came a miracle of miracles—a vision in the clear blue of the sky. And this time the lines were coherent. He, the dying sinner, had caught, clearly and positively for one awful second in that sky, the flashing impression of a cross. It faded as soon as it came, vanished while he gazed, leaving him in gasping, fainting wonder at the marvel.

And then, before he could think or question himself, the sky once more yielded its vision; again that image of a cross stayed for a second in his eyes, and this time he thought there were figures about it. Some picture was trying to show itself to him. Still reaching his body forward, gazing fearfully, his aroused body pulsing swiftly to the wonder of the thing, he began to pray again, striving to keep his excitement under.

"O God, have mercy on me, a sinner."

Slowly at first, it grew before his fixed eyes, then quickly, so that at the last there was a complete picture where but an instant before had been but a meaningless mass of line and color. Set on a hill were many low, square, flat-topped houses, brown in color against the gray ground about them. In front of these houses was a larger structure of the same material, a church-like building such as he had once seen in a picture, with a wooden cross at the top. In an open square before this church were many moving persons strangely garbed, seeming to be Indians. They surged for a moment about the door of the church, then parted to either side as if in answer to a signal, and he saw a procession of the same people coming with bowed heads, scourging themselves with short whips and thorned branches. At their head walked a brown-cowled monk, holding aloft before him a small cross, attached by a chain to his waist. As he led the procession forward, another crowd, some of them being other brown-cowled monks, parted before the church door, and there, clearly before his wondering eyes was erected a great cross upon which he saw the crucified Savior.

He saw those in the procession form about the cross and fling themselves upon the ground before it, while all the others round about knelt. He saw the monk, standing alone, raise the smaller cross in his hands above them, as if in blessing. High above it all, he saw the Crucified One, the head lying over on the shoulder.

He sank back on the sands in an ecstasy. His Witness had come—not as he thought it would, in a moment of spiritual uplift; but when he had been sunk by his own sin to fearful depths. Nor had it brought any message of glory for himself, of gifts or powers. Only the mission of suffering and service and suffering again at the end. But it was enough.

How long he lay in the joy of the realization he never knew, but sleep or faintness at last overcame him.

He was revived by the sharp chill of night, and sat up to find his mind clear, alert, and active with new purposes. He had suffered greatly from thirst, so that when he tried to say a prayer of thanksgiving he could not move his swollen tongue. He was weakened, too, by the freezing cold of the desert night aroused all his latent force. He struggled to his feet, and laid a course by the light of the moon back to the spring he had left in the morning. How he reached the hills again he never knew, nor how he made his way over them and back to the settlement. But there he lay sick for many days, his mind, when he felt it at all, tossing idly upon the great sustaining consciousness of that vision in the desert.

The day which he next remembered clearly, and from which he dated his new life, was one when he was back in the meadows. He had ridden there in the first vagueness and weakness of his recovery, without purpose, yet feeling that he must go. What he found there made him believe he had been led to the spot. Stark against the glow of the western sky as he rode up, was a huge cross. He stopped, staring in wonder, believing it to be another vision; but it stayed before him, rigid, bare, and uncompromising. He lit his horse and climbed up to it. At its base was piled a cairn of stones, and against this was a slab with an inscription:—

"Here 120 Men, Women, and Children Were Massacred in Cold Blood Early in September, 1857."

On the cross itself was carved in deep letters:—

"Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord."

He fell on his knees at the foot and prayed, not weeping nor in any fever of fear, but as one knowing his sin and the sin of his Church. The burden of his prayer was, "O God, my own sin cannot be forgiven—I know it well—but let me atone for the sins of this people and let me guide them aright. Let me die on this cross a hundred deaths for each life they put out, or as many more as shall be needed to save them."

He was strong in his faith again, conscious that he himself was lost, but burning to save others, and hopeful, too, for he believed that a miracle had been vouchsafed to him in the desert.

Nor would the good padre, at the head of his procession of penitents in his little mission out across the desert.

"Are You a Damned Mormon?"

have doubted less that it was a miracle than did this unhappy apostle of Joseph Smith, had he known the circumstance of its timeliness; albeit he had become familiar with such phenomena of light and air in the desert.

CHAPTER XXI.

The Sinner Chastens Himself.
How to offer the greatest sacrifice—how to do the greatest service—these had become his problems. He concerned himself no longer with his own exaltation either in this world or the world to come.

He resolved to stay south, fearing vaguely that in the north he would be in conflict with the priesthood. He knew not how; he felt that he was still sound in his faith, but he felt, too, some undefined antagonism between himself and those who preached in the tabernacle. For his home he chose the settlement of Amalson, set in a rich little valley between the shoulders of the Pine mountains.

Late in October there was finished for him on the outer edge of the town, near the bank of a little hill-born stream, a roomy log-house, mud-chinked, with a water-tight roof of spruce shakes and a floor of whipsawed plank—a residence fit for one of the foremost teachers in the Church, an Elder after the Order of Melchisedek, an eloquent preacher and one true to the blessed Gods. At one end of the cabin, a small room was partitioned off and a bunk built in it. A chair and a water-basin on a block comprised its furniture. This room he reserved for himself.

As to the rest of the house, his ideas were at first cloudy. He knew only that he wished to serve. Gradually, however, as his mind worked over the problem, the answer came with considerable clearness. He thought about it much on his way north, for he was obliged to make a trip to Salt Lake City to secure supplies for the winter, some needed articles of furniture for the house, and his wagons and stock.

He was helped in his thinking on a day early in the journey. Near a squallid hut on the outskirts of Cedar City he noticed a woman staggering under an armful of wood. She was bareheaded, with hair disordered, her cheeks hollowed, and her skin yellow and bloodless. He remembered the tale he had heard when he came down. He thought she must be that wife of Bishop Snow who had been put away. He rode up to the cabin as the woman threw her wood inside. She was weak and wretched-looking in the extreme. "I am Elder Rae. I want to know if you would care to go to Amalson with me when I come back. If you do, you can have a home there as long as you like. It would be easier for you than here."

She had looked up quickly at him in much embarrassment. She smiled a little when he had finished.

"I'm not much good to work, but I think I'd get stronger if I had plenty to eat. I used to be right strong and well."

"I shall be along with my wagons in two weeks or a little more. If you will go with me then I would like to have you. Here, here is money to buy you food until I come."

"You've heard of me, have you—that I'm a divorced woman?"

"Yes, I know."

She looked down at the ground a moment, pondering, then up at him with sudden resolution.

"I can't work hard and—I'm not—pretty any longer—why do you want to marry me?"

Her question made him the more embarrassed of the two, and she saw as much, but she could not tell why it was.

"Why," he stammered, "why,—you see—but never mind. I must hurry now. In about two weeks—"

And he put the spurs so viciously to his horse that he was nearly unseated by the startled animal's leap.

Off on the open road again he thought it out. Marriage had not been in his mind when he spoke to the woman. He had meant only to give her a home. But to her the idea had come naturally from his words, and he began to see that it was, indeed, not an unnatural thing to do. He dwelt long on this new idea, picturing at intervals the woman's lack of any charm or beauty, her painful emaciation, her weakness.

As he entered Brigham's office in Salt Lake City some days later, there passed out by the same door a woman whom he seemed dimly to remember. The left half of her face was disfigured by a huge flaming scar, and he saw that she had but one hand.

"Who was that woman?" he asked Brigham, after they had chatted a little of other matters.

"That's poor Christina Lund. You ought to remember her. She was in your hand-cart party. She's having a pretty hard time of it. You see, she froze off one hand, so now she can't work much, and then she froze her face, so she ain't much for looks any longer—in fact, I wouldn't say Christina was much to start with, judging from the half of her face that's still good—and so, of course, she hasn't been able to marry. The Church helps her a little now and then, but what troubles her most is that she'll lose her glory if she ain't married. You see, she ain't a worker and she ain't handsome, so who's going to have her sealed to him?"

"I remember her now. She pushed the cart with her father in it from the Platte crossing, at Fort Laramie, clear over to Echo canyon, when all the fingers of one hand came off on the bar of the cart one afternoon; and then her hand had to be amputated. Brother Brigham, she shouldn't be cheated of her place in the Kingdom."

"Well, she ain't capable, and she ain't a pretty person, so what can she do?"

"I believe if the Lord is willing I will have her sealed to me."

"It will be your own doings, Brother Rae. I wouldn't take it on myself to counsel that woman to anybody."

"I feel I must do it, Brother Brigham."

"Well, so be it if you say. She can be sealed to you and be a star in your crown forever. But I hope, now that you've begun to build up your kingdom, you'll do a little better, next time. There's a lot of pretty good-looking young women come in with a party yesterday—"

"All in good time, Brother Brigham! If you're willing, I'll pick up my second on the way south."

"Well, well, now that's good!" and the broad face of Brigham glowed with friendly enthusiasm. "You know I'd suspicioned more than once that you wasn't overly strong on the doctrinal point of celestial marriage. I hope your second, Brother Joel, is a little fancier than this one."

"She'll be a better worker," he replied.

"Well, they're the most satisfactory in the long run. I've found that out myself. At any rate, it's best to lay the foundations of your kingdom with workers, the plainer the better. After that, a man can afford something in the ornamental line now and then. Now, I'll send for Christina and tell her what luck she's in. She hasn't had her endowments yet, so you might as well go through those with her. He at the endowment-house at five in the morning."

And so it befell that Joel Rae, Elder after the Order of Melchisedek, and Christina Lund, spinster, native of Denmark, were on the following day, after the endowment-rites had been administered, married for time and eternity.

From the altar they went to the wagons and began their journey south. Christina came out of the endowment-house, glowing, as to one side of her face. She was, also, in a state of daze that left her able to say but little. Proud and happy and silent, her sole remark, the first day of the trip, was: "Brigham—now—he make such a lovely, bee-yoo-tiful God in heaven!"

But his work of service had only begun. As they went farther south he began to make inquiries for the wandering wife of Elder Tench. He came upon her at length as she was starting north from Deaver at dusk. He prevailed upon her to stop with his party.

"I don't mind to-night, sir, but I must be off betimes in the morning."

But in the morning he persuaded her to stay with them.

"Your husband is out of the country now, but he's coming back soon, and he will stop first at my house when he does come. So stay with me there and wait for him."

She was troubled by this at first, but at last agreed.

"If you're sure he will come there first—"

She refused to ride in the wagon, however, preferring to walk, and strode briskly all day in the wake of the cattle.

When they reached Cedar City a halt was made while he went for the other woman—not without some misgiving, for he remembered that she was still young. But his second view of her reassured him—the sallow, anemic face, the skin drawn tightly over the cheek bones, the drooping shoulders, the thin, forlorn figure. Even the certainty that her life of hardship was ended, that she was at least sure not to die of privation, had failed to call out any radiance upon her. They were married by a local Bishop, Joel's first wife placing the hand of the second in his own, as the ceremony required. Then with his wives, his charges, his wagons, and his cattle he continued on to the home he had made at the edge of Amalson.

Among the women there was no awkwardness or inharmonious; they had all suffered; and the two wives tactfully humored the whims of the insane woman. On the day they reached home, the husband took them to the door of his own little room.

"All that out there is yours," he said. "Make the best arrangements you can. This is my place; neither of you must ever come in here."

CHAPTER XXII.

The Coming of the Woman-Child.

The next day he sent across the settlement for the child, waiting for her with mixed emotions—a trembling merge of love and fear, with something, indeed, of awe for this woman-child of her mother, who had come to him so deviously and with a secret significance so mighty of portent to his own soul. When they brought her in at last, he had to brace himself to meet her.

She came and stood before him, one foot a little advanced, several dolls clutched tightly under one arm, and her bonnet swinging in the other hand. She looked up at him fearlessly, questioningly, but with no sign of friendliness. He saw and felt her mother in all her being, in her eyes and hair, in the lines of her soft little face, and indefinitely in her way of standing or moving. He was seized with a sudden fear that the mother watched him secretly out of the child's eyes, and with the child's lips might call to him accusingly, with what wild cries of anguish and reproach he dared not guess. He strove to say something to her, but his lips were dry, and he made only some half-articulate sound, trying to force a smile of assurance.

Then the child spoke, her serious, questioning eyes upon him unwaveringly.

"Are you a damned Mormon?"

THROUGH THE STATE

NEWS GATHERED FROM VARIOUS INDIANA POINTS.

CONFERENCES AT WINONA

Active Summer Planned by Religious Workers — Missions, Sunday Schools and Temperance People to Hold Meetings.

Winona Lake.—A number of organizations have made early preparations for an active summer along educational lines through special schools and conferences at Winona Lake, and these organizations are now bending their efforts toward arousing general interest in their affairs. The first gathering of the kind at this resort will be a school for mission workers, which will be conducted by a committee representing a number of Protestant church denominations in the central west. This committee, which makes its headquarters at Chicago, has been conducting its school at Winona Lake each spring for several years, always with a good attendance.

Its instruction is for women's missionary and young people's societies, leaders and members of mission study circles, and others who are interested in missionary effort. During each term of school a textbook, written especially for mission workers, is diligently studied by the students in the school under the guidance of a capable leader. The next school period will open on June 24 and continue through July 1.

The Indiana Anti-Saloon league has sent to the Winona Assembly management its plans for a three days' conference on temperance questions, which will begin at Winona Lake, July 29. The league has for its slogan, "Indiana a Dry State by 1912," and a part of the plan is to obtain from the next Indiana legislature a county feature to the remonstrance law, together with a resolution calling for a constitutional amendment absolutely prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in the state for beverage purposes, the amendment to be submitted to a vote of the people at the earliest possible time.

In view of its plans for the future the Anti-Saloon league authorities regard its July conference as one of utmost importance, and it hopes to attract to Winona Lake a large number of temperance workers, ministers and others, when the plan of operations will be clearly made known. The league is urging the churches, Sunday schools, young people's societies, W. C. T. U., and other organizations to send representatives to the conference. A number of sessions will be held, the chief speakers being the Rev. U. G. Humphrey, superintendent of the Indiana league, and the Rev. Perley A. Baker, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of America. Much of Mr. Humphrey's effort will be given to making clear to the conference the present condition of temperance affairs in Indiana. The laws on the subject passed by the last legislature will be dealt with exhaustively that temperance workers may know how to proceed against the liquor traffic in their home communities.

The training school for Sunday school workers, which has held its sessions here for several years, has sent to the assembly headquarters its plans for the coming school, which will open on August 9 and continue through the 16th. The teaching force of the school is to be reorganized, but Rev. E. W. Halpenny, of Indianapolis, will continue to direct the school's affairs. He has built up this branch of Sunday school work until the enrollment each summer reaches several hundred. There is no tuition fee, and a number of other inducements makes the school attractive to Sunday school superintendents, teachers and the whole force of officers. This year the course of instruction will take up child study, the primary and junior departments, Sunday school management, mission work, Bible study and other lines of Sabbath-school work, and there will be a number of special lectures by leading authorities.

The National Reform association holds its annual sessions here from August 12 to 17. Last year representatives from 24 states were in attendance. The instructors this year will be Dr. S. F. Scovel, of Wooster, O., president of the association; Dr. R. C. Wiley, of Pittsburg, secretary and treasurer; Dr. W. O. Wishart, of Allegheny, of the executive committee. Among the speakers who will be heard are: The Rev. T. H. Acheson, Wilkesburg, Pa.; the Rev. T. B. Anderson, Rochester, Pa., and Dr. J. S. Martin, Newcastle, Pa.

The association has made Winona Lake its permanent meeting place in the west and has had plans drawn for a civic temple which is to be erected in the Winona park.

Clay County Has Good Oil Well.

Cory.—The McGregor oil well was drilled to the depth of 1,610 feet, when a good flow of oil was struck. The well was shot, showing that the well was a good producer of a fine quality of oil. New wells are to be sunk at once on the Bell farm, a mile southwest of Cory, one on the Sleglein farm, three miles north of here; also one on the Smith farm, northwest of here, one and a half miles. Operators are very busy about Salt Lake City and Center Point.

Prof. Wood Elected President of Northern Indiana Association.

Laporte.—Prof. John A. Wood, superintendent of the public schools of this city, who was elected to the presidency of the Northern Indiana Teachers' association, was born in Cleveland, O., August 14, 1865. He has devoted his entire life to educational work and is ranked as one of the leading representatives of the profession in Indiana, and through his articles on educational subjects in magazines and school journals has won a national reputation.

His work in Indiana has consisted of four years at Cortland, two at Clinton, two years as superintendent at Charleston, seven years as principal of the Frankfort high school and five years as superintendent of the Laporte schools.

TO TEST TWO-CENT FARE LAW.

Constitutionality of New Railroad Act Will Be Decided.

Indianapolis.—What promises to be a suit of unusual interest and of far-reaching effect, not only in Indiana but other states also, was that in equity to test the legality of the new two-cent fare law in this state, filed Tuesday by Anna M. Boyle in the United States court. The Indiana state railroad commission, through its members, Union B. Hunt, Charles R. McAdams and William J. Wood, the state of Indiana, through its attorney general, James Bingham, and J. W. Ewing, prosecuting attorney for the Third judicial circuit of the state of Indiana are made defendants.

TO TEST TWO-CENT FARE LAW.

Indianapolis.—What promises to be a suit of unusual interest and of far-reaching effect, not only in Indiana but other states also, was that in equity to test the legality of the new two-cent fare law in this state, filed Tuesday by Anna M. Boyle in the United States court. The Indiana state railroad commission, through its members, Union B. Hunt, Charles R. McAdams and William J. Wood, the state of Indiana, through its attorney general, James Bingham, and J. W. Ewing, prosecuting attorney for the Third judicial circuit of the state of Indiana are made defendants.

Anna M. Boyle is a stockholder in the Louisville, New Albany & Corydon railroad, which is 12 miles long, and runs between Corydon Junction, in Harrison county, to King's Cave in the same county. The charge set forth in the complaint is that if the new law is enforced the L. N. A. & C. railroad, which now has a face cash value of $156,679, would not be worth $50,000. The property, it is charged, will be deprived of all value by the enforcement of the law, which the complaint states is contrary to the constitution of the United States, being in violation of section 1, article 14, and of Section 4, article 4. An injunction is asked to prevent the enforcement of the two-cent fare law.

Spinster Commits Suicide.

Danville.—Martha J. Richardson, a spinster, 54 years old, committed suicide at the home of her sister, Mrs. Henry Proctor, in Pittsboro, eight miles north of Danville, by hanging. She had been ill and out of employment for some time and was despondent. When Dr. Charles W. McClintock was called he found the body hanging in an outhouse and said she must have been dead for some time. He also found some burned places in her clothing, and part of her hair was singed off. A search of her room revealed a pan of ashes and live coals. She is supposed to have first tried to burn herself to death.

Fights Steer with Penknife.

Columbus.—Oscar Boaz, son of Ace Boaz, had a long fight with a mad steer in the woods of James Finkle, near Nortonburg. The animal finally pinioned the young man against a fence and was trying to gore him to death when the boy held on to the animal's horn and was thrown some distance. The steer had the boy down a second time, when young Boaz pulled his knife from his pocket and slashed the steer on the neck. This frightened the steer, who ran to another part of the woods and allowed Boaz to escape.

Old Soldier Is Sentenced.

Noblesville.—Philip Ward, of Indianapolis, on a plea of guilty to the charge of embezzlement, was given an indeterminate sentence of from two to 14 years in the Michigan City penitentiary. He was given $415 by an Indianapolis firm to buy mules in this county. He used $200 in purchasing mules, but failed to account for the remainder of the money. Ward is an ex-union soldier.

Gets Married, But Studies.

Terre Haute.—A romantic courtship which began last year in the Indiana State Normal school terminated when Miss Dicea Alice Baxter, of French Lick, became the bride of James Andrew Jackson, Jr., a pharmacist. Mr. Jackson, whose home is in Laporte county, is a graduate of Purdue and spent a few months last year at the Normal. The bride is a senior, and will continue her course in order to receive her diploma in June. Cupid is not to be allowed to entirely interfere with a higher education.

CULVER, IND., APRIL 25, 1907.

W. J. Bryan is still capering around the presidential nomination, looking at it with longing, but apparently afraid to pick it up. Inasmuch as it is a pretty hot proposition, perhaps he is waiting to see if it will cool off a little to make sure that he will be able to hold it.

Congressman A. L. Brick will leave on April 26 for the Hawaiian islands upon the invitation of the territorial government of Hawaii as the guest of that island territory of the United States. Mr. Brick was the chairman of the congressional sub-committee which is the practical governing power of the islands.

One of the absurdities of "popular" demand for legislation is furnished by the furor for two-cent passenger rates on railroads, and the passage of such laws by twenty-three of the state legislatures. At the same time every buyer of a ton of coal in Northern Indiana in this district pays $3.75 for freight on every ton of anthracite coal which they burn. It may be that this is not too much for the service, but it strikes one that if it is the effect on the public is far greater than the difference between old and new passenger rates. Probably ten people buy coal to three who pay passenger fare.—Elkhart Review.

The newspaper reader whose interest in the world's affairs is broad enough to take in something besides the green and pink sheets is apt to get confused when he digs into the baseball news and discovers that he must first learn who the cubs, the soxs, the pirates, the giants, the cardinals, the senators, the highlanders, the bisons, etc. are before he can understand the situation. He may flatter himself that he's reasonably intelligent and has a fair knowledge of geography by knowing where New York, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Buffalo and other towns are, but he finds that he must learn his geography all over in order to know that "pirates" stands for Pittsburg, "giants" for New York, "cardinals" for St. Louis, "senators" for Washington, "cubs" for a Chicago club belonging to one league organization, and "sox" to a Chicago club belong to another.

Death of Nathaniel Mikesell.

The body of Nathaniel Mikesell, who died of consumption, was brought to Culver from South Bend on Sunday and buried in the local cemetery. A service was held at the Evangelical church, Rev. Mr. Walmer officiating.

Mr. Mikesell formerly lived about 4 miles southwest of Culver. He moved to South Bend about 18 months ago. He leaves a wife and four sons—Charles, Claude, Howard and Raymond. Charles lives in Culver, Claude on the home farm, and the two other sons in South Bend.

Nathaniel Mikesell was born Feb. 22, 1857, in Fulton county, Indiana, and died April 18, 1907, in South Bend, Ind., reaching the age of 50 years. On March 25, 1880, he was married to Rachel Bryant. Mr. Mikesell's health began to fail about four months ago. During his sickness he was patient and resigned to the ways of Him who knoweth best. Thirteen years ago he was converted in the United Brethren church. While living in Culver he frequently attended the Evangelical church. Before death came he made arrangements as to where his remains were to be laid to rest and before passing away he told his wife all was well. He made and had many friends. May the good Lord comfort and bless the bereaved wife, sons and three sisters and five brothers who survive him.

PHONE MERGER.

The Bell Telephone Company Offers to Quit Northern Indiana.

The Logansport and Fort Wayne papers announce that a movement is on foot to merge all Bell and independent telephone interests in Northern Indiana. According to reports, the Bell representatives and the independents have had several meetings at which the Bell company has made propositions to quit the Northern Indiana field if the home companies will take their toll line business and connect it with the independent plants. The Bell company has exchanges at Peru, Wabash, Fort Wayne and South Bend, and they offer to abandon these on a reasonable basis. Most of the independent companies are in favor of accepting the proposition and a meeting is being held at Fort Wayne today (Friday) to fully consider the negotiations.

Such a merger would not affect Plymouth except to give all phone users direct connection with Bell long distance service and take the Bell long distance service to every phone in Marshall county.

The Bell company has lost ground heavily in recent years and it is said to be operating its property at great loss as are many other telephone companies that fix their rates on a basis of prices of wire, copper, and all telephone supplies, of several years ago and which have now increased 50 to 100 per cent. Iron telephone wire that cost $1.80 per hundred ten years ago is now $4 per hundred; poles that cost 85 and 95 cents are now $2.35 and $2.50; copper wire that cost 12 cents per pound is now 31 cents; and all other supplies have gone up in like proportion.—Plymouth Independent.

[At the Fort Wayne meeting the proposition of the Bell company was received and will be noted upon at the convention of the independent interests at Indianapolis in May.]

Miss Rea's Recital.

Miss Lucretia Rea, of Culver, who comes here each week and gives instruction in music, gave a recital at the home of W. H. Love in this city last night. About twenty of her pupils were present and took part in a musical program which was rendered.—Plymouth Independent.

Three of Miss Rea's Culver pupils, Ruth and Helen Snyder and Beatrice Goss, accompanied her and had numbers on the program.

Paymaster Crawford Retires.

Maj. F. H. Crawford, for thirty years paymaster for the Vandalia, and who retired last week from that position, gives as a reason for his resignation as paymaster that he is getting advanced in age and fears that he would have been unable to withstand the strain for any great length of time. His popularity when in the office causes much regret that he has resigned.

THIS CUT shows the IDEAL Washer in operation. Note the perfectly easy and natural position of the operator. The handle is swung back and forth; not clear around but one-third the way. The operator stands in a perfectly upright position at all times and takes free, easy swings. It is not the rubbing alone that does the work, but streams of hot, soapy water are forced through every part and piece until all is thoroughly cleansed. Please bear in mind that the IDEAL is not solely a rub washer—far from it. Neither does it simply churn the clothes around in the water, but it embodies both principles and thus produces perfect results. Our Washer is absolutely the simplest machine on the market—no obstructions of any kind on the inside, neither are there any cog wheels, springs or other complicated parts on the outside. The IDEAL is an absolute necessity in every family, as it saves our strength, health and patience. We absolutely guarantee it to last longer, to run lighter and to wash quicker and cleaner than any other machine made.

CULVER, IND., APRIL 25, 1907.

Obituary.

Edna Blanche Peeples, daughter of George and Clara Peeples, was born in Green township, Marshall county, Sept. 15, 1904, and died at her home in Mazinkuckee, Ind., April 18, 1907, aged 2 years, 7 months and 3 days. She leaves a father, mother, two sisters, one brother and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn her departure from this life. It seems very sad that little Edna's stay was so brief among us. She was a sweet and loving child, and those who learned to know her extend their tender love and sympathy to the bereaved friends and especially the mother who now so deeply mourns the loss of her dear child.

Her dimpled hands are folded o'er Her pure and sinless breast. Like some sweet rosebud crushed at morn She lieth now at rest.

No more to hear her little voice, Nor feel her soft arms twine Around my neck in fond embrace, Such joys no more are mine.

But, oh! my Father at thy feet I lay my burden down. Help me to bow and meekly say, "Thy holy will be done."

The funeral sermon was preached at Poplar Grove by Rev. Atkinson Friday afternoon at 2:30.

CONSTIPATION.

I can tell a person who is constipated on sight. Their complexion is pasty or yellow. Their eyes are dull, and they look and feel sleepy. No wonder they do. The bowels are a sewer. They carry away the poisonous refuse. If they don't set the poisonous matter is absorbed by the body, and headaches, dullness, bad complexion and eventually serious troubles result.

There is no better rule for good health than that the bowels should move every day at the same hour if possible. Regularity can be acquired by making a habit of this. Foolish people neglect this and when chronic constipation effects them they take pills every few days to force the bowels to perform their natural function. As years go on they require more and more pills. This should be stopped. Cooper's New Discovery will build up the stomach and cause the bowels to act naturally. While taking the medicine get the habit of regularity, then gradually stop taking the medicine.

Here is a sample of letters from those who have tried it: "For sixteen years I have suffered from stomach and liver trouble, and chronic constipation. I had frequent headaches and always felt tired and worn out. I heard of Cooper's New Discovery and began its use. After I had finished one bottle I was wonderfully improved. Constipation gave way to a pleasing regularity of the bowels and I ate better, slept better and felt better than I had for months. It is the greatest medicine I have ever known." WOULD FOOL CULVER.

Advertisement for a Liquor License Smuggled into a Bourbon Paper.

John W. Wolford evidently believed that he could have Wm. Vanderweele advertise for a license to sell intoxicating liquors at his Culver place without the citizens of Union township finding it out.

Instead of advertising in a county seat newspaper or in the Culver Citizen, the notice of intended application appears in a Bourbon newspaper on a patent inside page. Had no one discovered this, there could have been no protest against the granting of a license because the citizens of Union township would not have been aware that any one intended to apply. There is already a two-thirds remonstrance and all that is necessary is for an appearance to be made before the board of commissioners, as that body has already held the remonstrance to be sufficient.

The remonstrators will be represented before the board when it meets in May and it is conclusive that Wolford will not get back into business in Culver as yet.

It was quite a trick but it would not work. The type for the advertisement was set up by the Bourbon printer, sent to the Chicago ready-print house and inserted in an obscure place on an inside patent page. It is remarkable that the advertisement was discovered but there are some people in Marshall county who are watching for just such tricks.—Plymouth Independent.

[The law makes it obligatory on the remonstrators to appear before the commissioners and defend the remonstrance whenever an application for a license is made. Failure to do this or failure to substantiate the validity of the signatures to the remonstrance would leave the commissioners no recourse other than to issue a license. This is the opinion of the attorney of the Anti-Saloon league in the particular case above cited. Under the new law, which is of course not retroactive and therefore does not apply to the Culver remonstrance, the signatures on a remonstrance are prima facie evidence of their legality, and the proof is on the applicant to show otherwise.]

The Culver remonstrance contains a majority of 40, and no fear is entertained that it will be invalidated, but it will be necessary to make an appearance when the matter is brought before the commissioners next month and contest any claim that the applicant may make against the signatures.]

Sidewalks and Grades.

Surveyors were here last week giving grades for the line of cement walk on the north side of Washington street for a distance of two blocks. They also gave the lines and grades for relaying the walks on the opposite side of the street from Ferrier's west corner to the Vandavia right of way. The walks will be raised at least a foot at the lower end of the street and will be moved out into the street nearly 4 feet at that point. The village will raise the grade of the street along the two blocks.

A Burglar Scare.

We had a real burglar scare in town the other night, and it's a mercy somebody wasn't all shot up, for the fellows that held the guns were out for blood. Of course you'll suspect right at the start that the affair is a joke, and we might as well tell you so before you get any further. It happened like this: Otto and John closed up the store early and made a quiet sneak for the bowling alleys where a number of good fellows and their wives—and maybe their girls, too, for all we know—congregate nightly. Otto and John had a bully time and didn't break away until quite late—for this town. When they reached the stairway that leads to their habitation over the store they suddenly detected three men across the street in a doorway. The three never moved and it looked mighty suspicious. It looked suspicious to Otto and John, and it would have looked so to you if you had been there.

"Burglars!" whispered John. "Rouse 'em!" echoed Otto. John dragged Otto and Otto dragged John up the stairs and after talking it over decided that there was only one thing for a man to do on such an occasion, and that was to go after those burglars even if they lost their lives in the attempt. Arming themselves with revolvers, and telephoning to several parties that the whole blamed town was in danger of being stolen, they marched boldly down the stairs with fingers on triggers and walked boldly over to the gang. In another instant there would have been three dead burglars piled up in Hessel's doorway, but providence stayed the hands of the slayers, and one of the gang spoke up and said, "Say, you fellows, what's the matter?" Then did Otto and John take unto themselves the hunch that the burglars were only three of the boys waiting to escort one of the telephone girls home!

You can't scare Otto and John any more with burglars.

In Honor of Guests.

A delightful little party was given last Saturday evening by Mrs. Elsie Curtis in honor of Miss Schroeder of Logansport and Miss Rogers of Kewanna. Whist, with a table at Pit for those who did not care for cards, afforded entertainment for this very pleasant occasion. About twenty young people were present.

The same young ladies were the guests of honor at a dinner given Sunday by Mrs. Curtis. Covers were laid for six.

Strikes and Snares.

S. J. Lenon was the winner of the expert prize last week with a score of 252, and Ed Baker of the amateur prize with a score of 245. Miss Ollie Hayes won the ladies' prize, scoring 104. The same parties were the winners of the week previous.

Kewanna is in the throes of perhaps the greatest scandal in her history, but until the matter gets into the courts and becomes public property the Herald will have nothing to say.—Kewanna Herald. You mean thing! Stop my paper.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney nerves. The kidneys, like the heart, and the stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches, or is weak, if the urine is scanty, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell.

"He Who Keepeth His Tongue."

An old fashioned minister was visiting his son in New York recently and was taken to a fashionable church for the Sunday morning service. The pastor is a young man of great culture, but evidently his oratorical efforts did not greatly impress the visitor, for when they were walking homeward the son remarked approvingly:

"That was a good sermon, an excellent sermon. The congregation like Dr. Blank very much."

"Yes, a good sermon undoubtedly," his father replied. "It could not possibly have touched a sore spot anywhere."—New York Herald.
