

PERSONAL POINTERS

Brief Mention of Culverites and Their Friends Who Have Come and Gone

Mrs. Wm. Swigart is under the doctor's care for a severe case of rheumatism.

Misses Ella and Regina Cochran of Monticello were Sunday guests of the Moss family.

Miss Lillian Thomas of South Bend was an over Sunday guest of her sister, Mrs. O. A. Gandy.

J. D. Heiser and family, Almond Johnson and family, L. C. Hoff and wife were guests of Geo. Davis last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McGaffey went to Bement, Ill., last Friday to attend the funeral of Mr. McGaffey's mother who died in Arkansas.

A family named Templeton have moved into the Benjamin Easterday house. They come from Iowa. Mr. Templeton will engage in stock buying.

Mrs. Jerry Eskridge of near Tyner has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Ira Seese, and some of her old-time Culver friends for a few days.

Thomas Houghton is confined to his bed on account of the fall he received ten days ago. Some one is in constant attendance upon him, as he is unable to move himself.

Robert Shook and son of Mitchell, S. D., came a few days ago for a short visit with the former's sisters, Mrs. Harry Adamson and Mrs. Spencer Greenlee. They will go from here to Rensselaer to visit friends before returning home.

Mrs. G. B. Eisenhard and Miss Bess Medbourn supplied the chief features of a Parent-Teacher program in the library auditorium at Plymouth Friday night. Mrs. Eisenhard gave an address on Parent-Teacher club work, and Miss Medbourn gave several readings. It is probable that a Parent-Teacher club will be organized in Plymouth.

Cheaper Than Other Food.

People generally are prone to complain of the high cost of milk, but according to State Dairy and Food Commissioner W. B. Barney, there is as much nutrition in a quart of milk costing 8 cents, as there is in 15 cents worth of beef, costing 22 cents a pound, or 29 cents worth of eggs, costing 35 cents a dozen.

The way to beat the high cost of living question is to study nutritive values of different foods and obtain the most nutrition for the money.

For instance, if you like bread and milk you can set a bounteous meal for two persons for 13 cents and get as much nutriment as you would secure out of 92 cents worth of eggs. A loaf of bread weighing sixteen ounces can be purchased for 5 cents. A loaf of bread has as much nourishment as thirty-two eggs, according to Mr. Barney's table. A quart of milk, at 8 cents, equals ten eggs in nutritive value. The combined cost will be 13 cents and the combined nutritive value will be thirty-two eggs, worth about 92 cents at 35 cents a dozen.

Has Faith in Project.

S. S. Perley was here from South Bend today working at some matters concerning the interurban from South Bend to Logansport. He is still hopeful that the project can be worked through. The right of way, he says, is as good as when built, because, although it is washed at places, it is thoroughly settled and can be depended on as a solid foundation.

This line, said Mr. Perley, is the best proposition in Indiana today. He believes that capital will be found to finance the project within a few years.—Plymouth Republican.

FROM MR. ELICK.

Culverite Describes Topography of Famous Southern Resort.

Asheville, N. C., is located on an eminence 300 feet above the river and 2,250 feet above sea level, but not above the clouds as some seem to think. Much wealth is in evidence. In the business portion six-story buildings are numerous, as well as many other fine buildings not so tall. Many large churches may be found, as well as many very fine residences. The elevation on which the city is built is in the form of a ridge. I would think it a half-mile long. On the east end Park square is located, with the greater part of the business houses surrounding it. As we go west on Patten avenue, the main street of the city, we find a depression in the altitude until we near the west end of the ridge where there is a marked rise until it exceeds that of Park square, and on this elevation is built Battery Park hotel, the third in size in the city. This elevation, I am told, was occupied by an artillery battery during "the late unpleasantness." It was the Confederacy that placed the battery, but I am informed there was no battle fought here. The land is red here, it is true, but it must have gotten its color from some other source.

The city is supposed to have 31,000 inhabitants and these are spread all over this hill. I think it is about one mile from summit to base in either direction.

The streets in the business portion are paved with brick, but many of the other streets have a coating of asphalt, which makes beautiful driveways. On the south side the incline is very abrupt in many places and there are many indentations so that a person might jump from 10 to 15 feet by merely slipping off of the sidewalk. On the north side the lay of the land is somewhat different. True, they had to cut down in a good many places from one to five feet when building the streets. They wash the streets instead of sweeping them, hence no doubt they have wagons that were made on purpose. The water has its exit near the brick and pours with much force toward the curbing, thence runs into the sewers, thence to the river.

The river is the French Broad, and I think the name is appropriate. By stepping it in two places where it is spanned by bridges I find it to be more than 300 feet wide, but it is all broad and no deep. It looks as though a man with gum boots on could wade across without getting wet feet, but this is a blessing to the people here, for with a strong current it carries everything that flows into it away before it has time to decompose and poison the atmosphere. What a favor to the people here that they do not have ice as we do in Culver. If they did and a person would go on the street he would start toward the base on something else than his shoe soles.

Mid-Winter Barn Raising.

Jasper M. Lake on Thursday, Jan. 29th, had an old-fashioned Dutch barn raising at Michael Bernhard's one-half mile north of Hibbard. The barn is a bank barn 40x60 and was raised in about three hours without a mistake and no one was hurt. Mr. Bernhard treated the men to wine and cigars and a bountiful dinner was served to all. This barn raising will long be remembered by the people who were there, being the largest barn raised in mid-winter in Marshall county in 1914. One Who Was There.

Commercial Club Meeting.

A called meeting will be held at the Osborn hotel on Monday evening, Feb. 9, at 8 o'clock. Important business. A full attendance is desired. S. E. MEDBOURN, President.

FROM THE ACADEMY

A Record of the Past Week's Work and Pastimes at Culver's Famous Military School.

Mr. Mark Sullivan, editor of Collier's Weekly, spoke to the cadets on last Friday evening telling them something of the growth of the progressive movement in the United States. In concise and dramatic fashion Mr. Sullivan traced the crucial moments in the spread of the newer political ideas from the famous speech of Bryan before the democratic convention in 1896 to their culmination in the persons of Mr. Wilson and Mr. Roosevelt as the leaders in the campaign of 1912. The narrative of the fight for such laws as the pure food, conservation, parcel post, and other acts, together with the account of the insurgency battle against "Cannonism" in congress made a thrilling story. At the close of his talk Mr. Sullivan spent a half hour in answering a fire of questions from the cadets, covering matters that ranged from the Mexican situation to the relations between Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt.

At the faculty meeting on Monday the members of the faculty presented to Mr. E. R. Culver, representing the board of trustees, an engrossed expression of their appreciation of the new administration building and barrack with its complete and splendid equipment which will add so much to the effectiveness of class, official and barracks duties. The presentation was made, on behalf of the faculty, by Captain Grant and was answered feelingly by Mr. Culver, who spoke briefly of the ideals of his father, Mr. H. H. Culver, in the founding of the school. The faculty meeting was held for the first time in the new faculty room which is to be the scene of its future sessions.

Lieutenant Collins left the academy on Saturday to take up his work at the University of Minnesota with the opening of their second semester this week. Captain Bays, who has been granted a leave of absence to look after his business interests in Sullivan, Ind., left on Monday. He will probably be absent for six months.

Must Work Together.

Merchants and country newspaper publishers must work together if they would stop the inroads of the large mail order houses which are taking the business of the smaller communities from the local stores.

The question most important today for newspapers to take up is the wonderful growth of the mail order business. One little town of 1,100 population in Southern Michigan, according to postoffice records, shows that $30,000 was sent to mail order houses by people of that vicinity. It is reasonable to estimate the conditions in other towns at the same figures. One mail order house in Chicago reports the business for last year at $67,000,000, and the increase for the year was $7,000,000. Well, what are you going to do about it? Let the newspapers educate the merchants and people on the conditions that will eventually result.

Advertising is the life blood of business, and if the merchants and newspapers do not get together to combat the idea of sending to the mail order houses, it will not be long before the merchants will have to go out of business, there will be no use for stores or towns, or small newspapers. After this condition is brought about, who will pay the taxes to maintain necessary public utilities?

If the newspapers will go deep enough into this question it will not take long to make people see the conditions that confront them, if the mail order business continues to increase in the future as it has in the past few years.

Every merchant should be a booster for his home paper, and every newspaper can then boost the town and its merchants.

Give the Boys a Boost.

The fire company last Monday night voted to give a supper some time next week, the place and date to be announced later. Mush and milk will be served for 10 cents, and oysters for 25 cents. Here is a chance for the public to show its appreciation of one of Culver's most valuable institutions.

There Will be Ice.

Whether or not a crop of ice is harvested on Lake Maxinkuckee the people of Culver will not be deprived of their supply next summer. If necessary, ice will be shipped in from the North to supply the home trade which the Medbourn Ice Co. will take care of first.

Three Ballots Next Election.

The voters of Marshall county at the general election in November, for the first time in six years will have to give consideration to three ballots—state, county and township. There has been no township ballot since the general election of 1908. The general assembly of 1911 passed a law which had the effect of extending the term of all township officers then serving two years. Under the old law the township trustees and township assessors elected in 1908 would have retired Jan. 1, 1913. The trustees and assessors were before the legislature in 1911 with a bill asking for an increase in their salaries. The legislature failed to pass this bill, but, as a compromise, gave both the trustees and assessors an extension of two years on their terms.

James Campbell in Jail.

James Campbell of Winamac was recently sentenced to six months in the Marion county jail and to pay a fine of $100 when tried before Judge Anderson of Indianapolis for running a blind tiger. On a previous trial for assaulting Dr. Overholser, a Winamac dentist (a much smaller man), Campbell was unexpectedly acquitted. In sentencing him the judge said: "I think you are a bad citizen, and I'll put you where you won't assault people for awhile."

Campbell has a suit pending in Marshall county against P. Pontius & Son for alleged breach of contract, growing out of negotiations for the purchase of the Pontius livery stock in Culver.

Mrs. Hartz Gets Damages.

The suit brought against the Vandalia Railroad company by Mrs. Eliza Hartz of near Monterey for damages for the death of her son Sherman, has been compromised at $805. The case was filed in circuit court at Logansport only a few days ago, and the settlement has come about sooner than expected. It will be remembered that the young man was drowned while working about the railroad's bridge at Delong during the March flood last year.

Parent-Teacher Club.

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher club will be held at the school house next Friday afternoon, Feb. 6, at 2:30. Every parent is urged to be present, and all who are interested in the work of the club are cordially invited to attend. Light refreshments will be served.

THE WEEK IN OUR SCHOOLS

Items of Interest Concerning the Faculty and Students.

Last Friday night's game with Monticello marked another victory for C. H. S. The floor was in some places icy from sprinkling. It thus rendered it impossible for real fast team work. In spite of this our boys did some good passing, and Davis carried off the greatest number of field baskets. Notwithstanding the condition of the floor and the one-sidedness of the score the game was exceedingly interesting to the end. Score, 38-11. Next Saturday the boys will play Galveston at Galveston. We play Plymouth Wednesday evening of this week.

The freshmen class will give an entertainment Friday evening, Feb. 6, at the school house. They will present the farce "The Heavenly Twins." Those in the cast are Millard Kantz, George Buflington, Mary Bernhard, Evelyn Howard, Beulah Buchanan, Josie Washburn, Rachael Swingley, Helen Gandy, Helen Kepler, Elsie Dudleyson, Hallie Walker, Gerald Currens, Neal Lichtenberger.

Monday and Tuesday all classes were busy with the monthly tests. Reports are due this week.

Rev. Kenrich presented the high school with a bible.

The high school will present the comedy "A Rival by Request" in a few weeks.

Sunday School Class Social.

About 40 members of Henry Zechel's class of women in the Reformed Sunday school and their invited guests held their annual social in the church basement on Thursday evening. The early part of the evening was given over to games and guessing contests. Following an appetizing supper served at two daintily-dressed tables, Mr. Zechel read the class history written by Mrs. John Osborn, Rev. Michael responded to the toast "The Social Side of the Adult Organized Class" and Rev. Walker to the toast "The Spiritual Side of the Adult Organized Class." This class has been regularly organized for four years and holds an annual social and an annual summer picnic.

Verdict Against Reed.

In the suit against Isaac Reed for assault on the person of John H. Thompson, on trial for nearly two weeks before Judge Bernetha in the Fulton circuit court, the jury rendered a verdict for the plaintiff and placed the damages at $200. This throws the costs, which are heavy, upon defendant.

On May 10 Isaac Reed and John Thompson, who lives four miles west of Argos, came to blows as the result of a long quarrel over a deed. Reed smashed a heavy oaken chair on Thompson's head and shoulders and left him lying almost dead in Chas. Lowman's yard in Argos. It was thought at first that he could not recover.

Surprised On His Birthday.

On last Sunday Charles Overmyer was pleasantly surprised and reminded that it was his birthday when his brothers and sisters and their families began arriving until 38 were present. After the baskets were brought in and all the good things taken out of them the table was spread with roast chicken, rich dressings, cakes, pies of all varieties, pickles, salads, etc. The sisters and their husbands, and the brothers and their wives sat at the first table and most heartily enjoyed themselves, it being the first time they had all been at the homestead together in over 20 years. The afternoon was spent in conversation, vocal and instrumental music and several floor stunts performed by some of the youngsters. At about 5 o'clock the guests departed, wishing Mr. Overmyer many more such happy birthdays.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

THE WEEK IN CULVER

Little Items of Local Happenings of Interest to People in Town and Country

"Furious blizzards all over the country on the 5th and 6th," says Hicks.

The weather bureau's forecast is for rains and snows the last half of the week.

David Elick of Culver has sold his house on Minor street to Mrs. P. Sarber of Tyner.—Dem.

Wanted: One old-fashioned winter, in good condition. Will pay liberally. S. E. Medbourn, Lake Maxinkuckee, Ind.

The premium lists for the first annual exhibit of the Marshall County Poultry association which is to be held in Plymouth Feb. 11 to 14 are out, and persons interested can procure them of Claude May.

An examination for a clerkship in the Culver postoffice to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Roy Porter will be held on Feb. 18. Lester Rockhill is filling the position under temporary appointment.

The subway committee from the Commercial club—Walter M. Hand, J. P. Walter and John Osborn—met with Supt. Campbell last week for a conference relative to the construction of a subway under the Vandalia track at the foot of Jefferson street. Mr. Campbell has agreed to send an engineer here to investigate and to present the result to the higher officials.

The Inwood Revival.

It was conceded that if there was any one place in the county more than another that needed a revival, that place was Inwood. A profound religious feeling has taken possession of the community and conviction and conversions have resulted. The neighborhood for miles around is attending nightly. Sunday night 200 people were there who could not get inside the church. The pastor announced that he would hold two services and speak first to those outside, but there was no place to stand except in the snow, and a second meeting was held in the church.—Plymouth Democrat.

Those Fire Escapes.

The C. C. club has sent its check for $50 to the school board as its contribution toward erecting fire escapes on the school building. The Parent-Teacher club has raised enough by soliciting subscriptions to add about $115. This will leave only about $85—possibly less—for the school board to assume. Our hat is off to the Culver women!

At a joint meeting of the board and a committee from the Parent-Teacher club on Tuesday evening the latter made a report of its work in soliciting. The board expects to close the contract immediately for the erection of the fire escapes.

County S. S. Convention.

The 39th annual convention of the Marshall County Sunday School association will be held in Plymouth Feb. 19-21. State workers will be present as usual. Those wishing entertainment should address Mrs. S. Schlosser, 608 North Michigan street, before Feb. 17. A banquet will be given at the Christian tabernacle at 4 p. m. on Friday, Feb. 20; tickets, 40 cents.

Watch Us Grow.

CULVER, INDIANA, FEB. 5, 1914

Obituary.

Joseph William, eldest son of Solomon and Lottie E. Mutchelknaus, was born in Cass county, Ind., 50 years ago the 20th of February. He died in the hospital at Longcliff Jan. 29, 1914. When but 19 years of age he became physically disabled through a nervous breakdown, and for the past 23 years has been confined to the hospital with hope of recovery, but relief could only come through death. When clothed in his right mind he was a great comfort to his mother, was dutiful and thoughtful for the welfare of all whom he knew. He is survived by an aged mother, one sister, Mrs. Jennie E. Beck of Rockaway, Ore., and one brother, D. P. Mutchelknaus of near Culver. Funeral services were conducted at Poplar Grove Sunday afternoon, Feb. 1, by Rev. J. F. Kenrich. Interment was made in the cemetery near by.

NORTH GERMANY

Mrs. Tressa Edgington, Correspondent.
Mrs. Foster spent Tuesday night with Marlie Wills.

Jesse Bottorff hauled a load of lumber from Knox Wednesday.
Mr. Davis, who a short time ago moved to the Grove from Chicago, has opened a blacksmith shop.

Irish Wit.

Paddy, on learning that his married sister had given birth to a child, hastened to pay his respects to her and make inquiries as to the sex of the child. Meeting the nurse at the door of his sister's home, Paddy smilingly said: "Please ma'am, carry me congratulations to me sister an' ask whither I'm an uncle or an aunt."

HISTORY OF LAKE MAXINKUCKEE

By O. A. GANDY

One of the principal natural advantages of Lake Maxinkuckee is its capacity for producing ice. When, in January, 1818, William Marshall's pick struck through the dirt and broken rock in the Sacramento valley of California and dug up a nugget of gold, it but furnished an analogy to the earlier discovery of ice on Lake Maxinkuckee. California's gold fields were soon all but exhausted, while our lake rarely fails to produce a valuable crop.

This is the way it happened: For several years after the first settlers had begun to accustom themselves to their new homes and had acquired a taste for fresh fish, they found a ready means to satisfy it during the greater part of the year. But in the winter months the lake would often be frozen over for long periods at a time, and then kippered herring (chubs) and canned salmon (carp) and smoked halibut had to satisfy most of them. One day, after a protracted freeze, a native who, for the sake of brevity, we will call Jones, was crossing the lake on foot to his home on the East side, when he chanced to glance downward. Directly under foot he beheld a splendid specimen of bass, which to his astonished gaze seemed to be at least a yard long. With visions of fried bass for supper he hastened on to the home of the nearest settler, and procuring an ax lost no time in returning to the spot where he had seen the beauty. It was still there; likewise there still. With the sturdy strokes that a pioneer long familiar with the use of an ax could deliver, he began chopping a hole directly above where the fish lay. Suddenly he paused, his attention diverted from the bass to the scattered fragments of the substance he had been chopping. Dropping the ax he gathered up several good sized chunks and examined them closely. Incredible was plainly visible upon his countenance, but as he continued to gaze it gave place in turn to a half-formed belief and then to certainty. Quickly catching up the ax he ran like one bereft of senses to first one spot and then another, pausing only to sink the implement to the helve into the glistening bosom of the lake. At last the wonderful truth dawned upon him! It was ICE—all ice. From shore to shore it stretched, a solid, compact mass of crystal wealth. Jones recognized it as the same material he had once, in a distant city, parted with a week's wages for a small cake. He recalled the rumors of untold wealth possessed by the magnate whose slave had deigned to harken to his plea and had taken his small fortune for that minium of luxury. And here were acres and acres of it, and all might be his to do with as he wished. The secret was his alone; so far as he knew no one before him had even suspected its existence there.

As he made his way homeward Jones sought to avoid meeting his friends and neighbors lest they read his secret in his face. If he had encountered any of them he would have preserved an icy demeanor. He fell to estimating the probable worth of his find based upon what he had once paid for a small portion of much inferior quality. His mind reverted to the words of an itinerant preacher who had talked long and earnestly of a place where there was continual fire and few comforts such as ice and water, and he wondered what his profit would be if he could deliver the lot there and auction it off in blocks to the highest bidder.

History is silent as to what became of Jones. Old-timers will tell you that on the coldest winter nights, when ten-inch ice covers the surface of the lake, his wraith may be seen flitting from Chadwick's to the Indiana boat house, and from Dan McDonald's cottage to the academy bay, and if you listen closely you will hear his lament: "Two miles wide and three miles long and ten inches deep at dollar a pound would make—" and so on. We cannot vouch for the truth of this statement, but offer it as a field for investigation to anyone interested in spooks. But whatever his ultimate fate everyone owes a debt of gratitude to Jones for his discovery of one of Lake Maxinkuckee's most valuable and famous products. In the language of the poet:

"Wherever he be or how he am,
Nobody knows or cares a —" great deal at this late day. We are content to coolly take advantage of his find.

NOTICE TO ROAD CONTRACTORS

State of Indiana, Marshall County, ss:
Notice is hereby given that the board of commissioners of Marshall county, in the commissioners' room in Plymouth, Marshall county, Indiana, will receive sealed proposals for the improvement of certain highways in Union township, and paving of one street in the town of Culver, Indiana, by grading, draining and paving said highways and street as set out in the specifications, plans and profiles now on file in the auditor's office in said Marshall county.
Said sealed bids or proposals will be received up to the hour of two o'clock P. M. on Wednesday, February 18th, 1914, when said bids will be opened and the contract or contracts awarded.
Said highways and street improvements are known as the S. C. Shilling et. al. highways and street improvements.
Bids on the street pavement will be accepted separately.
Roads number one to number nine inclusive may be bid on separately, or by an aggregate bid, and bids will be accepted at the option of the board of commissioners as to which furnishes the best bid.
Bids on road number ten shall be made separately and if bids warrant all ten roads may be let together or separately.
Bids shall be for the completion of the roads and street in accordance with the profiles, plans and specifications now on file in the county auditor's office in said Marshall county, and shall include all labor and material for said work bid on, and in no case will extra compensation be allowed for any additional work alleged to have been done by the contractors to whom said contracts are awarded.
Each bid shall be accompanied by a personal or surety bond equal to double the amount of the bid filed for the work bid on, to be approved by the board of commissioners of Marshall county, as provided by law relating to gravel road contracts.
An affidavit of non-collusion will be required and upon failure to file same such proposal or bid will be rejected by the board.
The board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.
Witness my hand and the seal of the board of commissioners of Marshall county, Indiana, this 19th day of January, 1914.

Something About Guns.

[Lieutenant Basil Middleton, I. N. G.] Weapons which would kill at a distance were possessed by man in a pre-historic age, but what those arms were the archaeologist must decide. It is probable that the races of man who had to fight with the mastodon and the cave-bear were better armed than is generally supposed. The throwing of stocks and stones was doubtless the readiest method by which the aggressor could effect the result at a distance. Even monkeys will pelt their assailants with nuts, and the throwing of stones in the primitive fashion was one of the methods of fighting generally practiced throughout the ages. It was indulged in by the French and English even so recently as the battle of Alexandria, 1801.

The sling was used for many centuries as a weapon for war. It still exists as a savage weapon, but its last appearance for military purposes in Europe was in 1572.

The bow, although possibly a later invention than the sling, can be traced to the earliest times and annals of every country. It was held in high repute as a weapon of war, but was pre-eminent as a hunting weapon. The feats of bowmen have been greatly exaggerated, but there can be little doubt that a skilled archer was a formidably dangerous antagonist, and arrows made with square heads would pierce armor quite as well as a musket ball.

The crossbow was looked upon as a most cruel and barbarous weapon, and Pope Innocent III. forbade its use among christian nations, but sanctioned it in fighting against infidels. Richard I. introduced the crossbow into the English army against the wish of the pope and, being killed a few years later by a shot from one, his death was considered as a judgment from heaven inflicted upon him for his impious conduct. The crossbow continued to be used by the British, and the crossbowmen were second only to the longbowmen in the expedition fitted out against the Scots by Edward II. In 1572 Queen Elizabeth engaged to find a number of crossbowmen to aid Charles IX. and it is said that the English continued using the crossbow until as late as 1627.

There seems to be little doubt that the composition of gunpowder has been known in the East from times of dimmest antiquity. The Chinese and Hindus contemporary with Moses are thought to have known of even the more recondite properties of the compound. Gunpowder has been known in India and China far beyond the periods of investigation, and if this account be considered true, it is very possible that Alexander the Great met with firearms in India.

The introduction of explosives into Europe followed the Mohammedan invasion. Greek fire, into the composition of which nitre and sulphur entered, was used prior to the fall of the Western Roman Empire. Gunpowder, or some mixture closely resembling it, was used at the siege of Constantinople in 688 and the Arabs are reputed to have used it at the siege of Mecca in 690.

A German monk studied the writings of Bacon regarding explosives and manufactured gunpowder while experimenting. He has commonly been credited as the inventor, and at any rate the honor is due to him of making known some properties of gunpowder. Its adoption in Central Europe quickly followed his announcement, which is supposed to have taken place in 1320. Firearms of various kinds were well known to the ancients, but the accounts given of them are so exaggerated and unreliable that from them little beyond the fact of their existence can be learned. The development of firearms will therefore be traced from their introduction into Europe.

WOMAN'S WILES.

She Proved to Her Husband She Was An Object of Admiration.

As a married couple were walking down one of the main thoroughfares of a city the husband noted the attention which other women obtained from passers-by, and remarked to his better half:

"Folks never look at you, I wish I had married some one better looking."

The woman tartly replied: "It's your fault. Do you think a man will stare at me when you're walking with me? You step behind and see whether men don't look at me."

The husband hung back about a dozen yards, and for the length of the street was surprised to see every man his wife passed stare hard at her and even turn around and look after her.

"Sure, lassie!" he exclaimed, as he rejoined her. "I was wrong, and I take it back. I'll never say aught about your looks again."

The wife had made a face at every man she met.

HOW TO COOK ON THE CASSEROLE

(By a Reader.)

Perhaps my experience with casserole cooking may be valuable to unbelievers. I was rather skeptical as to its merits, but after several trials find myself the staunchest of advocates.

Casseroled Beef.

I had on hand the end of a porterhouse steak, probably three-quarters of a pound, a turnip, a carrot, an onion, two potatoes which needed attention and about a cup of tomato, mostly juice. Having cut the steak in pieces about an inch square and seared it on all sides, I removed the meat and added more fat to the pan, turned in the sliced onion and carrot, also the diced potato and turnip, and let them brown a little. Having heated the casserole, I turned in half of the mixed vegetables. On cheese I arranged the meat and then added the remaining vegetables. Over all I poured the tomato juice, to which had been added a cup of boiling water, salt, pepper and kitchen bouquet for seasoning. The casserole went into a well-heated gas oven at four o'clock, and a quarter of an hour later I turned the heat down as low as possible (using but one burner), left the kitchen and did not enter it again until a quarter of six, when to the gravy I added a little thickening of flour and butter beaten to a cream and set the casserole back to keep hot while I prepared the remainder of our dinner. As our main dish was such a heavy one, we had with it only an apple salad, and for dessert a wine jelly made the previous day.

We found our casserole a most useful institution. The meat was tender and delicious, the vegetables done to a turn and the gravy rich and brown with a finely blended flavor. This quantity was far too much for a family of two, and my husband asked to have the same kind of a dinner the following day because it was so good. So I added a little water, a little thickening and just heated the whole. We had spinach with it and a baked custard for dessert.

Two such simple dinners for the busy housewife, and such inexpensive ones, too! The steak, which cost fifty cents, supplied meat for three dinners, and the vegetables for the casserole certainly cost less than five cents. Best of all, it was good, and so easy to prepare. There is hardly any limit to the number of changes which may be made in a combination. I often add a spoonful or two of okra; sometimes a little celery seed; sometimes the celery itself. A friend always includes string beans. Try it for yourselves, all you unbelievers.

Pretty Nightgown At But Little Expense

It seems to be a prevalent idea that pretty nightgowns are too much trouble to make since they may be bought so cheaply in the stores. But there is one pattern which is so simple that it pays to make it and the finest material may be used as there is practically no expenditure for extra laces and embroideries.

This is cut in two pieces, the front including half of the sleeves, which are cut in one with the gown and the back including the other half of the sleeves.

The fullness at the top may be put into fine tucks or gathered into a simple heading. If the half length bell sleeves are cut short to form shoulder straps this model could readily be transformed into a combination petticoat and corset cover.

THE SECRET.

Any one can sing—
If the heart is full of spring.
Any one can go
With the fiddle and the bow
If in the heart they feel
Little feet of morning steal.

Any one can sing—
It is like a lifted wing.
With the sunshine flooding by
As it drifts upon the sky
Like a bubble blown along—
Joy is song.

Any one can sing
If they try to live the thing
That is beating up in rapture
From the heart and they can capture
In a ditty or a psalm
All its holy joy and calm.

Any one can sing
If the heart is ever king
Of the lives they lead each day—
All the way they go will sway
To the porches of the May
Where the lovely, lovely honeysuckles swing.

Any one can sing
When the year is at the spring.
And the heart can keep it there
Though a blizzard aunts the air,
For beneath the deepest snow
Burning love and beauty flow.

NEWS OF LOCAL CHURCHES

EVANGELICAL.

Sunday school, 10; preaching, 11; Y. P. A., 6:30, Daisy Easter-day leader; preaching, 7:30; prayer meeting, Wednesday evening, 7:30. J. E. Young, Pastor.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL.

It looked like our Sunday school was having another Rally day service last Sunday morning. Two hundred and five were present and the offering exceeded $9. The young men's class taught by W. O. Osborn took the banner for both attendance and offering. A splendid surprise in the way of a Sunday school orchestra brought together under the leadership of the organist and chorister, the Misses Wiseman, was a very inspiring feature of the service. May the good work go on. Some good wholesome church pride is being developed which we hope will have the effect of increasing interest in every department of our religious activity. The good old summer time will soon be here. When it arrives, may each and every member of the church have such an intense interest in the Sunday school and church services that you will be so proud of what is being done to the glory of God that you will be able to persuade your summer company to attend our services. A most impressive communion service followed the morning worship in which about sixty individuals participated. The church-going habit is being germinated in our larger places. May every resident of our beautiful city of Culver become infected. Every other matter concerning our welfare is receiving due attention. We hope the matter of being found at worship in the church of your choice, or that nearest your choice, may be given first place. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you," is good news for everybody and is a proposition that everyone should put to a fair test, and when this is done Culver will soon have an enviable place of first rank among the cities of our fair state. Quality rather than quantity should be the watchword, and then quality will follow. No preaching service next Sunday morning on account of it being the regular once-a-month morning church service for Poplar Grove. Sunday evening at 6:30 we desire to meet the Epworth league. Subject: Joining Gentleness with Vehemence. We hope to have some special music at that service. We have too many young people to undertake to do without an Epworth league in our church. Let the young people take a fresh hold on the work. Preaching service Sunday evening at 7:30; special music by the choir. We expect the Sunday school orchestra to assist us in the music for the service. If you are not an attendant at some other church in town at that hour, come and join us in the worship. If you are looking for a church home, remember our latch string is always on the outside.

POPLAR GROVE.

The interest is still increasing in the movement toward a better life. Up to and including the service last Sunday evening, sixteen had confessed faith in the saving power of the atonement, fifteen of whom have taken the first steps toward membership in this church. We will extend the effort during the greater part, if not the entire week. If everybody works other pleasant surprises are in store for us. The regular once-a-month Sunday morning service will be held next Sunday at 11 o'clock followed by the administration of the holy communion. Come! Come!
J. F. Kenrich, Pastor.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to thank all the kind friends and neighbors who in so many ways assisted us in the sad hours of our loss, the death of a son and brother. May God reward you by His sustaining power to help through all the trying ordeals through which you may need to pass. Lottie E. Mutchelknaus, D. P. Mutchelknaus and Wife.
