Watch Mother Hurt And Burn

Children should listen to parents. After all, they've got years of experience behind them. Years ago living and learning. All they want to do is pass this valuable information on to their offspring. They learn from their mistakes and offer their children lessons in life they'd never received otherwise.

I don't know how many times I've told my kids, "Don't stay in the sun too long. You'll burn. It causes skin cancer and premature ageing." Or, Don't horse around with games in the water or you may get hurt.' Kids just don't listen. You try your best, but your teaching seems to fall on deaf ears. I went on river floats at the Tippecanoe two Sundays in a row. The first time I came home with a cut on my foot and toe. And I got a bruise on my leg the size of a goose egg. This was caused by stupid games in the water ike falling out of the boat. Maybe they would learn by eeing their mained mother. The next Sunday mother vould be smarter and wear ennis shoes and take advice rom seasoned river floaters. sut, mother wore a bathing

Mother got pink, then red, then the shade of the inside of a rare steak. Some adults will go to any lengths to teach their children lessons. You'll have to admit this was not a very smart thing to do. The pain would be worth it if they'd just listen and learn from my errors. Heaven knows, I've tried.

The look on their faces when I came home said. "How could mother be so stupid?

I only did it to teach them a lesson. Greater love hath no woman. They should learn from my failures as well as my successes.

That sounds better than admitting I did a dumb thing. Mothers do sometimes.

COMMUNITY GUIDE

It is not the policy of your hometown newspaper to comment on national happenings unless they affect our everyday lives. President Carter's speech last week will definitely affect our everyday activities.

The President asked the nation to conserve fuel to reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil. We should all do our part in cutting back our gas consumption to aid in this national problem.

Following the nationally Presidential televised speech, the newscasters attempted to explore the impact on the people. Almost everyone felt the speech was very good, well written and expertly delivered.

However once again we go back to the believability of what the President said. He admitted that he has not been the best President thus far, but now he plans to change that image.

It seems to us that President Carter should not have waited until the reelection period to say that he is going to change his ways If he does change his governmental management in the coming months, what is going to happen if he is reelected and cannot run for a third term? Does this mean he will change his ways only until he is re-elected?

AT INDIANA STATE UNIVERSITY

Terre Haute - Two weeks of academic challenge and a sample of college life are on the agenda of 276 talented high school students enrolled in the July 15- July 27 session of Indiana State University's 1979 Summer Honors program.

Attending from Culver is Kelly Lawson, archeology. The young people, who were outstanding members of their class as juniors, will engage in a variety of activities in one of eight seminars: archeology, art, English, interior design and housing, math and computers, radio-TV-film, technology, and theatre.

Scheduled annually, the ISU Summer Honors program provides the for young opportunity scholars to explore their academic interests and study with the university faculty. Those who successfully complete a seminar may earn two hours of university credit and become eligible for an ISU Talent Grant which waives a portion of their fees upon enrollment at ISU immediately following high school graduation.

latter in the park. For inof the park a few years ago, I never remembered both the outside shower and the drinking fountain in working order at the same time, also, near the shower is a bench on which one can put towels, clothes, t and other paraphenelia so they don't get wet or dirty. Mrs. Thews has added to me "a woman's touch" for the betterment of the park. She has waited until July to start swim lessons because the lake is much too cold any earlier in the season for small children
