Contractors Busy On Seven Construction Projects In Culver

Three major construction projects, the erection of three new homes, and the remodeling of another, present a rather busy building scene in the Culver area.

The erection of the 20-room Culver Guest Lodge; the building development of the Memorial Chapel at the Academy; an extensive addition to the Culver Seating Company building; the new Medbourn home on the East Shore Road; the new Catholic Rectory; the Speyer home; and the remodeling of the E.U.B. parsonage are among the construction projects here that are now being developed.

Guest Lodge

Work is progressing rapidly on the new Culver Guest Lodge and the 12-room section of the L-shaped structure is expected to be ready for occupancy around August 5. Orville P. Davis, co-owner of the new establishment, stated that the first three rooms would be occupied this week end. Work was started early this week on the manager's apartment and it is expected that work will be rushed on the second section of eight rooms just as soon as the first unit is completed. Hampered by bad weather the first section of the Guest Lodge has nevertheless been rushed along in record time. Work on the one-story building was started in late June. Providing semi-transient housing, the rooms of both structures will face towards the lake. Plans call for attractive appointments for each of the rooms which will be heated by individual gas units.

The architect is Merle W. Howell, of Detroit, Mich., nationally known in the field of motel construction.

Enoch Andrews is the general contractor of the housing unit; Earl Dean Overmyer, plumbing; and Jim Talley, electrical work.

Memorial Chapel

Hegeman and Harris of New York City, are the general contractors supervising the construction of The Memorial Chapel at the Culver Military Academy. Located on the knoll between the Recreation building and the Health Center, the foundations for the Chapel structure are complete or near complete and it is expected that the work on the superstructure will be started soon. The cost of the new Chapel will be in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. The cornerstone will be laid (Continued on page 11)

Rollicking Comedy Now at Playhouse

This week's attraction at the Playhouse on East Shore Lane is without a doubt the funniest comedy which has been presented on that stage this season. "My Sister Eileen" is not the play to see if you don't want to laugh and laugh long and hard, for one funny situation follows the other in close succession.

In "My Sister Eileen" you will meet some of the zaniest characters you have ever seen. Eileen and Ruth arrive in New York from Columbus, Ohio, to find a job. The only apartment available is a basement flat, and they move in. Little do they realize what they are in for; a constant parade of characters files through their rooms, including a Russian cossack, three Portuguese sailors that can't speak English, a street-walker, two drunks, and a dopey football player.

In addition, an iron grating that opens onto the street affords several amusing incidents, and to top off the situation, the girls find that a subway is being blasted right under their floor. Intermittently the building is rocked to its foundation by a series of tremendous explosions. However, despite the confusion Eileen and Ruth manage to keep their wits about them and through some finnegling manage to land jobs on a newspaper.

Nancy Todd, Margit Friedlander and Paul Laumann have the leading roles in the comedy, and the supporting cast includes the entire company at the Playhouse.

Tickets for "My Sister Eileen" are on sale at Oberlin's Electric Store, or reservations may be made by phoning Culver 203. All seats are reserved, and the curtain goes up every night at 8:30.

County Draft Board Now On Five Day Week

(Plymouth Pilot-News)

In line with the recent step-up ordered in Selective Service, the Marshall county draft board is now operating on a five day basis, according to chairman Ed Baker.

The board office, located in the Howard Hillis office, corner of Michigan and Laporte streets in Plymouth, is open from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Saturdays and Sundays.

Glen Seybold, clerk, is on hand to register young men reaching the age of 18, to disseminate information concerning the draft, and to assist in classification of registrants.

No Calls

As yet, the local board has received no indication of when and how many registrants will be called for physical examination. Indiana's quota in the mobilization call for 20,000 men is 578. They must be singled out and inducted into the armed services by Sept. 30, according to the present program.

The transfer of fish is a part of the program of the State Fish and Game Division stocking program.

Two-Night Moonlight Serenade Most Successful in History of Event

The setting was never prettier, the music was never better, and the decorations were the best in eight years, in fact it would take a lot of choice adjectives to do justice in writing the 1950 chapter of the successful Maxinkuckee Moonlight Serenade by the Culver Summer Naval School presented last week end.

Colonel E. T. Payson stated Monday morning that the decorations and the warm response of the audiences contributed to the most successful serenade in the history of the colorful event. "I know every member of the band would want to join me in expressing deep appreciation for the hearty cooperation of cottagers and boat owners. I sincerely wish it were possible to mention each of the very attractive decorations," Col. Payson said.

On Saturday evening, a large audience gathered at the Town Park to hear the band playing from the decks of the three masted square rigger. Adding to the on-shore atmosphere were the distinctive decorations of the Culver Beach Lodge which were arranged through Mr. and Mrs. William Washburn. Colored lights festooning the railing and sand bags holding gayly lighted candles were cleverly incorporated in the scheme of attractive decorations

Final Rites Today For Mrs. Bessie Schumacher

Mrs. Bessie Jane Schumacher, age 65, wife of Carl Schumacher, died Sunday afternoon, July 23, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mabel Smith, in Culver, after an illness of five months.

She was born at Rochester, Ind., February 7, 1885, and had lived in the Culver community for 40 years. Her husband preceded her in death Jan. 5, 1942.

Surviving with her daughter are one son, Morris Schumacher, Dayton, Ohio, her father, Martin Mitchell, Marcellus, Mich., one sister, Mrs. Edith Wagner, Berrien Springs, Mich.; five brothers, Earl Mitchell and Clyde Mitchell, Berrien Springs, Mich., Nelson, Mishawaka, John, Three Oaks, Mich., and Walter, Edwardsburg, Mich., and four grandchildren.

She was a member of the Maxinkuckee Methodist church where services will be held at 2:00 o'clock this afternoon (Wednesday). Rev. Albert Vermillion of Jamestown will officiate and burial will be at Poplar Grove cemetery.

Plans for the proposed new Union township grade school building are in the preliminary stages and Architect LeRoy Bradley of Fort Wayne has already submitted plans to Trustee Maurice Curtis and members of the Township Advisory Board.

Mr. Curtis appeared before the Culver-Union Township Planning Council last evening where he explained various problems and told of the preliminary work and plans. Mr. Bradley, who has been retained as the architect, showed preliminary drafts of two alternative floor plans and discussed various features of the building.

It is expected that the construction work on the urgently needed new building will be initiated next spring or just as soon as finances are available. Mr. Curtis explained that the sinking fund which was established in 1947 now amounts to $106,000 and an additional amount to be received this year would swell the total to $124,869. It was indicated that the cost of the grade school building would be $240,000.

Present Plans For New Grade School To Be Built Next Year

The projected plans as now laid out call for an L-shaped building to be joined to the high school building on the northeast corner. The east section will run approximately 220 feet north with another section running to the west. The modern structure provides for brick exterior with appropriate trim, and aluminum windows combined with glass brick.

There will be 20 classrooms, each large enough to accommodate a capacity of 40 students. The rooms are approximately 22x34 feet. There are ample provisions for music, art, health, and perhaps later an auditorium, on the site of the present grade building.

The floor plan arrangement will permit the present grade building to be used until the new building is ready for occupancy. While the financial picture has prevented the realization of the new building, officials believe that with the sinking fund together with a bond levy the building can be started next year.

The present grade school building, erected in 1906, was condemned more than four years ago as a fire hazard. Unable to build because of financial limitations, township officials met the repair and structural requirements of the state, at that time, but permission to utilize the building was granted only in lieu of steps to be taken towards the erection of a new building.

East Shore Road To Become State Highway

The roadway leading from State Road 10 near the Culver Military Academy and extending along the East Shore of Lake Maxinkuckee joining State Highway 110 at the county line is being added to the system of highways maintained and supervised by the Indiana Highway Commission it was learned this week.

It was indicated that the East Shore Road will become State Highway number 310.

A Pledge to the American People

by

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company

We will resist all unwarranted price rises with all our might.

We will make every effort to hold our inventories at the lowest point consistent with good service to our customers, because hoarding, whether by wholesalers, retailers or consumers, will cause higher prices.

We will continue to maintain the lowest profit rate generally prevailing in the entire retail industry. Our net profit now is less than one cent on each dollar of sales.

We will continue to strive for more efficient distribution.

We will fight waste of food, or time, or money all along the line so as to narrow the spread between wholesale and retail prices.

We will devote all our energies to giving you the most good food for your money every day of the week.

We will strive always to do what is honest, fair, sincere and in the best interest of our country and our customers.

As most of you know, this company and the low cost, low profit policies that built it are under attack.

We are defending ourselves against a suit brought by the anti-trust lawyers to put A&P out of business.

But the greater conflict in which our country is now engaged takes precedence over all else.

Today, with our boys fighting in Korea, we believe that all citizens and all businesses, big and little, should devote themselves wholeheartedly to the public interest.

We promise the American people that we will cooperate unhesitatingly with our national government in the present crisis.

We promise you that we will continue to do everything in our power to put more buying power in your food dollar and more good food on your dinner table.

When In Doubt Regarding Over-Inflated Tires, Let Them Alone Advises Club

The advice which the Chicago Motor Club gives regarding over-inflated tires is the easiest to follow: let them alone.

Car owners are often in doubt about the correct care of tires which pick up pressure from incessant poundings on a sun-baked highway.

Just let them be, says the motor club. They may pick up from two to eight pounds in air pressure during the course of a day's summer driving but this will be lost as the automobile stands overnight in cooler temperatures.

Drivers who check the tires every time they stop for gas are running a risk, according to the motoring organization. The tire gauges at different service stations may vary as much as five pounds. Ideally, a motorist should carry his own gauge, testing it periodically for accuracy. Those who don't are advised to check air pressure once a day, in the morning when the tires are cool.

The proper inflation of tires under normal conditions is important but it is dependent upon the make of the tire, its size and the weight it must carry. Motorists should consult their local dealer about correct air pressure for their tires.

Check your combine adjustments several times a day. More cylinder clearance is necessary as the grain dries. It may also be necessary to reduce the volume of air to the cleaning sieves.

The man who waits for things to turn up finds his toes do it first.

Farm Income Drops Ten Per Cent In Year

Net cash income on Indiana farms cooperating with Purdue University in the farm business record program declined about 10 to 12 per cent from 1948 to 1949, according to Prof. Paul R. Robbins of the agricultural economics department. Last year's net cash income averaged 30 per cent below 1947, the best year.

Approximately 625 farmers are cooperating in this program. They keep records of their income and expenditures in the farm account books distributed by the University, and at the end of the year, these are sent in for summary and analysis. From this study, the farmers find where they are losing or making money, and the farm management staff obtains helpful information for teaching and extension work.

Although net cash income has dropped sharply in the past two years, Prof. Robbins points out that it is still two and one-half times the pre-war 1935-39 average for the group of cooperating central Indiana farms. Main reason for this recent drop, he explains, is that farm expenses have not declined nearly as fast as receipts. The average total cash receipts dropped 10 per cent from 1948 to 1949, while the average total cash expenses declined only five per cent.

The study has shown that larger farms make more profit. They are able to use better machinery and equipment economically. They can spread the production over more acres.

Prof. Robbins emphasizes, however, that managerial skill and ability is a tremendously important factor in determining how profitable or unprofitable a farm business is. Of the 127 farms studied in the medium-size group, averaging 159 acres, the net cash income of the one-third least profitable was only 40 per cent of that of the most profitable one-third. Yet the farms were of about the same size and the capital investment was essentially the same.

The study shows that the profitable farmers build a larger volume of business than the unprofitable ones. They get higher crop yields and devote more acreage to high profit crops, maintain greater livestock efficiency, and do a better job of holding down operating expenses.

Bass Lake Subject of Article in July Issue of State Conservation Magazine

(Note: The State Division of Water Resources is conducting a series of intensive Hydrology studies of several Indiana Lakes. Bass Lake, located ten miles west of Culver in Starke county is one of those studied. A report of the findings is contained in a recent issue of "Outdoor Indiana," publication of the Indiana State Conservation Department. The article in part follows:*)

Its extreme length from northeast to southwest is approximately three miles. The northern or longer lobe averages three-quarters of a mile in width, while the southern basin is a little more than a mile wide. These two lobes are separated by long sandy bars which extend toward one another from Cedar and Gull points. Over the bars the water is very shallow, being less than two feet deep in many places. A narrow strait of deeper water known as "the Channel" intervenes between the ends of the sand spits.

Bass lake occupies a rather unique position among Indiana lakes. It lies in a shallow basin on top of a ridge with the natural surface drainage sloping away from its area. In 1900, it apparently had no definite outlet or natural inlet. Now the outlet is controlled by a dam, reinforced with steel sheet piling, which has a small concrete overflow section for extreme high water.

Formerly two ditches drained into the lake from marshy areas to the east. These have been cut across and drained by another ditch so that the area draining into the lake is smaller than it was in 1900. The drainage area, other than the water surface of the lake, is 1.465 square miles or 937.6 acres.

The present outlet is about a mile south of the former outlet which found its way through a marshy area in the northwest part of the present south shore basin (report of state geologist, 1900). At that time there had been little or no overflow and the waters of the lake seemed to be receding. This still seems to be true but the gauge readings indicate that there is a definite cycle of high and low water annually and that it gets higher when weather conditions are favorable.

The greatest variance has been 2.39 feet, the lowest gauge reading being 12.23 feet on Oct. 16, 1946, and the highest, 14.62 feet on April 4, 1950. The average normal level was established by the Starke circuit court at 13.65 feet, gauge reading, or 713.65 feet elevation, sea level datum, on Aug. 10, 1948. The elevation of the concrete overflow spillway is 14.22 feet.

The bottom of the lake is mostly sand with some areas of blue plastic clay. In the bay east of Cranberry Point there are extensive muck beds. Muck also occurs in quantity beneath a strip along the west shore of the upper lobe of the lake.

The shore line is fairly well-defined and a good portion of it is natural and has the usual growth of birch, swamp birch, elm and other water-loving trees along it. Some of the shallow water along the shore line has been filled with sand and soil in a few individual efforts to acquire more land. At other points sand has been removed from the bed of the lake to fill over marshy areas which were desired for building purposes and park use.

The lake is fed by springs that discharge into it under the water surface and by some flowing wells. These occur in the northeast portion and the water apparently comes from the sand ridges and low hills which lie in the area between the lake and Yellow River.

When the lake was sounded in 1900, the average depth was found to be 8.7 feet while the maximum depth was 32 feet at a point one-third of the way across the lake, north of Cranberry Point.

A map of Bass lake, dated 1900, shows 103 buildings, such as stores, cottages and hotels around the lake. The large ice houses of the Knickerbocker Ice Company of Chicago, which were at the lake on a spur of the Chicago and Erie Railway from Bass Lake station two miles south, are all gone and replaced by modern business buildings and a community center for the southern end of the lake.

At the present time there are 1200 or more buildings of all types on the lake shore or within easy walking distance of the lake. The year around population is 300 to 400, with 200 to 300 permanent dwellings, approximately 1,000 seasonal dwellings, 45 business establishments, ten hotels, two churches, two schools, and five small industries. An estimated

Economic Value of Bass Lake

The 1948 assessed valuation of the real property and improvements around Bass lake was $549,265. The assessed valuation of all property in North Bend township, Starke county was $877,100 and for California township, Starke county, $952,150, or a total of $1,829,250. The valuation around Bass Lake was 30 per cent of the total valuation in California and North Bend townships. There are many desirable lots around Bass lake that do not have improvements on them.

Practically all the area surrounding Bass Lake, except for a few sand hills and mounds, is low-lying farm land which has been drained by large open ditches that provide outlets for smaller tile drains. More than 95 per cent of the land in the two townships

Agricultural Agent E. C. Bird said the event promises to surpass in many important respects the spectacles of last year and the previous year when many records were shattered.

Masterminding the extravaganza are Bird and his staff, Fair Secretary Valentine; Albert L. Wagner, president of the fair board, and a crew of top business men and leaders in the community.

Annually the fair is a gigantic showcase for the multitude of projects completed by the county's contingent of 4-H workers. They range from grand champion steers to gardening; from handicraft to dress design. Added to these are hundreds of commercial exhibits ranging from farm machinery to newest kitchen gadgets.

Four interesting events are scheduled for the nights of the fair. The opening night attraction is the dazzling dress revue when a junior and senior clothing champion and a court of honor appear in their self-made finery before the fair throngs. The second night will be taken up by judging of the barnyard full of animals and other projects.

The beef steer auction on the third night brings excitement to a high pitch for the 4-Hers as the grand champion steer and 155 others go on the auction block under the gavel of Auctioneer Fred Chandler, Chariton, Iowa, nationally known auctioneer who has presided over the auction for the last several years.

Achievement night brings down the curtain on the Fair. A prominent national figure, and other dignitaries will be on hand to pay tribute to the 4-H boys and girls and as they receive a host of awards, prizes, gifts, scholarships and other rewards for their hard work. Entertainment for this program consist of a sixteen piece band. Also, the "Four Yachtsmen" of the Chicago radio station WGN and featuring Mary Jane Earhart, singer and pianist, will entertain the 4-Hers.

Merle Overmyer spent Sunday with Merle Gibbons.

SALUTE TO 4-H FARM SAFETY

National Farm Safety Week is being observed throughout rural America, July 23-29. Therefore we feel that now is the time to salute another nation-wide safety activity in progress 365 days a year.

It is the 4-H Farm and Home Safety program carried on by nearly half a million 4-H Club members between the ages of 10 and 21. We are told that these youths—who conduct safety surveys of their home farms and neighboring farmsteads—have the best organized safety program in the rural field. They not only ferret out hazards, but follow through and correct thousands of unsafe conditions relating to farm machinery, livestock, home-making, recreation, motoring, and scores of other things.

Since the project was launched on a national basis eight years ago, enrollment has increased five times. This would indicate that our farm boys and girls have steadily become safety minded. It means, also, that in addition to the 4-H'ers themselves, safety education has reached parents, residents of the local community, club leaders, and extension personnel.

So it seems a foregone conclusion that many times the half-million young folks taking part in the 4-H safety program are influenced and benefited. Perhaps this widespread flux of safety knowledge will prove to be a direct route to decreasing the 17,500 fatal accidents to farm people each year; or save some of the 35,000 farm buildings destroyed by fire; or put to constructive use the $1,000,000,000 in losses annually represented by these disasters.

For furthering 4-H farm safety education, we take off our hats to the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work for arranging the program; and to the Cooperative Extension Service for directing the activity.

NEW CHEMICALS CALL FOR CAUTION

Vegetable growers have such a variety of new crop protection chemicals available to them that Dr. Victor Boswell of the U. S. Department reminds them of the need for caution. In a statement for the Vegetable Growers Association of America, Boswell says: "The almost unbelievable effectiveness of some of these new chemicals encourages many growers to try some of them for purposes for which they are not suited. Until research and experience give us more of the answers, it is important to observe all precautions. Use them only when better known materials will not do, if they are used, use no oftener than necessary; use no stronger dosage than recommended by State or Federal research agencies."

Seed of leaf lettuce, spinach and radish should be sown by August 1 for a fall crop.

HOARDING IS RIDICULOUS

Civilians sometimes like to make the convenient jibe at military men that generals and admirals are "always fighting the last war"—using the tactics and thinking of the campaign that has just preceded instead of suiting their action to the present engagement.

That characterization would fit very aptly the hysteria of some civilian consumers who since the onset of the Korean invasion have been rushing to buy various commodities they imagined might be scarce if a general war ensued.

President Truman was appropriately blunt about this when he said in his radio talk that such scare buying is both selfish and foolish.

"Hoarding food," he said, "is especially foolish. There is plenty of food in this country." He might have cited the fact that the government's Commodity Credit Corporation has on its hands millions of bushels, bales, bags, crates, or barrels of wheat, corn, cotton, potatoes, peanuts, dried eggs, milk powder, butter, cheese, walnuts, prunes, and other farm products.

On one item housewives appear to be fighting not the last war but the war before last. That is sugar. Before the current buying wave Cuba had a prospective surplus of 1,000,000 tons of sugar. Import quotas have been increased by 350,000 tons.

In the case of nylon hosiery, it appears to be overlooked that the nylon production capacity has been multiplied many times over what it was at the end of World War II.

Automobiles, refrigerators, and home appliances may necessarily be affected by steel allocation orders. But natural rubber for tires should be available unless an Asiatic tidal wave of communism should sweep down through Malaya and Indonesia.

Mr. Truman did well to say that if prices rise unduly because of excessive buying or speculation, he will immediately recommend rationing and price control. In that case there should be rollbacks to earlier price levels and regulations to uncover hoarded supplies where possible.

If hostilities should be confined to Korea, or if peace should "break out," the supposedly canny buyers would find their shelves and basements stocked with deteriorating, over-priced goods. We hope they would feel not only a little silly but also a little ashamed.

—The Christian Science Monitor.

HAY FEVER SEASON

August 15 is a date remembered by many without having to mark their calendar. It is feared by one out of every 10 persons in Indiana, the State Medical Association points out. In ancient Rome it was "Beware the Ides of March fifteenth," but in our state it is "Beware the ragweed of August fifteenth." On this date most persons susceptible to the pollen of ragweed will be afflicted with hay fever and will suffer with it until the first frost. Most of them develop characteristic symptoms of hay fever exactly on this day.

Ragweed is an ugly plant and insects are not attracted to it. Unlike the rose and such alluring blooms that attract insects to carry their pollen about, ragweed must depend upon the winds that blow. And with success, for ragweed pollen is carried by the air for hundreds of miles. Ragweed grows all over Indiana, making it difficult for people allergic to its pollen to get away from it unless they go into northern Minnesota, Wisconsin or Michigan.

Immunization to ragweed pollen gives some relief in about 90 per cent of cases. Even so, there are five hay fever sufferers out of a hundred for whom the only relief is to leave the area where the weed grows. Asthma is another manifestation of sensitivity to ragweed pollen.

FARMING AND SAFETY

It should come as a distinct shock to everyone to learn that farming is the third most hazardous occupation in America. Farmers have always known that their job is a hard one, calling for long hours, careful planning, and a keen understanding of the close relationship between nature and science that are necessary to produce enough food each year to feed 150,000,000 citizens—not to mention much of the rest of the world.

However, perhaps even the farmer does not realize how hazardous his job really is. According to the Association of Casualty and Surety Companies, which is cooperating with the President's Conference on Industrial Safety to emphasize the need for greater occupational safety, one farmer in every 15 is temporarily or permanently injured while plowing a field, milking a cow, riding a tractor, or doing any number of other chores.

Last year in America, more than 300,000 farmers suffered disabling injuries on their jobs. 4,400 others weren't so lucky. They were killed by falls, machinery, animals, or other "potential hazards."

Statistics show that 22 per cent of disabling injuries on farms occurred last year between January and March, 26 per cent from April to June, 31 per cent from July to September, and 21 per cent in the last quarter of the year. Naturally, as these figures indicate, the summer months are the most hazardous months of the year for the working farmer.

Unless care is taken, accidents will kill an average of 48 American farm residents, every day during the next 12 months. These deaths and accidents on our farms cost the nation $75,000,000 each year. Who can measure the added cost in human lives and human suffering? Farmers everywhere might well remember these figures.

Bass Lake Subject of Magazine Article

Rates High for Fishing

Its fish fauna is just as exceptional. It is the only Indiana lake that has provided reasonably good fishing for walleye over a long period of years. Evidently that species is able to reproduce there successfully. Bass lake is also one of the few Indiana lakes in which white bass are numerous enough to afford regular fishing. In addition to these, both largemouth and small mouth bass can be taken in the lake. Crappies, bluegills and perch are also important game fishes.

In its recent fishing history Bass Lake has suffered one major upheaval. During the early 1930's fishing in the lake began to deteriorate and was accompanied by increased turbidity and disappearance of vegetation. During 1935 and 1936 course fish were removed from the lake by means of long seines. In all, 12,300 carp, 14,500 quillback suckers, and 1,400 buffalo fish were removed, amounting to 71 tons of fish altogether. Following this the water of the lake cleared and vegetation reappeared. Carp are still common in the lake, but they have not become so numerous as to muddy the water and eliminate vegetation.

Several hotels are operated for the summer vacationist trade while many cottages are rented by their owners part time. This vacation demand keeps two thriving trading centers in business at Bass lake. Included in these centers are grocery stores, boat liveries, boat sales and service, bait and fishing supplies stores, dance halls, amusement parks and filling stations. The Division of State Parks operates a public bathing beach on Bass lake.

INDIANA GROUPS PROTEST ACTION AGAINST A & P

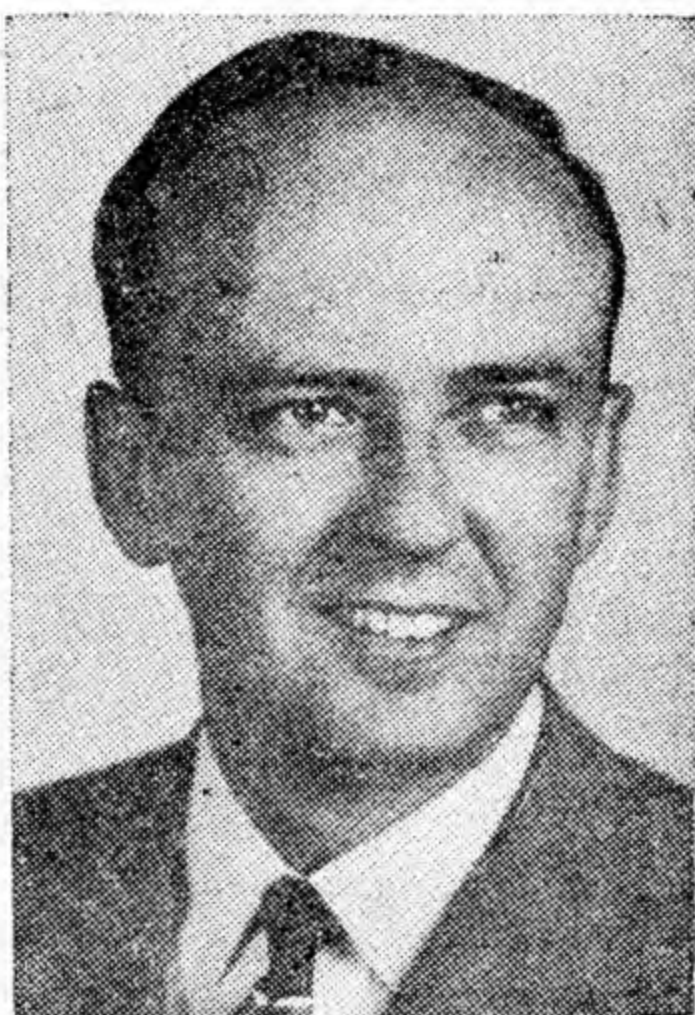

Two more Indiana groups have recorded opposition to the government action with respect to the suit brought against the A & P stores.

Both actions were taken in the form of resolutions. The actions taken by the Middlebury Co-Operative Creamery and the Indiana Cannery Association were prompted by the suit recently brought against A & P Food Stores by the Government anti-trust division.

The creamery cooperative, representing more than eight hundred Indiana dairy farmers, said they were "distressed at the action being brought by the Federal Government against the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company . . . We feel our government should encourage rather than discourage efficient, low cost methods of distributing food products. It is very possible that under such methods . . . much of the present surplus dairy products and other farm products could be marketed and consumed."

He who hangs himself in the chimney should not complain of smoke.

Culver Loses 7-6 To Plymouth, Meet Bremen Friday

The Plymouth baseball squad overcame a 5 run deficit here last Friday evening to defeat the Culver team 7-6 in the final contest of the season here for the local nine. A large crowd of fans turned out for the game hoping to see Culver post its sixth consecutive win. It was the first loss of the season.

Culver will meet Bremen in the final contest of the Summer Recreation season there next Friday. A win will mean the 1950 championship for the squad.

A walk, three errors by the visitors, two hits including a two-bagger by Bill Snyder gave Culver a four-run advantage in the second inning of the Plymouth game and in the third frame they increased their lead on Kowatch's home run.

An error and two hits gave the visitors two runs in the fourth inning. In the disastrous sixth, the Plymouth batsman hit safely five times which with a Culver error gave them their winning margin. Culver slabmen Al Crabb and Hurt were nicked for eight hits.
