A ROAD COMPETITION.

How an Illinois Community Stimulated Interest with Results.

Much practical work has been accomplished by the Galva Good Roads Improvement association of Henry county. The special object was the dragging and general maintenance of the main roads leading from Galva. Excellent results have been secured and the roads maintained could well serve as model earth roads. Mr. John Miller of Galva, reports:

Eighty dollars was raised by subscription and divided into three premiums, $40, $25, and $15 to be awarded for maintaining the best 4-mile stretches of main road, the roads to be graded and then worked with the road drag through the season from May 1 to January 1.

More than 30 miles of road were dragged on the seven main roads. Complete organization was effected on but four covering 18 miles. More or less dragging was done on the other roads but not on the 4-mile stretches. Wide-spread interest was created in good roads by this organized movement. Three judges go over the road after each rain to see that the roads are properly worked. In judging the crown or cross slope is counted 30 points, dragging 50 points, approach to bridge 10 points, general appearance, weeds, brush, etc., 10 points.

The results of the movement have been gratifying to everybody concerned, farmers, business men and road officials, and it is conceded on every hand that better results have been obtained from the funds this year than ever before. It is believed that the policy of under-draining the highways will be continued until the necessary under-drainage is completed. The road organization has had the active cooperation of the road commissioners of Galva township.

The great benefit of the good roads movement in Galva is in awakening the farmer to the fact that a well drained, well kept road is pleasant to drive over and an actual financial benefit to the adjacent land owners.—Bloomington Pantagraph.

Profitable Potatoes.

A farmer writes to the Bloomington (Ill.) Pantagraph describing his method of securing a profit of $118 an acre on his potato crop. Following is a portion of his letter:

This is the first time that I have planted the same ground (a black loam) in potatoes for the fourth successive crop, but I did it because the three previous crops were so good and because I had no other suitable place for potatoes. For this year's crop the ground was fall plowed, and the seed selected and carefully prepared.

The planting was done about the middle of April, immediately after oats seeding. It required about 26 bushels to plant the two acres.

Owing to the fourth successive crop and neglect to treat for scab, I notice quite a little scab on the potatoes this year.

Now to summarize this year's crop for profit, by figuring man and team at $3 per day, man at $1.50 per day, rent at $6 per acre, seed potatoes at $1 per bushel, Paris green at 40 cents per pound, I find the total expense of raising and marketing the two acres to be $90.40. The income from the 410 bushels of good potatoes at an average of 77½ cents per bushel, and figuring the 25 bushels of culls at 35 cents per bushel, was $326.50. This leaves a profit of $236.10.

Jesse Crabb has sold to Elizabeth Wagoner a house and lot in Zechiel's addition for $850 and will erect another house for himself in the same addition. Mrs. Wagoner will move to town from near Leiters.

John Osborn has sold 34 acres of his 114-acre farm southeast of town to Scott R. Geddes of Toto, Starke county for $2,040. Mr. Geddes will build a house and barn on his purchase.

John H. Murray has sold 25 acres at the south end of the lake to George Busart for $1,500, and has rented the house and barn to another party for the summer.

James Crabbe has contracted for the materials to erect a $700 cottage in Zechiel's addition.

M. R. Cline is preparing to install a concrete block plant near the elevator.

Work has been commenced on a cement, lime and plaster house at the elevator. The building will be 60x18, concrete to the level of a car floor and wood above. It will be divided into three rooms and will be a thoroughly substantial structure.

The railroad company has instituted preparations for the erection of a freight depot near the elevator. As large bodies move slowly there is no call for anybody to rush down to the track to see the work started today.

Met with Mishaps.

Jim Geiselman had the three first fingers of his right hand mashed and stripped to the first joint while helping to raise a building at the Palmer House Monday. Jim was about to leave for Mishawaka to take a summer's job on Eli Spencer's cement gang.

To the Democracy of Union Township.

Culver, Indiana, April 2, 1908.

Believing that every voter has the right to aspire to public office, and believing that I possess, in a fair degree, the necessary qualifications, I again present myself as a candidate for township trustee of Union township, Marshall county, Ind., subject to the decision of the democratic nominating convention to be held Saturday, May 2, 1908.

As many know, I was unsuccessful eight years ago, having received eleven less votes on 3d ballot than Mr. Bogardus, which gave him the nomination.

Not that the democracy of Union township at that time conceded Mr. Bogardus to be my superior in intellect, experience or integrity, but because many honest men at that time thought Culver could not maintain her prosperity unless she had the influence and support of the saloon, I having signed a liquor remonstrance, which Mr. Bogardus and Mr. McFarland declined. Now, should I be successful in winning the nomination and election to said office, I hereby pledge my best efforts in trying to do my whole duty. Fair treatment to all and special privileges to none shall be my motto. I also pledge my word that no more money shall be collected in the way of taxes than is absolutely necessary to meet the expenses of the township economically administered. I shall strive at all times to improve the public schools by exacting from each teacher his whole duty. I shall show in my financial report from time to time the amount of the township's indebtedness, so that all may know the exact condition as it really exists. Thanking the democratic voters of said township in advance for any favors they may deem proper to bestow,

I am, respectfully,
DANIEL W. MARKS.

CARP AS A FOOD FISH.

Its Value An Important Item—The Output is Enormous.

Fishermen of Illinois annually realize $200,000 to $500,000 from the sale of carp, more often the latter sum, according to the annual report of the Illinois fish commission just issued. The annual catch of this species of fish runs up to 20,000,000 pounds in some years. The long and formidable indictments against carp as being unfit for human food are "quashed" by the state fish commission.

The board takes upon itself the duty of replying to the charges, declaring to be false the reports that carp injure the feeding grounds of the wild fowl that they injure other fish and that they are not food fish. The board admits that there are species of fish that are of superior quality and of finer eating, but to the many people who cannot obtain, bass, salmon, trout, shad, mackerel, etc., the carp are a boon. The consumption of carp in the eastern sea towns tons of Illinois carp are going East every month—is surprisingly large.

It has been declared that the "planked white fish" that appears so often on New York City menu cards is nothing but carp so delicately cooked by expert chefs as to make the deception impossible to detect. Illinois is the great carp state of the Union, and great as is the commercial value of the fish, this is insignificant compared with its importance as a food for other fish. Young and adult bass feed upon carp and like it. Farmers with private fish ponds are finding carp the greatest fish they can raise for home consumption.

"Considered from a financial point of view," says the commission, "there is no fish like the carp, and there are no better carp waters in the world than those of Illinois. The output is simply enormous and ever increasing."

There is a steady market for all the carp caught. After calling attention to the protective laws the need of more protection in the way of legislation, warden service, the desire to have seining discontinued altogether, the value of pond fish and the great demand for stocking lakes, ponds and rivers, the commission makes its lengthy and convincing defense of the much maligned and abused carp. The demand for black bass for stocking purposes is unparalleled, yet they cannot be considered a profitable or successful fish for the purpose of culture for many obvious reasons, their voracity and destructive proclivities being the most important.

Bass, however, are said to be more plentiful than ever, and they will continue to increase as long as so much food is furnished to them by the increase in the softer-rayed fish. They are destructive and voracious feeders, and unless plenty of other food abounds will destroy each other. It is certain that everything produced in a pond which they can eat will be eaten by black bass.

THROUGH THE STATE

NEWS GATHERED FROM VARIOUS INDIANA POINTS.

TAYLOR MEN ARE NAMED

Marion Delegates to Republican State Convention Pledged to Seventh District Candidate—No Contest to Be Filed.

Indianapolis.—Delegates who were elected to the Republican state convention in Marion county are pledged to cast their votes for William L. Taylor for governor as long as he is in the race. Mr. Taylor's managers declared that there would be no second choice. "Our delegates," said O. P. Enslay, "will be for Mr. Taylor from start to finish. Such a thing as another candidate taking the Taylor votes has never been considered. We are fully convinced that Taylor will be nominated." In the primaries a big vote was polled. It had been understood for several days that only Taylor delegates would be selected. None of the other candidates for governor attempted to interfere in the primaries. In some of the wards there were several hot contests. In the Fourth, Fifth and Seventh wards more than 700 votes were cast. The rivalry for places on the delegation was between men who wanted to go to the state convention. Each candidate for election as a delegate was willing to pledge himself to vote for Mr. Taylor. The contest committee appointed by County Chairman Ruckelshaus waited for two hours at the criminal court room. No contests were filed. Disagreements in the Fourth ward were adjusted peacefully and County Chairman Ruckelshaus announced that no contests would be filed.

A REMARKABLE MAN.

Active and Bright, Though Almost a Centenarian.

Shepard Kollock, of 44 Wallace St., Red Bank, N. J., is a remarkable man at the age of 95. For 40 years he was a victim of kidney troubles and doctors said he would never be cured. "I was trying everything," says Mr. Kollock, "but my back was lame and weak, and every exertion sent a sharp twinge through me. I had to get up several times each night and the kidney secretions contained a heavy sediment. Recently I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, with fine results. They have given me entire relief."

Could Lay Slate-Pencil in One—Hands in Dreadful State—Permanent Cure in Cuticura.

"I had eczema on my hands for about seven years and during that time I had used several so-called remedies, together with physicians' and druggists' prescriptions. The disease was so bad on my hands that I could lay a slate-pencil in one of the cracks and a rule placed across the hand would not touch the pencil. I kept using remedy after remedy, and while some gave partial relief, none relieved as much as did the first box of Cuticura Ointment. I made a purchase of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and my hands were perfectly cured after two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of Cuticura Soap were used. W. H. Transmitted Snake Bite.

An extraordinary case of snake poisoning is reported from a country hospital in Victoria, N. S. W. An old man was brought in in a comatose state and showing all the symptoms of having been bitten by a venomous snake. But on investigation it was found he had been bitten by a dog, which died almost immediately afterward from snake bite. Medical treatment was successful, and the man gradually recovered from the snake poison which the reptile had indirectly transmitted to him.

Worth a Trial.

Cyrus Townsend Brady, the author and clergyman, told at a dinner in Toledo a story about charity. "A millionaire," said Dr. Brady, "lay dying. He had lived a life of which, as he now looked back on it, he felt none too proud. To the minister at his bedside he muttered weakly: 'If I leave $100,000 or so to the church, will my salvation be assured?' The minister answered cautiously: 'I wouldn't like to be positive, but it's well worth trying.'"

HAPPY OLD AGE

Most Likely to Follow Proper Eating.

As old age advances, we require less food to replace waste, and food that will not overtax the digestive organs, while supplying true nourishment. Such an ideal food is found in Grape-Nuts, made of whole wheat and barley by long baking and action of diastase in the barley which changes the starch into sugar.

The phosphates also, placed under the bran-coat of the wheat, are included in Grape-Nuts, but left out of white flour. They are necessary to the building of brain and nerve cells.

"I have used Grape-Nuts," writes an Iowa man, "for 8 years and feel as good and am stronger than I was ten years ago. I am over 74 years old, and attend to my business every day."

"Among my customers I meet a man every day who is 92 years old and attributes his good health to the use of Grape-Nuts and Postum which he has used for the last 5 years. He mixes Grape-Nuts with Postum and says they go fine together."

"For many years before I began to eat Grape-Nuts, I could not say that I enjoyed life or knew what it was to be able to say 'I am well.' I suffered greatly with constipation, now my habits are as regular as ever in my life. Whenever I make extra effort I depend on Grape-Nuts food and it just fills the bill. I can think and write

DO YOU KNOW WHAT WHITE LEAD IS?

Its Chief Use and a Method of Detecting Good from Bad Explained.

White Lead is the standard paint material all over the world. It is made by corroding metallic lead into a white powder, through exposing it to the fumes of weak acetic acid and carbonic acid gas; this powder is then ground and mixed with linseed oil, making a thick paste, in which form it is packed and sold for painting purposes. The painter thins it down to the proper consistency for application by the addition of more linseed oil.

The above refers, of course, to pure, genuine White Lead only. Adulterated and fake "White Lead," of which there are many brands on the market, is generally some sort of composition containing only a percentage of white lead; sometimes no White Lead at all; in such stuff, barytes or ground rock, chalk, and similar cheap substances are used to make bulk and imitate the appearance of pure White Lead.

There is, however, a positive test by which the purity or impurity of White Lead may be proved or exposed, before painting with it.

The blow-pipe flame will reduce pure white lead to metallic lead. If a supposed white lead be thus tested and it only partially reduces to lead, leaving a residue, it is proof that something else was there besides white lead.

The National Lead Company guarantee all White Lead sold in packages bearing its "Dutch Boy Painter" trademark to prove absolutely pure under this blow-pipe test, and that you may make the test yourself in your own home, they will send free upon request a blow-pipe and everything else necessary to make the test, together with a valuable booklet on paint. "Grizzly Pete" and Old "Stub-Foot"

AN EPISODE IN WOODS AND WATER EXPLOITS

By Ernest McGaffey
Author of Poems of Gun and Rod, Etc.

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowens)

In my brief stay in the little mining camp of Tall-holt, Friskiyou county, California, it was my fortune to make the acquaintance of Mr. Peter Walker, guide, prospector, hunter and raconteur. "Grizzly Pete," as he was called, told me several stories of his experiences, after I had won his confidence by a disposition to distribute, as regarded tobacco, and a willingness to imbibe, as regarded certain intoxicants. Mr. Walker's stories, some of them, seemed to me to be a trifle open to criticism, as far as veracity is concerned, so in selecting the tale of his adventure with "old Stub-Foot."

"And so," said "Grizzly Pete" to me one windy autumn day, "and so you'd like to hear about old 'Stub-Foot'?" I acquiesced.

"Got any chewin'?" inquired "Pete." I silently shunted him a plug of navy. Bliting off in the neighborhood of three and one-half inches of this, he said: "Well, I reckon there never was such a bear hunt before nor afterwards. This here feller that went out with me after 'Stub-Foot' had heard of this bear there back east, and he'd made up his mind for to kill him or git killed hisself. His name, the feller's, not the bear's, was De Pyster, rhymes with eyaster.

"Well, sir, he showed up here one afternoon in the Mariposa stage, and he gets off and asks for me. Some of the boys hunts me up, and we git to talkin' bear right away. And he tells me of I can git him where he can kill old 'Stub-Foot,' and prove beyond any doubt that he was the feller that done it, he will pay me $2,500 in gold.

"So the next day I takes my outfit over to De Pyster, and I says, 'Here's my lawyer, and here's my shorthand reporter, and here's my photograph feller, and here's three burros to pack the camp outfit and grub. When'll you be ready?' And this here feller he sort o' takes a reel long breath, and he says, 'All these fer a bear hunt?' And I says, 'On the advice of my lawyer.' An' he says, 'You're the doctor, Mr. Walker, I'm here to obey orders.'

"So we gets out in the mountains and begins to climb. Old 'Stub-Foot' he lived up so high in the ranges that the miners there used to put the ore out on the mountains and let the spring avalanches take it down to the smelters in the valley; no railroad or pack train bein' able to git in to where they wuz; an' they got their provisions and stuff in by way of trained eagles, same as these here carrier pigeons is learned to carry mail.

"So one day we got to where old 'Stub-Foot' ranged, and I sort o' got his bearings. So De Pyster he practiced a little with his gun one mornin'. It was the most powerful shootin'-iron I ever seen, an' he was knockin' off the peaks from along the mountain ranges inside the first few miles till I stopped him from spillin' so much scenery. So he quit that an' begins to plow up a few new canyons with his steel-plated bullets for a change. It was a master powerful shootin' gun, that there rifle of his wuz. Well, that would lay up a blot of ink,' as my lawyer said, and we planted the carcass out where old 'Stub-Foot' would be sure to see it at daybreak.

"There was a few scrubby pines around, and when we got out at daybreak the next day De Pyster had his rifle, this here shorthand man had his note book, the picture man had his machine all fixed, and my lawyer had all sorts of affidavits ready, and a dyin' declaration for the bear to sign, purvidin De Pyster didn't blow his head off the first shot. I want to say right here that this here lawyer of mine was certainly the most thoughtful cuss I ever did see.

"Well, sir, we wasn't more'n 15 minutes hid in the pine scrub before here comes old 'Stub-Foot' growlin' like a thunderstorm, and he looked like he was perty nigh as big as an elephant. There wuzn't no doubt he was the one, and three of his claws on his left fore-foot was gone, 'count of his gittin' ketched in a trap once. So the minute we sees him, the lawyer, the shorthand man and me we climbs trees, the lawyer gittin' the best trees and climbin' higher up than any of us. The picture man of course he had to stay on the ground to git the pictures of the scrimmage, and De Pyster had to be there to do the shootin'. So the picture man, as was a dead-game proposition as ever I see, he's all ready and peekin' out from his curtain, and he gits one picture as old 'Stub-Foot' takes a bite out of the bull elk's carcass. Then this here De Pyster ups an' blazes away, and for some reason he only wounds old 'Stub-Foot,' who immeljly drops the elk and comes lopin' over to'rds De Pyster, almin' to finish his breakfast on him. The picture man gits another good picture of 'Stub-Foot,' an' then goes up the lawyer's tree, and just then De Pyster shoots again, and drops old 'Stub-Foot' with a bullet through the fore-quarters that busts both shoulders and lays the old feller out as helpless as a sick kitten. Then he soaks him with another bullet through the body, and jst then my lawyer hollers, 'hold on, you've done fer him,' and then we all slides down our trees and the picture feller takes a few more pictures while we looks at the bear.

"For a little while we thinks he's stone-dead, but bime-by he rouses a little, and my lawyer he jerks a paper out of his pocket and a fountain pen, and he says, 'he'll jst be able to sign the dyin' declaration,' he says, and so he sticks the fountain pen in the bear's right paw, my lawyer reads the declaration to him, and with me helpin', old 'Stub-Foot' signs this here paper with his mark, and then finally tumbles over, havin' passed in his checks right proper.

"Immejly De Pyster an' me we skins the bear, the picture man goes back to camp and develops—that's what he called it—them pictures; my lawyer he writes out the affidavits and fixes up the dyin' declaration all right, and the shorthand man writes out and hammers out on a typewritin' machine a full account of the fight. This dyin' declaration told how this here 'Old Stub-Foot,' a monster grizzly bear of Friskiyou county, California, feelin' the near approach of death, and havin' no hope of recovery, identified De Pyster as the feller that killed him, and so forth.' Reglar legal, my lawyer said, and provin' certain that De Pyster was the cause of old 'Stub-Foot's' death. And we all signed it as witnesses to 'old Stub-Foot's' mark."

"Well, sir, I got my money and paid my lawyer. And when De Pyster took the stage he had 'old Stub-Foot's' pelt, the pictures of the affair, the shorthand man's account of the fight, all our affidavits, and 'Old Stub-Foot's' dyin' declaration that De Pyster shot him. It was the most convinclin' array of evidence ever furnished, so my lawyer said. De Pyster shook hands with me and he sez: 'Mr. Walker, you're simply a genius.' And he sent me from New York this here watch as a remembrance. Cost a dollar an' keeps as good time as a hundred-dollar one. And I'm wearin' one of old 'Stub-Foot's' nussin' claws on it fer a watch-charm."

HOW TO WASH SILK HOSE.

A Few Hints for Careful Girls Who Want to Save Them.

Careful girls don't waste their substance on silk stockings, and then send them to the laundry to be reduced to ravelings. Besides, it's a pleasure to wash the daintier, pale-tinted ones.

The very latest way, which girls who have cared for their own silk hose all winter say is best, is to wash them first in white soap and lukewarm water. Then they are soiled in a cloth previously wrung out in hot water and left there to steam for an hour. At the end of this time they are turned inside out and hung out to dry, and when nearly dry rubbed between the palms of the hands to make them soft and pliable, as well as to give the foot the correct shape. Ironing is a great mistake, as the iron not only rots the silk, but causes an unsightly ridge down the center of the leg.

Another way, when the stockings are badly stained, is to soak them first in warm water, to which a little borax has been added, and then wash them quickly in tepid soapsuds, after which they should be squeezed between the fingers to rid them of the soapsuds, and finally rinsed in soft water and hung out to dry without being wrung. In the case of white hose, most girls add bluing to the water.

Lace hose should first be soaked in water in which salt or a lump of alum the size of a walnut has been dissolved, and then plunged into a mixture of a wineglass of vinegar stirred into a soapy lather, pressing them well between the fingers until they are clean. Before washing black or bronze silk stockings it is a good plan to soak them for an hour in water to which a little black pepper has been added.

BODICE FOR AFTERNOON DRESS

This is a pretty bodice for a dress of velvet. It has a fitting lining, which fastens down the center front; upon it is arranged a full yoke and vest of soft silk trimmed with insertion, then the velvet is put on plain under a narrow silk galloon. The sleeves are of the silk, the lower part being rucked and tight-fitting. Epaulettes of the velvet edged with galloon ornament the top of sleeve.

Materials required: 2 1/2 yards velvet, three yards silk and two yards lining.

Outline Tucks.

Some of the broad tucks in the new linen tailored blouses are sewn in with the outline stitch in mercerized cotton. This is merely the back stitch used on the right side of the material, and in contrast of shades it presents many possibilities. Many women wisely prefer mercerized cotton for the purpose because it washes so much better than does the less twisted silk.

Soutache Braid.

Soutache braid is as popular as ever and whole bodies are made entirely of this material. It is very attractive when combined with filmy lace or

NEW TALE OF DUAL LIFE OF ROCKEFELLER PERE.

Chicagoan, with Dr. William Levingston for Twelve Years, Says Man Admitted He Was Parent of Famous John D.

New York.—Many additional facts about the dual life led by Dr. William Avery Rockefeller, father of John D. Rockefeller, are supplied by Dr. Charles H. Johnston, his assistant and business partner for 12 years. In those years Dr. Rockefeller went under the name of Dr. William Levingston, but to his partner, Dr. Johnston, so the latter declares, he revealed the secret of his life—that he was Rockefeller and that John D. Rockefeller was his son.

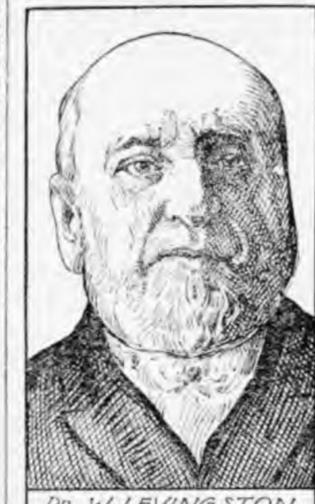

Dr. Johnston is president of the College of Medicine and Surgery in Chicago. He explains:

"It was in 1874 that I paid him $1,000 and became his student and assistant. He was living then in Freeport, Ill., as Dr. William Levingston, and he never posed under any other name thereafter. His wife, Mrs. Margaret Allen Levingston, living yet in Freeport, was one of the sweetest women I ever knew. I did not know until years afterward that he had two wives, one the mother of John D. Rockefeller. She lives in Cleveland, O.

"Dr. Levingston and I traveled over all the west, through Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas. It is not true that he sold medicines in the street. He had a fine team of horses, the best that money could buy, and a fine carriage in which we drove from town to town. He would have a string of eight or ten towns at once. He would drive into a town, scatter handbills, in which the great Dr. Levingston asserted that he could cure all diseases, and we would have a suite of rooms at the best hotel, and to the doctor there would come the sick and the halt and the lame. In all cases of common ailments he could detect the cause almost at a glance.

"He made a great deal of money. He often took in $200 in a day, and if he took only $100 he thought it a poor day's business.

"I knew from the first that there was some deep mystery in his life, but it was several years before I suspected that he was Rockefeller, and it was several years more before he acknowledged to me that his name was

Dr. W. LEVINGSTON

William A. Rockefeller and that John D. Rockefeller was his son.

"In all the years I was with him the old man went twice a year to Cleveland and stayed a week or two. He told me he went there to look after his money invested with John D. Rockefeller, and he would tell me wonderful stories of John D.'s shrewdness and great wealth.

Dr. Johnston showed several letters, postmarked Cleveland, O., and signed William Levingston, M. D.

"I first learned positively that Dr. Levingston was Dr. Rockefeller when he was injured on a ranch in North Dakota and thought he was going to die. He and I went to North Dakota together in 1881, and took up adjoining homestead claims where the town of Park River is. We were building a shed for a cattle shelter and in lifting a heavy log he strained himself. He was an old man then, and he thought he had ruptured an intestine. The pain was great and he thought he was dying. I asked him if I should send for his wife, Mrs. Levingston, if he should die, and he said: 'No; notify John D. Rockefeller, but be very careful and let no one else know it.'

"When he got well I told him I knew he was John D. Rockefeller's father. At first he denied it and then he said it was true. He told me that the reason he kept it secret was that he found it necessary in his younger days to assume a name because he was practicing medicine without license. He might be arrested any time and he did not wish to disgrace the name of Rockefeller because of his children. He stuck to the name later, he said, because it was then too late honorably to take his right name."

Regina, Sask., 23rd Nov., 1907.
Commissioner of Immigration, Winnipeg.

Dear Sir:

It is with pleasure that I reply to your request. Some years ago I took up a homestead for myself and also one for my son. The half section which we own is situated between Ronfau and Drinkwater, adjoining the Moose Jaw creek, is a low level and heavy land. We put in 70 acres of wheat in stubble, which went 20 bushels to the acre, and 30 acres of summer fallow, which went 25 bushels to the acre. All the wheat we harvested this year is No. 1 hard. That means the best wheat that can be raised on the earth. We did not sell any wheat yet as we intend to keep one part for our own seed, and sell the other part to people who want first-class seed, for there is no doubt if you sow good wheat you will harvest good wheat. We also threshed 9,000 bushels of first-class oats out of 160 acres. 80 acres has been fall plowing which yielded 90 bushels per acre, and 80 acres stubble, which went 30 bushels to the acre. These oats are the best kind that can be raised. We have shipped three car loads of them, and got 53 cents per bushel clear. All our grain was cut in the last week of the month of August before any frost could touch it.

Notwithstanding the fact that we have had a late spring, and that the weather conditions this year were very adverse and unfavorable, we will make more money out of our crop this year than last.

For myself I feel compelled to say that Western Canada crops cannot be checked, even by unusual conditions. I am, dear sir,

Yours truly,
(Signed) A. Kaltenbrunner.

Strenuous Method of Saving Life.

Two officers who were hunting wolves on the Dry mountain in central Servia lost their way in a fog. After wandering for 14 hours one of them lay down in the snow and speedily became unconscious. His comrade bound him with cords, placed him in a sitting position and then rolled him down the mountain. He glided down the slope at terrific speed and reached the bottom safely, being found an hour later in an exhausted condition by a peasant. He is now in the hospital being treated for the lacerations he received in bumping over the rocks during his descent. His companion is unhurt.

"I suppose your husband is proud to contribute his share toward the support of our beautiful library?"

"Yes," answered the woman with the slightly acid expression; "only John was none too industrious in the first place and now he's tempted to put in most of his time reading novels and trying to get his money's worth."

CHANGE OF VENUE.

Elkhart Remonstrance Case Comes to Marshall County.

The Elkhart saloonists from the third ward, Frank W. Wickwire and William Harper, who were refused a license before the county commissioners at Elkhart, later refused a license in an appeal to the superior court of Elkhart. Tuesday won out in the superior court at South Bend before Special Judge D. D. Bates.

Judge Bates rendered his decision Tuesday morning. He sustained the contention of Attorney James H. State of Elkhart and Attorney Graham of South Bend, for the liquor men, that the remonstrance was invalid, because the vital number of the names had been affixed to the remonstrance at an hour later than midnight of the Thursday prior to the meeting of the board of commissioners of Elkhart county. He held that although the remonstrance did not have to be filed before midnight of the Friday before the meeting of the commissioners, the signatures should have been affixed before midnight Thursday.

The remonstrance was filed at nine o'clock on the evening of August 2, and if it had held good, the liquor men would have been ruled out until 1909. At the time it was filed, it contained a list of 295 names, a majority of 31.

Change of venue will be taken by the civic league, which upholds the remonstrance, to Marshall county.

Haschel's Colts of Monterey were defeated at the assembly grounds last Saturday by the Culver team by a score of 10 to 6. It looked as if it was going to be easy for the home boys when they netted five scores in the first inning. The Monterey boys evened it up by making four in the eighth inning. Following are the positions played by Culver: Cromley E., catcher; Medbourn, pitcher; Bush E., first base; Rollins, second base; McLane C., third base; Sanders, short stop; Butler, left field; Stahl, center field; Houghton, right field.

The Culver town boys defeated the Burr Oak nine Sunday afternoon by a score of 11 to 2. The boys are not organized yet, but as soon as they are, and practice a little, they will have a strong and probably a winning team.

ORATORICAL.

Plymouth School Wins, But Culver Makes a Good Showing.

The second annual oratorical contest of the Marshall county high schools occurred at Plymouth Friday night. The first honors were awarded to Miles Price of Plymouth, the second to Gladys Pickert of Argos and the third to Emory Miller of Lapaz. The judges were Pres. Brown of Valparaiso, Supt. Early of Warsaw and Co. Supt. Rodgers of Starke county. Vera Baker of Culver spoke on "Lake Maxinkuckee." All the contestants handled their subjects skillfully and brought forth bursts of applause from the members of the schools which they represented. Flags, hats and banners bearing emblems of the various schools waved continually and school yells rent the air.

The representatives from the Culver and Bremen schools made excellent showings and their themes showed considerable thought, but they were unable to win a place.—Independent.

That languid, lifeless feeling that comes with spring and early summer can be quickly changed to a feeling of buoyancy and energy by the judicious use of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The Restorative is a genuine tonic to tired run-down nerves, and a few doses is needed to satisfy the user that Dr. Shoop's Restorative is actually reaching that tired spot. The indoor life of winter nearly always leads to sluggish bowels, and to sluggish circulation in general. The customary lack of exercise and outdoor air ties up the liver, stagnates the kidneys, and oftentimes weakens the heart's action. Use Dr. Shoop's Restorative a few weeks, and all will be changed. Weak Women. To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the local. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all organs, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

Slaves of the Lamp.

An up to date Acetylene Lighting Plant can now be completely installed in the average country home—ready to light up,—in two days' time, without injury to ceilings, floors or walls.
And when once installed it will give you the same amount of light as you now use for one-third less than regular lamps will give with Kerosene at 12 cents per gallon.
No more lamp-cleaning, filling, chimney-wiping, wick-trimming, breakages, soot nor smell of Kerosene.
Instead, brilliant Acetylene Light from permanent handsome polished brass brackets on the walls and neat brass chandeliers from the ceilings, city-like, elegant, up-to-date and out of the way.
Can't tip over (like Kerosene Lamps) where there are children—and does not need mantles, wicks nor chimneys.
Acetylene Light is so pure, so free from soot and color-fog that you can distinguish pale blue, pale pink or pale yellow under its rays as clearly at night, as you could in broad daylight.
Once a month the hired man must clean out and refill the generator in the basement. Takes him about 30 minutes per month to do this.
"The cost of all this?" you ask. So small comparatively, that the plant soon pays for itself through what you save on labor, chimneys and the difference between the cost of Carbide and the Kerosene you are now using.
Shall I give you more precise figures about this "Rural Gaslight"—called Acetylene?
Then write me to-day how many rooms you've got in house, hotel, or how large a store to light so I can answer intelligently and to the point.
Address me as follows—Acetylene

HICKORY BUSH HAPPENINGS

An unusual number of severe cases of vernal febris are already reported in our neighborhood.
There has been considerable movement in real estate the past few days, caused by the dry March winds.
Connt Spaghetti, our barber, is administering bi-weekly treatments to Willie Peters, who is endeavoring to cultivate a hair lip.
Farmers who are in a position to know say that the late date on which Easter falls this year will probably have a disastrous effect on the elderberry crop.
Mrs. Mullet has had Zeb's seer-sucker suit out on the line for an airing several times the past week. Old residents declare this to be an infallible sign of spring.
Miss Porcelina Peddycoord was greatly embarrassed at the young people's supper Wednesday night when, upon abruptly entering the dining room, she discovered the salad dressing.
Bill Moffat has sold his mule and expects to embark in the mercantile business this spring. He will open up a stand for the sale of shoestrings and crackerjack and may possibly add a side line of collar buttons.
The announcement that Buster's Emporium would give away a bottle of Peruna with each pair of gum boots sold on Saturday was sufficient to clear out their entire line. Two weeks previous they offered a copy of the new testament with each pair, but did not make a sale.
Some of our envious citizens who are unable to appreciate the beautiful, and who doubtless feel sore over their failure to win the barrel of kraut, are making sarcastic remarks about the lovely names selected for the Bassett twins. We accidently overheard one saying that the twins would probably be called "Dry Goods" and "Groceries" for short.
Mrs. Hypatia Geraldine Bassett was able to be present for a few minutes at the meeting of the Aid society Tuesday, the first time in several months. Doc Dope was called to the Bassett home and assisted Jim and the nurse and the cook, Miss Bridget Mulligatawney, and Miss Belladonna and Perry Gorick in taking care of the twins during her absence.
Hickory Bush Creche of the Anti-Race Suicide society was successfully instituted Monday night. Zeb Mullet was elected president and Jim Bassett vice-president by unanimous vote. Several applications for membership from young married couples have already been received, but will not be acted upon until the members are satisfied that the applicants are entitled to admission.
Cale Hudespeh bought several volumes of poetry and a novel from a transient book agent last week. The Hudespeh library is the pride of our town, and has been accumulated through a feeling of gratitude to the book-selling fraternity, as Cale's mother-in-law, who made her home with him, eloped several years ago with a book agent. Cale has never since refused to recognize the service, and invariably gives the book man a large order.

REMARKABLE RECORD MADE IN NORTHWEST

Young Man with New Theory Is Astonishingly Successful in Minneapolis.
The remarkable success that has attended L. T. Cooper during the past year has not been confined to any one locality, but is so widespread that the young man is now a well-known figure in most of the leading cities of the country.
Mr. Cooper believes that the stomach is the foundation for most ill health, and claims that his preparation, by regulating the stomach, is a true specific for most diseases. The following extract from the Tribune of Minneapolis gives an idea of the surprising number of people who are accepting Cooper's theory. The article was one of many that appeared during Cooper's stay in Minneapolis, and is as follows:
"The sale of Cooper's preparation is now phenomenal in this city, and an estimate made today seems to indicate beyond all doubt that it will equal the large figures reported from Pittsburg during the thirty days Mr. Cooper spent in that city.
"During the past twenty-two days Mr. Cooper has been in Minneapolis, the sale of his preparation has averaged about two thousand bottles a day. When the amount of medicine disposed of throughout the state is added to this, the amount will be doubled. Therefore, the young man has sold in twenty-two days eighty-eight thousand bottles of his medicine in the state of Minnesota alone, which is a truly remarkable record.
"During the past week so many hundreds of Minneapolis people have been calling to thank Cooper for the good he has accomplished with his medicine, that it is safe to say that his visit will long be remembered by the sick of the city."
We sell the famous Cooper preparation which has made a similar record to the above wherever introduced.—Culver City Drug Store.

"Last winter I caught a very severe cold which lingered for weeks," says J. Urquhart, of Zephyr, Ontario. "My cough was very dry and harsh. The local dealer recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and guaranteed it, so I gave it a trial. One small bottle of it cured me. I believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be the best I have ever used."

BY CHARLES CLARK MUNN

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD CO.

SYNOPSIS.

Chip McGuire, a 16-year-old girl living at Tim's place in the Maine woods, sold by her father, the Bolduc, a half-breed. She runs away and reaches the camp of Martin Frisbie, occupied by Martin, his wife, nephew, Raymond Stetson, and guide. She tells her story and is cared for by Mrs. Frisbie. Journey of Frisbie's party into woods to visit father of Mrs. Frisbie, an old hermit, who has resided in the wilderness for many years. When camp is broken Chip and Ray occupy same canoe. The party reach camp of Mrs. Frisbie's father and are welcomed by him and Cy Walker, an old friend and former teacher of the hermit. They settle down for summer's stay. Chip and Ray are in love, but no one realizes this but Cy Walker. Strange canoe marks found on lake shore in front of their cabin. Strange noise is seen across the lake. Martin and Levi leave for settlement to get officers to arrest McGuire, who is known as outlaw and escaped murderer. Chip's one woods friend, Tomah, an Indian, visits camp. Ray believes he sees a bear on the ridge. Chip is stolen by Pete Bolduc who escapes with her in a canoe. Chip is rescued by Martin and Levi as they are returning from the settlement. Bolduc escapes. Old Cy proposes to Ray that he remain in the woods with himself and Aunt and trap during the winter and he concludes to do so. Others of the party return to Greenville, taking Chip with them. Chip starts to school in Greenville, and finds life unpleasant at Aunt Comfort's, made so especially by Hannah. Old Cy and Ray discover strange tracks in the wilderness. They penetrate further into the wilderness and discover the hiding place of the man who had been sneaking about their cabin. They investigate the cave home of McGuire during his absence. Bolduc finds McGuire and the two fight to the death, finding a watery grave together. Ray returns to Greenville and finds Chip waiting for him. Ray wants Chip to return to the woods with him, but she declines the old comradship with Ray has been broken. When they part, however, it is as lovers. Chip runs away from Aunt Comfort's and finds a home with Judson Walker. She gives her name as Vera Raymond. Aunt Abby, Aunt Mandy Walker's sister, visits them, and takes Chip home with her to Christmas Cove. Chip goes to school at Christmas Cove. She tells Aunt Abby the story of her life. Aunt Abby tells her of her family, and she discovers that Cy Walker is a long-lost brother of Judson Walker, but fear of betraying her hiding place prevents her telling of Cy. Old Cy investigates McGuire's cave in the wilderness and finds a long letter that belongs to Chip. Old Cy returns to the wilderness camp with the news that Chip had disappeared and proposes to start out to find her. He turns over to Martin a book which contains a description of her in Chip's name. Chip returns to the home of Judson Walker at Peaceful Valley for a summer vacation.

Martin had expected this news to overpowering, and a "Good God!" from Uncle Jud, and a gasping "Land sakes!" from Aunt Mandy proved that it was.

Chip's face, however, was a study. First she grew pale, then flashed a scared glance from one to another of the three who watched her, and then almost did her shame and hatred of this vile parent find expression.

"I'm glad he—no, I won't say so, for he was my father," she exclaimed; "but I want Old Cy to have some of the money, and Uncle Jud here, and you folks, all. I was a pauper long enough," and then, true to her instinct of how to escape from trouble, she ran out of the room.

"She's a curls gal," asserted Uncle Jud, looking after her as if feeling that she needed explanation, "the most curls gal I ever saw. But we can't let her go, money or no money, Mr. Frisbie. I found her one night upon top o' Rangall hill. She was so starved an' beat out from trampin' she couldn't hardly crawl up on to the wagon, 'n' yet she said she wouldn't be helped 'thout she could earn it. I think she's like folks we read about, who starve ruther'n beg. But she kin have all we've got some day, an' we jest can't let her go."

And Martin, realizing its futility, made no further protest.

Something of chagrin also came to him, for broad-minded as he was, he realized how partial neglect, the narrow religious prejudice of Greenville, and unwise notice of her childish ideas about spites and Old Tomah's superstitions had all conspired to drive her away. She was honest and self-respecting, "true blue," as Old Cy had said, grateful as a fawning dog for all that had been done for her, and in spite of her origin, a circumstance that carried no weight with Martin, she was one, he believed, who would develop into splendid womanhood. That she was well on her way toward that goal, her improved speech and devotion to these new friends gave ample evidence.

And now Ray's position in this complex situation occurred to Martin; for this young man's interest in Chip and almost heart-broken grief over her disappearance had long since betrayed his attachment.

"I suppose you may have guessed that there was a love affair mixed up with this episode," he said to the two somewhat dazed people.

"I called that was, that first night," Uncle Jud responded, his eyes twinkling again, "an' told Mandy so. 'Twas that morn' anything else kept us from quizzin' the gal. I knowed by her face she had heart trouble, 'n' I've seen the cause on't."

"You leave," exclaimed Martin, astonished in turn. "For heaven's sake, where?"

"Oh, down to the Corners, 'most a year ago, 'n' a likely boy he was, too."

"And never told her?"

"No, why should I, thinkin' she'd run away from him. We didn't want to uple her plans. We found out, though, her name was McGuire, but never let on till she told us a spell ago." And then Uncle Jud told the story of Ray's arrival in Riggsville in search of Chip.

"That fellow is my nephew, Raymond Stetson," rejoined Martin with pride, "he also is an orphan, and I have adopted him. Chip has no cause to be ashamed of his attachment."

"I don't callate she is," replied Uncle Jud. "Tain't that that jinerally makes a gal kick over the traces. Mebbe 'twas suthin some o' you folks said." And then a new light came to Martin.

"Mr. Walker," he answered impressively; "in every village there is always a meddlesome old maid who invariably says things she'd better not, and ours is no exception. In this case it was a dependent of our family who took a dislike to Chip, it seems, and her escape was its outcome."

"Wal, ye've got to hev charity for 'em," replied Uncle Jud, with a broad smile. "Never havin' suffered the joys 'n' sorrows o' love, they look at it sorter criss-cross, an' madder this 'un did. Old maids are a good deal like cider—nat'rally turn to vinegar. What wimmin need more'n all the rest is be-'n' loved, 'n' if they don't get it, they sour up in time an' ain't no comfort to themselves nor nobody else. Then ag'in, 'n' havin' no man nor no babies to look arter, they take to coddlin' cats 'n' dogs 'n' parrots, which ain't nat'ral."

"I think," continued Uncle Jud, "now that we've turned another furrow, you'd best stop a day or two with us, 'n' sorter git 'quainted. We'll be mighty glad to hev ye, me an' Mandy, an' then ag'in that's a lot o' good trout holes up in time an' ain't no comfort to ourselves nor nobody else. Then ag'in, 'n' havin' no man nor no babies to look arter, they take to coddlin' cats 'n' dogs 'n' parrots, which ain't nat'ral."

Aunt Mandy and Chip now bestirred themselves as never before. The dressmaker was left to her own resources, Martin and Uncle Jud rigged fishpots and started for the brook. Chip, with pail in hand, hurried away to the fields, and when tea-time arrived, the big platter of crisp fried trout, saucers filled with luscious blackberries, and ample shortcake of the same with cream that poured in cloths, assured Martin that these people did indeed have plenty to eat.

"How did this come to be named Peaceful Valley?" he queried, when they had gathered around the table. "It's very appropriate."

"Wal," answered Uncle Jud, "we got it from a feller that come up here paintin' pictures one summer, an' chucklin'." "Twas all we got for a month's board, at that. He was a short o' skippy critter, with long hair, kinder pale, and chewed tobacco stiddy. He 'lowed his name was Grahame, that he was in the show business 'n' gittin' backgrounds, as he called 'em, fer show pictures. He roved up 'n' down the brook, puttin' rocks 'n' trees 'n' waterfalls on paper, afus gittin' round reglar 'bout meal time—'most 'n' gained 20 pounds while here. An' then one mornin' he was missin', 'n' so was Aunt Mandy's gold thimble 'n' all her silver spoons. She'd sorter took to him, too, he was that palaver-'n' in his way."

There now opened a series of questions from Uncle Jud in regard to Old Cy—how long Martin had known him, and all that pertained to his history.

It was gladly recited by Martin, together with all the strange happenings in the wilderness, the finding of Chip, the half-breed's pursuit and abduction of her, and much else that has been told. It was almost midnight ere Martin was shown to the best front chamber, and even then he lay awake an hour, listening to the steady prattle of a nearby brook and thinking of all that had happened.

A tone of regret crept into his voice, however, when, after thanking Uncle Jud and Aunt Mandy, and bidding them good-by, he addressed Chip.

"I wish I could take you back with me," he said; "your return would be such a blessing to Aunt Comfort and my wife. You may not believe it, but you are dear to them both. I must insist that you at least pay us a visit soon. Here is your bank book," he added, presenting it. "You are rich now, or at least need never want, for which we are all grateful. And what about Ray?" he added, pausing to watch her. "What shall I say to him? Shall I tell him to come and see you?"

Chip shook her head firmly. "No, no," she answered, "please don't do that. Some day I may feel different, but not now."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Sad news arrived in Peaceful Valley a week later, for Captain Bemis had passed on, Aunt Abby was in lonely sorrow, and wrote for Chip to come at once.

Her fate was now linked with these people. Aunt Abby had been kind and helpful, and Chip, more than glad to return a little of the obligation, hurried to Christmas Cove.

It was a solemn and silent house she now entered. Aunt Abby, despite the fact that it was not a love match, mourned her departed companion. The mill's pertinent silence added gloom, and Chip's smiling face and affectionate interest was more than welcome to Aunt Abby.

And now that concealment was no longer needed, Chip hastened to tell her story in full.

How utterly Aunt Abby was astonished, how breathlessly she listened to Chip's recital, and how, when the climax came and Chip assured her that good Old Cy Walker was still alive, Aunt Abby collapsed entirely, sobbing and thanking God all at once, is but a sidelight on this tale.

"I couldn't tell you before," Chip assured her, while her own tears still her pathway, as Christian teaching and no home example, only the labor and God-given impulse of purity, self-respect and gratitude; and yet, like a bud forcing its way up out of a muck heap and into the sunshine, so Chip emerged to win respect and love.

But all her history is not told yet. She still lacked even a common education. There was still an old man seeking to find her, who was yet wandering afar. A homeless, almost friendless old man was he, whose life had gone amiss, and whose sole ambition was to do for her and find content in her happiness. A wanderer and recluse for many years, he was still more so now, and out of place as well among the busy haunts of men. More than that, he was an object of curiosity to all grown people and the jest of the young, as he tramped up and down the land in search of Chip.

And what a piffling quest it was—this asking the same question thousands of times, this lingering in towns to watch mill operatives file out, this peering into stores and markets, to go on again, and repeat it for months and months.

There was still another link in this chain—a boy, so far as experience goes, who was only deterred from unwise haste by a cool-headed man.

"You had better not go to Chip now," Martin said to him on his return from Peaceful Valley. "She is an odd child of nature, and you won't lose by waiting. My advice to you is to forget her for the present, find some profitable occupation, and then, when you have made a little advancement in life, go and woo her if you can. To try it now is foolish."

It was cold comfort for Ray.

One of Chip's first acts of emancipation was to write to Aunt Comfort and Angle, assuring both of her love and best wishes, and thanking them for all they had done. Both letters were crumpled in chirography, but correct in spelling, and in Angie's was a note for Martin, asking that he draw $100 of her money and send it to her, and as much more to pay some one to follow Old Cy. The latter request Martin ignored, however, for he had already set the machinery of newspaperdom at work, and an advertisement for information of that wanderer was flying far and wide.

Of the money sent her, Chip made odd and quite characteristic uses, only one of which needs mention—the purchase of a banjo. Had Ray known this, and that the tender memory it invoked was the reason for this investment, he would have had less cause for grief. But Ray did not, which was all the better for him.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Life, always colorless at Christmas Cove, except in midsummer, now became changed for Aunt Abby. For all the years since her one girlish romance had ended, she had been a patient helpmate to a man she merely respected. Religion had been her chief solace. The annual visit to her sister's gave the only relief to this motionless life, monotonous as the tides sweeping in and out of the cove; but now a counter-current slowly flowed into it.

Chip, of course, with her winsome eyes and grateful ways, was its mainspring, and so cheerier had been her career and so humiliating all her past experiences, that now, escaped from dependence and feeling herself a valued companion, she tasted a new and joyous life. So true was this, that hard lessons at school, the regularity of church-going, and the unvarying tenor of it all seemed less by comparison.

Another undercurrent, aside from Chip's devotion, also swept into Aunt Abby's feelings—the strange emotions following the knowledge that her former lover was still alive. For many years she had waited and hoped for this sailor boy's return; then her heart had grown silent, as hope slowly ebbed, and then, almost forgetfulness—but not quite, however, for the long, lily-dotted mill-pond just above had now and then been visited by them. A certain curiously grown oak which was secluded near its upper end was once a trysting-place, and even the old mill with its splashing wheel held memories.

And now after 40 years, during which she had become gray-haired and slightly wrinkled, all these memories returned like ghosts of long ago. No word or hint of them fell from her lips, not even to Chip, who was now nearest to her; and yet had that girl been a mind-reader, she would have seen that Aunt Abby's persistent interest in all she had to tell about Old Cy meant something. Where he was now, how soon he would learn that his brother was still alive after all these years, was the one most pertinent subject oft discussed.

How Chip felt toward him, not alone for the heritage he had secured for her, but for other and more valued heart interests, need not be specified. He had seemed almost a father to her at the lake. He was the first of her new-found friends whose feelings had warmed toward her, and Chip was now mature enough to value these blessings at their true worth.

A certain mutual expectancy now entered the lives of Chip and Aunt Abby. Nothing could be done, however, Old Cy had gone out into the wide, wide world, as it were, searching for the little girl he loved. No manner of reaching him seemed possible; and yet, some day, he must learn what would bring him to them as fast as steam could fetch him.

"I know that he loved me as his own child there at the lake," Chip said once in an exultant tone. "His going after me proves it; and once he hears where I am, he will hurry here, I know."

GLAD TO HAVE HIM GO.

Toll-Gate Keeper Thought He Had Visit from His Satanic Majesty.

This is not the only age in which motor cars have created excitement and disturbance. In 1892 such apparitions were few and far between; at present they are too frequent to attract attention. Mr. Joseph Hatton, in "Old Lamps and New," tells of the fright caused by one of Trevithick's steam locomotives, made to run on unrailled roads in the early part of the last century.

Now and then one of these extraordinary vehicles would be encountered, snorting and puffing on the highway. The countrymen regarded them as the evil one in disguise.

One of the cars, coming to a toll-gate, stopped for the gate to be opened. The toll-man came hurrying out. He flung the gate open with trembling hands, and teeth which chattered audibly.

The driver asked him how much toll there was to pay.

"O, nothing, dear Mr. Satan, nothing!" hastily assured the man. "Go on as fast as you like; there's nothing to pay."—Youth's Companion.

Facing the Enemy.

Two veterans of the civil war were in the habit of "jollyng" each other in regard to a lack of valor on the field of battle.

"Why," said the one, "at the very first engagement, when the order was given to retreat, you were so scared that you threw down your arms and ran for dear life."

"Nonsense," replied the other. "That was the time I got the three flesh wounds in the chest. If I'd been running away, as you claim, I would have been shot in the back."

"Oh, no, you wouldn't," returned his friend. "The reason you got shot in the chest was because you took to the river and were trying to get away in a rowboat."

The past winter has been especially hard on cattle and horses. The scarcity and poor quality of the feed has left the horses in poor condition for spring work and the cows weakened at their most critical, the calving time. In many localities the farmers are using a tonic which they prepare themselves with good results. An 8 oz. box of Powdered Germas Compound is obtained at the drugist's and mixed with 8 oz. Powdered Willow Charcoal, 8 oz. Powdered Ginger, 1 lb. Common Salt, 5 lbs. Ground Oil Cake. Two tablespoons of the mixture is fed to each cow or horse with regular feed twice a day.

Answered Truthfully.

During the late financial flurry a St. Louis business man was called to serve on a jury. "What is your name?" asked the attorney. "John Smith," the business man replied. "Your color?" the attorney continued. "White," said John Smith. "Your age?" "Forty-eight," quoth Mr. Smith. "Your business?" "Rotten," said John Smith.

THE PRESIDENT GIVES OUTLINE OF LEGISLATION

In Special Message He Asks the Passage of Several Pending Bills.

WOULD AMEND TRUST LAWS

Believes Some Features of Present Statutes Are Obsolete and Need Revising.

Would Prevent Both Blacklist and Boycott—Sees Need of Tariff Revision Commission and Immediate Waterway Legislation.

Washington, Mar. 25.—The following is the full text of the president's message sent to congress Wednesday:

To the Senate and House of Representatives: I call your attention to certain measures as to which I think there should be action by the congress before the close of the present session. There is ample time for their consideration. As regards most if not all of the matters, bills have been introduced into one or the other of the two houses, and it is not too much to hope that action will be taken one way or the other on these bills at the present session. In my message at the opening of the present session, and, indeed, in various messages to previous congresses, I have repeatedly suggested action on most of these measures.

Child labor should be prohibited throughout the nation. At least a model child-labor bill should be passed for the District of Columbia. It is unfortunate that in the one place solely dependent upon congress for its legislation there should be no law whatever to protect children by forbidding or regulating their labor.

I renew my recommendation for the immediate re-enactment of an employers' liability law, drawn to conform to the recent decision of the supreme court. Within the limits indicated by the court, the law should be made thorough and comprehensive, and the protection it affords should embrace every class of employe to which the power of the congress can extend.

In addition to a liability law protecting the employes of common carriers, the government should show its good faith by enacting a further law giving compensation to its own employes for injury or death incurred in its service. It is a reproach to us as a nation that in both federal and state legislation we have afforded less protection to public and private employes than any other industrial country of the world.

Injunction Legislation.

I also urge that action be taken along the line of the recommendations I have already made concerning injunctions in labor disputes. No temporary restraining order should be issued by any court without notice; and the petition for a permanent injunction upon which such temporary restraining order has been issued should be heard by the court issuing the same within a reasonable time—say, not to exceed a week or thereabouts from the date when the order was issued. It is worth considering whether it would not give greater popular confidence in the impartiality of sentences for contempt if it was required that the issue should be decided by another judge than the one issuing the injunction, except where the contempt is committed in the presence of the court, or in other case of urgency.

Rate Law Amendments.

I again call attention to the urgent need of amending the interstate commerce law and especially the anti-trust law along the lines indicated in my last message. The interstate commerce law should be amended so as to give railroads the right to make traffic agreements, subject to these agreements being approved by the interstate commerce commission and published in all of their details. The commission should also be given the power to make public and to pass upon the issuance of all securities hereafter issued by railroads doing an interstate commerce business.

A law should be passed providing in effect that when a federal court determines to place a common carrier or other public utility concern under the control of a receivership, the attorney general should have the right to nominate at least one of the receivers; or else in some other way the interests of the stockholders should be consulted, so that the management may not be wholly re-delivered to the man or men the failure of whose policy may have necessitated the creation of the receivership. Receiverships should be used, not to operate roads, but as speedily as possible to pay their debts and return them to the proper owners.

Would Amend Anti-Trust Law.

In addition to the reasons I have already urged on your attention, it has now become important that there should be an amendment of the antitrust law, because of the uncertainty as to how this law affects combinations among labor men and farmers, if the combination has any tendency to restrict interstate commerce. All of these combinations, if and while existing for and engaged in the promotion of innocent and proper purposes, should be recognized as legal. As I have repeatedly pointed out, this anti-trust law was a most unwisely drawn statute. It was perhaps inevitable that in feeling after the right remedy the first attempts to provide such should be crude; and it was absolutely imperative that some legislation should be passed to control, in the interest of the public, the business use of the enormous aggregations of corporate wealth that are so marked a feature of the modern industrial world. But the present anti-trust law, in its construction and working, has exemplified only too well the kind of legislation which, under the guise of being thoroughgoing, is drawn up in such sweeping form as to become either ineffective or else mischievous.

In the modern industrial world combinations are absolutely necessary; they are necessary among business men, they are necessary among laboring men, they are becoming more and more necessary among farmers. Some of these combinations are among the most powerful of all instruments for wrongdoing. Others offer the only effective way of meeting actual business needs. It is mischievous and unwholesome to keep upon the statute books unmodified a law, like the anti-trust law, which, while in practice only partially effective against vicious combinations, has nevertheless in theory been construed so as sweepingly to prohibit every combination for the transaction of modern business. Some real good has resulted from this law. But the time has come when it is imperative to modify it. Such modification is urgently needed for the sake of the business men of the country, for the sake of the wageworkers and for the sake of the farmers. The congress can not afford to leave it on the statute books in its present shape.

Remedies Advised.

It has now become uncertain how far this law may involve all labor organizations and farmers' organizations, as well as all business organizations, in conflict with the law; or, if we secure literal compliance with the law, how far it may result in the destruction of the organization necessary for the transaction of modern business, as well as of labor organizations and farmers' organizations, completely check the wise movement for securing business cooperation among farmers, and put back half a century the progress of the movement for the betterment of labor. A bill has been presented in congress to remedy this situation. Some such measure as this bill is needed in the interest of all engaged in the industries which are essential to the country's well-being. I do not pretend to say the exact shape that the bill should take, and the suggestions I have to offer are tentative; and my views would apply equally to any other measure which would achieve the desired end. Bearing this in mind, I would suggest, merely tentatively, the following changes in the law:

The substantive part of the anti-trust law should remain as at present; that is, every contract in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states or with foreign nations should continue to be declared illegal; provided, however, that some proper governmental authority (such as the commissioner of corporations acting under the secretary of commerce and labor) be allowed to pass on any such contracts. Probably the best method of providing for this would be to enact that any contract subject to the prohibition contained in the anti-trust law, into which it is desired to enter, might be filed with the bureau of corporations or other appropriate executive body. This would provide publicity. Within, say, 60 days of the filing—which period could be extended by order of the department whenever for any reason it did not give the department sufficient time for a thorough examination—the executive department having power might forbid the contract, which would then become subject to the provisions of the anti-trust law, if at all in restraint of trade.

If no such prohibition was issued, the contract would then only be liable to attack on the ground that it constituted an unreasonable restraint of trade. Whenever the period of filing had passed without any such prohibition, the contracts or combinations could be disapproved or forbidden only after notice and hearing with a reasonable provision for summary review on appeal by the courts. Labor organizations, farmers' organizations, and other organizations not organized for purposes of profit, should be allowed to register under the law by giving the location of the head office, the charter and by-laws, and the names and addresses of their principal officers. In the interest of all these organizations—business, labor, and farmers' organizations alike—the present provision permitting the recovery of threefold damages should be abolished, and as a substitute therefor the right of recovery allowed for should be only the damages sustained by the plaintiff and the cost of suit, including a reasonable attorney's fee.

The law should not affect pending suits; a short statute of limitations should be provided, so far as the past is concerned, not to exceed a year. Moreover, and even more in the interest of labor than of business combinations, all such suits brought for causes of action heretofore occurred should be brought only if the contract or combination complained of was unfair or unreasonable. It may be well to remember that all of the suits heretofore brought by the government under the anti-trust law have been in cases where the combination or contract was in fact unfair, unreasonable, and against the public interest.

Labor Organizations.

It is important that we should encourage trade agreements between employer and employe where they are just and fair. A strike is a clumsy weapon for righting wrongs done to labor, and we should extend, so far as possible, the process of conciliation and arbitration for strikes. Moreover, violence, disorder and coercion, when committed in connection with strikes, should be as promptly and as sternly repressed as when committed in any other connection. But strikes themselves are, and should be, recognized to be entirely legal. Combinations of workmen have a peculiar reason for their existence. The very wealthy individual employe, and still more the very wealthy corporation, stand at an enormous advantage when compared to the individual workman; and while there are many cases where it may not be necessary for laborers to form a union, in many other cases it is indispensable, for otherwise the thousands of small units, the thousands of individual workmen, will be left helpless in their dealings with the big one unit, the big individual or corporate employe.

Twenty-two years ago, by the act of June 29, 1856, trades unions were recognized by law, and the right of laboring people to combine for all lawful purposes was formally recognized, this right including combinations for mutual protection and benefits, the regulation of wages, hours and conditions of labor, and the protection of the individual rights of the workmen in the prosecution of their trade or trades; and in the act of June 1, 1898, strikes were recognized as legal in the same provision that forbade participation in or instigation of force or violence against persons or property, or the attempt to prevent others from working, by violence, threat or intimidation. The business man must be protected in person and property, and so must the farmer and the wageworker; and as regards all alike, the right of peaceful combination for all lawful purposes should be explicitly recognized.

Objects to Boycott.

The right of employes to combine and contract with one another and with their employes should be explicitly recognized; and so should the right of the employe to combine and to contract with one another and with the employers, and to seek peaceably to persuade others to accept their views, and to strike for the purpose of peacefully obtaining from employers satisfactory terms for their labor. Nothing should be done to legalize either a blacklist or a boycott that would be illegal at common law, this being the type of boycott defined and condemned by the anthracite strike commission.

The question of financial legislation is now receiving such attention in both houses that we have a right to expect action before the close of the session. It is urgently necessary that there should be such action. Moreover, action should be taken to establish postal savings banks. These postal savings banks are imperatively needed for the benefit of the wageworkers and men of small means, and will be a valuable adjunct to our whole financial system.

Tariff Revision.

The time has come when we should prepare for a revision of the tariff. This should be, and indeed must be, preceded by careful investigation. It is peculiarly the province of the congress and not of the president, and indeed peculiarly the province of the house of representatives, to originate a tariff bill and to determine upon its terms; and this I fully realize. Yet it seems to me that before the close of this session provision should be made for collecting full material which will enable the congress elected next fall to act immediately after it comes into existence. This would necessitate some action by the congress at its present session, perhaps in the shape of directing the proper committee to gather the necessary information, both through the committee itself and through government agents who should report to the committee and should lay before it the facts which would permit it to act with prompt and intelligent fairness. These government agents, if it is not deemed wise to appoint individuals from outside the public service, might with advantage be members of the executive departments, designated by the president, on his own motion or on the request of the committee, to act with it.

I am of the opinion, however, that one change in the tariff could with advantage be made forthwith. Our forests need every protection, and one method of protecting them would be to put upon the free list wood pulp, with a corresponding reduction upon paper made from wood pulp, when they come from any country that does not put an export duty upon them.

Waterways Commission.

Ample provision should be made for a permanent waterways commission, with whatever power is required to make it effective. The reasonable expectation of the people will not be met unless the congress provides at this session for the beginning and prosecution of the actual work of waterway improvement and control. The congress should recognize in fullest fashion the fact that the subject of the conservation of our natural resources, with which this commission deals, is literally vital for the future of the nation.

LELAND IN FLAMES

FAMOUS HOSTELRY IN SPRINGFIELD, ILL., PARTLY BURNED.

LOSS IS ABOUT $75,000

Delegates to the Republican State Convention Make Frantic Efforts to Save Their Belongings.

Springfield, Ill.—The Leland hotel, one of the most widely known hotels in the country, and which has been the center of political gatherings for the last 30 years, was severely damaged by fire Thursday, entailing a loss on the proprietors, the Wiggins estate, of about $75,000.

The fire broke out while the Republican state convention was in session, three squares away, and when the delegates received word that the hotel was burning they leaped from their chairs, tore wildly for the doors and hastened to save their effects. No lives were lost, nor was any person injured.

The fire for a time threatened the building of the Springfield Journal, which is separated from the hotel by a narrow alley.

As soon as it was evident that the hotel was doomed the management sent all the available employes to the rooms of the guests in the effort to save as much as possible of their baggage. Some of it was lost, but, considering that the hotel was filled to its capacity and that the capacity was somewhat stretched by the number of delegates to the convention, it was surprising that so much property was saved. Some guests lost everything. But the greater part of the baggage was saved.

The delegates from the convention, when they came rushing up to the hotel, bent upon saving their belongings, were too much for the Springfield police department. They outnumbered it about twenty to one, and while an officer was trying to restrain one man from rushing into the hotel to save his property a dozen others would go tearing by and rush into the smoke-filled halls. Men repeatedly risked their lives to save their hand baggage and overcoats.

ROBBER'S HEAD BLOWN OFF.

Safe-Cracker Killed by Own Blast in Arkansas.

Gentry, Ark.—In a futile attempt to blow open the safe of the Farmers' bank at Springtown, near here, early Thursday, the head of one of the robbers was blown from his shoulders by a premature explosion of dynamite. The body of the dead robber was found in the bank near the safe.

Danville, Ill.—Two desperate men believed to be the same who attempted to loot the bank of Chrisman Wednesday, on Thursday morning held up and robbed the office of the Danville Water company at the point of revolvers, forcing Cashier Myers and a woman to stand while they looted the safe. They obtained ten dollars and overlooked a large amount in another compartment of the safe.

TRAVELING MEN KILL SELVES.

One Jumps Under Train, Another Uses Revolver.

Gallipolis, O.—James O'Neal, a traveling man of Philadelphia, Pa., became deranged at Bidwell, near here, Thursday, jumped under a Hocking Valley train and was instantly killed. The body was brought here. O'Neal had been drinking, and is believed to have squandered considerable money.

Pittsburg, Pa.—J. W. Smith of Cleveland, O., a traveling man, shot and killed himself at a hotel here Thursday. The cause of the act is unknown.

GEN. HORNE IS ACQUITTED.

Slayer of Kansas City Editor Committed to Asylum.

Kansas City, Mo.—Gen. R. C. Horna was acquitted of the charge of murdering H. J. Groves, managing editor of the Kansas City Post, by a jury in the criminal court here Thursday night. The verdict stated that Gen. Horna was insane when he shot Groves and has not fully recovered, and commits him to an asylum.

Earthquakes in Mexico City.

Mexico City.—Mexico City was visited by two severe earthquake shocks Thursday. The first shock occurred at 4:30 o'clock p. m., lasting four minutes and 28 seconds. No lives were lost, but numerous walls were cracked. A second and much more severe earthquake shock occurred at 9:17 p. m. at night. Walls were cracked and clocks all over the city were stopped. The theater crowds rushed to the streets. The people are considerably alarmed over the repeated shocks.

Fine and Jail for Perjurer.

Milwaukee.—August Wetzel, president of the Wetzel Brothers Printing company, appeared before Judge Quarles in the federal court Thursday afternoon, withdrew his plea of not guilty to an indictment for perjury, and substituted a plea of guilty. Wetzel was indicted in connection with the T. E. Cameron frauds. It was charged that he gave false testimony and the jury straightaway indicted him. Judge Quarles fined Wetzel $1,000 and sentenced him to one day's imprisonment in the Milwaukee county jail.
