Leiters Ford Supper And Carnival

FUND RAISING WITH FUN FOR ALL

The Leiters Ford Merchants Association will present a Pancake and Sausage Supper and Carnival this coming Saturday at the Aubbee School in Leiters Ford.

Festivities begin at 5:00 p.m. on Saturday with a Pancake and Sausage Supper, with children's tickets for $1.00 and Adult tickets for $2.00 available at the door.

Proceeds from this event will be used, coupled with matching Federal funds, to provide the police unit serving Leiters Ford with mobile radio equipment. The present volunteer police patrol has no contact with other law enforcement agencies in the area while out on patrol.

Following the supper, a Carnival will be presented in the school gymnasium. Proceeds of this later event will be used to furnish a class trip for all 8th graders in the Culver Community Schools Corporation elementary schools.

Phil Hiatt, Leiters Ford merchant and president of the sponsor group, points out that this event will benefit children from several communities, and not just Leiters Ford students. Families from all over the school community are invited to attend and join in the pre-halloween fun.

TAX HEARINGS

TO BE HELD

Public hearings will be held in Plymouth by the State Board of Tax commissioners to consider proposed budgets and tax levies for 1974 in Marshall County.

The hearings will be held at the Marshall County Court house.

On the morning of October 29th, beginning at 8:30 a.m., several groups will be reviewed, including Union Township and the Culver Community School Corporation.

After lunch, beginning at 12:30 p.m., groups to be heard will include Culver Civil Town and the Culver Public Library.

The public has a right to attend these hearings.

WORKING TOGETHER to repair a bad bridge are crews from both Starke and Pulaski Counties. This is the bridge on the extension of State Road 110 west of State Road 17 on the way to Ora. Often called the Fox Bridge (Because it was near where Fred Fox lived), the bridge had been in poor repair for months. Here, a crew from Pulaski County replaces the planking on Monday. Starke County crews were to repave the approaches on Tuesday, with the road scheduled to be open for traffic yesterday or today. CITIZEN photo

GRAIN BANK GETS NEW GRAIN DISCOVERY

What happens when a new grain variety is discovered as in the case of Purdue University's just-announced high lysine sorghum?

Among other things, it, in effect, goes into the bank. It may even have come from the bank, in actuality. The bank, in this case, is the World Sorghum Collection, which represents a truly international research effort. Purdue has been a part of this research effort for nearly two decades, chiefly in the area of protein quality improvement.

Just what is this collection? Essentially, it is a genetic resource center - a bank - where seed collections including all the natural, desirable variations of grains are cultivated, recultivated and improved, and distributed to the nations of the world. Centered in India, the bank also acts as a museum so that the genetic characteristics will be forever kept available to plant breeders.

Purdue's new high lysine sorghum was the result of a seven-year research program with sorghum lines from the World Collection. The high lysine gene was found after screening more than 10,000 varieties from the collection.

Why is such a collection important?

First, a little background on plant breeding...a new plant or grain does not simply pop from a test tube or laboratory. It represents the work of at least a decade, and usually longer.

When plant breeders wish to grow, say, a grain, with a specific characteristic - high protein content - they first select plants with the most desirable features needed - high protein, strong stalks, disease resistance, and others. These, then become the basis for extensive breeding programs. These "best available" plants are crossbred, grown, and the best of their progeny are selected on the basis of the desired characteristics.

Then, these "most desirable" ones are grown, and THEIR best are selected, and so on, until a highly desirable plant is achieved. Then the experimental seeds are planted, grown, harvested, and the seed saved, grown, harvested, until the seed supply is increased.

All this sounds very simple, but it isn't.

Thousands, even millions, of seedlings are rejected, because they do not measure up.

A strong-stalked plant may, for instance, turn out to be susceptible to disease. A resistant plant may have low yields, or other shortcomings. Then there is the growing season needed to produce all these seedlings. It takes years - a minimum of eight, if everything goes perfectly (and it usually doesn't) to get a single new variety.

But assuming one has been discovered. What then?

Researchers have one batch of seeds that grew plants that met all the requirements - good yield, disease resistance, nutrition, and so forth. But what if this batch gets planted and there is a bad crop year? Decades of research are zapped!

So, just as a bank has its data processing files, agricultural research has their genetic collections. There is a world corn collection, centered primarily in Mexico, and a world rice collection in the Philippines, for instance.

World collections serve yet another purpose, that of making the genetic material available to different nations, so that they may undertake to crossbreed with native varieties to produce better plants in their own climates. So, the bank acts as a distributing agent, making improved varieties available worldwide.

Dr. Robert C. Pickett, Purdue professor of agronomy, has been instrumental in establishing and expanding the world collection, which was begun in 1963, and the result of the collection has been some answers to the ever-pressing problems of human food needs.

The Purdue Agronomy farm, near Lafayette, is the site of the Purdue portion of the world collection, which is used in the protein quality research. A winter nursery is maintained in Puerto Rico, and currently some research is being carried on cooperatively with Brazil and more than 16 other nations.

NEW TELEPHONE SYSTEM

WILL CHANGE DIALING AND ADD CONVENIENCE

Culver telephone customers of the Indiana Bell Telephone Company will soon experience a change in the way things are done. On November 18th Culver will be added to the list of four other exchanges that will receive the new service, called Traffic Service Position System (TSPS).

Rodney Lubeznik, Bell manager for the Culver area, stated last week that the new system will add efficiency and economy to the handling of many long distance calls. The Bell investment in the new system is nearly $4-million.

What does this mean to the customer? It means that most long distance calls, even those which require the assistance of an operator (such as collect or credit card calls, and person to person calls) can be completely dialed by the customer. No longer will you have to give the operator the number you are calling - the numbers you dial will be displayed on the operator's computer screen when she comes onto the line.

For the direct distance caller, this will mean that we will no longer have to give our number when placing the call - the same computer will sense the caller's number from the line.

The new equipment is designed to diagnose trouble in telephones, and some out of order phones will be repaired even before the customer knows something isn't right. The new system is supposed to handle long distance calls 40% faster than the previous method.

VFW LADIES AUXILIARY HOLDS MEETING

Twelve members of the Ladies Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars #6919, met Monday evening at the Post Home, with Mrs. Roger Wise, president, presiding.

In Committee Chairman reports, Rehabilitation Chairman Mrs. Luke Liette reported get-well cards being sent to Mrs. Charlotte Tasch, Mrs. Madge Stephens, and Ralph Ferguson. Birthday cards were sent to several members having October birthdays. Mrs. Liette also stated that she sent cards and flowers at the death of Sister Margaret Humes.

Membership Chairman Mrs. Ralph Ferguson stated that 1974 dues have been received from 62 members to date. Members were reminded of the raise in dues effective November 1st and to send them to Mrs. Ted Strang, 215 Winfield Street, Culver.

Under Cancer Aid and Research, Mrs. Teresa Lemar explained the Cancer and Dread Disease Insurance which the National Ladies Auxiliary has available for members.

The newly-introduced Safety Program, covering Lite-A-Bike, Drug Abuse, Drive To Survive, and Public Commending, was reported on by President Wise in the absence of Chairman Miss Carol Surber. The Auxiliary aided the Post October 6th in their Lite-A-Bike campaign held in conjunction with the local Police Department's Bicycle Inspection and Registration program. Over 80 vehicles were fitted with reflector tape furnished by the VFW Post to aid in the continuing Bicycle Safety program sponsored annually by the parent Post.

Youth Activities Chairman Mrs. Eugene Riestler stated that she would again this year be working with the Girl Scout troops, two of which are sponsored by the Auxiliary. It was decided to have a Porch Sale on November 17th with proceeds going to the Girl Scout Junior troops under Auxiliary sponsorship. All persons having items for the sale are to mark the items they sell with their name and the selling price and bring them to the Post Home on Friday evening, November 16th.

In the Americanism project, Mrs. Wise stated that an Indiana State flag has been received and presentation will be made soon. Plans were also made to make presentation of Americanism and flag literature to the local schools in the near future.

Discussion was held on two projects that have been held annually - Thanksgiving baskets to needy senior citizens and collection of used toys for needy children in the local area. Donations for the Thanksgiving baskets are to be brought to meetings in November or left at the Post Home. Anyone having used toys for that campaign may contact Mrs. Strang or Mrs. Wise or may be deposited on the porch of the house located east of the VFW Post Home in Culver. All donations of used toys is greatly appreciated, as in past years thirty to forty children in the local area have benefitted from this project.

HALLOWEEN PLANS

School Band has not marched in a local event in some months, and this will be an excellent opportunity for area residents to see the fruits of all of the early morning practices on Culver side streets.

Following the parade, young people will gather at the Junior High gymnasium, the end of the parade route, for a party. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes, and games with prizes will be organized.

The Culver-Union Township Fire Department will be represented in the parade, as in past years, by one of the fire trucks in the Department's fleet.

ASCS MONITORS SUPPLY NEEDS

The Marshall county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office is continuing to monitor area farmers' supply needs to help alleviate serious problems this fall.

Lester McGriff, Executive Director, says his office has been keeping tabs on local farm fuel and fertilizer supplies since early spring. "We plan to continue these checks on fuel and fertilizer, and we are also monitoring the availability of storage space and transportation equipment to help, where possible, to prevent crop spoilage and other losses caused by shortages as harvest progresses," he said.

Mr. McGriff said farmers should report any critical shortages of fuels for crop harvesting and drying and fertilizers for fall application to the county ASCS office. Some problems can be resolved locally, or through ASCS or state government, he said. If not, we will immediately report serious shortage problems to Washington where they will be referred to the regulatory agency involved, and to others concerned with helping assure adequate farm supplies.

Even though ASCS has no direct authority under the fuel allocation program, attempts to resolve critical fuel shortages will continue to be made. Mr. McGriff stressed that farmers should make every effort to obtain supplies before requesting assistance and urged farmers not to buy more fuel than they need to help assure equitable distribution to all farmers.

With regard to fertilizers, Mr. McGriff said farmers should consider early delivery, on-farm storage and fall application where possible. With more crop acreage expected in 1974, farmers should deal now to fill their farm's fertilizer needs, because problems could develop in replenishing local supplies. He added that farmers should also make every effort to conserve and make the most efficient use of plant nutrients, using soil tests for accurate determination of requirements.

THE BASEMENT PRESS

Thursday was a beautifully enticing day and the Monday following it was equally fresh and full of sunshine - so naturally on the Friday our journalism class decided to take a short field trip downtown to the CULVER CITIZEN office, it rained. Forced by drizzle to take cars, four people rode with Mrs. Baker in her humongous Pinto while Becky Stayton and Terry Stevens joined Lizz Pinder in her small, but adequate, Bel Air Chevy. My colleague, Kim Thompson, and I were instructed to wait in front of the school for Lizz until she picked us up, so of course when Bob Ervin drove up in his van, we got in. We proceeded in Bob's carpeted "heaven-on-wheels" down School Street when Bob, better known as "our man Parnelli," explained that he didn't know where the office was. We all agreed that Bob needn't feel ignorant nor guilty just because he'd lived here 16 years and didn't know where the office was. We also felt that a guy as nice as Bob deserved more than just the required minimum, so when he asked directions, instead of just one set of directions, we gave him a multiple choice. Mark VanHorn said "Go left," I suggested he go right, and Julie Pinder felt straight was the best choice. Kim Thompson, seeking to put Bob at ease, said "Don't worry, Bob - ya' can't miss it!"

At the stop sign Bob negotiated a right turn and we proceeded past the Jr. High. Julie, alert as always, noticed a stop sign down the road and said "Bob - there's a stop sign," and immediately we all lurched forward in the van. As we picked ourselves off the floor, Mark requested that Bob pull up to the intersection and THEN stop. Bob proceeded to the intersection where he almost stopped before making a left hand turn. A block later, Bob decided to make another left hand turn. Almost using his signal and almost using all four wheels for the turn, we approached another intersection with a stop sign which we almost stopped for. A second intersection proved to be Main Street and Cass, and we almost stopped for the stop sign there. Bob finally spotted the office and pulled over almost to where we told him. We all fled out of the van - realizing we almost lost our lives. Kim fell on the ground, kissing it while Julie was hugging a tree. Mark just stood there babbling and I remained motionless with a death grip on the door handle.

When the rest of the team got there, we assembled in front of the door, and upon knocking, were met at the door by Mrs. Thomas Zoss. She opened the door and shot darting glances outside to see if anyone was around, and then grabbed us inside. Once inside she herded us quickly to the basement (perhaps she didn't want to be seen with us - I wonder why??). When we got to the basement she showed us the "wonder machine" - it does the biggest amount of the styling, blocking, typesetting, and all the odd jobs required to run a paper. In fact, the only thing it doesn't do is knit or give haircuts. Mr. Zoss then explained some things to us about the actual publications and reassured Mrs. Baker, to her total disbelief, that we were doing just fine. He then very gallantly offered to exhibit the dark room, and much of the class accepted the offer. Mrs. Baker, either interested or worried, joined the group. When they finally emerged, we drug out copies of old Citizens and discovered that in 1963 Mrs. Hughes' daughter graduated from a St. Louis nursing school, it cost $.90 to see "King Kong" at the El Rancho theatre, and that the school menus have yet to change. When it came time to leave, we thanked the Zoss family for their hospitality (maybe perseverance is a better word) and formed up outside for a "team portrait".

After the picture was taken, Mark, Julie, Kim and I searched frantically for a ride, but to no avail. Mrs. Baker couldn't fit one of us in, let alone four. We looked for Lizz, but she was already "winging her way to those halls of ivy", so we grit our teeth and joined Bob. When we got to the van, however, Bob gave the keys to Mark VanHorn to drive - and you know something? Bob's not at all bad compared to Mark???

LETTER to the EDITOR

As a student at Culver Comm. High School, I have always felt the blow when projects in school had to be scrapped because of no money. CCHS has had a policy in the past to allow us as few money-making community projects as possible. Reasons for this were that the merchants and citizens get sick and tired of buying tickets, magazines, cakes, or anything else a student may be selling. This disgusts me to no end to realize, that the citizens of Culver are too concerned with their own lives to dive in and get involved in school activities. (Other area schools put Culver to shame.)

You also have heard many comments in the past about lack of school spirit within the walls of school. If I'm right, spirit starts at home. So that means you parents have got to start setting examples for the students. In order to get things done, we need the area communities help now also. You have the power, why don't you do something?

Something must be done about total support for school activities other than JUST Music, and Sports. We have been petitioning and the students are ready to try as adults to help. Are the parents ready to be adults also?

ANOTHER NEW FACE

The new Home Ec. teacher Mrs. Kay Irene Peterson was born in Wawaka, Ind., a small, rural farming community in northern Ind. Her family consists of eight children of which she and her twin brother are fifth in line. She was married in August 1965 to David Peterson from Monterey, Ind. and attended Purdue extension in Fort Wayne and Ball State from which she obtained her B.A. in 1971 and vocational masters in 1972.

Mrs. Peterson came here for her first year of teaching as her husband is the head of biology at CMA.

Mrs. Peterson really likes Culver, CCHS, the students and faculty. She wants to make this year as relevant to her students as possible and says she has some good new ideas that she hopes to put into practice soon.

TENNIS ANYONE?

You may have noticed the roped off area by the ends of the track and the parking lot. This is the scene for the new tennis courts this year. Construction on the courts has not begun as yet but should be finished before winter sets in. Mr. Nelson, CCHS Athletic Director stated,

"The courts will be open to the public and lighted so if you really like tennis, you can play all night." Next Spring, hopefully, there will be teams and schedules against other schools. We are also hoping tennis will be offered in P.E.

The Armadillo Story

We have a little friend we call
An armadillo, who is very small.
He causes no trouble, but to our surprise,
He has a little trouble at night with his eyes.
He may see a car, its' lights shinin' bright,
You should see him act, man, it's quite a sight.
He thinks it's two suns to collide with the earth,
He wonders what to do, wondering for all that he's worth.
He talks to his friend, and finally decides,
That he should do something 'fore we all collide.
His friend says, "Hey man, our time's almost here!"
But he said, "Cool it baby, there's nothing to fear."
He throws himself into the path of the car,
Who, at the time, ain't away just too far.
All of a sudden, a squall of tires on tar,
And someone was yelling, "I'm a car! I'm a car!
The armadillo stood up and said, "Hey man, what yo' say?"
"I said I'm a car, so get out of the way!"
"You're jive'n me man, like yo' is two suns, Gonna collide with the earth and spoil my fun."
"I am not two suns, and we're not gettin' crashed,
But you'd better move or you're gonna get smashed.
He didn't move, like a fool you see,
'Cause now he's a very dead armadilly.

Baked Ham Slice Sports Delicious Crunchy Peanut Top

A smart shopper spots a ham slice as a good buy. She knows it's cost per serving that really counts and that a ham slice provides more flavor-packed servings per pound than poultry or many other meat cuts. Then, too, the important food nutrients ham provides and the eating satisfaction it gives make it well worth choosing without consideration of cost.

The easy preparation of a ham slice is yet another plus factor, points out Reba Staggs, home economist of the National Live Stock & Meat Board. Good when either broiled or baked "as is," a delicious peanut crunch topping will add interest to this familiar menu standby.

* Baked Ham Slice — Peanut Crunch Topping

- 1 smoked ham slice, cut 1 inch thick
- 1/4 cup peanut butter
- 1/3 cup crushed corn flakes
- 1/4 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 tablespoon vinegar

Spread peanut butter evenly over ham slice. Combine corn flakes, sugar and dry mustard. Add vinegar and mix thoroughly. Spread corn flake mixture evenly over peanut butter. Place ham slice on a rack in an open roasting pan. Bake in a slow oven (325°F.) 35 to 40 minutes. 4 to 6 servings.

Know Your Indiana Law

By John J. Dillon, Attorney

"Retaliatory Discharge"

In a novel and most interesting case recently decided by the Indiana Supreme Court the right of an employee to be free from retaliatory discharge for exercising his rights under the Workman's Compensation law was enunciated. In this particular case an injured employee made a claim pursuant to the Workman's Compensation statute for injuries received that arose out of his employment. After due medical examination, it was indicated that the employee received a permanent partial impairment and the employer's insurance carrier was required under the statute to pay the statutory award for this injury. Some months later the employee was discharged without any reason being given.

The employee promptly filed suit asking for actual and punitive damages stating that the discharge was caused by the fact that a Workmen's Compensation claim provided by law was pursued by the employee. The employer replied that there was no basis for the continued employment of the employee, that there was no contract requiring a specified length of employment and that this particular employee, like any other in the same situation, could be discharged without any cause and in fact was so discharged. The employee wished to present the issue to a jury to provide evidence that the real reason for the discharge was the bringing of a claim under the Workmen's Compensation law and the fact that other employees would have a feeling that to bring a justified claim for injury received would impair their employment for this company. The trial court refused to let this matter be tried by jury, saying that this was not an action recognizable by the jury because the employee could be discharged without cause.

The Indiana Supreme Court, however, disagreed. It pointed out that the Workmen's Compensation statute provides that "no contract or agreement, written or implied, no rule, regulation or other device shall, in any manner, operate to relieve any employer in whole or in part of any obligation created by the Workmen's Compensation Act." The Indiana Supreme Court stated that if it was a fact and a policy of an employer to let it be known either directly or indirectly that there would be a retaliatory discharge for a person exercising a legitimate claim under the Workmen's Compensation law, then the whole intent of the statute to provide a remedy for injured employees would be frustrated. The Supreme Court did not state, however, that this is necessarily the case here but that whether in fact a retaliatory discharge actually happened or it was a legitimate discharge of the employee for other reasons was really a question of fact that the employee had a right to put before a jury for a decision. The court pointed out that if the employee can prove the allegations that the discharge in question was in fact retaliatory and was caused by the exercise of rights of the Workmen's Compensation law, then the jury could find the employee is entitled to damages.

The Court pointed out that this was a novel decision because it could find no other cases in either this or any other state holding that such a discharge for the exercise of Workmen's Compensation rights is actionable. The Court stated that, nevertheless, the Workmen's Compensation Act was passed to provide a remedy for an employee and that if in fact the exercise of this basic right caused the retaliatory discharge of an employee then an employee should have a suit for damages.

THE FACE OF CHANGE . . .

The old hotel porch, lined with pillars, where rocking chairs once swayed in the off-lake breezes, sits empty— leaves blowing through the porch and under the boarded up front windows.

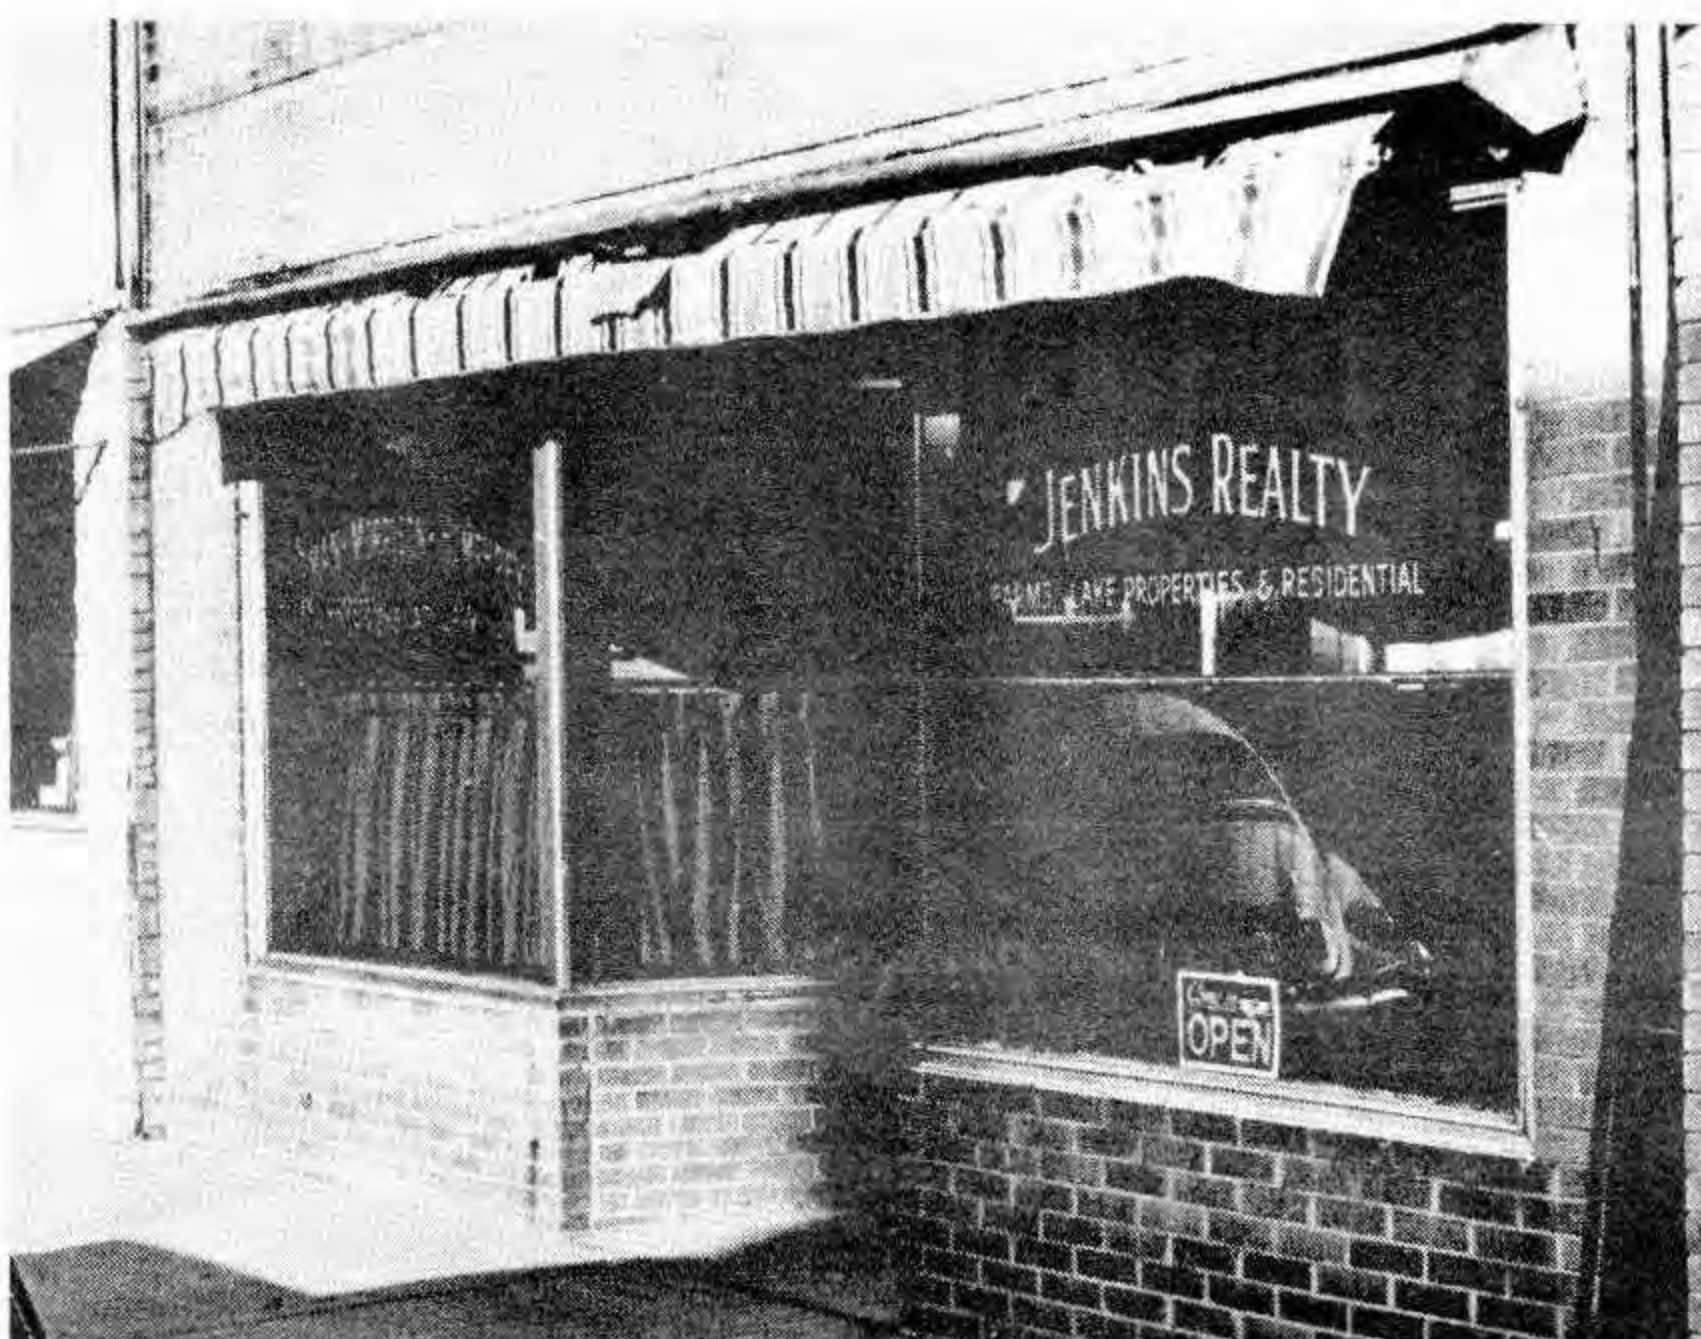

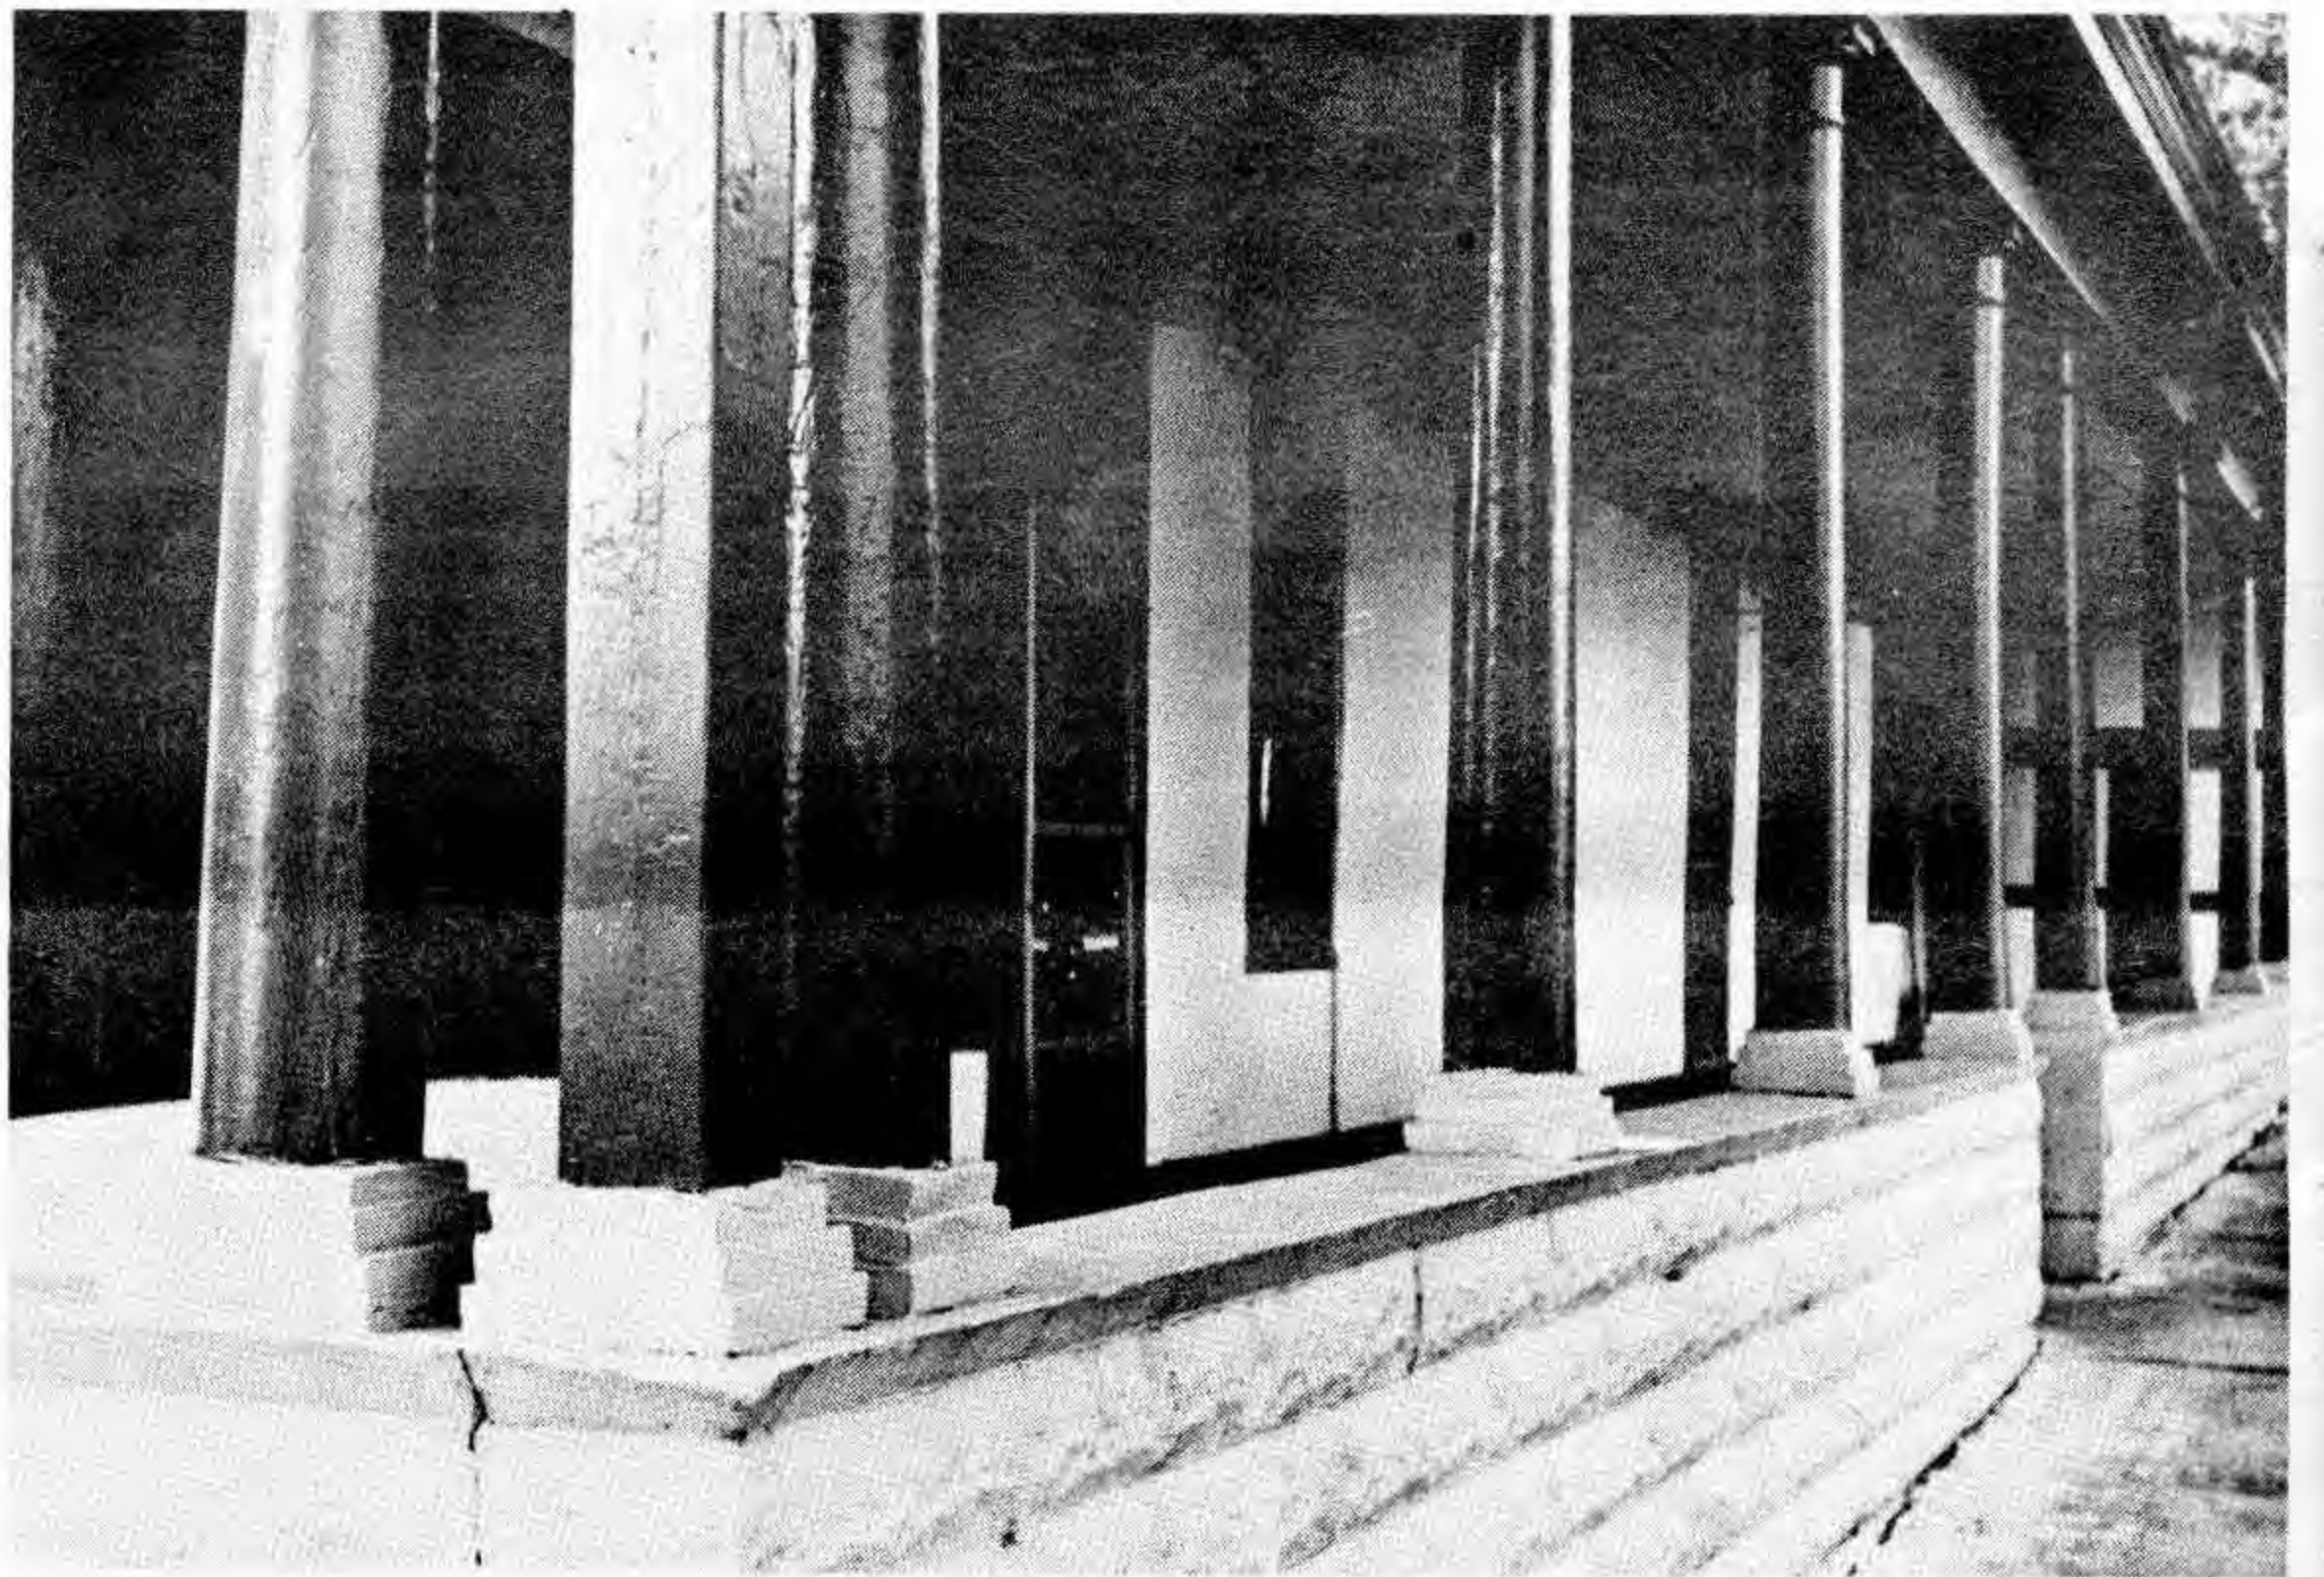

One restaurant is closed, and possibly another.

Some new faces, new signs have come, but do the new ones balance the loss of the old?

A strong business community keeps a town alive.

Help keep our town alive— shop at local stores whenever possible. Encourage expansion by asking for what you do not find, rather than grumbling and driving miles away to find your needs. By asking for what you will buy, you encourage businessmen to order more merchandise, expand their lines and strengthen their inventories.

Remember that without a strong business community our town will die. Support local concerns, help them to know what you want them to stock. We'll all be better for the effort and cooperation.
