THE WEEK IN OUR SCHOOLS

Items of Interest Concerning the Faculty and Students.

On the drawing to a conclusion of the basket ball season for the term 1913-14 all attention has naturally been directed toward baseball and track. The prospects for a well-organized baseball term are splendid and games with Logansport, Plymouth, Argos and other teams are already being scheduled. It being rather early for track suits to be gotten out, nothing very important has been done in that line. But we hope for a successful campaign as there are expectations of a meet aside from the county meet.

The quartet is also showing a decided improvement as the result of its daily patience with practice.

There will be about six or seven preliminary contests for the oratorical honors.

Chapel on Monday morning was conducted by Rev. Tiedt. His talk on the "Glorious Being with Jesus" was very interesting also encouraging. We cordially invite him back.

One of these nice sunny days Miss Taylor is going to take the sophomores and freshmen on a botanical and zoological trip. They will make observations of different plants and animals about this vicinity.

The fire escapes have arrived and will be erected in the near future. A systematic arrangement of fire drills will be instituted.

The high school drama, "A Rival by Request," is strengthening in its dramatic air. They are endeavoring to have the play ready to present at Crook's hall in a few weeks. The comedy is seemingly of good strong action, and very amusing. Watch for particulars.

Small Thing to Fuss Over.

A two days' old colored baby was found on Dr. J. W. Ramsey's office doorstep at Kokomo Tuesday evening. It was believed the mother would not be found at first, but later Lillian Rouse confessed that she was the baby's mother and that it had been born in Culver while she was visiting there.

Miss Rouse said the baby was born Sunday while she was at Culver visiting relatives. She returned to Kokomo Tuesday afternoon, and fearing her father's anger if she returned with the baby in her arms, she decided to place it on Dr. Ramsey's doorstep and leave it to his care.

After finding the baby, the police worked on several clues until at last the right one was found. On arriving at the Rouse home, her parents denied that she was the mother, but she broke down under questioning and confessed. The child was returned to its mother and her family.—Rochester Republican.

Birthday Remembered.

On Friday evening, March 13, Neeswangee council No. 317 was entertained by Mrs. John Hawk, in honor of her birthday anniversary. About 30 members and friends were present, including Mrs. Hawk's mother, Mrs. Snyder of North Dakota. Mrs. Hawk was the recipient of a splendid rocker, presented by the council, as well as other gifts. The evening was enjoyed by all.

ON ALL-STATE QUINTS

Sayger and Shaw of C. H. S. Basket Ball Team Picked for Stellar Positions at State Meet.

[BY RUSSELL V. GANDY.]

Although unable to obtain any championship honors at the state basket ball tournament, Culver succeeded in placing two forwards on the all-state first and second teams. Sayger, star forward of the C. H. S. team, was considered by officials and those who saw him exhibit his skill as being the fastest, cleverest and best qualified forward of the state in high school basket ball. He was chosen by a unanimous vote to fill the place of one forward on the all-state stars. The team picked is as follows:

Forward—Worley, Lebanon.
Forward—Sayger, Culver.
Center—Stonebreaker, Wingate.
Guard—Devol, Lebanon.
Guard—Graves, Wingate.

Shaw also did some splendid work at basket-tossing, which won for him and was chosen a forward on the all-state second team.

The first team Culver met was the strong team from Ligonier. The L. H. S. boys started the game with a rush, obtaining three points in a very short time. Sayger tossed a field shot and Culver immediately started its wondrous team work and quickly completely surpassed Ligonier. The score was not at any time close, so hard playing was not entirely necessary. The game ended in a splendid victory for us by a score of 53 to 17. The line up was as follows:

Culver—	Ligonier—
Sayger.....f.....	McGwin.....f.....
Shaw.....f.....	Miller.....f.....
Davis.....c.....	Green.....c.....
Cowen.....g.....	Long.....g.....
Mawhorter.....g.....	Rex.....g.....
Field goals—Sayger 10, Shaw 8, Davis 4, Mawhorter 1; McGwin 4, Miller 3, Green 1.
Free throws—Sayger 7.

In the second game Culver was not as successful. The team, composed of big fellows, was that of Rossville. Although we were no match for them in weight we excelled them in speed and team work, but being unable to cope with their weight, fast team work was impossible and we were driven to scrap in an exceedingly rough battle to get 8 points out of the final score which stood 11 to 8.

It can be asserted that Culver should not in the least be discouraged, for our team was acknowledged by professional observers to be the fastest little team in the state, but deficient in weight and endurance.

The boys were accompanied to Bloomington by Mr. Bland, C. W. and Dick Newman, Harry Medbourn and Fred Hawkins.

This ends the 1913-14 season and we sorrowfully bid adieu to Sayger, Shaw, Davis and Mawhorter who so successfully end their high school basket ball career.

[BY DEANE E. WALKER.]

Culver's reputation as a basket ball town is statewide. She is noted for having one of the fastest and cleanest playing teams in the state. Her success is known to be due in a large measure to the clean manly habits of her players. She has turned out some excellent players in the past who have found berths on different university squads, but perhaps the best individual star that she has ever produced is Capt. Herman Sayger. He has been the main point-getter of the maroon and white for the past four seasons, making the team when he was only a freshman. He is a fast heady player and his ability to hit baskets from almost any angle is known by almost every basket ball fan in the country. Even when closely guarded by teams that know his ability he has made a wonderful showing. He holds the 1913-14 record for making the greatest number of field goals by any one man in a single game. He won this record by tossing 38 goals in the North Bend game. For the entire season he has averaged a little over 13 field goals to a game, making in all 232 field goals and 97 foul goals, or a total of 561 points out of the 992 made by the entire team. His being picked by some of the best basket ball critics in the state as being the best forward in Indiana only confirms what has been said. His record is one that he is surely entitled to be proud of.

Shaw, although light in weight and hair, is a very fast player. His fast work in the Ligonier game at the state meet where he caged 8 goals in less than 15 minutes of actual playing time is what landed him his position on the all-state second team.

Davis, the tall, broad-shouldered center, has been a prominent feature in the season's success. Almost always getting the jump on his man he gave his team a decided advantage. Using his height and strength to good purpose he played a good game, getting goals when most needed.

Mawhorter, the whirlwind guard, was always in the game. He watched his man closely, was a good, accurate passer and quick as a flash, often slipping down the floor at an opportune time and dropping baskets at long range.

Although this was Cowen's first year on the team he did some fine work. He played back under the basket and made it his business to break up any team work his opponents might try in his vicinity. He was also a good point-getter.

Rhoads and Lowry, the two substitutes, have made a good showing. Both have won their "Culvers" and have secured for themselves a place on next year's team.

In recounting the work of the different players that of Lyle Shaw must not be overlooked. He was showing good form and had a good chance of making the team when he had the misfortune to sprain the ligaments of his knee while playing against Knox and was forced to quit for the season.

Although Sayger, Shaw, Davis and Mawhorter graduate this year, C. H. S. has good prospects for a team next year. With Cowen, Lowry, Rhoads and Shaw L. to build around we ought to develop a winning team.

Punch Boards Must Go.

Acting under the instructions of the attorney general of the state, Marshal Vanmeter has served notice on all concerned that punch boards must disappear, and that checks exchangeable for goods, such as are used in poolrooms and saloons, are prohibited. The punch boards have for several years been a great trade-winner, and thousands of dollars have been spent in Culver in buying chances on everything from a pound of candy or a pocket knife to a silver set. That such devices are demoralizing to youth is a proposition that cannot be disputed.

Convention Delegates.

The democrats of Union township last Saturday elected S. J. Lenon as delegate and T. E. Slatery as alternate to the state convention, and Roy Wickizer as delegate and D. W. Marks as alternate to the congressional convention.

A Business Change.

Zechiel & Elick have sold the City Meat Market to W. H. Porter who takes possession next Monday. Victor Elick will remain in his employ this summer.

DEATH OF CHARLES H. STAHL

One of Culver's Old and Respected Citizens Suddenly Stricken.

We profoundly regret to announce the death of Charles H. Stahl. The summons came suddenly Wednesday morning about 7 o'clock, just as he left his room, and he fell to the floor and expired almost instantly.

About two years ago Mr. Stahl had a stroke of paralysis resulting from a cerebral hemorrhage, which greatly affected his vitality. A little over two weeks ago he was prostrated by an attack of influenza, but he was recovering from this and was able to be out even the day before his death.

Mr. Stahl was not only a man universally esteemed for his uprightness and his genial personal qualities, but he was a useful citizen and has served the community in public positions of responsibility. He was a member of the town council a number of years, and at the time of his death was president of the board of education. As a member of the Reformed church his counsels and example were of a valued character, and his services there as in the other activities in which he was engaged will be greatly missed. His household lose an affectionate, just and faithful head, and sympathy will be everywhere felt for the bereaved wife and children.

The funeral will be held at the Reformed church Friday afternoon.

The Meeting for Men.

The call for a men's meeting at the M. E. church on Sunday afternoon was responded to by about fifty men, mostly members of the churches. Rev. Kenrich gave a short and practical talk, setting forth the duty of the men of Culver to co-operate in building up a higher moral and religious sentiment in the town. He had in mind a general plan for organization which would bring the men together once a month to hear some speaker, and he desired to hear from the men present to learn what they thought about it. Talks were made by W. O. Osborn, John Osborn and Albert Stahl, and brief expressions were given by several others. On motion of L. C. Zechiel a committee consisting of the pastors and superintendents of the Sunday schools was appointed to draw up a plan of organization to be presented at the next meeting, to be held the third Sunday in April. During the meeting a quartet, composed of J. G. Beck, A. L. Porter, Rev. Kenrich and S. J. Lenon, sang several selections.

St. Patrick Festivities.

Twelve couples enjoyed a dance at Crook's hall Tuesday night.

Reformed Sunday school class No. 7, composed of young ladies, Mrs. Eisenhard teacher, entertained Willard Zechiel's class of young men and other young people in the Sunday school at a party given in the basement of the church. Games were played and a substantial lunch was served.

The St. Patrick's social of the Christian church at Clark Ferrier's on Tuesday evening was attended by a merry party who passed one of the pleasantest evenings of the season.

Miss Myrtle Green entertained a number of her young friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Swigart on Tuesday evening. Games and contests made the time pass all too rapidly Refreshments were served.

Spring Fashion Note.

"I understand your society is going to give a medieval party," said a Culver man to his wife the other evening, "what do you expect to wear?"
"Well, there's that hat you thought might do again for this season, and—"
But the subject was hurriedly dropped.

THE WEEK IN CULVER

Little Items of Local Happenings of Interest to People in Town and Country

—Plymouth has a taxicab.

—The Hands have concluded not to put up their proposed business building this season.

—Rains or snows followed by colder may be looked for during the remainder of the week.

—At the horse sale in Plymouth Saturday 107 head were sold. One team brought $640, and another $620.

—Archie Blanchard and his helpers last week built a barn, 22x30, on the W. B. Ogden place west of town.

—The Methodists of Plymouth have approved the plans for their new church to cost, furnished, and equipped with a pipe organ, $30,000.

—J. W. Cnrrens of Burr Oak was awarded a judgment of $1486.65 and foreclosure of mortgage against Francis Smith and others by the circuit court.

—The work of laying the new 80-pound rails on the Vandalia has been resumed. All the section gangs between Logansport and Hibbard, are doing the work.

—Clarence and John Hollett are riding new Excelsior autoocycles of the 1914 pattern. These machines can "project" themselves at the rate of 60 miles an hour, though it hardly seems necessary.

—The electric light gang expect to have the poles set from Plymouth to Burr Oak by Saturday night and to reach Culver next week. If all goes well, Mr. Snoeberger will have the lights turned on in May.

—The former Kloefer residence in Plymouth was wrecked by fire last week. The verdict of the fire chief was that defective wiring was the cause. Every town using electricity should have an electrical inspector.

—The people of Rutland and vicinity have appealed to the state utilities commission to order the restoration of the Nickel Plate agency at Rutland. The closing of the station subjects them to great loss and inconvenience.

—The old barns on the corner of Jefferson and Plymouth streets, owned for many years by H. M. Speyer, have been torn down. The land was bought last year by Dr. and Frank Parker, and in the near future will be occupied by some kind of a business building.

—The ice has commenced to disappear from the lake, and a few warm days, especially if accompanied by a strong wind, will remove all evidences of winter's grip on Maxinkuckee. The last fishing through the ice was done on Monday, and some fine catches of bass were made.

—With the thermometer at 60, robins, meadow larks and other songsters here, and wild geese winging their way northward, it looked last Sunday as if spring had arrived. It is well to remember, however, that Spring is a tickle maiden, very flirtatious in her relations with King Winter, and that March has a disposition that drives hares to madness.

Look to Your Ways!

We publish this week a traffic ordinance passed by the town board. In brief, it requires all motor-driven vehicles to keep to the right, and to halt at a curb with the right side of the machine next to the curb. It furthermore imposes a fine for running these vehicles with the muffler open. You'll see some fun over this, and if Big Bill doesn't gather in a few offenders this season we shall miss our guess.

CULVER, INDIANA, MARCH 19, 1914

Congressman Barnhart was re-nominated without opposition in the convention at South Bend Monday.

Argentine Corn.

No subject has been of greater interest to the grain dealer since last autumn than that of Argentine corn. Its presence at our ports, although in insignificant quantities, materially affected the domestic price. The first wave of sentiment in regard to it was that the corn would fill the place of American corn in all respects and would for all time set the port price. Now, however, we have had time to test the Platte corn, and the panic that seized the trade has lost its force. Argentine corn cannot compete on equal terms with the home product and for most purposes it cannot compete at all.

We have received a number of samples of Argentine corn at this office and find that the corn is small and hard, resembling the nubbing at the end of an ear in shape, and popcorn in its other qualities. It is so hard that meal made from it is too gritty to find a market. It cannot be fed except as chop, and then must be ground much finer than our own corn. The Wichita Mill and Elevator company of Wichita, Kas., has tried out about 10,000 bushels of the Argentine corn and this has been the result of its experience. A number of distilleries experimented with it and have found that for their purposes the corn is worth several cents less than home grown. Its usefulness in this country, then, seems limited to feed and probably never will attain wide popularity even in that use.—Editorial in American Grain and Elevator Trade.

Religious Awakening in Claypool.

As the result of a religious awakening in the town of Claypool a big celebration was held Monday, when the pool tables and other fixtures belonging to Frank Long were burned in the street. Mr. Long has been proprietor of the only pool room in Claypool and about a year ago served a sentence in the county jail for selling liquor without a license. Under the direction of Rev. Parks a great revival has been under way during the past few weeks and more than 100 conversions are reported. Mr. Long has announced that he will open a general store and as a mark of their approval and appreciation the citizens have donated $450 to reimburse him for the loss he sustained in burning the pool room furniture.

Erie Wages Cut.

The Erie section men have received a cut in wages. Notice was given Tuesday of the reduction to 12½¢ per hour. During the year, pay of section men has been reduced from $1.75 per day to $1.12½. It is reported that the foreman only remains on the job on many sections east and west of this place. The other men have quit.—Monterey Sun.

Pioneer Gold-Seekers.

In the spring of 1852, three years after the discovery of the gold in California, a party of over 50 people started from here. Some of the men who left at that time and whose names are even familiar now, were John Trimble, Hugh Miller, Peter King, John Irvin, five Kennedy boys, Aley Buterbaugh, William Trimble, Horace Wilson, George Surgay and father, James Edwards and Theodore Mont gomery. Hugh Miller, father of Joaquin Miller, the famous poet, who died recently, was the leader of the expedition. According to Mrs. George Pershbacher, whose two brothers, William and John Trimble, made the trip, it cost them $150 to get to California. They had to buy a yoke of oxen which cost $30 and a wagon which cost about $35. The rest of the money was spent for incidentals. They were five months on the road and of the entire party who left here, all returned with the exception of Horace Wilson, who was killed by the Indians.

It is noteworthy that but one or two men from this county returned home with any large amount of money. A few came back with $300 or $400 and many landed here without a dollar. Theodore Mont gomery is reported to have returned with $5,000, the largest sum that any one man saved. Many formed vicious habits from the wild life in the West and came back here worse than penniless. Mr. Pershbacher said that Col. Schryock made the remark to him once that it cost $2 in men and time to mine $1 worth of gold in California.—Rochester Sentinel.

Failure of Big Drag.

When it comes to having hard luck the Thompson Brothers of Wisconsin, who came here a couple of weeks ago in hopes of seining a couple of carloads of undesirable fish from Lake Manitowish, certainly have the record. They made four pulls and out of them all they didn't get enough fish, good and bad, to make a square meal for more than two or three able-bodied men.

The first haul was made on Wednesday of last week and while there was no fish pulled out the visitors contented themselves with hopes that they would be more successful in the next attempt. On last Friday the second pull was made and all that resulted was the pulling out of several mammoth remains of trees, three dogfish and several crappies. Sunday morning their efforts were turned to the waters east of Big island. Then the worst of their experiences came for they even lost their net when the large ropes broke and the rest of the day was spent in digging holes in the ice to locate their nets. When this had been accomplished they announced another try for Tuesday of this week and sure enough they seined the waters off of Big island to the south again. But the evil jinx was against them for the fourth time and when the final count showed several gars and a few crappies the Thompsons announced that they would give the seining up as a bad job.

Since their failure to bring to light many of the big ones known to inhabit the waters there has been considerable discussion as to where the big monsters keep themselves hid, but to this time there has been no ready solution to the mystery.—Rochester Sun.

Die and Go to Milford.

The Milford Mail says: A farmer who lives near Mentone said to us Wednesday that it was wonderful to note the change in conditions in Mentone and surrounding country since the tabernacle meeting was held in that town. He said it seemed that everything had changed. He said it was now impossible to note anything of an immoral character and such a thing as profanity was unknown. He said further, the good and friendly feeling was such between men that it was the talk of the town. Not only are the churches better, but the schools are better, the lodges are better, everyone is better.

OUR BOYS and GIRLS

FUN WITH A PUMPKIN.

Here is a way of extracting amusement out of a pumpkin vine, but without scaring people or setting their nerves on edge:

Having procured a big round pumpkin, or squash, cut it in two horizontally, a little above the middle, and scoop out the pulp and seeds. In this way you make a large bowl out of the lower part of the pumpkin and a large saucer out of the upper part. The "eye" of the pumpkin, that is, the depression opposite the stalk, is in the center of the bottom of the bowl. At this point bore a hole and fit to it one of the hollow leaf stalks which you must insert from above, small end first and pull through until the joint is tight.

Now put your pumpkin bowl in the fork of a tree, six or eight feet from the ground, and fasten it securely. Slip the large end of another leaf stalk over the small end of the stalk you have attached to the bowl, the large end of a third stalk over the small end of the second, and so on until you have made a tube long enough to reach the ground and run over the ground some distance like a growing pumpkin vine. You may make most of the tube out of the main stalk of the pumpkin vine instead of leaf stalks, and by using a number of vines you can make the tube as long as you please.

The end of the tube should be a leaf stalk. Turn this upward and fit it to a hole in the top of the pumpkin, the "saucer." Fasten the tube to the ground with pegs, cover it with earth or leaves if you want to make the thing look more mysterious, fill the pumpkin bowl with water and summon your friends to see the fountain play.

The jet will not rise as high as the level of the water in the bowl because of the friction of the long tube and of the air, but it will rise a good deal more than half as high and fall back in drops into the saucer, making a very pretty little fountain.

The tip of the tube should rise an inch or two above the saucer, and if the bore of the tip is not very fine it should be plugged with a bit of cork, wood or pumpkin, in which a small hole has been bored. A fine jet is prettier than a large one, and it does not need so much water.

"You're immense, on the square," said Wallace, with intense appreciation.

Pembroke was not thus impressed. He was offended. He was evidently ready for offence from any quarter. "You are flippant, sir," he said with a grave scorn. "You gave me your word that the deal would be consummated at two o'clock yesterday afternoon. The price was settled and agreed upon by both of us."

Jackson sat in silence, regarding him with an innocent, unwavering attention which very greatly disconcerted him.

"I returned by appointment to your New York apartment, with my lawyers and papers ready to sign, and upon inquiring from an insolent butler as to your whereabouts I received the information that you were on your way to Egypt."

"Good old Rankin!" muttered Broadway, and decided, then and there, to raise his butler's wages once more.

"He said the only word that you had left for me was a profane request that I go to—er—well, we'll not repeat it."

"I'll make that raise a twenty, not a ten," Broadway reflected.

"Believing you to be a man of integrity," Pembroke went on, "unfortunately for me I had no witnesses present at our closing of the bargain."

Broadway continued to smile expansively.

"Still," said Pembroke, "I ask you, as man to man, is your word worthless?"

Broadway looked at him with an intensity of gaze which required three stretchings of the neck to bring about. "When I'm doing business with unscrupulous people, yes," he answered. Pembroke, shuddering, turned to his stenographer. "Have you got that, John?" And John nodded.

"Got that, Henry?" Broadway demanded of his man. And Henry nodded.

Then Broadway walked the floor, keeping the astonished Pembroke fixed with a glittering eye. That careful, able, very modern business person was rather notably surprised by the young man. Somehow he seemed to have developed since the hour, so short a time before, when first he had encountered him in New York city.

"When I fell for your rush football business methods yesterday and agreed to sell," said Broadway, his voice assuming an extraordinary ring, to his friends unusual, to himself astonishing, to Pembroke disconcerting, and, in later years, a celebrated thing, "I wasn't aware of the low, contemptible tricks to which your company had stooped in order to put my poor old uncle out of business."

His voice thrilled with feeling when he used those touching words "my poor old uncle." His "poor old uncle" would have been emphatically surprised had he been there to hear that thrill.

"I didn't know it was the result of the business blows you'd dealt him that sent him to his g-a-v-e." (I am endeavoring, by means of hyphens, to indicate the lingering, scathing emphasis which Broadway, this day saturated in the soul of oratory, was giving now to certain words.) "I didn't know it was the purpose of the concert with which I was dealing to throw out of work hundreds of men that owed to that thing I was selling their very means of livelihood, food for their babes, education for their growing sons and d-a-u-g-h-t-e-r-s."

Even Wallace looked at him amazed. The tremolo, the emphasis, the feeling which Broadway was putting into this extraordinary line of talk to the trust agent were all new and beautiful to him.

"Lots of things I didn't know yesterday, Mr. Pembroke," said the young man in conclusion, "but I've found them out since then, and that is why I've broken my word."

Pembroke's impassiveness was ruffled; there was not the slightest doubt of that.

On Josie's face there was a look of admiration which was balm to Broadway's soul; the judge had listened with a mouth continually opening wider; Wallace was frankly triumphant.

"You didn't think that I could talk that way, did you?" asked Broadway of his adversary. Then, to Wallace: "How was it?"

"The salesman will state the price. I'm the owner."

"I don't consider any commercial trade-mark worth a million and a half of dollars," Pembroke said with emphasis.

"Neither do I," said Wallace cheerfully.

"Still," said Pembroke slowly and coldly, "even in business we sometimes desire to satisfy our pride. It has always been the ambition of our company to control this output. For ten years we have tried to absorb it into the Consolidated without success. I have communicated with my people in Ohio, and, while we feel and know the price to be highly exorbitant, we have decided to take it over. I am prepared to buy."

"Well, we are not prepared to sell," said Wallace slowly and emphatically. "What! I've agreed to your own terms!"

"I heard everything you said."

"I don't quite gather your meaning."

"No; and you're not going to gather our chewing-gum either. We're not going to sell. We're going to fight. You haven't a tottering old man to deal with now, but a young man—full of fire and fight, of energy and ambition! Look!"

Bob himself knew this to have been a fine flight. He pointed with a gesture full of drama at Broadway, who did the best he could to meet the situation with an attitude which might have broken Pembroke's gravity had he been less absorbed and incensed.

"We have an article which, on its own merits, has stood up under almost impossible competition," Wallace continued in a tone of triumph. "We have the goods to deliver, and we're going to fight and beat you at your own game. We're going to make you take your own medicine, Mr. Pembroke. We're going to make you compete with us. We're going to advertise as no article was ever advertised before. We're going to post and plaster from one end of the country to the other. We're going to show you under, that's what we're going to do, and we're in a position to do it."

"I Think You Can Catch Him if You Hurry."

Broadway was as proud of Wallace as he had been of himself. "What do you think of that?" he asked the startled Pembroke.

Pembroke smiled. He had a well trained face. He also was an egotist, both for himself and for his company. "We spend a million dollars annually in advertising, Mr. Wilson."

"No you don't," said Wallace promptly. "I know what you spend better than you do yourself. And my name is not 'Mr. Wilson,' and I'm not Mr. Jones' secretary." He pulled a card out of his pocket. "Here's my name and here's my business."

Pembroke took the card, looked at it, and was really affected. As far as he was capable of showing real uneasiness he showed it then.

"You mean the Empire Advertising company is behind this business?"

The Empire Advertising company, it must be remembered, was the largest in the world.

Wallace had not thought of that. He had not meant to say the Empire was actually behind Jones' Pepsin gum. But now that Pembroke had suggested it, it seemed to him to be a good idea, and, without taking into consideration the important fact that his father, not himself, was president of the Empire Advertising company, he took the plunge.

"That's just what I mean, and we're going to do five times as much advertising as you ever did, and at one-tenth the cost."

"Then my people do no more business with the Empire."

"All right," Wallace positively sneered, "then let's see how much outdoor advertising you get this side of the Rocky mountains."

Pembroke rose. He was not happy, but he hid his level best to hide his worry.

"Very well, I'll take the 11:40 back to New York. Come, John." He turned, then, to Broadway, and spoke ominously. "You mark my word, Mr. Jones, you'll be glad to do business with us before another year has passed."

"All right," Broadway answered, "come around and see me in about twelve months. I may want to buy your company."

"Come, John," said Pembroke without answering.

"Say, John, take down that last one," said Broadway called after him. "I thought it was a corker."

The judge rose from the chair in which he had been sitting in a sort of joyous trance. "I'd give ten years of my life rather than have missed that." Josie, who, as spellbound, had been watching from the side, sighed happily.

stenographer make carbon copies of all that Pembroke said—the entire conversation. We may need them."

"Incriminating, nearly every word of it," the judge agreed.

"Didn't I tell you I'd scare the life out of him?" Wallace asked in boastful tones.

"Did you?" said Broadway. "I wasn't so bad myself, was I?"

The judge grinned at him in commendation. Then: "I'll tell Higgins that Pembroke has gone about his business. Perhaps they'll raise another cheer. It will make them all feel just a little better—if they could feel any better. He'll spread the news in a jiffy."

"Well, what did you think of it?" Wallace asked of Jackson. "How about it, now that it's all over?"

Broadway was a little dubious. "It's a good plot, but how are we going to play it?" he inquired, reverting to the atypical slang of that street he had loved and lost so much on.

"Why, it's the biggest cinch in the world," said Wallace. "If this plant showed the profit they say it did, last year, I'll bet you that—"

He was interrupted by the ringing of the telephone.

"I'll answer it," said he.

"You want to do everything, don't you?" said Broadway peevishly.

It was the long distance call for which Wallace had some time before left orders. He gave a hurried, warning glance at all of them as soon as he had heard the voice which came to him along the wire.

"Hello, gov'nor," he replied. "Hello! Hello! Yes; I called you up. I'm up here in Connecticut. . . ."

Oh, no, strictly business. Say, gov'nor, I can get a big contract from the Jones' Pepsin people. They're going in heavy, I hear. I can close this deal right away. What do you think?

New owner takes possession today. They must be all right. I looked them up. . . . Well, will you let me use my own judgment about that? I think I'll make a splendid deal. . . . Say, gov'nor, will you send me a wire authorizing me to sign this contract? . . . Thanks. . . . I won't be back until tomorrow. . . . Good contract? . . . Thanks. . . . No; I won't be back until tomorrow. Good-by."

He hung up the receiver and turned back to Jackson. That youth looked at him in somewhat helpless curiosity. "What are you going to do?"

"I'm going to show Pembroke we're not bluffing. I'm going back tomorrow, and, as a starter, I'm going to bill New York till you can't see the city through the advertisements of Jones' Pepsin Gum."

"Where's all the money coming from?" said Jackson dubiously. "What are you going to do? Ruin me?"

"I'll draw the contract," Wallace answered. "I'll give you a year to pay for it. You'll be the best advertised article in America a month from now."

"But, great Scott! I can't afford to take a chance like that! I don't know anything about this chewing-gum business."

"Say," said Wallace in derision, "will you give me all you make over a million in the next two years if I give you the advertising free?"

"Over a million? I should say I will!"

Wallace became serious and then broke into smiles. "Shake hands with your partner then. This will be the quickest, softest and first important money I ever made."

"Do you mean it?"

"You bet I mean it."

"Are you sure you mean it?"

"You bet I'm sure."

"Bob," said Broadway with real feeling, "this is the happiest moment of my life!"

At that instant Sam came in. "Missis Ger—rard—to—see—Mis—ter—Jones?" he cried.

Thus Broadway's happiest moment came to a sudden, tragic end. In the mad whirl of recent hours he had forgotten Mrs. Gerard—his little ray of sunshine, sweetheart, dearie!

With a quick glance at Josie he almost collapsed.

"Tell her to wait," said Wallace, the quick-witted.

"The gentleman—wants—to—see—you—first," said Sam.

"Gentleman? What gentleman?"

"Mis—ter Ran—kin."

"Rankin!" cried Broadway with a ray of hope. "Send the gentleman right in, and tell the lady to wait."

Sam went away with these instructions.

"Mrs. Gerard! Where did she come from! How did she know I was here?" said the unhappy youth.

Rankin came in respectfully, cat-footed, gravely beaming, the ideal butler. "Mrs. Gerard's here, sir."

"I know," said Broadway hopelessly. "Where did she come from?"

"She didn't say. Got to the hotel about five minutes ago, and demanded to be shown to you. I couldn't help it, sir."

boy as soon as they were out of sight, "show the lady in."

"Shall I go, sir?" inquired Rankin.

"Stay where you are."

Mrs. Gerard came in most hurriedly. Indeed, her gait was almost that of an elderly lady wonderfully well preserved, who was very, very anxious about something which she valued highly and was willing to run hard to catch.

"Why, Mrs. Gerard," said Wallace heartily. "What are you doing here? Ah, I know! You're looking for Jackson. Too bad! He's started for the station. He's going to make that eleven-forty for New York. I think you can catch him if you hurry."

She had scarcely straightened from the stoop which had been imparted by her hurry as she entered. Now she much intensified it, and without a word dashed out.

"But you'll have to run all the way," cried Wallace after her.

Then he turned hurriedly to Rankin. "Listen! You follow her to the depot and get her on that train if you have to bind and gag her! Don't leave her until you see her safely landed in New York. You understand?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, go on."

As he turned back from intent observation of the man-servant's departure, the noise of a new outburst of cheering reached him from the works, coming through the door the judge had opened as he entered.

"What, again? What are they cheering about now?"

"Broadway," said the judge, "is making another speech. He stopped in the works instead of going through."

"Making another speech?"

They opened the door wide and, waited on the gentle breeze, there came to them in Broadway's best and most effective tones:

"Why, think of what I'd be selling! The thing my grandfather worked for and handed down to my father; the thing my father worked for and handed down to me; the thing that I should work for and hand down to my children, and so on, and so on, and so on."

NOTES FROM THE ACADEMY

Record of the Past Week's Work and Pastimes at the School.

The game at Morgan Park Saturday finished a very successful schedule for the cadets. Out of the eight games played Culver won six, scoring 310 points to their opponents' 253. Although two games were lost Culver did not meet its equal. In the game with Wheaton college McLean and Smith were ineligible, and in the last game with Morgan none of the first team played. If Culver's best men had played in those two games they undoubtedly would have a clean record for the season of 1914.

The baseball season has started and many young aspirants have responded to Lieutenant Starbuck's call. The schedule this year is a hard one, the team meeting such crack nines as Oak Park, Concordia college and Evanston academy. Culver also meets Lake Forest academy which ought to prove a very interesting game. The schedule:

April 11—Warsaw high school.
April 18—Winona college.
April 25—Englewood high school.
May 2—Morgan Park academy.
May 9—Evanston at Evanston.
May 16—Concordia college.
May 23—Lake Forest academy.
May 30—Oak Park high school.

It is rumored that the Culver mid-winter circus is no more. Never again will beautiful equestriennes amaze their audience with their graceful and dainty feats in the circus ring of the riding hall. Never again will a band of Indians hold up the U. S. mail before a Culver audience.

In place of the time-honored circus, Culver is to give a pleasure carnival at Easter time. The Gym club, engineering corps, artillery, gatling gun, and troop will furnish the amusement for this innovation. The cavalry will probably give a reproduction of Custer's last stand.

The fifteen-men pyramid has been dropped, the reason being the lack of steadiness in the horses. The weight of these men is about 2,500 pounds, which makes a heavy load for the animals.

Major Glascock represented the academy at a meeting in Indianapolis of the presidents and deans of Indiana colleges and academies having branches of the Y. M. C. A. This meeting is held annually to consider ways and means of co-operation between the school authorities and the associations. Among the speakers at the conference was Norman Angell, author of "The Great Illusion."

A series of open discussions by the cadets has been recently inaugurated as a part of the Friday morning chapel exercises. Mexican intervention and the enlargement of the navy have been up for settlement. Tomorrow the matter of compulsory arbitration for settlement of industrial disputes will be the topic.

The last indoor track meet of the season will be held on Saturday when the academy athletes will encounter the team from South Bend high school. The sunny days of the past week have sent the men to the outdoors for practice.

On Tuesday morning Captain Durbow gave a short chapel talk on our satellite the moon, and explained by illustrations the occurrence of eclipses.

Commercial Club.

There will be a meeting of the Commercial club on Thursday evening at the town hall. Give us a good turnout, men.

Obituary.

William Garver, one of the most prominent and respected citizens of Walnut township, died at the home of Mrs. H. B. Allen in Plymouth on Tuesday afternoon, March 10. Mrs. Allen is Mrs. Garver's sister.

Mr. Garver had been sick for only about two weeks, and it was not thought that his ailment was especially serious until near the end.

Mr. Garver had made his home in Walnut township, near Richland Center, for eighteen years and is widely known both because of his numerous relatives and his high personal worth to the community. He leaves a wife, one son George, and two daughters, Miss Mata, and Mrs. Ben McGriff of near Richland Center.

Mr. Garver was born Jan. 1, 1848, at Burr Oak, where he grew to manhood. He moved from Burr Oak to Donaldson and from there went to Walnut township. He had two sisters, Mrs. Sam Wise who lives in Michigan, and Mrs. Ed. Dreese of Green township; and five brothers—Henry at Bremen, George and Fred in Green township, Thomas at Burr Oak and Jacob of Walnut township.

Mrs. Sidney Williams, formerly Rena Clemens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Clemens of Hibbard, died at Kankakee, Ill., last week, after an illness of over three years. Mrs. Williams was 35 years of age. She leaves a husband and five young children, besides father and mother, two brothers and four sisters. Funeral services were held Saturday, Dr. Ketcham of the M. E. church officiating. All the members of the family were present except Mrs. Frank Brooke who was unable to attend. Burial was in Mound Grove cemetery, Kankakee. Mrs. Williams was a devoted wife and loving mother, and her last days were spent patiently waiting for the end. She was a true Christian and received her greatest solace from the bible and in hours in prayer.

Woman's Missionary Society.

An audience, which completely filled the church, gathered to hear the annual public program of the Woman's Missionary society of the Reformed church on Sunday evening. The address by Dr. Reed was a comparison of christianity and its results with the non-christian religions, Buddhism, Confucianism and Mohammedanism. The contrast was effectively shown and the address was highly appreciated. An offering was received for foreign missionary work which amounted to $35.

The Woman's Missionary society will meet in their next regular meeting on Wednesday afternoon, March 25, in the basement of the church. The thank offering boxes will be opened and a special program rendered.

No Peaches This Year.

Prof. Keith of Winona College of Agriculture says the peach crop in Northern Indiana will be very light in 1914. He came to that conclusion after examining the trees around Winona. Prof. Keith says: "The warm weather during January, followed by extremely severe weather during February, did all the damage and left the trees dead, so far as fruit buds for next season is concerned."

Estate Settled.

Administrator W. O. Osborn has completed the settlement of the Sarah Calhoun estate. Mrs. Arvesta McAndrews, a daughters gets lots 1 and 2, with the large house, in the Benjamin Easterday addition, and Martin Calhoun, a son, gets a half lot and a small house in exchange for his life lease in the estate.

Methodist Episcopal Church.

We expect to continue evangelistic services every night during the week. The usual hours for services will be observed next Sunday morning and night. April 5 is the date for Rev. Carlton Lacey of Northwestern university. More will be said concerning him later. Preaching at Poplar Grove Sunday afternoon.
