COPAD Meeting

Draws Crowd

TEAM PICTURES IN THIS ISSUE

A large crowd of interested members of the community gathered at the VFW hall to hear Congressmen E.H. Hillis speak on the contribution of government to local citizen effort to improve the water and land environment of the Lake area around Maxinkuckee. Congressman Hillis was guest speaker at the August meeting of Culver Organizations for Planning. Action, and Development (COPAD).

Eight clubs gathered at the monthly meeting of COPAD to discuss the situation. They were Tri Kappa, Lions Club, Boy Scouts, Senior Citizens, Chamber of Commerce, Police Department, Fire Department, Fire Department, and Maxinkuckee Junior Women's Club. Also present were members of COPAD's Environmental Committee.

Congressman Hillis anwered questions on his responses to the proposals presented to him and Mr. Cloud by the Environmental Committee.

The Environmental Committee plans on meeting with the Maxinkuckee Lake Association to combine interest and forces on preserving our lake.

It was emphasized that COPAD does not want to close the lake to the public and make it private, but something does need to be done to make existing access points adequate for the load they are now handling.

Mr. Hillis is checking further for COPAD on pollution tests that have already been run on the lake. More such tests are planned for the future, and stocking of the lake with fish will be checked on.

The next regular meeting of COPAD is scheduled for the second Tuesday of September. Featured at this meeting will be the Development Committee, which will report on its progress.

The Culver Town Board met August 6 at 7:30 at the Town Hall. A bid was opened from the McMahon-O'Connor Construction Company of Rochester, concerning the recent street work in the town. The total bid was $53,860, which was the maximum possible amount of the bid, and the board did not anticipate a need to use the maximum amount. However, the board did feel the need to investigate further, and approved the bid after calling a special meeting August 8 to recondiser the matter.

In other business, the board discussed detailed concerning 1974 health, hospitalization and life insurance for town employees. The town will bear the cost of the insurance with the exception of $1.00 per year per employee, as required by law. Employees have the option of providing insurance for their dependents.

John Houghton read a petition to the board to rename Carl St. to be Houghton St. The town attorney will make up an ordiannce to that effect. The town put in several mercuryvapor lamps along the shoreline between the viaduct and Mr. Amond's pier. They replace the old incandescent lights formerly used.

First reading was made of Ordinance 224, rezoning of Pinder's Restaurant and parking lot from residential to commercial; Ordinance 225, 1975 salary ordinance; and Ordinance 226, 1974 budget appropriation. Public hearing on all three ordinances will take place at the Town Board meeting August 27 at 7:30 in the Town Hall. Streets that have been paved include: Portions of Slate, West Washington, West Cass, North Climax, North White, South Plymouth, East Marmont, East Clover, Academy Rd. VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

WAS EXCITING THIS YEAR

The Culver Bible Church held its daily vacation bible school this week Monday through Friday of last week. The theme for the week was "One Way With Jesus". The church was decorated with various road signs, such as One Way, Stop, Go, Yield, Cross Roads and Narrow Way, which helped emphasize the role Jesus plays in our modern lives. The children sang songs based on the road signs, which told of Jesus' love for mankind. The emphasis was on accepting Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord, for Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life, and no man cometh to the Father except by me." John 14:6.

The Bible School was directed by Pastor Ed Clark. The teachers were: Mrs. Russell Prosser and Mrs. Elmer Wagner, Nursery; Mary Hinning, Beginners; Mrs. Ed Clark, Primaries; Mrs. Richard Baer, Juniors;

BOY SCOUT JAMBOREE

From August 3 to August 9, about 44,000 young men between the ages of 11 and 18 descended on the Morraine State Park near Butler, Pennsylvania, for the annual Boy Scout Jamboree. The boys came from all over the world to spend the week learning about each other and building new friendships.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Allen, 571 West Shore Drive, were among the 80 to 9,000 adults who visited the boys at one time or another during that very busy week.

The Shroud, by John Walsh Is this the veritable Holy Shroud of Christ, or is this the greatest hoax of the ages?

John Walsh allows the reader to make up his own mind, but does present all facts as he found them. This is Purdue's School of Pharmacy truly an absorbing and suspensful account of a great a professional angle to the mystery and includes 16 pages apprenticeship system. The of issustrations.

Lynnmarie Pierce Returns to School

Lynnmarie Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley J. Pierce, 716 Peru Court, is the tiny blonde who has complemented the bevy of lovelies that made up the staff of Mr. T's Rexall Drug Store this summer. Some of you might have wandered into the drugstore and wondered where you had seen her before. We intend to solve the mystery in these few lines.

Lynnmarie is in her final year of study at the School of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Sciences at Purdue University. She spent her summer as an apprentice to Ron Tusing at the drugstore, gaining practical experience in the field of pharmacy.

The apprenticeship program, says Lynnmarie, is one that has a sound backing in theory, but often suffers in practice. Pharmacy students who spend their summers looking for pharmacists to accept them as apprentices often find, to their chagrin, that they are used as stock boys (or girls) and never get behind the pharmacist's counter.

The problem became so

Purdue's externship program, the first program of its kind in Indiana. The externship program provides for the placement of pharmacy students for eight weeks in community paharmacies, where they learn the skills of pharmacy by working with local pharmacists; the next eight weeks are spent in the pharmacies of community

The plan is that each customer receive a copy of the description of the drug that has been prescribed for him, to give him an idea of how to use it more effectively. Lynnmarie says compiling the list was a great learning experience, because the list of drugs with which a pharmacist must be familiar is nearly endless, and growing longer every day.

Now, where have you seen her before? As you can plainly see from the picture, Lynnmarie doesn't spend all her time behind Mr. T's drug counter. Depending on how much you get around, you may have seen her behind a load of dishes laden with good food, since she helps out in her "spare" time at the Three Sisters Restaurant north of town. Or, you may have seen her behind a boat in the middle of Lake Maxinkuckee, since she enjoys water skiing. Or, if you've really been around, you might have caught a glimpse of her in a lecture hall at a university in Thailand, asking and answering questions about the study of pharmacy. Lynnmarie spent last summer touring Europe and Asia, and one of her stops was Thailand, where the study of pharmacy closely resembles pharmacy as studied here. All in all, Lynnmarie Pierce is a pretty interesting girl. By now she's back in West Lafayette getting back into the books. Mr. T's doesn't look quite the same yet.

hospitals. There the pharmacy students work closely with doctors, gaining competence in the use of specialized drugs.

Pharmacy students at Purdue are obliged to participate only in the externship program, but Lynnmarie decided to find a job as an apprentice as well. She feels that the value of working in a community pharmacy lies in working closely with its dayto-day operation.

As a result of Lynnmarie's summer at Mr. T's, she completed a project which will benefit not only herself as a learning tool, but future customers who come to Mr. T's to have a prescription filled. Lynnmarie has compiled a list of generic names of many frequently-prescribed drugs, listing with each a short description and how to take it.

SCOUTS DAMP; SPIRITS HIGH

Under the leadership of Mr. George Jewell, Culver Troop 290 scouts Terry Nelson, Jim Butler, John Baldwin, and Reed Joice spent a successful week at Camp Tamarack, Jones, Michigan.

Despite heavy rains the first three days of the week's camping, the Culver Scouts were awarded the Baden-Powell Award, an award based on many facets of Tenting Area, Dining Area, and Patrol Spirit. On the final day the group scored 96.5 points out of 100. Terry Nelson and Jim Butler earned the Merit Badge in Hiking (70 miles), and progressed far toward merit badge awards in Pioneering. Jerry Nelson, Reed Joice, and John Baldwin were successful in earning the Tote and Chip Award (use of axe).

All of this was made possible by the poeople of Culver and Union Township donating their paper every other month to the Culver Scout Paper Drive. The Scouts and their leaders say, "Thank You."

"KNOW YOUR INDIANA LAW" By John J. Dillon, Attorney at Law

(This is a public service article explaining in general terms a provision of Indiana law. Individuals who wish to determine the effort of any law upon their private legal affairs should consult a private attorney.) "EMPLOYEE NON-COMPETITION common to ask the employee to enter a contract in which he promises, in consideration of getting the employement, that he will not use information he obtains to later go out and compete with his employer. Immediately of course this raises some very interesting constitutional and contractural questions. In our free society people are encouraged to start their own businesses, to compete with others in a similar business and to generally try to improve their earning capacity. The fine line between these rights and the right of the employer to protect his very valuable interest must be carefully weighed and a just decision rendered by our Courts. Normally these contracts that an employee enters promise that the employee will not use information he has obtained from his employer to compete in the same field, to contact the same customers with geographic boundaries being defined and time limitations being defined. In other words the salesman who works in a given city might promise that for a periood of two years he will not compete with his employer in the same business with the same customers. The enforcibility of this type of contract was scrutinized by the Indiana Courts and as always a question of the reasonableness of the terms of the noncompetition was examined. In other words if the time is short and the geographical area is as reasonably small as possible to protect the employer's interest, the Courts tend to say that these are binding contracts and that the employee can be enjoined from violating his original agreement. If on the other hand the contract is overly broad as one which provided that an employee could never compete during his lifetime with his company anywhere in the United States then the Court will tend to invalidate the contract. Because of the obvious subleties involved in this type of contract both the employer and employee should have the guidance of counsel so that each might understand their rights before a noncompetition agreement is entered between the parties.

AGREEMENTS"

As our industrial society has become more complicated employers have attempted to protect themselves from the employee who gains a tremendous amount of knowledge in a given business and then leaves to set up a competitive business. Many times the things the employer wishes to protect are not the type of property rights that can be protected by either copyrights or patents. In other words they might be such things as the customer list of the employer that has been developed over a long period of time, the method of contacting customers, the method of giving service which unique and therefore better than competitors in the field, all of which items are tremendously valuable to a successful business. Once a person has access to this type of information they of course have the first ingredient of a successful business to compete with their employer.

To prevent what employers consider unjust competition it is not un-

WYNNS TOUR Southeastern States

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wynn and their children, Keith and Patsy, Route 1, Culver, spent Aug. 4 through 11 vacationing in the Southeast. Among the many stops on their route were Lookout Mountain in Chattanooga, Tennessee, the Great Smoky Moutains and the Virginias. The family also toured the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Plant in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and stopped at King's Island, Ohio, on the way home.

The high point of the Wynn's trip came when the family car was pulled over by a Morganton, N.C. policeman! Instead of handing Mr. Wynn a ticket, however, the policeman handed the family an invitation to the local Rotary Club's weekly luncheon meeting. The Wynns discovered later that they had become part of the Rotary's "Tourist of the Week" program in Morganton. Under this program, the local police department cooperates in stopping an out-of-state tourist each week and inviting him to the Rotary luncheon. The purpose of the program is to build good will and better
