Some of Culver's youngest citizens have been busy lately, as these photos from recent days attest. Culver's Edgewater closes

Bickel discusses sale, status of Uptown Cinema

By Jeff Kenney
Citizen editor

Sunday evening, the first restaurant to establish Culver as a great dining destination was darkened, apparently forever, at least as it's been known up to now.

The Edgewater Grille, at 620 E. Lake Shore Drive, posted the announcement to its Facebook page Friday morning, acknowledging rumors of the impending closing of the popular restaurant -- which had been operating without its liquor license for some weeks -- were at least partially true. "The Edgewater Grille," read the announcement, "will be closing its doors this Sunday, March 25th, and will reopen early May with a new menu, new name, and an awesome facelift. Come in before it's too late!"

Restaurant owner Dan Bickel confirmed Saturday he has sold the restaurant to Mark Damore, Jr., son of the owner of the Original Root Beer stand, just down the street. And though Bickel said a restaurant will open in the building in time for summer, no definitives have been established as to exact date, name, style, or other attributes of what's to come.

The Edgewater Grille opened in 1997 under Larry and Jo Surrisi. In 1999, it was expanded and renovated to the stylish exterior and interior it's had since. That's the same year George and Tammy Pesek moved to Culver from Chicago and opened the popular Corn-dance Cafe, later establishing the Marmont Grille. Surrisi eventually sold the Edgewater and launched a second restaurant venture in Culver, resulting in a variety of fine dining options unusual for an Indiana community of 1,500, and helping bolster Culver's image as a resort destination. Bickel purchased the Edgewater from Ralph Braun of Winamac in Aug., the Uptown Cinema, which he will continue to own and operate. He notes he'll also con-

As a result, he says, the Uptown will show movies during the busy summer months and for special events such as the Lake Maxinkuckee Film Festival in September, but will likely remain largely dormant through the slower months of the year. An announcement on the former Edgewater is impending, but in the meantime, the Edgewater's Facebook status Sunday was the following message from Dan Bickel: "I Wish to Thank All Our Loyal Patrons and Dedicated Staff for Many Great Years of Joy and Support. It's been a Pleasure Serving You and Honor Working with My Staff. I'm going to Continue working within the Culver Community as I keep the Movie Theater alive and develop the Culver Banquet Center. "Again, Thank You All -- you will be missed."

Culver school board discusses Monterey items

By Ben Haut
Correspondent

The decision as to what to do about the items on display in the closed Monterey Elementary School building is still being discussed, as Monterey Town Board President Jim Fleu-Monterey Elementary School ry approached the Culver School Board this week requesting an update on the situation. Fleury asked the board whether or not they would allow him to make arrangements to have a number of items removed from the building that hold sentimental value to the community. Superintendent Brad Schuldt said the board would ultimately have to decide what items can be removed, and requested that Fleury make a list of items to be removed from the building and where they would be taken.

"It's not going to be a fire sale, by people walking in and grabbing stuff off the walls and then going out

Lions step up for CCHS band

Culver's Lions Club stepped up to help the Culver Comm. High School band acquire two new uniforms, part of a broader effort to replace the 25-year old uniforms presently in use, by way of a $780 check, presented by Lions president Barabara Winters (third from left). Worker struck by falling tree LAPAZ — 19-year-old Alan Neace, of Culver, was struck by a falling tree at a residence on the corner of 3rd Road and Pine Road Monday morning. He and several other workers had been cutting down the tree when the top part swung down and hit him.

Neace was conscious, but in a lot of pain according to the Marshall County Sheriff's Department. He was transported by MEDEVAC to Memo-the door. We're going to create a list and then this board will decide what to do with the items that are there," said Schuldt.

A committee was established consisting of board members Ed Behnke, Ryan Sieber, and Jack Jones, with Jones acting as the contact for the committee. Fleury told the board that he will make arrangements for himself, the committee, and a few other people to enter the elementary school and work on the list of items to be removed.

When the list is completed, it will be presented to the school board and a decision will be made on whether or not to allow the items to be relocated.

According to Schuldt, the items can be either given on loan, or ownership of the items can be transferred entirely to the new caretakers.

CYCO fundraiser a success

The Culver Youth Community Organization, a philanthropic collaboration between the Culver Community High School and the Culver Academies, recently held a weeklong fundraiser for the Logan Center of South Bend. The Logan Center provides services and support to children and adults with developmental disabilities.

The weeklong fundraising effort began with CYCO members selling Logan Center bracelets, clown noses, and plastic derbies at all the Culver community schools and the Academies. The Culver Community Elementary School, in particular, showed an overwhelming amount of support for the cause. Between administration, faculty, and students, CYCO raised over $600 through Logan Center merchandise sales at the elementary school.

Chuck Kitchell, elementary school principal, shared his support of the fundraiser: "The Logan Center is a great organization and we would like to thank CYCO for allowing our students to be a part of such a worthy cause."

To conclude the fundraising week, CYCO hosted a community Fun Fair Saturday, March 10 at Culver Academies' Steinbrenner Recreation Center. The event was open to youth, faculty, and families from the Culver Community High School/Middle School and the Culver Academies.

Over 250 people from the community were in attendance at the event. The night featured fun inflatables, face painting, Blitzball, lively music, concessions, and community togetherness.

According to Culver Academy senior Tesia Janick, "The fundraiser met and exceeded my hopes for success! It's a special thing when students are willing to reach out of their own social circles to unite as a community for a venerable cause. I was in tears of gratitude for all of the community's support, which culminated in over $1,500 raised for the Logan Center."

Culver Community High School Senior Kalee Miller echoes that same sentiment.

"I was extremely happy with how the Fun Fair went. Our CYCO group was definitely hoping for the best for the night, but we didn't want to get our hopes up too much. We are so glad it turned out for the better. We are proud of the community for stepping up on both sides to help raise money for a great cause. I think I can speak for all of us when I say that we would do it again in a heart beat if we knew we could do so much good as a community for the Logan Center." CYCO would like to give special thanks to Francis Elbert and the Coca-Cola Bottling Company for their donation of beverages for the event.

Name that Culver 'citizen'

A number of readers recognized last week's Mystery Citizen, Culver town marshal/chief of police (and member of the force for more than 25 years) Wayne Bean. Among the lucky winners of free parking in downtown Culver this week are Charlotte Hahn, Kay Tusing, Terry Clifton, Janet Halling, Josh Wynn, Kristine Eisenhour, Glennie Cooper, Vicki Lutz Wagner, Marizetta Kenney, Julie Bess, Sara Jolly, Barbara Winters, Chris McNamara, Jeanette Geiselman, Lora Pinder, Shannon Deery, and Nancy McFarland.

This week's Mystery Citizen spent part of his childhood here, left for a number of years, and returned more recently. He's visible around town, as is his wife, who's been here even longer.

Guesses may be emailed to culvercitizen@gmail.com or call the editor at 574-216-0075.
