General Patton Speaks At Academy

Culver - Maj. General George S. Patton, son of the late General George S. Patton, Jr., was the Memorial Day speaker at the Gold Star Ceremony in the Chapel on the grounds of the Culver Military Academy.

Chaplain William Martin introduced Patton by saying "I am glad to say he's from Virginia, although he considers himself from Massachusetts."

Patton said, in his speech at the impressive ceremony, "More than one million members of our armed forces paid the supreme sacrifice so that others may live in peace.

My proposal is probably what you might expect. There is but one course of action to take. Surely to avoid future tragedy, we have to maintain and enhance our military strength. Equally important, but perhaps less common and certainly less understood, this material power has to be coupled with a genuine national resolve to fully employ that strength when and if the time comes to do so.

Someday, someday, if the nations of the world mature in their thinking and actions the most serious disputes, arguments between us, may be settled by reasoning instead of by violence, but as you know, regrettably, that condition is not here. Actually there have been few years in all recorded history which has seen the absence of war.

Since 1953 when I came out of Korea, this day, Memorial Day, has always been a personal one to me. As one who has seen death and carnage at first hand, seen men blown to bits by mines and shell fire, held the dying in his arms, experienced the loss, the tragic loss, of all too many friends, I would ask you to remember today that the men you honor in this Chapel gave their lives not for fame or reward, not for place or for rank, but in simple obedience to duty as they understood it at the time, sacrificed all and died.

I know as I stand here today before you that their message would be "Stay Strong" so that you in turn may support the strengthening of America, the greatest nation in the world, in the years to come."

In an interview prior to the services this reporter asked General Patton why he had not displayed his Vietnam medals since 1975. He replied, "For two reasons, First I do not believe in wearing medals of a defeated country and secondly I think the United States, through their policy in Vietnam was partly responsible for that defeat."

When asked if he believed in reincarnation his response was, "Yes." To the question of what he thought about the portrayal of his father in the movie, "Patton," the General said, "I thought it was first rate."

General Patton is currently directorate of Readiness HQ DARCOC (Development or Readiness Command) in Alexandria, Va. A graduate of The Hill School, Pottstown, Penns., General Patton was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point in 1946, at which time he was commissioned as a second lieutenant of infantry.

Following basic officers' and airborne training courses and then advanced classes in the Armored School of Fort Knox, General Patton requested and received combat assignment in Korea, where he commanded Company A, 140th Tank Battalion, in the X Corps Sector of the Republic of Korea.

Years later, he would volunteer for duty in the Republic of Vietnam, where he first served as Special Forces Operations Officer in J-3, Military Assistance Command, Vietnam. He would return to serve as Chief, Mainland Southeast Asia Branch, Far East-Pacific Division in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Military Operations; then, in 1967 as Chief, Force Development Division G-3 and Deputy, G-3, U. S. Army, Vietnam and in 1968 as Commanding Officer of the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, which he commanded for nine months.

Following aviation training, Gen. Patton was assigned to Headquarters, U. S. Army, Europe and Seventh Army in 1970 as Assistant Division Commander for Support, 4th Armored Division and Community Commander, Nuernberg Military Community.

By 1975 he had been promoted to the position of Special Assistant to the Commander of Army Readiness Region I. He assumed command of Army Readiness Region I in 1975.

In August 1975, General Patton assumed command of the 2nd Armored Division, Fort Hood, Tex., a four-manuever brigade division, one of whose brigades was stationed in Europe permanently.

In 1977, General Patton was assigned to VII Corps in Stuttgart - Moehringen, Germany as the Deputy Command General. He was assigned to HQ DARCOC as Director of Readiness in February 1979.

General Patton's military decorations include the Distinguished Service Cross with one oak leaf cluster, Silver Star with one oak leaf cluster, Legion of Merit with two oak leaf clusters, Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star Medal with one oak leaf cluster, Meritorious Service Medal, Air Medal, Army Commendation Medal with three oak leaf clusters and the Purple Heart.

He is married to the former Joanne Holbrook and they have five children: Margaret, George Jr., Robert, Helen and Benjamin. His wife and son, Benjamin accompanied him on his trip to Culver.

The General's visit was arranged by Bud Vestermark, of Washington D. C., friend of the Academy.

(Editors note. Following the program, I enjoyed lunch in the Mess Hall with Academy personnel, General Patton and his wife and family. Patton's speech was inspiring in an age when inspiration is needed. It was a pleasure to meet them. His wife is an attractive, gracious lady and the kiss on the cheek I received from the General made my day.)

grader, Homayoun Tayanipour from Iran.

The 16-year-old has a malady which I call, "the stay jobless syndrome." She can find more excuses for not working than Carter can for the energy crisis.

Every potential job market I mention is met with, "I inquired but they already hired someone," "I can't work there," or "I've already put my application in." (I'm sure in her prayers she asks that they don't call her.)

They'll probably turn into productive, responsible adults. My oldest three are gainfully employed and making three times as much as I do. So—hang in there, mothers. We must have done something right along the way.

Besides if each teenager, and there are over 100 on that trip, spent $20 look what we're doing for the economy. Now I know why they call it "King's Island."

PUBLISHER'S 'PINION

by Dave Tranter

The advertising sales personnel of your hometown newspaper contact all types of businesses each week for their advertising needs. For the last several weeks these sales people have been asking each business what they felt about the present and future economics of the United States and the local area.

Our informal sampling came to these conclusions. The average local citizen is buying less of the expensive items and the same, or more, of the less expensive items. Auto supply businesses report that their parts business is going well as they feel more Americans are driving their used cars longer than in past years. The auto dealers report that sales are good on the smaller cars, but the larger, more expensive vehicles are not selling well.

Grocery stores commented that they have noticed a slight decrease in snack food buying and the same, or better, in the basic foods.

Clothing stores state that business is very normal, but that luxury and sports clothing are not selling as well as they were a few months ago.

Hardware and similar type stores report that everyday items are selling well, but here again, the more expensive items are not moving.

Banks report that installment buying loans are decreasing. Several bankers commented that people are not purchasing items that must be financed.

Almost everyone contacted commented that the average local citizen is holding back, waiting to see what the future brings in the way of job security and energy availability. The high interest rates are a detriment to expensive purchases that must be financed.

Several businesses are preparing for the worst and are exploring ways they can cut costs if decreased sales occur in the future. People who were planning a vacation for the summer months are either cancelling completely or shortening their travel time.

Many businesses are concerned about the future economic conditions that might face our nation in the coming months. They are starting to think of ways they can live on less money, if the need arises.

Your hometown newspaper will, about every 30 to 45 days, take these random samples to keep informed of the local economic conditions.

CULVER GOLDEN AGERS MEET

by Adrianna Hellstrom

Culver - The May 23rd meeting of the Culver Golden Agers at Grace Church was opened by Betty Coplen the director of Older Adult Services for Marshall County with a poem and a prayer.

The tables were decorated with lovely bouquets of Spirea and Columbine brought by Ruth Ubel.

The women of the Trinity Lutheran Church Rowena Paulsen, Alice Tyler, Ann Schultz, Pauline Siems, and Ruth Ubel served the meal assisted by Adrianna Hellstrom and Lovina Wesson.

Cards were signed and sent to Charlie Dilts and Clara Mahler who are ill.

Mabel Zukowski was welcomed back after a vacation in Florida. Also welcomed back were Adrianna Hellstrom, Albert Hosmer, and Mrs. Comer the mother of Ann Schultz. "Happy Birthday" was sung to Mabel Zukowski.

Door prizes were donated by Nora Charland and a hand sculpted Owl from Warner Williams. These were won by Malcolm Muehr and Francis Master.

Emil Ruhnow brought 8 dozen of his famous crescent rolls which were quickly consumed by all present.

For the program Bud Craft showed a film from the Culver Public Library entitled simply "Japanese." Space is a luxury in Japan the tiny island has 100 million people living jammed in house on top of each other. The people create an illusion of space in their homes with the use of paper screens as room dividers. Japan can deliver steel to California cheaper than Pittsburgh can.

The film depicted the life of an average Japanese family. How they live and eat. The father leaves home at 9 a.m. and returns at 10 p.m. the children see little of their fathers. The men party at night without their wives. There is no divorce, and very little delinquency. The children receive little discipline until they start school.

We all would have enjoyed seeing more of how these people live but we only had one film.

The menu for June 6th will be cranberry juice, turkey roll, sage dressing and gravy, broccoli, dinner roll, margarine, cookies, milk, tea, coffee.

POTAWATOMI INDIANS ATTEND RENDEZVOUS AT ROCHESTER

Rochester - A group of Potawatomi Indians from Shawnee, Oklahoma, will attend the Trail of Courage Rendezvous at Rochester on September 15 and 16 on the Tippecanoe River. They are descendants of the Indians on the Trail of Death in 1838. The trail of Courage Rendezvous is to commemorate the courage of the Potawatomi on the Trail of Death removal from northern Indiana to Kansas in 1838. Chief Menominee refused to leave and was the center of resistance, so he and his tribe were forced to leave at gun point.

Feeling that the best way to remember Chief Menominee and the courage of the Potawatomi is by recalling their days of glory, the Fulton County Historical Society sponsors an annual rendezvous in a beautiful pine woods on the Tippecanoe River and U.S. 31 north of Rochester. The rendezvous consists of a teepee village,

LEGION AND VFW SALUTES VIETNAM VETERANS

The American Legion fully endorses, supports and will participate in Vietnam Veterans Week, beginning May 28, in recognition of those Americans who served their nation honorably and bravely in a politically controversial conflict.

National Cdr. John M. (Jack) Carey as called on all 16,000 American Legion posts in 58 departments to open their doors in a special salute to the outstanding service performed by the nation's Vietnam veterans.

Stating that he believed it was time once and for all to separate the politics of Vietnam from the performance of those who served, Commander Carey announced that The American Legion will embark on an intensive nationwide campaign designed to exemplify the outstanding contribution of Vietnam veterans - not only of past contributions made to national defense but to the outstanding contributions they are making to their communities as civilians today.

In retrospect, the Vietnam veteran proved himself or herself to be an intelligent, dedicated and loyal American soldier, Marine, sailor or member of the Air Force.

He or she is entitled to stand tall alongside American warriors of other wars.

Perhaps no one has said this better than James H. Webb Jr., the much decorated Marine hero and author of "Field of Fire," a classic novel about the Southeast Asian war.

Webb told the Legion's February conference in Washington, D. C. (in part): "It is amazing to see the many misperceptions that continue to abound with respect to Vietnam and the people who fought there. Vietnam is remembered as a dirty little war, hardly a war in the traditional sense at all; and yet, even though their were no Jimas or Guadalcanals, Vietnam produced more combat casualties for the Marine Corps than World War II."

"Vietnam is remembered as a war of the unwilling, conjuring visions of draftees being dragged kicking and screaming into uniform; and yet, two thirds of the people who served during the Vietnam era were volunteers, while two thirds of the people who served during World War II, the great patriotic war, were drafted."

"Vietnam is viewed as an especially brutal war toward innocent civilians, a genocidal war; and yet, the percentage of civilian casualties was comparable to World War II, and lower than in Korea."

"Vietnam is remembered as a political issue that pitted youth against age, widening the so-called 'generation gap,' while in reality it was an issue that pitted culture against culture with various age groups. I can assure you that neither Abbie Hoffman nor Doctor Spock ever spoke for me, or for the people I served with."

"It was a war where people my age could gain political credentials for the rest of their lives by taking a few weekends out of their college careers and marching against it, while those who gave years, and often portions of their bodies, gained no more than a stigma."

As Commander Carey says, Vietnam Veterans Week will give every American an opportunity to wipe out that stigma once and for all.

HOUSE DEMOS OPPOSE HIGHER OIL PRICES

Argos - By a 2-1 margin, House Democrats expressed opposition Thursday to President Carter's plan to decontrol oil prices on June 1.

Indiana congressman Floyd Fithian, who voted with the 138-69 majority against decontrol, joined other leaders of the anti-decontrol coalition in a letter urging Carter to delay lifting the lid on oil prices until Congress acts on oil pricing policies.

"Skyrocketing energy prices are forcing Americans to choose between food to eat and fuel to heat their homes, between decent housing and health care, between clothing and gasoline," the congressman wrote. "The facts suggest decontrol will neither add significant new oil supplies nor promote significant conservation."

They proposed targeted incentives to encourage exploration for new oil, and pledged to work with the President to enact "comprehensive measures" for coping with America's energy problems.

Fithian noted that previous oil price hikes have not resulted in increased oil production. Domestic crude oil prices have risen by 164 percent since 1972, he pointed out, while oil production actually has dropped by 8 percent. Oil consumption has risen by 16 percent in those years, despite the increasing price.
