

THE CLOSING SCENES

The Final Week at the Academy Full of Striking Events and Spectacular Exhibitions.

The visitor at Culver during the exercises of last week had a strenuous time if he attended all the drills, parades and ceremonies, athletic and social features that kept participants and spectators alike on the move. The work of each day began with guard mounting at 7:30. Even for this a few of the more energetic turned out and witnessed the change of guard.

Following guard-mounting each morning the battalion of four companies was divided into three battalions of smaller companies and wondered how those boys kept their seats on the bounding limbers or managed to come out with whole ear drums when the four pieces volleyed out their thunder.

After dinner each day the visitor was given a respite until four o'clock when battalion drill was held. On one day great throngs of people beheld the entire battalion—horse, foot, artillery, hospital squad and signalers—indulge in mimic war which brought plenty of glory but no bloodshed either to victor or vanquished. On some the full ceremony of regimental parade gone through for the visitors. Then the watchful spectator wended his way to the riding hall where the youthful horsemen entertained them with such feats as elicited applause from the parents and little shrieks of mingled admiration and terror from the young ladies. Wednesday morning, however, the troop drill was held on the parade ground, and the charges at full speed, the quick work in column of fours and the changes of front, the wheelings and all the other movements showed the troop of 1907 as the best in the history of C. M. A.

Then how those boys did hustle around, almost in a twinkling transforming a pile of lumber into a stately spar bridge over which a company was marched in double time. But one type of bridge is not enough for the Culver cadets, so there they went from the slender spar bridge to throw out a pontoon structure across the widest part of the lagoon.

The visitor, however, had to be on his watch and not spend too much time on these interesting feats or he would miss the signal corps wigwagging messages across the field or running a field telegraph and sending hurried messages by this. Or he might fail to see the squad going over a 10- and 16-foot wall as if it were a common fence. He had to be careful, too, not to overlook the hospital squad which was bravely binding up and carrying off chosen sufferers plentifully dyed with red ink.

Then, too, there was artillery, four pieces in charge of Captain Bays, and when the sixteen horses dashed down the field at full speed and wheeled into position for action at the word of command one day the battalion drill closed with the beautiful drill according to Butts' manual of arms done to music. Each day's drill closed with the ceremony of dress parade and each time as the straight lines moved into place or passed in review, stepping all together, or as the manual was performed accurately as if by one man, fresh words of praise were heard on every hand.

On Wednesday evening, when the officers marched to their places in front of the commandant, they were given their military certificates which they were assured had been justly earned by the men who had made the battalion of '07 of such high standard.

On Tuesday evening was held the annual cotillion conducted by Mr. Gaynor. On Wednesday came the final ball for which the gymnasium had been beautifully decorated with vines and hanging baskets, colored lights and scores of fluttering pennants. The officers' figure was followed by the grand march where 200 couples received their programs. With a short intermission for refreshments dancing continued until time for the morning gun. At midnight the class of '07 was called upon the floor, and the roll was called by the president. Then "parade rest" was given and the strains of "Auld Lang Syne" told the seniors that their Culver days would soon be a memory. As it ended "taps" rang out in the silent hall and the "07" blazing brightly at the end of the hall died out. Then from the trumpeter of '08, standing with his class, came the notes of reveille and with its sound the "08" flashed forth proclaiming the coming of the new class into the dignity of seniorship.

A Speechless Party.

A surprise party of an unusual character was given in town last Sunday for Mrs. J. R. Eckman by a number of her deaf-mute friends. They arrived on the forenoon train while Mrs. Eckman was out on the lake with her brother Russell. On her return she opened the door on the assembled company who immediately proceeded to overwhelm her with congratulations on her 33rd birthday. Her mother, Mrs. John Saine, and her sister, Eva Saine, had made all the preparations for entertaining the guests and the surprise was complete. The afternoon was spent in conversation, and as the deaf-mute people are notably vivacious and social, the fun was continuous. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Carson and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Moss of Peru; Mrs. Fannie Seagraves Miss Ada Hagood and Mr. Wilbur Nell of Loganport; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Zehner of Plymouth; Mr. Carl Nintz of South Bend. #### THE HAYWOOD TRIAL.

The Haywood defense carried the continuation of its attack on the Stoenberger murder. The witness told of a plot to kidnap the children of a rich miner for ransom and said it was suggested by David Galton, former lieutenant governor of Colorado.

Mary Orchard, on the stand for his sixth day in the Haywood trial, freely admitted the guilt of the offense to which she is charged. She denied that the Federation leaders led her to live in the seclusion now in Illinois, which was alleged by Haywood.

Into the further cross-examination of Mary Orchard entered by William D. Haywood repeatedly threw the suggestion of a great crime conspiracy, formulated and carried out by the members of the Western Federation of Miners, and indicated a determination to resurrect their main line of defense on this point. Orchard was firm in her denial of this theory.

Continued by William D. Haywood continued their attack on the testimony of Mary Orchard and continued the cross-examination of the witness beginning with the explosion in the Verdugo mine and ending with the earlier meetings between the witness and the leaders of the Federation of Miners in Denver. Orchard stood the test and stands very well and held tenaciously to the story he had related.

LITTLE GLEANINGS THAT POINT MANY MORALS FOR ALL.

A NEW TEN COMMANDMENTS

Generally Revised by the Catalogue.
House—Mail-Order House and Pure Foods—The Local Dealer.

The ten commandments as revised to fit the mail order catalogue house plan:

First—You shall send your farm products for cash whenever you can, but not to us; we do not buy from you.

Second—You shall believe our statements and buy all you need from us because we want to be good to you, although we are not particularly acquainted with you.

Third—You shall send the money in advance to give us the chance to get the goods from the factory with your money; meanwhile you will have to wait patiently a few weeks because that is our business method.

Fourth—You shall apply to your nearest city to aid you in building good roads so you may conveniently get the goods from the depot which you buy from us, for we do not build country roads.

Fifth—You shall buy starch balls when they ordered groceries, then the English language is not understood. By selling the stuff that has been used under the best business of its industry, the mail order concern have been able to undersell the local merchants living hundreds of miles away from the great centers of supply.

In carrying on this trade in large packs, the mail order houses learn from the greatest injury to the consumer. While the local merchant has lost some trade, he has had at least a part of the business of the weak man and minor in his vicinity, but the consumer, who has been caught by the "cheap" prices offered, has not got what he has been paying for by a long way, and there is no way for him to get even.

As it has proved with the groceries sent out by the nation, still order houses, so it will with the other things they work off in Montana. The audience and business offered at phenomenally low prices, the longer and wiser, at prices which were almost giving the utilities away, the kitchen utensils which are priced in the voluminous catalogues at figures that indicate the best merchandise are highway robbers, the dry goods that are offered at such infinitesimal cost as to compel the ordinary woman to believe the mail order man is a public benefactor, all of these matters mail order house offerings are on a par with the poorest quality of the products they have been selling—franklin and get out to sell and not for service. The confusion on the pro-

CHAPTER XXXIII.

A Revelation Concerning the True Order of Marriage.

While matters of theology and conanguinity were being debated in Box canyon, the little bent man down in the first house to the left, in his struggle to free himself, was tightening the meshes of his fate about him. In his hurried mind he had formed one great resolution. He believed that a revelation had come to him. It seemed to press upon him as the culmination of all the days of his distress. He could see now that he had felt it years before, when he first met the wife of Elder Tench, the gaunt, gray woman, tolling along the dusty road; and again when he had found the imbecile boy turning upon his tormentors. A hundred times it had quickened within him. And it had gained in force steadily, until to-day, when it was overwhelming him. Now that his flesh was wasted, it seemed that his spirit could see far.

His great discovery was that the revelation upon celestial marriage given Joseph Smith had been "from beneath"—a trick of Satan to corrupt them. Not only did it flatly contradict earlier revelations, but the very Book of Mormon itself declared again and again that polygamy was wickedness. Joseph had been duped by the powers of darkness, and all Israel had sinned in consequence. Upon the golden plates delivered to him, concerning the divine source of which there could be no doubt, this order of marriage had been repeatedly condemned and forbidden. But as to the revelation which sanctioned it there could rightly be doubt; for had not Joseph himself once warned them that "some revelations are from God, some from men, and some from the devil." Either the Book of Mormon was not inspired, or the revelation was not from God, since they were fatally in opposition.

It came to him with the effect of a blinding light, yet seemed to endow him with a new vigor, so that he felt strong and eager to be up, to spread his truth abroad. Some remnant of that old fire of inspiration flamed up within him as he lay on the hard bed in his little room, with the summer scents floating in and the out-of-doors sounds—a woman's voice calling a child afar off, the lowing of cattle, the rhythmic whetting of a scythe-blade, the echoing stroke of an ax, the mellow fluting of a robin—all coming to him a little muted, as if he were no longer in the world.

He raised upon his elbow, glowing with the flush of old memories when his heart had been perfect with the Lord; when he had wrought miracles in the face of the people; when he had besought Heaven fearlessly for signs of its favor; when he had dreamed of being a pillar of fire to his people in their march across the desert, and another Lion of the Lord to fight their just battles. The little bent man of sorrows had again become the lute of the Holy Ghost.

He remembered the day was Saturday, and he began at once to word the phrases in which he would tell his revelation on the morrow. He knew that this must be done tactfully, in spite of his divine source. It would be a momentous thing to the people and to the priesthood. It was conceivable, indeed, that members of the latter might dispute it and argue with him, or even denounce him for a heretic. But only at first; the thing was too simply true to be long questioned. In any event, his duty was plain; with righteousness as the guide of his loins he must go forth on the morrow and magnify his office in the sight of Heaven.

When Prudence came softly in to him, like a cool breath of fragrance from the canyon, he smiled up to her with a fullness of delight she had never seen in his face before.

There was a new light in her own eyes, new decisions presaged, a new desire imperfectly suppressed. He stroked her hand as she sat beside him on the bed, wondering if she had at last learned her own secret. But she became grave and was diverted from her own affairs when she observed him more closely.

"Why, you're sick—you're burning up with fever! You must be covered up at once and have sage tea."

He laughed at her, a free, full laugh, such as she had never heard from him in all the years.

"It's no fever, child. It's new life come to me. I'm strong again. My face burns, but it must be the fire of health. I have a work given to me—God has not wholly put me aside."

"But I believe you are sick. Your hands are so hot, and your eyes look so unnatural. You must let me—"

"Now, now—haven't I learned to tell sickness from the glow of a holy purpose?"

"You're sure you are well?"

"Better than for 15 years."

She let herself be convinced for the moment.

"Then please tell me something. Must a man who comes into our faith, if he is baptized rightly, also marry more than one wife if he is to be saved? Can't he be sure of his glory with one if he loves her—oh, very, very much?"

He was moved at first to answer her out of the fullness of his heart, telling her of the wonderful new revelation. But there came the impulse to guard it jealously in his own breast a little longer, to glory secretly in it; half-fearful, too, that some virtue would go out of it should he impart it too soon to another.

"Why do you want to know?"

"Ruel Follett would join our church if he didn't have to marry more than one wife. If he loved some one very much, I'm afraid he would find it hard to marry another girl—oh, he simply couldn't—no matter how pretty she was. He never could do it." Here she pulled one of the ribbons from her broad hat. She gave a little exclamation of relief as if she had really meant to detach it.

"Tell him to wait a little."

"That's what I did tell him, but it seems hardly right to let him join believing that is necessary. I think some one ought to find out that one who is all God wants a man ever to have, and to tell Mr. Follett so very plainly. His mind is really open to truth, and you know he might do something reckless—he shouldn't be made to wait too long."

"I'm Afraid He'd Find It Hard to Marry Another Girl—He Simply Couldn't."

"Tell him to wait till to-morrow. I shall speak of this in meeting then. It will be all right—all right, dear. Everything will be all right!"

"Only I am sure you are sick, in spite of what you say. I know how to prove it, too—can you eat?"

"I'm too busy thinking of great things to be hungry."

"There—you would be hungry if you were well."

"I can't tell you how well I am, and as for food—our Elder Brother has been feeding me all day with the breath of truth. Such wonderful new things the Lord has shown me!"

"But you must not get up. Lie still and we will nurse you."

He refused the food she brought him, and refused Loren's sage tea. He was not to be cajoled into treating as sickness the first real happiness he had felt for years. He lay still until his little room grew shadowy in the dusk, filled with a great reviving hope that the Lord had raised a new prophet to lead Israel out of bondage.

As the night fell, however, the shadows of the room began to trouble him as of old, and he found himself growing hotter and hotter until he burned and gasped, and the room seemed about to stifle him. He arose from the bed, wondering that his feet should be so heavy and clumsy, and his knees so weak, when he felt otherwise so strong. His head, too, felt large, and there rang in his ears a singing of incessant quick beats. He made his way to the door, where he heard the voices of Prudence and Follett. It was good to feel the cool night air upon his hot face, and he reassured Prudence, who chided him for leaving his bed.

"When you hear me discourse to-morrow you will see how wrong you were about my being sick," he said.

But she saw that he supported himself carefully from the doorway along the wall to the near-by chair, and that he sank into it with every sign of weakness. His eyes, however, were aglow with his secret, and he sat nodding his head over it in a lively way. "Brigham was right," he said, "when he declared that any of us might receive revelations from on high; even the least of us—only we are apt to be deaf to the whispered words until the Lord has scourged us. I have been deaf a long time, but my ears are at last unstopped—who is it coming, dear?"

A tall figure, vague in the dusk, was walking briskly up the path that led in from the road. It proved to be the Wild Ram of the Mountains, freshened by the look of rectitude that the razor gave to his face each Saturday night.

"Evening, Brother Rae—evening, you young folks. Thank you, I will take a chair. You feeling a bit more able than usual, Brother Rae?"

"Much better, Brother Seth. I shall be at the meeting to-morrow."

"Glad to hear it, that's right good—you ain't been out for so long. And we want to have a rousing time, too."

"Only we're afraid he has a fever, instead of being so well," said Prudence. "He hasn't eaten a thing all day."

"Well, he never did overeat himself, that I know of," said the bishop. "Not eating ain't any sign with him. Now it would be with me. I never believed in fasting the flesh. The Spirit of the Lord ain't ever so close to me as after I've had a good meal of victuals—meat and potatoes and plenty of good soap and a couple of pieces of pie. Then I can unbutton my vest and jest set and set and hear the promptings of the Lord God of Hosts. I know some men ain't that way, but there's the time when I beautify my inheritance

"Well, let it go till to-morrow, then. And you try to get some rest now. That's what I'm going to do."

But the little bent man, flushed though he was, felt cold from the night air, and, pulling more logs on the fire, he drew his chair close in front of it.

As often as Follett wakened through the night he saw him sitting there, sometimes reading what looked like a little old Bible, sometimes speaking aloud as if seeking to memorize a passage.

The last Follett remembered to have heard was something he seemed to be reading from the little book: "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters."

He fell asleep again with a feeling of pity for the little man.

different matter. Well, I'll have to be getting along now. We're going to put up some of the people at our house, and I've got to fix to bed mother down in the wagon-box again, I reckon. I'll say you'll be with us to-morrow, then, Brother Joel!"

The little bent man's voice had lost much of its life.

"Yes, Brother Seth, if I am able."

"Well, I hope you are." He arose and looked at the sky. "Looks as if we might have some falling weather. They say it's been molting quite a bit up Cedar way. Well—good night, all!"

When he was gone the matter of his visit was not referred to. With some constraint they talked a little while of other things. But as soon as the two men were alone for the night, Follett turned to him, almost fiercely.

"Say, now, what did that old goat-whiskered loon mean by his hints about Prudence?"

"Well, the fact is, Brigham has meant to marry her."

"You don't mean you'd have let him? Say, I'd hate to feel sorry for holding off on you like I have!"

"No, no, don't think that of me."

"Well, what were you going to do?"

"I hardly knew."

"You better find out."

"I know it—I did find out, to-day. I know, and it will be all right. Trust me. I lost my faith for a moment just now when I heard Brother Brigham was coming to-morrow; but I see how it is—the Lord has wished to prove me. Now there is all the more reason why I should not flinch. You will see that I shall make it all right to-morrow."

"Well, the time's about up. I've been here over two months now, just because you were so kind and helpless. And one of our wagon-trains will be along here about next Monday. Say, she wouldn't ever have married him, would she?"

"No, she refused at once; she refused to consider it at all."

He was burning again with his fever, and there was something in his eagerness that seemed to overcome Follett's indignation.

"Well, let it go till to-morrow, then. And you try to get some rest now. That's what I'm going to do."

But the little bent man, flushed though he was, felt cold from the night air, and, pulling more logs on the fire, he drew his chair close in front of it.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

A Procession, a Pursuit and a Capture.

Follett awoke to find himself surrounded. The women were rushing excitedly through their housework in order to be at hand when the procession of Brigham and his suite should march in. Of Joel Rae he caught but a glimpse through the door of his little room, the face flushed that had a long time been sallow and bloodless. When the door had closed he could hear the voice now strong again. He seemed to be, as during the night, rehearsing something he meant to say. And later it was plain that he prayed, though he heard nothing more than the high pleading of the voice.

Follett would not have minded these things, but Prudence was gone, and no one could tell him where. From Christmas, of the rock-bound speech, he blasted the items that she was wearing "a dress all new" and "a red-ribbed hat." Loren, too, with all her willingness of speech, knew nothing definite.

"All I know is she fixed herself up like she was going to an evening ball or party. I wish to the lands I'd keep my complexion the way she does here. And she had on her best lawn that her pa got her in Salt Lake, the one with the little blue figures in it. She does look sweeter than honey on a rag in a store dress, and that Leghorn hat with the red bow, though what she wanted to start so early for I don't know. The procession can't be along yet, but she might have gone down to march with them, or to help decorate the bowery. I know when I was her age I was always a great hand for getting ready long before any one came, when my mother was making a company for me, putting up my waterfalls and curling my beau-catchers on a hot pipestem. But, land! I ain't no more time to talk with you."

Down the main road he hesitated. To the right he could see where the green mouth of the canyon invited; but to the left lay the village, where Prudence doubtless was. He would find her and bring her away. For Follett was determined to toe the mark himself now.

In the one street of Amblon there was the usual Sabbath hush; but above this was an air of dignified festivity. The village in its Sunday best homespun, with here and there a suit of store goods, was holding its breath. In the bowery a few workers, under the supervision of Bishop Wright, were adding the last touches of decoration. It was a spot of pleasant green in the dusty square—a roof of spruce boughs, with evergreens and flowers garnishing the posts, and a bank of flowers and fruit back of the speaker's stand.

"Yes; I suspicion some one's been sending tales to him about a certain young woman's carryings on down here."

He looked sharply at Prudence, who looked at the ground, and felt grateful for the dusk. Follett looked hard at them both and was plainly interested. The bishop spoke again.

"I ain't got no license to say so, but having done that young woman proud by engaging himself to marry her, he might 'a' got annoyed if any one had 'a' told him she was being waited on by a handsome young Gentle, gallivantin' off to canyons day after day—holding hands, too, more than once. Oh, I ain't saying anything. Young blood is young blood; mine ain't always been old, and I never blamed the young, but, of course, the needs of the Kingdom is a different matter. Well, I'll have to be getting along now. We're going to put up some of the people at our house, and I've got to fix to bed mother down in the wagon-box again, I reckon. I'll say you'll be with us to-morrow, then, Brother Joel!"

The little bent man's voice had lost much of its life.

"Yes, Brother Seth, if I am able."

THROUGH THE STATE

NEWS GATHERED FROM VARIOUS INDIANA POINTS.

SACRED SPOT IS MARKED

Baptist Monument Stands on Site in Brandywine Township Where First Convention Was Held in State.

Shelbyville.—In the middle of a large field on a farm in Brandywine township, near Fairland, owned by Charles A. Tindall of Shelbyville, stands a plain monument which is interesting to a vast number of persons in Hoosierdom. It marks the site of the first state Baptist convention in Indiana, which met back in 1833.

At that time the city of Shelbyville was a mere cluster of huts, no more pretentious than many another little settlement over the county. There was one Baptist church in the county—indeed, one of the first, if not the first, house of worship in the entire county.

The Baptist denomination showed an active missionary spirit, and erected what is not disputed as the first Protestant church on Indiana soil. It was erected in 1798 on Owen Creek, Clark county. Later the site was changed to Fourteen Mile Creek, and finally Silver Creek. The Baptist churches multiplied rapidly, and before many years had passed there was a demand for a district organization.

The first was effected in the Silver Creek neighborhood, and bore the name of that stream. Other district organizations, which became known as associations, multiplied likewise, and there came a conviction that there ought to be a state organization. The matter had been discussed at denominational meetings, and articles advocating the move had appeared in denominational periodicals.

In April, 1833, the first convention representing every Baptist church in the state of Indiana met, and there was organized the Indiana Baptist general association, with Samuel Harding of Johnson county as moderator, the Rev. Judge J. I. Holman, of Dearborn county, secretary, and Henry Bradley, of Marion county, treasurer. Thirty-seven delegates from over the state represented the 12,000 Baptists of Indiana at that time.

The little meeting house which then bore the name of Brandywine church was a primitive building constructed of logs, with simple—not to say severely plain—furnishings. The little church has long since fallen into decay, and not a trace remains. The nearest substitute is now the Fairland Baptist church.

Sixteen years ago the spot, dear to Indiana Baptists, was made memorable by the erection of the monument. At a meeting of the Flat Rock Baptist association, covering in part the counties of Shelby, Bartholomew, Decatur and Johnson, it was voted that the spot whereon Brandywine church stood be bought and marked by a granite monument. Rev. Dr. W. T. Stott of Franklin, then president of Franklin college, and Deacon W. C. E. Wance, of Fairland, were constituted the committee to have the monument set up. They discharged their trust and the bill was paid by contributions from the churches of the Flat Rock association.

Severe Electrical Storm.

Evansville.—One of the most severe electrical storms of the season passed over southern Indiana Friday night, doing considerable damage. The Ohio river is still rising here and is over the lowlands in many places. Green river continues to rise at a rapid rate. The Wabash river is falling but it is expected that the rain will cause it to rise again in a few hours.

Begins New Traction Line.

New Albany.—The Louisville & Northern Railway and Light company, which recently completed a survey for an electric line from this city to French Lick and West Baden Springs by way of Paoli, has placed a corps of surveyors at work to locate the road. When this is completed contracts will be awarded. The proposed road is 50 miles long and traverses the most thickly populated portion of southern Indiana.

Missing Boy Finally Found.

Jeffersonville.—Earl Lamaster, the nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Milas Lamaster, has been returned by the police to his parents. After starting on boat to attend a school picnic at Fern Grove, 15 miles east of here on the Ohio, his mother having forbidden him to go, fearing that he would be drowned, he was found two miles east of Utica and eight miles from here by Dr. Frank Johnson, who had been requested by the police to look for him.

Employees Share in Profits.

Alexandria.—The Alexandria Paper mill has extended its profit-sharing merit system to all classes of employees, offering them a dividend or premium of ten per cent. on their wages at the end of each year of steady service. The mill has never had any labor difficulties worthy of mention, and the new idea was made voluntarily by the mill.

Promises Good Fruit Crop.

Michigan City.—Notwithstanding the backward weather this spring there is no harm to the prospects for a good fruit crop from the local fruit belt. In fact, many fruit raisers, who are not pessimists, contend that the late spring has been beneficial to fruit, as it has retarded the insects until they cannot do it much damage.

Hoosiers Given Contract.

Terre Haute.—The City Plumbing & Heating Electric company, of Terre Haute, has been awarded a contract to install heating apparatus in the public building at Washington, D. C., at its bid of $4,850.

Bit Over Clothesline Kills.

Shoals.—Mrs. William Mohne, while resting her head on a wire clothesline at her home south of this city was struck by a flash of lightning over the wire and instantly killed.

INDIANA POSTAL LAWS.

2,130 Rural Routes in Operation—Increase Over Last Year.

Washington, D. C.—The post office department announces that it has been able up to date to establish complete county rural delivery service in 53 counties out of the 92 in Indiana. The remaining nine counties have several rural routes, but have not the complete county service.

A bulletin shows that on June 1, 1907, Indiana had 2,130 rural routes. This is an increase of 25 routes over the report of one year ago. In the last year only nine routes in the state have been discontinued. There are ten routes in the state having only tri-weekly service. On June 1, 1907, there were only 16 pending petitions for routes in the state.

The post office department has accepted the proposal of F. Winterberg, A. W. Pruitt and George W. Snyder, trustees of Lodge No. 95, I. O. O. F., at Edinburg, to renew leases for the post office room there for a term of five years from July 1, 1907, including complete equipment, heat, light, safe, water, etc.; also the proposal of Messrs. Warner and Garoutte, at New Carlisle, Ind., to renew the lease for a term of five years from July 1, 1907, for the post office room in that town, including complete equipment, heat, light, safe, water, etc.

Foxes Overrun Township.

New Albany.—Foxes have become so numerous in Franklin township that they are not only destroying the chickens in henhouses on the farms, but are carrying away young pigs.

A few nights ago a fox carried away six fine suckling pigs from the pen of County Recorder Lewis A. Stoy, who operates a farm in Franklin township, and a few nights before that time three young pigs were carried away from the farm of Asa Topps, a farmer of that township.

During the recent floods of the Ohio river hundreds of foxes were driven by the high water from the low lands to the hills and have become a great pest to the farmers.

Jury Favors Married Woman.

Danville.—In the damage suit of Hattie Walsh against the Indianapolis & Martinsville Rapid Transit company for $6,000 for injuries received while a passenger on the defendant's car, the jury, after being out for two hours, returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $2,500. Mrs. Walsh claimed that in attempting to alight from a car at Mooresville last June the car suddenly started without any warning, throwing her violently to the ground and inflicting cuts, bruises and other injuries which have maimed her for life.

Cash Hidden in Oven Bakes.

Greenburg.—Twenty-five dollars for a breakfast is rather high, but that was the amount it cost the Bender family in this city. Mrs. Bender had $25 in paper money in the oven of the cook stove when she started out for a walk and forgot it. Mr. Bender arose early and soon had a hot fire in the stove. Shortly afterward smoke was noticed issuing from the oven and an examination disclosed five badly burned five dollar bills. The money will be sent to the treasury department in the hope of redeeming it.

Musical Composer Marries.

Rushville.—Professor George Sues, a popular young author and musician of Greenfield, and Miss Ada Pusey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel B. Pusey, were married at the home of the bride's parents in this city by Rev. P. D. Gunter, of Elder, Mo. Prof. Sues is a member of the military orchestra of Greenfield and is prominent in the Knights of Pythias lodge and author of several musical compositions and popular songs.

Goshen Man Is Lost at Sea.

Goshen.—Mrs. Amos Wortinger has been officially notified through the British naval office in London that her brother Alpha E. Hughes, a British marine, was drowned off the Netherlands, near Rotterdam, when he fell overboard. He had formerly been in the American navy. The body was lost at sea. Hughes' parents are rich farmers.

Employees Share in Profits.

Alexandria.—The Alexandria Paper mill has extended its profit-sharing merit system to all classes of employees, offering them a dividend or premium of ten per cent. on their wages at the end of each year of steady service. The mill has never had any labor difficulties worthy of mention, and the new idea was made voluntarily by the mill.

Every one of these fines (against the Standard Oil trust) is not a punishment for the monopoly, but for the consumers of the monopoly's product. The bigger the fine the more the public has to pay for oil. How long will it take the people to understand that the ball and chain is the only punishment for conspirators in restraint of trade that will be felt by the criminals? How long will it be before this evident truth is driven into the heads of legislators and prosecutors that are trying to make cheap capital out of collecting cash fines that always in the end the people must pay?—New York Press.

The Post truthfully says, the Equity the head of to grind. By booming the dollar wheat movement he also booms his business which is the publication of a farm journal, for undoubtedly he is able to secure a great many subscribers through the movement. His organization will never reach such proportions as to be able to affect the price of wheat. The markets of the world govern that, and supply and demand are the controlling forces. A movement to get dollar corn would come as near being successful as will the movement to secure dollar wheat when the conditions are unfavorable. When there is a large crop of wheat the price will be low; and when the wheat crop is short the price will soar.—Rochester Sentinel.

The Vacation Season.

Last week was a gala one in Culver. The academy commencement program filled the days with stirring events well worth the long miles of travel which hundreds of visitors made to be in attendance. Every hotel was full to overflowing, and the demand for rooms was so much greater than the capacity of the public houses that many of the homes of Culver accommodated eager applicants for their spare rooms at 50 cents to $1 per night.

Sunday was the first real summer day since March. The balmy air, sweet with the odors of flowers and foliage, the golden sunshine, the glassy surface of the lake, and the soft blue of the sky combined to make the outdoor life a delight to body and soul. The trains brought in a greater number of visitors than on the preceding Sunday, and scores of buggies from the surrounding country added their quota to the well-dressed, happy pleasure-seekers. After the long, cold, wet spring such weather was an inspiration and was accepted as a token that summer had at last come to assume her rightful reign.

HOME CROPS.

Marshall County will be Short of Hay as Well as Cereals.

One would naturally suppose that the weather for the past two months was especially favorable to the growth of grass, oats and wheat, but that does not seem to have been the case, especially with the grass and oats. What little wheat there was left has been doing fairly well since the 1st of May, but during April actually went back. Men who ought to know about such things say that there are fewer acres of timothy in the country than there were last year, and that the growth is very short for the season of the year. There will be little or no clover hay at all in the county and consequently the hay crop will consist of timothy and redtop.

Some wheat fields that were sown to timothy last fall will yield a fair hay crop, but will have no wheat crop on them. As for oats the grain is away behind what it ought to be, and as a consequence the crop does not promise to be an extra one. This will make the supply of straw next fall and winter and much will depend on corn fodder. It is something very unusual for this part of the country to fall down on a hay crop two years in succession. Seventeen-dollar hay is likely to be the rule again this winter.

As for the outlook for a corn crop, the situation is not flattering. Many farmers in the county had not planted a grain up to last Saturday, and others are not through plowing yet. Corn, as a rule in this county, is all planted by the first of June, and the only salvation this year would be a late fall, which many predict will be the case owing to the late spring.—Plymouth Independent, 12th.

PRECINCT CHANGES.

Academy to Vote Hereafter at Maxinkuckee Instead of Culver.

The county commissioners have made a change in the boundaries of the voting precincts of Union township, taking territory from No. 2 and adding to Nos. 1 and 3. Precinct No. 1, voting place Burr Oak, begins at the northeast corner of the township, running west to the north west corner, thence south to and including the Amos Osborn farm, thence east to the southeast corner of the Thomas Houghton farm, thence north to the O. McElrath farm, thence east to Ora Price farm, thence north to the place of beginning.

Precinct No. 2, voting place Culver, includes the territory beginning at the southeast corner of the Houghton farm, running thence south along the highway to the lake, thence following the shore line to the H. J. Murray farm, thence west to the Delong road, thence south to the county line, thence west to the county line, thence north to the Amos Osborn farm, thence east to the place of beginning.

Precinct No. 3, voting place Maxinkuckee, takes in the academy and the remainder of the territory east and south of the lake as far west as the Delong road.

The most important change effected by the new boundaries is to transfer the academy from Culver to Maxinkuckee precinct.

Closing of Mails.

Beginning July 1 and continuing for six months the mails will be closed thirty minutes before train time. During this period every piece of mail must be weighed, and it is extremely unlikely that it will be possible to do this and at the same time wait on the windows. Therefore should the public find the windows closed the reason is hereby made plain.

At all events it is positively announced that mail matter received within thirty minutes of train time will not be sent out until the following mail.

THE TERROR'S DINNER

"Rattlesnakes on Toast" Was the Cowboy's Order.

BUT HE MET WITH HIS MATCH

The Promptness With Which the Tough Waiter Served the Dish Took the Terror's Nerve Away—The Repeat and the Final Request.

Away back in 1876 a man named Turpin established a restaurant in Yuma, and among Turpin's original employees was a waiter named Job Straight, who could shoot with great precision, play draw poker with unvarying success and pack eighteen plates of miscellaneous grub upon one bare arm at one time. He could execute all the prevailing melodies either on piano or guitar, and he possessed the most tremendous baritone voice ever heard in Arizona. Why, men sometimes went to Turpin's just to hear Joe deliver gastronomic orders. No perfect description can be given of that voice, however, except to say that at times it really did make things clatter.

Once a fresh young cowboy from near Gila Bend entered Turpin's for a Christmas dinner who took a startling concoction as an appetizer and then dropped thud-like at a table and roughly shouted to Straight:

"Say, there, Baldy! Bring me some grub!"

Job was at first appalled; but, recovering his reserve limit of equanimity, he brushed an imaginary breadcrumb from the frescoed tablecloth and whisked a bill of fare from the variegated castor and placed it before the new young terror of the Bend.

"Take it away!" cried the latter in tones that could give Straight's ordinary, everyday baritone a castle and checkmate it in five moves. "I don't want to read your darned old tract. I don't care a darn who came into the world to save sinners. Bring me some grub—grub! Grub! Grub! Grub!"

"What do you want?"

"Rattlesnakes on toast! And I want you to hump yourself!"

"What's that?"

"I've given my order, you baldheaded old cigar store sign, and I want you to get a move on yourself, p. d. q. Rattlesnakes on toast!"

"Rattlesnakes on toast!" cried Job to the cook in accents that would have paralyzed Carl Formes had that old basso profundo been living and heard them.

"Rattlesnakes on toast!" was the reverberating response from the cook upon receiving the order.

There were a dozen or more people in the restaurant, and their eyes were at once turned on the young person from the Bend and the infuriated waiter.

In the meantime the cook had taken a big cutfish and cut it into four strips and rolled these strips in batter, so that they much resembled the viand ordered, and after placing them in the frying pan he stuck his head out of the kitchen and shouted to Job:

"You want them rattlers rare or well done?"

The waiter repeated the interrogatory in a cyclonic way, and the terror replied in as violent a tone and manner as he could command. "Well done, with plenty of gravy and Chili Colorado."

And then Job thundered to the cook: "Well done, with plenty of Chili Colorado, but as —, and moccasin gravy on the side and brochettes of sand crane livers and Gila monster lights!"

There was an instantaneously dead silence in that restaurant, and all eyes were again cast upon the terror and the waiter. The former turned ashen pale and began to weaken perceptibly, while Job gazed at his victim.

"Maybe you don't think we can serve all the market affords," muttered Job. "Maybe you don't like moccasin gravy or brochettes a la mode. Maybe you ain't hungry?"

"Say! You've got me—I ain't hungry, so help me. I couldn't eat a single hard boiled egg. Countermand that durned order, old man, and I'll pay all expenses and set 'em up as long as anybody can drink. Beg pardon, gentlemen, all. My first attempt to be a terror—pardon me, gentlemen. It's my last!"

And then he handed his revolver to Job and added:

"Take that pistol, old man, as a present and promise me that the next time any durned fool comes in here and calls for rattlesnakes on toast you'll shoot him dead!"

But Straight was too raving mad all the way through to willingly emerge from a situation only tolerably triumphant. So he took the weapon just as the order was being placed on the table and, pointing it at the terror, exclaimed:

"Now, then, my boy, dump yourself into that chair and eat them snakes—bones, skin and all!"

The young fellow did as he was commanded, but after finishing his repeat staggered the uncompromising Job by shouting:

"I say, Baldy, bring me another plate of snakes!"—Denver News.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney nerves. The kidneys, like the heart, and the stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well. If your back aches or is weak, if the urine is cloudy, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Irresistible recommendation and all.

Lake Maxinkuckee.

In the midst of a rolling inland
 Lies the Maxinkuckee lake,
 Where the blue waves softly ripple
 And the changeful shadows break.
 Surrounding these sparkling waters
 Are flower-strewn, grassy banks,
 Where groups of merry children
 Wake the echoes with their pranks.
 The Peerless and the Neeswangoe
 Traverse the blue waves o'er;
 While the dazzling golden sunlight
 Casts its rays from shore to shore.
 In the winter the water is frozen,
 The skaters, in merry haste,
 Glide gracefully o'er the surface
 With laughter enthroned in each face.

A resort that's surrounded by fountains
 Tinkling in the soft evening air,
 While the waters stretch wide in the moonlight
 Like a sheet of silver rare.
 Encircled by a broken chain
 Of forest trees, gnarled and dark—
 Each year has added one more ring
 Beneath the moss-grown bark.
 Like a diamond's flash in the sunlight,
 And soft where the shadows fall,
 With its waters lapping the sandy beach.
 Lies the peerless gem of all—Max-inkuckee. G. A. C.

Home-Made Curfew.

Every family should have a cur-few which should positively "ring tonight" and every night if needed.
 These curfews are inexpensive and can be home-made. Take a piece of siding two feet long and whittle one end down to a handle, then take the child that needs the cur-few and bend him over a barrel.
 Now take the piece of siding in the hand and use it as a clapper. Put it on hot. Divide the strokes evenly and see that none miss. Good for a boy or girl up to 16, and three applications are warranted to cure the most pronounced case of street loafing that exists. The music that this curfew makes is finer than singing "Where is my Wandering Boy Tonight."—Exchange.

MEDICINE.

It's curious what some people believe a medicine will do.

They seem to think because I advertise my preparations I claim they will cure anything and everything. Well, I don't. The other day I got a letter from a woman who said her husband had been in bed eighteen years with paralysis. She had bought seven bottles of the Cooper medicines and her husband was still in bed. She stated that I was a scoundrel, a robber and various other pleasant things. Now the only thing I claim for Cooper's New Discovery is that it will put the stomach in working order. I know that if this is done, rheumatism, constipation, kidney and liver troubles, nervousness, and the general tired out, despondent feeling will disappear in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred. I know this medicine to be a fine tonic which used twice a year will throw off impurities and add flesh, strength and tone to the entire system. But it will not do the impossible. No medicine on earth will do more than help nature. Certain diseases are beyond all medicine, although God in his wisdom may some day give us frail humans a knowledge of how to cure them. At present I know Cooper's New Discovery to be as thoroughly efficient a medicine as was ever on the market, and people who will take it for the common ills to which flesh is heir will be more than satisfied. Here is a letter from one who has tried: "For a long time I have suffered from severe headaches, weakness, and pains in my back and sides." "Nothing I tried gave me relief, and a friend advised me to try your medicine. I improved from the first week. My back-ache and headache left me and I felt myself growing stronger. My appetite increased and I felt greatly improved in every way. I am indeed thankful for the benefit I have received." Miss Jennie Isaacson, No. 15 15th Avenue, West, Duluth, Minn.

THE TAX FERRET.

System that Seems Unnecessary as Well as Unjust.

The Plymouth Chronicle has been investigating the tax ferret business with the following results: County Assessor Leonard says he had track of practically every case of sequestered taxes which the tax ferret has put on the books.

If this is true, the expenditure of $10,000 to $15,000 to a tax ferret to do this work is a pure waste of the people's money. The county assessor is paid a salary to do this work. If he does not do it he should be brought to time by the county commissioners. It would be far cheaper to hire some extra help for the county assessor to do the same work the ferret is doing, than to pay 33 1/3 per cent of monies which the county assessor would have collected anyway. While this extravagance is going on the county assessor sits idle, having little or nothing to do but to draw his salary.

Since the work of the tax ferret has been seen, the injustice of it has become apparent. In the case of chattel mortgages it is most glaring. It has been custom not to release these mortgages of record after they were paid. The note was given up and the property having gone there was no necessity for releasing the mortgage. Now the ferret takes the recorder's books and puts on record every one of these chattel mortgages back for thirty years, brings the owners in and demands payment of the taxes for all the time which they have been on the record uncancelled!

The injustice of such proceedings is apparent to everyone. The trouble is that people cannot remember when these mortgages were paid, and the record being against them they are compelled to pay when they do not owe a cent.

The same condition exists in regard to real estate mortgages. Years ago, when the law did not require these mortgages to be released of record, it was customary to turn over the notes when paid and let the record go uncancelled. The ferret goes back over all these records and charges up taxes for 20 or 30 years. When the notes are lost and people dead there is no way of proving when the mortgages were paid and the person or estate in whose name they stood must pay taxes which are not owed.

The county council on Saturday last voted $3,000 for the work already done by the tax ferret, and refused to appropriate $17,500 for future services.

May Get a Fortune.

D. A. Carr, a Vandalia flagman at South Bend, is in line to receive about $100,000 from the estate of a deceased sister, Mrs. Margaret Meredith, of Troy, O. She left property valued at $500,000 which an adopted son took possession of. The brothers and sisters of Mrs. Meredith claim that he was not legally adopted and will contest the inheritance.

Carr lived in Culver about eight years ago, occupying the old Main street house belonging to Mrs. Porter and also a house on the site of the present D. A. Bradley residence. He was poor as Job's turkey, rustling around at odd jobs.

Monster Locomotive.

The largest engine on the Pennsylvania road passed through here about 3:30 p. m. Friday hauling a load of empty cars eastward. The engine weighs 279,100 pounds and the tender 148,400, making a total of over 213 tons. The drive wheels are 80 inches high, the firebox 11 feet 6 inches long, and the total length of engine and tender 60 feet. The tender carries 21,000 gallons of water. The engine is a Baldwin of the compound type, and will probably take the place of the two engines which haul the Limited. —Plymouth Tribune.

ELIZABETH JORDAN

Health Hints for Women

By Elizabeth Jordan

Present Pace Too Fast for Average Woman's Physique—Famous German Authority Advises Daily Ten Minute Bath—Two-Mile Walk Every Day Should Keep One in Condition—“Red” Meat Only Twice a Week—Little Nourishment in Bread and Potatoes—Drink Two Quarts of Water a Day.

(Miss Elizabeth G. Jordan, formerly an editor of Harper's Bazar, formerly held a prominent position on the staff of a New York newspaper. She is the author of a number of popular books including "Tales of the Cloister" and "May Iversen, Her Book." She was born in Milwaukee.)

In reading from month to month the great mass of material on the subject of women which appears in the various periodicals the writer of this paper has been struck by one extraordinary fact. The topic of health—most important to women and of vital interest to them—is rarely touched upon. Women's achievements in every line of art and industry are admirably set forth. Experts advise them along the lines of their professions and ambitions, but rarely does a great doctor lift his voice in the friendly warning so many of them need.

Every one knows that the ideal physical life is the life lived out of doors in the sunshine and fresh air. But women who work need a compromise between this ideal system and the dull routine into which they so readily fall. Every woman needs to know, not "What is the best hygienic system for me to follow?" but, "What is the best system to which I can adapt my daily life, with its exacting demands in the way of indoor confinement and sedentary occupations? How can I get myself and keep myself in such condition that nerves and body are more than equal to the strain I must put upon them?" For women should have more than the power to endure grimly. They should have the robust health, the cool and steady nerves that give zest to mere physical existence.

To begin, then, with the morning bath—the function with which every woman should begin her day as regularly as she leaves her bed. More nonsense has been written about the bath than about any other hygienic topic. Women have been advised to take ice-cold baths, cold sprays, hot plunges and cold packs. Again, some doctors have protested against the bath habit, urging women to confine themselves to one bath a week and thus avoid the drain on the vitality which a daily bath entails. In answer to all this hear the words of one of the greatest physicians in Germany when a distinguished American woman consulted him:

"Madam," said he, after the history of her nervous breakdown had been modestly related, "you do not bathe enough. Do not be indignant; the failing is a national one. The Americans talk a great deal about their baths, but they do not take them daily. Every human being who is up and about should get into a bathtub once a day and stay there ten minutes. Take your bath in the morning, immediately after rising. Have the temperature of the water 98 degrees exactly—neither more nor less. This is the normal temperature of the blood. See that the temperature of the room is the same. Never get into a cold bath on rising. Cold baths have killed thousands. Lie in your bath of 98 degrees; get down into the tub; immerse the body thoroughly; the warm water on the surface of the body has an excellent effect on the mucous membrane throughout. Then, little by little, lower the temperature and finish your bath with a cold rubbing down, if you wish. The blood called to the surface of the body by the warm water is then ready for the shock. It is not ready for that when you first awake.

"That advice," said the American woman to the writer, "cost me over $1,500, and it was worth it. Pass it on to others for what it will be to them. I was under that physician's charge six weeks. I went to him a wreck and came away cured. He gave me no medicine. His remedy was that daily bath, followed by a gentle massage. I now take both as regularly as I eat my breakfast and I attribute my perfect health to them."

The question of exercise is of the utmost importance. A walk of two miles a day in the fresh air should keep one in good condition, with the additional moving about that is done in the usual routine. If, for any reason, this walk is not practicable, the windows should be thrown wide open and one should practice faithfully for at least ten minutes night and morning the ordinary calisthenic exercises with which every one is more or less familiar. Special attention should be given to breathing exercises—drawing in ten or 20 long, deep breaths and exhaling them again slowly.

Every one realizes the value of this as an aid to health. We all know that to flush the lungs with pure air is as necessary as to bathe the body. Yet not one woman in 20,000 makes a daily practice of the exercise. One need not make elaborate preparations for it. It should be done immediately after arising, before putting on corsets, and in a room which has been freshly aired. But it can also be done at any time during the day and in any place where the air is pure and the seeker after health is free from curious and interested observation.

With baths, proper clothing, fresh air and exercise comes the problem of food—a most vital one and bearing more than any other on the general health of the individual. Here again eminent authorities fiercely disagree. But out of the smoke of battle one big truth is rising—the general acknowledgment by the best physicians that we all eat too much meat. In recent years one of England's greatest specialists has expressed the theory that the alarming increase of cancer in that country is due in large part to the increased consumption of meat. In cases of gout, rheumatism and kindred diseases arising from the presence of uric acid in the system, meat is stricken from the patient's dietary as a recognized factor in the cause. According to the new theories, no one should eat more than once a day. "Red" meat—roast beef, steak, chops, etcetera, should not be indulged in more than twice a week. All kinds of fish and game may be eaten, especially the white meat of chicken and turkey. The dark meat is rich and not especially wholesome.

The whole matter can perhaps be summed up in the words of a woman who is in great demand as a physical trainer for eastern society women. "As to diet," she says, "no meat, no bread, no potatoes, no coffee, tea, alcohol or sweets. Two quarts of hot water every day. Five miles of walking; two miles at least. Eight hours of sleep for every one; more in certain cases where the individual must decide. A tub bath every day. Fresh air in the living and sleeping rooms."

And she should add, an optimistic spirit and a contented mind. But perhaps she made the omission wisely. For what more natural than a sound mind in a sound body? And what more easy than to be optimistic when mind and soul are well and the strings in one's harp of life are in tune with nature's orchestra?

Marital Happiness. Love, sense and patience. These are the three important elements necessary to happiness in marriage, says Ella Wheeler Wilcox

ROAD AND FARM IMPROVEMENT

WHEEL FOR PULLING POSTS.

It Makes the Usually Hard Task Easy.

When I have removed the wire from a fence and wish to pull the posts I take an old corn planter wheel, attach a chain to the base of the post and pass it over the top of the wheel to the whiffle-trees, as shown in the illustration, writes a correspondent of Prairie Farmer. I find that this makes a very convenient device and posts can be pulled without very much difficulty.

Wheel for Pulling Posts.

CORN STALKS AS FERTILIZER.

Are of the Best If Turned Under to Decay.

Corn stalks are one of the best ready fertilizers available. They contain elements taken from the soil, so in returning them to the soil we are giving back a part, at least, of that which was taken from it. When corn stalks are burned on the ground, the greater part of their value is lost. The ash which remains is a valuable fertilizer, but if the whole stalks are returned to the soil, all of this ash is saved and also the other substances which, in their decay, liberate more soluble plant food.

A fertilizer to have high value should furnish available plant food, and also improve the physical condition of the soil. Good commercial fertilizers do the first, but not the second. Stable manure furnishes readily available plant food, and also has a high value for improving soil texture. The same is true of all organic matter applied to the soil if it be in a condition for ready decomposition.

Corn stalks in contact with moist soil readily decay, hence, they become available as plant food. As an improver of soil texture, corn stalks have few equals. Being very large, when plowed under, they make the soil loose which allows free access of air. This effect is felt for two or three years, which is not so much the case with smaller plants turned under.

The highest good can be had from corn stalks by husking the corn as early as it will do in the fall, pasturing for a short time with cattle and hogs to save the waste ears and grain, then immediately dragging them down with a heavy drag or harrow, says Farm and Home. This brings them in contact with the moist winter and spring soil for partial decay, and prevents the washing of the soil to a large extent if the land be hilly. In this way, they are half decayed when plowed under, give little trouble for the season's cultivation, and furnish rich plant food for the summer's growing crop.

DECAYING VEGETABLE MATTER.

Get it Into the Soil if You Would Save the Ammonia.

In the decay of vegetable matter nitrogen in the form of ammonia is thrown off. This is the case whether the matter decaying is in the open air or buried in the mass of manure in the barn yard. The escape of the ammonia represents the departure of a fertilizing element that is of value to the farmer. All efforts should be made to prevent the escape of this gas. The only sure way of doing it, says Farmers Review, is to get the manure or the decaying vegetable matter into the soil where it will be operated on by the forces there and the nitrogen combined with elements that will reduce it to a state in which it can be made a plant food. The weathering pile of horse manure is one of the waste places of the farm. From it the hot steam rises, having in it a very large amount of the fertilizing element named. This is especially so in the spring, summer and fall. Many farmers allow the manure, and especially the horse manure, to accumulate throughout the summer for fall use. In the warm weather the decay of the vegetable matter goes on more rapidly than in the cold weather and the loss is consequently greater. In large stables this loss of volatile elements amounts to a large sum, if the nitrogen be valued at commercial rates.

Government Aid in Road Making. Government aid in road building will eventually come in this country although the progress in that direction at present may seem rather slow. Other countries have so recognized the importance of improved highways and we believe it is only a matter of a little time when the United States will by federal appropriation. Even the little country of Cuba has authorized the expenditure of $5,000,000 in the general improvement of its public highways.

BURNT CLAY ROADS.

Way in Which Some Sections Are Getting Good Roads at Small Expense.

Clay becomes more or less hard and impervious to water when subjected to heat. Clay has been so far considered one of the worst road-building materials, combining with the gentle rain to form a sticky mire destructive of locomotion by man or beast. The clay, however, may contain within itself the very elements of the salvation of those regions in which it predominates, as witness this from the Southwest Magazine:

"A method has been discovered for converting gumbo roads, long a dread to those who have had to travel in rural districts, into clay-balled highways. The process which has been conducted in the Yazoo Valley of Mississippi has been not only simple, but satisfactory and not costly.

"After grading the road to an even width between ditches, it is plowed up as deeply as practicable. After the plowing has been completed, furrows are dug across the road from ditch to ditch, extending through and beyond the width to be burned. Across the ridges formed between these furrows—which should be about four feet apart—the first course of cordwood is laid longitudinally so as to form a series of flues in which the firing is started. From 15 to 20 of these flues are fired at one time.

"The best and soundest cordwood is selected for this course and should be laid so that the pieces will touch, thus forming a floor. Another layer of wood is thrown irregularly across the floors, in crib formation, with space left between, in which the lumps of clay are piled in close enough to allow a draft for easy combustion. After the clay has been heaped upon the floor, another course of wood is laid parallel to the first.

"The third layer is placed in exactly the same manner as the first, and each opening and crack is filled with brush, chips, bark, small sticks or any other combustible material. A top layer of clay is placed over all and the finer portions of the material are heaped over the whole structure; the latter being taken from the side ditches. Finally the whole is tamped and rounded off so that the heat will be held within the flues as long as possible. When coal is available, the two top layers of wood may be omitted and the coal slack thoroughly mixed with the clay.

"It is necessary to get the fire well under way in the flues before the first layer of wood is burned through. The first action of the fire is to drive out the water contained in the clay before the actual burning and clinking can begin. The firing should be begun on the windward side, and the best results are obtained by firing all the flues of a section simultaneously and maintaining the combustion as even as possible. In case the combustion is too rapid in any flue, it may be regulated by banking the mouth of the flue with clay.

"After the firing is completed, not only the portion of clay which forms the top of the kiln, but the ridges between the flues should be burned thoroughly, so as to form a covering of burnt clay 10 to 12 inches in depth, which, when rolled down and compacted, forms a road surface of from six to eight inches in thickness.

"If properly burned, the material should be entirely changed in character, and when it is wet it should have no tendency to form mud. When the material is sufficiently cooled, the roadbed should be brought to a high crown before rolling. This can best be done with a road grader. The finished crown should have a slope of at least one-half inch to the foot.

"A burnt clay road will last indefinitely, and it has the double advantage of being dry in wet weather and free from dust in dry weather. There is splendid opportunity for road improvements of this character in the southwest."

FAIR SEX IS CROWDING INTO EVERY OCCUPATION

HELP WANTED
MOTORMAN, PILOT
ENGINEER
PRIVATE WATKMAN.
BLACKSMITH.
Etc.

WASHINGTON.—The progress of the modern woman in the industrial world and how she is crowding into occupations hitherto monopolized by man is made known in a report issued by the government census bureau. The figures are based on the census returns of 1909 and show that even that long ago woman had invaded all but nine of the 303 occupations in which the bread winners of the United States were engaged. As to whether she has wedged her way into these nine occupations in which man was then dominant the report sheds no light.

The returns show, among other things, that five women were employed as pilots. On steam railroads ten were employed as baggagemen, 31 as brakemen, seven as conductors, 45 as engineers and firemen, and 26 as switchmen, yardmen and flagmen, and 45 were carriage and hack drivers, six were ship carpenters, and two roofers and slaters. One hundred and eighty-five were returned as blacksmiths and 508 as machinists; eight were boiler-makers, 31 charcoal, coke and lime burners, and 11 were well borers. Two women were also reported as "motor-men."

A movement to pension the army mule and furnish him a home when his days of usefulness are over has been started, and if it receives the cooperation of humane societies a bill will be passed by the next congress prohibiting the sale of the obstinate "critters" owned by the government. Under present laws the army mule, along with all other government property, must be condemned when useless and sold to the highest bidder. Patriotic societies which have been organized to look after the welfare of veterans have been asked to join in the movement to provide at government expense quarters and feed for horses and mules which have served faithfully with Uncle Sam's army so as to save them from inhuman treatment.

W. H. Lowder of Miles Camp, Spanish War Veterans, who is taking a leading part in the agitation in behalf of the friendless mule, at a meeting of his camp here, said:

"It is a pitiable sight to see our old

The number of divorced women returned by the census, the report says, is probably deficient, because the fact of divorce is not always admitted. But it is significant that of the number reported divorced, 55.3 per cent were supporting themselves wholly or in part. The total number of women at work includes 11,771,966 native white women, whose parents also were natives; 1,090,744 native white women, one or both of whose parents were immigrants; 840,911 white women who were themselves immigrants, 1,119,621 negro women and 11,288 Indian and Mongolian women.

The number of women at work more than doubled in the 29 years from 1880 to 1909, and there was a noticeable increase of bread winners among married women in 1909, as compared with 1890.

Almost one-fourth of the total number of women at work were servants, 456,405 were farm laborers, 96.8 per cent of whom were from the Southern states, and 361,804 were negroes. There were 338,14 dressmakers, 327,206 teachers, 328,935 laundresses, 307,706 farmers, 231,458 textile mill operatives, and 146,929 housekeepers and stewardesses.

TO RETIRE ARMY MULES ON A PENSION OF GRASS

army horses and mules, after having seen service in foreign countries, sold to unscrupulous horse dealers. Every one of them are marked with the United States army service mark and it is a disgrace that they should be hitched up to scavenger wagons, ash and brick carts horses sold that have seen years of honorable service, and every soldier must feel the injustice of the treatment they are receiving, especially in a country like ours, where there are thousands of acres of land lying idle in Virginia, Texas and Western forts. Why couldn't these animals be allowed to spend the rest of their days at these places on the pension roll of Uncle Sam instead of being sold for the paltry sum of $15."

Officials of the war department who have command of the army rules raise no objection to the suggestion, and say that if permitted by law it could be easily arranged to find a comfortable home for the worn-out army mules.

FARMERS TOLD HOW TO USE THE APPLE CROP

THE plant industry bureau of the department of agriculture has decided that the apples of the country are not sufficiently utilized for food purposes and has issued a bulletin of advice to the farmers, telling them how to use the stock that is of too poor a grade for the general market. It pays special attention to the "evaporation" of apples as being particularly valuable in using up the fruit that might ordinarily go to waste. It points out that the portion of a fruit crop which is of too low grade to market in the ordinary way can often be made to pay at least a large part of the expense of maintaining the orchard or fruit plantation if it is converted into some other form or handled in some way other than that practiced with the better grades. The report details various methods of operating the industry, of handling the waste, the laws on the subject, and the grading and storing of the products.

"While the recent tendency in the apple industry," says Chief Galloway of the bureau, in the bulletin, "has apparently been to centralize fruit evaporation into distinct commercial establishments having considerable capacity and requiring capital to construct and equip, there still remain large regions in which there is considerable surplus of fruit that is unsuitable for packing and shipping in almost every crop year. Encouragement of evaporating, canning, cider making and other methods of utilization appears desirable, and of these evaporating is the one that is most applicable at present to a wide range of conditions, and therefore of most importance to the average farmer."

PRESIDENT ORDERS HARD TEST FOR ARMY OFFICERS

ARMY officers are poor horsemen, in the opinion of President Roosevelt, who has directed that they ride fifteen miles one day every other year at a gallop, trot, and a walk, to test their skill in horsemanship. President Roosevelt has written a letter on this subject to the secretary of war. The secretary of war has issued an order directing that the president's ideas be carried out. The letter has caused consternation in the army. It is as follows:

"I further desire that an annual or biennial test of the physical condition and skill in horsemanship of all field officers of the line be made under the personal supervision of the several department commanders when making their annual inspections. "The tests should be thorough and should consist of a ride not less than 15 miles, at varying gaits adapted to the terrain, not less than ten miles of which shall be at the trot and gallop, approximately five miles at each, with such other exercises in equitation as may be deemed advisable."

Sheer white goods, in fact, any fine wash goods when new, owe much of their attractiveness to the way they are laundered, this being done in a manner to enhance their textile beauty. Home laundering would be equally satisfactory if proper attention was given to starching, the first essential being good Starch, which has sufficient strength to stiffen, without thickening the goods. Try Defiance Starch and you will be pleasantly surprised at the improved appearance of your work.

AFRAID OF PARALYSIS

A NERVOUS SUFFERER CURED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

The Medicine That Makes Rich, Red Blood and Performs Wonders as a Tonic for the Nerves.

Why are nervous people invariably pale people?

The answer to that question explains why a remedy that acts on the blood can cure nervous troubles.

It explains why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are also for nervous people.

It is because of the intimate relation between the red corpuscles in the blood and the health of the nerves. The nervous system receives its nourishment through the blood. Let the blood become thin, weak and colorless and the nerves are starved—the victim is started on the road that leads to nervous wreck. Nervous people are pale people—but the pallor comes first. Enrich the blood and the nerves are stimulated and toned up to do their part of the work of the body. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make red blood and transform nervous, irritable, ailing people into strong, energetic, forceful men and women.

Mrs. Harriet E. Porter, of 20 Liberty avenue, South Medford, Mass., says:

"I had never been well from childhood and a few years ago I began to have dizzy spells. At such times I could not walk straight. I was afraid of paralysis and was on the verge of nervous prostration. Then neuralgia set in and affected the side of my face. The pains in my forehead were excruciating and my heart pained me so that my doctor feared neuralgia of the heart. I tried several different kinds of treatment but they did me no good.

"One day my son brought me some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I found that they strengthened my nerves. I took several boxes and felt better in every way. There were no more dizzy attacks, the neuralgia left me and I have been a well woman ever since."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are invaluable in anemia, rheumatism, after-effects of the grip and fevers and in sick headaches, nervousness, neuralgia, and even partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

Our booklet "Nervous Disorders, a Method of Home Treatment" will be sent free on request to anyone interested. Write for it today.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Corporations Oust Miners.

The Klondike proper—that is, that portion of the Yukon territory in the vicinity of Dawson—as far as the individual miner is concerned, is on a rapid decline owing to the immense area of ground being acquired by dredging companies. One company alone has purchased nearly all the placer ground on the three principal creeks, namely: Bonanza, Eldorado and Hunker, and has bonded considerably more on Dominion and other creeks for various reasons. Where formerly hundreds of miners were working for wages or working their own ground, thus creating a demand for provisions, clothing, machinery, hardware, etc., and the transportation from Dawson to the different mining operations, now dredges are either operating or in course of construction.—Consular Reports.

SCHMITZ IS GUILTY

SAN FRANCISCO'S MAYOR IS CONVICTED OF EXTORTION.

SENSATIONAL TRIAL ENDS

Defendant Shows Little Emotion When the Verdict is Read—Judge Dunne's Charge to the Jury.

San Francisco.—Mayor Schmitz was found guilty of extortion, as charged in the indictment, by the jury which returned its verdict in Judge Dunne's court at 10:20 o'clock Thursday night. As the foreman read the verdict Schmitz sat unmoved, with his left hand to his chin. He apparently did not understand, and asked Attorney Barrett:

"What is it?" "Guilty," said Barrett. Schmitz's hand dropped to the table, but he showed no other signs of emotion.

The morning of the last day of the mayor's trial was taken up with Mr. Campbell's closing address to the jury for the defense, a speech of great vigor. The afternoon from 2:30 o'clock until after five was consumed by Assistant District Attorney Heney in a fierce closing speech for the state.

It was the sentiment, equally expressed at both ends of the long table where the opposing lawyers sat, that Judge Dunne's charge to the jury was as fair and as nicely balanced in the scales of judicial indifference as a judge's charge may be.

Judge Dunne, in defining to the jury what the law means by a threat in connection with extortion, said it must be such a threat as would naturally cause a man of reasonably firm mind to give up his property in fear. He cautioned that a threat in extortion need not be verbal or direct. It may be unspoken and merely implied, and come fully within the meaning of the law. He charged that even if Schmitz received part of the money paid to Ruef by the French restaurant men, but did not know at the time of receiving it that it had been paid under threat, the defendant must be acquitted.

ORCHARD WEEPS ON STAND.

Defense Makes Fierce Attack on His Motives in Confessing.

Boise, Idaho.—The men who are battling to save the life of William D. Haywood and the good name of the Western Federation of Miners made their greatest assault upon Harry Orchard Thursday, when, carrying the review by cross-examination of his life down to his confession, they bitterly assailed his guiding motives.

Orchard was moved to tears at one time, but firmly maintained that he was trying to make reparation for his crimes because he had become converted.

At the noon recess former Gov. Peabody greeted Orchard pleasantly and he wept again.

FATAL EARTHQUAKE IN CHILE.

Five Persons Killed and Buildings Ruined at Valdivia.

Santiago, Chile.—A severe earthquake was experienced Thursday at Valdivia. Several buildings and the railroad bridges were destroyed and five persons were killed.

Kingston, Jamaica.—After an interval of six weeks, an earthquake shock occurred here at 1:20 a. m. Thursday. It lasted four seconds and came from a little west of north. The maximum movement was slight. There was considerable alarm but no damage was done.

SHOCKING TRAGEDY IN OHIO.

Man Kills Wife and Son and Shoots Mother-in-Law.

Ironton, O.—One of the most horrible tragedies ever enacted in this section of the state took place on Symes Creek at about noon Thursday, when Charles Shafer shot his wife, her mother, and his eight-year-old boy, the latter being instantly killed, while Mrs. Shafer died about an hour later. Her mother, Mrs. Thacker, will recover. Family trouble is given as the cause of the shooting, and back of that is a long story of cruel and brutal treatment.

Kills His Wife in Quarrel.

Wausau, Wis.—Henry Wolf, of the town of Easton, in a quarrel with his wife Thursday killed her with a blow of his fist as they were struggling for the possession of a revolver.

Death Causes a Strike.

St. Louis.—The death of James Stewart, an iron worker, who fell ten stories Wednesday in the new Third National bank building being constructed, resulted in the strike Thursday of about 1,000 iron structural workers to enforce demands that temporary flooring be placed on alternate floors of buildings in course of construction, as required by a city ordinance. Contractors immediately yielded and began putting in temporary floorings to prevent workmen from falling to their deaths.

Again at another time I dined with him at a table d'hote cafe. He said to the waiter, 'Bring us a couple of bottles of pink ink.' What the waiter brought him, don't you know, was two bottles of red wine.

Made for Fat Men. One of the narrow arches in the gallery of the chapel at Columbia university is not exactly symmetrical, although the defect is not noticeable to the casual observer, says the New York Globe. The reason for the widening of the arch after its original construction had rise in a somewhat humorous occurrence. One of the early visitors was a remarkably fat man, who found himself wedged into the arch when he tried to squeeze through and was extricated with difficulty. The builders, recognizing the possibility of other fat people being numbered among the future visitors, decided to widen the arch, sacrificing symmetry and harmony to practical need, as the pier was so constructed as to bear no loss of width on one of its sides.

AN OLD EDITOR Found $2000 Worth of Food.

The editor of a paper out in Okla., said: "Yes, it is true when I got hold of Grape-Nuts food, it was worth more than a $2000 doctor bill to me, for it made me a well man. I have gained 25 pounds in weight, my strength has returned tenfold, my brain power has been given back to me, and that is an absolute essential, for I am an editor and have been for 35 years.

"My pen shall always be ready to speak a good word for this powerful nutritive food. I had of course often read the advertisements regarding Grape-Nuts, but never thought to apply the food to my own use, until, in my extremity and sickness the thought came to me that it might fit my case. The statements in regard to the food are absolutely correct, as I have proven in my own case. Would Quit When He Was Done With All Things Earthly.

A rich man out in the suburbs who owns a large place has among the many people employed to keep it in shape an Irishman of whom he is particularly fond on account of his unconscious wit, says Harper's Weekly. This Irishman is something of a hard drinker, and, as his income is limited, he is more particular as regards the quantity than the quality of his liquors. The other day the employer, who had been awaiting a good opportunity, remarked in a kind tone, as the closing sentence of a friendly lecture:

"Now, Pat, how long do you think you can keep on drinking this cheap whiskey?"

To which Pat instantly replied: "All my life, if it doesn't kill me."

I used many kinds of patent medicines, to no avail. A friend teased me to try Cuticura. At last I decided to try Cuticura when my boy was three years and four months old, having had eczema all that time and suffering untold misery. I began to use all three of the Cuticura Remedies. # NEW PASTOR IS INSTALLED

H. A. Michael is Ordained to the Ministry and Installed as Pastor of Reformed Church

VERY INTERESTING AND SOL-EMN SERVICE

Pastorate Begins Under the Most Favorable Auspices

Full of deep and solemn interest for the members of the Reformed church, the ordination and installation of their new pastor, H. A. Michael, held their close attention on Friday evening. The duty of the entire service devolved upon Rev. Mr. Mathis of Goshen, the other two members of the committee being unable to get here.

The service was conducted like the ordinary preaching service up to the point of inducting the new pastor into his office. The opening musical number was a duet, sweetly sung, by Miss Edna Stahl and her brother Otto. The remaining selections were given by the choir.

Mr. Mathis held the preliminary scripture reading and prayer exercise and then preached a sermon on Deut. 5: 27—"Go thou near and hear all that the Lord our God shall say; and speak thou unto us all that the Lord our God shall speak unto thee, and we will hear it and do it." These words were spoken unto Moses by the children of Israel who desired to know the Lord's will concerning them but were afraid to go personally into his presence on the mount where he had shown himself to Moses.

The preacher likened the ordained minister to Moses in being an intermediary who by reason of his study of the scriptures and his intimate life with God is accepted by the people as an interpreter of God's message and a spiritual advisor. The text laid the foundation for an outline of what manner of man the minister of God should be, and the attitude which the people of his charge should take toward him. The people should be loyal in their friendship and support, remembering that often a pastor has to defend and apologize for the shortcomings of his church members.

The ordination and installation service followed a printed ritual, during the administration of which the candidate stood or knelt before the pulpit. The conclusion of the ceremony required the elders and deacons to come forward and extend the right hand of fellowship to the new pastor.

The new relations between Rev. Mr. Michael and the Culver church have been inaugurated under perfect conditions, and it is the hope and belief of both parties to the contract that they will result in a benefit of both and of an enlargement of the religious sentiment of the town.

A Kindergarten.

A kindergarten for Culver little folks is something new and also highly desirable. Realizing that there is a field for this kind of work here Misses Rose and Julia Moss will open a school next Monday morning in the public school building, holding daily sessions from 9 to 12 to continue six to eight weeks. Any child under 8 years accepted. Terms are 50 cents per week, payable every two weeks. Miss Julia Moss has been a teacher in Mrs. Blaker's Indianapolis kindergarten during the past year. Children will be required to furnish their own chairs or stools, all other paraphernalia and material being supplied by the teachers.

The Citizen heartily commends the new enterprise to the parents of Culver. The kindergarten work fills a period in the child's life before the child enters the public school with the mental training which it would otherwise not get, teaching it habits of thought which are plainly noticeable in its subsequent school work.

Ice cream, first-class. Families and parties supplied at reasonable rates. Bottling Works.

Four men of the graduating class delivered orations at the exercises in the gymnasium on Thursday morning. These were Chas. Albright who gave eloquent tribute to "Lord Nelson;" William R. Higgins, who entered a plea for the child laborer as he spoke upon "The Little White Slave;" Clarence C. Moore, with a plea for the better observance of "Our National Holidays" in keeping with the real spirit of their origin; and Walter J. Mayer, who presented the ideals of the republic and the duty of the youth thereto under the title "The Republic and the Youth."

The superintendent then announced the award of medals as follows:

Excellence in Drill—C. F. McCarthy.

Public Speaking—W. L. Temple.

Best Shot—H. F. Okie.

Spelling—J. Forrestal.

Captain of best drilled company—C. C. Moore.

All-round athlete—R. G. Haskins.

Cavalry—J. H. Dickens.

Department—L. P. Coleman.

Scholarship—C. H. Albright.

Special mention in army register—G. W. Fulks, C. C. Moore, D. F. Duncan.

From the gymnasium the battalion marched to the field, officers for next year were read, arms were stacked, equipment and colors laid on the stacks, and as the boys stood for the last time at parade rest the soft music of "Auld Lang Syne" proclaimed the end of the year 1906-7. There remained but the command of dismissal and the tearful farewells which mark the breaking of the old ties.

The graduates and the subjects of their orations:

Invocation—Rev. W. M. Niess.

Oration—"Lord Nelson"—Chas. Albright, Ohio.

Oration—"The Republic and the Youth"—William R. Higgins, Ohio.

Oration—"The Little White Slave"—Clarence C. Moore, Ohio.

Oration—"Our National Holidays"—Walter J. Mayer, Ohio.

Oration—"The Republic and the Youth"—Walter J. Mayer, Ohio.

Little-Smith Reunion.

Relatives and friends to the number of 115 met in the second annual Little-Smith reunion in the Vandalla park, Culver, Indiana, June 16, 1907.

After the usual greetings on such occasions a bountiful dinner was spread of which each partook to his own satisfaction.

Chas. P. Curtis, the Argos photographer, was present and took a picture of the group, after which the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, G. W. Smith; vice-president, J. M. Lake; secretary, Gladis A. Hittle; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Moore.

A collection of $1.62 was then taken up to defray the secretary's expenses.

A motion to hold the next reunion at the same place the third Sunday of June, 1908, was carried.

The meeting expressed to Mr. Bradley heartfelt thanks for service rendered during the day.

Those present from a distance were: O. A. Kempe and family, H. T. Carlson and family and Amund Smith of Chicago; and Mrs. L. C. Hutchinson and Mrs. Mary Tebedo of Three Oaks, Mich.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative and tell you the value of the stomach, heart or kidneys. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptoms treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—weak stomach weakness, always. And the heart, and kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for floating, biliousness, bad breath, or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by T. K. Slattery.
