No Panic. Persons who fear that a panic is approaching may be reassured when they learn how completely the situation today reverses that existing in 1903, when so many banks throughout the country were forced to the wall.

In that year country banks were short of money. The farmer had gone through a long struggle. Consequently when conditions began to grow bad and money was in demand, country banks could not supply it. They sought relief from their reserve agents in the large cities, and when those agents, as often happened, were unable to auswer their demands, they failed. This started a panic. Money was hid away and could not be brought out for investment, and for a long time the country lay under the weight of business depression.

But now country banks, after a number of good years for farmers, have huge reserves of available cash. They have money to lend to city banks, and their funds are employed to purchase commercial paper in the cities. The situation will be still further strengthened by the crops this year, which, though only fair in size, yet command such prices that farmers will profit by them more than in any previous year. By this it will be seen that a money panie is not to be feared, in spite of the curtailment that has taken and is taking place in rail. road expenditures, and of the low prices of stocks in Wall street. Railroad economy, if persisted in but that will not be a calamity, for prices of necessaries will then fall, and affairs will be readjusted on a more equal basis.

The really interesting game of the day was that between the Culver town team and the academy second team with the cadets winning only by the difference between a touchdown and goal on their side and a field goal on the side of the town boys. Law Enforcement.

There are some persons who do not like to hear any talk for or about the enforcement of law. Why this should be so is difficult to understand. Every individual is interested in the enforcement of law. Without it there would be absolutely no protection to life or property. Both would be in constant danger. The poor and the weak especially would be without anything like safety. Viciousness would be supreme, chaos would be general and destruction inevitable. There are two things that need to be greatly strengthened in this country-in this land of self-government. These are respect for law and enforcement of law. Because your house was not entered by burglars last night, or no one fired a pistol through your window or your barn was not set on fire, or of your watch and purse, does not argue that these very things did not happen somewhere, perhaps know that these drastic events do take place, and entirely too often. Ponder over this and then decide for yourself whether you can afford to be indifferent to law and its enforcement.-South Bend Times.

Monterey Remonstrance.

The anti-saloon workers have been canvassing this township the past week getting signers to a remonstrance which is to be filed as soon as a majority of voters' names have been secured. Up to this time the workers have been quietly seeking their end, going ahead without much fuss or fury. This is the way it should be. Of course some few radicals will be found on both sides, and if given the reins a bad muss may be stirred up. At present there remain five townships in the county to remonstrate against al seasons, for he is wise to the the saloons and it is said that remonstrances are either being prepared or circulated in two of them. snuffed out, 600 injured, of which number 50 were seriously hurt, and a property loss of approximately $750,-000 is the latest estimate of the destruction wrought by the explosion at the Dupont Powder mills Tuesday morning.

From a workman employed in the glazing mill it was learned Wednesday that a "hot box," which was caused by too much friction on the shafting, causing sparks to be transmitted to some loose powder, was in all probability the cause of the terrible catastrophe.

Loose Boxing Blamed.

The employe, whose name is William Sherrow and who is dangerously hurt as the result of the explosion, said:

"The explosion in which so many lives were lost was caused by loose boxing on the shaft. The day before this terrible explosion happened we had to throw water on it when it became too hot. This time it got too hot and sent off the spurks that caused the explosion."

Another company of state militia arrived from Indianapolis Wednesday evening and immediately went into camp. The town is now under martial law, the two companies of state troops being in full control.

Dupont's Honeymoon Spoiled.

Wilmington, Del.-Alfred G. Dupont, vice president of the Dupont Powder company, who married Miss A. Bradford Maddox in New York Tuesday and who intended to take a long motoring trip as his honeymoon, was informed of the explosion at Fontanet immediately after the wedding. Mr. Dupont at once canceled his trip and wired $5,000 to Gov. Hanly for the immediate relief of the sufferers. He authorized the governor to use any amount in excess of the $5,000 if he finds it necessary. Mr. Dupont left Wednesday for Fontanet to personally supervise the work there. He was accompanied by Frank L. Connable, general manager of the Dupont company in Wilmington.

Story of the Disaster.

ald. The mills were located one mile south of the town. With the first explosion the employes ran for safety, but most of them were killed or wounded by the quick-following explosions in the other mills. When the heat from the burning mills exploded the great powder magazine, 90 minutes later, destroying the town by the concussion, many of those engaged in rescue work were badly injured and several were killed. Superintendent, Monahan of the plant was killed while sitting in his office and his wife and sister-in-law were killed in their home some distance away.

People Fled from Houses.

That the death list is not far greater is due to the fact that the people of the town had left their houses at the first explosion and were not in them when the explosion of the 40,000 kegs of powder in the magazine hurled their household goods in heaps of detheir homes to pieces and scattered

Among the buildings destroyed in the town were , the Methodist and Christian churches, two school buildings, the depot, all business blocks, including a large block just completed; a large warehouse and 500 homes. ELEPHANTS ON RAID

VICIOUS BEASTS TAKE HUMAN LIFE IN RHODESIA.

Head of Wesleyan Mission Sends Particulars and Protests Against Protection Accorded the Animals in South Africa.

Rev. Mr. Grantham, in charge of the Wesleyan mission at Lomagundi, sends particulars of a raid made by a herd of elephants, which resulted in the loss of life,

He says: "I shall be glad if you will make known through the medium of your paper the following incident and my comments on it in the hope that public sentiment may be aroused against a condition of things in which many suffer for the sake of a fad of a few, who share none of the misery that their hobby inflicts upon others. In May last the natives on the farm suffered serious damage from the incursions of a troop of elephants that visited us seven nights in succession. In this respect we are not the only sufferers, for I am constantly hearing of the same kind of thing throughout the neighborhood. We have no lawful means of protecting our crops, and application for damages are ignored.

'On Friday morning two old natives and a pleannin, who had been sleeping in a skerm erected in the lands, awoke to find that ten grown elephants and three calves were within a few yards of where they lay. The natives fied in terror, pursued by one of the beasts, which was apparently enraged at the sight of human be ings in such close proximity to the calves. The piccannin was just on the point of being tusked, but saved himself by rushing on hands and knees through the branches of a fallen tree. The elephant tossed these aside, and continued in pursuit of the old men. One escaped, but the other was overtaken in about 100 yards, and the viclous beast transfixed him through the back, the protruding tusk plowing deeply into the soil.

"The furious animal then proceeded to rip its victim to pieces, aplitting one leg from buttock to call and an arm from shoulder to wrist. He just lived long enough to urge his friend to fly to the kraal, or no one would be left to tell the tale.

"We are told that in strict self-defense they may be fired upon. Are we then to walt until one of the brutes is In the act of charging upon us ere we pull a hasty trigger, which is more likely than not to be our last? And what is the use of firing at one angry elephant when several others are standing by ready to take up the cause of their companion if it does fail? "It is popularly supposed that elephants will not attack a human being unless molested by him, but they will invariably ested so him the berd contains allbly do so if the is set contains any calves. A price in that upon the head of Hons-beasts that rarely initiate an attack upon human beings, and whose depreda generally confined to cattle kraals and spans of donkeys. Why, then, should elephants, which in this district are a much greater scourge than lions, be protected, and the killing of one he a criminal offense "-Rhodesia Merald.

"How would it do to get your brother's own opinion and see how he feels?" I suggested. "Either you or I, or even both of us, might write him and put the matter clearly before him. If there is any good left in him-you will pardon me, Miss Carney, I hope, for I spoke very thoughtlessly-but he ought to come to his senses and decide for himself."

She looked up into my face, her eyes wet with tears, but with a wan smile that was evidently conjured up for the moment, and said, gently:

"You need not ask my forgiveness, Mr. Ware, for you always think and speak for the best, and my own feelings toward Jack are the same as yours. I have never mentioned his name to you before for I could not bear to think of those awful days he spent here after my father's death, and I am so glad that poor Annie did not see him then as I did. He know that he was not fit for her to see and I must say that he showed himself to me only enough to enable us to arrange our business affairs. He seemed to understand the degradation of his position, and although I have never written to him in all these years, my heart warms to him now and I want to overlook If. but I cannot, oh I cannot, Mr. Ware."

"Would you like me to write to him myself?" I asked. "I could hardly explain matters in a telegram, and while I never know exactly where he is I have reason to believe that he is in the neighborhood of Londou or Paris. A letter to his bankers would reach him within a week or ten days and he could be here in a little more than a fortnight."

Large Deposits of Ore Within Easy Reach.

Indiamapolis .- In his report for 1906 W. S. Blatchley, state geologist, discusses the iron ore deposits and the iron industries of this state and predicts that Indiana is destined to take a leading position among the iron producing states of the union.

A paper by Charles W. Shannon, of Bloomington, field assistant to Mr. Blatchley, tells of iron ore deposits in the state, what Indiana has done in the past and the methods employed in prospecting in Indiana fields.

The supply of raw materials within the state of Indiana," says Mr. Shannon, "is unlimited. New developments are being made along many lines and old interests are being revived which were formerly held in check through lack of means of transportation and inexperienced management.

"To say that Indiana was at one time a chief iron producing state might appear to be misleading, but when we go back to the years of 1830-1870 and find a dozen blast furnaces in operation and producing a fairly good tonnage of iron we cannot fall to see that Indiana was a large pro ducer of iron. Some of the turnaces used exclusively indiana ores, others worked their ores mixed with foreign ores; others used only such iron ores as were shipped to them from deposits like 'Iron Mountain,' Missouri.

"The furnaces were located as follows; St. Joseph Iron works, at Mishawaka, at the extreme northern edge of the state; one at Logansport; the 'Old Virginia,' or 'Cincinnati,' furnace, in western Monroe county; the Richland farnace, in Greene county; the Irontown furnace, in Martin county; the Brazil, the Lafayette, or Masten, on Otter creek, south of Brazil; the Planet, or Star northeast of Harmony, and the two Western Iron company furnaces at Knightsville make up the list for Clay county; the Indiana blast fornace on Brouillett's creek, near Clinton,, in Vermilion county, and the Vigo blast furnace, at Terre Haute, the last one to go out of blast. All of these furnaces have long since ceased operation and little remains to mark the location of the hig iron industries of the state which went into docline, yet leaving a more or less interesting history.

"Eastern furnaces with lower rallroad rates and better facilities for wars interest has again revived in the ore deposits of the state, and the construction at Gary, Ind., of what will eventually be the largest system of blast furnaces and iron mills in the United States, makes it an assured fact that Indiana is again to become one of the chief iron producing states of the union. "While none of the Indiana deposits would he considered extensive, as compared with the great ore districts, yet the deposits aggregate a fair tonnage. The larger deposits, which can be more easily worked, would probably yield 15,000,000 tons of ore and the smaller inaccessible deposits, which would be easily worked out by the owners or the inhabitants if furnaces were in a reasonable distance, would bring the total up to at least 25,000,000 tons. In many cases the smaller deposits contain the best grade of from. This would fully compensate for the extra cost in mining. Further developments and information from the use of the core drill may materially increase the above estimate. "The methods of prospecting in the Indiana fields have not only been carried out in the fron ore fields of Greene and Martin counties, but also extensively in the coal fields of southorn Indiana and in the limestone and cement shale areas. By the use of picks, shovels, drills and other hand tools and dynamite vertical faces were cui on the outcrops extending from

BALANCE IN THE AIR.

The Necessity For Equilibrium In Bird Flight

It is likely that the bird's superb ease and grace in the air are due to its ability to maintain absolute balance. If a gull makes the mistake of bending until the wind strikes its head and wings on the top it will tumble instantly. And the sailing birds, though they make no flapping motion of their wings, are constantly balancing themselves. like a man on a tight rope. Some scientists have maintained that the air ancs make if possible for the bird to manage minute changes that are very valuable in restoring equilibrium. It is known that the wing is joined to the body of the bird by what is called a universal joint, enabling the creature to make almost every possible motion. The body of a man is heavier than water, but if he gets into a position of perfect balance up with infinite scorn. "Arrah! What he will float. In some such way, it is claimed, the bird floats in the air. But as the bird would fall much more rapidly in the air than a man's body would sink in water the necessity for a far more subtle ability to keep the center of gravity on the part of the bird is apparent; hence, according to this theory, the bird is provided for this purpose with the most sensitive feathers perhaps acting as seatinels, warning instantly of the slightest approach of shifting currents .- Everybody's Magazine.

Why the Dollar of 1804 Is Rare. There are two stories regarding the rarity of the silver dollar of 1804, the most generally accepted one being the one which accounts for the scarcity by saying that they were sent to Africa to pay the soldiers engaged in war between this country and Tripoll, There were only 19,570 of them coined. Another version of the story which accounts for their rarity is that a vessel bound to China with almost the entire

"How would it do to get your brother's own opinion and see how he fools?" I suggested. "Either you or I, or even both of us, might write him and put the matter clearly before him. If there is any good left in him-you will pardon me, Miss Carney, I hope, for 1 spoke very thoughtlessly-but he ought to come to his senses and decide for himaelf."

She looked up into my face, her eyes wet with tears, but with a wan amile that was evidently conjured up for the moment, and said, gently:

"You need not ask my forgiveness, Mr. Ware, for you always think and speak for the best, and my own feelings toward Jack are the same as yours. I have never mentioned his name to you before for I could not bear to think of those awful days he spent here after my father's death, and I am so glad that poor Annie did not see him then as I did. He knew that he was not fit for her to see and I must say that he showed himself to me only enough to enable us to arrange our business affairs. He seemed to understand the degradation of his position, and although I have never written to him in all these years, my heart warms to him now and I want to overlook it, but I cannot, oh I cannot, Mr. Ware."

"Would you like me to write to him myself?" I asked. "I could hardly explain matters in a telegram, and while I never know exactly where he is I have reason to believe that he is in the neighborhood of London or Paris. A letter to his bankers would reach him within a week or ten days and he could be here in a little more than a fortnight."

"You know best," she murmured, resting her head on her hand and wiping her eyes slowly. "You know best and must act according to your own judgment. It seems to me that we ought to send for him, if only for Annie's sake, but I leave it all to you." feelings overwhelmed her again, but as soon as she could calm herself, she went on: "Perhaps I have been wrong myself in not trying to help him and make him see the position in which he has placed himself. but when he was here I could not bring myself to do it."

In fact, I suddenly realized that I had not taken a proper interest in the mysterious happenings at Carney-Croft and that while it had seemed quite enough to bring them to a standstill, as far as outward appearances were concerned, they were, in reality, of far too great importance to let pass so easily.

Miss Weston's connection with the affair mave a new aspect to it, of course, and while I was bound by my word to respect her secret there was

NEWS GATHERED FROM VARIOUS INDIANA POINTS. REPORT OF GEOLOGIST

W. S. Blatchley Predicts Great Future in Iron Producing Line-Large Deposits of Ore Within Easy Reach.

Indianapolis.-- In his report for 1906 W. S. Blatchley, state geologist. discusses the iron ore deposits and the iron industries of this state and predicts that Indiana is destined to take a leading position among the fron producing states of the union. A paper by Charles W. Shannon, of Bloomington, field assistant to Mr. Blatchley, tells of iron ore deposits in the state, what Indiana has done in the past and the methods employed in prospecting in Indiana fields.

"The supply of raw materials within the state of Indiana," says Mr. Shannon, "is unlimited. New developments are being made along many lines and old interests are being revived which were formerly held in check through lack of means of transportation and inexperienced management.

"To say that Indiana was at one time a chief fron producing state might appear to be misleading, but when we go back to the years of 1820. 1870 and find a dozen blast furnaces in operation and producing a fairly good tonnage of iron we cannot fall to see that Indiana was a large producer of iron. Some of the furnaces used exclusively indiana ores, others, worked their ores mixed with foreign ores; others used only such iron ores as were shipped to them from deposits like 'Iron Mountain,' Missourl.

"The furnaces were located as follows: St. Joseph Iron works, at Mishawaka, at the extreme northern edge of the state; one at Loganaport; the 'Old Virginia,' or 'Cincinnail,' furnace, in western Monroe county; the Richland facnace, in Greene county; the Irontown furnace, In Martin county; the Brazil, the Lafayette, or Masten, on Otter creek, south of Brazil; the Planet, or Star, northeast of Harmony, and the two Western Iron company furnaces at Knightsville make up the list for Clay county; the Indiana blast furnace on Brouillett's creek, near Clinton,, in Vermilion county, and the Vigo blast furnace, at Terre Haute, the last one to go out of blast. All of these furnaces have long since ceased operation and little romains to mark the location of the big iron industries of the state which went into decline, yet leaving a more or less interesting history.

"Eastern furnaces with lower railroad rates and better facilities for handling ore and the opening of the great ore deposits of the Superior region and other districts have kept Indiana from returning to the manufacture of iron. But in the last few county schools, who fied before a ter the book had been printed a years interest has again revived in warrant could be issued for his arrest. the mistake discovered; but his the ore deposits of the state, and the construction at Gary, Ind., of what will eventually be the largest system of blast furnaces and iron mills in the United States, makes it an assured fact that Indiana is again to become one of the chief iron producing states of the union.

"While none of the Indiana deposits would be considered extensive, as compared with the great ore districts, yet the deposits aggregate a fair tonnage. The larger deposits, which can be more easily worked. would probably yield 15,000,000 tons of ore and the smaller inaccessible deposits, which would be easily worked out by the owners or the inhabitants if furnaces were in a reasonable distance, would bring the total up to at least 25,000,000 tens. In many cases the smaller deposits conrain the best grade of loon. This would fully compensate for the extra cost in mining. Further developments and information from the use of the core drill may materially increase the above estimate.

"The methods of prospecting in the Indiana fields have not only been carried out in the fron ore fields of Greene and Martin counties, but also extensively in the coal fields of southern Indiana and in the limestone and cement shale areas. By the use of picks, shovels, drills and other hand tools and dynamite vertical faces were cui on the outcrops extending from the surface down through the entire body of ore into the underlying formations. The length of these faces varied from five to 100 feet."

The increase of 51,000 for the state at large is found almost entirely in the northern and central Indiana counties, the voting population in the southern counties being stationary or losing something in the last six years.

This is accounted for in the fact that most of the emigration from the state is from Southern Indiana, while nearly all the new industries have come to the northern counties and brought with them a substantial increase in the voting population.

BALANCE IN THE AIR.

The Necessity For Equilibrium In Bird Flight

It is likely that the bird's superb ease and grace in the air are due to its ability to maintain absolute balance. If a gull makes the mistake of bending until the wind strikes its head and wings on the top it will tumble instantly. And the sailing birds, though they make no flapping motion of their wings, are constantly balancing themselves, like a man on a tight rope. Some scientists have maintained that the air suca make it possible for the bird to manage minute changes that are very valuable in restoring equilibrium. It is known that the wing is joined to the body of the bird highness," the other went on, "how by what is called a universal joint, enabling the creature to make almost ters?" Before the duke could answer every possible motion. The body of a an aid-de-camp appeared, with, "Here, man is heavier than water, but if he get along there." Why the Dollar of 1804 is Hare.

There are two stories regarding the rarity of the silver dollar of 1804, the most generally accepted one being the one which accounts for the scarcity by saying that they were sent to Africa to pay the soldiers engaged in war between this country and Tripoli. There were only 19,570 of them coined. Another version of the story which accounts for their rarity is that a vessel bound to China with almost the entire mintage of that year was lost. The former story appears to be the most likely explanation.

The Zulus employ a rain charm which is very remarkable considering their usual florconess and cruelty. They catch a bird, and after the tribal wizard has consecrated it and made it a "heaven bird" they throw it into a pool of water. sharp, shooting Prominent Banking House of Hamburg, Germany, Forced to the Wall by Collapse of the Corner.

> New York .- Sensations followed each other in rapid succession in the financial district Thursday as the result of the collapse of the projected corner in United Copper and the saspension of a prominent brokerage firm Wednesday.

The firm of Otto Heinze & Co. was suspended on the stock exchange.

F. Augustus Heinze, the Butte copper magnate, resigned the presidency of the Mercantile National bank of New York.

The Amalgamated Copper company at its directors' meeting cut its quarterly dividend from two per cent, to one per cent.

The directors of the Boston & Montana Copper company declared a quarterly dividend of six dollars in place of a former dividend of $12.

The fallure of Haller-Soehle & Co., prominent bankers of Hamburg, Germany, with liabilities that may reach $7,500,000, was announced.

The State Savings bank of Butte, Mont., of which the Heinzes are the principal stockholders, suspended.

As a result of these sensations the stock market was halting and irregular, but there was apparent feeling that break of the attempted corner in United Copper had cleared the 21mosphere somewhat, and the market rallied before the close.

The suspension of Otto Heinze & Co., of which firm Max M. Schultze is the stock exchange member, was based on a complaint to the exchange made by Gross & Kleeberg, the stock exchange firm which failed. In a communication to the president of the atock exchange this firm charged Otto 3,202 shares of United Copper, said to have been bought on the order of the Heinze firm. The action, Gross & Kleeberg state, was responsible for their failure. Attorneys for this firm stated that the amount owing to the firm by the Heinze firm aggregates $600,000.

The GENUINE ROUND OAK

For hard or soft coal. coke or wood.

This is the stove you have always heard about -the original-the genuine. It is known as the stove that holds the fire, that saves the fuel, that lasts and gives out heat just as desired because it is made and fitted so good and carefully that it is as easily regulated as a lamp. Has double fire pot, cone center grate and hot blast draft. It burns the gases and soot, and makes the smoke clear. It makes no clinkers. Heats the foor under and around the stove, Unequaled as a hard coal burnerall radiating surface no. mica door. Don't fail to see this great stove before you buy.

We have outstripped all previous records in point of variety, goodness of quality and low prices. Excellent quality for ladies, men and children. All grades, all sizes, and at all sorts of prices.

THE SURPRISE TELEPHONE No. 25 CULVER, INDIANA

Silver Teaspoons Free

To every subscriber of THE CITIZEN who pays up Our Offer to January 1, 1909, we will give, on demand, a set of Magnetic Silver Teaspoons absolutely free. If mailed to a subscriber, add 5 cents to the amount to pay postage.

Each subscriber's account is denoted in plain figures on the colored name tag on his paper, and the amount necessary to set his subscription ahead to the required date can be figured in a moment. For instance, if the tag reads John Smith Jun07 that is the date to which his paper is now paid, and at $1 per year, or 81 cents per month, the amount required to advance the subscription to Jan. 1, 1909, will be $1.581, but $1.60 should be sent.

This is the best premium ever offered by a newspaper in this section. The spoons are made by the Hamilton Silver Co., and are guaranteed to be the best substitute for solid silver ever made. They are not plated, but are solid metal and will never tarnish nor wear out.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS-Now is the time for persons not taking the Citizen to subscribe and get the premium. ARE YOU IN ARREARS? Pay up what you owe, advance your subscription to January 1, 1909, and take away a set of these beautiful spoons.

The spoons can be seen in the Citizen's window and we will take pleasure in having you call, take them in your hand and see how nice they are.

Don't wait, but come now, for we will not promise to keep the offer open longer than the month of October.
